 The air is faint with fragrance
 That drops from Summer's wing—
 The birds are lost in wonder—
 They quite forget to sing.
 Earth has spread her banquet,
 And bids us to partake—
 How glorious the year looks
 When it's wide awake!

“Bright leaves of golden amber
 Rustling in the breeze ;
 Leaves all sere and withered,
 Falling from the trees ;
 Blue mists on the mountain ;
 Shadows in the wood—
 Oh! Autumn's sighing softly
 In her solitude.
 Somethings akin to sorrow
 O'er our spirits creep,
 For Oh! how sad the year looks
 When sinking to its sleep!

“Beauteous gleam of frost-work
 On each window-pane—
 Here a wreath of flowrets,
 There a mountain chain.
 From misty clouds above us
 Comes the plummy snow—
 Of what is Winter dreaming?
 Why does he shiver so?
 Wildly sings the storm-king
 'Round my snug retreat—
 Oh! how cold the year looks
 When its gone to sleep!”

MAURICE MCKENNA.

In 1868, Maurice McKenna, who had written for the press and various periodicals, published a small volume of poems entitled, "Elva Lee." The principal feature of the work was a romance after the style and meter of Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake," which was presented with this :

TO THE READER.

Kind reader, if thy leisure yet
 These pages may devour ;
 And if the humble board I set
 Partake no savor sour ;
 Or, if this simple epanlet
 Disguise no hostile gaiour,
 Then bask them in the minaret
 Of Favor's sunny tower.
 And while I leave this amulet
 Of words thy paltry dower,
 Thy heart will kindly not forget
 The clouds that sometimes lower,
 Nor slight, if thy chaste eyes have met
 Some solitary flower.
 But ah ! if this poor task should sweat
 Thy soul beyond her power,
 Forgive the blast that dared to fret
 Her blossom-mantled bower,
 With song's mirth-shading silhouette,
 Or joy-entailing shower—
 And pardon him who holds in debt
 Thy recreative hour.

Since publishing "Elva Lee," Mr. McKenna has written much that is well worth preserving.

ALICE ARNOLD CRAWFORD.

Of all the poets—or those who have dropped into verse for the amusement of friends or in response to that inspiration which no pen can describe but which occasionally bursts into a glow with all persons of genius, throwing their very souls into a dance of rhythm and transport of beautiful thoughts—none claimed by Fond du Lac County have become so widely known as Alice Arnold Crawford. Her beautiful life, attractive personal and mental attributes and premature death add a peculiar interest to her productions for even those who care nothing for the intrinsic merits of poetry. She furnished articles in prose and verse for the leading publications of the day, and, in 1875, after her death, an unrevised collection of her writings, making a book of nearly two hundred pages, mostly in verse, was published in elegant style by Jansen, McClurg & Co., of Chicago. The two distinct and unlike moods or styles in which Alice Arnold Crawford wrote, are well illustrated by two poems here reproduced :

BLIND HANDEL.

He sat alone—his solemn service o'er ;
 No muffled footfalls sounded on the floor ;
 The distant clangor of the closing door
 From arch to arch leaped down the low octave
 Of dying echoes, and within the nave
 Dropped into silence.

Calm and sweetly grave,
 As one in whom some joy and sorrow blend,
 The blind old man, beside his timeworn friend,
 Still lingered lovingly. Across the keys
 He felt the warmth of sunshine, and the breeze

At play upon the silver of his hair,
 And, down the aisles, he knew the list'ning air
 In conscious emptiness hung dead and still,
 But waiting for the soul of melody to thrill
 Its silence into life.

As one who loved them much,
 He sought the keys. They yielded to his touch,
 And by some strange intelligence they caught
 The thrilling impulse of their master's thought,
 And followed softly, or in echoes rang
 Their sweet response, while he, trembling, sang
 His life-song unto them :

“ We are alone
 Oh, voices of my soul! and joy unknown
 To those who know and love you less than I,
 Is borne to me upon the melody
 That wakens at my will. I felt no need of sight ;
 But, reaching forth, I draw my warmth and light
 From out the world of sound. That fine and mystic sense
 Vouchsafed to me makes more than recompense
 For outer darkness ; since the shadowy line
 That shuts me from the world wins the divine
 To blest communion until life grows sweet
 From hidden springs, and makes itself complete
 From sources of its own.

“ Men pity me ;
 And little eyes that mine shall never see
 Turn tenderly to watch the groping feet
 That, hesitating, tread the aisle and street.
 They look on me as one whose night and day
 Are wearily the same, and sadly say
 My blindness is my prison, and no star
 That, key-like, hangs without the dungeon bar,
 Shall ever turn or open unto me
 The royal dawn, or noontide majesty.

“ And yet I sorrow not. No life is dark
 Whose inner chambers hold the vital spark
 Of heavenly happiness. I only stand
 Within the shadow of my Father's hand,
 And list, through all the ling'ring eventide,
 For loving tones that, comforting, abide Forever in the air. Oh, perfect gift !
 Oh, blessing marvellous ! By thee I lift
 The upper windows of my charmed soul,
 And let the harmonies of Heaven roll
 Full voiced into mine ear.

“ And still I wait.
 My groping fingers clasp the golden gate
 That bounds the sweet hereafter, while the hymn
 That trembles from the harps of seraphim
 Floats out to me : the soft and mellow pipes
 Awaked by me are but th' imperfect types
 Of what I hear—the faint interpreters
 Through which I speak to men—sweet messengers
 From me unto the world. I ask no more
 Since ‘ my Redeemer liveth ’ to restore
 In His own time the fullness of my sight.
 Then, for the loss of earth's imperfect light,
 The crystal day shall evermore be given,
 And Handel, ‘ blind and old,’ shall see in Heaven.”

THE FOREST EASTER.

[This poem was published at Easter-tide in Harper's Weekly, engraved on a beautiful cross which covered an entire page of that publication, and attracted wide attention. The cross was entwined and trellised with the rich green vines and bright star-blossoms of the trailing arbutus, bursting through crusts of snow and creeping about pillars of ice, with the deep, gloomy solitude of a Northern forest for a background.]

In the forests of the North
Shines the Easter morning forth!
Shines and glimmers, flits and smiles
Down the winding woodland aisles.

See! the vapor's rising breath
Floats as life released from death,
Pure above the stainless snow,
Look! how shadows in the glow,

Melted from their icy keeping, out of hidden cells are creeping;
Out of twilight niches leaping at the beck'ning of the light.
Has the spring remembered Easter in the Northland still and white?
Have the symbols of the morning deck'd the dim cathedral wood?
Have they written, "He is risen," in the snowy solitude?
Are the lilies incense breathing? Are the fair camellias wreathing
Carven birch and pillared pine?
Do the lustrous myrtles twine
With the roses, waxen white?
Creeps the ivy's emerald vine
O'er the sky-built casement height?
Tell us, sleeping, sluggard Spring!
Show us, living, waking Spring!
Where is laid thine offering for the Easter-tide?

"In the forests of the North,
O'er the snow-hills peeping forth
Down the sunny side, through the winter's frosted tear,
Through the mosses, cold and sear,
Pure and fair as lilies are, ope's the sweet arbutus star.
Silken-petaled, rosy-tipped, snowy-hearted, dewy-lipped,
Never lovelier offering could the tropic sunshine bring Offspring of an angel breath
Warmed to life through chill and death,
Never truer Easter sign
Robed a cross or strewed a shrine."

Ay, the Spring has chosen well—better than we understood,
Open star and budded bell best befitted the cloister cell
Of the templed wood;
Best unfold the mystic story from the secret of its own;
Best proclaim the risen glory from the life itself has known,
Blossom of the Wilderness! God-child of the snow's caress!
Heaven shall love thee not the less, blooming here alone.

FOND DU LAC COUNTY WAR RECORD.

No county in Wisconsin has a more honorable or noble war record than Fond du Lac.

The news that Fort Sumter had been fired upon and had surrendered reached Fond du Lac, Ripon and Waupun Saturday evening, April 13, 1861, but was not generally disseminated until Sunday. Everything was dropped, and people rushed to the centers of population and information for the latest news. Newspapers were in demand and commanded almost any price, one man paying a dollar for a copy of the Chicago Tribune. Impromptu meetings to sustain the Government were held everywhere, the first of which any record was left being held Sunday evening, April 14, in the city of Fond du Lac. On Thursday evening, the largest meeting ever held in that city was addressed at Amory Hall, by Edward S. Bragg, J. M. Gillet, S. E. Lefferts and Mason C. Darling. The intensity of the excitement, patriotism and enthusiasm manifested cannot be described. Resolutions upholding the Government, and couched in the strongest possible language, were adopted. About $4,000 was raised to care for the families of soldiers, and pledges were offered on every hand to furnish wood, meat, flour and provisions to soldiers' wives and children. Men offered houses free of rent; physicians offered medical attendance free of charge, and the City Council voted, at a special meeting, although it had no right to do so, $5,000 to aid soldiers' families. Patriotism and generosity ran riot. War meetings were appointed in almost every schoolhouse in the county, and speakers were in great demand. The demand, however, was supplied, as men who had never made a speech before, and have not since, proved to be fountains of patriotic eloquence. The Reporter, of Fond du Lac, in its issue of April 27, 1861, thus briefly but graphically describes the excitement of the hour:

"We should, perhaps, make an apology that the Reporter is lacking this week in the usual amount of matter. The events of the week have occupied our whole attention. Our workmen are worn down with night work in getting out extras of telegraphic reports, which we print morning and evening. Nor can we publish all the war news, for want of room and for want of type-setters to get up the type. Two of our workmen have enlisted.

"The war feeling is so intense and absorbing that much of the business of our city has been stopped; men are collected in crowds on the streets, and before the recruiting office of Col. Lefferts. Mechanics have left their shops, clerks their desks, printers their cases, laborers their usual employments, and all are prepared to take up arms in defense of the flag of their country."

Capt. John McGinnis offered the services of the Hibernian Guards of Fond du Lac, five days after Gov. Randall's proclamation was posted, and they were accepted. This was the first offer of a company from Fond du Lac County. It was not the first company to leave for camp, as it was composed of only thirty men who were willing to fight, and some recruiting was necessary to secure the necessary seventy-eight.

The first man to enlist in Fond du Lac County was Colwert K. Pier, and the second was Christian Klock. This was on Monday forenoon, April 15, and they signed the roll in S. E. Lefferts' office, at 494 Main street.

Party lines were nearly obliterated, old feuds were forgotten, and a new era in good-fellowship and patriotism inaugurated. Old enemies, both political and social, met at recruiting gatherings, and made speeches together.

Patriotism and a desire to do something for their country were not confined to the men. The ladies were busy preparing little things for the soldiers to take with them; making flags, committing patriotic songs, making rosettes of red, white and blue, and lending their influence by being present at all war meetings. When the first company left Fond du Lac, each member was presented by the ladies with an elegant silk rosette and a Testament, and the company with a large and costly flag. These were presented at Amory Hall on Tuesday evening, April 31, at which time the company assembled to take the army oath. W. C. Kellogg administered the oath, and so enthusiastic were the spectators, that one and all arose and took the solemn obligation also. Rev. George B. Eastman made a prayer, and E. S. Bragg the following speech:

CITIZEN SOLDIERS: In obedience to your own patriotic impulses to defend a flag hallowed by the blood of patriots, the maintenance of which was bequeathed to you as a legacy of a glorious ancestry, you are about to bid adieu to friends and kindred, to put off the garb of peace and assume the "slow-measured tread of grim-visaged war." In days of old, the knight did his devoir under the colors of his "lady-love." The remembrance of the sweet, sad parting cheered him when gloom was stealing o'er his spirit, and rendered doubly dear the achievements of his arm. In later days—in the times which tried men's souls—the women of America cheered the soul of the patriot; the mother gave her husband and son as willing offerings, and the maiden wiped the death-damp from the brow of her lover without a murmur. That race of noble women is not yet extinct. They are as ready now as then, at their country's call, to make the sacrifice.

Capt. McCall, through me the women of Fond du Lac bid you and your soldiers God-speed in your holy purpose. By my hand they entrust you with these colors as a parting token. Maintain them in the front of the battle. Let them never be sullied by an ignoble act on the field, or in the camp. Protect them, if need be, with your blood, remembering always, that they possess the talismanic power of a woman's blessing.

Capt. J. V. McCall responded :

On behalf of the Badgers, I tender to the ladies of Fond du Lac our heartiest thanks for this beautiful flag, assuring them that each and all of us, rank and file, will do our utmost to protect it from dishonor. And, whether on the field, or in camp, on duty or off, the remembrance of the fair givers will ever be cherished.

Two days after this, May 2, 1861, the company took its departure amid a strange commingling of cheers, sobs and tears. The train left Thursday morning over the Chicago & North-Western Railway, from Fond du Lac, and the city was literally jammed with people from all parts of the county, to whom the idea of war and the sight of soldiers were novel and inspiring.

Before their departure, a splendid dinner was served by the proprietor of the Lewis House, Mr. B. S. Patty, while the bands discoursed music, and patriotic speeches were made outside of the hotel. This company (I), called the "Badger Boys," was assigned to the First Wisconsin Regiment; was the first body of Fond du Lac County men to start for the war, and consisted of the following officers and privates:

Captain, James V. McCall; First Lieutenant, Thomas H. Green; Ensign, Henry Decker; First Sergeant, Lyman M. Ward; Second Sergeant, William S. Burrows; Third Sergeant, Walter T. Coneys; Fourth Sergeant, Ed F. Ferris; First Corporal, Ed T. Midgely; Second Corporal, Milton Ewen; Third Corporal, Timothy F. Strong, Jr.; Fourth Corporal, Henry Taylor.

Privates—Kelsey M. Adams, Levi Annis, George Beaver, David Bidwell, H. E. Barrette, David Babcock, Joseph Busehar, John N. Curtis, Edward B. Crofoot, Volney Chapman, S. Coleman, Jr., William E. Chase, C. T. Carpenter, Henry W. Durand, E. P. Downer, Matthew Emerson, John Farrell, John V. Frost, Kingman Flint, Martin V. Fargo, William A. Fargo, William M. Gardner, F. Grasslee, John Grignon, R. Gilbraith, George R. Gates, H. W. Hubbell, W. S. Horton, Isadore Heibert, Charles S. Henry, Lewis Hart, John F. Hagan, Christian Klock, C. L. Kimball, William Knothardt, Joseph King, Merion Lake, Andrew Lundry, Harrison Matthews, Norton W. Mack, Theodore Magneusan, Charles H. Morgan, John Oliver, Charles Palmer, Albert W. Paine, James G. Potter, Colwert K. Pier, M. W. Peters, Josiah Prosser, William A. Place, Richard Peacock, John Reichardt, George P. Robinson, Francis G. Rice, R. G. Stevens, Samuel Sherwood, Roswell M. Sawyer, Leonard Shaw, George T. Wilkins, Parley E. Wilson, George E. Wood, John Wiley, M. D. Wilson, Robert Whittleton, H. Walters, Delos A. Ward, Byron A. Wheeler and Charles Williams.

Innumerable copies of the "Star Spangled Banner," and miniature flags, on which were printed various patriotic mottoes, and extracts from the speeches of great men, were scattered about the country, and the work of recruiting went on at an astonishing rate, the time of enlistment at first being for only ninety days. Flags floated everywhere. Bulletins naming the prominent men who had enlisted, and scraps containing the seditious utterances of Southern men and officers, were freely circulated to increase, if possible, the enthusiasm for enlisting, and at the war meetings, men who could not enlist would "bid" for volunteers. That is, A would call out, "I will give $50 for the next volunteer;" B would say, "I'll give $100," and so on until another volunteer was secured, the meetings continuing until late at night. A description of the wild excitement and intense enthusiasm of one war meeting would apply to all of them, and they were held everywhere in the county.

The following card, printed on imitation bank paper, was suddenly and unaccountably found in liberal circulation, furnishing the salaries of soldiers in different positions: Colonel, $218 per month; Lieutenant Colonel, $194; Major, $175; Captain, $118; First Lieutenant, $108.50; Second Lieutenant, $103.50; Brevet Second Lieutenant, $103.50; First, or Orderly Sergeant, $29; other Sergeants, $27; Corporals, $22; privates, $20, and musicians, $21 per month.

These figures, though not correct, mixed well with the enthusiasm of the hour, and recruiting went on more rapidly than ever, until it was announced in one of the local papers of May 25, 1861, that "Fond du Lac County has furnished a greater number of volunteers than any other county in the State, not even excepting Milwaukee. We have now nine full companies, and three more nearly full, more than enough for one full regiment. Of these, six companies have enlisted for three years, or during the war. Should the exigencies of the war require it, we are confident the number could be doubled in this county. Our volunteers compare favorably with any in the State. They are a fine, able-bodied set of men, who entered into this business because they felt it their duty to do so, leaving their fields and workshops, and occupations, to be supplied by others. It is an indisputable fact that Capt. McCall's Company stands at the head of the First Regiment for good order, sobriety and military bearing. They have earned a reputation in their short period of camp life, of which they may well feel proud. Should their example be followed by the remaining companies, Fond du Lac will have the proud distinction of having better men in the field, as well as more of them, than any county in the State."

In a very few days after the first company was organized under Capt. J. V. McCall, within thirty days from the time Gov. Randall's proclamation appeared in Fond du Lac County, the following six companies had been organized, officers chosen and their services accepted: Capt. Emerson's "North Star Rifles," of Taycheedah; Capt. John Maginnis' "Union Guards," of Fond du Lac; Capt. Gage's "Hamilton Guards," of the towns of Osceola, Auburn, Ashford and that vicinity; Capt. E. S. Bragg's "Rifles," of Fond du Lac; Capt. Bertine Pinkney's "Rosendale Guards," of Rosendale; Capt. O. H. La Grange's "Ripon Rifles," of Ripon; Capt. Clark's "Waupun Light Guards," of Waupun, and the "Oakfield Rifles."

Before this time, Company I had begun to have "some experience," and it will be interesting to know what it was and how the members liked it. Many of the boys had been accustomed to fine clothes, luxurious homes and plenty of money, and not a few of them took along well-filled trunks. C. K. Pier wrote weekly letters to the Fond du Lac Reporter, signing himself "Trowloc," in one of which he said:

"We have at last received our clothes, which they call uniforms, although one would think to see the company on parade, that the tailor had warranted each uniform to fit the largest man or the smallest boy. The cloth is gray, of various shades; much of it is of poor quality and will not stand hard service. The pants have a black cord down the sides, and the coats have brass buttons and stand-up collars. On Monday (May 13), Col. Starkweather presented the regiment with a remnant of Washington's flag. Yesterday (May 15), we commenced our second course on soldier's fare. One more, and we will be on regular army rations. The contract has been let to feed us at 39 cents per head. Each man has a metal plate, spoon, knife and fork, which he must take care of himself. About 6 o'clock, the Orderly Sergeant calls out, 'Company I, fall in for breakfast,' and, as the call is passed from tent to tent, you take your plate in one hand, knife, fork, cup and spoon in the other, and step into the ranks. But be careful as you go into the eating-house that you do not slip down in a pool of coffee. As the boys range themselves along the rough table, the Orderly commands, 'Inward face—take seats.' At first, a teacup of mustard, a box of pepper, salt and vinegar, are the only articles in the line of victuals to be seen; but, immediately, a pan filled with slices of bread an inch or more in thickness, another of boiled potatoes, followed by one filled with meat, come in rapid succession. The bread is 'baker's,' and good; the potatoes are good enough, and the meat—well, as to meat and gravy, we won't take any this morning. The waiter fills your cup with coffee, which you sweeten and taste. It is cold, and appears inclined to coagulate. Another waiter appears, and while steam rises in large volumes from his pitcher, cries out, 'Hot coffee!' You want some, of course, but what is to be done? Your cup is full, you cannot swallow its contents, and there is no dish into which to empty it. You look around and find everybody in the same fix. Finally, a sly one comes to an 'about face' and pours his coffee on the ground. In an instant you follow suit, and so do the others. Now it may be understood whence came the pools of coffee on the ground. * * * After finishing your meal, should you wish to clear your plate of fragments, you empty them on the table or where you did the cold coffee. You clean your dish with bread, dip it in a large dish of hot water, and wipe it with paper."

The boys got their pay about the 1st of June, and their genius was taxed to smuggle "liquid dry goods" into camp, as it was against the rules to be caught with a bottle.

On Monday before the First Regiment left Camp Scott at Milwaukee, the death of one Monroe, of Company C, took the spirit nearly all out of the boys. On the 9th of June, they started for the front, and the journey to Maryland was one continuous ovation. Music, cannon, cheers, ice water, hot coffee, lunches, fruits, papers, pretty girls and shouting men met them at every depot. At one village in Ohio, the people were so enthusiastic as to allow their daughters to board the train and ride with the soldiers until the returning train was met. Some of the Fond du Lac boys put up at hotels, and were liberal with money received from friends and relatives at home. Their first fighting was at Falling Waters, in Virginia, July 2, 1861. It was a wild, harum-scarum battle, but the boys thought it was a big thing. The First Regiment lost one man (not from Fond du Lac County), and C. K. Pier wrote home that he saw two of the enemy stretched dead in a field, while David Babcock sent back word that "in the free and rapid distribution of bullets, the rebs had attained to a proficiency that was truly astonishing." Afterward, the battle of Falling Waters was a standing joke among the veterans, and is to this day.

The First Regiment was mustered out in August, but was soon re-organized, as most of the boys re-enlisted for "three years or the war."

Lyman M. Ward went out from Fond du Lac in the first company of the First Regiment of Wisconsin Volunteers. He was the author of—"Dodge the big ones."

After serving with the original First, Col. Ward, as he was familiarly known, helped to organize, and, from the beginning to the end, was identified with the Fourteenth Regiment. At Pittsburg Landing, notwithstanding the terrors and disasters of the first day's fight, the Fourteenth absolutely refused to break or run. Their splendid behavior won for them the title, "Fourteenth Wisconsin Regulars." Three times, during the second day, they charged and captured a rebel battery, and each time, for want of proper support, were compelled to let go their prize. Most every one has heard in one shape or another the story of the officer who told his men they might dodge "the big ones," but few are acquainted with the real incident which gave it origin.

While forming the line for the fourth charge, this regiment drew the concentrated fire of all the enemy's guns within range. Shell, grape and solid shot swept over and about them with shriek, hiss and roar, which only one who has been there can appreciate. The Colonel passed along, cautioning the men to stand steady, assured them they had that day made their names immortal, to keep their ranks solid, that a man was as apt to dodge in front of a bullet as to avoid it, and that another hour would surely give them the victory. Just then, a perfect tornado of iron and lead swept over their heads; every man and officer involuntary dodged, when Lieut. Ed. Ferris said: "But, Colonel, when they shoot a cooking stove right past a man's ear, can't he dodge just a little?"

"Well, yes," said the Colonel, "if it's a big one, dodge just a little, about as much as I did."

Five minutes later, the regiment again went for that battery, and never let go of it. As a trophy of that day's service, the Government assigned one of the captured guns to the State, and it is now at Madison.

FOND DU LAC COUNTY'S AID TO SUPPRESS THE REBELLION.

TOWNS.	Quotas.	Recruits.	Veterans.	Drafted.	212 extra for the State, credited by order of War Department	War Department credits prior to July 1 st , 1864.	Total credits.
Alto.....	90	68	1	20	1		90
Ashford.....	86	61	5	14			80
Auburn.....	77	16	9	36	1		62
Byron.....	79	66	1	15			82
Calumet.....	67	56		12			68
Eden.....	84	62		9	1		72
Eldorado.....	69	9	3	36			48
Empire.....	53	45		12			57
Fond du Lac, First Ward.....	98	17	9	19	1	50	96
Fond du Lac, Second Ward.....	87	14	18	18		42	92
Fond du Lac, Third Ward.....	97	28	4	15		49	96
Fond du Lac, Fourth Ward.....	95	22	3	18		53	96
Fond du Lac, Fifth Ward.....	45	20		5		23	48
Fond du Lac Town.....	59	41	16	10		7	74
Fond du Lac City at large.....		5					5
Fond du Lac County at large.....		1		1			2
Forest.....	74	33		15	1		49
Friendship.....	33	23	7	5	1		36
Lamartine.....	62	50	3	9			62
Marshfield.....	49	31		23			54
Metomen.....	93	73	8	25			106
Oakfield.....	62	41	7	17			65
Osceola.....	56	30	2	8	1		41
Ripon, First Ward.....	90	30		22		34	86
Ripon, Second Ward.....	75	27	2	19		30	78
Ripon Town.....	75	50		17		23	90
Ripon City at large.....		7					7
Rosendale.....	81	65	1	20	1		87
Springvale.....	76	53	2	21			76
Taycheedah.....	70	45	14	13			72
Waupun, North Ward.....	65	40		14	1	7	62
Waupun Town.....	83	54	1	15	1	13	84
Waupun at large.....		3					3
Total.....	2135	1186	116	483	10	331	2126

ROSTER.

The names of those who took part in the war, who are credited to Fond du Lac County, are subjoined:

CITY OF FOND DU LAC—FIRST WARD.

First Infantry—Co. K—Millard Arnold, Col. C. H. De Groat, Freeman H. Farr, Charles Kellogg, Patrick Murray, George J. Russell, Abram Rundell, Peter Rundell, George Stewart, Capt. Henry Stone, Lieut. F. R. St. John, Gustavus A. Scott, J. B. Wood.

Third Infantry—Co. A—John Bradley. Co. D—William Harrison.

Fourth Infantry—Co. K—Chas. McGee.

Fifth Infantry—Co. E—Platt J. Raymond.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—Capt. Edwin A. Brown, J. L. Bulzer, S. P. Green, Lieut. Albert W. Reader.

Eighth Infantry—Company unknown—George Driggs.

Ninth Infantry—Co. C—Michael Risch.

Twelfth Infantry—Surgeon Angie B. Carey.

Fourteenth Infantry—Q. M. James T. Conklin, Ass't Q. M. Delos Ward. Co. A—Charles Beers, Lieut. Henry Durand, David A. Drake, Leonard Drake, Col. Eddy F.

Ferris, Capt. J. V. Frost, James Hammond, Charles W. Jackson, Geo. Jesse, Robert Longstaff, E. G. Mascraft, Henry W. Powers, Francis J. Ribble, Orlando J. Ribble, Chas. Ribble, Charles Spafford, Obadiah Thompson, John A. Waller, H. C. West, Col. Lyman M. Ward. Co. G—Samuel Jones, Co. H—E. P. Mead, Washington Hathaway. Co. I—J. W. Bell. Co. K—Sanford M. St. John. Company unknown—Morich Track.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Joseph Bulger, John Boardman, James Condy, Joseph Devlin, Thomas Harinor, Harry Jennings, Capt. Simon O'Keane, Patrick Moughlin, Patrick Meager, William McDermot, F. Nelson, Anthony O'Brien, John Racroft, John Rayercraft, Felix Rogers, John Shea, Nathan Sayre.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. K—John Nowell, Silas C. Seaman.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. K—George Barrett. Company unknown—George Hofer.

"FIRST ENLISTED MAN IN THE COUNTY "

"THE SAME AT CLOSE OF THE WAR "

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Thomas Smith, Aaron Sherwood. Co. F—Hugh Cary, Frank Camisky, William W. Potter. Co. H—Capt. George Burrows, Charles Bergin, William Bodine, Benjamin Cole, David Lock, Timothy Regan, Frederick Smith, Frank Skoomasky, J. Tate, A. Van Valkenburg.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Joseph Arnold, Henry Diener, Philip Zapp, Nicholas Kiefer, Albin Knolle, Charles Steer, Frederick Sall, Michael Thuerwachter, John Waskowi-k, Ernst Wildfang.

Twenty-second Infantry—Co. A—Augustus Brasted, Lieut. S. L. Brasted, J. E. Hodges, Caleb S. Knott, Paddock Kelcoyner. Co. H—James Farnsworth, Giles Heatheote, William F. Jones, William Oliver, Jr., Terrence Smith, Frederick Watters.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—George Beaver, Henry Docker, Thomas Fox, Charles Sherwood.

Third Cavalry—Co. I—Henry Bannister.

Twenty-eighth Illinois Infantry—Co. C—J. P. Pennoek, A. S. Hezlit.

Sixth U. S. Infantry—First Lieut. James G. Potter.

Fiftieth U. S. Infantry—Co. C—James Rush.

Regiment unknown—Lemuel Lawrence.

CITY OF FOND DU LAC—SECOND WARD.

First Infantry—Co. K—Capt. Charles H. Benton, Capt. Thomas Bryant, Ed McGlo-hlin, Charles E. Marshall, W. B. Ro s. Frank Roth, Maj. R. M. Sawyer.

First Infantry—Co. M., S. E. Lebert. Co. A—Thomas Davids, H. Eberson, Carl Eastimer, Charles Lorl, Herman Opitz, Anson Welch. Co. G—J. F. Hubbard, John Olsen, O. C. Olsen, Albert Post.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—R. S. Goldsborough, James Essan, John Kalk, Charles Pfeiffer, B. H. Psnerger, George Psnerger, Asa Smith.

Sixth Infantry—Brig. Gen. Edward S. Bragg; Musician, Abner H. Wadsworth. Co. B—Adolph Kunttel. Co. E—Bernard Krebs, N. K. Malroy, Andrew Shuster.

Ninth Infantry—Co. I—William Schulman.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. A—S. D. Baker, John Breeker, Sterling Peters, A. J. Scott, James Thomas. Co. F—James Gorman. Co. H—James Pound.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—John Billman, Thomas Clark, Daniel Doherty, William Davis, Alexander Mekne, Capt. Michael Mangun, Samuel Reed. Co. H—Henry Tanner.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—W. T. Lyon.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. A—Willis Boyle. Co. D—D. McFadden. Co. G—Joseph Whitmore, James Whitmore.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. M. H. C. Hamilton; Surgeon, S. J. Crodin. Co. A—King Flint. Co. F—William J. Smith, R. C. Palmer, J. H. Gibson. Co. H—B. M. Cole, Capt. William A. Fargo, David Luck, W. H. Weber, John Weber.

Twenty-fourth Infantry—Company unknown—Isaac M. Story.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Capt. Anton Kettler, Alois Altman, Karl Arndt, Rudolph Breger, Charles C. Bergen, Carl Berume, Walden Czuzmecki, Adolph Eichmoler, Morris Fox, Henry Flemming, Reinhard Gasibutz, P. Paul Glatzel, Mathias Haertle, Heinrich Herzog, Jacob Hilgert, Paul Hinang, Christian Hageman, Fred Kefer, George Krause, Reinhold Krause, August Krueger, August Luithe, Herman Lindemerth, Fred Lukow, Heinrich Meier, Charles J. Meyer, John Ostertag, William Rosenthal, Haas Rossmann, Carl Ruessman, Carl Schmidt, Joseph Schmitz, Magnus Schneider, John Schur, Fritz Schueler, John Schueler, Joseph Stauber, August Stengel, William Schmidt, John Sporer, Fritz Temke, Charles Woetzel, Christ Winkiemann, Ferdinand Wolle, Joseph A. Zech, August Zippel.

Thirtieth and Thirty-first—Co. A—William Higgs, James Hayes, Robert Marshall, D. A. Morrison. Co. H—Frank Gonsky, James J. Dully, James D. Dully, James Hayes, Horace E. Mann, Miles Seeley, A. C. Tucker.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—N. C. King.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—Fred Sage.

Milwaukee Cavalry—Fritz Kecker, H. Feldrippe, Frank Veit, Fred Kresler, Christopher Boerkardh, Henry Rabe.

Regiment unknown—Rowland Russell, Dennis Conroy.

First Illinois Infantry—Co. I—Henry Pfeiler.

Fortieth Illinois Infantry—S. C. Spire, Lavert Bath-bone, Henry Baker, Washington L. Potts, O. A. Fadden, Ezra B. Foster, William Black, Otto Smith, John Mouk. Seventeenth Missouri Infantry—Co. H—Charles Snell, Louis Kuntz.

CITY OF FOND DU LAC—THIRD WARD.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Vols., Charles S. Hamilton.

First Infantry—Company K—Ed. Comberlin, Horton H. Drury, A. W. Kent, Lieut. Henry G. Leonard, Alpheus Morse, Charles L. Palmer, M. W. Peters, Lieut. Francis G. Rice, Rufus G. Rice, Frank Rutek, George E. Wood.

Third Infantry—Surgeon Don A. Raymond. Company A—Alexander Abrams, J. C. Beck, Henry Davids, John Davids, Fred Elgert, N. C. Howard, John J. Jewell, T. H. Lepper, A. J. McCombs, J. E. Pease, E. Shelby, August Walton, Ernst Wiltonny. Company G—Frank Glason, J. W. Griffin, A. S. August, Wesley Nixon.

Fifth Infantry—Company D—Samuel McConell, A. J. Purcher.

Sixth Infantry—Company E—A. J. Dawson, R. D. Swett, W. A. Wallace, Capt. Benien Lindley, James Lawrence, Edward Seaman.

Ninth Infantry—Company I—Harrison Matthews.

Fourth Infantry—Company unknown—John Pomerich.

Twelfth Infantry—Company H—William Lawrence.

Sixteenth Infantry—Surgeon W. H. Walker, Captain Rev. J. B. Rogers, Company A—A. A. Parford, Charles E. Collins, John Corbin, Fred C. Frazier, Morgan Farnel, Capt. Charles L. Kramer, O. S. Lebert, Edward A. Martin, Peter Metzger, Ora Van Orman, H. H. Seymour, David Shorman, James Van Orman, B. E. Waters, Company H—Ard Hyde. Company K—L. G. Annis.

Seventeenth Infantry—Company C—William Hope, John Murray, W. Van Brocklin.

Nineteenth Infantry—Company A—Melton Hill, J. Bissett. Company G—Jas. Crawford, Alexander Magie.

Twenty-first Infantry—Company A—Leon, Nathan Levitt, Ma and G. Pas, George H. McDonald, James McDonald, Reuben S. Rayon, Isadore C. Scott, H. C. Taylor. Company F—Capt. Milton Even, Lieut. A. S. Delaware, E. H. Gould, John M. Wells. Company H—B. F. Fuller, John Moak.

Twenty-third Infantry—Company E—C. Seer Euehner, William Fisher, Robert Hubatzchek, Charles Nisda, John Pomerich, John Reekert, Henry Roney, William Stange, Anton Voet.

Twenty-second Infantry—Company H—Levi J. Beers, George E. Easton, Robert H. Marshall, Miles Schneider, Company H—Capt. William S. Burrows, W. B. Chase, Horace E. Mann, H. H. Ferry, Rom Roswell. Company I—Edson H. Clark.

Second Cavalry—Company H—John Chitterling, Joseph Miller, George Wilkins.

Regiment unknown—Charles Tanner, Augustus Hecker.
Fifty-eighth Illinois Infantry—Company G—Asa Foster.

CITY OF FOND DU LAC—FOURTH WARD.

First Infantry—Co. K—Frank N. Baker, Jopall Dashman, H. Walters, John Doraty, Robert Morris, John Wiley.

Second Infantry—Co. E—Sylvester Pitcher.

Third Infantry—Co. A—Myron Curtis, I. F. Dunewan, A. Miller, Lorone Ritchards, Co. D—William Kidder, Co. G—August McNary.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—J. G. Garrity, D. P. Hart, James Atkinson, S. T. Hall.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—John Flood, John P. Hart, Pibard, Francis King, Capt. Michael Mangan, J. L. Mason, Albert W. Young.

Tenth Infantry—Co. K—Ezekiel Ransauy.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—N. C. Ridout, Lieut. Egbert Little, David Pitcher, B. T. Simpson, John D. Steens, Nicholas Young, Charles Williams, Co. C—John R. Burt, Co. D—D. O. Palmer, George R. Shephard, Co. E—Nelson Cummings, Co. F—John Flanders, Peter Locquer, Robert Muir, Co. H—Abel Hyde.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Michael Gill, Alexander Mehanah, Barnard Wells, Thomas Clark, Richard Curran, David McMulligan, Patrick Murphy, Thomas Mibly, Peter Forester, Henry Mederman, John Daugherty, John Balen, Walter Mobly, Lawrence Welch, Hugh Davey, Nicholas Bangar, Michael Gonna, John Kermiceel, Capt. Martin Curran, Edmund Harkins, Davis Harkins, Edward McCorah, D. McLaughlin, John Ryan, John Davis, Joseph Gangrion, Daniel Lyons, John Slay, Mat. Fenon, Co. G—Enos Page.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Paxan Smith, John Vanberger.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. A—E. C. Wheelock, Co. G—Gustavus Kidder, Cyrus Kidder.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—George Bolde, Solomon Comings, Hibard S. Chapman, Winwell Dufrane, Octavius Darusha, Eugene Darusha, Eli Derusha, Oliver Dolan, Antoine Deposs, Flora Deposs, Edward Derusha, Lewis Derusha, Anthony Mountain, Joseph Greecy, Mike Gillis, Jeremiah Holahan, Richard Peacock, Allen J. Nash, Rhoderick Labell, Lewis Jarvis, Capt. Alexander White, Harry Hubble, Leonard F. Davis, Charles C. Henry, David Storey, Maj. Kelsey M. Adams, Thomas Rondo, Henry S. Lee, Adolphus Page, Co. F—Warren Allbright, Cyrus C. Carrier, Alexander Hurlburt, Co. H—Robert Atkinson, Edward F. Midgeley, William Wiegler, George Haavell, Giles Heathcote, Frederick Roach.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Xavier Brown, John Brown, John F. Hagan, Nicholas Jenner.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. H—William H. Place

First Cavalry—Co. B—A. P. Fish.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—E. Crockett, Philip Rodis

CITY OF FOND DU LAC—FIFTH WARD.

First Infantry—Co. I—Tripley Harnois, Co. K—W. E. Bossett, Isaac Gotchy.

Second Infantry—Co. K—James Doherty.

Third Infantry—Co. A—Anson Richmond, Co. K—George E. Bailey, Joseph Gotchy.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—Francis Gotchy, Joseph Ladukey.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—Capt. J. B. Johnson, B. Smith,

Seventh Infantry—Co. F—Francis Beaudreau.

Tenth Infantry—Co. K—Albert Allen.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—William Harvey, John Beecher, George Vanheuklin, A. Thorp, Ed Clark, James E. Austin, Louis P. Laduke, Peter Laduke, Eli Laduke, Henry Goslin, Egbert Little, John Coon, George Stevens, Lieut. Edward Delaney, Jr., John E. Miller, W. E. Comer, Co. F—David P. Dean, George Gurrard, Francis Seymour, Co. H—Peter Garrow.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Charles Doherty, Peter McAnnan, J. McNeferoy.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. G—E. W. Drake.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Lieut. Samuel Hotalling, E. V. Childs, Rufus Johnson, Jackson M. Hill, Jeddiah Hill, Edwin Pelton, John Defoes, John M. Darley, John Austin, M. J. Crow, E. M. Crow, Sergeant Jewell, Henry Jewell, Frederick Hercher, T. T. Miner, P. A. Maloney, W. H. Cook, Grippet Laduke, Michael Gillis, Henry S. Austin, John Carney, Co. F—Richard Killips.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. H—J. Laduke.

Thirty-fifth Infantry—Co. I—F. Craw, Elvin Warner.
Second Cavalry—Co. A—Col. Napoleon Boardman, Edward Jewbert.

Third Cavalry—Co. B—William Eckel, Co. I—West Knight, William Hopper.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. K—Charles McCarley.

Illinois Volunteers—Frederick Eckel.

CITY OF RIPON—FIRST WARD.

Third Infantry—Co. H—Jack Haley.

Seventh Infantry—Co. B—Isaac Cooper, William P. Woodruff.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. F—David C. Woodruff.

Twenty-fifth Infantry—Co. H—Perry C. Gunn, Stephen Field, Col. Bertine Pinkney, Fred Auerst, E. A. Benedict, A. H. Booth, J. H. Beanda, James Beynon, B. G. Chaburn, James Chaburn, Fred Cregar, William E. Davies, Moritz Evers, O. P. Fitzpatrick, John F. Hopkins, James Bickley, August Henshalt, Miles Johnson, O. R. Kinney, W. E. Lamb, L. B. Parruleer, De Witt Boot, Isaac Renfro, Fred Shuler, John Sabalka, John E. Theban, William Tyler, David Webber, W. H. Miller.

Twenty-first Infantry—Company unknown—Alden Petre.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. B—Richard Craig, Jackson D. Quimby, W. E. Simmons, John A. White, Alson Wood, Albert Bixley, George W. Quimby, W. H. Valentine, Capt. R. W. Hodges, T. H. Harvey, George W. Jackson, J. M. Moore.

First Cavalry—Co. B—Col. Edward Daniels, Maj. Hiram S. Town, Lewis E. Reed, Hiram Barles, Edward Toron, George Hales, George Brown, Silas E. Hewitt, Albert M. Townsend, Sanford W. Beckwith, John S. Ingersoll Harrison Knowlton, William P. Stevens, John Zimmerman, Oscar F. Potts, Milton Marvin, Co. E—Walter Atwell, Daniel S. Pasco, Co. F—Samuel B. Hurlburt, Co. H—Richard E. Demming.

Third Cavalry—Co. D—George Sethart.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—Josiah Burlingame, Gen. O. H. George, Henry W. Ross, William L. Griffith, Charles Fletcher, Thomas Hales, John H. Lynch, William Hales, Wallace La Grange, Andrew La Grange, John Haffet, Silas W. Marvin, William K. Wyckoff, Banford Root, Fred Schmidt, Herman Stumpel, Willie'm Schmidt, Daniel P. Brundage, Thomas S. Cross, Clark Delano, Edward A. Ellsworth, David Green, John Kuehn, Richard Ober, William Geithar, August Lambe.

Third Battery—Thomas Lambert, Herman D. Pidmer.

CITY OF RIPON—SECOND WARD.

First Infantry—Co. B—Charles G. Lyon.

Third Infantry—Company unknown—Adj. L. H. D. Crane, Rufus A. Brown.

Fourth Infantry—Co. E—Charles F. Rivenburg.

Fifth Infantry—Co. A—George A. Bentley, August Keinert.

Sixth Infantry—Co. C—George Reynard, William Kompot. Co. D—Herman Exner, William Tetzlaff, Fred Wagner, Christian Lambrecht, Carl Lambrecht.

Seventh Infantry—Musician John Vincent.

Nineteenth Infantry—Maj. Alvan E. Bovay. Co. D—Ferdinand Wartler.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. H—Capt. H. E. Strong, Lieut. George W. Root, August Drummond, William Klike, James Canaty, C. W. Collin, Edward Dames, Merritt B. Felton, John Foss, Mart Callmerton, Henry Greber, James Howard, John E. Hopkins, William E. Davis, A. E. Cheeney, William O'Neil, Capt. George W. Muller, Patrick Cahlan, Charles A. Wentworth, E. Schoton, J. L. Hill, Charles W. Catlin, Fred T. Hawley, August Halsburgh, John Hiel, Lorenzo Howard, C. N. Kibbey, William Lambert, Fred Miller, Manley Mott, August Nass, John R. Bassett, George H. Rye, J. H. Ransom, J. R. Surgeant, John Sinclair, Barney Smith, B. M. Young, August Salathiel.

Twenty-first Infantry—Company unknown—W. B. Carpenter.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. B—John Crowling, William B. Carpenter, A. B. Everhard, A. S. Tabores, A. C. Tober.

First Cavalry—Co. B—Capt. Henry S. Eggleston, Julius Mustick, W. T. Davis, Christopher Demphetz, Charles H. Russell, Moses A. Waldo, Charles L. Porter, Waldeman Nelson, William M. Brown. Co. D—Oscar Barrett, John Seitz. Co. E—Capt. R. H. Chittenden, Thomas W. Johnson. Co. L—Silas Hoosan, Horace C. Hoosan, Company unknown—William McTune, Henry Babcock, Christopher Doreke, John Kronger, Orrin M. Smith.

Second Cavalry—Company unknown—Daniel L. Regley.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. D—Jeremiah Root, Edwin D. McAllister, John Kurhn, Newton Chittenden, William T. Whiting, Charles Burrealdt, Charles Schultz, Darius L. Kimball, Alfred Medhurst, John M. Weston, Leonard Stearns, Thomas B. Cross, Silas W. Butler.

Third Battery Light Artillery—Daniel C. Smith, Paul Gurgan, Thomas Randall, Ira E. Smith, Peter Troman.

Regiment unknown—Lyman Hall.

WAUPUN—NORTH WARD.

First Regiment—Co. H—Amasa W. Althouse. Co. I—Thomas Saunpey.

Second Infantry—Co. A—Nathan D. Pierce.

Third Infantry—Co. D—Fredrick Sheltzberger, John Shier, Denslow A. McCuney, Thomas O'Rily, George W. Thompson, J. B. Harrington, Robert L. Oliver, L. B. Balcom, Edwin Thomson, Gilbert Schow, Theodore J. Dann, Rowland Hotchkiss, Joseph Wilks, Barry Smith, Edward C. Whistler.

Fourth Infantry—Co. K—Nehemiah Cobb, Andrew Schow, George Young.

Fifteenth Infantry—Co. D—Martin E. Fielastad, Christian Fleck, Eben Schow, Christian Schow, Fin Gassman.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. H—Stillman Goodenough.

William Goodenow, Amos Cass, Paul Conrad, Cromwell Laithe.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. G—Alfred A. Harding, Company unknown—Daniel S. Hart.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—First Lieut. George G. Woodruff, Martin B. Bull, Seymour H. Johnson, Joseph W. Olliver, John H. Grandy, Henry Stephens.

First Cavalry—Co. A—John S. Beardsley, William P. Ware. Co. B—Charles H. Roberts, J. T. Cleavland, Truman W. Gee, Rawson P. Franklin. Co. L—James Grady.

Ninth Battery Light Artillery—James A. Blanchard

TOWN OF ALTO.

Third Infantry—Co. A—Rufus Brown, Delos G. Butts, Wesley Butts, Alphonzo Hall, Charles H. Lindsley.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—Robert J. Eaton, Charles F. Growler, Frederick Shanock, Gerrit Vander Bee, Gerrit Banaker, Gerrit Draagers, D. J. Korochat, Gerrit W. Roerlink, Silas L. Hillyer, Henry W. Slap-rump, John Geibick, Hart Van Beek, James T. Beest, Ranson A. Gaylord, George Lindsley, William Laneks, George Whiteman, Chester McDowell, Albert McTolent, Andrew Graham, James L. Hayward, Henry Van Houton. Co. B—Dean Woodin.

First Cavalry—Co. D—L. P. Pond.

Third Cavalry—Co. C—Joseph Jeffreys, R. W. Smith, Silas B. Tenney, George B. McMullen, Honer W. Pond, George F. Pond, James B. Pond, Henry Wentworth, Elwin Welsher.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—James Ivers. Company unknown—Seaman R. Hewett, Joseph A. Hewett, S. B. Hewett.

TOWN OF ASHFORD.

Second Infantry—Co. K—Casper Bieker, John Schmitt, John Senn, Jr., George Senn, Adolph Zernia, Edward Lichtensteiger.

Fifth Infantry—Co. K—Jacob Rohrer, Henry Rohrer, William Zimmerman, Milton Hayes.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—Deceator Nuttle, Henry Lenett, Martin B. Hull.

Ninth Infantry—Co. D—John Ludwig, Gustav Dette, Co. K—Andreas Tischhauser, Jr.

Twelfth Infantry—Co. B—Andrew Senn.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—Isaac Hendricks. Co. G—Nelson Turner, L. W. Tuttle, Basile Wranson, John Boeos, Andrew Winegarden.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—R. B. Bull. Co. H—William Barnett, Calvin Mills, Dilen Slaton, Joshua Helmer, J. A. Lawrence, Merritt Helmer.

Thirty-ninth Infantry—Co. B—Peter Gollbach, Benjamin Hendricks, John Kraudwig, William Reinhardt, Fritz Seuft, Ulrich Tattle, Joseph Wagner.

Thirty-seventh Infantry—Co. I—Charles Loerkey.

Thirty-eighth Infantry—Co. A—William H. Weber.

First Cavalry—Co. G—Carr H. Hayes.

Second Battery Artillery—George Rauch, Alldier Rauch, John Jacob Engler.

Artillery—Friedrich Meyer.

TOWN OF ALBURN.

Second Infantry—Co. K—Charles E. Downing.

Third Infantry—Co. A—Anson S. Richmond.

Sixth Infantry—Co. C—John Martil. Co. E—Asa Darfy.

Eighth Infantry—Co. A—Samuel Sanderson.

Twelfth Infantry—Co. D—Edwin Nash, Frank B. Wheeler, Philander Rand, Caleb Turner, Henry M. Gordon, Vinal W. Norton, John T. Cosentine. Co. K—Philander Rand.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. C—John B. Mann. Co. G—Benjamin Lake, Michael Kelley, Orin Brown, Lezer Sisco, Marriou Lake, Edward Tuttle, Sibus Bawson, Benjamin Burnett, Henry Brown, Henry Loomis.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Edward Flynn.

Twenty-second Infantry—Co. D—William H. Cosentine.

Thirty-ninth Infantry—Co. F—Asa A. Purdy.

Second Battery Artillery—Francis Cohn.

Regiment unknown—Charles North, Amos H. Miller, William B. Lake, John Lake, Ransom Hyde, James A. Burnett, Demarcus Williams, Belgin Sisco, Abram Childs, Dlaus Miller, Bordenman Childs.

TOWN OF EYRON.

First Infantry—Co. F—Isaac Newton. Co. K—Mikel Bowrok, John Henze, John Wiley, Gustavus Scott, William McArthur, William McLane, Henry McLane, Simon Jones, Charles Smith, Charles Palmer, John Oliver, Andrew Breed.

Third Infantry—Co. D—Samuel Smith, William A. Smith. Co. E—James O. Ackerman, James H. Braman, Co. I—George Hewens, George Fourman, George Vanorman.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—Elick Shipman

Ninth Infantry—Co. C—Charles Kearsdorff. Co. K—Jacob Collman.

Tenth Infantry—Co. B—Hannibal Culver, Thomas Leaman. Co. K—Albert Gibbs, John Calhoun, Joseph Lidel, Charles Hatch, Horace Prentice.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Charles Oseer, John M. Dermott, Ruyet Brig. Gen. Lyman M. Ward, Harvey Musick, Adam Shidell, Charles Abbey. Co. K—John Snower.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Patrick Miles, John Ferguson, Milton Vanhatten, Sidney S. Gibbs, Capt. P. O'Connor.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Milton Hayes.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. G—George Vaughan, Hoel Vaughn, Luke Culver, Syrus G. Brooks.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. A—David Dumphrey. Co. F—Delos Allen, Chancey E. Wicks, Lot Holland, Jacob Shidell, John Bell, Charles Edgerley, John H. Limous, Solomon F. Bradford, Lucien Suttell, Jesse Tuttle, Robert Abm, Erastus E. Phelps, Charles Sabins, James B. Palmer, Alfred J. Parsons, Robert Potter, Andrew I. Pelton, Lewis H. Wood, Robert Albarn, Thomas Dillon, Jasper Clark, John H. Butler, Norman Butler, Charles T. Lusin, Andrew Barr, Thomas Karam.

Twenty-ninth Infantry—Co. E—William E. A. Krasner, S—Brown.

Twenty-second Infantry—Co. A—Oscar Clark, Patrick Griffin, Hiram W. Morris, Thomas Michael, Sterling A. Ross, Joseph McLane.

Thirtieth Infantry—Co. B—Robert Bowls, Jason Breed, James R. Chapin, George Gillan, Silas Warner.

Thirty-seventh Infantry—Co. H—Herman Schultz.

Thirty-eighth Infantry—Co. A—De Villiers B. Burrows, Joseph C. Devens, Alberat A. Dye, Horace A. Hudson, Lieu, George M. Pier, Charles W. Robbins, Edgar M. Taylor, Benajah Taylor.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—James S. Lane.

Third Cavalry—Company unknown—John Brown.

Regiment unknown—John Dyer.

TOWN OF EDEN.

First Infantry—Co. C—Peter Raher. Co. I—Albert E. Root, Samuel E. Root. Co. K—John Bullinger, John Morehouse, Henry Bear, Camillus Smith, John E. Bollinger, Amicus Smith.

Third Infantry—Co. E—Henry Clemens.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—John Daniels.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—Guilford Smith, Amos Lefler, Frederick Baldwin.

Ninth Infantry—Drum Maj. John T. Bollinger.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—Theineas Ward, Mathias W. Rind, Joseph Thomas, Albert Titus, James B. Titus, George C. Benneston, Aaron Bear, Lucius Jones, John Pervout, James Norman. Co. H—John Perzua.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Philip Vaughn.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. H—John Alexander.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. F—Chauncey Briggs.

Twenty-second Infantry—Co. A—Lucius Batterson, John Bigley, William Henry Frost, Frederick Hawsen, John Wesley Frost. Co. H—Henry May, John Rhorse.

Thirty-fifth Infantry—Co. I—Reinhard Ballinger, William H. Ensign, Reuben Penhallow.

Thirty-ninth Infantry—John Dumas, Peter Endranger, Corp. Robert C. Morehouse, John Goom, Thomas E. Goom, Job H. Goom.

Twenty-eighth Infantry—Co. A—John Grey, Josephus Titus, Alonzo Van Guilder.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—Dwight G. Beagle.

TOWN OF CALUMEL.

First Infantry—Company unknown—Jacob Holzknecht.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—Frank Bizelle, David P. Hart, William Reed, Olin Morton, Butler Talmadge, Sanders Wheelock, William Billings, Ben Fuller, Ichabod Wood.

Sixth Infantry—Co. H—Jacob Fay.

Ninth Infantry—Company unknown—Bernard Burkhardt.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. G—John S. Harris, Thomas Clark, Michael Manahan, Frank Billings, Charles Blakesley, Charles Cook.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Charles Chase, Russel Talmadge, Frank Everts. Company unknown—Rausch.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—John Schiller, Magnusser Schneider, Lausens Berg, George Stillien, Matthis Snyder, Paul Hammond, Matthias Hartly, Henry Flammang, Philip Huelsamen.

Twenty-ninth Infantry—Co. G—Sergt. Hiram Linsley, Arthur P. Adams, Grisel Bulman, John W. Dick, Benjamin Dick, Franklin Gouvernout, Orville A. Hart.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—A. H. Hauner.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. K—John Billings.

Regiment unknown—William Douglas, Christian Portz.

Fifth United States Artillery—Anton Zeng.

TOWN OF ELDERADO.

First Infantry—Company K—Charles Trainard, Frank Billington, William Mills, John Dougherty. Company unknown—Henry Druerer, Edward Edwards, Thomas Kelley.

Fifteenth Infantry—Company C—John Stephens, Harvey Hall.

Seventh Infantry—Company C—David Dougherty, Michael Le Hay, Patrick McLoughlin, James Sundry, John Coyne, Edward Cary.

Eighteenth Infantry—Company F—Willard Felton, George Gould, Benjamin Peckman, Fredrick Hartony, Ambrose Felton. Company A—James Gibbs. Company unknown—Edward Watson, Uriah Tibbs.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. K—John Wagoner, Albert Wesinberg.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Charles Bodoh, Moses Orendi, Adonijah Benedict.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. H—Benjamin Phillips, John Cowham, Jr., William Smith, Edward Rogers, Fredrick Henry, John S. Pygall, Lucas Kendall, Robert Monroe, Thomas Arthur, Alpheus Palmer, John Howham, William Frederick, Albert Hauke.

Thirty-sixth Infantry—Co. G—Charles H. Bartow, Volney Bartow, John Bowe, John Dussow, Samuel L. Denniston, Robert Ferridge, Frederick Kroenig, William Kruger, John Moran, Charles Myers.

Forty-seventh Infantry—Co. H—William Schmitt.

First Cavalry—Co. A—George Madison. Co. B—Walter Felton. Company unknown—James Barnett.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—Capt. William Woods, Thomas Woods, Charles Adamson, Isaac Caggett, Nelson Lewis, Andrew J. Palmer, Melvin Ducl, Elshur Crassett, W. S. Bull, Sylvester Sherman, R. E. Hope, Fredric Wier, Peter Murray, Henry C. Jones, Neil Bell, Anton Finkham, Andrew Lowrie, David Lowrie, George Marcy, John McCumber, Henry C. Wilson.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—Hiram Wheeler.

TOWN OF EMPIRE.

First Infantry—Co. I—Matthew Emerson. Co. K—Joseph Henry, Andrew Bear.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—Thomas Keys, Milo Scofield, George E. Davis, Bernard Phelan, Alanson Lyons, Clinton Phoebe, G. Phelan, Peter Sybel, Thomas Gurry, Bernard Campbell.

Sixteenth Infantry—Co. A—William Wilcox. Co. E—William Titus. Co. H—Patrick McCoy, George Clark, William Stevens, Matthew Earne. Company unknown—Andrew Prentiss.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Barnard Wells, Thomas Clark.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—William Lyons, Luman Daniels, Col. Edward Colman, Anthony Brown.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—John Gaffney, Michael Lessling, Joseph Strong, Capt. Martin Strong, Abner Briggs. Co. F—Charles T. Wyman, Clemency Briggs, Co. H—Leonard Briggs, D. T. Alden, Asa Baker. Company unknown—Joseph Hooks, Anthony Gable.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Philip Schriedr, Frederick Witzel, Francois Knein, Charles Shaffer.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—Joseph Clark. Co. H—Calvin Fletcher, Vincent Hirsch, Daniel W. Trebven, George Keys, William Hampton, George-Fredrick Booth.

Thirti-ninth Infantry—Co. A—William W. Wilcox.

First Cavalry—Company unknown—Byron Wheeler.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—George S. Phelps.

TOWN OF FOND DU LAC.

First Infantry—Co. A—Col. Deles Kruee, Co. I—Geo. R. Gates, Perley Wilson. Co. K—Capt. T. H. Green, C. H. Chapman, Andrew Breed, Frank Baker, John B. Bower, Henry Strader, George Henry Clark, Charles W. Ackley, William Wheelwright, Patrick Martin, Capt. Cris. Klock, George Klock, O. E. Brand, John J. Seymour, W. T. Hyde, G. W. Hyde, Augustus Brush, William Lowe, Col. C. K. Pier.

Third Infantry—Co. A—George W. Tanner, Frank Tanner, Stephen Nichols.

Fifth Infantry—Co. C—Edward Felton. Co. I—Isadore Marco Dwight Haywood, William Dolan, Alfred M. Green, David Hart.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—John Weymier.

Twelfth Infantry—Co. I—Albert E. Higbee.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—D. Elderego, W. D. Colas, W. W. Wilcox, Alexander Clendening, Thomas Hatcher, B. H. Powers, James Powers, William A. Simpson, Joseph King, Jr., H. H. Seymore, Frederick Steady, Co. F—Alexander ———, Co. H—M. H. Powers, D. C. Buseh, John Pergauy. Co. K—William Titus.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—George Robinson. Co. C—D. Hamel. Co. K—Henry Cribner.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—A. H. Williams. Company unknown—Denis Whitford.

Nineteenth Infantry—Company unknown—Andrew G' son.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Moses Renda, Miles Schoederatt, Frank Marco, David Ackerman, J. Jangwa, Co. F—Theon Doble, John Brown, Virgil Peck, Wesley Frost. Co. H—Andrew J. Hyde, Joseph N. Hyde, John Johnson, H. Ackerman, Edw'rd Dunn, Benjamin Powell, John Gilman, Eugene Gaeha, Thomas Frothinghouse, John Gilman, Richard S. Horton, Thomas Perkins, Thomas Lyman, James W. Stofen, Irvin Meeker, Silas P. Hall, John B. Mitchell, John Meloy, William Harding.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. C—Adolph Miller, Charles Hermann, Christian Rumpel, Agos Capfer, George Miller.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—Capt. Flu Klock, Lieut. E. B. Crofton, E. L. Crofton, Stephen Demar, Robert H. Murter, George Ch' se, John Trip, James Pellis, Augustus Beasick, Co. I—Joseph Gabriel, George Martin, Lieut. George W. King.

Thirty-sixth Infantry—Co. B—First Lieut. F. R. St. John, Henry Steady, Henry Clark, Charles Baston, Perry Oblekirk, Horbe, T. Am' lli, Clark Davis, Edwin Esterbrooks, Lewis Fry, Abel Hyde, Adam Blisman, Frederick Mireck, John Mathers, Edward P. Oblekirk, Joseph A. Oblekirk, John Oulson, John E. Shay, William Titus, John Warner. Co. I—Capt. Lyman P. Everell, Charles T. Stringland, Jacob Hekzel, Henry L. Longstreet, William Bennett, John H. Bennett, James W. Curran, John Flood, Silas Ferguson, Stephen Botaling, James Hamner, Richard H. Hart, Thomas Kreeville, Eugene M. Lawry.

Thirti-ninth Infantry—Co. G—Capt. Reuben Lindley, Jonas Crites, Matthew Gearhart, John Horton, William Horton, Peter Kommers, James Malhouse, Elias A. Rumlil, Ross B. Roswell, Willber Stone, David B. Willis.

Forty-seventh Infantry—Co. B—Joseph Frl, Jacob Schneider. Co. G—James E. Andrews, Freeman Thomas, Co. H—Serge, Edward H. Ray, Christian Schuster. Co. I—Zeus Maxim.

First Fifth Infantry—Co. A—Col. C. K. Pier, Capt. Charles E. Carpenter, Hockey Adams, John Ayres, John P. Andrews, Geo. Angus, Major John Bacon, Martin Bacon, Charles E. Childs, Nelson Cummings, Henry A. Corso, Lyman H. J. Du W., Hatchington, John A. Joyal, Lieut. Elbert H. J. Joyal, Edward E. Oblekirk, Henry R. Fr. Lenti, George W. Ramsey, Delaney B. Ricks, Grant A. Randal, William J. Stewart, Charles E. Sears, George M. Soper, Freeman H. Sockett, Henry P. E. Tull, Charles C. Waters, John M. Wells, Elias J. Whitney, Co. I—Capt. Erasmus W. Pride, George Hamner.

First Cavalry—Co. B—Charles F. Edgerton, Walter G. Felton, Alden P. Kendall. Co. G—Elihu Cleman. Co. K—John A. Turner.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—James Kerns, William Woods, Thomas Woods, Jr., Gohn G. Simpson, Benjamin H. Taber.

TOWN OF FOREST.

First Infantry—Co. A—R. A. Harl.

Third Infantry—Co. E—Charles R. Barrager.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—William Norton, Austin F. Barnes, W. H. Mead.

Eighth Infantry—Co. B—Seymour Ellickson, William Carey

Tenth Infantry—Co. A—Mortimer Adams.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. H—George Williams, Hiram Eddy, Delbert Bennett, William R. Gibson, William Seybe, E. P. Mead, Holland Hamblin, Miles Hamblin, H. C. Hamblin, D. M. Crisson, Jr., John F. Procer, Albert H. McKeen, Adm. Gibson, Martin Elliott, John Shaw, George Clifton, Milton R. Barnes, Andrew W. Prentice, E. M. Moore, Thomas Goss, Francis Owens, David Rogers, Charles Rogers, Harvey Wright, R. B. Vanvalkenburgh, Charles W. Gibson.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Anson Williams, Peter Ham, William E. Chase, Charles Berchtel.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. K—William W. Gardiner.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—William Mars. Co. B—Martin Strong. Co. H—Harrison Campbell.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Charles Schafers.

Twenty-eighth Infantry—Co. B—James Rogers, William Monk, O. H. Silver, Era B. Sabins.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. H—Vincent Hersch, Matti Hoff, August Vogt, J. D. Foster, Patrick Redman, James Shaw, Peter Bartell, Merdis Snyder, James Hampton, William J. Hampton.

Thirty-ninth Infantry—Co. F—Thomas Carty

Fortieth U. S. Infantry—James Hall.

TOWNS OF FRIENDSHIP.

First Cavalry—Charles Smith.

Fourth Infantry—Co. A—Joseph Tondre, Nathaniel Barks. Co. B—Joseph Earrow.

Sixteenth Infantry—Co. C—Barney Harkin*, Charles Carberry, James Gallagher, John Curmule, George Robinson, Daniel McMonigal, Charles Dougherty, James Bossiter, Francis Murry, John Murry, Daniel McFanylin, John Davis, John Stoddart.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Barnett Kelly.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Celestine Henry, Octavus Derusia, Frank Derusia, Edward Derusia, Joseph Betegore, Moses Gunch, Nowell Dufrahn.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Reinhold Krauser, William Rosendale.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. H—John E. Smith, Wesley Bessey, Jacob Cline, Miles Seely.

Thirty-ninth Infantry—Co. G—Joseph Tatro.

First Cavalry—Co. A—David McLeod. Company unknown—Lyman Walker.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—Germain Muller, Isidore Dufrahn, Henry Dollen, Napoleon Inbret, Antay Inbret.

Illinois Cavalry—Inlian Inbret.

TOWN OF LAMARTINE.

First Infantry—Co. K—Strabo Duell, Charles Delang, Walcott Hyde, Thomas Watters, George Stowe, Cyrenas Matteson, Joseph Hyde. Company unknown—J. Prosser

Third Infantry—Co. A—Alford Walton, Warren Otterson, Orman Otterman, Philemen Welch. Co. B—Job Clark. Co. D—Jackson Buskerk, William Young, Jacob Snyder. Company unknown—Dr. Temple.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—Henry Osburn. Company unknown—Andrew Ross.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. H—Charles Collins, Francis Laundry, Emerson Spafford, R. L. Edson, Harrison Clark, Rogers Pierce, Washington Ellis, Chauncey Wideman, William Wideman, Lorange Miller, Jacob Wideman, Co. E—Ira Smith. Co. H—Chauncey Reel. Co. K—John Earling, Leonard Shaw, Jeremiah Harrington, George W. Ellis.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Richard Carn.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Capus A. Whitmore, William Boden, John Jameson, Henry Cutler, George Cutler, Daniel Baily, Asa Ottson, Leander Hibbard, John Ferril, Charles Lee, John Jameson.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—David Golchin. Co. F—J. Bigford. Co. H—William R. Brown, William Marshall, Jacob Miller, John Malady, Richard Horton.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Frank Geheling, John Snow, Radolph Wohlgemuth, Andrew Cronk, William Smith.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—John Hubbard, William Zelkey, Jeremiah Weser, Elwin Lucy. Co. B—E. D. Scofield, A. M. Scofield, Selim Pasco, Jason Smith. Co. H—Jay H. Fancher, George Baxton, Willard Baxton, Worden Brown, Salomon Merrill, C. N. Pease, C. N. Pasco, Lucas Kendall, Michael Merrill, John Gilley.

Thirty-sixth Infantry—Co. G—William R. Bartlett.

First Cavalry—Co. D—Henry Edson, Ratio Elliot, Lorin Pasco. Co. E—Norman Hodge. Company unknown—Peter Everling, Lawrence Kelch, Moses Canady.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—James Carn, U. H. Stranigan, William H. Stranigan, James McFetridge, Daniel McFetridge, John McFetridge. Company unknown—William Lee.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—George F. Clark.

Regiment Unknown—Nelson Camens, Lewis Everling, James Share.

TOWN OF MUFONEN

First Infantry—Co. C—James Parker.

Third Infantry—Co. A—Charles Reiburg, Frank Reiburg, Dennis Washburn. Co. D—H. M. Collins, Alphonzo Hall.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—L. D. Laughlin, Nicholas Myer, Jr.

Fourteenth Infantry—Company unknown—Michael Haley.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. K—William Bugbee.

Eighteenth Infantry—Company unknown—Marshal Tenney.

Twenty Infantry—Co. H—John Henriksson.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—Harrison Carter, Asa Holmes, John H. Brown, William Graple, George Wightman, Charles Mouldwell, Luke Williams, Christopher Gibbs, Christoph Feudry, Christian Priem, John Bruce, Rezin Nelson, Jr. Co. B—William Sanders, Girden Webster, Elcott B. Loomis, J. W. Osborn, George Bugbee, Lyman Marsh, Canfield Marsh, Darius Bugbee, J. D. Woodin, William Marsh, Thomas M. Coleord, Frank Mann, Thomas Osborn, Eddy Parks, Barney Smith, Joseph Sumner, William Poach, Dwight P. Hitchcock, George Patton, Henry Rand, Martin Frank, Louis Behnker, S. P. Shoefelt, Cornelius Camstock, B. F. Sheldon, A. M. Bly, Edward Pearse, David Brown, James Hickey, Wesley Ingles, Stephen D. Johnson.

First Cavalry—Co. I—Erasmus Pride, Byron Pride, Elisha Walras, Lewis James. Co. K—Albert Dreker. Company unknown—Oris Parks, Daniel Parks, Joseph Parks, Parley Sanders, William Bugbee.

Third Cavalry—Co. C—Zenas Mann, John McPhail, Gurden Bisbee, George Hayward, Henry Martin, Thomas Leach, Charles Nelson, Eugene Ely, George Shufelt. Co. H—James Bremer.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—James Wagon, Thomas Rannels, Charles Fletcher, Eugene Pride, G. W. Carter, D. S. Crop.

Third Battery Artillery—Thomas Tempenden, Henry A. Weymouth, Patrick Fitzpatrick, Dana Strong, James Carter, Harvey Burdick, Stafford Edgerton.

Regiment Unknown—William Smith, Frederick Smith.

TOWN OF OAKFIELD.

First Infantry—Co. D—Solomon Howard. Co. K—Frederick Owen, Edward Hubson, Robert Navens, John Foster, William Thompson, William Cooper, John Laclair. Company unknown—Peter Rapier.

Third Infantry—Co. D—Zena Banker, William Hagan, Levi Close, Jeremiah Close, A. J. Buskirk, Norman Higgins, Charles E. Alderman, William H. Parson, Sheldon Atkins, Alvin Neal. Co. E—Alexander Bazett, William Hagerman, S. O. Bishop. Co. K—Roswell Fladson.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—William P. Brown.

Sixth Infantry—Musician Abner H. Woodsworth, Musician Charles Bouton. Co. D—Jackson Swift. Co. E—John H. Burne, Jonathan Stoddard, Charles McCannon, Smith Spencer.

Fourth Infantry—Co. B—William Lane, John Lane, Charles Blackburn. Co. D—Gilbert Gosbeck, Mortimer Bouton. Co. K—Charles Hudson, L. A. Bishop, Delos Hatch, Christopher Jacobs, Silas Stuart, Ephraim Atkins, George W. Norton, Byron V. Swan, George Madison, Albert Madison.

Eighth Infantry—Co. A—John R. Burt, Miller S. Russell. Co. F—William Parkhill. Co. H—Dewitt Burch. Company unknown—Levy Amis.

Nineteenth Infantry—Company unknown—James Miles.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. F—Lafayette Bala, John Cator, Oscar Willard, Charles Susan, William O'bryan, James Erwin, Orlando T. Comstock, Walter McKnight, Charles Prescott, Luther Clark, Eli Monteith, John Underwood, Capt. Edgar Conklin, Gerry Lewis, Cornelius Tunison, Francis E. Sikes, Joseph Patinson, Augustus John, Henry Resedorph, Joseph Buskirk, William Thwing, Jeremiah Smith, John Smith, Thomas Gaffney, Peter Thomas, Elias Hale, David Hale, Leroy Bennett, Henry Porter, Marvin Hatch, James Yarnold, Charles E. Brown, Charles E. Ripley, James Wagner. Co. H—George W. Whitaker.

Thirty-sixth Infantry—Co. G—Capt. William H. Lane, First Lieut. Winfield S. Leach.

First Cavalry—Co. B—Samuel Banker. Co. D—Caleb Frisley.

Third Cavalry—Co. I—James Whilker, William Whitaker.

First Battery Light Artillery—Alvin W. Clark, Elisha Carrier.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—Howard Preston, Henry Preston.

TOWN OF OSCEOLA.

First Infantry—Co. E—William Palmer, Joseph Palmer, Albert Gray. Co. K—Byron K. Longstreet, Paul Crites, Isaac Crites.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—N. Gaffney, John Shey, Maz Garfield, Drias Garfield.

Eighth Infantry—Co. B—John Eduting.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—S. Ferguson, Justus Jones, E. Bassett. Co. G—Samuel Bump, H. Brown, Richard Hodges, James Davis, William A. Southard. Co. H—Oliver Cook, Marvin Bratt, Jerome Sekins, E. Guligan, Henry Galigan. Co. I—Stephen Gray.

Seventeenth Infantry—Co. C—Richard Lecher, A. O'Brain. Co. E—Joseph Gaffney, John Hughes.

Twentyeth Infantry—Co. G—Philip Howard.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Thomas Gaffney, John Gaffney.

Twenty-fifth Infantry—Co. B—John W. Hall.

Thirty-sixth Infantry—Co. G—George Johnson.

TOWN OF MARSHFIELD.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. I—August Diegelmann, Peter Maier.

Thirty-sixth Infantry—Co. G—Charles Bergin.

TOWN OF RIDGEM.

Ninth Infantry—Co. H—John Kingshort.

Eleventh Infantry—Co. E—Philo B. Sage.

Eighteenth Infantry—Company unknown—Joseph R. Watson.

Twentyeth Infantry—Co. G—David Walford, Co. H—John Sargent, Lorenzo Forbes, I. S. Hendrickson, Charles Markham, Lewis St. George, Dexter Shute, William Oliver, William Pierce, Charles Pierce, John Caveneagh, Charles Vollitz, E. Bradley, Joseph L. Brown, Philo Sage, Remun Exorsy, Frederick Miller, Napoleon B. H. Beaulieu, Isaac Rengau, Base Day, August Bolan, John Brasslett, Oscar Bigsbee, John Basso, Anthony Fountain, Peter Nimms, Frederick Sheldon, James Hesler.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—Thomas Delano, Co. B—Rufus S. Carter, David Brown, Edward Kennedy, Aaron Haste.

Forty-first Infantry—Co. B—Capt. William T. Whitney, First Lieut. William H. H. Valentine, Second Lieut. George Perkins, First Sergt. Nelson Bowerman, Second Sergt. Warham P. Rix, Fourth Sergt. Harris P. Welcome, Fifth Sergt. Charles Hyle, First Corp. Charles Cowan, Fourth Corp. Edward D. Olmsted, Fifth Corp. Amasa H. Van Kirk, Sixth Corp. Isaac C. Booth, Seventh Corp. Edwin F. Baley, Eighth Corp. Charles S. Brockway, Wagoner William F. Butler, Charles M. R. Atwell, John J. Brown, John Bibinger, John Barnett, Hiram C. Barker, Merwin A. Baldwin, Seth M. Coles, Elisha B. Cump, Eugene M. Dunning, Irvine E. Delano, Francis H. Donovan, Lewis C. Elliott, Cook Ely, Edwin Eaton, Hiram G. Freeman, Oscar D. French, Charles G. Harshaw, William Hamer, Wye Haskins, Philip Hales, Edward M. Holtman, James Jameson, Leonard C. Jones, Abanson W. Latham, Martin V. Morse, Thomas L. McDonald, Charles Medhurst, Charles H. Osborn, James K. Parks, Albert Rolle, William L. Sherman, Henry A. Smith, Frederick Shute, Frank Trembly, George Trembly, Reginald E. Toll, William H. Turner, William M. Walker, John Webb, William H. Wright, Charles Wells, Wallace C. Whitney, David Williams.

Fifty-sixth Infantry—Co. I—George Atkins, Horace L. Chadburn, Waller S. Curtis, George Cooper, David Drummond, George E. Deming, Frank English, Lewis C. Elliott, Jared Freeman, James D. Gibson, Patrick Hurley, Andrew Harty, Charles G. Harshaw, Christian Kmpinsky,

Peter Kernel, Henry Martin, William Mahoney, Howard L. Miller, Albertis E. South, Charles F. Shute, Edward Tempest, George Tyrriver, Charles Tyrriver, James Thorn-dike

First Cavalry—Co. B—Smith Duley, Theodore Widgen, William West, Evander M. Lawrence, Charles N. Sanders, Harry Adams, Daniel West, Ira Adams, John Brown, Co. C—Charles Sweet, John West, Ira O. Tuttle, Co. D—John Deacon, David Ackley, Co. E—Oscar Frenk, Eugene Frenk, Robert Stewart, Co. F—Leonard Mowers, Co. G—David Ruves, Co. K—Charles Fero, Company unknown—Parlin Sanders, Henry Pert, Michael O'Neil, Walter O. Bargeave.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—Joseph W. Henderson, George W. Miller, Henry Boverman, Melvin E. Sage, Frederick Searge, William Evans, Cornelius Forbes, Charles Piper, Co. D—Henry Gleason.

Eighth Battery Light Artillery—William Johnson.

TOWN OF ROSENDALE.

First Infantry—Co. I—Byron Wheeler

Third Infantry—Co. B—Major Bertine Pinkney, John Stigman, Company unknown—Henry Woodruff.

Fifth Infantry—Co. D—Lij Macu.

Seventh Infantry—Company unknown—Francis Curtis.

Ninth Infantry—Company unknown—William Tetzliff.

Fourteenth Infantry—Co. K—William Sears, E. R. Ahlrott.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. H—Septimus Athrop.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. G—Charles Oder.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. H—James A. Edly, Alfred Burt, Richard M. Young, James C. Lawson, Gilbert Wilson, Daniel Petre, Edmund Perkins, Lorenzo Forbes, Trifflly Lewis, Harness, Prosper Martell, Wilfron Landrick, Christ. Hartzburn, August Naest, Calvin Hyde, John Bassett, Morgan Richards, J. H. Ferguson, Church N. Kibby, Jereo Hinkley, Joseph Cavill, Charles Hyde, Anthony Fountain, Stephen S. Smith.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Jackson Hyde, Co. C—John Moses, Richard Moses, Evan Davis.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. B—Leonard Blair, James Smith, Sidney Johnson, Co. H—George C. Duffie, Timothy O'Connor, Benjamin O'Connor, Clark Kenyon, Nelson Dutton, Company unknown—Abednego Davis.

Forty-third Infantry—Co. B—Corp. Byron Stevens.

First Cavalry—Co. A—Edward Lophoff, Orrin Hinkley, John Conant, Co. B—Alfred L. Kibby, Edward Colman, Ed. Co. C—Harvey S. Johnson, Co. D—William Otter, John Leets, Co. E—Henry Yates, Alomder S. Moore, Co. K—Hiram E. Turner, Co. L—Norman Blakely, John H. Stewart, Lewis Camply, Robert Cavill, Company unknown—George Burgess.

Second Cavalry—Co. A—George Murey, John Hawley.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—Nathaniel C. Kibby, Richard Ober, Hiram W. Wheeler, Cornelius Forbes, Asa C. Kinney, Charles Fletcher, Co. F—Charles T. Fordice, Orlando Duffie, Everhard Duffie, John Wadley, Philip W. Kibby, Charles Mason.

Private Regiment—Joseph Baker

TOWN OF SPRINGDALE.

Third Infantry—Co. A—Warren Atterson, Myron Curtis, Co. D—Jacob Bidleman, Charles Lee.

Fourth Infantry—Co. K—Benjamin F. Harwood, Norman Hart

Thirtieth Infantry—Co. B—Daniel McLain.

First Cavalry—Co. A—Alonzo Lockwood, Co. H—Josiah Prosper.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Henry Cutler, Charles Waldo, Geo. Cutler, Leander Bibbard, Henry J. Goodall, Co. E—Thomas Hammer, Asa Atterson.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. G—Fredric Oder.

Twentieth Infantry—Co. H—Merritt Felton, Chandler Christian, Fredrick Kruger.

Twenty-First Infantry—Co. F—John Gilchrist, John Christian, Stewart Brown, John Baker, James E. O'Riley.

Thirty-Second Infantry—Co. B—William Moore, Garnet Donk, John Donk, Cyrus Welch, Jason Walker, John Campbell, Leander Ferguson, James Connor, Orlando T. Comstock, Christian Winkelman, James Haywood, August C. Gregory, David Hickey, Alvah Curtis, John C. Alexander, Lewis Welch, James O'Neil, George Curtis, James Berregne, George Moore, Duwane Moore, George Gee, Thad. Gee, John A. Benton, Aden Fields, Charles Elliott, DeLos Peers, Aaron Hemmingway, William Minchart, Enos Wantz, Edward P. Lamb, Runslow Tuttle, Henry M. Scofield, Edward Murry, T. E. Bush, John Gehring, Francis Gee, Henry Bennett, Co. H—Thomas Pygall, Dewit G. Cole.

Forty-first Infantry—Co. B—Clarence Caldwell.

First Cavalry—Co. B—James Steeles, Co. D—George Huzzy, Co. H—Erastus Barrow, Jasper Talbot, Co. I—Hammon Shurlitz, Nelson Heckerson, Peter Cole, Charles Horton, William Horton, Co. L—James Parker, Company unknown—James M. Waterman.

Third Cavalry—Co. C—Joseph Bonhert.

Fourth Cavalry—Co. B—George W. Pierce, George Pygall.

Second Battery Light Artillery—George Richardson.

TOWN OF TAYCHEEDAB.

First Infantry—Co. I—Thomas Wheelock, Theodore Magnuson, Co. K—Lyman Eversdell, Moses Coffin, Norton W. Meach, Michael J. Hayford.

Fifth Infantry—Co. I—Capt. Richard B. Emerson, First Lieut. William Berry, Eben Rittenbach, Lewis Kinep, Charles H. Shaver, James P. Simmons, Peter Sandle, Adelbert P. Norton, John Daniels, Eliphalet Breed, Alfred M. Green, Jared Belt, Benjamin F. Falter, David L. Allen, John W. Tiffany, Jr., Philetton R. Tiffany, William T. White, Elijah B. Shoemaker, Edward K. Shoemaker, James Waite, James M. Davis, Charles Campbell, Barney Campbell, Charles Osborn, Dewit C. Pierce, Henry Thompson, Alexander Brown, William H. Disbrow, Joseph W. Schooley, Walton K. Pelton, William Lalonde, Charles H. Gibson, Levi T. Bishop.

Sixth Infantry—Co. E—Edward Leeman.

Fourteenth Infantry—Company unknown—Aaron Simmons.

Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—George Johnson, Edward Flynn, Albert Dandath, David Shaver, Jno. W. Tiffany, Sr., Marcus Gurnee, Cornelius Coffman, James P. Millard, George Benedict, Charles Blitzke, Thomas Leeman, Ira Town, Robert F. Muller, Silas W. Clark, Lewis Coffin, John H. Shoemaker, Levi Tiffany, Henry C. Middleton, Simeon P. Middleton, Chester C. Whitney, Herbert D. Whitney, John M. Kisner, John Kisner, James Alexander, Charles F. Scott, Isaac Losey, Samuel W. Beal, Epton L. Beal, Joseph Parks, John Johnson, Theron K. Meach, Lewman Daniels, Benedict Adleman, Hale H. Coffin.

Nineteenth Infantry—Co. B—Isaac Barager.

Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—John Carey, Alpheus A. Beck, Henry Carter, Peter A. Hoskins.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Joseph Schmieds, Nicholas Snyder.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—George L. Hubbard.
Thirteenth Illinois Cavalry—Adolph Beehand.

TOWN OF WAUPUN.

First Infantry—Co. I—Lewis Hart.
Third Infantry—Co. D—Henry Boyd, Andrew Mahoney, Charles Gee, John Gowan, Lorenzo D. Wood, O. F. Gee, William E. Barton, J. W. Gee, W. H. H. Williams.
Tenth Infantry—Co. K—J. G. Babbit, Jerome Harrington, Nelf Hagenson, John Juleson, John Snyder, Lewis Batterson, Lyman Soper, Ole Gilbrinson, C. J. Batterson, Philo H. Miller.
Fourteenth Infantry—Co. A—Platte Durand.
Seventeenth Infantry—Co. D—Patrick Drum.
Eighteenth Infantry—Co. A—Leander Hibbard.
Nineteenth Infantry—Co. H—R. H. Ferris.
Twenty-first Infantry—Co. A—Jeremiah Hill. Co. F—Joseph Patterson, Abonzo Smith.

Twenty-sixth Infantry—Co. E—Augustus F. Krueger.

Thirty-second Infantry—Co. A—John Wooden, John Colters, Jonathan Mott, Washington Foote, Elliott Crane, Hoace Plumley, Henry Plumley, John Foote, Leroy E. Beardsley, James S. Town, Silas Brooks, Benjamin B. Hart, McKinsie Mapes, James J. Hillibert. Co. B—Homer Gee, Philander Comstock.

Thirty-first Infantry—Co. B—Ellis Butts, John C. Burns, Prentice Carrington, Romain K. Damonde, Charles Bazen, Bartholomew McFarland, James E. Whitman, Charles F. Waldo, Lester Welch.

First Cavalry—Co. B—Henry Chapin, Nathan Woodworth, Hiram Gee, William H. Tyler, Thomas F. Allen, Luther Landon, J. E. Blanchard. Co. D—Henry Miller, Co. H—Jasper Talbot. Co. I—George Holmes.

Ninth Battalion Light Artillery—O. Guy Perkins.
Regimental Cooks—Asher Tyler.

THE DRAFT.

There was some excitement in Fond du Lac County when the order for the first draft was promulgated. This was not because of the large number of men to be drawn, for the quotas of most of the towns and wards were pretty nearly full; but because a local paper had said the Government had no right to "tear men from their homes to be butchered for the tyrants at Washington," which caused a misapprehension to grow up in some quarters as to what a draft really was. Many expected a squad of armed soldiers would appear at their doors with handcuffs and chains, to take all the male inmates at all hazards. When this misapprehension was corrected, there was less excitement and fewer threats of resistance.

The draft was begun by the Sheriff in Fond du Lac County about the 1st of September, 1862. Dr. W. H. Walker was Examining Surgeon, with his office at Fond du Lac. The Ripon Times gave a graphic account of the appalling number of men who were attacked with fatal maladies during August, while the draft papers were preparing, and the Saturday Reporter, of Fond du Lac, in its issue of September 20, said:

For one whole week, the Draft Commissioner's and Surgeon's office in this city has been crowded with applicants for exemption. The side-walk in front of the stairway in Darling's Block has been crowded, and the passage crammed full. A large number of certificates have been issued, attesting to the great degree of mortality prevailing. No doubt, in many cases the applicants were unfit for military duty, and should not be abused for applying there, but so many robust and healthy men have come up, that some wag put a sign over the door labeled "Cowards' Headquarters," and, no doubt, it was with justice to hundreds we have seen under it.

M. W. Seely was County Commissioner, and had an office at Fond du Lac for the purpose of examining the evidence of those who claimed exemption from military service, under Order No. 99 of the War Department. These exemptions were granted where men had been convicted of felony, or were members of families with a certain number in the service, or were the necessary support of children or aged and infirm.

Capt. E. L. Phillips, of Fond du Lac, was appointed the 1st of May, 1863, as Provost Marshal of the Fourth District of Wisconsin, in which was the county of Fond du Lac. It was his duty, among others, to superintend the draft. The Provost Marshal's office for the District was at Fond du Lac. The second draft took place in November, 1863, under Capt. Phillips. The number enrolled in Fond du Lac County as subject to draft, was as follows: Alto—Class 1, 166; Class 2, 71. Auburn—Class 1, 73; Class 2, 97. Ashford—Class 1, 122; Class 2, 85. Byron—Class 1, 111; Class 2, 88. Calumet—Class 1, 64; Class 2, 65. Eden—Class 1, 192; Class 2, 137. Empire—Class 1, 84; Class 2, 85. Eldorado—Class 1, 94; Class 2, 82. Forest—Class 1, 85; Class 2, 86. Fond du Lac Town—Class 1, 109; Class 2, 71. Friendship—Class 1, 38; Class 2, 59. Lamartine—Class 1, 88; Class 2, 67. Marshfield—Class 1, 89; Class 2, 62. Metomen—Class 1, 159; Class 2, 85. Oakfield—Class 1, 132; Class 2, 59.

Osceola—Class 1, 74; Class 2, 53. Ripon Town—Class 1, 116; Class 2, 55. Ripon City—Class 1, 251; Class 2, 129. Rosendale—Class 1, 117; Class 2, 84. Springvale—Class 1, 126; Class 2, 68. Taycheedah—Class 1, 101; Class 2, 81. Waupun—Class 1, 128; Class 2, 71. Waupun North Ward—Class 1, 89; Class 2, 63. First Ward of Fond du Lac—Class 1, 162; Class 2, 111. Second Ward—Class 1, 135; Class 2, 97. Third Ward—Class 1, 102; Class 2, 41. Fourth Ward—Class 1, 265; Class 2, 107. Fifth Ward—Class 1, 58; Class 2, 56. These numbers were put into the wheel, and the following quota drawn from them: City of Fond du Lac, 191; Town of Fond du Lac, 32; Friendship, 11; Osceola, 21; Eden, 30; Byron, 32; Oakfield, 39; Ashford, 36; Auburn, 22; Calumet, 19; Marshfield, 27; Taycheedah, 29; Empire, 25; Forest, 25; Lamartine, 26; Springvale, 38; Alto, 50; town and North Ward of Waupun, 65; city of Ripon, 125; Rosendale, 35; Eldorado, 29; Metomen, 45; total, 942.

This was a large draft. About 20 per cent of those who "drew prizes" when the wheel turned in Amory Hall, at Fond du Lac, presented themselves for duty. After this draft had been ordered and the enrollment begun, the melancholy feelings of men of sound body and middle age who suddenly received word that their friends in Canada were "very sick—now expected to live," was sorrowful to behold. Twenty who thus suddenly learned of illness among their Canada friends, left Fond du Lac in a single night. Thirteen left Waupun on a certain Sunday evening, and about the same number tore themselves away from Ripon. Canada did not appear to have at that time well ones enough to properly care for the sick, and the good men of Fond du Lac could not see them suffer.

In November, 1863, a Draft Association was formed, with headquarters at Fond du Lac. S. D. Stanchfield was President; Edward Beeson, Vice President; Keyes A. Darling, Treasurer, and T. D. Pooles, Secretary. Each member paid a certain initiatory fee, and if the fund thus obtained was not sufficient to pay the $300 for each member drafted, a pro-rata assessment sufficient for that purpose was made.

After the November draft had taken place, Provost Marshal Phillips' office was thronged night and day. The substitute business was also good, but more than one-half of those hired or purchased as "subs" decamped for Canada as soon as they secured the $300 bounty, with some additional local bonuses. These "bounty-jumpers" were mostly natives of Canada, who made a business of getting money in the manner mentioned.

The next draft was in October, 1864—the vigor with which recruiting was pushed making Fond du Lac able to escape a draft in January, 1864, even if it had not been postponed. There was another call March 14, 1864, for 200,000 men for the navy, which, with the two previous calls for 300,000 and 200,000 men, respectively, swelled the number to 700,000. This made the number to come from Wisconsin large; but Fond du Lac County, as a whole, not only escaped this draft, but in some towns had credits ahead of her quota.

The Fond du Lac Reporter of April 26, 1864, said: "The Fourth District—Capt. E. L. Phillips, Provost Marshal—is now ahead, as it has been for a year past, of all other districts in the State in filling the calls made. It has furnished, also, a greater per cent of drafted men for duty and of commutation money than any other district in the State. This, we think, is due almost entirely to the able management of affairs at the headquarters of the district. The State does not have three more efficient officers than Capt. Phillips, Commissioner Burchard and Surgeon Carey."

The draft of October, 1864, was made in Spencer Hall, Fond du Lac, on Wednesday, October 5, for Fond du Lac County, or rather the towns of Eldorado and Auburn. Eden, Osceola and Ashford were behind, but before the draft for the balance of the district was completed had filled their quotas and no draft was had for their benefit. For Auburn, 132 names were enrolled as liable to draft, of which 74 were drawn. For Eldorado, 131 were enrolled and 84 drawn.

On the Saturday succeeding this draft, one of the Fond du Lac papers had the following, giving the names of the drafted: "More than one-half of the men drafted in Eldorado on Wednesday have run away."

On Friday, January 27, 1865, a supplemental draft was made for the more delinquent towns of the Fourth District, and the town of Eldorado was the only one in Fond du Lac County for which the draft wheel was turned. The deficiency was 17 at this draft, but only one man was secured.

The last draft in Fond du Lac County was conducted by Gen. Charles S. Hamilton, who was appointed Provost Marshal of the Fourth District, in place of Capt. E. L. Phillips, about the middle of March, 1865. This draft was for only a portion of the county, many towns and wards having their quotas more than full. The draft was for Eldorado, with a deficiency of 60; Forest with 21; Auburn, with 14; Osceola, with 16; Eden, with 11, and Ashford, with 7. The Marshal thought it necessary to post the law against draft riots in some of these towns. The men drafted this time never saw active service, the war closing soon after.

SCRAPS OF WAR HISTORY.

The first man to shed Wisconsin blood on a Southern battlefield in the rebellion, was Lieut. William A. Matthews, of Company G, First Wisconsin Volunteers, who was severely wounded at the battle of Falling Waters, in July, 1861, in Virginia. He enlisted at Fond du Lac, his home. The last Wisconsin blood shed was at the capture of Jeff Davis, in Irwin County, Ga., May 10, 1865, when several men were wounded by volleys fired by a detachment of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry upon a detachment of the First Wisconsin Cavalry.

The Third Regiment was quartered during several weeks at Camp Hamilton, in Fond du Lac City. Edward Pier and John W. Carpenter had the contract to supply the men with food, which they did for 38 cents apiece, per day. The regiment was commanded by Col. Charles F. Hamilton, and consisted of ten full companies, or about eight hundred men. This regiment broke camp at Fond du Lac and left for the front on Friday, July 12, 1861. The ladies gave to nearly every soldier some article of comfort before the regiment left Fond du Lac.

Capt. Emerson's "North Star Rifles," of Taycheedah, left for camp Monday, June 24, 1861, and Capt. E. S. Bragg's "Rifles" left July 1, 1861. His company consisted of 120 men. This company was raised by Capt. Bragg.

Col. Edward Daniels' regiment of cavalry was encamped at Ripon, on College Hill, and left for the front late in 1861.

Company A, of the Thirty-second Regiment, was in camp for a while in 1861, at the fair grounds in Fond du Lac, but soon afterward joined the regiment in Camp Bragg, at Oshkosh.

August 21, 1862, the town of Fond du Lac voted to pay $100 for volunteer recruits.

Col. Edward Colman (Sheriff in 1878 and 1879) had a recruiting office over the office of the Bank of the Northwest. Other recruiting offices were opened by Sergt. M. W. Petters and Sergt. Higgins, during 1862.

The town of Empire held a war meeting August 22, 1862, and voted $3,000 for bounties to those who would enlist before the draft, which was expected to take place on September 1, following.

The "Fond du Lac Mill Boys" composed a company of 104 men, enlisted by Capt. Alexander White, in Fond du Lac, in August, 1862, nearly every one of whom was a mechanic, machinist or millwright. As Capt. White, Deputy Warden of the Wisconsin State Prison since 1878, was a splendid machinist and mechanic, being one of the owners of the Hiner & White Iron Works, it was said of his company, that they could build and equip a railway with cars and locomotives; build a mill, make a rifled cannon, erect a truss bridge, or do anything in the mechanical line, even to making clocks and watches. In this company, five Dornsha brothers and six of their brothers-in-law enlisted. No company in Fond du Lac ever got such a large number from one family. This company went into camp at Oshkosh September 1, 1862.

In October, 1862, nearly one hundred negroes—men, women and children—arrived in Fond du Lac, from Northern Alabama, in charge of the Chaplain of the Fourteenth Regiment. They were mostly taken as servants in the city of Fond du Lac.

In November, 1862, Roswill M. Sawyer and William A. Dewey were placed upon Brig. Gen. C. S. Hamilton's staff.

Gen. Lyman M. Ward, now of Benton Harbor, Mich., enlisted at Fond du Lac as a private, and won all his promotions by "gallant conduct on the field of battle."

Prairie Grove was one of the hottest battles of the war. Capt. Strong's company, from Ripon, was highly complimented for the part it took in that engagement.

In December, 1862, Timothy E. Strong, Jr., was promoted to First Lieutenant of Company H, First Regiment Wisconsin Volunteers.

In the Ripon papers of December, 1862, was a long letter giving a description of governing cities in the South by military law, and particularly how Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va., were being governed by Maj. Alvan E. Bovay, who was Provost Marshal of those cities until the latter part of 1863.

In February, 1863, Kingman Flint, son of the late Judge Flint, was promoted to Second Lieutenant in the regular army. A few months later, he died at Pensacola, of black vomit. He was a wonderful man, physically.

In December, 1862, the County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution to furnish aid after that date to the families of volunteer soldiers. Each person so aided was required to furnish evidence to the nearest Supervisor, that he or she was a relative of a volunteer soldier, and dependent upon him for support.

In April, 1863, Col. Bragg sent home the regimental colors, riddled from staff to tassel. A new set of colors had been provided.

Gen. O. H. La Grange, afterward for several years Superintendent of the United States Mint at San Francisco, enlisted at Ripon, and traveled to his final high position from the bottom round of both the military and civil ladders.

The Turners, of Fond du Lac, raised a company for Gen. Sigel's regiment, and turned over every dollar in their treasury to pay bounties for new recruits.

Jerome B. Johnson, now Superintendent of Mails at Milwaukee, was shot through the groin at Bull Run, and lay six days upon the field, without food or attendance. He lived, and, in October, 1862, was able to return to Fond du Lac. But he never was able to return to his regiment.

A Mr. Temple, of Lumartine, anxious to get into the service of his country as soon as possible, went to the front and enlisted, being assigned to Company D, of the Third Regiment. Next day he was shot dead in battle.

In October, 1862, occurred one of the largest funerals in Fond du Lac. It was at the burial of Grier Tallmadge, a son of the late Gov. Nathaniel P. Tallmadge, who died at Fortress Monroe in September.

In March, 1863, Edward S. Bragg was promoted to the colonelcy of the Sixth Regiment.

In April, 1863, the ladies of Wedge's Prairie collected fifty barrels of provisions and some cash for the soldiers. They then formed themselves into an Aid Society and continued the work of doing for the soldiers.

In April, 1863, the members of Company A, Thirty-second Regiment, sent home to their families, as the surplus saved from three months' pay, the sum of $4,263.

The first work of the Soldiers' Aid Society of the town of Byron, in 1863, was to collect, for the boys in blue, two loads of food and clothing and $116 in cash. The society afterward did much more in the same direction.

William Frost, of Eden, went to Memphis, where he had one soldier son dead and another fatally ill, in May, 1863, and, a few days later, his family received word that he, too, was dead, having been lost overboard while crossing the Mississippi.

War speakers were occasionally hustled, and some of them injured, in some portions of the county. At Taycheedah, R. B. Charles was set upon while speaking in favor of the war and the Administration, and quite severely injured. While this was going on, his harness was destroyed and his wagon torn in pieces. At Ripon, there were two or three who made demonstrations of disloyalty; but after one of the parties had been led to the mill-pond, and had the depth of the water taken before him, with the understanding that water was considered excellent for treasonable utterances and demonstrations, the balance subsided.

A military company was formed in the southeast towns of the county in June, 1863, with the following officers: Captain, Fred Ballwin; First Lieutenant, Nicholas Gaffney; Second Lieutenant, E. C. Coon; First Sergeant, E. A. Whitney; Second Sergeant, O. P. Howe; Third Sergeant, E. C. Airhart; Fourth Sergeant, A. A. Bratt; Fifth Sergeant, G. N. Hatch.

The "Badger State Guards" were raised by C. K. Pier, at Fond du Lac, in the summer of 1863, with the following officers: Captain, C. K. Pier; First Lieutenant, C. T. Carpenter; Second Lieutenant, F. R. St. John; First Sergeant, D. M. Wilson; Second Sergeant, John Miller; Third Sergeant, W. R. Allen; Fourth Sergeant, John Markle; Fifth Sergeant, Solon W. Elson. This company went out, after being drilled by Capt. Pier, as Company A, Thirty-eight Regiment, three years. Pier was made Colonel of Regiment, and Carpenter Captain of Company.

The "Union Guards" were raised at Ripon, with Herman Stempel, Captain; W. T. Whiting, First Lieutenant; Lyman B. Everdell, Second Lieutenant, and N. Bowerman, of the Prairie City Record, First Sergeant. The company was organized in September, 1863.

One of the largest funerals ever held in Eden was that of Sergt. Walter S. Rouse, who was buried August 2, 1863.

E. W. Pride recruited fifty men at Ripon for the gunboat service. He also secured a large number in other portions of the county.

In August, 1863, Dr. Walker took from the tongue of E. H. Farr, of Company K, First Regiment, two double teeth, which had been there imbedded about a year previously by a mine ball.

Sergt. Maj. George W. Driggs, son of the late J. J. Driggs, of Fond du Lac, was war correspondent for the Madison Patriot.

Col. C. K. Pier and Joseph Arnold were war correspondents for the Fond du Lac Reporter.

In October, 1863, four small children, whose mother was dead, gathered in Eden as mourners at the funeral of their last relative, Peter B. Miller, their father, of the Nineteenth Regiment. It was a sad sight.

In January, 1864, all there was left of the Fourteenth Regiment returned home, time of enlistment having expired. The regiment, which contained only 302 privates and 19 officers, was given big receptions at Chicago, Milwaukee and Fond du Lac. At Milwaukee, eloquent mention was made of Michael Mangam, of Fond du Lac, for his conduct at the terrible charge at Gettysburg. Every man in the regiment re-enlisted. Speeches were made at Fond du Lac by Gen. C. S. Hamilton and Col. Lyman N. Ward.

Capt. Woodruff recruited forty-five men for the Thirty-second Regiment, at Waupun, in the latter part of 1863.

In January, 1864, Oakfield held a festival and raised $200 in cash for the soldier boys.

In January, 1864, the Common Council of Fond du Lac voted to pay a bounty of $100 for recruits for the city, and, a week or two later, increased the amount to $200 for each recruit.

Charles H. Benton was promoted, in April, 1864, to be Second Lieutenant of Company G, First Regiment, and Thomas Bryant, First Lieutenant of Company H, Thirty-second Regiment. Soon after, Lieut. Benton was made Quartermaster of the First Regiment.

Up to June, 1864, there had enlisted from the High School at Fond du Lac seventy students.

S. D. Pitcher and others, of the Second Regiment, arrived home June 25, 1864, after serving three full years.

One of the Fond du Lac papers of June 25, 1864, had the following:

"Col. Edward Snyvesant Bragg, of this city, has been promoted to Brigadier General of Volunteers. Nearly three years ago, he entered the service as Captain of Company E, Sixth Wisconsin Regiment. He rose, by grades, to be Colonel of the regiment, was in all the fights with the "Iron Brigade," and especially distinguished himself at Antietam and Gettysburg. During the recent battles in Virginia, at Spottsylvania and the Wilderness, he had command of a brigade, and handled his troops like a veteran, winning great favor from his commanders. For his gallant conduct on these occasions he has been commissioned. Gen. Bragg will be heard from whenever there is a fight, as he believes in striking to hurt."

I. W. Bowen raised a company of thirty-four men at Fond du Lac, and left for camp with them March 1, 1864.

Reuben Lindley took sixty-six men, whom he had recruited, to Madison on the 1st of March, 1864.

Charles T. Carpenter recruited fifty-eight men by April 1, 1864, for the Thirty-eighth Regiment, and was commissioned Captain.

Capt. W. W. La Grange, of the First Regiment of Cavalry, wounded through the body at Chattanooga, in December, 1863, died at Ripon, after a painful surgical operation to extract the shot, July 1, 1864.

By a general order from headquarters, Col. C. K. Pier was placed in command of the One Hundred and First New York Regiment in April, 1865.

Letters to soldiers who were prisoners within the rebel lines were required to have 10 cents upon them in Confederate stamps. Those who had friends among such prisoners were furnished with Confederate stamps free by John J. Beeson, at Fond du Lac, to whom they were sent by Lieut. Bannister. Lieut. Bannister had confiscated them, of course.

In August, 1864, the city of Fond du Lac had paid fifty-three bounties of $100, and one hundred and three bounties of $200 each.

On July 29, 1864, Capt. Eddy Ferris brought home a new rebel flag, captured at the battle of Tupelo.

In July, 1864, Maj. George W. Driggs published a neat book, entitled "Opening of the Mississippi: or, Two Years' Campaigning in the Southwest."

Charles F. Sayre, who died at Port Hudson of sickness and wounds, was only sixteen years of age. He was the only support of a father who had been prostrated in the service.

Col. O. H. La Grange, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry, who was considered by the rebels such a valuable and successful officer that he was put "under fire" at Charleston by them, was exchanged in August, 1864. To put an officer "under fire" is where, when he is held as a prisoner, he is placed so as to be exposed to the fire directed by his own side upon those who hold him.

From August to September, 1864, over three hundred men were enlisted in the city of Fond du Lac.

In August, 1864, Capt. Delos Ward was promoted to Post Quartermaster, to take charge of Fort Morganza, in Louisiana.

In October, 1864, substitutes in Fond du Lac County commanded from $700 to $1,000 each.

The seventh one of the family of Derusha boys entered the army in November, 1864.

A soldiers' festival at Rosendale, in December, 1864, netted $125.

G. H. Clark, Company K, First Wisconsin, and Ed. McGlachlin, who escaped from the rebel prisons, said that the greater share of the appalling number of Union prisoners who died in confinement was caused by starvation and brutal treatment.

In February, 1865, Edward Colman was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of the Forty-ninth Regiment. At this time, Lieut. Crane, of Oakfield, was the only officer left in Company G, Thirty-sixth Regiment.

February 14, 1865, the city of Fond du Lac voted $30,000, to be used in paying bounties to soldiers enlisted to fill the quota of the city. It did so, and with some to spare.

After warm weather began in 1864, the arrival of dead soldiers in Fond du Lac County was of daily occurrence during several months. Some were brought home shot dead; some after having died of wounds, and many after dying of malarious diseases.

Capt. Milton Ewen, Miles Schoolcraft, Lieut. Col. Charles H. Morgan and others were many months in the prison-pens of the South. They finally escaped. Schoolcraft arrived home in December, 1864, but the others were kept in prison till the following spring. His story appeared in print at the time, as follows:

"Miles Schoolcraft, of Company H, Thirty-second Regiment, arrived home Wednesday night, direct from Annapolis. He was taken prisoner while out with a foraging party, near Atlanta, last summer. He was first placed in prison at Eastport, Ga. During the march of nine days on the road, the rebels only issued three crackers to each man. From there he went to Andersonville, and remained there three months and thirteen days. During that time, the daily ration consisted of a piece of corn bread three inches long by two wide and two thick, with a piece of bacon about the same size. The men were treated brutally, in every possible way. On the least provocation, and sometimes none at all, the prisoners were knocked down with clubs or shot by the rebel privates and officers who guarded them. From one hundred to one hundred and twenty Union prisoners were buried every day, most of them dying from scurvy. Very often, no rations would be issued for two or three days. His hat, shirt and boots were taken, and he went into the prison-pen barefoot. From Andersonville he was taken to Charleston. Here good rations were issued, and the scurvy disappeared. From Charleston he was taken to Florence, S. C., and remained two months. During this time, the rations consisted of one pint of corn-meal per day, with a half-teaspoonful of salt every other day. While at Florence, 6,000 of the Union prisoners died. Only 3,000 were in the encampment. At Florence he saw Charley Banker, of Oakfield, hale and hearty. No other Fond du Lac man was seen by him. From Florence he went to Charleston, and was paroled with the first lot of 1,000, and arrived safely at Annapolis, where he received two months' pay and commutations for rations during the time he was a prisoner. He was given thirty days' furlough."

Capt. C. T. Wyman's story is also given. He arrived home in July, 1864. These two accounts, from men well known in Fond du Lac County, will show to coming generations what was endured by thousands of the boys in blue for their country, when, indeed, they did not succumb to disease, starvation or brutality, and start on their last long journey from the festering pens of Libby, Florence and Andersonville. Capt. Wyman's story appeared in the Fond du Lac Reporter of July 2, 1864, as follows:

"C. T. Wyman, of Company F, Twenty-first Wisconsin Regiment, whose escape is already well known, has given us an account of the manner in which he left rebeldom. He was on the way from Danville, Va., to Andersonville, Ga., in company with a large number of prisoners, being transferred beyond the reach of Yankee cavalry. On the 18th of June, when two days' travel from Milledgeville, Ga., Lieut. Custar, of the Twenty-fifth Indiana Regiment, proposed to Wyman to jump from the cars, which was agreed to.

"After working over two hours, they succeeded in getting the caps off the guns of the two guards, and then bolted through the open door of the car, the train running about twenty-two miles per hour. On reaching the ground, they rolled up close to the ends of the ties, and thus escaped the observation of the guard on top of the train. After the train was out of sight, their exultation can scarcely be told.

"Then commenced a long, fatiguing journey, almost entirely by night, through woods, swamps, by-ways, over hills, fields, and everywhere except through villages and regular roads. They depended entirely upon the negroes for assistance, who proved true to them in every particular instance. The greatest delight of the negroes seemed to be to aid them in every possible way.

"On the tenth night, while traveling a by-road, they suddenly came upon three rebel soldiers who were hunting for a runaway slave. There was no chance to run, so they quietly surrendered and were taken to a house close by. While supper was preparing, both managed to escape to the brush, in which pursuit was useless. Two or three nights after, they were confronted by a couple of home guards (rebels) who attempted to capture them, but who were so ignorant of the use of fire-arms on such an occasion that they were left stunned and senseless on the ground from a vigorous use of the stout canes carried by the escaped prisoners. They ran many narrow escapes, but were never recaptured.

"All along the route every plantation had several dogs, and on the slightest alarm from them the men would rush out to see if their horses were not being conscripted by the gentle Jeff, or the rough riders of the Yanks. After twenty-three nights, they reached the Chattahoochee River, having swam three other rivers, and the next day reached the Union lines, where there was some tall cheering. Without arms, or any food except berries, herbs and such as they could pick up on the way, they had traveled nearly three hundred miles through the heart of Georgia."

The stories of escapades like these, or of disease, starvation and death, might be lengthened out indefinitely, in writing the history of those who were taken prisoners, but these will suffice as illustrations.

On Sunday, April 22, 1865, $1,200 were raised at Amory Hall, in Fond du Lac, for the soldiers' Christian Commission.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the city of Fond du Lac, formed early in the war, did an immense amount of work for the soldiers of Fond du Lac County. Many of the ladies who belonged to this Society devoted their entire time and attention to its labors; and the number of garments made, purchased or collected; the amount of dried fruits and food of all kinds, as well as books, newspapers and periodicals, sent to the soldiers was truly astonishing. Regular meetings did not cease to be held until about the close of the war, and the energy of its members never relaxed. The soldiers, both sick and well, sent home many a blessing to the women who were thus laboring, without hope of reward, in their behalf, and those labors will never be forgotten as long as there is a Fond du Lac County soldier left to recount his experiences.

In the public prints, the capture of Jefferson Davis, ex-President of the Southern Confederacy, has always been credited to the Fourth Michigan Cavalry. This is unjust to the soldiers of another State, and a falsehood on the most important leaf of American history.

The First Wisconsin Cavalry, raised in Fond du Lac County, mostly at Ripon, by Col. Edward Daniels, now of Washington, deserves most of the credit for his capture. This regiment had been lying at Macon, Ga., after participating in its capture, under the command of Lieut. Col. Henry Hearndon, now of Madison. O. H. La Grange was the Colonel, but was then in command of the brigade. A detachment consisting of four companies, the First Battalion, or about one hundred men, was ordered to capture Jeff Davis, then supposed to be passing through Georgia with a large party. The detachment, which was commanded by Lieut. Col. Hearndon, struck Davis' trail at 5 o'clock of Sunday, May 7, 1865, near the village of Dublin, Laurens County. All the darkies verified the supposition that Jeff was fleeing through these parts, but the whites declared it was only a few prisoners. Finally, a little girl standing outside of a house where the supposed Davis party had stopped, when asked if "Mr. Davis had gone away yet," innocently replied, "Yes, he's gone that way." The trail was plain, and the detachment hurried on. At Abbeyville, or "Poor Robin Ferry," a detachment of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry came up, under the command of Col. Pritchard. The two Colonels had a friendly talk, each showing the other his orders. Pritchard was to take the ferry and patrol the river. But Col. Hearndon, whose honesty gained him the name of the "Puritan Colonel," went further, and disclosed to Pritchard not only his orders, but that his men had struck Jeff's trail; had followed it several days; pointed out to him the direction the ex-President of the Confederacy was taking, and showed scraps of paper found on the trail by W. O. Hargrave, of Ripon, to prove that there was no doubt Davis was near by. Pritchard knew that the Government had offered $100,000 for the capture of Jefferson Davis, but Col. Hearndon did not. The former thereupon took advantage of the latter's confiding communications, and pushed ahead of the First Wisconsin detachment, striking Davis' trail ahead of them, and coming up with the Davis party late at night of the same day.

Being weary, their course lying through the "barrens," where the clay-eaters, or "white trash," barely eke out a miserable existence, the First Wisconsin boys followed on less rapidly.

L. A. Bishop M.A.

FOND DU LAC

At dusk, various plans were talked over, Sergt. Maj. Hargrave being desirous of pushing on and making the capture that night, as the Davis party were tired too, having been longer on the march than themselves. But Col. Hearndon's horse was weakening for want of food, as were the other horses, and he called a halt at 9 o'clock, giving orders to start at 3 o'clock next morning, and make the capture before daylight. On the morning of the 10th of May, therefore, camp was broken at 3 o'clock, and forty-five minutes later, a small party, led by a scout named Hussey, advanced toward Davis' camp. In a few minutes they were fired upon, and retreated. The balance of Col. Hearndon's command then pushed forward, thinking the rebels had fired, determined to make a desperate fight. They drove the party that fired the first volley some distance, and, finally taking a prisoner or two, discovered that they belonged to the Fourth Michigan. Firing then stopped, but two of the Fourth Michigan boys had been shot dead, and several wounded on both sides. Pritchard had put a large detachment of his best men across the trail between Davis and Col. Hearndon, knowing that Hearndon was advancing from that direction upon it to make the capture, giving them strict orders to "let no one come up on that trail." He then, with another detachment, made the capture while the fight—which had been "murderously precipitated," as the Wisconsin boys have always since declared—was going on between the two squads of Union soldiers, composed of his own men and those of the First Wisconsin. When the First Wisconsin soldiers learned that Pritchard had given such an order, knowing they were advancing on the very road he had blockaded, Col. Hearndon was astounded, and his boys were, some of them, "raving mad, and swore they would then and there take by force the Fourth Michigan and Jeff Davis too;" but they were persuaded to do nothing rash.

The capture was made just in the gray of morning, May 10, 1865, at Irwinville, Irwin County, in the "white trash" country, on the Alapaha River, a branch of the Suwanee River. Jeff thought his time had come, expecting to be shot or hung; but his wife, Mrs. Davis, was defiant and saucy, telling the boys they must not call her husband such opprobrious names as "Old Jeff," or they would get hurt. When taken, Jeff had on a hood and a waterproof, with a water bucket in hand, attempting to palm himself off as an old woman. With him were Postmaster General Reagan, now a member of Congress from Texas, President Davis' private Secretary, C. Johnson, Lubbiok, Morris, and several others. Jeff at first drew a bowie-knife, but soon sheathed it, seeing resistance would prove useless.

When a report was made to the War Department of the fight and the capture, Col. La Grange indorsed on it the real facts, severely censuring the Colonel of the Fourth Michigan. No attention was paid to this, as Secretary Stanton disliked La Grange for recommendations made by him in regard to the exchange of prisoners. But, although the Committee on Claims in Congress was about to give the $100,000 to the Fourth Michigan, Col. Hearndon sent in such evidence as knocked that plan in the head, and the First Wisconsin boys shared equally with the others. Walter O. Hargrave, of Ripon, who was a Sergeant Major, received about $400 as his share.

Col. Hearndon is in the United States Revenue Service at Madison; Col. La Grange is in Europe, and Pritchard, whom the boys always declared should have been court-martialed, is "knocking over the country," spending his money.

Elihu Colman, of Fond du Lac, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry, never has blasphemed since he left the army. Once, at dusk, he was riding past some bushes, when he heard a call for help. "My leg is shot off," said a voice, "and I wish to see a surgeon." "All right, climb on behind," returned Elihu. Mr. Colman drove several miles, through a heavy fire, to a surgeon's door. On the road, a solid shot carried away, unbeknown to Elihu, his wounded companion's head. Arriving at the tent, he called out, "Surgeon Lily, this man has had his leg shot off and wants help." "Leg off!" exclaimed Dr. Lily, "his head is shot off!" "The durned liar," exclaimed Elihu, driving the rowels into his horse's flank, "the durned liar said he only had his leg shot off!" And Colman wheeled away in disgust at being lied to so outrageously.

The following letter very properly may have a place in "Scraps of War History:"

If the unwritten history of the civil war in America were to be spread upon the printed page, it would fill more volumes than were destroyed with the Alexandrian Library, and would amaze posterity as much as it would astound the present generation. That vast human mechanism of a million units that, under the influence of organization and discipline, seemed to move as one man, would appear in its true light, as a seething caldron of human emotions and human passions, boiling and bubbling with a fearful energy, not easily suppressed nor readily controlled. A thousand motives lie beneath the gloss of patriotism, and the best is not always uppermost. To turn all these into the channel of success for a great cause and victory for the right was the hard task of a noble few, and among those, none in their sphere of duty had more to contend with and more to overcome than Maj. Bovay, of Wisconsin, as Provost Marshal of Norfolk. The estimate I formed of his character that led me, while Military Governor of Norfolk, to appoint him to the position of Provost Marshal, was confirmed by all my subsequent intercourse with him. Surrounded on all sides by greedy harpies, who would trade upon their country's woes, and on the other by open foes, he was called upon to deal with knaves and traitors as with brave and honest men, meting out exact justice with kindness, and counteracting the evils of dishonesty with keen judgment and a wise discretion. Hated by the bad, whom he thwarted in their schemes, and unthanked by the needy, whom he relieved in their distress, he bore himself in the midst of the most trying circumstances in a way that could only have been maintained by a strict integrity, an unwavering conscientiousness and a clear and courageous sense of right and duty.

[Signed.]

EGBERT L. VIELE.

In the fall of 1862, Col. Edward S. Bragg was run as a war candidate for Congress, against Charles A. Eldredge. He was nominated while in the field. On being notified of his nomination, he wrote to J. H. Brinkerhoff, Secretary of the Convention: "I can take no part in the coming campaign. My duties are elsewhere, and I shall endeavor to discharge them to my own credit and to the honor of the State whose commission I bear. * * * It has been a matter of solicitude among my friends, as I am advised by letters to-day, to know what my views are upon the great issues of the day. I recognize but one issue—For and Against the Government. This swallows up all others, and the motto that 'He who is not for me is against me' never had more truthful significance than it has to-day. I am for the Government—the iron gauntlet and not the silk glove for the enemy."

Col. Bragg was defeated by about 4,000 majority.

In January, 1863, President Lincoln nominated Brig. Gen. Charles S. Hamilton, of Fond du Lac, for promotion to Major General. His name had become familiar to the whole country, a few months before, through his gallant conduct at Corinth and Iuka. The New York Tribune's description of the latter battle contained this paragraph:

"Amid the incessant roar of musketry and the thunder of artillery and the clash of arms, Gen. Hamilton moved, with his staff, wherever the battle raged the hottest, and gave his orders with the same quiet firmness, promptness and clearness which are his greatest characteristics in all things. His presence everywhere just when needed excited the admiration of the soldiers. His horse was killed under him, and the hilt of his sword shattered as he was moving amid the showers of balls, which fell on all sides. Yet there was no excitement or fear exhibited by him. He was soon re-mounted, on a fresh horse, and, as calmly as ever, directed the movements of the battle to the close as he had from the beginning. * * * Gen. Hamilton is a thorough soldier. He fought through the Mexican war, and, at the breaking-out of this rebellion, brought the Third Wisconsin Regiment into the field. He is a man of few words, but always to the point. He is undemonstrative, and seems to possess but little of the art of courting favor. His only care is to do his duty well. The incessant cheers by which he was greeted on the day after the battle by each regiment, as he rode past on the march in pursuit of Price, show that his modest bravery, unflinching courage and sure skill as a soldier are fully appreciated by them, and that they are ready to follow wherever he chooses to lead. He fully appreciates the intelligence, invincible courage and high character of the men under his command, and is ready to stand or fall with them in the noble contest in which we are all engaged. With such leaders and such men to fight our battles, success is certain. For the able, skillful and decisive manner in which Gen. Hamilton fought and won this battle (for he directed all the movements in the field), all, from the highest to the lowest, think and believe that he has won deserved promotion."

Fond du Lac County soldiers participated in the following battles: Falling Waters, July 2, 1861; Chickamauga, September 19, 1863; Dug Gap, September 12, 1863; Chaplin Hills, October 8, 1862; Dallas, May 28, 1864; Kenesaw Mountain, June 22, 1864; Jonesboro, September 21, 1864; Gainesville, August 28, 1862, which was considered the most stubbornly contested battle of the war; South Mountain, September 14, 1862; Laurel Hill, May 10, 1864; Wilderness, May 5 and 6, 1864; Gettysburg, July 1, 1863; Bull Run, July 21, 1861; Antietam, September 17, 1862; Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862; Hatcher's Run, October 27, 1864, at which Col. J. A. Watrous was captured; Blackburn's Ford, July 18, 1861; Spottsylvania Court House, May 10, 1864, at which Grant lost 65,000 men, but still continued the fight, and at night, when the fighting ceased, breastworks were thrown up by both sides, and when morning dawned the two lines were so close that they fought each other with the butts of their muskets; Chancellorsville, May 1, 1863, at which several Wisconsin regiments, with other Western troops, massed themselves, irrespective of commanders, and held the enemy after everything appeared to be lost before the rebel charge; Fairfax Station, December 24, 1863; Winchester, May 25, 1862; Bolivar Heights, October 16, 1861; Peach Tree Creek, July 20, 1864; Burnby Ford, June 9, 1863; Averysboro, March 16, 1865; Bentonville, March 16, 1865; Buckton Station, May 22, 1862; Argyle Island, December 16, 1864; Lost Mountain, June 11, 1864; Rappahannock, November 7, 1863; Petersburg, June 14, 1864, to April 2, 1865, at which Gen. Bragg commanded the Iron Brigade; Moore's Heights, May 3, 1863; Sailor's Creek, April 6, 1865; Cold Harbor, June 1, 1864; Yellow House, August 19, 1864; Second Bull Run, August 30, 1862; Gravelly Run, March 31, 1865; Weldon Railroad, August 19, 1864, at which Bragg commanded the Iron Brigade; Jericho Ford, May 23, 1864; Five Forks, April 1, 1865; Nashville, December 16, 1864; Vicksburg, May 22, 1863; Corinth, October 3, 1862; Spanish Fort, March 27, 1865; Farmington, May 9, 1862; Hurricane Creek, August 13, 1864; Tapelo, July 13, 1864; Shiloh, April 7, 1862; Clifton, July 6, 1863; Lovejoy, September 3, 1864; battles of Atlanta, 1864 and 1865; Big Shanty, Ga., June 11, 1864; Brownsville, September 23, 1862; Jackson, Miss., May 14, 1863; Champion Hills, May 16, 1863; Allatoona, October 5, 1864; Prairie Grove, December 7, 1862, at which many boys were taken prisoners; Bentonville, March 19, 1865; Resaca, May 14, 1864; Chatahoochee, July 4, 1864; Stone River, December 30, 1862; Salkhatchie, February 3, 1865; Court Lane, July 27, 1864; South Edisto, February 9, 1865; Hillsboro, February 24, 1864; Ream's Station, August 25, 1864; Deep Bottom, August 14, 1864; Tolopotomoy, June 1, 1864; North Anna, May 27, 1864; Fort Mahone, April 2, 1865, at which Lee's lines were broken; Mine Explosion, July 30, 1864, at which Grant dug under the rebel fortress and blew it up, or rather, he gave permission to a regiment of miners to tunnel under the Union lines to a point beneath the rebel fortress, at which two tons of powder were exploded, carrying death and consternation into the whole rebel line.

Soldiers from Fond du Lac County participated in other battles, doubtless, but in no considerable bodies.

The only officer from Fond du Lac County on the retired list, is Michael Mangan, of Fond du Lac. He enlisted as a private in Company E, Sixth Wisconsin Volunteers, and left for the front in June, 1861. He served three years in that Company, and was mustered out as First Lieutenant in April, 1864. He then entered the Veteran Reserve Corps, serving in New York City until the close of the war, when he went to Florida in connection with the Freedmen's Bureau. In September, 1866, he was mustered out and returned to Fond du Lac, where, in December of that year, he joined the regular army as Second Lieutenant of company A, Forty-fifth Regiment. In this company he served until April, 1871, when he was retired as a Second Lieutenant on three-fourths pay. During the session of Congress of 1866 and 1877, Lieut. Mangan was door-keeper of the United States Senate. There are no other officers of his rank retired in Wisconsin; but there are four of other grades in the State on the retired list.

A RETROSPECT.

Fond du Lac County, to-day rejoicing in the pride of its strength, teeming with wealth and glittering in the sunlight of a prosperity that startles the visitor into a smile of gladness, was, in 1835, a wilderness almost as unbroken as when John Nicolet, in 1634, visited Green Bay.

The historian takes up the threads of life since then, as tangled by events, slowly. What prompted the pioneers to their advent into this land? Was it that spirit of adventure which impelled the cavaliers of the olden time to pursue with eagerness the phantom of a hope into the East? Was it a sense of duty which first found expression in the New World, in 1620, on Plymouth Rock? Perhaps, after all, it was only that they might better their condition—might here find cheap lands and soon obtain comfortable homes.

But many of them are dead, and the inquirer, who has seen so many of his idols turned to clay, and his ideals perish, comes naturally, by-and-by, to the time when he analyzes—such and such things have happened—why? Such and such men have passed away—how? Such and such events have lighted up the sky of advancing civilization as a meteor might the physical. Whence do they proceed? The men who came to the front and laid the foundations for this continuous and lovely landscape of nature, glimmering like a gem in its emerald setting, belonged to a regime that is fast giving place to an enterprise, which though greater, is less earnest, because Providence and nature more materially aid man's ambitions. They were the grizzled grenadiers in the army of pioneers, who never, in any sudden storm or rally, desperate melee, or sorrowful encounter, forgot to doff their plumed hats to an adversary and cry out through their gray mustaches, as they shortened their sword arm. "En garde." It may be anything or nothing, but the one thing certain about it all is, they were the enterprising spirits who laid the foundation for this teeming wealth and sunny prosperity. Though dead, they live again. Not alone in the promised land beyond the swift Borysthems, but in the land they prepared for after generations.

Many of the prominent actors in the prelude are dead, but the drama goes on, and will last until the human race has run its course and the wide firmament is rolled up like a scroll.

Many of the singers are dead, but their song has gone on; out of the darkness has come a light, out of the sorrow an exceeding joy.

The present should profit by the past, and take examples from the views of these, which shall make heart and home happy, better men, citizens and Americans. The present should be admonished by the past, to labor with equal diligence for the personal blessings of health of body, vigor of mind, and success in life, as also for the blessings promised in the life to come.

But the hard hands which prepared the way for the fruitful fields which grew from the wilds of the county; for filling its cities and towns with the habitations of men, seminaries of learning, public edifices, and other evidences of a pronounced prosperity, are quietly folded in their mother earth, and it must be of interest to those who enjoy their possessions, to know when, where and by whom civilization was commenced, and to learn some of the incidents connected with the first settlement, as also with the steps by which Fond du Lac County has attained the importance claimed by its inhabitants and conceded by its neighbors.

CHAPTER VIII.

CITY OF FOND DU LAC.

PAST AND PRESENT—ABORIGINES—EARLY SETTLEMENT—VILLAGE OF FOND DU LAC—CITY OF FOND DU LAC INCORPORATED—CITY OFFICERS, 1852—1879—CITY OF FOND DU LAC A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO—FOND DU LAC POST OFFICE—FIRE DEPARTMENT—CITY LOCK-UP—ARTESIAN WELLS—GAS WORKS—SCHOOLS—BONDED INDEBTEDNESS—PUBLIC HALLS—HOTELS—BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS AND SOCIETIES—LITERARY AND OTHER SOCIETIES—PUBLIC LIBRARY—SECRET SOCIETIES—CHURCHES—BANKS—MANUFACTURING INTERESTS—YACHT CLUBS—CONFLAGRATIONS—RIENZI CEMETERY—FLOODS AND FRESHETS—INCIDENTS AND FIRST THINGS—EARLY TIMES IN FOND DU LAC.

PAST AND PRESENT.

No city in Wisconsin without water-power, mines, or adjacent lumber tracts, ever arrived at a greater degree of importance, in the same time, than Fond du Lac. This is owing to the richness of the surrounding country, cheap transportation, and the indefatigable industry and perseverance of its citizens.

The city, which existed only on paper in January, 1836, contained 15,308 inhabitants in 1875; an elegant high school building, a free public library, Merrill Institute, a school for young ladies, Mann's Commercial College, a German and English academy, nineteen public schools and several parochial and private schools; eighteen church edifices, six banks, one monthly, five weekly and two daily newspapers, a dozen hotels, four distinct railroads leading in six directions, a blast furnace, four foundries and machine shops, four sash, door and blind factories, one of them the largest in the world; two flouring mills, an extensive thrashing-machine factory, the second largest wagon factory in the State, a seeder factory, ten saw-mills and various other institutions and manufacturing interests.

Who can grasp in a single thought the magnitude of this wondrous change? Gray hairs ought not now to appear on the heads of those who were born when Fond du Lac was born; yet, in the few years which have sped rapidly since that time, there have been wrought great changes. Large saw-mills, with their noisy, insatiable machinery and hurrying attendants, have been erected on the homes of the beaver and muskrat. Paved streets, heavy blocks of stores and bursting warehouses have crushed out the myriads of wild flowers that made the face of the prairie a vast and variegated bouquet, and the black smoke from scores of factory chimneys has taken the place of their delicious fragrance; hedges and lawns, fountains and miniature lakes, arbors and conservatories, have supplanted the long prairie grass, in which quail, grouse and wild birds nested and reared their young undisturbed; the river, whose clear waters flowed unruffled into Winnebago Lake, is now turbid, and crowded with rafts of logs and lumber; the solitude of the wilderness has been violated by the rush and scream of the locomotive; the delicious and soothing hum of birds and insects at eventide has been drowned by the tumultuous din of ringing bells, rattling mills, screeching whistles, and the noisy tread of eager, hurrying throngs, who have never a thought of what incomparable changes have taken place under their feet, over their heads, and on every hand, or of the possible changes, no less complete and astonishing, in store for the future, in process of development through their every move and act. The panorama of history is an interesting one, but its pictures can be fully appreciated by only those who have seen them all. In fact, no one else can even comprehend them. No description of tongue or pen can fully impress upon the minds of the gay, richly dressed throngs at a party to-day, that under the very floors where the figures of the "German" or the "Newport" are being followed, packs of hungry wolves fought with hideous snarl and howl over the carcass of one of their own number; or that it was the place where the scarred and stoical savages gathered around the embers of the camp-fire in solemn discussion of the fate of a captive—debating how many moons should elapse before the prisoner in their midst, from some hostile tribe, should be burned at the stake; or that it was the burial place for unnumbered generations of tribes now unnamed and extinct, or that instead of the lively strains from a well-trained band, years before the brave captive, with unruffled brow and steady, cheerful voice, stoically chanted a battle-song amidst the yell of the warriors, and the hiss of the flames about him, appearing as though the boiling pitch poured upon his head, and the burning splinters thrust into his searing flesh, gave him the utmost pleasure. Yet all this may be true, for up to within less than a half-century the spot on which Fond du Lac now stands had been for many centuries, perhaps, the favorite meeting-place of both friendly and hostile tribes. Along where Forest, West Division, Doty, Cherry and Sophia streets are now located, once stood a fine grove of thrifty sugar-maples, some of which were "tapped" (incisions made for the sap) by the early settlers. This grove contained, in season, thousands of pigeons, grouse and squirrels, many of which found their way to the tables of the settlers in the form of delicious stews. Some of these maples are standing to-day, being most numerous in W. C. Hamilton's yard, on the corner of Sophia and Forest streets. Wild plants and flowers were also abundant beyond description, and every spring red and white "baths," "adder-tongue," leeks, "Indian peppers" and other wild plants are plucked by the youngsters in A. B. Taylor's ample yard, on the corner of Forest and Hickory streets, and some may be seen in J. V. Jewell's yard on Doty street. There is probably no other city of equal size, in the Northwest, where wild flowers grow in its most thickly settled parts.

Where Meyer's factory and dry-house now stand, was one of the most beautiful crab-apple groves, which was not removed until the village began to have young people to enjoy its rich fragrance in spring, its cool shade in summer, and hurl away bushels of its hard, bitter fruit in the fall, while engaged in lively but good-natured battles.

The city of Fond du Lac is situated on a level prairie, at the south end of Lake Winnebago, and is particularly free from epidemic and malarial diseases, because of its pure atmosphere and abundance of fresh spring water, from its scores of artesian wells, called fountains, whence the place derives the popular name of "Fountain City." What Fond du Lac now is may be seen of all; history requires that what she has been be more particularly dealt with.

THE SITE.

The location of Fond du Lac was, as previously explained, made by the Fond du Lac Company, who purchased a large number of acres of land in this vicinity in 1835. The village plat was made in that year, and covered what is now "lower" and "middle" town. The site was chosen by James Duane Doty, who built a house in Empire, in 1838.

One reason which induced Doty to select this as a site for a city, was the well-established fact that nearly all the largest cities of the West are built upon the ruins of important Indian villages, and such were known to have existed here at no very distant day.

Some have pronounced the choice of location a wise one, and others have expressed themselves to the contrary. The only drawbacks of any importance are the low marshy shores of the lake, rendering them undesirable for building-sites, and the shallowness of the river and harbor, rendering such commerce as was at one time anticipated, partially impracticable, although a large amount of trafficking has been carried on by water since the earliest settlement of the place.

These drawbacks are entirely lost sight of, however, when the city's many advantages are brought into comparison. On one side is Lake Winnebago, which furnishes fish, pure cool breezes and unlimited rafting and lumbering facilities; on every block are perpetual fountains of pure cold water, sufficient for private use and fire purposes; on the one side are lime-kilns and extensive stone quarries; on another, forests of hard wood; on another, pits of sand; on another, clay for the manufacture of bricks, and, stretching for miles back to the east, west, south, northwest and northeast, is a larger section of rich, thickly settled farming country than is tributary to any other city in the State. On the whole, therefore, it would seem that the choice of location was the best that could have been made, for no other city possesses so many valuable advantages.

ABORIGINES.

The place where Fond du Lac stands was a favorite camping-ground for the Indians, owing to its beautiful location. It attracted all comers at once, and was the site of several Indian villages of greater or less pretensions.

When the whites first came to Fond du Lac, ancient corn fields could be traced on either side of the river, and a short distance below where the La Belle Wagon Works now stand, on Forest street, was an Indian burial ground, from which bones have been taken in making excavations for building.

An Indian skull has been for some years in use as an emblem in the Knights of Honor Lodge, which was taken from another burial place on the high sandy point about equidistant from the foot of Harney street and Lake Winnebago. As the Indians never bury their dead except in the land of their fathers, and as the latest tribes occupying Fond du Lac came mostly for purposes of trading, rather than permanent occupation, these burial places must have been in use a great many years ago. A more beautiful place for the eternal rest of the dead could not have been chosen—the blue lake upon one side, the thickly wooded “Ledge” on the other; the rich, green prairie, decked with nearly a hundred varieties of bright and fragrant wild flowers, stretching far away to the west and south on the other, with a river flowing between—made a picture excelled nowhere in nature.

The latest Indian occupants of the land on which Fond du Lac stands were the Menomonees. They occupied the locality and the prairies in the vicinity as soon as the Winnebagoes left. The most harm these Indians ever did to the settlers was to steal a few pigs, a horse and a cow, and set fire to the prairies for the purpose of driving up game. They did not claim to have any right to the country, but took possession simply because the Winnebagoes were gone, and the locality was a pleasing one. In 1839, the settlers had a meeting at Fond du Lac, at which the matter of setting fires by the Menomonees was discussed, and their leaders were told that the practice, which had become a costly annoyance by destroying fences, crops and timber, must be stopped, or the Government would be called upon to remove them. They set no more fires, and were soon after removed.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

The first settlement of what is now the city of Fond du Lac was, as has already been shown, the first settlement of the county.

We have seen how, in June, 1836, Colwert Pier and family became the first settlers; how they were followed in March, 1837, by Edward Pier and his family; how, soon after, other members of the Pier family arrived in the infant settlement; and how, on the 1st day of March, 1838, the relatives were called to mourn the death of Fanny, wife of Colwert Pier, the pioneer woman of Fond du Lac County, and of what is now the city of Fond du Lac. On the 3d day of that month, while the few mourners were at the grave of the departed, John Bantister, a surveyor, came from Green Bay to Fond du Lac with his family. He lived a short time (about a year) in the Company's log house, and then moved to a place south and outside of the present city limits.

About the 12th of April, 1838, Dr. Mason C. Darling arrived from Sheboygan, having been in the settlement a few weeks before. As Dr. Darling was very prominent in the early history of Fond du Lac, it will be interesting to know how and why he came here. He was, previous to 1838, a poor man, with a small practice as a physician at Sheboygan. The Fond du Lac Company was anxious to have people settle where the village had been platted, as rapidly as possible, in order to get the tide of immigration turned in this direction. Gov. Doty, as Trustee for the Company, therefore, thinking a physician and surgeon necessary, on May 21, 1838, consummated a contract with Dr. Darling, which agreed to exchange Lots 22, 37, 42, 43, 44 and 45, situated near the river, in what is now "Lower Town;" eighty acres of land in what is now the heart of the city, and a large tract in the town of Fond du Lac, for his office in Sheboygan; provided, that he should build a house on the large tract, now within the confines of the city, cultivate it as a farm, and build and put in motion the Clark saw-mill in the town of Fond du Lac, then commenced. The tract, which the contract required should be made a place of residence and cultivated as a farm, embraced all the land lying within a line drawn from the corner of Forest and Union streets south to Western Avenue, thence east on Western Avenue and between Fourth and Fifth streets to Ellis street; thence north on Ellis to Gillet and west through R. A. Baker's bank and on Forest to the corner of Forest and Union streets, and containing eighty acres. The proviso contained in the contract that Dr. Darling should live on this eighty and "cultivate it as a farm" was to prevent its being cut up into village lots and sold in competition with the Fond du Lac Company's land adjoining. This contract seems to have been satisfactorily fulfilled at the beginning, for, soon after, the mill spoken of was in operation and Dr. Darling had a warranty deed of all the land promised him by the company.

In a short time, however, Dr. Darling, having a few shares in the stock of the Fond du Lac Company, sued in chancery for a division of property. This suit, which tied up all the land the title of which lay in the Company, was brought before Judge A. G. Miller at Green Bay, February 19, 1844. The suit was not decided until the first Monday in October, 1845, during which time Dr. Darling was buying land in what is now the south part of the city, dividing it into smaller parcels and selling or giving it away to those who would agree to build thereon, thus advancing the value of the eighty given him by the Company, while the value of the Company's village plat in what is now "lower" and "middle" Fond du Lac, remained stationary. The Master in Chancery decided February 28, 1844, that, pending the suit, no more land belonging to the Fond du Lac Company should be sold or deeded, which was no sooner done than Dr. Darling gave to the county the tract of land on which the Court House now stands, with the proviso that a county building should be erected thereon at once. This, together with the suit in chancery and the gifts to attract settlers, of several village lots, turned immigration to the vicinity of Dr. Darling's property, and secured the location of the county seat and village where the city now is.

But to return to the matter of Dr. Darling's first settlement in Fond du Lac: On the 14th of June his wife arrived with her three children—Keyes A., Helen M. and Louie Darling. They were brought from Calumet, where they had just arrived from Sheboygan, by Gustave de Neveu and A. D. Clark, on the lake in a large yawl made by Mr. Clark—the first one ever built in Fond du Lac, which Mr. de Neveu had purchased for $40. The boat also contained A. T. Denniston and his family of a wife and two children (whom Mr. de Neveu had hired at Oshkosh to manage his farm), and Mrs. May (whose husband was found dead in the town of Calumet a few days later), and her son, a child two years of age. A heavy storm drove the boat to Taycheedah, from which place all had to walk to Fond du Lac, a distance of three miles. Mr. de Neveu lost his hat in the storm, and it was a matter of wonder afterward that the boat, which contained twelve persons, was not swamped and its precious burden lost.

Dr. Darling lived in the Company's log house but a short time before he had erected another house where Darling's Block now stands, corner of First and Main streets, and opened it as a temperance hotel. The next year, learning the date at which John Bannister's lease of the Fond du Lac House—as the Company's house was then called—would expire, he went on horseback to Green Bay and rented it. He thereupon became John Bannister's successor as Postmaster, and as soon as Mr. Bannister's time was out, moved the post office to his own building and closed up and locked the Company's house. He also gave at that time, to his own hotel and residence, the name of the "Fond du Lac House." This has caused confusion as to where the Fond du Lac House was located—some maintaining it was at the corner of Brooke and Rees streets and others that it was on the corner of Main and First streets. Both are right, as there were two public houses by that name. The old Fond du Lac House was not kept closed very long; but Dr. Darling gained his point and got the post office moved to his portion of the settlement.

From this time on, settlers began to arrive, in too large numbers to make it practicable to follow out particularly the hardships and success of each. Properly, their history would not belong to the village or city of Fond du Lac; for, although most of them came directly to the settlement and remained at the hotels or with some private family for a few weeks or months, many of them pushed out upon the prairies beyond the present city limits, to establish homes as soon as they could.

VILLAGE OF FOND DU LAC.

On Monday, March 1, 1847, agreeably to previous notice, the inhabitants of the settlement of Fond du Lac held a meeting for the purpose of adopting or rejecting the charter for a village corporation previously prepared and passed by the Legislature. At 11 o'clock A. M., the meeting was called to order by the election of Mason C. Darling, Moderator, and J. J. Driggs, Clerk. The vote was taken by ballot, and resulted in 49 votes for the adoption of the charter, and 11 for rejection. The charter was declared adopted, and an election immediately ordered for the choice of village officers. This resulted in the election of Mason C. Darling, President; John A. Eastman, Moses S. Gibson, T. L. Gillett, Isaac Brown, S. S. N. Fuller and J. J. Driggs, Trustees; E. W. Drury, Treasurer; W. A. Dewey, Clerk, and O. S. Wright, Constable. On the 7th of April, these officers had a meeting, took the oath of office, and appointed M. C. Darling, Isaac Brown and S. S. N. Fuller a committee to prepare "a code of by-laws for the village," and T. L. Gillet, S. S. N. Fuller, J. A. Eastman, J. J. Driggs and M. S. Gibson were made a committee to draft and report ordinances for the village of Fond du Lac.

The second election of village officers was held at the Cottage Inn, where the American House now stands, corner Main and Court streets, March 6, 1848, and had to be adjourned to the next day on account of a tie vote between M. S. Gibson, A. D. Bonesteel and Cornelius Davis, for Trustees. The number of votes cast the second day was 97, and A. D. Bonesteel and Edgar Conklin were elected. After that, for a few months, the Board of Trustees had regular and special meetings in rapid succession to wrestle with the question of whether Western avenue should be opened and sidewalks built. Finally, in March, 1848, it was resolved to have "cross walks." This resolution was hailed with delight by the muddy-booted burghers, but the walks were slow in being built. Some idea of the progress made may be had from a paragraph in one of the local papers of May, 1848, which said: "Only think of it! Scarce three months have passed since the ordinance was passed to construct sidewalks, and full one-tenth of the work is now completed. At this rate, this grand, extensive improvement will be finished in the unparalleled short space of two and one-half years from the date of its commencement!"

The third election for village officers was held at the Court House, March 5, 1849. The manner of conducting these elections, of which a record was made by Samuel Ryan, would be entirely novel, if not beneficial, at the present day. E. W. Davis was chosen Moderator, and Samuel Ryan, Clerk, both of whom were solemnly sworn to do their duty, fear God, and support the Constitution of the State and the United States. In March, 1851, the village fathers had grown so thrifty that an ordinance was passed compelling every lecturer to pay a license of $1 to the City Clerk, no matter on what subject the lecture might be. This was considered an outrage by itinerant orators, and was frequently evaded by declaring that the matter to be delivered was a sermon and not a lecture. Concerts, shows and exhibitions were granted licenses upon payment of from $3 to $20.

A writer, in the spring of 1847, thus speaks of the village: "Within three years has sprung up, as if by magic, our thriving village of 400 inhabitants, where three years ago stood a solitary log house. We have two taverns, four stores, two groceries, three blacksmith-shops, three tailor-shops, one cooper-shop, one wagon-shop, one harness-shop, one fanning-mill shop, two tin-shops, two cabinet-shops, three shoe-shops, one jeweler's-shop, etc., etc. As yet we have no public buildings, but the Court House and Jail are in process of erection. A grist-mill is now in course of building. Heretofore, a great inconvenience has been felt on account of a lack of lumber and building materials, but there will be less difficulty this season, as we have one steam and one water saw-mill in operation—but the demand is very great. There are now in course of building, or to be commenced in the course of a few weeks, some thirty dwelling-houses, and to these there are to be added several stores and offices.

“The legal profession is well supplied. We have seven practicing lawyers. We have but two practicing physicians. We have also three resident clergymen. As yet there are no churches; it is contemplated, however, to build two or three during the season.

“The village is built on land heretofore owned by Dr. Darling, and has been confined to his purchase, owing to the unwillingness or inability of the Fond du Lac Company to make sales. During the last season, however, the lands adjoining the town [village] were thrown into the market, and were purchased by different individuals. Lots can be purchased to suit settlers, at reasonable prices, either for places of business or private dwellings. The country round about is of the most fertile soil, and the land generally taken.

“Our population is chiefly from New England and Western New York, and of such a character as to invite the stranger to come and dwell among us.”

Says another writer the same year: “We were not aware, until the last week, of the number of buildings which are now in a state of forwardness, or under contract to be erected in this place this season. Upon inquiring, we find that arrangements have already been made for erecting nearly one hundred buildings, among which will be two, if not three, churches; a large and commodious court house, one or more public schoolhouses, besides stores, mechanics’ shops and dwellings. Measures are being taken to form a company for the purpose of supplying the village with pure and wholesome water, from the beautiful spring on the farm of Col. Conklin, by means of a water-line pipe and reservoir. The distance is about three miles. The annals of Wisconsin cannot show a village which has sprung up with greater rapidity, or that exhibits a greater degree of prosperity and enterprise than Fond du Lac.”

A writer, on the 22d of September of the following year, says: “The prosperity of Fond du Lac is steadily advancing, and it promises soon to become one of the most thriving inland towns [villages] of the Territory. Several commodious buildings are being erected. Mr. Hebert’s new hotel [the building now called the City Hotel] will be a splendid structure when finished—it is 50 feet long by 40 wide, three stories high, and will be surmounted by a commodious observatory. * * * The frame of the new Court House was raised last week. It is a magnificent structure, and will be finished in a becoming style by Mr. Isaac Brown, the enterprising contractor. It is three stories high—the basement of stone to be used as a jail. This is the only building in the place which should remain tenantless. May the owls and bats, cats and rats, forever revel in the halls of its basement.”

A Vermonter, who afterward became a prominent citizen of the city of Fond du Lac, sent the following doggerel to the Burlington, Vt., Free Press, in August, 1847, which was freely used by the Green Mountain newspaper publishers to prevent emigration to Wisconsin:

“Great western waste of bottom land,
Flat as pancake, rich as grease!
Where guats are full as big as toads,
And skeeters are as big as geese!”

“Oh, lonesome, windy, grassy place,
Where buffaloes and snakes prevail;
The first with dreadful-looking face,
The last with dreadful-sounding tail.

“I’d rather live on camel’s rump,
And be a Yankee-doodle beggar,
Than where they never see a stump
And shake to death with fever ‘n’ ager.”

In August, 1849, the inhabitants were startled with the passage and posting of an ordinance declaring that after that time chimneys of brick or stone must be built in all houses. This was regarded by many of the villagers as an unwarranted usurpation of power, and they put forth the opinion that they could build fires under their beds if they wished, or burn down their shanties without the consent of an upstart village council. But the war on the resolution of the "upstart council," as the village board of trustees was sarcastically named, soon came to an end, and all new houses were built with chimneys.

No election was held for village officers in the spring of 1850. The necessity for one had been entirely overlooked. This omission was the butt of numberless gibes by the press of the Northwest.

The village officers elected for 1848, and at subsequent meetings until the city was incorporated, were as follows:

Presidents.—George McWilliams, 1848; J. Bannister, 1849; Isaac Brown, 1851; D. R. Curran, 1852.

Trustees.—John C. Lewis, John Bannister, Isaac Brown and J. J. Driggs, 1848; A. D. Bonesteel, M. L. Noble, Isaac Brown and George Williams, 1849; Quartus M. Olcott, C. J. Goss, M. L. Noble, E. Perkins, M. C. Darling and David R. Curran, 1851; W. A. Dewey, F. D. McCarty, E. H. Galloway, G. F. Brownson, J. B. Wilbor and J. Q. Griffith, 1852.

Treasurers.—Isaac Brown, 1848, resigned March 11, and Selim Newton, appointed his successor; William Farnsworth, 1849; John Bonnell, 1851; Horace W. Newton, 1852.

Clerks.—A. L. Williams, 1848; O. S. Wright, 1849–51, resigned July 29 of that year, and A. W. Paine was appointed in his stead; A. H. Boardman, 1852.

Constables.—Z. L. Chapman, 1848–49; Charles McCarty, 1851; N. C. King, 1852.

CITY OF FOND DU LAC INCORPORATED.

The village of Fond du Lac was incorporated as a city in April, 1852. The charter, previously passed by the Legislature, established the boundaries and divided the territory into two wards, as it had been before. In 1869, a strip of land forty rods wide was added on the west and south sides of the city, and eighty rods on the east side, except on the northeast corner, which left Luco outside of the city.

The description of the city now is as follows: All that district of country included in the west half of Section 2 and the west half of the east half of Section 2; all of Section 3; the east half of the east half and the east half of the west half of the east half of Section 4; the east half of the east half and the east half of the west half of the east half of Section 9; all of Section 10; the west half of Section 11; the west half of the east half of Section 11; the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of Section 11; all of Sections 14 and 15; the east half of the east half and the east half of the west half of the east half of Section 16; the north half of the north half of the northeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of Section 21; the north half of the north half of the north half of Section 22; and the north half of the north half of the north half of Section 23, in Town 15 north, of Range 17 east, in the Menasha land district.

When first incorporated as a city, there were two wards, called the North and South Wards, as the village had been divided when incorporated, which form continued for a year, when the two wards were made three. In 1854, the city was re-districted, and five wards were erected. These five wards remained intact until the spring of 1875, when they were erected into eight wards, the present number. The city is governed by a Common Council, consisting of the Mayor and three Aldermen from each ward, only two of whom can vote in Council meetings. Aldermen are elected one at a time in each ward, and hold office three years, but they are entitled to no vote the first year after election. The other officers are a Comptroller, whose salary is $300 per year; a City Attorney, whose salary is $550 per year, both elected by the Council; a City Treasurer, whose salary is $800, who is elected by popular ballot every spring; a City Clerk, elected annually by the Council, whose salary is now $600 per annum, though it has been higher; a Superintendent of Schools, elected by the Board of Education, whose salary is $500 per annum; a Chief of Police, elected by the Council, whose salary is $600 per annum; a Chief Fire Marshal, elected by the Council, whose salary is $250 per annum; a City Surveyor, elected by the Council, whose salary is $2 per day for actual service; a Sidewalk Superintendent, who is appointed by the Council, whose salary is $450 per year, and a Board of Education, consisting of one Commissioner from each ward, elected annually by the Council. By an amendment of February 9, 1880, the Board of Health was abolished, and one Health Officer is now appointed by the Council for one year, in its place. The same amendment gave the City Council power to appoint a Poor Commissioner, a Purchasing Agent and a Sealer of Weights and Measures.

The city has Constables and Justices of the Peace the same as any town, but no municipal or Police Judge. There have been, since 1877, three Justices of the Peace elected at large. They have jurisdiction over all the minor criminal cases brought before them by the police, and hold office two years.

All policemen are appointed by the Council. Their pay is $35 per month, with no fees for serving papers of any kind. The city now has only five policemen besides the Chief, but there is an agitation in favor of increasing this number.

The Board of Public Works was abolished by an amendment to the charter, and, by another amendment, which took effect in 1879, three Assessors are now elected at large, instead of one from each ward.

In 1879, the entire city charter was revised by a committee appointed by the Council, but, when it had been passed by the Legislature, it was discovered that the city had no Second Ward—at least none in the charter. This was rectified by the Legislature of 1880.

At the beginning of 1880, each Alderman was made a Poor Commissioner, but the experiment proved so disastrously burdensome in a financial sense, that a special act was passed, as before noted, to provide for the election of a Poor Commissioner and a Purchasing Agent.

CITY OFFICERS, 1852—1879.

Mayors.—M. C. Darling, 1852; George McWilliams, 1853; Isaac Brown, 1854; M. C. Darling, 1855; D. E. Hoskins, 1856; Isaac S. Sherwood, 1857; John Bannister, 1858; John Potter, 1859; E. H. Galloway, 1860; J. M. Taylor, 1861; A. D. Bonesteel, 1862-63; J. M. Taylor, 1864-65; James Sawyer, 1866; W. H. Hiner, 1867; C. J. L. Meyer, 1868; John Nichols, 1869; T. J. Patchin, 1870; E. N. Foster, 1871-72; Alexander McDonald, 1873; H. H. Dodd, 1874; G. W. Lusk, 1875-76; C. A. Galloway, 1877; Orin Hatch, 1878; S. S. Bowers, 1879.

Treasurers.—J. M. Taylor, 1852; E. H. Galloway, 1853-54; William A. Dewey, 1855; John Petit, 1856-57; C. L. Pierce, 1858; T. S. Henry, 1859; R. Ebert, 1860-61-62; Louis Rupp, 1863; R. Ebert, 1864; J. H. Clum, 1865-66-67; R. Ebert, 1868-69; Edward Colman, 1870-71; John S. Burrows, 1872-73; J. C. Perry, 1874-75; John Spence, 1876-77; Byron Town, 1878; J. C. Pierron, 1879.

Supervisors.—E. H. Galloway and W. H. Hiner, 1852; John Nichols and Jared Chapel, 1853; Isaac Brown, J. M. Taylor and John Peacock, 1854; Henry Conklin, D. E. Hoskins, J. M. Taylor, G. W. Sexmith and E. Delany, 1855; Henry Conklin, A. Carswell, J. M. Taylor, T. S. Henry and Edmund Delany, 1856; Keyes A. Darlug, W. D. Conklin, C. A. Rider, George Williams and E. Delany, 1857; E. A. Brown, E. S. Bragg, J. M. Taylor, John Maginnis, and C. N. Parker, 1858; J. H. Hayford, E. S. Bragg, T. W. Dee, George Williams and C. R. Harrison, 1859; E. Beeson, E. S. Bragg, G. W. Sawyer, R. A. Baker and C. R. Harrison, 1860; W. D. Sherwood, E. S. Bragg, B. F. Moore, R. A. Baker and M. Lockwood, 1861; John Potter, J. Mathews, John Bonnell, R. A. Baker and James Sawyer, 1862; K. A. Darling, J. Mathews, H. A. Francis, W. M. Phelan and J. Sawyer, 1863; C. McLean, L. Rupp, P. L. Morse, James Conneughty and C. R. Harrison, 1864; A. B. Taylor, L. Rupp, A. C. Everest, C. E. Crane and James Sawyer, 1865; J. W. Valentine, E. W. Davis, W. C. Hamilton, S. A. Chase and Charles Lucia, 1866; E. R. Ferris, John Mathews, A. B. Taylor, S. A. Chase and John Killups, 1867; W. Koehne, E. W. Davis, A. P. Merriman, L.

Canfield and E. M. McGraw, 1868; N. C. Giffin, C. C. L. Webster, D. W. C. Prest, J. Fitzgerald and L. Graves, 1869; H. Shattuck, C. L. Alling, H. P. Brown, W. Reuping and U. D. Mihills, 1870; William Koehne, John Boyd, H. P. Brown, S. A. Chase and O. C. Bissell, 1871 (November 13, C. L. Alling elected to fill vacancy occasioned by the absence of John Boyd); William Koehne, C. F. Kalk, S. W. Edson, C. L. Encking and Nathan Parker, 1872; L. R. Lewis, C. F. Kalk, M. W. Simmons, C. A. Galloway and Nathan Parker, 1873; T. F. Mayham, C. L. Alling, M. W. Simmons, S. A. Chase and John W. Gill, 1874; J. E. M. Gaertner, C. L. Alling, John Spence, C. L. Encking, O. C. Bissell, Leroy Graves, A. Haberman and Orin Hatch, 1875; S. S. Bowers, Byron Town, J. C. Lowell, S. A. Chase, O. C. Bissell, Leroy Graves, David Chamberlain and A. G. Little, 1876; John Musgat, C. Serwe, B. F. Moore, C. H. De Groat, J. T. Fontana, J. M. Crippen, John Gallagher and A. T. Little, 1877; F. B. Hoskins, of the First, Joseph Radford, of the Second, B. F. Moore, of the Third, A. H. Bruett, of the Fourth, O. C. Bissell of the Fifth, George Hunter, of the Sixth, William Ladewig, of the Seventh, and Martin Kaeding, of the Eighth Ward, 1878; T. F. Mayham, of the First, C. L. Alling, of the Second, A. B. Taylor, of the Third, A. H. Bruett, of the Fourth, O. C. Bissell, of the Fifth, B. F. Sweet, of the Sixth, D. Shaefer, of the Seventh, and Martin Kaeding, of the Eighth Ward, 1879.

Assessors.—C. J. Goos and John H. Worden, 1852; J. M. Taylor and John Case, 1853; Leonard Arnold, J. M. Taylor and J. L. Henry, 1854; Charles Chandler, A. S. Gregory, John Bonnell, C. J. Goss and W. C. Little, 1855; Charles Chandler, W. T. Gibson and William Little, 1856; Isaac Brown, Q. M. Oleott, G. W. Sawyer, George Williams and W. C. Little, 1857; Charles Chandler, John B. Wilbor, Isaac Tompkins, John L. Henry and E. Delaney, 1858; E. R. Ferris, J. B. Wilbor, C. C. P. Gould, John L. Henry and W. C. Little, 1859; Isaac Brown, John Mathews, C. M. Tompkins, C. D. Gromme and E. Delany, 1860; Isaac Brown, John Mathews, William T. Gibson, William M. Phelan and W. A. Foster, 1861; Isaac Brown, J. B. Wilbor, W. T. Gibson, W. M. Phelan and W. A. Foster, 1862; Isaac Brown, E. W. Davis, C. C. P. Gould, C. Serwe and James Sawyer, 1863; E. Delany, C. D. Gromme, C. A. Rider, E. W. Davis, and E. Beeson, 1864; Edward Beeson, E. W. Davis, Stephen Hawkins, George Williams and Edward Beaver, 1865; David Babcock, E. W. Davis, A. C. Everest, George Williams and T. T. Miner, 1866; D. W. Smith, John Mathews, C. A. Rider, George Williams and E. Beaver, 1867; W. M. Phelan, 1868-69; Harvey Durand, John Mathews, D. Chamberlain, W. M. Phelan and E. L. Maloney, 1870; Harvey Durand, E. W. Davis, D. Chamberlain, E. Delany and E. L. Maloney, 1871; H. Durand, C. L. Alling, D. Chamberlain, W. M. Phelan and E. L. Maloney, 1872; Harvey Durand, E. W. Davis, D. Chamberlain, W. M. Phelan and E. L. Maloney, 1873; Harvey Durand, J. B. Wilbor, David Chamberlain, W. M. Phelan and E. L. Maloney, 1874; Charles Chandler, C. F. Kalk, N. L. Bullis, W. M. Phelan, E. L. Maloney, John D. Coon, A. Hammond and Charles Olmsted, 1875; Charles Chandler, C. F. Kalk, N. L. Bullis, W. M. Phelan, E. L. Maloney, N. N. Bissonnette, Arthur Hammond and H. Stoldt, 1876; Charles Chandler, C. F. Kalk, N. L. Bullis, W. M. Phelan, P. McMonagle, J. D. Coon, C. R. Young and H. Stoldt, 1877; Charles Chandler, James T. Greene, N. L. Bullis, W. M. Phelan, Pat. McMonagle, J. D. Coon, C. R. Young and H. Stoldt, 1878; W. M. Phelan, N. L. Bullis, and E. L. Maloney, 1879.

Altermen.—1852—E. H. Galloway, W. H. Hiner, G. F. Brownson, Isaac Tompkins and John C. Lewis. 1853—John Nichols, Kasson Freeman, Josiah Tryon, Jared Chapel, Morgan L. Noble and R. A. Baker. 1854—Isaac Brown, John Nichols, Isaac Tompkins, J. M. Taylor, William B. Brand and A. G. Butler. 1855—Henry Conklin, Z. Rice and A. Raymond, of the First Ward; D. E. Hoskins, James Ewen and Peter Rupp, of the Second; J. M. Taylor, Jason Wilkins and Josiah Tryon, of the Third; G. W. Sexmith, John Case and A. White, of the Fourth, and E. Delany, L. Canfield and William M. Phelan, of the Fifth. 1856—Henry Conklin, J. W. Valentine and D. W. Smith, of the First Ward; John B. Wilbor, Allen Carswell and Peter Rupp, of the Second; J. M. Taylor, Carlos A. Rider and Isaac Tompkins, of the Third; Thomas S. Henry, E. H. Jones and Hiram Pitcher, of the Fourth, and Edmund

Delany, C. N. Parker and William M. Phelan, of the Fifth. 1857—Keyes A. Darling, Francis D. McCarty and Thomas H. Green, of the First; William D. Conklin, Lewis Rupp and Joseph Lawler, of the Second; C. A. Rider, Thomas W. Dee and R. N. Purdy, of the Third; G. Williams, C. N. Snell and D. Pitcher, of the Fourth, and Edmund Delany, C. N. Parker and T. T. Miner, of the Fifth. 1858—E. A. Brown, F. D. McCarty and A. W. Rider, of the First; E. S. Bragg, John Petit and A. J. Reed, of the Second; J. M. Taylor, E. W. Drury and G. W. Sawyer, of the Third; John Maginnis, Riley Shepard, of the Fourth, and C. N. Parker, C. R. Harrison and James Sawyer, of the Fifth. 1859—J. H. Hayford, J. W. Valentine and Lathrop Ellis, of the First; E. S. Bragg, S. E. Lefferts and John Mathews, of the Second; Thomas W. Dee, A. C. Everest and R. L. Morris, of the Third; George Williams, John Case and C. D. Gromme, of the Fourth, and C. R. Harrison, W. C. Little and S. G. Ogden, of the Fifth. 1860—Edward Beeson, Joseph Olmsted and T. Roach, of the First Ward; E. S. Bragg, A. Carswell and C. L. Alling, of the Second; G. W. Sawyer, N. Carroll and D. A. Raymond, of the Third; R. A. Baker, James Whitton and Martin Curran, of the Fourth, and C. R. Harrison, J. B. Johnson and L. Canfield, of the Fifth. 1861—W. D. Sherwood, H. P. Olds and A. D. Ward, of the First Ward; E. S. Bragg, A. Carswell and Peter Rupp, of the Second; B. F. Moore, John McKibben and D. C. Lepper, of the Third; R. A. Baker, James Conneughty and Christopher Serwe, of the Fourth, and Monson Lockwood, James Sawyer, and H. S. Gilbert, of the Fifth. 1862—John Potter, A. B. Taylor and James W. Valentine, of the First Ward; John Mathews, W. D. Conklin and John Peacock, of the Second; John Bonnell, Caspar Buechner and Ira McChain, of the Third; R. A. Baker, James Conneughty and William Dougherty, of the Fourth, and James Sawyer, Daniel Roberts and George Hunter, of the Fifth. 1863—K. A. Darling, L. F. Stowe and Thomas Gibson, of the First Ward; John Mathews, S. A. Dudley and A. L. Crocker, of the Second; H. A. Francis, P. L. Morse and J. R. Cole, of the Third; William M. Phelan, I. S. Tallmadge and W. Dougherty, of the Fourth, and James Sawyer, George Hunter and M. Lockwood, of the Fifth. 1864—Campbell McLean, E. B. Ingram and H. Courtney, of the First Ward; Louis Rupp, Robert Flint and S. B. Amory, of the Second; P. L. Morse, A. C. Everest and G. W. Sawyer, of the Third; J. Conneughty, Anthony Grisi and John Sewell, of the Fourth, and C. R. Harrison, John Sawyer and Daniel Roberts, of the Fifth. 1865—A. B. Taylor, James W. Valentine and Charles F. Kalk, of the First Ward; Louis Rupp, Samuel B. Amory and I. S. Sherwood, of the Second; A. C. Everest, W. C. Hamilton and J. R. Deland, of the Third; C. E. Crane, G. F. Brownson and Peter Servatius, of the Fourth, and John Sawyer, W. H. Hiner and L. Beaudreau, of the Fifth. 1866—James W. Valentine, Henry Shattuck and A. D. Ward, of the First Ward; E. W. Davis, C. Serwe and J. W. Cunny, of the Second; W. C. Hamilton, A. B. Taylor and Nathan Carroll, of the Third; S. A. Chase, W. D. Davis and Charles Lucia, of the Fourth, and Daniel Roberts, John B. Killips and W. H. Hiner, of the Fifth. 1867—E. R. Ferris, L. Holmes and Charles Chandler, of the First Ward; John Boyd, John Mathews and C. Serwe, of the Second; A. B. Taylor, C. J. L. Meyer and J. R. Smith, of the Third; S. A. Chase, D. Trotter and A. H. Bruett, of the Fourth, and John B. Killips, O. C. Bissell and T. T. Miner, of the Fifth. 1868—W. Koelne, L. Holmes and W. Shattuck, of the First Ward; E. W. Davis, J. Mathews and C. Serwe, of the Second; A. P. Merriman, D. W. C. Priest and C. Branshaw, of the Third; L. Canfield, P. Servatius and C. Lucia, of the Fourth, and E. M. McGraw, C. Pierron and George Hunter, of the Fifth. May 11, 1868, L. Canfield, of the Fourth Ward, resigned, and A. J. McDonald was elected to fill the vacancy. 1869—N. C. Giffin, W. Koelne and J. S. Youmans, of the First Ward; C. C. L. Webster, M. Curran and F. Sander, of the Second; D. W. C. Priest, C. Buechner and W. Bensil, of the Third; J. W. Fitzgerald, W. Graves and J. Hebert, of the Fourth, and L. Graves, L. Beaudreau and J. Gill, of the Fifth. 1870—H. Shattuck, Byron Town and James G. Miller, of the First Ward; C. L. Alling, Paul Hauser and E. N. Foster, of the Second; H. P. Brown, J. C. Wedge and George Kingsbury, of the Third; W. Rueping, A. Stevely and Louis Pelletier, of the Fourth, and U. D. Mihills, A. J. Spear and Nathan Parker, of the Fifth. 1871—William

Koehne, L. R. Lewis and E. B. Ingram, of the First Ward; E. W. Davis, George C. Wright and John Waters, of the Second; H. P. Brown, S. W. Edson and Thomas Bryant, of the Third; Seth A. Chase, Anthony Servatius and Demas Trotier, of the Fourth, and O. C. Bissell, L. Coney and Judson Phelps, of the Fifth. E. B. Ingram failing to qualify, Dr. T. F. Mayham was elected his successor: February 12, 1872, John Bullis elected from Third Ward vice Thomas Bryant, resigned. 1872—William Koehne, L. R. Lewis and C. B. Bartlett, of the First Ward; C. F. Kalk, J. Waters and C. Serwe, of the Second; S. W. Edson, C. W. Kaler and John Spence, of the Third; C. L. Encking, J. E. Richardson and James Dillon, of the Fourth, and J. C. Pierron, L. Coney and J. Phelps, of the Fifth. 1873—L. R. Lewis, J. C. Perry and E. H. Burnton, of the First Ward; C. F. Kalk, Joseph Radford and Joseph Kaiser, of the Second; S. W. Edson, Henry Hastings and C. W. Kaler, of the Third; C. A. Galloway, James Dillon and Charles Wilson, of the Fourth, and Nathan Parker, W. H. Hiner and L. Coney, of the Fifth. January 12, 1874, W. H. Gilligan elected an Alderman from the First Ward, vice W. H. Hiner, resigned. 1874—T. F. Mayham, T. S. Nowell and Phillip Ehrhart, of the First Ward; C. L. Alling, James Harlan and Joseph Radford, of the Second; M. W. Simmons, Henry Hastings and J. B. Kennard, of the Third; S. A. Chase, James McTavy and E. Panger, of the Fourth, and John W. Gill, J. C. Pierron and John Dana, of the Fifth. 1875—Michael O'Connell and John Olmsted, of the First Ward; C. L. Alling, James Gaynor and S. Eudemiller, of the Second; J. S. Burrows, Jacob Kunze and W. A. Griffith, of the Third; C. L. Encking, M. Mangan and Lockwood Canfield, of the Fourth; O. C. Bissell, James Whitton and Connor Haley, of the Fifth; Leroy Graves, Charles Wilson and David Carrier, of the Sixth; A. Haberman, C. Cahill and B. Mulloy, of the Seventh, and Orin Hatch, Joseph Wurzburger and Martin McDonough, of the Eighth. C. H. Benton elected from the Second Ward, vice C. L. Alling, resigned, May 31, 1875. 1876—S. S. Bowers, Jacob Hirsch and Martin Franey, of the First Ward; Byron Town, John Heath and William Connell, of the Second; J. C. Lowell, Jacob Kunze and D. Y. Sabin, of the Third; Michael Mangan, John Crow and Henry Walliehs, of the Fourth; O. C. Bissell, Samuel Hotaling and Anthony Briester, of the Fifth; Leroy Graves, J. C. Beaudreau and N. Davis, of the Sixth; David Chamberlain, W. Ladewig and William Luling, of the Seventh, and A. T. Little, M. Kaeding and L. Bond, of the Eighth. May 1, 1876, C. E. Scales elected from the Third Ward, vice C. Y. Sabin, resigned. 1877—John Musgat, H. Courtney and John Hirsch, of the First Ward; C. Serwe, Joseph Radford and T. S. Weeks, of the Second; R. M. Lewis, S. P. Morse and E. F. Dodge, of the Third; A. Servatius, James Dillon and Thomas J. Vaughn, of the Fourth; William Evans, John Conway and P. Briester, of the Fifth; N. Davis, F. Grill and M. Prefontaine, of the Sixth; John Gallagher, William Ladewig and D. Schaffer, of the Seventh, and A. T. Little, M. Kaeding and L. Bond, of the Eighth. May 7, R. M. Lewis, of the Third Ward, resigned; E. N. Korner elected to the vacancy. 1878—F. B. Hoskins, of the First Ward; John Heath, of the Second; E. D. Harris, of the Third; A. H. Bruett, of the Fourth; O. C. Bissell, of the Fifth; F. H. Rondo, of the Sixth; Nathan Carroll, of the Seventh, and H. W. Newton, of the Eighth. 1879—T. F. Mayham, of the First Ward; C. S. Henry, of the Second; A. B. Taylor, of the Third; William Schwinnen, of the Fourth; I. Alexander, of the Fifth; B. E. Sweet, of the Sixth; John Gallagher, of the Seventh, and H. G. Desombre, of the Eighth.

Clerks.—W. A. Dewey, 1852; G. W. Sawyer, 1853-54; Edwin A. Brown, 1855; S. D. Stanchfield 1856-57; A. H. Boardman, 1857-59; A. Handt, 1860-61; A. H. Boardman, 1862-63; Edward Bissell, 1864; G. P. Knowles, 1865; L. Q. Oleott, 1866—resigned January 30, 1868, until when he was repeatedly elected, and J. T. Conklin appointed Clerk, pro tem, and served until elected for the ensuing term. G. F. Brownson, 1869; E. Delany, Jr., 1870-79.

Police Justices.—Robert F. Winslow, 1857; Josiah Barnett, 1858; Edward Bissell, 1867; J. J. Driggs, 1869.

City Comptrollers.—George P. Knowles, 1867-68; C. L. Encking, 1869-70; William C. Ogden, 1871; S. M. Smead, 1872; George H. Francis, 1873; George Perkins, 1874; W. F. Boland, 1875-76; H. G. Leonard, 1877-78; James T. Greene, 1879.

City Attorneys.—Jared Chapel, 1853; D. E. Wood, 1855; Edward S. Bragg, 1856; I. S. Tallmadge, 1856, also, Gen. Bragg having resigned May 12, of that year; E. S. Bragg specially retained during the year 1858; Isaac S. Tallmadge, 1860-63; Campbell McLean, 1864; N. C. Giffin, 1865-67; H. F. Rose, 1868-69; N. C. Giffin, 1870-71; Robert Flint, 1872; J. W. Bass, 1873; F. O. Thorp, 1874; N. S. Gilson, 1875; D. W. C. Priest, 1876; W. H. Hurley, 1877; F. F. Duffly, 1878-79.

City Surveyors.—F. P. Mackeleian, 1853; L. Ellis, 1853-55; W. T. Coneys, 1857-59; L. Ellis, 1862; W. T. Coneys, 1861; Lathrop Ellis, 1862; John V. De Vry, 1863-65; N. Boardman, 1866; J. V. De Vry, 1867; N. Boardman, 1868; H. W. Newton, 1870-71; J. V. De Vry, elected June 26, 1871-72; H. W. Newton, 1873; N. Boardman, 1874; H. W. Newton, 1875-76; N. Boardman, 1877-78; H. W. Newton, 1879.

Harbor Masters.—John L. Henry, 1859; C. E. Crane, 1862; Thomas Moore, 1864; T. A. Johnston, 1867-68; E. Beaver, 1869-70; no record for 1871 or subsequently, until 1875, when the appointment of L. C. Bissell is quoted; C. Johnston, 1876; Moses Robedeau, 1877; Thomas Moore, 1878-79.

School Commissioners.—George W. Weikert, J. W. Valentine, E. L. Griffin, James Sawyer, M. D. Moore, E. S. Bragg, D. A. Raymond, G. F. Brownson, U. D. Mihills and C. A. Gibson, 1867. The following Board of Education was appointed in 1868: W. W. Clark and A. Raymond, of the First Ward; Robert Flint and C. F. Kalk, of the Second; T. S. Wright and John Maginnis, of the Third; William W. Phelan and G. F. Brownson, of the Fourth, and A. J. Spear and O. Graves, of the Fifth, 1868. A. Raymond, of the First Ward; S. Eudemiller, of the Second; Dr. Lilly, of the Third; W. Rueping, of the Fourth, and M. Rapp, of the Fifth, 1869. J. H. Sisson, of the First; W. J. Hart, of the Second; David Chamberlain, of the Third; Alexander White, for term, and A. H. Bruett, to fill vacancy, in the Fourth, and John Killhps, of the Fifth, 1870. V. W. Seeley, of the First; E. L. Griffin of the Second; W. C. Hamilton, of the Third; O. C. Steinberg, of the Fourth, and J. A. Rappe, of the Fifth, 1871. T. F. Mayham, of the First; P. H. Gallagher, of the Second; D. R. Curran, of the Third; Alexander White, of the Fourth, and John W. Gill, of the Fifth, 1872. December 30, Thomas Riley elected from Second Ward, vice P. H. Gallagher, resigned. F. Dahlem, of the First; Paul Hauser, of the Second; W. C. Hamilton, of the Third; O. C. Steinberg, of the Fourth, and J. A. Rappe, of the Fifth, 1873. F. B. Hoskins, of the First; G. W. Lusk, of the Second; D. R. Curran, of the Third; Rudolph Ebert, of the Fourth, and E. L. Maloney, of the Fifth, 1874. R. L. Morris, of the First; N. C. Giffin, of the Second; W. C. Hamilton, of the Third; W. H. Hurley, of the Fourth; G. N. Mihills, of the Fifth; J. D. Coon, of the Sixth; J. D. Pitcher, of the Sixth, one year; Henry Bloedel, of the Seventh; M. W. Simmons, of the Seventh, one year; Henry Stoldt, of the Eighth, and E. B. Ingram, one year, also of the Eighth, 1875. W. McDermott, elected from the Second, vice Geo. W. Lusk, Mayor elect, who resigned May 3, 1875; C. B. Bartlett, elected from the Eighth, vice Ingram, who failed to qualify, May 24, 1875. F. B. Hoskins, of the First; M. D. Moore, of the Second; H. P. Brown, of the Third; M. McKenna, of the Fourth; E. L. Maloney, of the Fifth; J. M. Crippen, of the Sixth; M. W. Simmons, of the Seventh, and C. B. Bartlett, of the Eighth, 1876. May 7, 1877, M. McKenna, of the Fourth, resigned. John H. Gores appointed to the vacancy. April 19, 1878, on motion of Ald. Dodge, it was ordered that the members of the Board holding office from the odd-numbered wards continue to hold their positions for the ensuing year. T. F. Mayham, George P. Knowles, J. W. Hiner and James Nary, 1879.

Board of Public Works.—W. C. Hamilton, E. W. Davis and L. Holmes, 1867; W. W. Clark, John Bonnell and W. Rueping, 1868; L. Graves, W. Koehne and C. C. L. Webster, 1869; C. J. Alling, A. J. Spear and H. Shattuck, 1870; James Ewen, William Koehne and A. Servatius, 1871; William Koehne, William Bensil and Judson Phelps, 1872; W. Parker,

Alex^r McDonald

Alexander Hastings and L. R. Lewis, 1873; J. L. D. Eyesheimer, Jacob Frey and F. D. Scott, 1874. May 4, Peter Rupp was elected a member of the Board of Public Works, vice Jacob Frey, resigned. None were appointed in 1875, and the Board was abolished in 1876.

Board of Health.—A. Raymond, W. W. Clark and D. Babcock, of the First, W. Wiley, John Mathews and E. W. Davis, of the Second, H. M. Lilly, E. Perkins and S. W. Edson, of the Third, E. Delaney, W. M. Phelan and O. Morley, of the Fourth, and C. A. Gibson, E. M. McGraw and G. Q. Campbell, of the Fifth Ward, in 1867; L. F. Stowe, of the First, J. Peacock, of the Second, G. W. Sawyer, of the Third, J. Serwe, of the Fourth, and Dr. Gibson of the Fifth Ward, 1868; D. W. Smith, of the First, E. L. Griffin, of the Second, H. Meibucher, of the Third, P. J. Wagner, of the Fourth, and H. Reeves, of the Fifth Ward, 1869; George W. Swift, of the First, Dr. W. Wiley, of the Second, Dr. H. M. Lilly, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, and Henry Reeves, of the Fifth Ward, 1870; Dr. L. West, of the First, Dr. W. Wiley, of the Second, Dr. E. F. Dodge, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, and E. Beaver, of the Fifth Ward, 1871. November 13, Dr. E. C. Gray elected vice Dr. L. West, resigned. Dr. T. F. Mayham, of the First, Dr. W. Wiley, of the Second, Dr. E. F. Dodge, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, and Dr. L. C. Fartier, of the Fifth Ward, 1872; Dr. E. C. Gray, of the First, Dr. W. Wiley, of the Second, Dr. E. F. Dodge, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, and H. D. Danks, of the Fifth Ward, 1873; Dr. T. F. Mayham, of the First, Dr. W. Wiley, of the Second, Dr. D. A. Raymond, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, and Dr. Anton Krembs, of the Fifth Ward, 1874; L. F. Stowe of the First, W. Wiley, of the Second, D. B. Wyatt, of the Third, E. Delaney, of the Fourth, W. H. Gilligan, of the Fifth, C. Johnson, of the Sixth, O. S. Leonard, of the Seventh, and John Kehl, of the Eighth Ward, 1875; Dr. T. F. Mayham, of the First, Dr. E. L. Griffin, of the Second, Dr. D. B. Wyatt, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, W. H. Hiner, of the Fifth, C. Lucia, of the Sixth, O. S. Leonard, of the Seventh, and John Kehl, of the Eighth Ward, 1876. July 20, James Whitton, elected from the Fifth vice W. H. Hiner, resigned. Dr. T. F. Mayham, of the First, Dr. W. Wiley, of the Second, James Ewen of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, James Whitton of the Fifth, Camille Lucia, of the Sixth, O. S. Leonard, of the Seventh, and F. Bussewitz, of the Eighth Ward, 1877; Dr. T. F. Mayham, of the First, Dr. J. H. McNeel, of the Second, Dr. D. B. Wyatt, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, James Whitton, of the Fifth, Peter Wilbert, of the Sixth, H. Gundlach, of the Seventh, and F. Bussewitz, of the Eighth Ward, 1878; M. Mangan, of the First, Dr. E. L. Griffin, of the Second, Dr. D. B. Wyatt, of the Third, Dr. E. Delaney, of the Fourth, P. J. Breister, of the Fifth, A. Babedeau, of the Sixth, William Deheart, of the Seventh, and F. Bussewitz, of the Eighth Ward, 1879.

Justices of the Peace.—George Williams, Morgan L. Noble, Isaac Brown and C. A. Rider, 1852; J. J. Driggs and G. W. Sexmith, 1853; J. J. Driggs, L. Hazen, W. J. Wallace and George Williams, 1854; J. J. Driggs, Joseph Stowe, Parley Giltner, C. A. Rider, A. F. Peabody, C. O. Hurd and E. Delany, 1855; Josiah Barnett, J. Y. Westervelt, Royal Buck, George Williams and T. T. Miner, 1856; John J. Driggs, Louis Goldstucker, C. A. Rider, C. O. Hurd and Edmund Delany, 1857; George Williams, 1858; J. J. Driggs, W. C. Kellogg, E. Bissell, B. T. Midgley and E. Delany, 1859; J. J. Driggs, W. C. Kellogg, Edward Bissell, B. T. Midgley and E. Delany, 1863; J. J. Driggs, L. Goldstucker, E. Bissell, George Williams and E. Beaver, 1867; J. J. Driggs, L. Goldstucker, E. Bissell, George Williams and E. Beaver, 1869; S. L. Brasted, 1870; V. W. Seclay, L. Goldstucker, John Bullis and Frank Rice, 1872; E. Delany and F. G. Rice, 1873; J. J. Driggs, W. D. Conklin, W. E. Angell, Richard Dix and B. S. Phelps, 1874; A. W. Reader, W. D. Conklin; Edward Bissell, L. Goldstucker, H. D. Danks, Robert Potter, Martin Gill and J. V. De Vry, 1875; George Pier, H. E. Conmitt and L. R. Lewis, 1876; L. Goldstucker, H. B. Eastman and S. L. Brasted, 1877-79.

Constables.—W. H. Yaw and N. C. King, 1852; Frank Gerland and C. C. McCarty, 1853; George Croft, Z. L. Chapman and Robert Atkinson, 1854; Robert B. Holmes, D. Sickles, E. De Land, Samuel Fowler and John N. Curtis, 1855; Joseph Ohmsted, David Sickles, J. H. Fancher, Samuel Fowler and W. Allen, 1856; Hiram Lindsley, David Sickles, John Shannon, W. Alseaver and W. H. Bruce, 1857; Hiram Lindsley, David Sickles, H. M. Snow, John Dobyns and T. A. Johnson, 1858; H. Lindsley, D. Sickles, L. Shannon, John Dobyns and R. Rawlings, 1859; George Barnett, M. O'Halloran, Reuben Lindly, John Dobyns and P. A. Maloney, 1860; William Sealey, M. O'Halloran, Reuben Lindly, John Dobyns and Patrick A. Maloney, 1861; Wm. Sealey, M. O'Halloran, E. H. Harrington, E. T. Midgley and W. R. Allen, 1862; W. Sealey, M. O'Halloran, Eli De Land, Herman Walther and D. W. Wilson, 1863; William Sealey, David Sickles, Eli De Land, P. Hanchy and John Tate, 1864; L. S. Allen, Charles McKinney, Eli De Land, Thomas Dobyns and John Denny, 1865; Charles McKinney, Peter Coffee, Eli De Land, Thomas Dobyns and P. A. Maloney, 1866; C. McKinney, W. W. Howe, Eli De Land, Thomas Dobyns and R. Jewson, 1867; C. McKinney, W. Howe, E. De Land, T. Dobyns and George Stevens, 1868; William Sealey, W. W. Howe, E. De Land, Thomas Dobyns and George Stevens, 1869; B. T. Miller, W. W. Howe, Eli De Land, Thomas Dobyns and George Stevens, 1870; Michael Roach, W. W. Howe, E. De Land, Thomas Dobyns and Fred Ellsworth, 1872; George A. Temple, 1873; B. T. Miller, W. W. Howe, Eli De Land, John Flood and Joseph Joubert, 1874; John G. Baizier, W. W. Howe, Warren Green, Anton Bach, A. G. Purdy, Edward Larow, Eli De Land and A. Raymond, 1876; John C. Kenealy, N. La Mouche and James Coffrin, 1877; none elected in 1878; J. C. Keneally, N. La Mouche and J. Hartnett, 1879.

Sealers of Weights and Measures.—A. B. Taylor, 1865; S. Oberich, 1867-71; John Reinig, 1872. No record for 1873-74. Robert Mentzel, 1875. No incumbent of record 1876. Adolph Mentzel, 1877-78; Luther Holmes, 1879.

Hay and Wood Inspector.—John Bonnell, 1869-70; William Kaler, 1871; H. Bruyere, 1872; L. L. Lowry, 1873. Office abolished January 6, 1873.

Street Superintendents.—A. C. Everest, 1867; J. Bonnell, 1868-69; C. L. Alling, 1870. No record for 1871 or subsequently. The revised charter, adopted in the spring of 1879, provides for a Sidewalk Superintendent, and S. A. Smith was the officer.

Municipal Judges.—E. Bissell, long term; W. D. Conklin, short term, 1871. William D. Conklin, 1873. Office abolished at the expiration of William D. Conklin's term of office.

Marshals.—C. N. Snell, 1852; F. P. Humiston, 1853; John Case, 1854; J. W. Bowen, 1855; Daniel Banks, 1856; Charles Arlen, 1857-58; E. S. Hammond, 1859; B. T. Midgeley, 1860; C. Van Norder, 1861; John Dobyns, 1862-64; Philip Zipp, 1865; Louis Ladoux, 1866. Office abolished.

Chiefs of Police.—James T. Conklin, 1867-68; James O'Connell, 1869; J. N. Welch, 1870-71; James Swineford, 1872-73; Timothy Hardgrove, 1874; G. A. Kretlow, 1875-80.

School Superintendents.—E. Hodges, 1852-55; Robert A. Baker, 1856; George B. Eastman, 1857-59; David E. Wood, 1860; G. B. Eastman, 1861-64; N. C. Griffin, 1865; O. C. Steinberg, 1866-67, and a portion of 1868; G. F. Brownson, balance of 1868; T. S. Wright, 1869-71; V. W. Seeley and A. C. Barry, 1872; V. W. Seeley, 1873; C. N. Hutchins, 1874-80.

CITY OF FOND DU LAC A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO.

A writer in 1854 gives this description of the city of Fond du Lac: "At the charter election, held at the Court House April 6, 1852, Mason C. Darling was elected to the office of Mayor; J. M. Taylor, Treasurer; W. A. Dewey, Clerk; C. N. Snell, Marshal, and E. Hodges, Superintendent of Schools. In 1853, G. McWilliams was elected Mayor; E. H. Galloway, Treasurer; G. W. Sawyer, Clerk; F. P. Humiston, Marshal, and E. Hodges, Superintendent of Schools. In 1854, Isaac Brown was elected Mayor; E. H. Galloway, Treasurer; G. W. Sawyer, Clerk; John Case, Marshal; E. Hodges, Superintendent of Schools.

"The city is situated on the Fond du Lac River, the mouth of which furnishes a convenient harbor for steamboats and other craft traversing the waters of Lake Winnebago. The principal business part of the city is upon the east side of the river, and more than a mile from the Lake. Upon the west side of the stream, is a beautiful grove of sugar maple and other forest trees, in which pleasant retreat are numerous private residences, splendid and tasteful gardens, and one elegant church edifice, erected by the Baptist denomination in 1853. The Rock River Valley Union Railroad, with its depots and machine-shops, is on the west side of the river.

“Surrounding the most populous part of the city are thousands of acres of unbroken prairie, over which freely roam vast herds of cattle and horses, luxuriating and fattening upon the rich prairie grass, and rank clover, which are sufficiently abundant to supply hundreds more of cattle and horses without inducing a scarcity of food. This wide expanse is occasionally dotted with the elegant mansion of the man at ease, but more frequently with the habitations of the humble toilers. Mechanics of small means, who labor in the city, prompted by the desire for a ‘home of their own,’ select locations where lots can be purchased at comparatively low prices, erect dwelling-houses, and thus add inducements to others, and to the value of the surrounding lands. Almost every week witnesses not only numerous buildings erecting upon the principal streets, but new settlements within the bounds of the city.

“This city, being surrounded by one of the most fertile and interesting farming countries in the State, with the peculiar advantages of its location, has required no forced effort to secure its rapid growth. Its natural and easy connection with the ‘pineries’ is, of itself, a mine of wealth. Lumber and all kinds of timber for building can be obtained in the city almost with as little difficulty as in the forest where it grows. The limestone ledge stretches along the whole length of the city, within three miles from which the best of stone may be easily quarried for building, flagging, and for burning lime, and in quantity sufficient to build a second Chinese wall. The great fountain of most delicious water which underlies the whole city, struggles for vent, and pours a grateful stream of health and comfort for as many as will approach it.

“The natural channel for communication through Lake Winnebago and Fox River to the Great Lakes, and through the latter to the Atlantic cities, connected with the inherent wealth of the city, forms a combination of advantages seldom found in one place, and have led far-seeing and sagacious business men to make investments in Fond du Lac, not for purposes of speculation, but for permanent residences and thorough business transactions. And, although the city has not grown with the rapidity which has marked the progress of many Western places, it has been continually increasing with steady pace, in population and enterprise, measuring its business by the legitimate wants of the population: hence, it has never suffered the paralytic influence of re-action from feverish excitements. The prosperity of each year has given its successor momentum, until, with its increased ratio of progress, it is becoming a city of no small importance. Eastern capitalists already manifest their shrewd forecast by purchasing real estate in Fond du Lac. Mechanics of all kinds here find ready employment and high prices for labor. Many of the buildings erected in the early growth of the city were constructed on the principle of securing the greatest amount of room with the least possible expense. The present season [1854] witnesses the erection of noble structures of stone, brick and cement.

“There are at present four school districts in the city. District No. 4 embraces more than half the population of the place. It has a spacious and well-constructed schoolhouse, a library filled with well-selected volumes, a small cabinet of geological specimens, outline maps and other useful apparatus for giving instruction. The yard is enriched and ornamented with shade trees, and has a fountain of water. The school is graded, consisting of a primary, an intermediate, and a higher department. A well-qualified teacher is employed in each about ten months during the year, and in the winter the Principal has an assistant in the higher department. There is no school in this section of the State better adapted to give a thorough English education to the youth of both sexes than this. It gives to all the children of the district the advantages of a school of a high order, and furnishes the surrounding country with some of its most approved and successful teachers. It is truly one of the noblest institutions of this thriving city. The other three districts have hitherto maintained separate schools upon the unclassified plan, but have recently agreed to unite, and establish a school of the first order. When that is accomplished, Fond du Lac may justly be proud of the educational advantages which are afforded to all the children of the city, without regard to wealth or caste. There are in the city about nine hundred children, between the ages of four and twenty years, most of whom attend the public schools a portion of the year. The amount expended for school purposes in 1853 was $2,072.31.

"The Wisconsin Female Seminary was established in the year 1853, by Rev. O. W. Cooley and wife, at the city of Fond du Lac. The object of its founders was to secure to the young ladies who should avail themselves of its advantages, a liberal, finished and Christian education. The institution passed the ordeal of its first term with encouraging success, and has commenced its second term with cheering prospects for the future.

"The church edifices in the city are one Roman Catholic, one Episcopal, two Methodist Episcopal, one Congregational and one Baptist. The Catholic and Congregational have both been enlarged since their erection, but the increase of population has increased their congregations beyond their capacity for accommodation, and larger structures are demanded. The others were more recently erected, and are yet equal to the wants of the worshipers. There is a Free-will Baptist Church, but they have not a house of worship; they occupy the Union Schoolhouse. There are now eight resident clergymen, whose talents and usefulness will compare favorably with their brethren of other cities.

"The Catholic church was organized in 1848, with about thirty members, under the administration of Father Rerhl, who resided at that time in Calumet. But, as their numbers increased, they built a Church edifice, and the congregation was watched over by Father Anthony Godfert, who, after staying three years, was succeeded by Father Louis Dael, who is now [1854] in charge. The church now numbers about two thousand members, though not all residents of the city.

"St. Patrick's Temperance Society was organized on the 17th of March, 1854, with about fifteen members. It now numbers 250, not one of whom has broken the pledge. They hold their meetings the first of each month, when an address is delivered by some one of the members. The Catholics are about erecting a spacious church edifice 130 feet long and 60 feet wide, to be built of stone. They intend to have it completed the present year.

"The first regular missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who preached in Fond du Lac County, was Jesse Halsted, who formed a class in Taycheedah, in 1842. In 1848, Rev. Harvey Bronson organized the M. E. Church in the village of Fond du Lac, with six members. The Presiding Elders to the present time [1854] have been W. H. Sampson, W. Wilcox and W. G. Miller. The Pastors have been H. Bronson, Joseph Lewis, M. L. Noble, H. R. Colman, H. Requa, J. S. Prescott, E. Tucker and E. S. Grumley. There was a second church formed in the North Ward in 1852. The South Ward church now numbers [1854] 138.

"The first Baptist Church of Fond du Lac was instituted May 21, 1845, with eight members. H. Hovey, W. H. Card and S. Cornelius, Jr., have successively been Pastors of the church. Since the settlement of the present Pastor, a commodious and convenient house of worship has been erected through his persevering efforts, at a cost of $3,000. The present number of members [1854] is about seventy.

"The Congregational Church, the largest Protestant church in the city, was organized by Rev. Stephen Peet, July 20, 1845. It consisted at its organization of nine members. In September, 1846, Rev. L. C. Spafford assumed the pastoral charge of the church, and continued in that relation until the autumn of 1852. In 1849, a house of worship was erected, at a cost of $900. When Mr. Spafford left the church, it numbered some seventy-five members. In June, 1853, Rev. Silas Hawley, Jr., of the presbytery of Geneva, N. Y., became Pastor of the church. In the autumn ensuing, such was the increase of the congregation, that a large addition was made to the house of worship. But such has been, and is still [1854], the crowded state of their house, that the members are about to erect one of the largest and finest church edifices in the State. It will accommodate at least 1,000. They have an architect now East to procure the best model. During the brief pastorate of Mr. Hawley, there has been an increase of the members of the church of seventy-five persons.

“St. Paul’s Church of Fond du Lac was organized September, 4, 1849. The number of communicants at that time was four; at the present time [1854], forty-four. The edifice was completed and consecrated July 18, 1852. Rev. Joshua Sweet became Rector of the parish September 4, 1849, and resigned June 24, 1854.

“There are now [1854] in the city of Fond du Lac nine physicians, two dentists, sixteen lawyers, two landscape and portrait painters, three daguerrean artists, two joiner-shops, five carriage factories, five tin-shops, three saddle and harness shops, one tallow chandlery, eight boot and shoe stores, one brewery, four cooper-shops, one billiard-room, three saloons, thirteen groceries where liquors are sold, thirteen grocery and provision stores, one jewelry and music store, one gun and ammunition store, five blacksmith-shops, three livery stables, two cabinet and chair factories, one book-bindery, three bakeries, thirteen dry-goods stores, one leather store, two hat and cap stores, two drug stores, four clothing stores, two tailor-shops, one candy factory, three meat markets, one plow factory, one fanning-mill shop, three bookstores, one music store, two oil and glass stores, one tobacco and cigar factory, one cap factory, two barber-shops, one paint-shop, one water-power saw-mill, one sash, door and blind factory, two steam saw-mills, one steam-power planing machine, six millinery stores, eight hotels, one bank, one bank of exchange and brokerage, twelve lumber merchants, two hardware stores, one jewelry store, and one county jail without an occupant.

“Between the opening of the spring and July 10, 1854, there were erected in the city of Fond du Lac, ninety-seven new buildings. There were between 250 and 300 mechanics employed in the place, besides the common day laborers. The annual sales of several of the leading dry-goods houses average about $30,000 each; the grocery and provision stores, $10,000; clothing stores, $10,000, and hardware, $35,000. The annual sales of each of the tin and stove stores average about $10,000, and of meat markets, $10,000. The amount of lumber sold annually is estimated at over 12,000,000 feet. About 6,000,000 shingles are manufactured and sold each year. The population of the city is estimated at a fraction less than 5,000. Since 1850 [to 1854], the capital and business of the place have increased in a higher ratio than the population, which has at least doubled. In the mean time, the resident lawyers have decreased about forty per cent, and places for the sale of intoxicating drinks, about fifty per cent. These, together with the fact that in the county jail there is not a prisoner, are encouraging tokens that the civilization and morality of the city are improving. There are four daily mails to Fond du Lac, and eight weekly and tri-weekly mails. Since the post office was established in 1838, it has been in charge of John Bannister, M. C. Darling, Thomas Green, J. A. Eastman, Samuel Ryan, Jr., C. W. Tompkins and G. W. Weikert. Its present revenues [1854] are $1,824. There are received at the office weekly, seventy-five mails, and the same number made up, besides the distribution of twenty-five bags of newspapers.”

FOND DU LAC POST OFFICE.

The first post office was opened and kept by Colwert Pier, in the Fond du Lac Company’s log house, before he had a commission and before there was any regular mail or mail carrier. He was the first Postmaster, and received the first mail on the 5th of February, 1838, which was brought by Baptiste Lavigne, a half-blood Frenchman. Thereafter, mail was received and sent once in two weeks, and consisted mostly of papers from the East, and letters which had no envelopes, but were dexterously folded and either sewed with thread or sealed with wax. The revenue of the office did not exceed, during the first year, $1.50. Mr. Pier kept for his neighbors parcels of mail sent from Green Bay, before this time.

The second Postmaster was John Bannister, who kept the office in the same log building. He was made richer by the trust at the rate of $3 per year. He became Postmaster soon after the death of Colwert Pier’s wife in the spring of 1838, and continued to hold the office about a year. In the meantime, a new mail-carrier had succeeded Baptiste Lavigne, whose name was Narcisse Baudoin. He was a swarthy and tireless half-Frenchman, who brought the mail once a week. He never failed, no matter what the condition of the roads or weather.

Mr. Bannister was succeeded by Dr. M. C. Darling, who removed the office from the Company's house to his own house, on the corner of First and Main streets, where Darling's Block now stands. He continued to hold it until a mail contract was secured, when he resigned, and Thomas Green, who was keeping hotel for Dr. Darling, on the corner of Main and First streets, was appointed in 1842.

John A. Eastman, now of Benton Harbor, Mich., succeeded Mr. Green in 1845, and held the office until April, 1849. The post office proper was a small blue desk, furnished by the Government, which could be carried under the arm. Mr. Eastman removed the office to his law office, which stood about half-way between First and Second streets, on the west side of Main.

In April, 1849, Samuel Ryan was appointed by President Taylor to the office to succeed John A. Eastman, being the first Whig Postmaster of Fond du Lac. He moved to a building just north of what is now Baker's Bank, on the east side of Main, near the head of Forest street.

In September, 1850, C. M. Tompkins was appointed Postmaster, and he removed the office to Davis & Tompkins' little law office, between First and Second streets, on the west side of Main. This was by far too small for the business, which was soon after, in 1851, moved to the Lewis House, on the corner of Main and Sheboygan streets, where the Patty House now stands.

In 1852, Franklin Pierce was elected President, and, as Mr. Tompkins did not expect a re-appointment, being a Whig, he resigned in favor of his partner, Alexander Davis, who was a Democrat. This scheme was defeated by Congressman John B. Macy, in the winter of 1852-53, before the inauguration of Pierce, and George W. Weikert was appointed. After a time, the office was removed by him to what is now Fuerstnow's building, on the west side of Main street, two doors below Division.

In May, 1861, J. C. Lewis was appointed Postmaster by President Lincoln, and the office moved to the rear of the wooden building then used by the First National Bank, on the corner of Forest and Main streets, the entrance being on Forest. Mr. Lewis was re-appointed in 1865, but resigned in May, 1866, and James M. Gillet, now deceased, was appointed to succeed him by Andrew Johnson, but was removed in the fall of the same year. Edward S. Bragg, a Democrat, was appointed to succeed Mr. Gillet.

Early in 1867, R. M. Lewis' name was sent to the Senate by the President of the United States; but it was afterward withdrawn, only to be sent in again April 19, 1867. At the second nomination, Mr. Lewis was immediately confirmed. Just before Mr. Lewis' appointment, the office was moved by Mr. Bragg to the Amory Block, corner of Macy and Division streets.

In May, 1869, James Coleman was appointed by President Grant to succeed Mr. Lewis. He moved the office into the present quarters, on the corner of Forest and Macy streets, November 1, 1873. He was succeeded by J. H. Hauser, in March, 1877. About the middle of October, 1879, Mr. Hauser was removed, and, on the 22d of the month, Thomas W. Spence, who now holds the office, took possession.

The present post-office building was erected by W. C. Hamilton in 1873, especially for the purpose for which it is now used. It is a three-story structure of brick, complete in every respect, and of ample proportions.

In July, 1865, a money-order department was established, but its transactions at that time amounted to but very little. Now it is one of the most important branches of the service. In 1838, the Fond du Lac Post Office had a revenue of less than $3 per year, and received and sent mail once in two weeks. Now the revenues are $15,000 per year, and 130 mails are sent and received each week. The number of pieces of mail dropped into the office in 1877 was 1,576 per day; in 1879, the number was 2,617 pieces per day. This is not included in mail matter brought from surrounding offices.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The first step taken to protect the village from fires was in March, 1848, when John Banister and A. L. Ellsworth were appointed Fire Wardens. In May, of the following year, the citizens sent a petition before the Council, or Board of Village Trustees, asking that a suitable fire engine be purchased. The petition was laid on the table with dispatch, and a resolution passed that three Fire Wardens be appointed for the ensuing year. E. W. Davis, W. A. Dewey and C. A. Goss were appointed such officers, and their duties prescribed. They were to "take charge of all fires," and give orders to citizens and bucket companies engaged in fighting flames. But they could not demolish any fence or building at any fire without an order from two of the Village Trustees. This, although not intended as a joke, was bandied about as such. The ridiculous features of the matter were made prominent by the wagging citizens, who declared that if a fire should occur in the night, when the village officers were asleep, or at a time when they were absent from their place of business, everything adjoining the fire must of necessity be allowed to burn, as no consent could be had to demolish such property as might prevent further spreading of the flames.

It was also ordered by the Trustees that any person refusing to obey the Fire Wardens, should be fined $5 and costs, and that a similar fine should be imposed on all persons who neglected to keep open a scuttle-hole in their houses, or provide ladders which would reach the roof.

On the 3d of September, 1849, a meeting of the citizens of the village was held for the purpose of organizing a bucket company, to consist of not less than thirty members. E. W. Davis was chosen Chairman, and J. Hall, Secretary. E. Perkins and J. Hall were appointed a committee to secure pledges of those who were willing "to dip, stand in line and pass it, or throw water." The company was finally organized, and buckets, hooks and ladders were procured by the city. These buckets were of leather, with peculiar bails. The bottoms and seams were stitched with "waxed ends," making a very strong receptacle, which would suffer no injury from harsh or careless handling.

There was an order promulgated, that, in case of fire, any pails or buckets offered for sale could be seized by the bucket company, and, in several instances, G. N. Lyman's store, as well as others, were emptied of their pails in short order. If any were damaged or lost, prompt payment was made to the owner.

The company, which was composed of some of the foremost citizens of the place, had many opportunities to "dip, stand in line and pass it, or throw water." On one occasion, a line was formed from the block on the east side of Main street, between First and Second, to the river. The thermometer was 22° below zero, and, when the buckets contained any water at all at the end of the line next to the fire, it was frozen to either the outside or inside of them. Very little could therefore be done to stay the flames, although a score or more worked until their hands, noses or ears were frozen. This opened the eyes of the inhabitants to the necessity of obtaining a good fire engine as a more effective means of extinguishing fires, and the matter was freely discussed. Discussion seems to have been a favorite pastime of those days, for, during the next two years, nothing else was done in the way of furnishing further protection against destructive fires. Finally, in 1854, the City Council authorized K. A. Darling to go East and purchase a fire engine. At Troy, N. Y., he found and purchased for $2,800 a hand engine, which for that sum was delivered at Fond du Lac in October, 1854. The next month, the organization of a fire company was begun.

Washington Volunteer Company, No. 1.—The first meeting to organize a fire company was held in the rear of Darling, Wright & Co.'s bank, on the corner of Main and First streets, and was attended by K. A. Darling, George W. Sawyer, C. N. Snell, Thomas H. Green, D. W. C. Wright, L. F. Stowe, Edward Farnsworth, C. L. Pierce and C. M. Bowen. They elected K. A. Darling as Foreman; C. N. Snell, First Assistant, and Thomas H. Green, Second Assistant Foreman ; L. F. Stowe, Captain of the Hose Company, and George W. Sawyer, Secretary. They assumed the name of "Washington Volunteer Company, No. 1," and were formally accepted by the Council as such, on the 18th day of December, 1854. John B. Wilbor was immediately ordered to make uniforms, and everything was pushed with energy.

This was the pioneer fire company of Fond du Lac, and composed the entire Fire Department of the city at that time. The "machine," as the first hand-engine was popularly designated, was an object of curiosity for some time, and nearly everybody in the city would have joined the company if they could have done so. The maximum number of fifty was easily obtained, and was composed of such as the following: D. Everett Hoskins, C. F. Kalk, E. A. Carey, Allan Carswell, E. A. Brown, C. Childs, Thomas S. Weeks, James W. Partridge, N. L. Bullis, A. B. Taylor, George Burrows, George Burrows, Jr., Thomas Heathcote, Jerome Gibson, John S. Burrows, T. W. Dee, John J. Metzgar, Louis Rupp, Charles Chandler, Dana C. Lamb, W. A. Tanner, Louis Darling, A. T. Little, O. D. Cory, S. A. Dudley, John B. Wilbor, C. N. Kendall, Henry Shattuck, Asa Pierce, T. G. Adams, I. K. Hamilton, William Burrows, D. R. Curran, S. E. Leferts, C. H. Tuttle, J. H. Gibson, D. C. Hutchinson, C. L. Alling, Oscar Bonnell, David Sickles, Delos A. Ward, J. C. Lowell, Mr. Windecker, Volney Chapman, John J. Beeson, L. W. Parmelee, John C. Kennealy, J. M. Taylor, J. G. Miller, A. G. Butler, A. P. Swineford, E. H. Little, F. N. Violet, L. F. Stowe, David Palmer, John Bonnell, William Sealey, Isaac S. Sherwood, C. M. Bowen, J. V. Frost, Fred Spink, C. L. Pierce, J. W. Benson, E. J. Hodges, John Warner, H. J. Hopkins.

The company has served under the following foremen: Keyes A. Darling, D. E. Hoskins, D. W. C. Wright, C. L. Pierce, Thomas W. Dee, Charles Chandler, A. T. Little, J. W. Benson, W. G. Curtis, Thomas Heathcote, D. R. Curran, J. G. Miller, E. J. Hodges, L. W. Parmelee, John C. Kennealy and John Davis.

It was a lively company, as many of its members were large property-owners and tax-payers, and took great interest in arriving at as great efficiency as possible. The engine in use was a "hand engine" in every respect, the pumps being worked by "brakes," which were churned up and down, and drag-ropes were attached, by which man-power was applied to haul it to and from fires. The city had few reservoirs when the company was first formed, and water was sucked out of the nearest pond or hole in case of fire. Frequently mud or rubbish would clog the pumps, although the nozzle was of unusual size. At the burning of Alexander White's house, late one fall, the machine was planted near a neighboring marsh-hole, which contained great numbers of frogs, newts and water animals. These were sucked up, and sent reeling and sprawling through the air and into the fire, greatly to the amusement of the assembled crowd.

At first the company had no engine-house, but one was soon built on First street, where the old Hook and Ladder house is located. In 1861, the building was moved to the west side of Main street to the lot next to the present American House. Two years later it was moved to the south side of West Second street, where it remained until destroyed by fire on the 22d day of December, 1865. The company had nicely furnished rooms, the portraits of all the members—those of the soldier members who never returned from the battle-fields being especially prized—and a fine set of band instruments. These, with records, clothing and miscellaneous articles, fine banners presented for valorous services on various occasions, were all destroyed. The engine was saved, and a temporary building was soon after erected on Second street, where the brick engine-house belonging to the self-propeller now stands. The citizens gave promptly and liberally; Winnebago Company, No. 3, donated $50, and a grand ball was given by the business men which placed the company in possession of such means as sufficed to furnish the room anew and secure another set of band instruments. During its entire existence, balls were held annually on Washington's Birthday, which not only replenished the company's treasury, but were occasions of social enjoyment, the best people of the city being either members of the company or friends or relatives of members.

The City Council from the beginning voted $2 annually to each member, and in 1867 the Legislature passed a bill to exempt all active firemen from taxation. This never took effect, being unconstitutional, and the Council then increased the firemen's alimony to $1 each per month. This was continued until the Fire Department was re-organized and its members hired and paid regular wages by the city.

The company participated in several tournaments, always with credit, and was called twice to Oshkosh, where it did excellent service and won much praise.

Washington Volunteer Company, No. 1, composed in part of men who were gray-headed and the prime movers in securing its organization, finally disbanded in 1878, after twenty-four years of continuous and faithful service.

The old "No. 1 Band," which furnished music for balls and other entertainments, consisted of L. N. Welch, G. W. Sawyer, A. W. Chapman, Thomas Heathcote, J. G. Miller, W. G. Hooker, Jerome Gibson, J. W. Byam and David Sickles.

Fountain City Company No. 2.—In May, 1857, a second fire company, under the name of "Fountain City, No. 2," was organized, with James W. Partridge, Foreman, Edward S. Bragg, First Assistant; J. V. McCall, Second Assistant, W. T. Coneys, Third Assistant, and Milton Ewen, Captain of the Hose Company. This company had a Button hand-engine. It was a lively and energetic organization, and did noble service at home and at Oshkosh.

Winnebago Fire Company, No. 3.—This company was organized May 16, 1857, with Charles R. Harrison, Foreman; Alexander White, First Assistant; W. B. Morgan, Second Assistant; John S. McDonald, Secretary and Treasurer. This was more of a "Lower Town" company. It was officered by some of the leading men of the city. In 1866, this company got the "A. B. Taylor" steamer and turned its old Button hand-engine over to a new company then in process of organization.

In 1857, the County Board voted $100 to the members of the Fire Department for saving the Court House from burning.

Fire Engine Company, No. 4.—When Winnebago, No. 3, purchased a steamer, this company was organized, December 10, 1866, to take and use the old hand-engine the Winnebagoes discarded. The first officers were Frank Seymore, Foreman; C. H. Tuttle, First Assistant; Ed. Seymore, Second Assistant, and Solon W. Edson, Secretary.

Etna Fire Company, No. 5.—In 1874, the City Council purchased the self-propeller "Alexander White" for Washington Company, No. 1. A company called Etna, No. 5, was then organized to take No. 1's discarded steamer, October 25, 1874, with these officers: M. Richert, Foreman; A. M. Green, First Assistant; F. Werner, Second Assistant; F. J. Martin, Captain of the Hose; W. H. Hurley, Secretary, and Geo. P. Dana, Treasurer.

Fountain City Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1.—This company, which was a very strong one, was organized February 20, 1862, with S. Eudemiller, Foreman; William Karstens, First Assistant; M. Krembs, Second Assistant; Joseph Wolf, Treasurer, and C. A. Handt, Secretary. At one time this company had forty members, and did efficient service at all fires in preventing the spread of the flames, saving property and guarding goods taken from burning buildings.

This volunteer system was continued up to August 7, 1878, when the City Council disbanded all the old companies and re-organized the entire Fire Department, paying all members of it by the month. Who should become members was also determined by the Council, after recommendation by the Chief Fire Marshal. Geo. P. Dana is Chief Fire Marshal and Joseph Auchue, Assistant. The department now consists of the following companies.

No. 1, Engine Company.—M. Nightingale, engineer; Thomas Evans, steersman; C. T. Green, night watchman; James Nary, cart driver; H. Rosenow, J. Buechner, L. A. Lange, J. Niland, Will Becker and D. Fontanna, pipemen. This company runs the self-propeller "Alexander White," and is stationed on East Second street.

No. 3, Engine Company.—John Coates, engineer; F. Lohmiller, driver; John Conway, stoker; J. Kennedy, cart driver; O. Evans, J. Boomer, Joseph Auchue, J. Fontanna and W. G. Casey, pipemen. This company is stationed on Arndt street, corner of Packer.

Etna Company, No. 5.—H. Rupp, engineer; E. R. Hammond, driver; M. Chamberlain, stoker; John Haughley, cart driver; H. Bauman, F. Werner, Charles Werner, L. J. Homes, H. Sawyer and Theo. Kransé, pipemen. This company is stationed on Main street.

Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1.—M. Furlong, driver; H. J. Dircks, J. Q. Haas, A. Buechner, John Sharp, John Jergens and H. Rider. The driver has $25 and the others $8 per month.

The Chief Fire Marshal receives $250 per year; Assistant $100; Engineers, $54.25 per month; drivers, $32.50 per month; stokers, $27.50; cart drivers $25 and pipemen $8 per month. The average cost of the Fire Department for salaries, fuel, repairs and incidentals is about $10,000 per year.

The engine-houses are all of brick, well furnished with beds and accommodations for those who always remain with the engines. No. 5's engine-house, erected on Main street in 1874, cost $20,000, and is one of the finest in the Northwest.

The different Chief Fire Marshals have been Allan Carswell, Keyes A. Darling, S. E. Lefferts, D. W. C. Wright, Azro B. Taylor, B. F. Sweet, Casper Buechner and George P. Dana. When nearly all the horses of the country were prostrated with the "epizootic," a fire broke out and no horses were to be had to haul the engine to it. As a last resort a yoke of oxen which had been purchased for the American Express Company was secured, and attached to the machine. It was novel business, not only for the frightened oxen but for the firemen, who knew nothing about driving cattle in the yoke. Ropes were attached to the horns of both oxen, and being grasped by a half-dozen firemen on either side to steer the animals, the strange team was started and the engine hauled to its destination at a rapid but very uncertain gait, to the consternation of pedestrians and teamsters.

CITY LOCK-UP.

In early days a small wooden building, hardly large enough for a smoke house, located on Portland street, served as a city lock-up. It had no cells, or its single apartment might have been called one cell, and was made secure by weak wooden shutters. It was used only for the incarceration of unfortunates who had become so drunk they could not break out of a paper house. In 1866, a more substantial structure of brick, with cells and apparatus for warmth, was erected near the corner of Macy, on First street. In 1878, this having become too small to accommodate the constantly increasing numbers of tramps, or wandering vagrants, and too dilapidated to secure criminals, the present brick and stone structure was built at a cost of $2,300, on the same site. It is two stories high, with six single and four double cells, and a commodious office for the Chief of Police and police headquarters. The building is well provided with heating and ventilating apparatus, and is strong enough to confine any criminal. It is used merely as a place of confinement for persons charged with crime, until their trial—not as a place of punishment to those who have been sentenced to imprisonment.

ARTESIAN WELLS.

One of the most noticeable features of Fond du Lac is its large number of fountains or artesian wells. From them the place took the popular name of "Fountain City." Theodore Conkey, now of Appleton, was building the Badger House, on the corner of Main street and Western avenue, during the summer of 1846, and desiring to know how deep a well must be to reach the gravel bed, that he might calculate how many cords of stone to secure for walling it up, set Mr. Curtis to drilling for the required information. Mr. Curtis drilled to what he considered an unusual depth without reaching water, and one night about the 1st of August, thinking Mr. Conkey might not desire any more money expended, asked if the drilling should be continued. "Yes," said Mr. Conkey, "go on if you reach purgatory." The drill had then been sunk between eighty-five and ninety feet, and when Mr. Curtis returned to pull out the tools for the night, water in liberal quantities, cold and of good quality, began to flow with considerable force. The discharge was at the rate of 1,000 gallons per hour.

Since that time, fountains have been sunk in every portion of the city. The water is used for domestic purposes, to supply the Fire Department, and to furnish the boilers of steam machinery. For this latter purpose, the water of some fountains is not well adapted, the lime and mineral substances with which it is impregnated being injurious to the iron. These substances, which more strongly impregnate the water of some fountains than of others, possess medicinal properties. These are contained in the oxide of iron, chloride of sodium, sulphate of lime, sulphate of magnesia, sulphate of soda, carbonate of soda, and carbonic acid, which have, by analysis, been discovered in liberal quantities. Hunter's Magnetic Fountain, which discharges a strong stream several feet above the surface of the ground through a two-inch pipe, became particularly famous for the cures wrought by its use in cases of kidney disease and rheumatism. The fountain was sunk to get water for a paper-mill, which proved to be unfit for the desired purpose. The analysis ordered by Mr. Hunter, to discover what the water contained to render it unfit for use in the manufacture of paper, resulted in developing the fact that it possessed valuable curative properties. A large bath-house and hotel were then erected on the spot and the fountain advertised. This resulted in bringing invalids from all parts of the Union, many of whom came on crutches and returned home cured.

For fire purposes these fountains furnished an ample supply of water at a trifling cost—without cost, in fact, except to maintain pipes and reservoirs. The water from the large fountains on the high-school grounds, at B. Wild & Co.'s bakery, on the premises of S. B. Amory, and from others, is discharged into the fire reservoirs which are located at all the necessary quarters of the city. These are all connected by large underground mains with each other, so that when water is being pumped from any one of them it receives a supply from all the others and also from the several fountains whose flow never ceases. No city has a cheaper or more effective water supply than Fond du Lac.

For ornamental purposes, the fountains can also be utilized in all possible ways, as the supply is inexhaustible and not effected by frost or drought. Those who have put up ornamental fountains with the best effect are S. B. Amory and T. F. Strong, Sr., the jets being about twenty feet in height, and of undiminished volume at all seasons. Mr. Strong's fountain throws over 100 distinct jets of water, and Mr. Amory's has three large jets in as many different localities, all supplied from one bore.

No fresher, purer, sweeter water can be found anywhere than flows from these fountains, and no city in the West is so fortunate in this respect as Fond du Lac.

GAS WORKS.

On Saturday evening, September 21, 1861, Mayor J. M. Taylor called a special meeting of the Council for the purpose of taking action on propositions to light the city with gas. There were two propositions submitted—one by J. Lockwood, of Milwaukee, and one by John P. Crothers. The latter was accompanied by an ordinance, which was unanimously adopted. It gave to said J. P. Crothers, his successors and assigns, the right to all streets, lanes and alleys, for the purpose of laying and maintaining gas mains and pipes, upon giving proper notice to the Street Commissioner; provided, that he or they repair as soon as possible, and be liable for, all damage done in laying the pipes and mains. The work of erecting and maintaining the gas works was subject to the conditions of Section 2 of the ordinance, as follows:

SECTION 2. The privileges hereby granted are upon the express conditions that said John P. Crothers, his associates successors, and assigns, shall, during the month of September, 1861, commence the work and arrange the apparatus for the manufacture of gas from coal or any other material from which gas is now or may hereafter be made, which shall be equal to and as good as any ordinary coal gas, and will prosecute said work with vigor and all diligence to completion; and that the gas furnished the city for public use shall be furnished at a price not exceeding $3 per 1,000 cubic feet; and that the gas furnished to the citizens of said city shall be furnished at a price not exceeding $4 per 1,000 cubic feet; and that the service pipe, from the main pipe to the curbstone or side of any street or alley or public grounds, shall be furnished, provided, placed and fixed by the said Crothers, his associates, successors and assigns, at their own cost and expense; and that the service pipe from the curbstone or side of streets, alleys or public grounds to the building, shall be furnished, placed and fixed by said parties at a cost to the city or person using the same not exceeding 25 cents per lineal foot: the lamp-posts, containing pipes, lamps and other necessary apparatus, being furnished by and at the expense of the city. The right hereby granted shall not be forfeited by reason of accidents not the results of the acts of the said parties, provided, such accident be remedied and said work resumed and completed within a reasonable time."

The Council also passed an ordinance guaranteeing these rights and privileges to Crothers, his successors and assigns, during a term of fifteen years, without being in any manner interfered with during that time by any person or corporation claiming to have any rights in opposition to him, his successors and assigns.

On the 12th of November, 1867, the Council passed an ordinance extending the gas monopoly during a period of twenty-five years, subject to the conditions of the ordinance of September 21, 1861, and upon the new and further condition that the gas works should at all times be kept in suitable condition to supply their consumers with a good quality of gas and in sufficient quantities.

The land upon which the works were built was purchased of Isaac S. Sherwood, in Block "K," on Maey street, between Second and Court streets, and the gas works built in 1861. Their capacity was not equal to that of the present works—in fact, they were very small compared to those in existence at the present time. On the 16th of October, 1862, J. P. Crothers, the founder of the enterprise, sold his entire interest to H. J. Hayes for $9,700, and, the following June, according to the records, Mr. Hayes sold to James G. Miller for $12,100. In September, 1863, the firm became Miller & Bonesteel, and, September 4, 1867, James G. Miller and Augustus D. Bonesteel sold the entire works, buildings, pipes, site and good will to Jesse Beckley for $33,000. He immediately enlarged the works to their present capacity, and laid several miles of new pipes and mains. Mr. Beckley continued sole proprietor until August 13, 1879, when he sold for $35,000 to Joseph Andrews, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who, on August 16, three days later, organized and had chartered the Fond du Lac Gaslight Company, the present proprietors. The city contains 183 street lamps, which are lighted by gas at an annual cost of a little less than $5,000.

SCHOOLS.

Notwithstanding a few childless croakers who have, during many years, never failed to do what they could to cripple the efficiency of the schools of the village and city, Fond du Lac has, with one or two unimportant exceptions, always maintained a liberality toward her educational institutions which is a credit to the good sense of her citizens and a precious benefit to the young who have grown up in her midst. Excellent teachers have generally been procured, and ample accommodations provided for the children in every quarter of the city.

In former times, parents were compelled, by circumstances, to consult their resources rather than their desires, and during several years the cause of education was in any but a flourishing condition. When, however, once the limits prescribed by inexorable necessity were overcome, and the inhabitants began to accumulate faster than they expended, a lively interest was taken in all educational matters, and school affairs received the earnest attention and support of the foremost citizens of Fond du Lac. This was not spasmodic, but was continued during more than a quarter of a century, to which the city is indebted for her fine school buildings, thorough organization of teachers, and admirable system of grading.

The first schoolhouse erected in what is now the city of Fond du Lac was built on land owned by Dr. M. C. Darling, on the east side of Main street, between Second and Third streets, in 1843, and, in 1848, was moved to the north side of Fifth street, between Marr and Main streets, where it burned in December of that year. Dr. Darling did not give a deed of the land on which the building stood for school purposes, and as building lots soon became more valuable, the modest structure, which stood on wooden blocks, was removed.

The first teacher was Theodore Conkey, now of Appleton. The following fall and winter, 1844, John A. Eastman opened a "select school" in the same building, having at one time twenty scholars, though not all of them in Fond du Lac.

The Franklin School.—The first free public school established in Fond du Lac was projected and organized under an act of the Territorial Legislature, passed and approved February 1, 1846. The more important sections are these:

SECTION 1. That School District No. 1, in the town of Fond du Lac, as now established by the School Commissioners of said town, is hereby organized into a separate school district for educational purposes; and shall enjoy all the powers of a corporation, so far as is necessary to carry out the objects of this act, to be known as the Board of Trustees of the Franklin School and by that name may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended in all courts of law and equity, in all actions, suits, causes and complaints whatever, and may have a common seal, and alter the same at pleasure.

SEC. 2. The inhabitants of said school district who are qualified by law to vote at any district school meeting, shall be authorized to levy a tax not exceeding $2,000 in any one year, for the purpose of building or repairing a schoolhouse, and the necessary fixtures and appendages thereto, and for the payment of the wages of teachers, and for the providing of fuel, for the purchase of all needful apparatus for the use of said school, and for defraying the necessary incidental expenses for keeping the school in operation.

SEC. 4. The Board of Trustees of said district shall from time to time appoint a Board of Superintendents for such district, not less than three nor more than five in number; said Superintendents to hold their offices for the term of two years, unless sooner removed by the Board of Trustees, whose duties shall be as follows, to wit: To determine the qualification of teachers to be employed in said school; to direct and prescribe the course of instruction in said school, and from time to time examine into its condition and make report thereof annually to the School Commissioners of the town, as required by law; to direct, in consultation with the Principal of said school, the arrangement and classification of the scholars in the several departments of study; to establish, with the advice and consent of a majority of the Board of Trustees, different departments of the school for the classification of scholars of different ages and advancement in studies, as the future wants and necessities of the district may require; to advance scholars, upon evidence of merit, from one department to another; to prescribe the proper text-books; to have power to remove any of the teachers of said school for incompetency or other sufficient cause, and to have a general supervision over the government and discipline of the school.

SEC. 6. All schools kept in said district, in pursuance of this act, shall be free to all scholars between the ages of four and twenty-one years inclusive, who shall permanently reside therein. Nothing therein contained shall be construed to prohibit the Board of Trustees from admitting scholars not residents of said district, into said school, upon such terms and conditions as they may deem proper.

SEC. 9. All taxes raised for the purposes contemplated by this act shall be assessed upon the taxable property of such district as exhibited by the assessment roll of the town, and shall be levied and collected in the same manner as now provided by law for collecting taxes for the building of schoolhouses in school districts in the counties under the township system of government.

SEC. 15. Whenever school shall be kept in said district, in accordance with the provisions of this act, the length of time now required by law, the said district shall be entitled to receive its portion of the public school moneys in the same manner as other districts.

SEC. 17. No religious creed or sectarian principle shall ever be made a requisite either for the admission of scholars into the school or for the employment of the teachers therein, and no particular religious creed or sectarian principles shall ever be taught in said school.

In January, 1848, the matter of affording better accommodations for the school children of the village was vigorously agitated. Edward Beeson wrote that the district contained 100 scholars and but one schoolroom, which was hardly large enough to accommodate 40 children. He advised that, if a suitable building could not be secured any other way, certificates of stock be issued, at 12 per cent interest, for the required amount, the debt to be paid by taxation when the district should have grown richer. The plan was not adopted.

On the 2d of February, 1848, the Board of Trustees and Superintendents of the Franklin School, consisting of Edward Pier, J. M. Gillet, J. A. Eastman, Isaac Brown, M. C. Darling and M. S. Gibson, reported a set of by-laws for the government of the school, and recommended the erection of an addition to the schoolhouse for the small children, and "the purchase of a suitable apparatus for illustrating the higher branches of education, such as a set of globes, geographical maps and charts and a planetarium." They also ordered that Thursday afternoon of each week be set apart for the reception of visitors and school officers.

The plan of maintaining the Franklin School free to all residents of the district does not seem to have been satisfactory, for, in March, 1848, the bill chartering the school was amended so that the expenses should be paid by the scholars, at a rate not exceeding $1.50 each for a term of three months, and the debt against any parent or guardian for "schooling" could be collected in the same manner as any tax.

Matters must have got on indifferently, for, in October, 1848, a correspondent noted that "The Franklin School District can boast of a ball-alley, a billiard-room and a number of doggeries, all well patronized, while 100 scholars are amusing themselves in the streets, for want of a school."

From bad the Franklin School affairs went to worse, and, December 4, 1848, the citizens met in the schoolhouse, and defeated, by an overwhelming majority, not only a resolution to raise a tax to pay arrearages, but a resolution to raise a tax for the ensuing year, as the following proceedings, copied from the Fond du Lac Republican of December 8, 1848, amply testify:

"Pursuant to notice given ten days previously, the citizens of the Franklin School District met at the schoolhouse (on Fifth street) in said district, on Monday evening, December 4, 1848, and organized by calling George McWilliams to the chair, and appointing E. W. Davis Secretary, when, on motion of Sam Ryan, Jr., voted, That no tax whatever be raised in the Franklin District for past arrearages, or for the support of schools the coming winter.

"On motion by Sam Ryan, Jr., voted, That our Representative be requested to use his influence to procure the repeal of the law organizing the Franklin School District.

"When, after considerable discussion and an expose of the financial condition of the Franklin District, it was, on motion of E. W. Davis, voted to reconsider the vote previously passed, to raise no tax whatever.

"A motion was made by M. L. Noble that we raise no tax this year: to which an amendment was offered by John Bannister, That we raise tax enough to pay up all arrearages, which was lost by 5 to 1. The original motion (to raise no tax whatever) was then put, and carried by an overwhelming majority.

"On motion by G. Henning, voted, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretary, and published in the newspapers of the village."

To pay for this summary manner of depriving the village of the proper and necessary educational facilities, the schoolhouse was burned by some unknown person eight days later, December 12, 1848. The crime of arson was by no means justifiable on account of the acts of the School Board—or such a meeting of citizens as was called a School Board—but the very free expressions of opinion by those who had children whom they wished to educate without leaving the place where they had cast their lot in an endeavor to found homes and build up a creditable village, seem to have been fully justified by these acts.

This much has been devoted to the Franklin School to show the trials and tribulations through which all educational enterprises must pass before they become as strong and beneficial as those of Fond du Lac at the present time.

During the succeeding winter, that of 1848-49, the village had no school. In July, 1849, a meeting was held at the court house to elect school officers and levy a tax for school purposes. Permission of the Town Superintendent had been obtained to raise $2,000 for the erection of a schoolhouse, but when the resolution to levy that amount came to a vote, the matter was laid on the table and the meeting adjourned. There was something of a contest over this matter, a large number of the inhabitants regarding the sum of $2,000 for a school building as altogether too extravagant.

On the 19th of November, 1849, F. R. Kinsman was engaged "as a proper person to teach youth," to conduct a school "on the normal plan," in a building rented for the purpose of Carmin Wright. The next year, 1850, the building now known as the Marr Street Schoolhouse was erected, and the only schoolhouse in the village. School was continued regularly thereafter, and, although there had been some growling because the Marr street building had been made so large, in a short time it was found to be too small, and the city, as it was after 1852, was divided into four common-school districts.

North and South Union Schools.—On the 5th of August, 1854, by the order of E. Hodges, who had been elected Superintendent of Schools for the city of Fond du Lac; E. H. Galloway and George W. Sexmith, of District No. 1 of the city; J. Q. Griffith, Hiram and Robert A. Baker, of District No. 2, and H. R. Colman and Edmund Delany, of District No. 3 of the city of Fond du Lac, these three districts were consolidated into one, called the Union District No. 1, or North Union, and bids called for to build a schoolhouse. Edmund Delany was elected Director; John L. Henry, Treasurer, and Robert A. Baker, Clerk of Union District No. 1, August 12, 1854.

At the same time, District No. 4 was, by the order of the Superintendent and Isaac Brown and W. H. Walker, officers of the district, changed to District No. 2, or South Union, now known as Marr Street School. The building which is in use at the present time, had been built previously to that time, and used by District No. 4.

A site was purchased of E. H. Galloway, for $500, on Lots 52 and 53, Block 11 (the Cotton Street Schoolhouse site), and a building costing $2,000 ordered to be built for the use of District No. 1. The structure thus ordered is now known as the Cotton Street Schoolhouse.

In September, before the consolidation took place, the Clerk of District No. 1 made a report showing that 83 children had attended school during the year at a cost for 3 teachers, fuel and other expenses, of $250. For 10 months of school only $184 was paid for teachers' wages. The report for District No. 2 showed 32 scholars and an expenditure for teachers' wages, fuel and incidentals of $202. The report for District No. 3 showed 88 scholars and an expenditure of $296 for teachers' wages and fuel. Carlos A. Ryder finished the school building for District No. 1 in 1855, at a cost of $2,088, less $190 damages awarded to the District by referees for neglecting to follow the plans and specifications ordered by the district. This did not include painting, sidewalks and miscellaneous items. In 1858, a fountain was dug in the school-grounds and a reservoir sunk at a cost of $260, and $100 was expended for a library.

A deep interest was taken in school matters, and both the North and South Union Schools were well patronized and efficiently taught. When the High School was formed, it in no wise interfered with the other public schools, which have increased in numbers and attendance.

In 1862-63, O. C. Steinberg, Principal of the High School, was impowered to grade all the schools of the city, making a course of instruction extending over a period of thirteen years and embracing every possible degree of advancement in scholarship. In the published report of the School Board in 1867, Mr. Steenberg, then Superintendent of Schools, recommended compulsory attendance of all healthy children of school age, using the following language:

"Those who attend school irregularly, and those who do not attend school, number 3,046. From the best data that can be secured, I find that at least 500 of that number are habitual truants or idlers, or have parents who are, to a greater or less extent, indifferent to their best interests. * * * Can a community ignore the moral welfare of 500 of its children? If they were diseased, either physically or mentally, hospitals and asylums would be provided for them; were they criminals, prisons would be built for them. * * * Argument seems unnecessary. In the minds of those who have the future good of our city at heart, there can be but one conclusion. It is the duty of the city not only to provide means by which our youth may become good citizens, but by its authority, to constrain those who are too young or too ignorant to appreciate and employ those advantages."

This was the first recommendation in a published educational document, of a compulsory school law. In 1878-79, the Legislature passed such a law for the benefit of cities, which took effect September 1, 1879. It is certainly beneficial in a city like Fond du Lac, where a large number of children are engaged in mills and factories.

In 1852, nine teachers were employed, at a cost of $1,087.41, to teach 498 scholars. In 1858, the Superintendent reported 1,020 scholars, taught by ten teachers, at a cost of $3,525.08. In 1863, there were 1,177 seats, and an average of 1,253 scholars, while during the winter term, 1,378 students were accommodated in those 1,177 seats.

The city now contains, in addition to the High School building, eighteen public schools, which, with the sites, are owned by the corporation. These are located on First street, Cotton street, Ruggles street, 2; Grant street, Walnut street, Marr street, Cherry street, Amory street, Fifth street, Hickory street, Rees street, Doty street, Sibley street, 2; Prospect street, Clinton street and Second street. These contain forty main rooms, will accommodate 2,800 students, and have a cash valuation of $98,700. The sites are valued at $22,000, making the city's school property worth, in cash, $120,700. Nearly every schoolhouse is provided with a fountain.

The appended is a table showing the number of pupils and teachers, with cost of schools for a number of years:

YEAR.	Number of Children of Lawful Age.	Number of Pupils Enrolled.	Number of Teachers.	Wages paid Teachers.	Other Expenses, Including Buildings, etc.	Whole Cost of Schools.	Total Cost of Instruction per Pupil, based upon the number enrolled and the entire cost of schools.	Cost of Tuition per Pupil, based upon the number enrolled and the amount of teachers' salaries.	Average Salary paid Teachers, per year.
1852.....	639	498	9	1087 41	212 94	1300 35	2 61	2 18	129 82
1853.....	844	570	10	1242 60	331 34	1573 94	2 76	2 17	124 26
1854.....	994	635	6	1298 69	301 22	1599 91	2 52	2 04	216 41
1855.....	1338	827	9	1354 86	255 00	2209 86	2 67	2 36	217 20
1856.....	1597	972	8	2294 60	613 31	3007 91	3 09	2 36	286 82
1857.....	2040	1014	10	3143 12	917 54	4160 66	4 00	3 35	344 31
1858.....	1839	1020	10	3525 08	828 88	4353 96	4 25	3 45	352 50
1859.....	1916	1351	12	4501 07	1279 08	5780 15	4 24	3 33	375 01
1860.....	2119	1507	17	5408 75	1091 77	6410 62	4 25	3 52	318 16
1861.....	2562	1611	20	5109 44	1216 35	6325 79	3 73	3 17	255 47
1862.....	2358	1684	22	5795 66	4866 88	10662 54	6 27	3 44	263 44
1863.....	2695	2048	23	6090 00	3264 00	10254 00	5 00	2 97	264 78
1864.....	3043	2414	28	7350 00	7786 72	15136 72	6 23	3 22	262 50
1865.....	4101	3038	29	8325 00	22710 78	31035 78	10 21	2 41	273 26
1866.....	5109	2815	33	9713 50	18895 47	28608 97	10 16	3 45	294 35
1867.....		3239	32	10901 13	12042 31	22903 44	7 30	3 38	342 59
1873.....	5469	3475*	47	18898 50	10979 27	59877 77	17 23	5 72	492 12
1879.....	5900	2484	47	18136 25	12079 39	30215 64	12 16	7 30	385 87

The High School.—About the 1st of October, 1858, the citizens of the two districts into which the city was divided, sent to the School Boards of the respective districts a petition praying that a Union High School be established. The petitions were heeded at once, and George B. Eastman, the School Superintendent, authorized to take the necessary steps to accomplish the desired result. In accordance therewith, Mr. Eastman, on the 8th of October, 1858, made the following report:

"I have this day formed a Union High School District in accordance with the expressed desire of the districts comprising the same, which determination has been properly certified to by me as required by Section 2 of Chapter 138, of the General Laws of 1858, to be called the Union High School District of the city of Fond du Lac, of which the following is a description: The entire corporate limits of said city of Fond du Lac as designated in an Act to amend an act entitled an act to incorporate the city of Fond du Lac, approved March 19, 1852, and as exhibited in the map of said city, published by George R. Harrison, in the year 1857. Such formation to take effect immediately."

* Estimated.

A. Kingour

FOND DU LAC.

In the city districts was included a portion of the town of Fond du Lac, and when Mr. Eastman formed the High School he cut this portion off, much to the disgust of its citizens, who wanted the benefit of the school without paying any of the city taxes by which the school was supported. The act above quoted gave the Superintendent authority to appoint the necessary officers, and he therefore appointed Robert A. Baker, Clerk; W. H. Hiner and B. F. Moore, Directors. A meeting of these officers was held October 21, 1858, in Amory Hall, and $1,951.40 authorized to be raised by tax for room-rent, teachers' wages and fuel. The tuition was fixed at $7 per term of thirteen weeks, for non-residents. It was, of course, free to all residents of the city, whether of school age or not.

The first High School in the city of Fond du Lac was organized and opened in January, 1859, by Edwin C. Johnson and Miss M. S. Merrill, in what was known as the Sewell store on Main street, between Johnson and Merrill streets. The students perpetrated many a gibe over the fact that the nearest streets and the teachers had the same names. The school opened with nearly one hundred students, being free to all residents of the city who could pass a prescribed examination in geography, arithmetic and grammar. In 1860, Prof. Johnson resigned, and Selim H. Peabody was engaged as Principal, who opened the school in the Marshall Block, on Second street. The next year the location was changed to the Warner Block, on the corner of Main and Second streets. There was no other change of location until a High School building had been erected. In July, 1859, the first steps were taken to secure the erection of such a building, as the High School had grown into popular favor, and was considered an important and indispensable department in the rapidly advancing system of education. This resulted in opening negotiations for a site, which was an important matter.

In July, 1859, the Board adopted a resolution authorizing the establishment of a Normal Institute in connection with the High School, and the provisions of the resolution were carried into effect and during several years thereafter, Normal students were taught in the school and received annually the proper apportionment of the State Normal School fund.

In January, 1860, the School Board appointed a committee to secure the west half of the McGinty tract, situated on the north side of Merrill street and east of Amory street, at a cost of $1,400, which they did in April of that year. In October, 1863, the Finance Committee of the School Board, presented for the approval of the Board a form of bond to be executed for the purpose of raising money to build a High School building, also a mortgage executed to S. B. Amory, of all the school property in the city as collateral security. Both were adopted, and authority given to the President of the Board and the Clerk to execute the bond and mortgage. There appeared at this time no inconsiderable amount of dissatisfaction over this location of the High School in what was called an "out-of-the-way place," and J. M. Taylor offered to donate, free of cost forever, twelve and one-half acres of land on Forest street, for a High School building, but the offer was declined on account of the advanced state of matters in another direction. In February, 1864, a plan for the proposed building by Isaac Brown was accepted, and the contract was let to W. M. Phean and William Heathcote in March, Mr. Brown, now of Harrington, Delaware, being the Superintendent. The structure was pushed rapidly to completion, but Mr. Brown was unable to supervise everything, owing to the severe illness of his nephew, George L. Arnold. A public dedication was had, and the building taken possession of by the High School, with O. C. Steenberg as Principal, in 1865.

At the dedication, William D. Conklin of Fond du Lac, delivered an address:

"Some twenty-odd years ago," said the speaker, "a school was organized by and with the children of three families, and two half-breed boys, belonging to no family in particular. It was held in a little log cabin over yonder, on Elihu Phillips' farm that now is, and was taught, ostensibly, by James Duane Ruggles. When, however, 'Duane,' as we called our teacher, lured by the more fascinating pursuits of hunting or the gentle craft, failed to make his appearance at the conventional hour of 9 A. M., we did not, like the degenerate school-boys of to-day, take advantage of the opportunity and scamper off home; but some two or three of us larger boys, taking turn and turn about as it happened, would carry the institution along for the day in the accustomed routine. Now, some of my young friends among the school-boys here may deem this statement a little strong, and the school-boy comparison slightly invidious. Well, I will relieve them with a little further explanation. The site and surroundings of that old school-house were to us the most captivating imaginable. It was on the brink of that deep dell you all know so well. In that dell were the greatest woods for chipmunks that ever grew, and through their deep shade murmured the nicest streamlet for wading and catching crawfish, with here and there an eddy or deep hole full of chubs, possessed of a most remarkable natural affinity for pin-hooks. We were the only youngsters in the country, and absolutely had no other place to go, unless to our respective homes and the never-failing boys' work thereunto appertaining. Furthermore, our course of study bore close resemblance to that of the ancient Persian schools, where the youth were carefully instructed from their fifth to their twentieth year in three things alone—to ride, to draw the bow and to speak the truth. You may judge of the amount of magnanimity and self-denial involved in keeping that school without the master.

“In the mean time,” continued the speaker, “the Legislature of the Territory of Wisconsin, acting, I presume, on the hint contained in Article 3 of the celebrated Ordinance of 1787, which provides that, ‘Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged’—acting on this hint, and in the plenitude of its wisdom, had enacted that ‘every town in this Territory, containing not less than ten families, shall be a school district, and shall be provided with a competent school master or mistress to instruct children.’ In due time, the country hereabout achieved a population of not less than ten families, with that ancient burgh, Taycheedah, as the center and nucleus. (Be it here known that Taycheedah was immensely larger than Fond du Lac.) The town of Fond du Lac was, territorially speaking, almost indefinite in extent. My ancient geography is a little rusty, but I think it was bounded on the north by the then State of Green Bay, on the south by the commonwealth of Milwaukee, on the east by the Sheboygan woods, while in the matter of the west line, the taste of the most fastidious could be gratified by locating it where he might choose, without fear of contradiction or interference.

“I presume this town was duly organized under the statute as a school district, and provided with a competent school master or mistress, to instruct children. I know that the Messrs. Moore and Doty, the proprietors of Taycheedah, furnished the funds and built the framed schoolhouse with the little cupola, still standing in that classic town. There was hung in that cupola a pretty, clear-toned steamboat bell, brought by Henry Conklin all the way from the dismantled wreck of the steamer Advocate, on the Hudson River, which in that day was the never-ceasing wonder of the wandering aborigines, as well as admiration of the white pioneer. And, by the way, that same old bell (appropriated without title, leave or license), even now, from the belfry of the public school, awakes the echoes and disturbs the solitudes (and, I hope, the consciences) of that quiet, peaceful haunt of somnolent humanity. The first schoolmaster here was, I think, one of the Conklin family, on whose pedagogic career the constitutional modesty of the family will forbid extended comment; but the genius and glory of that pioneer school, unquestionably, is associated with a worthy pedagogue, by name Mr. Maxon. He was a good, worthy man, a veritable, old-fashioned Yankee schoolmaster, such as the land of steady habits has ever sent forth with her legions of frontier woodmen, supplying the Union with pioneers for the mind, as well as for the wilderness. He was withal an enterprising, active little man, and, as Irving says of Ichabod Crane, ‘Truth to say, he was a conscientious man, and ever bore in mind the golden maxim, ‘Spare the rod and spoil the child!’”

“The pupils of that school were of rather a miscellaneous make-up. There were the Rugles, the Elliots and the Conklins from ‘up under the Ledge;’ the Moores, Carltons and Perrys at Taycheedah. Keyes A. Darling, his brother Lewis, and sister Helen (now Mrs. John A. Eastman),—the whole juvenile population of Fond du Lac—made their daily advent in a primitive vehicle drawn by a small pony, and followed by a large dog, while through this group was interlarded an occasional young Frenchman or half-breed.

" This school was also a kind of paradise for wild youngsters. The adjacent creek and lake shore, abounding in water-fowl and Indian canoes, tended further to stimulate and advance the aquatic and venery tastes and habits of the old log schoolhouse by the dell; and, if the course of instruction at the old place on the 'Ledge' was upon the ancient Persian system, that of Pytheodah resembled, perhaps, the ancient Athenian plan, where every citizen, under a severe penalty, was required to teach his son to read and to swim.

" The first schoolhouse was built in the village of Fond du Lac in 1843, and was situated on Main street, where now stands Valentine & Olsted's store, and it was removed, in 1848, to Fifth street, where Mr. Benson now lives, and, during the winter following (December 12, 1848), was burned down. This school was first taught, I think, by Theodore Conkey, and probably on much the same principles as hereinbefore adverted to.

" But the course of empire westward brought with it that remorseless wave of immigration, surging along, and overwhelming in its course every vestige of the romance and charm of the wilderness; and before the pioneers could well realize the change, a strange, eager and motley crowd of Celt, Gaul, Teuton and Saxon, of Yankee, York State man, Pennite and Buckeye—aye! even you whom I now address—had gained a foothold, forced back the wild man and beast, and built up the village and city of Fond du Lac.

" As if to compensate and console us for our little Utopia you had so ruthlessly invaded and blotted out, you brought to us the fruition of the ideas of Martin Luther, Pestalozzi and Fellenberg; of John Knox and Joseph Lancaster; of Henry Barnard, Barnes Sears and Horace Mann—that glorious system of public schools, evolved and perfected by the wisdom and experience of your native States.

" Those germs and cions from that 'tree of centuries' you have carefully planted in this new soil! You have jealously guarded and cultivated them with a most noble spirit of public liberality. In times of early struggle and hardship, of high taxation and large expenditure consequent on the erection of a new and vast social and political edifice, you have faithfully kept and applied the proceeds of munificent national land grants; heroically devoted a large share of local taxation; and generously contributed by private subscription to the encouragement and support of the common school. An illustration of the perfect adaptability of this admirable system to the end sought on the one hand, and on the other hand the magical growth of our young city, is furnished in the remarkable number and capacity of the school edifices erected here already.

" Through the kindness of Mr. Isaac Brown, than whom no gentleman in our city has been more closely and honorably identified with our public-school interests, I am enabled to lay before you a summary of the school-building operations, up to the period of the consolidation of all the districts embraced by our city limits. In the year 1860 (which is really the beginning of our school system proper), we had the old Marr street house, called the "Union School," comprehending within its walls three departments, and filled to overflowing with young ideas, learning to shoot at all grades of intellectual targets—in truth, it ever was, and is now, a busy hive. The Cotton street house was next erected in 1855 and 1856. These two schoolhouses furnished accommodation for about four hundred and seventy-five scholars, and have been amply filled from first to last.

" Under the present dispensation have appeared, in 1860, the Harney street house, and one on Ruggles street, with seats for 256 scholars. In 1861, another on Ruggles street, one on Rees street, and an addition to the Cotton street house, containing in gross 208 seats.

" In 1863, a new schoolhouse was built on Scott street; another on Walnut street; another on Cherry street, and another on Fifth street. These last-named houses furnish in the aggregate accommodation for 384 pupils. And now, during the past year, this splendid edifice has been erected, with ample space for 430 scholars, and at a cost of $17,000."

The building, at the dedication of which the foregoing remarks were made, was three stories high, with brick outside, and accommodated nearly as many scholars as the present high-school building. After it had been in use about two years, the heavy ceiling of the chapel fell with a resounding crash. Very fortunately the room was not occupied at the time, or an appalling destruction of life must have followed. The work had been improperly done, and to repair the damage cost $3,000. The building burned in 1868, on the night of December 4, and, next morning, many of the scholars, not knowing of the conflagration, appeared at the usual place and time with their books. The cause of the fire was set down as something "very mysterious," and the public was never fully satisfied on this point, although the impression generally prevailed that it was of incendiary origin. The High School was continued in rented rooms until September, 1873, when the present building, a splendid four-story structure of brick and stone, was completed on the site where the first one was burned. It was built by Theodore Eul, and cost $45,000, exclusive of the foundation. It is admitted to be the best high-school building in the State and to possess much the finest yard and location. It contains ten large schoolrooms, an office and library, apparatus-room, chapel, halls, and wardrobes. In front of the building is such a fountain as can be found nowhere in the Northwest outside of Fond du Lac. The water-jet is from a two-inch pipe and is discharged with great force. It is beautiful as well as useful. The school is managed with thoroughness, and affords almost collegiate advantages to those who desire them.

The following are the graduates of the High School: 1860—Isa F. Mather, Emma Jane Ward, Kate Frame, Kelsey M. Adams. 1861—Garland Gillet, Horton Drury. 1862—Kate Hamilton, Anna Longstaff, Ellen Delany, Carver N. Griffith. 1863—Isabella Perkins, Cornelia Soule, Mary Eastman. 1864—Mary Todd, Elizabeth D. Hoyt, Ella Lewis, Henry C. Moore. 1865—Angelina Munro, Alice E. Delany, Lizzie Soule, Clinton Ewen, George Todd, Ada V. Sharpe, Jenny Mason, Maggie Spears, Lucius D. Hurd. 1866—Julia Todd, Alice Arnold, Maggie Eastman, Helen Tallmadge, Viletta Fowler, Albert Dye, Edward B. Beeson, Daniel McKenna, Emma Jane Ellis, Alice Goss, Francis Crane, Lilly Camp, Evelyn Selden, Edward S. Curran, Charles Hamilton. 1867—Martha Curtis, Florence Patchen, Adelaide Lewis, Frank B. Hoskins, Annie Stow, Louisa DeGroat, Willie Johnson, George E. Weikert. 1868—Francis Mihills, Fannie Craig, Adelle Ellis, Abby W. Griffin, Mary L. Chamberlain, Anna Mason, Anna E. Hurd, Alfred L. Moore, Edwin Radford. 1869 and 1870—No graduates. 1871—Ella Raymond, Allie Boyd, Ida Gordon, Priscilla Morton. 1872—Estella Clark, Edward Doheney. 1873—Fannie Morse, Carrie Couklin, Sarah Cahill, Eliza Bancroft, Isa Reid, Ferrin Beals, R. Waters. 1874—J. Milton Adams, Calvin C. Todd, Mary Mangan, Emma J. Burrows, Mary E. Adams. 1875—Georgiana French, Martha E. Lovett, Jennie Whitton, Effie M. Newton, Emma F. Dahlem, James H. Waters, Walter I. Nichols, Harvey B. Nichols, Joseph D. Radford, John C. Hayward, William J. Burns. 1876—Lillie M. Johnson, Jenny S. Hawes, Annie Bodine, Frankie A. Airhart, Lizzie C. Tallmadge, Lucy A. Green, Inez M. Gillet, Nellie C. Wright, Georgiana M. Rose, Maud M. Murdoch, Charles Little, Luola C. Robertson, Ellie I. Cavanaugh, Edward B. Priest, Edward H. Parker. 1877—Clarence Tallmadge, Alice Cooper, Katie Jones, Maria Pinney, Alonzo H. Palmer, Evanore O. Beebe, Anna Giltner, Laura T. Burton, James H. Lyons, Jean Dodd, Fannie A. Underwood, Mattie A. Raymond, Henry A. Bush. 1878—Marcia E. Pinney, Mariam L. Rose, Kate Clark, Tessa McLean, Ella A. Roberts, Blanche Griffith, Mary V. Johnson, Sarah E. Benner, Kate E. McCourt, Stephen S. Stack, Ella M. Roche, Lizzie Carberry, Carrie E. Sizer, Mary Harlin, Anna M. Lange, Minnie E. Breitzman, Ella J. Burns, Carrie E. Riem, Thomas Lyons, Kate A. Everest, Ida M. Calkins, Lizzie M. Main, Emma L. Lilly. 1879—Charles N. Boardman, Archibald Church, Frank N. Phelan, Charles W. Hamilton, Charles N. Kalk, Alvie H. Adams, Lula C. Breitenstein, Jennie E. Mangan, Ella A. Riley, Frank H. Sweet, George H. Wiley, Jennie E. Dahlem, Edward E. Dalton, Agnes E. Deland, John B. Darling, Delia E. Halpin, Cora E. Lewis, Jeannie M. Lowell, Erick W. Lucke, Hannah Malloy, Mary J. McLean, Kate A. Morley, Mary J. Nugent, Susie B. Spears, Carrie Wright.

Marr Street Academy.—In 1859, Mrs. R. S. Palmer opened, in the town of Lamartine, a boarding-school for pupils over fourteen years of age. The text-books were the same as those in use in the High School, and the venture was a success. In 1867, the school was moved to Forest street, Fond du Lac, where it continued with greater patronage and success until 1870, when it was moved to its present location on Marr street. It is now known as Marr Street Academy, and is under the direction of its founder, Mrs. R. S. Palmer. The curriculum is the same as that of the High School. Special branches are taught when desired.

Forest Street Association.—In 1857, a select school was organized under the name of the Forest Street Association, which built an addition to the First Baptist Church, corner of Forest and Union streets, and opened a school therein, under the direction of Miss M. S. Merrille, now of Merrille Institute. It was a successful and satisfactory school. Miss Merrille remained less than two years, and, on going to Madison, was succeeded by Miss Sarah Henry, since appointed Matron of the Wisconsin State Prison. The building is now used for church purposes, the school having been discontinued for some time.

Merrille Institute.—This school, which is exclusively for the education of young ladies, was opened on Division street, in a building now the residence of W. C. Ogden, in September, 1866, by Miss M. S. Merrille. It was not opened as a boarding-school, and has never been conducted as such. The curriculum of the High School was adopted as nearly as possible, and Miss Merrille had, the first term, as many students as her building would accommodate.

In 1868, she built a three-story brick building 56x58 feet, on the corner of Union and Cherry streets. This has accommodations for ninety scholars, and some terms has been as full as possible. To the High-School curriculum were added French and music.

Merrille Institute was chartered by the State in 1868-69, and has been an unusually successful young ladies' seminary, not depending for its pecuniary support upon furnishing food, lodging and courting rooms for young ladies. It occupies a large plat of ground in a pleasant portion of the city, near enough to depots and post office, and is pronounced one of the most wholesome schools for young ladies to be found anywhere.

German and English Academy.—This is one of the most important institutions of learning in Fond du Lac. It was organized in 1854, for the purpose of teaching English and German to German and English children in the most natural and thorough manner. French and Latin are also taught when desired. On the 4th of October, 1858, the school was incorporated, and now owns its school buildings and grounds on Portland street. The scholars, of which there are usually about one hundred, are graded into three classes, with a teacher for each. No aid is received from public taxes, and no religious belief is taught or tolerated. Twice each week, all kinds of needle and fancy work are taught, at 25 cents per month additional. To become a member of the German and English Academy Association, a fee of $5 is required. Fees thus paid in go to make a reduction of 10, 15 and 25 cents per month, according to grade, in tuition fees for the children of members. Those not members must pay $1.50, $1.75 or $2 per month, according to grade, for each student. Neatness of dress, cleanliness of person, punctuality and systematic habits are taught in addition to other studies. New classes are formed twice each year—in April and October. The ladies of the Association give annually an exhibition and fair, the proceeds of which go to better support this school. For the same purpose, a masked ball is held annually by the patrons of the school, always adding comfortable sums to the treasury.

The officers, consisting of a President, Secretary, Treasurer and Board of Directors, are elected semi-annually. The teachers are Julius F. Harthun, Dora L. Pinney and Theodore A. Lucke. The officers are: President, Franz Lauenstein; Secretary, C. L. Eneking; Treasurer, L. Muentner. Directors—F. Rueping, Joseph Lenz, F. Krumme and E. N. Korner.

The German and English Academy has turned out some of the most accomplished scholars in Fond du Lac, and is considered a most excellent school in which to thoroughly teach the German language to those whose mother tongue is English, or the English to those who speak German.

BONDED INDEBTEDNESS.

The first bonds issued by the city of Fond du Lac were by resolution of the Common Council of March 4, 1854, under Chapter 58, Laws of 1854, when $19,800, at 10 per cent interest, was issued in bonds to the Waupun, Fond du Lac & Forest Plank Road Company. At the same time, $1,900, at the same rate of interest, were issued to the Fond du Lac & Oshkosh Plank Road Company. In July of the same year, $200 were issued to the Mayville branch of the Waupun, Fond du Lac & Forest Road. August 12 of the same year, $3,000 were issued to the Green Bay & Taycheedah Plank Road Company. This makes a total of $24,900. In 1864, $3,075 were issued in bonds for unpaid interest on the above-enumerated plank-road bonds; total, $27,975 in plank-road bonds. In return for these bonds, the city received the capital stock, at par, of the various plank roads.

The City Council, on May 21, 1855, voted $200,000 of aid to the Chicago, St. Paul & Fond du Lac Railroad Company (Chicago & North-Western), at 7 per cent interest, payable semi-annually at the Exchange Bank of New York. May 1, 1856, the city voted to subscribe $150,000 to the capital stock of the same company, and issue bonds therefor at 8 per cent interest, payable semi-annually. This second issue was on condition that $100,000 of the first issue be surrendered by the railway company. This was done, and the bonds burned by a committee appointed by the Council.

On March 4, 1864, these two issues, with the due and unpaid interest upon them, were paid by issuing $103,500 of new bonds at 6 per cent interest, due in 1884, and called "compromise bonds."

On the 1st of March, 1863, there were issued $12,000 of bonds, at 8 per cent interest, for the construction of the High-School building, due March 1, 1873. In 1871, the city issued $75,000 of 8 per cent bonds, interest payable semi-annually, to aid in the construction of the North-Western Union, or Air Line Railway. These are due in ten annual installments, beginning with 1881. In 1876, the city guaranteed the interest at 8 per cent for ten years, on $200,000 of the Fond du Lac, Amboy & Peoria Railway bonds: but these were destroyed by mutual agreement in 1879. Thus the city has issued to railroads, plank road, schoolhouses and to compromise old bonds, $568,475 in bonds. Of this amount there are outstanding $90,000 of the compromise bonds, due in 1884 with 6 per cent interest, and $75,000 of the Air Line bonds due in ten equal installments, beginning with 1881.

PUBLIC HALLS.

The First Hall.—The first public hall of any consequence was in Darling's Block, erected where it now stands, corner of Maine and First streets, in 1847. The third floor is still used by various secret societies, but it has not been a public hall for a good many years. Before Darling's Hall was built, the schoolhouse on Main street, between Second and Third, was, in addition to being a court house and church, used as a public hall.

Amory Hall.—By far the largest and finest hall in Fond du Lac, is in Amory's brick and stone Block on Main, at the head of Sheboygan street, erected in 1857. It is 66x80 feet on the inside, 25 feet high and capable of seating 1,500 persons. The architect was Thomas H. Green. When this hall was finished it was the largest and finest in Wisconsin, and the decorative work still makes a costly appearance. In addition to double doors opening outward, for more complete safety in case of fire during an entertainment, a "fire-escape" was added on the south side in 1877. The hall was built and is now owned by S. B. Amory. It is estimated that from 1858 to 1880 1,500,000 people have been accommodated in Amory Hall, at a cost to them of $250,000. During 1879 and 1880 the hall has been rented by Swift & Arnold.

Opera Hall.—In 1865, a brick block was erected at the head of Forest, on Main street, by Charles Johnson, and the second and third stories fitted expressly for a public hall. It is centrally located, and only one story from the ground, but is not capable of seating so large a gathering as Amory Hall. During several years after 1873, the name was changed to Neocosmian Hall, being rented and controlled by the Neocosmian Society. The old name of Opera Hall was resumed after that society died. The building is now owned by A. G. Ruggles, Mrs. M. H. Galloway and J. P. Bonesteel. It will seat 800 persons.

Other Public Halls.—Music Hall, built and owned by the Amorys, situated on the corner of Main and Division streets, is now used mostly for balls, masquerades and other entertainments of that nature.

In the brick block on the corner of Fourth and Main streets, B. F. Moore owns a hall which has been used as a military headquarters, by the South-side Turners, and as a place for dancing.

J. R. Colman has a hall over his store on Western avenue; Smith & Alling have a splendid hall in the third story of their block on Main street; there is a large hall in John Reinig's Block on Main street, near the Patty House, and Miller's Hall, in "Lower Town," on Scott street.

HOTELS.

Fond du Lac House (No. 1).—The first hotel ever opened in the city or county of Fond du Lac was built by the Fond du Lac Company in 1836, at a cost of $500 for furniture and all, and opened in June of that year by Colwert Pier. It was of logs, and is elsewhere described.

Fond du Lac House (No. 2).—In 1838, Dr. M. C. Darling erected a log house on the corner of Main and First streets, and opened it as a hotel under the name, also, of the "Fond du Lac House." It was a temperance house. About 1840, having erected a dwelling-house, and moved into it, Mr. Darling had Thomas Green come from Green Bay, and "keep tavern" in his Main street building.

Exchange Hotel.—Soon after Dr. Darling arrived in the settlement, in 1838, he sent for Theodore Hebert, a French blacksmith, agreeing to give him three-quarters of an acre of land, if he would come and permanently locate. Mr. Hebert came and built a log blacksmith-shop and residence where the Opera Hall now stands, at the head of Forest street. He, or rather his wife, who is yet a resident of the city, began to entertain such travelers as would not stop at a temperance house. Mr. Hebert had always on tap a barrel of the best whisky, and Mrs. Hebert sold the first liquor by the glass ever sold in the county of Fond du Lac, although at that time all the settlers kept whisky for the purpose of trading with the Indians. In a few months, Mrs. Hebert's custom grew to such proportions that her husband left his blacksmithing, and built a frame addition to the house. In 1847 Mr. and Mrs. Hebert had accumulated sufficient means to build a new hotel, which they called the Exchange Hotel. It was three stories high, and by far the largest structure in the city, and earned for its builders such epithets as "fools" and "bullheads." But it was a success. It was afterward moved down Main street to where it now stands. It is owned by W. H. Wells, and leased for hotel purposes by George Q. Campbell, as the "City Hotel," although the old lettering of "Exchange Hotel" is not yet defaced. Mrs. Hebert, who had nearly as much to do with the building and management of the "Exchange" as her husband, is a resident of Fond du Lac, in good health, and still keeping a boarding-house.

Temperance Cottage.—In the spring of 1846, John J. Driggs, now deceased, built and opened as a hotel a small building on the corner of Main and Court streets, where the American House now stands. Its name was Temperance Cottage, but the blods of the village dubbed it "Dish-water Castle," because no liquor was sold on the premises. After the "Badger House" was opened in the fall of 1846, across the Court House Square, there sprung up a lively competition between the two hotels. In 1848, the Cottage was enlarged by an addition 21x54 feet, and otherwise improved. Some time afterward, it fell into the hands of H. P. Olds, who changed the name to the Globe Hotel. When Henry Shattuck built the first American House in 1861, he used a portion of what was the old Temperance Cottage.

Badger House.—This was a popular and fashionable hotel in an early day. It was built by Theodore Conkey in 1846, on the corner of Western avenue and Main street, and was opened November 18, 1846, by J. C. Lewis and R. L. Morris. In 1848, it was leased to Quartus Olcott, and, in 1849, was sold to E. M. and M. M. Simmons. Finally, the business portion of the city becoming established farther north, the "Badger" was moved away. A portion of it now stands on Linden street.

Lewis House.—The original Lewis House was built by Robert Wyatt in 1848, on the corner of Fourth and Ellis streets. Fourth street was then called the "Sheboygan road." This hotel Mr. Wyatt called "The Eagle," and for a sign was hoisted a very large wooden eagle, made by Henry Jens, which now serves as a sign at Lamartine. The building was 30x40, and two stories high. In 1849, Mr. Wyatt moved "The Eagle" to the corner of Main and Sheboygan streets, enlarged it to three and one-half stories, and rented it to J. C. Lewis. On October 1, 1850, James Ewen purchased the building and named it the Lewis House, after "Curt" Lewis. In October, 1860, Mr. Ewen rented the property to B. S. Patty, and sold it to him three years later. Mr. Patty was its manager and proprietor when it burned, in 1866.

In 1871, J. C. Lewis erected the present Lewis House on the east side of Main, below Division street, and opened it as a hotel. He left it after the great fire at Chicago, in 1873. It is now owned and managed by Stephen Oberreich, and is doing a thriving business.

American House.—The original American House—a portion of which is now located on Seventh street, and used as a dwelling, the balance doing duty in the rear of the present American House—was a three-story wooden building, built by Henry Shattuck in the fall of 1861, on the corner of Main and Court streets, at a cost of $4,000. It contained forty-five bedrooms, dining-room, office and kitchen. Mr. Shattuck left the Exchange Hotel, which he had managed two years, in January, and opened business in his own building. The American House was a success at once, and remained so until 1875, when the building now occupying the same site was built. The new building is of the best cream-colored brick, four stories high, including basement, and is elegantly appointed for a public house. It fronts ninety feet on Main street, and, when the west wing is completed, will front ninety feet on Court street. The large office and reading-room and the dining-room are on the ground floor, and as pleasant as those of any other public house in the State. The grand opening ball, by which the new American House was dedicated, occurred September 27, 1875, and was a liberally attended and brilliant affair. The building, which was designed by H. P. Thompson, of Fond du Lac, is one of the noticeable features of the city. Henry Shattuck is its owner and manager.

Patty House.—The largest and costliest hotel in Fond du Lac is the Patty House. It was built on the old Lewis House site, corner of Main and Sheboygan streets, in 1867, by B. S. Patty. It was constructed of brick and "Taveheedah marble," which is a creamy-white limestone, and fronts eighty feet on Main, and 140 feet on Sheboygan street; is four stories high, and cost about $65,000. It is the most noticeable building in Fond du Lac, and the largest hotel in the State outside of Milwaukee, containing 105 rooms, all of them large and high. The Patty House was opened to the public May 9, 1868, and dedicated by a grand ball June 9 of the same year. This opening ball was an elaborate affair, for which 1,400 tickets at $5 each were sold. In January, 1871, B. S. Patty died. His sons, J. W. and G. R. Patty, managed its affairs until May 8, 1871, when Byron Town leased it for a term of five years. He remained three years and a half, doing a large and profitable business, after which the Patty brothers again took possession. A recent writer gives this description of the Patty House:

"The Patty House is the architectural pride of Fond du Lac. It stands on a prominent corner of the commercial center of the city. Its 220 feet of solid marble frontage on two streets point it out as an evidence of the prosperity of the city which it adorns. Designed by a leading New York architect, who had made hotels a study, and erected under his supervision at an outlay of $65,000, it will ever remain a monument to the memory of its enterprising projector."

National Hotel.—The National Hotel is a handsome, two-story brick structure, built by Edmund N. Korrer in 1866 and 1872, on the corner of West Division and Brooke streets. It has a frontage of ninety feet on Division, and sixty feet on Brooke street. It was opened in 1872, by Mrs. Bessie Riley, who is the present lessee. It is a pleasant and neatly kept hotel, and, being near the depot, has a good trade.

First National Hotel.—In 1872, M. Van Dresar purchased the large wooden building then located on the corner of Forest and Main streets, and used by the First National Bank, whence it took its name, and moved the structure bodily to the corner of Fourth and Marr streets. The inside was remodeled, and the building opened as the "First National Hotel." Prices were put down one-half; large sheds for horses and stock were erected—the first ever built for such a purpose in the city—and the business was pushed in the direction of the farmers and laboring people. It was the greatest success of the time as a hotel, where good lodgings and plenty of wholesome food could be had at cheap rates, and cleared $5,000 the first thirteen months after it was opened. It is now leased by Mr. Van Dresar to the Doekstader brothers, who manage it on the plan first adopted by him, and with good success.

Other Hotels.—The "Washington House," corner of Main and Fifth streets, by Martin Franey, is a large hotel, patronized largely by farmers.

The "Serwe House," by C. Serwe, on Main street, is a three-story, wooden building, which has served as a hotel during a long term of years. It is a popular hostelry with the German travelers and farmers, and has a large patronage.

Joseph Kaiser's "Fountain City Hotel," on Main street, just north of Division, is one of the popular German hotels of Fond du Lac. It is three stories high, of wood, and has its full share of patronage. Besides these, there are the following: The "European Hotel," on West Division street, kept by John C. Kennealy; the "Wisconsin House," on Main street; the "Central Hotel," by W. Korrer, at the foot of Main street; the "Milwaukee House," on Fourth street, by Julius Nast; "Brown's Hotel," corner of Scott and Juneau streets, W. Comstock, proprietor; "Gilbert House," at 373 Main street, by Adam Weikert; and "Temperance Hotel," corner of Waupun and Johnson streets, P. Scheff, proprietor.

BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS AND SOCIETIES.

Home for the Friendless.—The Home for the Friendless, with its ample grounds and large, comfortable building, is an outgrowth and the exclusive property of the Fond du Lac Relief Society, which was organized by the ladies of Fond du Lac, during the great fires in Northern Michigan and Wisconsin. Mrs. Julia Tallmadge Ruggles was the leading spirit in organizing the Relief Society. She was also mainly instrumental in securing a charter for the society, enabling it to hold property, and in raising money to purchase the building now owned and occupied as the "Home." Her original idea was to have an industrial school connected with the Home, so that needy people might be provided with employment at fair wages.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fenimore Beall, until her death in 1879, was also an earnest worker in the Relief Society. The first annual report of the Society was in April, 1875. It contained the original articles of association, as required by chapter 146, laws of 1872, showing that the following ladies were the founders of the Society: Mrs. Elizabeth F. Beall, Mary W. Stow, E. B. Tallmadge, Mary T. Hamilton, Susan A. Perry, Mary Branshaw, E. A. Walker, Julia T. Ruggles, C. L. Spears, C. F. Townsend, E. A. Hurd, Mary L. Hiner and E. P. Lusk. A large number of other ladies afterward became members, the life membership fee being $25.

In 1876, the State made an appropriation of $300, and until 1879, the county set aside $300 annually for the Home. At its session in that year the County Board refused to make an appropriation. Mrs. William B. Brand, at her death in 1878, bequeathed some real estate and $200 in cash to the Home, and the citizens of Fond du Lac have given liberally to its support. George W. Peck delivered a lecture for the benefit of the Home, and various fairs, concerts, dramas and other entertainments have been given to replenish its treasury. These have always been liberally patronized.

The building occupied as the Home for the Friendless is situated on the corner of Amory and Arndt streets, and was purchased by the Fond du Lac Relief Society August 30, 1873, of R. M. Lewis, for $2,500. It is commodious and well arranged for the use to which it has been put, and is surrounded by a finely shaded yard and large garden. The Home is the only non-sectarian benevolent institution in the city, and has accomplished great good, extending aid to persons of all ages and shades of religious opinion. The different Presidents have been, Mrs. E. F. Beall, Mrs. B. F. Patty, Mrs. W. H. Hiner, Mrs. J. F. Aldrich and Mrs. J. R. Smith. Secretaries—Mrs. C. W. Seaver, Mrs. J. F. Aldrich, Mrs. J. R. Smith, Mrs. M. E. Deveraux. Treasurers—Mrs. W. H. Hiner, Mrs. C. K. Pier, Mrs. Dr. Walker, Mrs. J. R. Smith.

St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy and Orphan Asylum.—In January, 1876, the Sisters of Mercy purchased the S. E. Lefferts place, on East Second street, for $4,500, and converted it into a convent and asylum. In each of the years, 1876, 1877 and 1878, the county voted $300 aid to the Sisters. With this, and the personal means belonging to each, the building was raised another story, fences were built and other improvements made. At the same time the debt for purchase money was reduced to $1,127. Sister Mary Agnes is the Mother Superior, in whom rests the title to all property. She has sixteen associates. There are twenty-four orphan children now being clothed, fed and educated at the asylum. They are taught whatever trade they seem best adapted to follow. Thirty have found good homes through these Sisters, and others been put in a way to earn their own livelihood. In addition to caring for orphans, the Sisters visit and aid the poor everywhere, and take in and care for distressed women of good character. They have a commodious three-story building, well furnished; a good schoolroom and a neatly arranged dormitory for the children. The amount of good they quietly and secretly do is incalculable. By donations of the charitable and their own industry, the Sisters are constantly enlarging their field of usefulness. They are, of course, Catholic.

St. Agnes' Convent.—One of the largest and finest buildings in Fond du Lac is St. Agnes' Convent on East Division street. In August, 1871, a band of St. Agnes' Sisters came to Fond du Lac and purchased a house and several lots on East Division street. Three years later, they built another house of brick, and in 1877, erected the present structure. It is of brick and stone, with stone roof 120x43 feet, and four stories in height, with basement. Its cost was $20,000. Preparations are constantly making for the construction of other buildings, to which the present large structure will be only one wing. This Convent is the head of all others in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Texas, Kansas, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana. Sister Mary Agnes, the Mother Superior, is Superior General over all those States. There are 120 Sisters belonging to this Convent, who are teaching in various localities, whence the means necessary to carry forward such an extensive work are derived. In this Convent are twenty-two orphans who are clothed, fed and taught in all branches of learning and industry. The needle and fancy decorative work turned out is remarkable in design, beauty and quantity. Everything in the Convent betokens system, culture, genius and comfort. Pictures and plants are in all the rooms, in which also dwell courteousness, cleanliness and cheerfulness. All the Sisters are Catholics, and their work is a branch of the Catholic Church work.

Workingmen's Association.—This society, which is composed of Germans and was organized for benevolent purposes, meets every Friday night in the Bischoff Block, on Main street. It has been in existence since 1876. Its By-Laws provide that, in case of the sickness of any member, he shall receive $3 per week benefit during such sickness, and, in case of death, each member shall pay $1 to his family. If the wife of a member dies, this assessment is 50 cents each; and if a child dies, 25 cents each. The officers are Peter Pehl, President; Herman Walter, Secretary, and John Luhn, Treasurer.

La Belle Wagon Works Mutual Benefit Association.—This benevolent society is composed of the men connected with the La Belle Wagon Works, and was organized June 4, 1878, with B. F. Moore, President; C. H. Moore, Vice President; S. P. Morse, Secretary; A. L. Moore, Treasurer. The Association has two classes of mutual insurance. The one requires each member to pay 50 cents per month into the treasury, and, in case of injury, he will receive $7 per week benefit during his disability. The other requires each member to pay one-half as much per month, and the benefits are one-half smaller. The Association numbers fifty, with the original officers in charge.

St. Michael's Society.—This is a German Catholic benevolent association, organized for the mutual benefit of its members. It was formed in April, 1870, and is a branch of the German Catholic Central Society of the United States. In case of the sickness or disability of any member, he is paid $3 per week from the benefit fund, and, in case of his death, $35 is set aside for funeral expenses. In case of the death of a member's wife, $20 is set aside for the same purpose. The Society, which has seventy-five members, meets in Reinig's Hall every Tuesday evening. The officers are Fred Wagner, President; Anton Born, Secretary, and Michael Kaufman, Treasurer. It is a strong and prosperous organization.

Concordia Benevolent Society.—This Society, which exists for the purpose of affording aid to its members and their families, was organized February 10, 1866. The Society pays $4 per week to any member in case of and during sickness, and, at his death, the funeral expenses. It is composed entirely of Germans, has about fifty members, and holds its meetings, on the first Wednesday of each month, in J. & C. Frey's block, on Main street. The officers are Peter Pehl, President; Casper Schleiden, Secretary, and John Hirsch, Treasurer. The Society has a large surplus in the treasury.

St. Patrick's Benevolent Society.—This Society, formed for purely benevolent purposes, was organized April 20, 1869, by the election of John W. Gill, President. It has been continuously engaged in acts of benevolence since that time, holding monthly meetings in Weleh's Hall, on Main street. John W. Gill has been President five times—in 1869, 1871, 1873, 1877 and 1879; Maurice McKenna in 1872 and 1874; Thomas McCrory, 1876; Maurice Fitzsimons, 1875; A. A. Kelley, 1878.

St. Joseph's Benevolent Association.—This society, formed purely for benevolent purposes, was organized March 4, 1866. The charter members were Joseph Serwe, Joseph Erman, Joseph Hetwere, Andrew Hetwere, J. H. Gores, John Dana, John Merz, Nicholas Jenner, Anton Servatius, Peter Servatius, William Buchel, Jack Thellan, Peter Breister, G. Scherzinger, Martin Lohmiller and Joseph Stollenwork. The first officers were: Joseph Serwe, President; A. Servatius, Vice President; John H. Gores, Secretary; Joseph Hetwere, Vice Secretary; Joseph Erman, Treasurer. The society pays $3 per week benefit to any member during sickness, $150 to his heirs in case of death, $25 in case of the death of the wife of any member, and furnishes nightly attendance during sickness. A person cannot join the Association unless he is of good character, between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, in good health, and a member of the Catholic Church. The initiation fee is $3 for persons from sixteen to twenty-five years of age, $4 from twenty-five to thirty-five, $5 from thirty-five to forty-five, and $6 from forty-five to fifty; monthly dues, 25 cents. The society now has a membership of sixty-five, with $1,500 in the treasury. The officers are: John Peter Stephanii, President; B. Serwe, Vice President; C. Serwe, Treasurer; C. Schmidt, Secretary; John Ditter, Vice Secretary. The society meets on the first Sunday of every month, over the German-American Savings Bank.

Firemen's Benevolent Association.—This Association, organized for purely benevolent purposes, for members of the Fire Department only, was formed October 18, 1876, and incorporated by act of Legislature March 7, 1877. Its officers were: A. B. Taylor, President; George W. Casey, Vice President; Charles W. Green, Secretary; L. F. Stowe, Treasurer. Directors—Fire Company No. 1, C. M. Bowen, J. C. Kenecaly; Fire Company No. 3, George W. Crosby, Henry Rosenow; Fire Company No. 5, William H. Hurley, Ferd. J. Martin; Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, Henry Dirkes, John Strause. The Association received from the insurance agents of the city a tax of 2 per cent on all premiums received upon fire policies, and also, regularly, a stated sum from all members. In case of sickness or injury, any member received $3 per week, and $50 for funeral expenses in case of death. Aid was also given to the families of firemen at the option of the officers of the Association. This organization, which was always strong, financially, went out of existence after the city organized the paid Fire Department, in 1878. A new association was organized immediately thereafter, but the 2 per cent tax on the insurance agents was diverted to the city treasury. The new Association has the following officers; President, George P. Dana; Vice President, Henry Rosenow; Secretary, Louis A. Lange; Treasurer, Herman Rupp.

LITERARY AND OTHER SOCIETIES.

Young Men's Association.—A meeting of some of the leading citizens of Fond du Lac was held in Gillet & Conklin's law office November 21, 1863, "for the purpose of forming a literary and library association." B. F. Moore was President, and H. P. Brown, Secretary, of the meeting. Gen. C. S. Hamilton, now of Milwaukee, paid the required fee and became the first member. It was decided to adopt for government the Constitution and By-Laws, with slight modification, of the Young Men's Association of Milwaukee, which was done. After the Constitution was adopted, the first election of officers under it resulted as follows: President, William H. Hiner; Vice President, C. S. Hamilton; Secretary, H. P. Brown; Treasurer, James B. Perry; Directors—J. M. Gillet, Rev. H. M. Robertson, B. F. Moore, E. L. Griffin, James Coleman. Any person could become a life member upon the payment of $25. With the proceeds of the sale of life memberships, the first books were purchased.

As soon as in working order, the Association set about securing a course of lectures. This was the first regular lecture course ever inaugurated in the city, and consisted of lectures by Charles D. Robinson, of the Green Bay Advocate; Judge Arthur McArthur, of Milwaukee, now of Washington; Dr. O. H. Tiffany, now of New York; Edward G. Ryan, now Chief Justice of Wisconsin; Prof. J. D. Butler; Rev. E. Nisbet, of Fond du Lac, and Rev. C. D. Helmer. Dr. Tiffany received the highest fee, $50, and Edward G. Ryan, whose lecture was highly praised, received the smallest, $10.

In May, 1864, a library room was secured in H. P. Brown's wooden building, since burned, on the corner of Main and Forest streets. George P. Knowles was elected Librarian, and $225 voted to be used in the purchase of books, which was expended by A. M. Blair. The Association continued to increase in membership, enlarge its library and strengthen its financial condition, furnishing a course of lectures, at moderate figures, each season, until 1869, when the expenditures began to exceed the receipts, and the members found their organization in debt $220. In December, a meeting was held to make arrangements to consolidate with the Young Men's Christian Association. This fell through, and Dana C. Lamb moved that the Trustees secure $220 upon a mortgage on the property of the Association, or secure the creditors by such mortgage. E. H. Galloway advanced the money, and secured himself by taking a mortgage on the library.

In August, 1870, George W. Carter introduced a resolution to the effect that all officers who could not or would not attend to their duties had better resign. This renewed the energy of the slow ones for a time. Mr. Galloway's mortgage was paid, with interest, on the 1st of December, 1870.

May 9, 1871, the Association again found itself in debt, after settling for the lecture of M. Du Chailln, to the extent of $42.68. The lecture course of the following seasons did not wipe it out, and, February 11, 1873, a committee was appointed to see how the increasing indebtedness could be paid, and, February 22, the Secretary was instructed to close the library and box up the books. The debt was then $125. In 1874, Ann Eliza Young was secured for a lecture, but the receipts did not pay the debts of the Association, and George H. Francis, the Librarian, was compelled to collect bills for arrearages of dues for his pay, and to accept for his payment in full whatever he could collect. In May, 1876, a resolution was adopted instructing the officers to turn the books and property over to the city, provided the city would establish and maintain a free reading-room and public library.

The last meeting of the Directors was held February 27, 1877, when all the books, numbering 1,500 volumes, and other property, were formally delivered to the city, the vote on maintaining a public library having been favorable. Thus the foundation of the present public library was laid by the Young Men's Association, which existed fourteen years; furnished the first course of lectures, opened the first library in the city, and went out of existence in debt.

The last President was N. S. Gilson, and the last Secretary, J. F. Ware. The records are not all extant, but the following is a list of the life members of the Association: C. S. Hamilton, S. B. Amory, A. M. Blair, William H. Hiner, I. K. Hamilton, Woodman C. Hamilton, Edwin H. Galloway, James Ewen, Robert Flint, Charles A. Eldredge, Hiram K. Laughlin, Robert A. Baker, John Sewell, B. S. Patty, B. F. Moore, John S. McDonald, C. J. Pettibone, Allan Carswell, James M. Gillet, Edward Pier, William B. Brand.

American Red Ribbon Association.—In February, 1879, Dr. McCollister came to Fond du Lac and began a series of temperance meetings, first in Amory Hall and later in Opera Hall, the Free Baptist Church, on the corner of Marr and Second streets, and the Unitarian Church, on Division street. These continued, with varying success, until May, when he left, and the meetings were continued by local managers. May 29, a permanent organization was perfected by the election of John S. McDonald, President; E. Delany, Jr., Vice President; T. S. Nowell, S. P. Morse, Dr. D. B. Wyatt and Robert Wyatt, Directors; Samuel H. Hammond, Secretary; Robert Wyatt, Treasurer, and Rev. F. A. Marsh, Chaplain.

The purpose of the organization, as set forth in its Constitution, is to promote the cause of temperance and sobriety by abstaining from the use of all intoxicating liquors. The members are interested and active enough to meet three times each week—on Sunday evenings, for temperance work and addresses; on Tuesday evenings, for the transaction of business, and on Friday evenings, for charades, music, recitations, socials and general entertainment. To these an admission fee of 10 cents is charged, which all, whether members or not, must pay. All members are also required to pay 5 cents per week for dues. At its organization the Association contained 2,360 members, which number is steadily increasing, the present membership being 2,500. The meetings are held in the Unitarian Church, on Division street, which was remodeled for the use of the Association. The building has movable seats, an elegant, though small, stage, and a wing in the rear for cooking and to be used preparing for sociables and other entertainments. Some of the foremost and wealthiest citizens of Fond du Lac are active members, and the Association is in a flourishing condition. Besides paying a rental of $350 per annum for the church and all other expenses, the organization has a surplus in the treasury. When this surplus is sufficiently enlarged, it is the purpose of the Association to purchase the building it now rents. S. H. Hammond was succeeded in January, 1880, by Mrs. C. H. De Groat.

Neocosmian Society.—This literary association was organized in the Congregational Church parlors Wednesday, January 17, 1872, by the election of Dr. D. B. Wyatt as President; Miss F. C. Mihills, Vice President, and S. G. Leland, Secretary. A Constitution and By-Laws proposed by D. B. Wyatt and N. S. Gilson, were adopted, and the business of furnishing entertainments began at once. The membership began from the start to increase rapidly, and in three years had reached 450. The Society rented Opera Hall at $500 per year, changing its name to Neocosmian Hall. Its fixtures and stage property were overhauled and embellished; a paper called the Neocosmian was issued, and the Society became a power, furnishing a lecture course every winter, and scores of fine entertainments during other portions of the year. On the 23d of March, 1874, the Society opened a free reading-room in the Sewell Block, next to the First National Bank. The library was accessible to all who paid 25 cents per quarter for the use of books. In 1875, the Society, owing to the very large rent paid for the hall, other large expenses and the loss of $100, which was collected for, but never realized by, the Society, found itself in debt to the extent of $600. This was mostly for hall rent, and the proprietors, Oberreich & Bonesteel, becoming anxious lest it should not be paid, sued the officers and Directors of the Society. This added to the already burdensome debt, but it was all paid promptly by subscription. This subscription paper is worthy of preservation, as it demonstrated the great liberality of several of the citizens of Fond du Lac. In 1876, the Society began to weaken very materially, and its officers were instructed by resolution to join with the Young Men's Association, which was likewise in debt and near its end, in making a proposition to the city to take the books of both societies and establish a free public library, as provided for by law. The proposition was accepted, and, in the spring of 1877, the books, nearly nine hundred volumes, were turned over to the Public Library, and the furniture sold for $57 to the city for the use of the library. The Neocosmian Society was the most active and enterprising of any ever organized in Fond du Lac, and furnished a greater variety of entertainments. The first President and Secretary were D. B. Wyatt and S. G. Leland; second, J. W. Bass and George W. Todd; third, George W. Todd and John D. Wyatt; fourth, George W. Todd and Dr. E. Mitchell; fifth, C. E. Shepard and Mrs. E. H. Jones; sixth, J. W. Bass and C. E. Dailey; seventh, J. F. Ware and W. F. Boland; eighth, C. H. De Groat and W. F. Boland; ninth, H. R. Farnum and W. F. Boland; tenth, eleventh and twelfth, George E. Sutherland and John D. Wyatt; thirteenth, E. S. Curran and John E. Kent; fourteenth, George W. Todd and J. E. Kent; fifteenth, C. D. Otis and J. E. Kent; sixteenth, O. T. Williams and John E. Kent, who surrendered to the Public Library.

Erina Dramatic Society.—This Society, which devoted itself entirely to the preparation and presentation of dramas and comedies, was organized August 1, 1875, and consisted then of L. F. Haas, P. H. Hannigan, A. A. Kelley, W. F. Boland, D. W. McKenna, Harry Shafer, T. C. Doheny, L. Pelletier, William Cahill, William Bischoff, Mrs. M. Haas, Miss Ella Roach and Mary Burke. L. F. Haas was Manager; P. H. Hannigan, Secretary; Mrs. Maggie Haas, Treasurer, and Henry Shafer, an actor of the early times with Langrishe & Atwater, stage manager. August 30, 1875, the company put "Ireland as It Is" upon the stage, and cleared $200 for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church. For the benefit of the same church, they played "Robert Emmet" to a crowded house, November 17, 1875. After playing in Fond du Lac, the company put this piece and others on the stage in adjoining cities and villages. Various and very difficult plays have been presented to the public by them in creditable style. The leading characters are taken by P. Hannigan, William Bischoff, Mrs. Maggie Haas, Miss Julia Mullen and A. A. Kelley. The proceeds of all entertainments always go for charitable purposes. The manner in which "Con the Shaughraun" was rendered by this company could be equaled by few professional troupes. In May, 1876, the members presented to the late Mr. G. I. Burrows, the veteran janitor of Amory Hall, a handsome silver cup, for kindnesses rendered.

Turnverein Fond du Lac.—This is one of the oldest Turner societies in Wisconsin. Under the name of the Socialer Turnverein, it was organized April 18, 1855, with twenty members, all Germans. The first officers were: President, Louis Goldstucker; Secretary, Charles A. Handt; Treasurer, Casper Buechner; Teachers, Thomas Boebel and A. Vogt. The first meetings were held in J. & C. Frey's brewery building, corner of Macy and Division streets. The first ball and exhibition ever given was in September, 1855. In July, 1856, a lot on Portland street was purchased of Mason C. Darling. The original building, now occupied by the Turners, was purchased by them of the Plymouth branch of the Congregational church, and moved from the corner of Macy and First streets in 1866. The land on which it first stood belonged to the German and English Academy, from which the Turners had a lease. The building is well equipped for balls, theatricals, masquerades and socials, having an orchestra, dressing-rooms and ample stage. The stage was added by erecting an addition to the building in 1871, at which time a lot adjoining the Academy was purchased of Mrs. Caroline Martin for $1,000, and the hall moved thereon. In 1874, the State Turnfest was held in Fond du Lac, the visiting Turners being guests of the Fond du Lac society. A picnic was held in Taylor's Grove, concert by Bach's Band in Amory Hall, and a ball at Turner Hall. The festivities lasted four days. In 1874, the society was incorporated as the Turnverein Fond du Lac. At a meeting of the Turner delegates at Sheboygan in 1878, Fond du Lac was chosen as the headquarters for the State, and the following officers were chosen: Grand President, R. Katz; Vice President, G. Burghardt; Secretary, J. Thomsen; Treasurer, L. Goldstucker. Their terms were from September 1, 1878, to September 1, 1879.

Those of this society who went to Milwaukee to join the Turner volunteer company during the rebellion were G. Binghardt, C. Schnell, L. Camtz, H. Rube, Aug. Hecker, F. Grassel, A. Vogt and H. Feldrapp.

The society has eighty members. As 1880 is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization, L. Goldstuecker, the first President, was chosen to the same office. The society is preparing for a grand anniversary celebration.

Young Men's Club.—This is an organization for mutual pleasure and improvement. It was formed in October, 1874, with these charter members: Robert C. Baker, F. M. Dana, E. A. Burnton, W. L. Bishop, A. Tallmadge, F. L. Clark, E. E. Boyer, John Sewell, Jr., W. P. Findeisen. The first meeting was held October 4, 1874, when R. C. Baker was elected President; F. M. Dana, Vice President; E. A. Burnton, Secretary, and W. L. Bishop, Treasurer. Meetings are held monthly in Smith & Alling's Block, where the Club has a room tastefully furnished with books, papers and musical instruments. The officers for 1880 are: Frank B. Hoskins, President; Frank M. Dana, Secretary; Ed S. Curran, Treasurer, and E. A. Burnton, Director.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

On the 9th of October, 1876, the City Council received a joint proposition from the Young Men's Association and the Neocosmian Society to donate to the city the libraries of these two literary societies, provided the municipality would establish and maintain, as allowed by the law of 1872, a Free Reading Room and Public Library. This law provides that villages and cities, of not over fifty thousand inhabitants, may each year levy a tax of one mill on each dollar of the taxable property of such village or city, for the establishment and maintenance of a free reading room and public library, provided that the matter be submitted to a vote of the people and be approved by a majority of them. The Council acted favorably upon the proposition, and resolved to submit it to the vote of the city at the next general election, with the provision that the amount of tax to be raised and set aside as a library fund should not exceed $\frac{1}{2}$ of a mill on the dollar of all taxable property. The election was held Tuesday, November 7, 1876, and resulted in 1,258 votes being cast for establishing a Public Library and 151 against it. The Council, at its meeting on December 4, after the election, directed the tax of $\frac{1}{2}$ of a mill to be levied, and appointed a Board of Directors for the Library, consisting of the following: S. S. Bowers, N. C. Giffin, George Perkins, O. T. Williams, Charles E. Shepard, George P. Knowles, A. M. Blair, Elihu Colman and C. A. Hutchins. This board held its first meeting in the Council-rooms December 8, 1876, and elected C. A. Hutchins, President; N. C. Giffin, Vice President, and Elihu Colman, Secretary. Directors for one, two and three years were chosen by lot, C. A. Hutchins, N. C. Giffin and Elihu Colman being chosen for one year from July 1, 1877; George Perkins, O. T. Williams and George P. Knowles for two years, and S. S. Bowers, A. M. Blair and C. E. Shepard for three years from the same time.

January 5, 1877, Miss Augusta Ball was chosen Librarian, at a salary of \$250 per annum, with a bond, guaranteeing faithful performance of duty, of \$500. February 3, 1877, John Amory's proposition to rent the two rooms now occupied by the Library, in the second story of 454 Main street, at \$125 per annum during five years, was accepted. The furniture used by the Neocosmian Society was purchased at \$57, other necessary fixtures were obtained at once, and the Reading Room opened March 1, 1877. The Library was opened to the public April 5, and consisted of 1,200 volumes of books, donated by the Neocosmian Society and the Young Men's Association. These two societies donated to the city 1,559 volumes, but only 1,200 were found available, the balance consisting of duplicates or unreturned books, which could not be delivered. The tax levied— $\frac{3}{10}$ of a mill instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ of a mill—became available January 1, 1877, and \$500 of the amount raised was used to purchase new books. The balance, nearly \$800, was used for furniture and running expenses.

At the first annual meeting held July 27, 1877, C. A. Hutchins was re-elected President; N. C. Giffin, Vice President; Elihu Colman, Secretary, and Miss Augusta Ball, Librarian. Her salary was fixed at $250, as before. At the second annual meeting of the Board of Directors, held August 9, 1878, C. A. Hutchins was re-elected President, George P. Knowles, Vice President, and O. T. Williams, Secretary. At the third annual meeting of the Board, held August 8, 1879, C. A. Hutchins was re-elected President, George P. Knowles, Vice President, and Joseph W. Hiner, Secretary.

The Library now contains 3,500 volumes of standard works, and the Reading Room is well supplied with magazines, weekly and daily newspapers, and the various other periodicals of the day. The Library is free to all residents of the city, and its advantages may be enjoyed by non-residents upon the payment of $2 per annum. The library and reading rooms are connected by a high arch, thus throwing the two into a single apartment, 98x16 feet, facing Main street on the east and Macy street on the west. Printed catalogues are sold to those desiring them, and the institution is patronized liberally by all classes. New standard works are added as fast as published, but the Library contains nothing frivolous or immoral. The sum raised by taxation for 1877 was $1,128.98; for 1878, $1,638.52; for 1879, $1,621.62. The Library has a small income also from the sale of catalogues.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Fountain Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M.—Fountain Lodge, No 26, Free and Accepted Masons, was organized under a "dispensation" dated September 13, 1849, which was granted to Mason C. Darling, George H. Beech, Arnold Friedman, N. Perry, George D. Ruggles, S. J. Lusk, James Meyers and John C. Reeve. The organization was perfected September 28, 1849, and the charter granted by the Grand Lodge, December 15 of the same year. The first petitioners were E. W. Davis, still resident of Fond du Lac, and John Bannister. The first members admitted (that is, those who had become Masons elsewhere) were O. J. Soper, John Petit and Rev. Joshua Sweet.

The officers consist of a Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens, Treasurer and Secretary, elected by ballot; and a Senior and Junior Deacon, two Stewards, Tiler, and an Organist, appointed by the Worshipful Master. The meetings or "communications" are held the first and third Thursday evenings of each month, in the fine Masonic Hall, in the third story of the First National Bank block. This is the oldest Masonic Lodge in the city and county of Fond du Lac. It is now composed of 131 members. Its elective officers from the date of its organization to date are as follows:

For 1849—M. C. Darling, W. M.; George H. Beech, S. W.; Arnold Friedman, J. W.; N. Perry, Treas.; George D. Ruggles, Sec. 1850—M. C. Darling, W. M.; George H. Beech, S. W.; John Bannister, J. W.; E. W. Drury, Treas.; O. B. Tyler, Sec. 1851—M. C. Darling, W. M.; O. B. Tyler, S. W.; H. B. Bullong, J. W.; W. H. Hiner, Sec. 1852—M. C. Darling, W. M.; W. H. Hiner, S. W.; A. G. Ruggles, J. W.; J. L. Henry, Treas.; E. B. Livingstone, Sec. 1853—W. H. Hiner, W. M.; O. J. Soper, S. W.; E. W. Drury, J. W.; J. L. Henry, Treas.; A. W. Paine, Sec. 1854—W. H. Hiner, W. M.; I. S. Sherwood, S. W.; F. D. McCarty, J. W.; M. C. Darling, Treas.; D. E. Wood, Sec. 1855—I. S. Sherwood, W. M.; John Bannister, S. W.; O. J. Soper, J. W.; J. L. Henry, Treas.; A. W. Paine, Sec. 1856—John Bannister, W. M.; A. W. Paine, S. W.; A. S. Gregory, J. W.; George McWilliams, Treas.; C. F. Kalk, Sec. 1857—A. W. Paine, W. M.; D. E. Wood, S. W.; D. A. Ward, J. W.; George McWilliams, Treas.; C. F. Kalk, Sec. 1858—W. H. Hiner, W. M.; D. A. Ward, S. W.; T. S. Weeks, J. W.; George McWilliams, Treas.; J. B. Perry, Sec. 1859—O. J. Soper, W. M.; T. S. Weeks, S. W.; D. C. Wright, J. W.; J. B. Perry, Treas.; A. H. Boardman, Sec. 1860—W. H. Hiner, W. M.; D. C. Wright, S. W.; A. H. Boardman, J. W.; J. B. Perry, Treas.; J. V. McCall, Sec. 1861—I. S. Sherwood, W. M.; D. C. Wright, S. W.; J. V. McCall, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; George W. Sawyer, Sec. 1862—W. H. Hiner, W. M.; D. C. Wright, S. W.; J. V. McCall, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. H. Hayford, Sec. 1863—D. C. Wright, W. M.; J. V. McCall, S. W.; K. A. Darling, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. S. Burrows, Sec. 1864—D. C. Wright, W. M.; J. V. McCall, S. W.; K. A. Darling, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1865—J. V. McCall, W. M.; D. C. Leper, S. W.; I. K. Hamilton, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1866—I. K. Hamilton, W. M.; J. S. Burrows, S. W.; P. L. Morse, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.;

D R Van Deyne
ROND DU LAC.

J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1867—I. K. Hamilton, W. M.; N. C. Giffin, S. W.; O. C. Steenberg, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1868—N. C. Giffin, W. M.; J. S. Burrows, S. W.; John Spence, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1869—J. S. Burrows, W. M.; John Spence, S. W.; Samuel Smith, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1870—N. C. Giffin, W. M.; John Spence, S. W.; W. C. Hamilton, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; J. C. Waterbury, Sec. 1871—J. S. Burrows, W. M.; Samuel Smith, S. W.; D. Chamberlain, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. 1872—J. S. Burrows, W. M.; Samuel Smith, S. W.; C. W. Smith, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. 1873—J. S. Burrows, W. M.; Charles Marks, S. W.; W. M. Hawkins, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. 1874—J. S. Burrows, W. M.; C. W. Smith, S. W.; Samuel Smith, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. 1875—John Spence, W. M.; C. W. Smith, S. W.; S. H. Cheney, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. 1876—John Spence, W. M.; S. H. Cheney, S. W.; Samuel Smith, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; Thomas Bryant, Sec. 1877—S. H. Cheney, W. M.; C. W. Smith, S. W.; R. Katz, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. 1878-79—J. S. Burrows, W. M.; C. W. Smith, S. W.; A. C. Burnham, J. W.; J. C. Lowell, Treas.; S. W. Townsend, Sec. The charter members are all dead.

Fond du Lac Lodge, No. 140., E. and A. M.—For the organization of this Lodge, a "dispensation" was granted August 21, 1862, to I. S. Sherwood, A. B. Taylor, H. A. Francis, George McWilliams, C. F. Kalk, S. A. Dudley, D. Ladd, A. H. Boardman, Ed Farnsworth, J. B. Perry, George W. Sawyer, Thomas S. Weeks, J. O. Roorbach, A. G. Ruggles, D. R. Curran, John Petit and George W. Jones. The Lodge was organized in due form, September 3, 1862, and a charter granted June 10, 1863, by the Grand Lodge. The first petitioner was L. M. Wyatt, and the first member admitted was A. M. Blair. The regular meetings or "communications" of this Lodge are on the second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month, in the Masonic Hall, third floor of the First National Bank building. The number of members is now eighty-six, and the officers, from its organization to date, have been:

For 1862—A. H. Boardman, W. M.; Thomas S. Weeks, S. W.; J. B. Perry, J. W.; George McWilliams, Treas.; G. W. Sawyer, Sec. 1863—A. H. Boardman, W. M.; Thomas S. Weeks, S. W.; J. B. Perry, J. W.; I. S. Sherwood, Treas.; L. M. Wyatt, Sec. 1864—A. M. Blair, W. M.; B. F. Moore, S. W.; Edward Beeson, J. W.; I. S. Sherwood, Treas.; J. B. Perry, Sec. 1865—D. C. Lamb, W. M.; B. F. Moore, S. W.; S. Oberreich, J. W.; Edward Beeson, Treas.; C. L. Enking, Sec. 1866—D. C. Lamb, W. M.; A. P. Mapes, S. W.; George P. Knowles, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; M. W. Simmons, Sec. 1867—D. C. Lamb, W. M.; George P. Knowles, S. W.; C. L. Enking, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; F. A. Hoffman, Sec. 1868—George P. Knowles, W. M.; A. L. Hall, S. W.; W. F. Lewis, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; F. D. Carson, Sec. 1869—D. C. Lamb, W. M.; George P. Knowles, S. W.; C. L. Enking, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; F. A. Hoffman, Sec. 1870—George P. Knowles, W. M.; A. A. Shepherd, S. W.; J. E. Hilts, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; L. D. Hurd, Sec. 1871—A. A. Shepherd, W. M.; E. G. Main, S. W.; H. Sherer, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; C. S. Patton, Sec. 1872—A. A. Shepherd, W. M.; H. Sherer, S. W.; William Stearns, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; I. N. Welch, Sec. 1873—A. M. Blair, W. M.; E. G. Main, S. W.; M. Wagner, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; L. R. Lewis, Sec. 1874—E. G. Main, W. M.; L. A. Bishop, S. W.; C. Zickerick, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; K. E. Clark, Sec. 1875—E. G. Main, W. M.; L. A. Bishop, S. W.; S. E. Wade, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; K. E. Clark, Sec. 1876—L. A. Bishop, W. M.; M. Wagner, S. W.; E. B. Beeson, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; L. Muentner, Sec. 1877—L. A. Bishop, W. M.; M. Wagner, S. W.; E. B. Beeson, J. W.; William Rueping, Treas.; L. Muentner, Sec. 1878—J. H. McNeel, W. M.; E. B. Beeson, S. W.; J. W. Lockin, J. W.; G. W. Lusk, Treas.; L. Muentner, Sec. 1879—J. H. McNeel, W. M.; E. B. Beeson, S. W.; G. A. Knapp, J. W.; G. W. Lusk, Treas.; J. W. Lockin, Sec.

Darling Chapter, No. 20, Royal Arch Masons.—This Chapter, one of the higher degrees of Masonry, was organized under a "dispensation" bearing date February 24, 1859, granted to Isaac S. Sherwood, Mason C. Darling, E. W. Davis, William H. Hiner, Elijah Hawkins, Stephen Hawkins, I. J. Seligman, George G. Gould and Benjamin Granger, empowering them "to form and open a Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and to confer the several degrees belonging to the Chapter." Isaac S. Sherwood was appointed the first High Priest; Mason C. Darling the first King, and E. W. Davis the first Scribe. The charter was received February 3, 1860, and, on the 9th of March of the same year, the Chapter was instituted in due form. The first candidates to take the degrees of Royal Arch Masonry were Thomas S. Weeks, L. O. Barnard and J. V. McCall. The lodge now consists of eighty members and is closely attended. The officers of this Chapter are a High Priest, King, Scribe, Treasurer and Secretary, who are chosen by ballot, and Captain of the Host, Principal Sojourner, Royal Arch Captain, three Grand Masters of Vails, an Organist and a Guard, appointed by the Grand Council. The meetings, or regular "convocations" of the Chapter are held on the first and third Wednesday evenings of each month, in the Masonic Hall in the First National Bank building. The elective officers of Chapter No. 20, from its first organization, have been as follows:

1859—Isaac S. Sherwood, High Priest; Mason C. Darling, King; E. W. Davis, Scribe.
 1860—Isaac S. Sherwood, H. P.; Mason C. Darling, K.; E. W. Davis, S.
 1861—A. H. Boardman, H. P.; E. W. Davis, K.; George McWilliams, S.
 1862—Isaac S. Sherwood, H. P.; E. W. Davis, K.; B. T. Miller, S.
 1863—Isaac S. Sherwood, H. P.; E. W. Davis, K.; W. H. Hiner, S.
 1864—Isaac S. Sherwood, H. P.; E. W. Davis, K.; A. P. Mapes, S.
 1865—Isaac S. Sherwood, H. P.; A. P. Mapes, K.; DeWitt C. Wright, S.
 1866—William H. Hiner, H. P.; William Wiley, K.; A. M. Blair, S.
 1867—William Wiley, H. P.; A. M. Blair, K.; George McWilliams, S.
 1868—William Wiley, H. P.; A. M. Blair, K.; D. C. Lamb, S.
 1869—A. M. Blair, H. P.; D. C. Lamb, K.; A. L. Hall, S.
 1870—D. C. Lamb, H. P.; John Spence, K.; J. H. Hauser, S.
 1871—A. M. Blair, H. P.; John Spence, K.; Charles Marks, S.
 1872—William Wiley, H. P.; J. H. Hauser, K.; John S. Burrows, S.
 1873—William Wiley, H. P.; John S. Burrows, K.; George H. Ferris, S.
 1874—J. H. Hauser, H. P.; John S. Burrows, K.; George H. Ferris, S.
 1875—J. H. Hauser, H. P.; John S. Burrows, K.; A. H. Filbey, S.
 1876—J. H. Hauser, H. P.; N. C. Giffin, K.; A. H. Filbey, S.
 1877—J. H. Hauser, H. P.; L. A. Bishop, K.; J. H. McNeel, S.
 1878—L. A. Bishop, H. P.; J. H. McNeel, K.; M. Wagner, S.
 1879—L. A. Bishop, H. P.; J. H. McNeel, K.; J. W. Lockin, S.

Fond du Lac Commandery, K. T., No. 5.—A dispensation was granted, and Fond du Lac Commandery, Knights Templar, was organized March 2, 1863, with the following charter members: Mason C. Darling, Isaac S. Sherwood, W. H. Hiner, George G. Gould, Benjamin Granger, Joseph Boles, S. Bailey Page, Arch Bishop and H. S. Baird. The first officers were: William H. Hiner, Eminent Commander; Mason C. Darling, Generalissimo; Arch Bishop, Captain General. The lodge now numbers sixty members, and meets on the first and third Mondays of each month, in the third story of the First National Bank building. The officers for 1879 were: John Spence, Eminent Commander; A. H. Dorris, Generalissimo; L. A. Bishop, Captain General.

Zeruah Lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F.—This is the Rebecca Degree of Odd Fellowship, to which the wives of Odd Fellows are admitted, and was instituted August 9, 1869, by Samuel Ryan, Jr., of Appleton. The charter members were, Henry Burwell, William Mason, H. P. Graves, A. Bachelder, J. V. Jewell, J. L. Ward, L. Reinhardt, David Roberts, Amelia Burwell, Frances Mason, Nellie Graves, E. A. Bachelder, H. Jewell, E. A. McComber, Jennet Ward and A. E. Reinhardt. The officers are: A. J. Decker, N. G.; Mrs. I. L. Hunt, V. G.; E. McNair, R. S.; H. Newton, F. S.; M. Tompkins, Treasurer. Meetings are held in Odd Fellow's Hall, on the first and third Fridays of each month.

Fond du Lac Lodge, No. 30, I. O. O. F.—This lodge is the oldest secret society in Fond du Lac County, having been organized September 4, 1848, by the M. W. G. M. Wilson, assisted by W. W. Holden as Grand Marshal; Isaac Valentine, as Senior Warden; L. B. Hills, as Junior Warden; J. C. Bishop, as Conductor; M. D. Henry and J. C. Lowell, as S. S. The charter members were, D. R. Curran, John C. Bishop, E. S. Disbrow, Charles Chandler, S. Ryan, Jr., John Bannister, J. C. Lowell, Keyes A. Darling and M. D. Henry. These are now all members in good standing, except John Bannister (deceased), J. C. Lowell and Keyes A. Darling. At the organization, Moses S. Gibson, S. S. Stebbins, J. S. Buck and William Ditson were admitted by card, and Orrin S. Wright, W. B. Ellsworth, F. D. McCarty, Edgar Conklin and Amazi L. Williams were the candidates initiated. The following officers have been elected: 1848—Milton D. Henry, N. G.; John Bannister, V. G.; D. R. Curran, R. S.; K. A. Darling, P. S.; E. S. Disbrow, Treasurer. 1849—J. Bannister, N. G.; D. R. Curran, V. G.; G. W. Weikert, R. S.; K. A. Darling, P. S.; O. S. Wright, Treasurer; D. R. Curran, N. G.; William Ditson, V. G.; J. C. Bishop, R. S.; E. G. Disbrow, Treasurer. 1850—William Ditson, N. G.; F. D. McCarty, V. G.; C. A. Eldredge, R. S.; O. S. Wright, P. S.; Q. M. Olcott, Treasurer; F. D. McCarty, N. G.; Charles A. Eldredge, V. G.; P. V. Sang, R. S.; E. D. Mattison, Treasurer. 1851—C. A. Eldredge, N. G.; E. D. Mattison, V. G.; A. B. Bowen, R. S.; K. A. Darling, P. S.; E. D. Finney, Treasurer; Amos Reed, R. S.; C. Graham, P. S.; A. H. Boardman, R. S.; E. D. Mattison, N. G.; C. J. Goss, V. G.; Nat Waterbury, R. S.; J. B. Wilbor, Treasurer. 1852—C. J. Goss, N. G.; G. W. Weikert, V. G.; A. H. Boardman, R. S.; J. B. Wilbor, Treasurer; G. W. Weikert, N. G.; John Nichols, V. G.; George W. Sawyer, R. S.; Peter Rupp, Treasurer. 1853—John Nichols, N. G.; K. A. Darling, V. G.; George W. Sawyer, R. S.; Charles Chandler, P. S.; A. Bachelder, Treasurer; K. A. Darling, N. G.; S. D. Stanchfield, V. G.; C. Chandler, Treasurer. 1854—S. D. Stanchfield, N. G.; George W. Sawyer, V. G.; S. Mann, R. S.; C. Chandler, Treasurer; G. W. Sawyer, N. G.; S. Mann, V. G.; Louis Scheffer, R. S. 1855—S. Mann, N. G.; Charles Chandler, V. G.; D. R. Curran, R. S.; D. E. Hoskins, Treasurer; C. Chandler, N. G.; C. F. Bowen, V. G.; J. H. Clum, R. S.; G. W. Sawyer, Treasurer. 1856—C. F. Bowen, N. G.; J. H. Clum, V. G.; T. S. Weeks, R. S.; D. E. Hoskins, Treasurer; J. H. Clum, N. G.; T. S. Weeks, V. G.; G. W. Sawyer, R. S.; C. F. Bowen, Treasurer. 1857—T. S. Wickes, N. G.; S. Mann, V. G.; D. R. Curran, R. S.; C. F. Bowen, Treasurer; John Nichols, N. G.; G. W. Sawyer, V. G.; Charles Chandler, R. S.; D. R. Curran, Treasurer.

Lodge surrendered charter to District Deputy Charles Chandler. Charter restored in December, 1859.

1860—John Nichols, N. G.; K. A. Darling, V. G.; Charles Chandler, R. S.; C. F. Bowen, Treasurer; K. A. Darling, N. G.; A. H. Boardman, V. G.; Charles Chandler, R. S.; John Nichols, Treasurer. 1861—K. A. Darling, N. G.; A. H. Boardman, V. G.; P. L. Morse, R. S.; John Nichols, Treasurer; S. M. Smead, N. G.; P. L. Morse, V. G.; John S. Burrows, R. S. 1862—P. L. Morse, N. G.; J. S. Burrows, V. G.; L. Q. Olcott, R. S.; John Nichols, Treasurer; S. W. Edson, R. S.; J. S. Burrows, N. G.; S. W. Edson, V. G.; A. P. Simmons, R. S. 1863—S. W. Edson, N. G.; B. F. Sweet, V. G.; Paul Reichman, R. S.; John Nichols, Treasurer; B. F. Sweet, N. G.; A. P. Jones, V. G.; J. S. Burrows, Treasurer. 1864—A. P. Jones, N. G.; P. Reichman, V. G.; C. C. L. Webster, R. S.; J. S. Burrows, Treasurer; J. Nichols, N. G.; C. C. L. Webster, V. G.; S. E. Hatch, R. S.; Daniel Roberts, Treasurer. 1865—C. C. L. Webster, N. G.; Daniel Roberts, Treasurer; P. Reichman, N. G.; S. E. Hatch, V. G.; A. P. Jones, R. S. 1866—S. E. Hatch and B. Garvin, N. G.; W. Karsten and Ben Garvin, V. G.; C. Marks and J. Underhill, R. S.; E. H. Gould, P. S.; D. Roberts, Treasurer. 1867—J. Underhill and J. R. Morton, N. G.; J. Underhill and J. R. Morton, V. G.; A. A. Wilson and H. Burnell, R. S.; O. A. Bonnell, P. S.; F. Seymour, Treasurer. 1868—H. Burwell and A. A. Wilson, N. G.; H. Burwell and A. A. Wilson, V. G.; A. A. Wilson and A. Bachelder, R. S.; W. Mason and D. Roberts, Treasurers; H. S. Kimball, P. S. 1869—A. Bachelder and W. Mason, N. G.; A. Bachelder and W. Mason, V. G.; T. J. Vaughn and J. R. Morton, R. S.; H. Burwell, P. S.; W. Mason and H. P. Graves, Treasurers. 1870—E. D. Harris and H. P. Graves, N. G.; E. D. Harris and H. P. Graves, V. G.; H. P. Graves and D. Roberts, R. S.; A. Bachelder, P. S.; B. F. Sweet and H. Burwell, Treasurers. 1871—J. D. Babcock and L. Rhinehart, N. G.; L. Rhinehart and E. G. Main, V. G.; E. G. Main and A. W. Roberts, R. S.; J. S. Lawrence and John

Sawyer, P. S.; Jacob Marks and Daniel Roberts, Treasurers. 1872—E. G. Main, C. W. Smith and J. A. Watrous, N. G.; C. W. Smith, J. A. Watrous and A. Lindow, V. G.; J. D. Babcock, A. Lindow and E. G. Main, Secretaries; T. M. Bowen and H. S. Russell, P. S.; D. Roberts, Treasurer. 1873—August Lindow and C. W. Berkley, N. G.; C. W. Berkley and E. H. Little, V. G.; E. H. Little and J. C. Bishop, Secretaries; E. S. Disbrow and T. D. Roberts, P. S. 1874—E. H. Little and J. C. Bishop, N. G.; J. C. Bishop and S. L. Brasted, V. G.; S. L. Brasted and E. D. Harris, Secretaries; R. F. Allen, P. S.; J. D. Babcock and H. G. Leonard, Treasurers. 1875—S. L. Brasted and S. P. Morse, N. G.; S. P. Morse and A. D. Somervaille, V. G.; O. A. Bennell and R. F. Allen, Secretaries; R. F. Allen and Jerome Gibson, P. S.; H. G. Leonard and A. W. Martin, Treasurers. 1876—A. D. Somervaille and R. F. Allen, N. G.; R. F. Allen and E. C. Tompkins, V. G.; E. C. Tompkins and J. Beckley, Secretaries; E. T. Brown, P. S.; D. R. Curran and S. L. Brasted, Treasurers. 1877—E. C. Tompkins, R. F. Allen and George Stevens, N. G.; George Stevens and G. M. Johnson, V. G.; George M. Johnson and F. Dequine, Secretaries; J. C. Bishop, P. S.; S. L. Brasted and E. C. Tompkins, Treasurers. 1878—G. M. Johnson and F. Dequine, N. G.; F. Dequine and H. W. Newton, V. G.; H. W. Newton and E. F. Ford, Secretaries; J. C. Bishop, P. S.; S. P. Morse and E. C. Tompkins, Treasurers. 1879—H. W. Newton and E. F. Ford, N. G.; E. F. Ford and A. A. Bishop, V. G.; A. A. Bishop and W. H. Masson, Secretaries; J. C. Bishop and D. R. Curran, P. S.; E. C. Tompkins and R. F. Allen, Treasurers.

The present number of member is 142, holding 209 policies of insurance in the Wisconsin Odd Fellows' Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Pillar Encampment, No. 15, I. O. O. F.—This lodge was instituted September 21, 1866, with these charter members: Charles Marks, Paul Reichman, Joshua Underhill, John Nichols, Keyes A. Darling, Daniel Roberts and A. A. Wilson. The officers are: C. P., F. Dequine; S. W., R. F. Allen; H. P., I. L. Hunt; Scribe, E. D. Harris; Treasurer, E. F. Ford; J. W., T. W. Fish; Trustees—S. L. Brasted, A. D. Somervaille, D. R. Curran. The lodge now contains forty-six members, and is in a prosperous condition. Meetings are held in Odd Fellows' Hall, over the post office.

Goethe Lodge, No. 112, I. O. O. F.—This is called the "German Lodge," being composed entirely of Germans. It was organized March 12, 1866, but the charter was not received until January 17, 1867. The charter members were, William Karstens, Charles Marks, Ph. Stamm, Henry Bloedel, S. Eidemiller and Paul Reichman. The first officers were: N. G., William Karstens; V. G., Charles Marks; Recording Secretary, Henry Bloedel; I. G., Ph. Stamm; P. S., Paul Reichman; Treasurer, S. Eidemiller. The present officers are as follows: N. G., Henry Bloedel; V. G., Paul Petersen; R. S., Peter Ehlers; P. S., Jacob Thomson; Treasurer, William Karstens. The Lodge numbered 104 members at the beginning of 1880. The Past Grands make a list as follows: William Karstens, Henry Bloedel, Charles Marks, Paul Reichman, S. Eidemiller, Ph. Stamm, John Fick, Casper Buechner, W. Ladewig, William Eichmeier, H. Walliehs, Raphael Katz, Peter Pehl, Jacob Gerhard, Hans Rosenow, G. A. Kretlow, Franz Padeond, Martin Sichter. Meetings are held every Monday evening, in Odd Fellows' Hall, over the post office.

Knights of Honor.—Fond du Lac Lodge, No. 381, Knights of Honor, was organized October 9, 1876, by Deputy Supreme Dictator Tuples. The charter members were, Henry Butterfield, Elinu Colman, W. N. Coleman, William D. Conklin, C. Chadbourne, E. D. Curtis, Dr. G. M. Dixon, Dr. A. H. Dorris, W. S. Finley, Dr. E. C. Gray, J. H. Hauser, Frank B. Hoskins, John Heath, H. M. Kutchem, George W. Lusk, M. D. Moore, J. C. Perry, Alexander Stewart, Thomas J. Vaughn, J. A. Watrous, D. B. Wyatt, Rev. O. J. Cowles, Edward Colman, John K. Ross, C. K. Pier, Henry Shattuck and G. A. Knapp.

The first election, held at the time above mentioned, resulted in choosing the following officers: Past Dictator, J. H. Hauser; Dictator, M. D. Moore; Vice Dictator, George W. Lusk; Assistant Dictator, Alexander Stewart; Guide, Thomas J. Vaughn; Reporter, John Heath; Financial Reporter, W. S. Finley; Treasurer, J. C. Perry; Guardian, Henry Butterfield; Sentinel, W. N. Coleman; Trustees, W. D. Conklin, George W. Lusk and A. H. Dorris.

The Order of Knights of Honor is a secret benevolent society, composed of a Supreme, Grand and Subordinate Lodges. It was established in June, 1873, by persons who felt that the various systems of relief to the families of deceased members, as adopted by other orders, were deficient in important respects, and who believed that an order established with the purpose of paying a death benefit as one of its main objects, would meet with approval and success.

The objects of the Order are stated briefly by the Supreme Lodge, as follows: 1st. To unite fraternally all acceptable white men of every profession, business or occupation. 2d. To give all moral and material aid in its power to members of the Order, by holding moral, instructive and scientific lectures, by encouraging each other in business, and by assisting one another to obtain employment. 3d. To establish a benefit fund, from which a sum not exceeding $2,000 shall be paid at the death of a member, to his family, or to be disposed of as he may direct. 4th. To establish a fund for the relief of sick or distressed members. Subordinate lodges are composed of members of good social and moral standing, who are admitted upon petition, by ballot, after passing a favorable medical examination. The petitioner must be a white, male person, between the ages of twenty-one and fifty-five.

The first meetings were held in the Knights of Pythias Hall, in Darling's Block, and were continued there until June, 1878, when the Lodge rented a hall in the third floor of G. Kuenne's Block, which was dedicated publicly. The meetings are now held therein on the first and third Monday evenings of each month. This hall is handsomely furnished, and the Lodge, which numbers fifty-five members, has a large surplus in its treasury.

Its Dictators have been M. D. Moore, Elihu Colman, two terms; Alexander Stewart, two terms; C. Chadbourne and George W. Carter. Elections occur once in three months.

Economical Lodge, No. 2,021, K. of H.—This Lodge, the second in the city, was organized January 13, 1880, by Grand Dictator John H. Hauser, of Fond du Lac, with the following charter members: A. G. Breitenstein, S. S. Bowers, Noel Bengley, N. B. Barker, B. Buchholz, Ferd. Blankenburg, J. W. Marsh, C. E. Huber, W. B. McLean, W. D. Fuhrman, J. C. Fuhrman, A. J. Alley, D. C. Lang, J. H. Lang, Charles Hartman, W. B. Rae, S. W. Schermerhorn, J. H. McNeel, Jacob Frank, Robert Powerie, F. A. Jones, Charles Youmans, C. N. Galland, Frank Wallace, George B. Koerner and Charles Schuler. The first election of officers was held on the same evening, and resulted as follows: Dictator, S. S. Bowers; Past Dictator, J. H. McNeel; Vice Dictator, J. W. Marsh; Assistant Dictator, A. G. Breitenstein; Reporter, W. B. Rae; Financial Reporter, Noel Bengley; Treasurer, B. Buchholz; Guide, S. W. Schermerhorn; Guardian, Ferd. Blankenburg; Sentinel, W. D. Fuhrman; Chaplain, N. B. Barker. This Lodge meets every two weeks in Knights of Honor Hall, in Kuenne's Block, on Tuesday evenings.

Fond du Lac Lodge, No. 55, A. O. U. W.—Fond du Lac Lodge, No. 55, Ancient Order of United Workmen, was instituted by Dr. W. A. Gordon, of Oshkosh, Deputy Grand Master Workman, February 4, 1879, with the following charter members: Elihu Colman, George W. Carter, D. P. Frame, E. B. Beeson, George M. Pier, A. Lindow, B. F. De Voe, Dorton Mihills, W. J. Austin, George C. Aldrich, E. F. Ford, F. M. Givens, J. H. Hauser, Robert A. Wilson, James A. Spence, G. L. Benjamin, A. H. Richardson, J. A. Markle, H. G. Hanson, C. K. Carter, George W. Yancy, I. L. Hunt, G. D. Danks, S. L. Brasted, George H. Patty, Charles Wilson, G. S. Cryne, Theodore Treleven, F. J. Rose, R. F. Sexmith, F. A. Brasted, A. G. Coffman, H. M. Kutchin and D. G. Allen. The first officers were: Past Master Workman, Elihu Colman; Master Workman, George W. Carter, General Foreman, D. P. Frame; Recorder, F. M. Givens; Financier, E. F. Ford; Receiver, E. B. Beeson; Guide, G. M. Pier; Inside Watchman, W. J. Austin; Outside Watchman, Dorton Mihills; Medical Examiner, E. B. Beeson.

The purpose of the organization is to secure benefits to its members during sickness, and $2,000 to the heirs of any member in case of death. The fees for membership, which are $5 for the first degree, and $2 each for the two following degrees, remain in the treasury of the Lodge to be expended for charitable purposes. The beneficiary fund of $2,000 is paid to the heirs of the deceased immediately after death, the Lodge furnishing its own proof. The organization now contains forty-two members, who meet in Knights of Protection Hall, in Kenne's Block, on the first and third Mondays of each month.

Royal Arcanum.—The "Royal Arcanum" is an offshoot of the "Knights of Honor." The objects and aims are substantially the same. It was organized in Massachusetts, in 1877, by men prominent in the Knights of Honor, and has since spread over all the Northern States. It does not take in the Southern States, or any regions liable to epidemics. It is a secret order, its objects being social and beneficent. The Order gives to the widow or heirs of every deceased member the sum of $3,000.

A Council was organized in Fond du Lac, December 7, 1878, with George P. Lee as Regent, and forty-three charter members. The Council holds its sessions, twice each month, in Knights of Honor Hall, in Kenne's Block, and is in a very prosperous condition, having fifty-five members.

The following is a list of the charter members: Elihu Colman, J. H. Hauser, A. H. Dorris, J. L. Thwing, A. L. Moore, D. B. Curtis, Benjamin Wild, L. A. Bishop, George P. Lee, W. W. Wild, G. N. Mihills, John Heath, C. W. Seaver, A. De Land, H. Altpass, C. P. Congden, M. L. Norman, D. C. Lang, J. H. Lang, H. R. Allen, W. F. Kent, W. D. Conklin, J. C. Waterbury, M. Hobbs, Newell Nightingale, Dorlon Mihills, George M. Pier, S. G. Leland, S. R. Emerson, C. Chadbourne, P. B. Haber, Alexander Stewart, C. W. Flower, George W. Carter, James T. Greene, U. D. Mihills, H. B. Lange, B. B. Spencer, Ed. Lange, E. H. Jones, J. B. Wade, George Patty, J. G. Smith.

The present officers are: Elihu Colman, R.; J. T. Greene, V. R.; George P. Lee, P. R.; H. R. Allen, C.; C. Chadbourne, Sec.; S. G. Leland, C.; W. F. Kent, T.; A. D. Parker, G.; M. L. Norman, Chap.; George M. Pier, W.; C. W. Mihills, S.; George P. Lee, Benjamin Wild and C. K. Pier, Trustees.

Fidelity Lodge, No. 19, Knights of Pythias.—This Lodge was instituted September 17, 1875, with the following charter members: Jesse Beckley, Charles Marks, C. L. Alling, John C. Bishop, C. W. Barnes, Richard Murphy, Charles H. Hawes, H. Clay Wills, John W. Dillon, Edward F. Riem. It meets every Friday night at Castle Hall, in Darling's Block, corner of First and Main streets. The object of this Lodge is friendship, charity and benevolence. There is connected with it a "section of the K. P. Endowment Rank, No. 41," the object of which is to afford members of the Order a safe and reliable life insurance at a very small cost. The insurance is divided into two classes of $1,000 and $2,000 respectively, and any member passing the required examination may enter one or both classes and be assessed in each class as deaths occur. The section now numbers thirty-eight members, with a total insurance of $96,000. The officers of this section are: Byron Town, President; E. F. Riem, Vice President; C. H. Hawes, Secretary and Treasurer. The total membership of this Lodge is ninety-three; the Order is in a prosperous condition, and is growing rapidly. The Grand Chancellor of the State, Howard M. Kutchin, resides at Fond du Lac, and is a member of this lodge. The officers, since the organization of this Lodge, are as follows: For the term commencing September 17, 1875, Jesse Beckley, P. C.; Charles Marks, C. C.; C. L. Alling, V. C.; J. C. Bishop, P.; Edward F. Riem, M. A.; John Dillon, M. F.; C. W. Barnes, M. E.; C. H. Hawes, K. of R. and S.; H. C. Wills, I. G.; R. Murphy, O. G. For the term beginning January 1, 1876: Charles Marks, P. C.; C. L. Alling, C. C.; H. M. Kutchin, V. C.; N. S. Gilson, P.; F. B. Hoskins, K. of R. and S.; J. A. Merryman, M. F.; D. Y. Sabin, M. E.; W. H. Tousley, M. A. These officers were re-elected July 1, 1876.

January 1, 1877—C. L. Alling, P. C.; John C. Bishop, C. C.; N. S. Gilson, V. C.; C. A. Galloway, P.; George L. Arnold, K. of R. and S.; C. W. Henry, M. F.; J. C. Wedge,

M. E. ; Edward F. Riem, M. A. July 1, 1877, these officers were re-elected. January 1, 1878—N. S. Gilson, P. C. ; C. A. Galloway, C. C. ; J. A. Merryman, V. C. ; Thomas Bryant, P. ; C. J. Hunter, K. of R. and S. ; C. W. Henry, M. F. ; Byron Town, M. E. ; C. H. Hawes, M. A. ; George W. Church, I. G. ; William Reynolds, O. G. July 1, 1878—C. A. Galloway, P. C. ; J. A. Merryman, C. C. ; Thomas Bryant, V. C. ; Edward F. Riem, P. ; George H. Lusk, K. of R. and S. ; C. W. Henry, M. F. ; Byron Town, M. E. ; C. H. Hawes, M. A. ; C. W. Church, Jr., I. G. ; William Reynolds, O. G. January 1, 1879—J. A. Merryman, P. C. ; Edward F. Riem, C. C. ; H. C. Wills, V. C. ; C. H. Hawes, P. ; Joseph D. Radford, K. of R. and S. ; C. W. Henry, M. F. ; Byron Town, M. E. ; Edward Kent, M. A. ; R. Wilkins, I. G. ; W. Reynolds, O. G. July 1, 1879—E. F. Riem, P. C. ; H. C. Wills, C. C. ; C. D. Otis, V. C. ; E. C. Gray, P. ; J. D. Radford, K. of R. and S. ; C. W. Henry, M. F. ; Byron Town, M. E. ; Edward Kent, M. A. ; R. Wilkins, I. G. ; P. G. Dick, O. G.

Excelsior Temple of Honor, No. 8.—Wisconsin is famous for the great number and influence of her temples and Templars, and Excelsior Temple, No. 8, of Fond du Lac, being the father of this branch of temperance work, has a good claim to an elaborate history. This brief sketch was furnished for this work by one of the charter members, and but mildly describes the immense work done by the Temple, and the beneficial results of its endeavors to spread the Order into other localities and States. Excelsior Temple of Honor, No. 8, was organized on the 14th of January, 1873, with about twenty charter members. During its first year it lost more members than it gained, but, late in February, 1874, it commenced to grow. This was after the members had decided to ignore the counsel and instruction of an old-fogy element. During that year nearly two hundred were initiated. The number of the Temple, "No. 8," would indicate that there were seven other temples in the State, but there were not. At the time Excelsior commenced work (in 1874) there was but one other temple in Wisconsin, and it was doing little or nothing; so it may be said that Excelsior was the only live Temple in the State at that time. The good work of the Temple in reforming men—not initiating boys and girls—during the year 1874, attracted the attention of the press, pulpit and people. The first call for the Order, after its establishment in Fond du Lac, came from Oshkosh, when forty of the members went over and organized No. 9. A few weeks later, an equal number, with many from Oshkosh, took the Order to Appleton. The first regular session of the re-organized Grand Temple, met in Fond du Lac in June, 1875, when Dr. W. A. Gordon, of Oshkosh, was chosen Grand Worthy Templar, J. A. Watrous, of Fond du Lac, Grand Worthy Vice Templar, and August Lindow, of Fond du Lac, Grand Worthy Recorder. In September, 1875, Dr. Gordon resigned, and J. A. Watrous succeeded him, and has held the office ever since, having been unanimously re-elected on four occasions. When he came into office there were twelve temples, nine of which he had assisted in organizing. Now there are 225 temples in Wisconsin, and new ones are being added every month. Among the members are thousands of as good and prominent men as the State affords. The Order was introduced to Nebraska and Minnesota, through the Wisconsin Chief Templar, and there are now in Nebraska about fifty temples. There are hundreds of men in Fond du Lac, who have been educated to lives of sobriety through Excelsior Temple of Honor. It may be said that the Order, as it exists in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Minnesota, sprang from Excelsior Temple. The following-named persons have been Worthy Chief Templars of this lodge: August Lindow, H. Clay Wills, J. A. Watrous, two terms; W. H. Bowe, George M. Benedict, Alexander White, two terms; D. B. Bailey, Charles M. Green, three terms; Reuben Wilkins and Joseph Crippen. The meetings of the Temple are held every Tuesday evening in Sewell's Block, next to the First National Bank, and are well attended.

The Druids.—The Fond du Lac Division of the Order of Druids was organized April 18, 1875, with the following charter members: Henry Stoldt, F. Kromme, Fred Weyer, Nick Jacoby, H. Abel, P. Breister, F. Abel, George Zaehel, John Steltzer, William Bischoff, Henry Hartman and J. W. Gerhardt. The object of the Order is benevolence. At the death of any member the heirs receive $800, and during sickness $5 per week. Meetings are held every Thursday evening in Bischoff's building. The officers are: N. A., Henry Stoldt; V. A., George Zacherl; Secretary, Zettler; Treasurer, F. Kromme; Conductor, F. Weyer; I. G., F. Abel; O. G., P. Briester. This organization consists of twenty-six members.

Fond du Lac Lodge, No 410, I. O. G. T.—This lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars was instituted January 21, 1878, with the following charter members: W. H. Brown, Grace Chesbro, C. A. Morrison, Miss M. T. Reed, Frankie Shannon, Jesse Beckley, Emma F. Dalhem, Mrs. S. R. Mathews, Nellie Roblee, May Stewart, Sarah Bryant, Linda Hibbard, Mrs. T. W. Martin, W. J. Stewart, Ida E. Van Norder, Laura Bryant, Edwin Lange, Mary Martin, Sarah Stewart, J. A. Watrous, Alice M. Blodgett, M. C. Martin, Mary Palmer, Emma Stewart, Miss J. Ward, Ida M. Blodgett, Nathan Main, J. W. Reynolds, S. C. Sayles, Emma Ward, Lillie Bryant, Mrs. J. L. Main, Ella Raymond, John Shannon, G. W. Yancy, H. J. Stewart. The first officers were: W. C. T., W. H. Brown; W. V. T., Miss J. Ward; W. C., N. Main; W. R. S., G. W. Yancy; W. T., Laura Bryant; W. M., J. W. Reynolds; P. W. C. T., W. J. Stewart. The present membership numbers seventy-seven, with the following officers: W. C. T., N. Main; W. V. T., Jennie Gould; W. C., J. W. Aldrich; W. R. S., J. S. Lake; W. T., Mrs. S. Morrison; W. M., Charles Gould. Meetings are held once each week.

CHURCHES.

There are eighteen church edifices in the city of Fond du Lac, and three buildings either owned or rented for missions. They are all singularly prosperous, with perhaps two exceptions, and pushing their work with vigor.

Division Street M. E. Church.—The strongest of the many Methodist Episcopal organizations in Fond du Lac County is the Division Street Church, in the city of Fond du Lac. It claims for itself, and has good evidence in proof, to be the very foundation, the pioneer of all religious organizations in Fond du Lac. The first sermon ever preached in the city was at the house of Dr. Mason C. Darling, a log structure, located where Darling's Block now stands, on the 17th of November, 1839, by Rev. Jesse Halsted, now of Rockford, Ill. The whole county then did not contain 300 people. After 1839, there were no regular services until 1843, when Rev. H. S. Brunson was appointed to take charge of the "Fond du Lac Circuit," then including a vast amount of sparsely settled territory; but exhorters and itinerant ministers had preached and held services at different private houses, so the few Methodists who composed the first church felt that they had maintained a very profitable though inexpensive organization. Rev. Brunson immediately formed a class, as it was termed, composed of Charles Olmsted and Sarah B., his wife; D. C. Brooks and Eliza Ann, his wife; Norman Pier and Sarah, his wife; Mrs. Parsons (mother of Frank and Henry Parsons), and Francis McCarty. All of these, except Norman Pier and Mr. McCarty, are still living. The meeting which resulted in forming this class was held in the house owned and occupied by Edward Pier, situated where H. R. Skinner now owns a house, two miles south of the city. Services were held regularly after the class was formed, in private houses, until the erection of a schoolhouse in 1843, on Main street, about where May's Block now stands. This schoolhouse was used for religious worship, although soon after moved to Fifth street, until it burned, December 12, 1848, when the Court House, being completed, was used for church services.

In 1844, Rev. Joseph Lewis was appointed to the Fond du Lac Circuit, and was succeeded the next year by Rev. Morgan L. Noble, who was in great demand at all weddings. In 1847, Rev. H. R. Colman, now a resident of Fond du Lac, was appointed Pastor, continuing two years. An unusual amount of work, to which was added great exposure, fastened a throat disease upon Mr. Colman which compelled him to retire from the ministry, and from which he never has recovered. He made the first move toward building a church edifice, which resulted in the erection of a wooden building on the corner of Marr and Third streets. Mr. Colman's salary for these two years was $400, of which he gave one-fourth to build the new church of which they were so much in need.

In 1849, while the church edifice was building, Rev. Henry Requa was appointed to the "circuit," remaining one year. His successor was Rev. J. S. Prescott, who was a great worker.

He remained two years, and succeeded in finishing the building on the corner of Marr and Third streets, and erecting another on Arndt street. The Marr Street Church was dedicated in 1852, by Bishop Ames, and the one on Arndt street by Rev. W. G. Miller. [The balance of the history of Arndt Street Church will be found under the title of "Cotton Street Church."] What was called the "circuit" was then abandoned, and Rev. Ezra Tucker "stationed" at Marr street, where he preached one year, being followed by Rev. E. S. Grumley. He remained, doing a good work during two years, and, in 1855, was succeeded by Rev. T. T. Kutchin. Being a man of great mental and oratorical powers, Mr. Kutchin stirred the people and filled the church to overflowing. In 1856, Mr. Kutchin withdrew to form a Free Methodist church—Rev. Cyrus Seammon taking his place—and quite a number followed him. They soon after returned. In 1857, Rev. A. P. Allen was appointed Pastor, and remained one year. He was followed by Rev. H. B. Crandall, under whom the organization suffered seriously from an important church trial, which at one time threatened to divide the organization. In 1859, came the Rev. J. T. Hollister as Pastor, who remained two years.

In 1861, the Wisconsin Conference of the M. E. Church was held in this church, Bishop Baker presiding, at which Rev. W. Lattin was appointed to succeed Mr. Hollister as Pastor. In 1863, Rev. John T. Woodhead was made Pastor, and the church was in a thriving condition. The building was getting too small for the swelling congregations, and, on July 25, 1865, Spencer Hall, on Division street, was purchased, together with the site, for $5,000, and soon after dedicated and occupied. The other building was sold to the German Evangelical Brethren, and is now owned and occupied by them on the old site. The Arndt street organization came back to the parent church in 1869, helped purchase Spencer Hall, and, in 1866, under Mr. Woodhead and his successor, Rev. O. J. Cowles, began to rebuild it; but later that year, they returned again to Arndt street, about fifty strong, weakening the old church society. In the spring of 1866, Spencer Hall was raised; a tower erected, and a commodious and airy basement built under it. The new building, which is 110x55 feet, with the auditorium of the largest capacity in the city, was dedicated by T. M. Eddy, D. D., of Chicago, May 5, 1867. Its total cost at that time, including site, was $20,000. Although of wood, and a modest white structure in outward appearance, the inside is light, high, comfortable and beautiful—by many pronounced one of the pleasantest churches in the State. It will comfortably seat 900 persons. The basement contains a lecture-room 50x50 feet; three large and pleasant classrooms, and a kitchen. It is completely equipped for festivals, suppers and preparing refreshments for any church entertainments.

In 1868, while Rev. H. C. Tilton was Pastor, the Free-Will Baptists formed a society, taking most of their members from the Division Street Church, as it was now called. These decimations, with hard times, checked progress, but only temporarily, as in February, 1869, a splendid bell, the finest toned and largest in the city, was hung in the tower, and money was expended for other improvements. In 1874, the orchestra was built, the auditorium was frescoed, and stained windows put in, and in 1875, a splendid pipe organ built by Johnson & Sons, and costing $3,000, was put in. Mr. Tilton remained three years, and was succeeded by Rev. G. C. Haddock, in 1871; Rev. W. W. Case, in 1873; Rev. O. J. Cowles, in 1875; Rev. S. N. Griffith, in 1877, and Rev. S. Halsey, the present Pastor, in October, 1879. During Mr. Griffith's pastorate there was some dissatisfaction in the church, because he engaged in mercantile pursuits—buying land and horses and putting them to use—but it was nothing serious, although diminishing the church revenues.

The organization is now strong and entirely harmonious, with about 300 members and a debt of $2,000. A Sabbath school was organized almost as early as the church itself (its first meetings being jointly with the Congregationalists), which has been successfully maintained ever since. Rev. Tracy Bingham was the first Superintendent, in 1846. James L. Thwing is the present Superintendent. The first Board of Trustees was composed of D. C. Brooks and two others, but their names are not left on record, nor recollected by the surviving members. The truth is, one member was about as much a trustee as another—all acted together for the common good. The present Board of Trustees is thus constituted: M. D. Moore, Chairman; Judge N. C. Giffin, Charles Heth, Capt. J. H. Hauser, Dr. A. H. Dorris, Thomas W. Spence, G. W. Sexmith, Elihu Colman and A. H. Hall.

In 1867, the Young Men's Christian Association of the Division Street M. E. Church opened a mission Sunday school, at the Grant Street Schoolhouse. It was continued by them about four years, when it was turned over to the Sunday-School Board of the church, by whom it has since been managed. The school is held every Sunday in Ingram's Hall, corner of Main and Ninth streets, and is largely attended, there being no other Sunday school in that vicinity.

Cotton Street Methodist Episcopal Church.—In 1850, having some means left after finishing the edifice on the corner of Marr and Third streets, and as there were a number of Methodist people in what was then, as now, called Lower Town, a small mission house or chapel was erected on Arndt street, on the site now occupied by the residence of Mr. W. Wilkie. This building now stands across the river in the Sixth Ward, and is owned and occupied by the Presbyterians with a mission or Sunday school. The original intention of the Marr street Methodists, as appears from unwritten history, was to furnish the Lower Town Methodists a place for holding class meetings and Sunday schools, rather than for regular services of a permanent organization, as Lower Town was growing very rapidly, the principal mills and factories being located in that quarter. The first action taken toward building a church edifice on Arndt street, was at a meeting of the Marr Street Church officers, held at the residence of J. J. Driggs, on the 15th day of July, 1850, and which was presided over by Rev. J. S. Prescott. It was then resolved to build a church on Arndt street, and Mr. Prescott was constituted a committee to let the contract as soon as possible, "and collect the come-atable funds and materials." The money on hand and the lumber donated enabled the building to be rapidly pushed to such a state of completion as would make it fit for occupancy. In 1852, the Trustees of the Marr Street Church had a meeting and authorized the building to be entirely finished, and at its dedication, which occurred in October, 1852, under Rev. W. G. Miller, to take collections and subscriptions to pay for it, "provided, that it should not cost above $125 more than is now on hand." The Wisconsin Conference, in session at Marr street about the time of dedication, appointed Rev. M. Himebaugh, an earnest, hardworking Pennsylvanian, to the Arndt Street Station. He was its first Pastor, and remained one year. In 1853, Rev. W. Spell was appointed to succeed him, remaining two years. In 1855, Rev. J. C. Robbins, a great worker, took charge of the church and immediately began a revival, which resulted in liberal accessions to the society. He was succeeded in 1857 by Rev. T. C. Golden, who took charge just as Lower Town began to decline by reason of the business portion of the city moving farther southward and the great decrease of lake commerce, consequent upon the new railroad to Oshkosh and other points. These changes caused many church members to remove, and made others unable to give as liberally as before, and before the end of his first year the society was not self-supporting, and he resigned. What there was left of his church thereafter attended services at Marr street until 1859, when the Conference sent Rev. H. R. Colman, now of Bay View, and brother of Hon. Elihu Colman, of Colman, Carter & Kent, to revive the society. He preached one year, at the end of which, in 1860, the society joined with the Marr street organization, and remained with it until the fall of 1866, when, a desire being expressed for a separation and re-organization, Rev. M. D. Warner was appointed Pastor. Under his energetic administration the church membership increased to such an extent that the edifice was incapable of accommodating those who attended his services. In the spring of 1867, therefore, the old building was sold to J. S. McDonald and others, of the Presbyterian Church, being moved by them over the river, as before mentioned, and the present snug, durable and comely structure commenced. The mill men and manufacturers took unusual interest in the erection of the building, which is located on the corner of Cotton and Juneau streets, and to them the society is largely indebted for their fine edifice. It was completed in 1868, and dedicated and occupied in the same year. It is an exceedingly well-built brick structure, with tower, pleasant auditorium above and basement below, containing lecture-room, two classrooms and a prayer-room.

The total cost was about $15,000, of which $5,000 was unpaid at the dedication, and existed in the form of claims for labor and material by various parties. Some of these parties sued the church, and, in June, 1869, the building was mortgaged to the Northwestern Insurance Company and these claims were paid. The mortgage was for $4,000, at 8 per cent interest. It was paid July 1, 1874, by popular subscription, and the organization is clear of all debt. As soon as the debt was paid, the building was frescoed and beautified, and the lot well fenced, money to pay for all being left from the subscription.

In 1868, Rev. John Hill was appointed Pastor, remaining one year. He was succeeded by Rev. W. H. Windom, in 1869, two years; Rev. George Feilows, in 1871, one year; Rev. C. R. Pattee, in 1872, one year; Rev. J. T. Woodhead, in 1873, two years; Rev. W. R. Jones, in 1875, one year; Rev. John Faville, in 1876, one year; Rev. J. S. Davis, in 1877, one year; Rev. C. D. Pillsbury, in 1878, one year, and Rev. W. D. Ames, in October, 1879, present Pastor.

The records of the church do not show who were the first Trustees. The present Board of Trustees consists of John C. Bishop, W. C. Ogden, O. E. Pritchard, Austin H. Richardson, Thomas Peep, William May, B. S. Gillet, F. F. Parsons and George S. Bryant. There has always been a Sunday school connected with the church, which now, under John C. Bishop as Superintendent, is a prosperous and profitable auxiliary in the work of the society.

German Methodist Episcopal Church.—On the 28th of October, 1854, the Quarterly Conference of the German Fond du Lac Mission passed a resolution authorizing the erection of a house of worship in Fond du Lac, and appointing Rev. H. Wiethorn and two others as a committee to secure a proper site. The matter was allowed to drop here, and nothing further was done until 1857, when Rev. F. Kluckholm purchased two lots on the corner of Wingate and Merrill streets for the sum of $350. A wooden building was immediately thereafter erected at a cost of $543. A debt of $75 which remained unpaid at that time grew afterward into a larger sum, and the society became embarrassed. This financial difficulty was threatening the church organization with disaster, when, in 1862, Robert A. Baker and Henry Hamilton came to the rescue, and its affairs are now on a safe foundation. The society numbers fifty-eight members, and their church property is valued at $5,800. During the pastorate of the Rev. B. Becker, the old church building was raised, bricked up, and a pleasant basement placed under it. The parsonage, which is in the yard with the church edifice, and a pleasant house, was built while Rev. H. Wegner was Pastor. The church has had the following Pastors, and in the order here written: H. Wiethorn, F. Kluckholm, F. W. Conrad, C. Wenz, H. Wegner, F. Gottschalk, C. Eberhardt, C. Thalheim, Charles G. Becker, John Schmell, 1869–70; R. Schafer, 1870–71; B. Becker, 1871–74; E. Fitzner, 1874–77; Charles Iwert, 1877–79; P. Rich, 1879–80. An interesting Sunday school has always been maintained in connection with the church society.

African Methodist Episcopal Church.—The brick edifice belonging to the colored Methodist Episcopal Church, situated on the corner of River and Eleventh streets, was erected in 1867. The first Pastor was the Rev. S. Hutchinson; second, Rev. W. A. Douglas; third, Rev. Moses Gale; fourth, Rev. James T. Nease; fifth, Rev. J. W. White; sixth and present Pastor, Rev. Gardner Benson. The officers are, Van Spence, Samuel Anderson, Daniel Brown and Robert Biggers. During any pastoral interregnum Daniel Brown fills the pulpit. The church maintains a Sunday school, has regular services, sends delegates to the colored conventions, and occasionally has religious revivals which are remarkable for the peculiar religious manifestations, the earnestness of the members and the excellent singing. Several times during each year the members give festivals for public patronage, the proceeds being devoted to the expenses of the church.

Congregational Church.—The Congregational Church of Fond du Lac is one of the largest and most flourishing Protestant religious organizations in the city. Its foundation was made by Jerry Homiston, a farmer living three miles west of Fond du Lac, who gathered for religious worship whomsoever were inclined in that direction. The first meeting to found a church was held July 19, 1846, in a schoolhouse located where May's Block now stands, on Main street, and nine persons joined the new organization. These were: Jerry Homiston and Mary, his wife; James Wright and Martha, his wife; William Carey and Polly Ann, his wife; Mrs. S. S. N. Fuller, Mrs. Margaret Perry and Amanda Bannister. The Rev. Stephen Peet was present to perfect the organization. William and Polly Ann Carey were the parents of Mr. E. A. Carey, of Laughlin & Carey, and Mrs. Margaret Perry was mother to James B. and J. C. Perry, of the First National Bank. Mr. and Mrs. Wright, who live about three miles south of the city, are the only survivors of the original members of the church.

Mr. Homiston was chosen Deacon, and Mr. Wright, Clerk. They had no building and no Pastor. Meetings and such services as they could themselves provide were held in the school-house mentioned until autumn, when the Home Missionary Society sent Rev. L. C. Spafford to take charge of the infant church. He continued services in the schoolhouse, although it was moved to Fifth street, his little land having been, in December, 1846, increased by Deacon K. Gillet and Hon. James M. Gillet and families—nine new members. In February, 1847, a move was made for the erection of a church edifice. Dr. Mason C. Darling deeded to the church, without cost, a lot on the corner of Marr and Second streets, on which a small, cheap building was erected. This was soon after enlarged, but great scarcity of means made it impossible to render the building fit for occupancy until March, 1850, and, during several months thereafter, benches, blocks and chairs took the place of permanent seats. The work of building this modest edifice was done mostly by Rev. Spafford and the members, and the material, in the rough, was donated by those who were able. After the Court House was finished, and the old school-house burned, services and meetings were held therein until the completion of the church edifice, in 1850.

In July, 1853, Rev. Silas Hawley was called to take charge of the church, and continued its Pastor four years, many new members joining during that time. In the early part of his pastorate, Hon. J. M. Gillet, E. W. Drury and others withdrew to form the Presbyterian Church, and later, in 1856, thirty-seven members withdrew and formed a separate organization, called Plymouth Church. At this separation, Rev. Hawley resigned, and Rev. E. Brown filled his place for six months, until Rev. W. A. Baldwin was secured. Mr. Baldwin preached two years. In the meantime, a building committee, composed of Dr. T. S. Wright, Dr M. C. Darling and others, began the stone building now occupied as a grist-mill, on Forest street, for a church edifice. The walls reached a height of fifteen feet when the division occurred, and the building committee sold the half-finished church as best they could, to re-imburse themselves for means advanced.

The Plymouth organization built a chapel on the corner of First and Macy streets, and, under the pastorate of Rev. W. L. Mather, occupied it during four years, after which the two organizations re-united, occupying the Plymouth Chapel. The old edifice was sold to the Free Baptists, and is now occupied by them, on its first site, corner of Marr and Second streets. When the two organizations re-united, Rev. R. H. Williamson was chosen Pastor, and continued in the pulpit four years. He was followed by Rev. C. W. Camp in July, 1863. The chapel was becoming too small for the constantly increasing congregation, and, in 1865, a movement was made to secure more commodious quarters. The result was the erection of the present edifice, a handsome brick structure, located on the corner of Wingate and Sheboygan streets. It was finished and dedicated in October, 1869. Its cost was $43,000, and its seating capacity in the auditorium is about seven hundred.

In November, 1868, Rev. Arthur Little took charge of the organization, which finished the church edifice and greatly thrived under his ministrations. On occupying the new building, Plymouth Chapel was sold to the Turners, and is now used by them, on Portland street. On the 19th of July, 1870, the church celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization with extended services, thanksgiving and historical papers and addresses. March 25, 1877, 100 persons, mostly young people, joined the church, as the result of a protracted meeting managed by the Methodist and Congregational Churches.

Early in 1878, Mr. Little was called to the New England Church, Chicago, and his resignation was accepted, his place being soon after filled by E. M. Betts, the present Pastor. The church now consists of about four hundred members. Since Mr. Betts became its Pastor, the church has liquidated the last of its mortgaged debt, and the splendid edifice is now unencumbered. It is richly decorated, has fine stained-glass windows and is an ornament to the city.

Rev. Spafford, the first Pastor, never received over $400 per year salary, and generally not so much, which was paid in everything, now and then a little cash included. A portion of even this meager stipend was cheerfully expended for the feeble little church over whose affairs he presided. Now the church pays a salary of $1,500 per year, and the Pastor is granted annually a vacation of six weeks. The first Deacon was Jerry Homiston. The present Deacons are Dr. E. L. Griffin, James Bass, Henry Hastings and James Sylvester. The Prudential Committee consists of these four Deacons, and E. Delany, W. Wilkie, Mrs. Susan H. Lockwood and Mrs. James Bass, including, also, the Sunday-school Superintendent. O. C. Steinberg is Superintendent of the Sunday school, a feature of the church services for old and young, which has been maintained with great success from the earliest organization of the society, though the first Sunday school was held jointly with the Methodists, in the old schoolhouse in which the first religious services were held. The school now has about two hundred pupils, and is prosperous, harmonious and pleasant. The first Pastor was Rev. L. C. Spafford. After him came Silas Hawley, four years; E. Brown, six months; W. A. Baldwin, two years; W. L. Mather (of the Plymouth organization), four years; R. H. Williamson, four years; C. W. Camp, four years; Arthur Little, nine and one-half years; E. M. Betts, present Pastor.

First Presbyterian Church.—Among the early settlers who located in the vicinity of what is now the city of Fond du Lac, were some Congregationalists, and a few Presbyterians, the former being the greater in number. These two parties united, and a Congregational church was organized. They remained together until about the year 1854, when the Presbyterian section of the united congregation decided to enter into an organization of their own more in accordance with their ideas of a scriptural form of church government—which organization was perfected at the house of D. R. Van Duyne, on February 26, A. D. 1855. Those who entered into this organization were James Monroe Gillet and his wife, Emeline E. Gillet; E. W. Drury and his wife, Deborah Drury; D. R. Van Duyne and Phebe Van Duyne, his wife; William Jones and wife, Joseph S. Trigg and wife, Miss Brodie and Mrs. Smith. After the organization was effected, a house of worship was to be provided, and a minister secured and supported. Prayer-meetings were at once commenced, and held at the residences of the members, and preaching on Sabbath when a minister could be secured, these services being held at Darling's Hall, and in the schoolhouse. These enterprising people were not contented to continue their worship in this manner, and soon commenced the arduous task of providing a house of worship. But, in this case, when the subscription paper was circulated, there were only four men who were in a position to subscribe. Mr. William Jones subscribed $100, regretting that this amount was all he could give. The balance was assumed by the other three, viz., Messrs. Drury, Gillet and Van Duyne. The latter of these gentlemen was engaged in the manufacture of lumber in the Wolf River pineries, and at once set about getting out the lumber. A building site was purchased from John B. Macy, on Main street.

The lumber was brought from the north to the ground; but, on its arrival, it was found to be too light for the purpose. Another bill of lumber was then furnished, and, upon investigation, it was found that one of the timbers for the tower was defective. Mr. Van Duyne, therefore, took an ox team, went to the woods, and, with the permission of the owner, cut and prepared a large tree, and hauled it to its place. Mr. McGinnis, the carpenter, and Messrs. Gillet and Van Duyne were the principal ones in raising the building. The entire cost of ground and building was $7,000, which amount was all paid by Messrs. Drury, Gillet and Van Duyne, excepting the $100 paid by Mr. Jones. Previous to the erection of the building, the organization of the church was effected, as taken from the church records as follows, viz.:

Be it remembered, that on the twenty-sixth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, pursuant to previous requests made, and notices given, in accordance with the rules, regulations and usages of the Presbyterian Church, the following persons, having received letters of dismission in the usual form unanimously granted to them by the First Congregational Church of the city of Fond du Lac, were duly organized into a Church of Christ by the Rev. Henry M. Robertson, Chairman of the Committee of the Winnebago Presbytery, duly appointed for that purpose. Said church, by vote, adopted the name of the First Presbyterian Church of the city of Fond du Lac, and also adopted the Westminster Confession of Faith as the articles of faith of said church.

After the organization of the church, three ruling Elders were elected by ballot, D. R. Van Duyne, Joseph S. Trigg and Erastus W. Drury.

Rev. Reuben Frame, who had preached in the city for two Sabbaths, was invited to become the first Pastor, at a salary of $700 per annum.

Rev. Reuben Frame commenced his labors on the 1st day of April, 1855, and preached his first sermon in Darling's Hall. On the 8th of April, 1855, Daniel R. Van Duyne, Joseph S. Trigg and Erastus W. Drury were ordained by Rev. Reuben Frame as Ruling Elders of the church. Mr. Frame continued his services from the 1st day of April, 1855, until February, 1858, when his connection was severed, and the church was closed from that time until the 1st day of April, 1860, when the services of H. M. Robertson were secured. The membership of the church at the time of Rev. Mr. Frame's leaving had reached forty-six communicants. On September 12, 1861, the members of the church convened for the purpose of electing additional Ruling Elders. William Dobie and Dr. A. L. Hoyt were unanimously elected. On September 27, 1861, these were duly ordained.

The church building remained on the corner of Main and Rees streets until 1865. The city having grown toward the south instead of to the north, as had been anticipated when the church was built, the society found they were laboring under a great disadvantage, and therefore decided to move the building to the corner of Sheboygan and Wingate streets. Before moving, it was found that the title of the building was not held by the congregation, it having been built by individuals, as before stated. In view of business complications which had arisen, the interest held by one of the parties having passed out of his hands, the Trustees bought that one-third interest. They also bought the one-third interest of E. W. Drury, by exchanging the land on which the building then stood for it. The other one-third interest was owned by James M. Gillet, who, when asked by the Trustees what he would do, said, "the church was built with a view of donating it to the congregation, and he stood ready to do as he had originally intended," and then and there did it. Although what he deeded to the society had cost about $2,300, Mr. Gillet paid his full share of the expense of moving and re-fitting the church edifice upon its new location. Upon the first Sabbath of December, 1865, the congregation worshiped in the building situated on the location where it now stands. To aid in moving the building, Mr. Robertson subscribed $100, which was afterward remitted to him.

September 26, 1866, owing to ill health, Mr. Robertson resigned. He commenced his labors at a salary of $700 per annum, $400 of which was paid by the Board of Home Missions. During the year 1864, it was decided by the Trustees, on motion of J. S. McDonald and C. J. Pettibone, that the congregation become self-sustaining. After this, the congregation prospered and increased in numbers to such an extent that the minister's salary was raised to the sum of $1,200, thereby raising the amount paid by the congregation to $900.

At a meeting of the members of the church at Empire, held at the house of A. S. Wilson July 1, 1867, it was resolved that the remaining members of that church take their original letters and unite with the Presbyterian Church in Fond du Lac. These members were received into this church October 5, 1867.

During the ministry of Mr. Robertson with this congregation, ninety-six persons were added to its roll of communicants, and the Sabbath school numbered 150 members.

During November, 1866, a legacy of $1,000 was left the church by William B. Brand, one of its honored and efficient members, whose death occurred a short time previously. At a meeting of the Trustees, November 13, 1866, held at the office of James M. Gillet, it was Resolved, That the Board tenders hereby its grateful remembrances to Mrs. Brand, with our hearty acknowledgments for the generous gift of her late husband, William Bradley Brand, Esq., in whose death our society has lost one of its most ardent friends and liberal supporters, and we have lost a kind neighbor, a good citizen and a generous friend."

At a meeting of the congregation, on the 20th day of November, 1866, the Rev. T. G. Smith was unanimously elected, and was soon after installed as Pastor.

At a meeting held at the office of J. M. Gillet, May 21, 1867, it was decided to purchase, for a parsonage, the residence owned and occupied by Dr. T. J. Patchen, situated on First street, for the sum of $4,000; which purchase was effected. This property was kept and used as a parsonage until April, 1872, when it was sold, inasmuch as the Pastor, Rev. T. G. Smith, had built and was occupying a house of his own.

An election of Elders occurred on March 25, 1869, at which C. W. Pinkham, Hugh McDonald and P. C. Macomber were elected additional Elders. At the same time there were also elected Deacons, Alexander Stewart and Alexander Mason, all of whom were ordained April 11, 1869.

During the spring of 1869, it was decided to enlarge the church building in accordance with plans presented by J. M. Gillet. During August, 1869, the contract for such enlargement was let to Mr. Phoenix, for the sum of $2,200, to include all expenses of labor and material. When the work was completed, and the contractor had been paid, the congregation learned that the mechanics had not been paid, and that a large portion of the material had not been paid for by the contractor. Therefore it was decided to pay all bills presented for material and labor, although the church was not legally bound to such payment.

The plan pursued for raising funds for defraying the necessary expenses of the church had been by the system of pew rents.

On December 10, 1872, it was resolved that for one year after January 1, 1873, the collecting of pew rents be suspended.

At a meeting of the congregation on December 15, 1872, a statement was made of the financial condition of the church, and all delinquencies were paid, thereby leaving the church free from debt. This system of raising money has been in successful operation to the present time. Rev. T. G. Smith continued his services as Pastor until April, 1874. A few weeks previous to this time, however, Mr. Smith handed in his resignation, having received a call from Kingston, Canada. The congregation reluctantly received the same and referred it to the Presbytery, who declined to grant his release. A few weeks later, this call from Kingston was renewed, and the Presbytery granted the request. The church had received into its membership, during Mr. Smith's ministry, 161 members.

The church being without a Pastor, a meeting of the church and congregation was held April 13, 1874, when it was voted to elect Rev. P. C. Kirkwood as Pastor, at a salary of $1,600 per year.

At a meeting of the congregation held in the church June 18, 1874, C. W. Pinkham, P. C. Macomber and Hugh McDonald were re-elected Elders. Alexander Mason and Alexander Stewart were re-elected Deacons, and Robert Powrie and Robert Hoffman were elected as additional Deacons.

At a congregational meeting held June 7, 1876, John S. McDonald and C. Vallette Pettibone were elected additional Elders for a term of five years.

Mr. Kirkwood commenced his labors in June, and remained as Pastor until the fall of 1878, when his resignation was given to the congregation, and, at his own request, accepted.

During the fall and winter of 1876-77, it was decided to hold revival meetings in the Mission Chapel, which were continued ten weeks, then transferred to the church building, and continued four weeks. As a result, there were received into the church 100 persons. The whole number received into its membership during Mr. Kirkwood's ministry was 161. After the resignation of Mr. Kirkwood, the pulpit remained vacant one year. Regular services were held during this interval by temporary supplies. October 20, 1879, Rev. Donald Ross, by invitation of the Session, came to supply the pulpit, and is now residing with this people.

The music of the church was placed in the hands of Dr. A. L. Hoyt in September, 1869. From that time until January 21, 1870, it remained under his management, and at a meeting held by the Session July 9, 1869, the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That we gladly embrace this opportunity to express our deep sense of obligation to Dr. Hoyt and all the members of the choir for their untiring devotion to the interests of the church, and for the able and faithful manner in which they have discharged these duties for a long period of years.

Many of those who have been so actively and intimately associated with the history of this church have been called to the Elysian Fields. In this connection could be mentioned scores of names; but prominent among those who have served in an official capacity is John E. Peabody. It was during his superintendency that the Hope Mission Sabbath School was organized, which enterprise has proved such a blessing to the community as well as church, to which it has long been attached. He removed to San Francisco, Cal., whence both himself and wife were called to the better land. Of those who were active and efficient in this connection was B. S. Patty. He was one of the Trustees for years, and none was more ready to render assistance, nor more hospitable toward its members. He was called away by death January 28, 1871. From the organization of this church to the time of his death, J. M. Gillet was one of the few men to give liberally of time, means and counsel. During the infancy of the church, he was ever ready to aid, and never swerved from his original purpose to do all in his power to complete the great work of establishing the church upon a firm basis. In consequence of his energy, his health was undermined, and he was prematurely called away. "Though dead, he yet speaketh" in the works which follow him.

The Trustees have been as follows: E. W. Drury, J. E. Peabody, C. J. Pettibone, J. S. McDonald, O. W. Bennet, J. M. Gillet, L. A. Griswold, B. S. Patty, C. S. Hamilton, Alexander McDonald, E. N. Foster, Alexander Wisnom, Alexander Stewart, Allan Carswell, Frank Taylor, John Mills.

The church has always maintained a Sabbath school. Its average attendance is 200. The Superintendents have been E. W. Drury (who was the first), A. L. Hoyt, C. J. Pettibone, John S. McDonald.

Hope Mission was established by the Presbyterian church in 1864. John S. McDonald owned the old Arndt M. E. Church building, and gave it to the Presbyterians for mission purposes, and B. F. Moore gave the two lots, on which the building now stands, for a site, on condition that the school be continued during ten years. It has been a successful school for sixteen years, and Mr. Moore gave a deed of the lots, as promised. It is in a remote part of the city, on the west side of the river, where churches are not easily accessible. It now has a regular attendance of 120. The Superintendents have been, J. E. Peabody, C. E. Hill, C. V. Pettibone (who served ten years), W. H. Williams and John Benton.

St. Paul's Cathedral.—St. Paul's Episcopal Church was organized at the Court House, in the village of Fond du Lac, by the Rev. Joshua Sweet, September 3, 1848. The first members were: N. P. Tallmadge, ex-United States Senator from New York, and ex-Governor of Wisconsin; A. W. Stow, Chief Justice of Wisconsin; Lieut. Gov. Samuel W. Beall, Gen. George D. Ruggles, George McWilliams, Charles Doty (Gov. Doty's son), Charles Stevens, A. L. Williams, Nathaniel Waterbury, and A. G. Ruggles, now President of the First National Bank. The first Rector was Rev. Joshua Sweet, and services were held in the Court House. The first officers were chosen September 4, 1848, and consisted of John Hamilton and Newell Case, Wardens; and N. P. Tallmadge, George McWilliams, A. D. Bonesteel, S. W. Beall, George D. Ruggles, Carson Graham, Nathaniel Waterbury and A. G. Ruggles, Vestrymen. On the 8th of December, 1849, a meeting was held to take steps toward erecting a church edifice, and, February 12, 1850, it was resolved to build after plans furnished by Mr. Wyatt, of Milwaukee, on lots donated by John B. Macy, on the corner of Follet and Bannister streets. Rev. Joshua Sweet and Carson Graham were appointed a committee to solicit and take subscriptions to defray the expenses of building. Rev. Homer Wheaton, of Lithgow, N. Y., and N. P. Tallmadge, of Fond du Lac, brothers-in-law, gave the largest sums, Rev. Wheaton's donation being $500. April 15, 1850, a building committee, consisting of A. D. Bonesteel, Carson Graham and Nathaniel Waterbury, was appointed, and the church edifice was begun on the corner of Follet and Bannister streets, on lots donated by John B. Macy. July 12, 1850, the church rented a hall in Darling's Block, for the use of the congregation. March 14, 1852, the first services were held in the new edifice, the tower of which had been donated and erected by M. J. Thomas and Thomas McDonough. There was a portion of the building expenses unpaid, and, May 24, 1852, a mortgage of $300, at 12 per cent interest, was executed to Thomas McDonough, to "pay in full the contract with Mr. Barber," the builder. The building, which is standing yet, and in occasional use, is 30x50 feet, and will seat 200 persons. The mortgage was soon paid, as the building could not otherwise be consecrated, and, July 18, 1852, the consecratory ceremony was performed. On August 24, of the same year, Rev. Joshua Sweet tendered his resignation on account of ill health, which was accepted October 26, 1863.

J. F. Mayhew M.D.

FOND DU LAC.

On the 26th of June, 1854, a call was extended to Rev. George B. Eastman, of Brownville, Jefferson Co., N. Y., to become Rector, which he accepted, coming to Fond du Lac immediately, where he still resides, though not engaged in active work.

During the rectorship of the Rev. George B. Eastman, arrangements were made for the erection of a new church building of stone, on the corner of Division and Sophia streets. The lots were given by Robert A. Baker, and three additional lots were subsequently bought by the corporation. A Gothic church, after plans of Lloyd, of Detroit, was begun and partially finished, the woodwork in the interior being of solid oak, and the workmanship thorough in every particular. The tower was carried up to the base of the spire, and temporarily capped. The total cost of the building was about $20,000.

In 1866, Mr. Eastman resigned, and his place was temporarily filled by the Rev. Mr. Davenport and Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson. In January, 1868, the Rev. Hiram W. Beers, of Chicago, accepted the rectorship, and remained three years, being succeeded, in 1871, by the Rev. William Dafter, now of Oconto, Wis., and in May, 1875, by the Rev. John Townsend, of Albany, N. Y. The Diocese of Wisconsin, which formerly embraced the whole State of Wisconsin, had become so unwieldy, that in 1874 a new diocese was erected, consisting of the twenty northeastern counties of the State, under the title of the Diocese of Fond du Lac. The Rt. Rev. J. H. Hobart Brown, S. T. D., was consecrated the first Bishop December 15, 1875.

Promptly on coming to this diocese, the Rector and Vestry of St. Paul's Church at Fond du Lac offered the realty belonging to the corporation to the Bishop for cathedral purposes, and all the owners of pews decided their rights to the Bishop, that the cathedral might be forever free. After a year's consideration, the Bishop accepted the proposition, and, on the feast of the Conversion of Saint Paul, January 25, 1876, took formal possession of the property, and instituted St. Paul's Cathedral. A temporary organization was effected, to remain in force until the Cathedral shall be completed and consecrated. The plan contemplates a chapter composed of the Bishop, eight canons and eight laymen, to whom all the interest of the Cathedral shall be committed. The Rev. John Townsend became the Dean of the Cathedral in 1876, and resigned in May, 1877. The Canons in office at present are the Rev. F. S. Jewell, Ph. D., and the Rev. N. D. Stanley.

During the rectorship of the Rev. H. W. Beers, a schoolhouse capable of accommodating 300 pupils was erected on the Cathedral grounds, at a cost of about $10,000. Soon after the institution of the Cathedral, a corporation was formed and a charter obtained to enlarge the scope of educational work, and to give the school a diocesan character. The following were the first Trustees: The Rt. Rev. J. H. Hobart Brown, S. T. D., President ex officio; Rev. F. S. Jewell, Ph. D., Vice President; Charles A. Galloway, Fond du Lac, Secretary; Hannibal Woodworth, Fond du Lac, Treasurer; Rev. F. R. Haff, Oshkosh; Rev. Fayette Durlin, Ripon; William Dafter, Oconto; Rev. R. W. Blow, Sheboygan; Rev. W. E. Wright, Waupun; Rev. M. V. Averill, Manitowoc; Rev. George Vernor, Appleton; Rev. James A. Upjohn, Plymouth; Rev. George A. Whitney, De Pere; Rev. G. W. Harrod, Green Bay; Messrs. Charles J. L. Meyer, Fond du Lac; August G. Ruggles, Fond du Lac; Timothy F. Strong, Fond du Lac; James B. Perry, Fond du Lac; James Jenkins, Oshkosh; George Gary, Oshkosh; E. L. Browne, Waupaca; George L. Field, Ripon; H. D. McCulloch, Stevens Point; R. W. Welles, Waupun.

The school has been opened with about sixty pupils in attendance, in charge of three teachers.

St. Joseph's Church.—The present St. Joseph's Church stands on the site of the first Catholic chapel erected in Fond du Lac, corner of Marr and Second streets. From it, in the course of time, have gone forth, by successive divisions, all the other Catholic congregations of the city, arising from the rapid increase of the Catholic population. Rev. F. X. Bonduel, one of the first missionaries of Wisconsin, attended to the wants of the Catholics here prior to the year 1847, in which year he erected a small chapel which was named St. Louis Church. At this time, that small house of worship was amply large to accommodate the Catholics of all nationalities. Rev. C. Rehl, at present at Barton, Wis., succeeded Father Bonduel, and was the first resident Pastor stationed here. He attended numerous missions, not only in Fond du Lac, but in all the surrounding counties. In 1850, Rev. E. A. Godfert assumed charge of the St. Louis Church, and remained its permanent Pastor till July, 1853. He was succeeded by Rev. L. Dael, who enlarged the church and built a pastoral residence.

About this time the congregation became too numerous to be accommodated in one church edifice. A part, therefore, separated, and selected the present site of St. Patrick's Church for a new house of worship. The foundation of this new edifice was laid in 1855.

In June, 1860, Rev. L. Dael was succeeded by Rev. Perrodin, in the charge of the St. Louis Church, the Germans, French and a portion of the English-speaking Catholics still worshipping there. During the pastorate of Rev. Perrodin St. Patrick's congregation was given over to the charge of Rev. James Colton, the present Pastor, who completed the building, a very large one of stone, and erected a pastoral residence, at No. 7 East Follet street.

Notwithstanding two additions which had been made to the old St. Louis Church, and the withdrawal of St. Patrick's congregation, the building was soon found too small to accommodate the remaining Catholics, so, in 1866, the German portion of the community separated, and laid the foundation of St. Mary's Church, a large wooden structure, at No. 15 Merrill street.

The last division took place in 1871, when the French resolved to erect a church in which their own language would be spoken. Rev. Father Perrodin was, therefore, appointed to the task of erecting this new edifice and placed in charge of the French congregation, the title St. Louis being transferred to that parish. Rev. G. Willard, in 1871, assumed charge of the mother parish, which was from this time called St. Joseph's. He laid the corner-stone of the present structure in 1874, and officiated as Pastor till February of 1879, when he was succeeded by Rev. Joseph J. Keenan, the present Pastor. St. Joseph's Church will be, when completed, the largest and most imposing church edifice in the city; its length is 135 feet, width 75 feet, the tower is to be 216 feet high. Work upon this building will be resumed as soon as the present indebtedness has been paid off.

St. Louis Catholic Church.—Early in 1871, the French Catholics separated from the Irish congregation, and began, under Rev. John C. Perrodin, the large stone structure for a church, which stands on the corner of Follet and Bannister streets, opposite the old St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The cost of the building thus far has been $25,000, and the tower and spires are yet unfinished. It is 65x120 feet, the main room being 30 feet in height. Father Perrodin died June 9, 1873, and was succeeded, June 22, by Rev. E. Masean. Father Masean resigned October 1, 1874, and was succeeded by Father Louis Dael, who built the priest's house, a fine two-story brick structure, located near the church, at a cost of $4,000, and dedicated the church in November, 1874. Father Dael died March 6, 1879, and was succeeded by Rev. Oliver Comptois, the present Pastor, June 22, 1879. Although in debt, the church is now prospering. In the fall of 1879, Father Comptois organized a parish school at which French and English are taught, and which is also prospering. This church has the oldest church bell in the city. It was bought in 1864 by Father Perrodin, at Troy, N. Y., and cost $637.48. Its weight is 1,020 pounds. It is held in high esteem by the members on account of Father Perrodin's connection with it.

The first Trustees of St. Louis Church were Michael Baltazare, Leander Landermann and Michael Pariseau.

First Baptist Church—The first Baptist organization in this jurisdiction was the one at Fond du Lac. The second was at Waupun. May 21, 1845, eight persons residing at Fond du Lac and vicinity, who believed in the doctrines of the Baptist Church, organized themselves into a church society. Their first Pastor was Rev. H. Hovey. The church edifice now used by this society, on the corner of Forest and Union streets, was erected in 1853, for $3,000; is the most pleasantly situated of any in the city, and has been continuously used by the same denomination and society longer than any other church edifice in Fond du Lac. In 1877, the building, which is of wood, was enlarged and repaired, and is now a comfortable and cheerful place of worship. Rev. F. A. Marsh is Pastor, with a membership of about one hundred.

Free Baptist Church.—The Free Baptist Church society was organized May 31, 1869, the first Pastor being Rev. Rufus Clark. The first officers were: Daniel Roberts, C. A. Rider, G. B. Carpenter, E. A. Randall and S. L. Brasted, Trustees; S. L. Brasted, Secretary and Treasurer. The society purchased the wooden building corner of Marr and Second streets, which was built by the Congregationalists, of the German Lutheran society, for $1,100, and immediately thereafter expended $600 for enlarging and improving it. The building now is in comfortable condition, is 30x60 feet in size, and has a debt of $900. The second Pastor was Rev. O. H. True; third, Rev. A. B. Taylor; fourth, Rev. T. S. Roberts, and fifth, Rev. W. C. Hulce. The church is now without a regular pastor, although services continue to be held.

The present officers are: C. A. Rider, Nathan Main, T. A. Root, D. W. Smith and William Crawford, Trustees; D. W. Smith, Secretary. A Sunday school is maintained in connection with the church organization.

German Evangelical Church.—Salem's Church, a branch of the Evangelical Church of North America, was organized in 1865, by H. Altpass, E. Weise, H. Friederich, A. Zahn, G. Guell, F. Rhoening, W. Dehnert, J. Felter, J. Smith and W. Treder. Their church building is the one built by the Methodists on the corner of Marr and Third streets, in 1851-52, of whom it was purchased in 1865, for $2,700. Rev. J. T. Viel was their Pastor, and the society embraced sixty members. In 1867, Rev. Viel was removed and Rev. William Horn appointed to fill his place. He remained two years, and was succeeded by Rev. A. Huelster in 1869, and Rev. A. Tarnutzer in 1871. In 1874, $800 was expended in improving and repairing the church building, the society then numbering eighty members. In 1875, Rev. A. Tarnutzer was succeeded by Rev. J. L. Runkel, who remained until 1878, when he was removed, and Rev. J. Schneller, the present Pastor, appointed to the charge. The congregation now numbers fifty-four families and one hundred and fifteen members, these numbers being constantly on the increase, although old members very frequently move to other cities. The church property, which was improved during the summer of 1879, is valued at $3,000, and consists of the church, a wing for a parsonage, and a small but comfortable building for the parish school, taught by the Pastor. This school is attended by forty-five scholars. One of the very prominent features of this church is its large Sunday school, in which old and young take a deep interest. It has a regular attendance of 110, and every Christmas indulges in an elaborate festival. The officers of the church are: Herman Friederich, President; W. Rhoening, Vice President; William Dehnert, Secretary; E. Weise, Treasurer, and F. Mund, Librarian.

Salem's Evangelical Church.—In order to be distinguished from the other church of the same name in Fond du Lac, this may be called Salem's Evangelical Church No. 2. It was organized October 11, 1869, the first members being Phillip Broecker, William Luling, C. A. Fuerstnow, Martin Sasse, B. De Sombre, C. G. Reichman, Charles Blankenburg, A. Soll and Franz Werner. The first Pastor was Rev. G. F. Off; and the first officers Martin Sasse, C. Blankenburg and William Luling. The building, which stands on the corner of Military and Ruggles streets, was finished in 1870; is 38x80 feet, with basement below and auditorium above, and cost $13,000, site included. It was built mostly by Phillip Broecker, who gave most of the brick of which it was constructed, C. Blankenburg and Martin Sasse. The present Pastor is Rev. H. Buehrig, and his congregation numbers forty-six members. The building is one of the most substantial in the city of its class, and is owned entirely by the church society.

The First Universalist Church.—The first meeting to form the Universalist society was held in Music Hall, corner of Division and Main streets, March 20, 1871. This meeting made Andrew Steveley, Dr. Tera J. Patchen, Elijah Hawkins, D. W. C. Priest and Orin Hatch, a Board of Directors to act authoritatively in perfecting the organization according to law. On the 8th of June, 1871, the Board made a contract with Rev. A. C. Barry to preach one year for $1,000 and a vacation of eight weeks. The services were held in Music Hall, which was rented for the purpose. The first officers were: T. J. Patchen, Moderator; D. W. C. Priest, Clerk; Q. M. Olcott, Treasurer; Jesse Beckley, Andrew Steveley, Orin Hatch, E. M. May and David Howland, Standing Committee for the year. May 20, 1872, this Committee adopted plans for a church made by T. H. Green, of Fond du Lac, and, on July 11 of the same year, let the contract for the building which now stands on East Division street, and which is occupied by the Red Ribbon Association, to C. A. Ryder, for $2,647, on condition that the structure should be finished and ready for occupancy by September 1. The building was called Universalist Chapel, and was dedicated November 4, 1872. Dr. Barry, the Pastor, loaned a large sum to clear the church of debt, and took the notes of his parishioners for security. He was the first and last regular Pastor, the church having been without regular services since his resignation. During 1879, E. N. Foster, who now owns the building, remodeled it for the use of the Red Ribbon Association, which has exclusive control of it, with the privilege of purchasing. The first members of the Universalist Church were T. J. Patchen, Q. M. Olcott, Andrew Steveley, J. Beckley, L. R. Lewis, Q. M. Olcott, O. E. Wilkins, Mrs. Dr. Patchen, J. A. Chitterling, John V. Frost, J. Eudemiller, E. M. May, A. H. Raymond, Joseph Ohasted, David Howland, Elijah Hawkins, U. D. Mihills, Orin Hatch, G. W. Carpenter, L. F. Stowe and their families.

German Evangelical Lutheran Church.—This flourishing church organization has a fine brick church edifice and parsonage on the corner of First and Marr streets. The church was erected in 1869, and is one of the substantial edifices of the city. The membership, which is constantly increasing, now embraces 175 families. In 1878, a fine pipe organ, built at Milwaukee, was added to the church furniture, at a cost of something over $1,000. The real estate belonging to this church extends from First to Second street, and on the Second street front is a two-story wooden schoolhouse, at which 200 children attend. It is supported by this church organization, and is a thorough and comprehensive institution of learning. The teachers are Rudolph Fritzsche and Charles Brenner. The Pastor is Rev. Phillip Hoelzel, who took charge in 1877.

BANKS.

The Exchange Bank.—In the early part of 1849, Dr. Mason C. Darling and Keyes A. Darling, his son, opened a private bank in the second story of Darling's Block, as it now stands. Before this Dr. Darling had kept an office in his residence—first in the log house built where Darling's Block now stands on Main street; afterward in his residence on Macy street, near to and just south of the location of the present post office; in 1847, in a building which he purchased of S. S. N. Fuller, located where D. R. Curran's old store, No. 529 Main street, now stands, and soon afterward in the building now called Darling's Block. This office was mostly for the entry of land and payment of taxes, although he occasionally bought exchange. This new firm did but little real banking business at first, but carried on a large business in land warrants, real estate and collecting. In the latter part of May, 1851, Dr. T. S. Wright, now a practicing physician of Fond du Lac, purchased M. C. Darling's interest in the concern, and the bank was organized as the Exchange Bank, by Darling, Wright & Co. The "company" was John Warner, Dr. Wright's father-in-law, who furnished some of the means on which the business depended. The business of the new firm was transacted at the old stand until a temporary building of wood could be erected where Wells' Bank now stands, corner of Main and First streets, on land owned by K. A. Darling. Mr. Darling, immediately after finishing this temporary structure, built the stone block which now stands next to Wells' Bank, occupied by Coffman's meat market. This he rented to the firm until he could build more especially for the business, the stone building next to it on the corner, now occupied by Wells' bank. The wooden building first used by the bank had no good safe, and on the occasion of a fire near by, January 19, 1852, which threatened to destroy it, Dr. Wright entered the limestone vault and filled his pockets with bills, after which he went out to fight the flames. His coat pockets alone contained $20,000. He lost none of the money, however, and the bank building did not burn. During five years after 1852, the Exchange Bank had the contract to carry the government money from the land office at Green Bay, afterward moved to Menasha, to Chicago. The trip had to be made once each month, or oftener if $20,000 was accumulated. The money was usually gold and was locked in an oaken box large enough to hold $20,000. This box was put by Dr. Wright, (who generally made the trip), in a meal bag, and placed under the seat of the stage coach, no one but himself being aware of its contents.

In 1852, Darling & Wright engaged A. G. Ruggles, who had been a bank clerk in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to copy some accounts and straighten out others, at $1 per day for a month. The bank was then in the wooden building just mentioned, on posts, and did not have a first-class vault or safe, being only a temporary affair. To guard the building, Darling & Wright kept a large, reddish dog, half Indian and half Newfoundland, and generally covered with fleas. He was always kept in the building, as he was considered too valuable to lose and was sure to run away if let loose. Fleas were active in those days, as were banking and real estate, and the dog put in a large share of his time in scratching them. Every time he did this it would set the whole building into a flutter, and everybody had to suspend operations until the dog had mastered that particular flea. This was a source of much amusement to incomers as well as of great annoyance to those connected with the bank, as many a blot and illegible, scattering scrawl on the old books bear evidence to this day.

Darling, Wright & Co. took advantage of the State law of 1852, which provided for the emission of bills, soon after its adoption. The capital stock was $75,000, and the amount of bills issued nearly as great. In May, 1860, Dr. Wright withdrew from the firm, and the business was then carried on by Keyes A. Darling. The circulation was called in after the passage of the National Banking Act in 1862, but the bank continued to do a banking business until May 11, 1868, when it failed with disaster alike to itself and its patrons. Mr. Darling had made many injudicious loans when the Exchange was a bank of issue, and, in re-organizing to continue business after his circulation was called in, burdened his affairs with the old debts. On Friday, May 8, 1868, Mr. Darling left Fond du Lac, his clerk said, to get some money at Chicago. On Saturday, the following day, more drafts were presented than could be paid, and the bank was quietly closed. That it was bankrupt, however, did not become generally known until the following Monday. Mr. Darling never returned to Fond du Lac. The bank owed $30,000, and it was thought at first that its assets would aggregate $20,000. The creditors petitioned the Bankruptcy Court to have Selim Newton appointed assignee of the bank, and it was done. Harvey Durand, Deputy United States Marshal, being placed in charge of the office, books and papers. The bank fixtures and other property were sold by order of the court, but the creditors realized only a small amount of what was due them. Mr. Darling is now in Colorado, and a poor man.

The Bank of Fond du Lac.—The early records of this institution have been lost. Its proprietors were the founders of the first real banking institution in Fond du Lac—that is, were first to organize under the State banking law. In August, 1852, McRae & Bell, of Milwaukee (Augustus L. McRae and William J. Bell), purchased of E. Doolan the land situated on the northwest corner of Main and Division streets, and began, immediately thereafter, the erection of the low, round-cornered building, of stone, which now stands thereon. Hearing that other parties were arranging to begin the business of issuing bills in Fond du Lac, and being desirous of having the prestige of starting first, Mr. A. G. Butler was sent to the city to open an office before the bank building was finished, which he did in the wooden building located on the opposite corner (of Main and Division streets), built by John B. Macy for an office. This was known as McRae, Bell & Butler's Bank, and was continued as such until the institution was organized under and according to the State law, in 1853, as the Bank of Fond du Lac. Its capital stock was to be $25,000, although business was at first begun with a much smaller amount. The stockholders of the re-organized bank were George McWilliams, James Ewen and Lyman Phillips, Fond du Lac, and O. P. Chandler, of Vermont. A. G. Butler was President, and Charles W. Whinfield, Cashier. Mr. Whinfield is now connected with the bank at Beaver Dam.

The Bank of Fond du Lac failed in 1857, and T. W. Dee was appointed Assignee. The stockholders lost heavily by its failure. Depositors lost but little by the failure. The firm of McRae, Bell & Butler had banks at Racine, Janesville and other places in the State.

Robert A. Baker's Bank.—In 1854, Robert A. Baker and John Sewell, Sr., began the business of banking in a wooden building which stood on the site of the present bank building, and which now stands on the corner of Johnson and Marquette streets, as a dwelling-house. In a short time Mr. Sewell withdrew from the firm, and Mr. Baker continued the business alone until June 26, 1858, when the Farmers and Mechanics' Bank was organized under the State law of 1852, as a bank of issue, with $25,000 capital stock. Of this Robert A. Baker owned 212 shares; Rev. George B. Eastman, 37 shares, and W. J. Hamilton, 1 share. The first officers were, S. B. Amory, President, and R. A. Baker, Cashier, who continued in the same offices until the bank went out of existence, in January, 1867. Since that date Robert A. Baker has been sole proprietor of the business, under the title of Baker's Bank. John S. Burrows, who has been connected with this bank during twenty-two years, is cashier, and Robert C., son of Robert A. Baker, is teller.

The bank carries on a general banking business, except to receive savings on interest and deal in foreign exchange. It is located in a solid brick building erected at the head of Forest street, in 1860, especially for banking purposes, and occupied September 1 of that year. The building was erected for Mr. Baker by John Waller and Robert Wyatt.

The First National Bank.—The foundation of the present First National Bank of Fond du Lac was the old Bank of the Northwest, which was organized in December, 1854, and opened for business January 1, 1855. It was organized under the State law of 1852, and was a bank of issue with a capital stock of $25,000, which was soon after, owing to the success of the institution, increased to fifty thousand. The first officers of the Bank of the Northwest were B. F. Moore, President, and A. G. Ruggles, Cashier. The principal stockholders who lived at Fond du Lac were B. F. Moore, A. G. Ruggles and Edward Pier, the other stockholders residing in the East. The bank was opened in a concrete building, located on West First street, in the rear of where A. H. Hall's millinery store now stands. A more central location was desirable, and the bank was soon after moved into John B. Wilbor's building on Main street, now occupied by John Haberkorn's clothing store. The next move was into a wooden building erected by John Sewell, which stood on the site of the present bank building, corner of Forest and Main streets, and which is now the First National Hotel, owned by M. Van Dresar, and located on the corner of Fourth and Marr streets. The fine three-story structure, with basement, now occupied by the First National Bank, was built by the bank, and completed and occupied in October, 1873. Its cost was $27,000, exclusive of the site, which the corporation also owns.

It is of the best brick and stone, and one of the handsomest, as it is one of the most substantial, buildings in the city. The basement is occupied by W. E. Cole's bank; the first story by the First National Bank, with private offices, handsomely furnished, for the President and cashier; the second story by the offices of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway Company, the law offices of Hauser & Thomas and Colman, Carter & Kent, and by Drs. Wiley & McNeel, and the third story is the splendid Masonic Hall, in use by Darling Chapter and all the other Masonic Lodges of Fond du Lac.

The second President of the Bank of the Northwest was Edward Pier, and the third President, A. G. Ruggles, at which time J. B. Perry was cashier.

December 12, 1864, the bank was re-organized under the National Banking Act. The capital stock was $75,000; Edward Pier was President; A. G. Ruggles, Cashier, and J. B. Perry, Assistant Cashier. In July, 1865, the capital stock of the institution was increased to $100,000, which is the present amount, and which cannot be purchased at any ordinary figure. In January, 1866, Edward Pier was re-elected President; A. G. Ruggles, Vice President, and James B. Perry, Cashier. The next President was A. G. Ruggles. The present Directors are A. G. Ruggles, John H. Martin, Orin Hatch, H. D. Hitt (of Oakfield) and J. B. Perry. The officers are: President, Augustus G. Ruggles; Cashier, James B. Perry; Teller, Henry C. Moore; Book-keeper, George L. Arnold; Correspondent, J. C. Perry; Messenger, Joseph D. Radford.

The First National Bank is the leading bank of Fond du Lac County in the amount of capital and business transacted, except in one or two special departments. It does all the business transacted by any bank, except to loan money on bond and mortgage, pay interest on deposits, and buy and sell foreign exchange. It receives deposits, but pays no interest on them. Its rate of discount on loans is 8 per cent, although the law allows, and almost all other national banks charge, 10 per cent. The Government requires of this bank, as it does of all national banks, that a sworn statement of its affairs be published quarterly, which is done, the report appearing in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth. The special agents of the Treasury Department have access to all books and papers of all national banks at all times, without notice, and all their affairs are completely under Government espionage, being examined at least once in each quarter. Last year, 1878, the taxes paid by the First National Bank amounted to $3,000, as the capital stock was assessed at its full face value by the local assessors, in addition to the tax imposed by the Government. Its record in all respects is second to no bank in the State.

German American Savings Bank.—In the fall of 1866, Rudolph Ebert and J. C. Perry established a private bank, which was managed by them as such until September, 1873, when it was re-organized under the State law as a savings bank, under the name and style of the German American Savings Bank, with a paid-up capital of $25,000.

The first officers were R. Ebert, President, and J. C. Perry, Cashier, the former holding the same position still. The stockholders are Rudolph Ebert, Louis Muentner, Frederick Rueping, Louis Rueping, Alexander McDonald, J. C. Perry and Franz Lauenstein. Of these, R. Ebert, President; Alexander McDonald, Vice President; Louis Muentner, Cashier; Frederick Rueping and Franz Lauenstein constitute the Board of Directors.

The institution carries on a general banking business, buys and sells foreign exchange, receives money on deposit and pays interest thereon; and has the agency for three ocean steamship lines. The bank has a large business. The bank building, which is a substantial brick structure built expressly for the business, is located in Main street, near the Serwe House.

The Savings Bank of Fond du Lac.—This was first organized by State charter March 28, 1867, with Elihu L. Phillips, Edward Pier, Edwin H. Galloway, Augustus G. Ruggles, George W. Weikert, Joseph Wagner, George F. Wheeler, James B. Perry, Edward Colman, James Coleman and Orin Hatch, as holders of the capital stock subscribed, and which was placed within the limits of $50,000 minimum and $500,000 maximum. The original corporate name was "Fond du Lac County Savings Institution," which was changed in 1874 to "The Savings Bank of Fond du Lac," which name it still retains.

E. L. Phillips was the first President of the Board of Directors, then composed, in addition to himself, of Edward Pier, A. G. Ruggles, Edwin H. Galloway, George W. Weikert, Joseph Wagner and George F. Wheeler.

June 20, 1867, the Fond du Lac County Savings Institution opened its doors and books for business. Col. Edward Colman was Treasurer, Teller and Book-keeper. On that day, Willie M. Weikert wrote his name on the first line of the first column of the first page of the "Signature Book," and started the first savings account ever opened as such in Fond du Lac County.

During that month, two other accounts were opened, making three: but in July, the number ran up to forty-six, and before the following October, when the first report required by law was made, the books showed 168 depositors, aggregating a total of $13,700, an average of over $80 to each savings depositor. A year later, there were 544 accounts, and $53,486 of savings deposits, being an average of over $90 each. During the year following, this was increased to 881 accounts and $71,000 of deposits. During succeeding years the growth of the institution was undiminished, until nearly $500,000 of deposit lay to the credit of its patrons. The panic of 1873, followed by the unparalleled depression of business and the consequent enforced idleness of many workmen, caused a withdrawal of savings deposits everywhere, which ceased only with the recent return of employment and commercial prosperity throughout the country. Up to the present time, over six thousand accounts, from first to last, have been opened, which have been distributed more than $78,000 interest money.

Among its patrons are a large number of women and children, the special act of the Legislature, secured by the charter, according to these classes protection of their savings placed in the bank, against any act of husband, parent or guardian.

In 1870, President Phillips resigned his position, and was succeeded by Edward Pier, with whom was associated, in the Board of Trustees, Edwin H. Galloway, Vice President, and C. K. Pier, Director, the required number having been previously reduced by law to three.

In May, 1876, Mr. Galloway died, leaving a large and valuable estate. His widow, Maria H. Galloway, was elected to his former position in the management of the bank, and, on the death of the President, Edward Pier, in November, 1877, she was elected to fill the vacant office of President. The Board now consists of Mrs. M. H. Galloway, President; C. K. Pier, Vice President, and G. A. Knapp, Treasurer.

Up to May, 1874, the institution had occupied a rented building on Forest street. During that year was completed a fine two-story brick structure, specially adapted to the business, into which they moved and where they still remain. This building is fully supplied with all the modern improvements necessary to the business, such as fire-proof vaults, burglar-proof safes and time locks, and is a most substantial, safe and convenient bank building.

The German Savings Bank.—September 1, 1872, Charles L. Encking opened a bank under the First National Bank, corner of Main and Forest streets, under the name and style of the German Savings Bank, Robert H. Wharton, Cashier, with a capital of $10,000. In addition to receiving deposits on interest, loaning money and carrying on a general banking business, Mr. Encking engaged largely in real estate, brokerage, insurance, making abstracts and collecting, besides being an active agent for the leading trans-Atlantic steamship lines. The bank prospered until the monstrous shrinkage in real estate, in which Mr. Encking was heavily involved, began to cripple its resources. It continued regularly in business, however, until September 23, 1878, when Robert H. Wharton, the Cashier, left the city in the night, it was reported, with all the available cash of the institution. Mr. Encking continued in the bank only a few days to settle up, as far as possible, with his creditors. The German Savings Bank ceased to exist October 1, 1878. Mr. Encking rented another office, and continued all his former business, except that of banking, and has now straightened out nearly all the affairs of his defunct bank, so that, so far as can be ascertained, the losses by its suspension will be small.

Wells' Bank.—About the first of May, 1870, W. H. Wells came from New York and opened a private bank in the building, corner of Main and First streets, formerly owned and occupied by Keyes A. Darling for the same purpose, purchasing the property from R. Ebert. Mr. Wells does a general banking business, buys and sells bonds, receives money on deposit, paying interest therefor; loans money and transacts all other business pertaining to a first-class bank. The affairs of the institution are carried on by Mr. Wells, its owner, and M. T. Simmons, Cashier.

W. E. Cole's Bank.—On the 1st of January, 1879, William E. Cole opened an office for the transaction of a general banking business, as a private banker, under the First National Bank Building, corner of Main and Forest streets. Mr. Cole has a large fire and burglar proof safe depository for the safe-keeping of valuable papers, and carries on, in addition to loaning and collecting money and selling foreign exchange, the business of general ticket agent for all the leading steamship and railway lines. The business of making collections is a specialty.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

First Saw-Mill in Fond du Lac.—In 1844, Mason C. Darling gave a contract for a deed to John J. Driggs, deceased, and Warren Morley—a man now eighty-four years of age, and living on the lake shore at Morley's Point—of a parcel of land lying west of Court street and south of Western avenue, "contained in the bend of the East Branch River, and known as the 'Hydraulic Reservation,'" provided they should build a saw-mill and have it in running order at a certain time. The mill was not running as soon as specified, but, on the 11th of July, 1846, "for $165 in hand paid," he gave a warranty deed of the property. Mr. Driggs remained only a short time in the proprietorship of the mill, and was succeeded by Truman Wheeler, father of the Rev. L. N. Wheeler, now the Presiding Elder of Fond du Lac. Mr. Wheeler was killed, in 1847, by the fall of a tree, while engaged in getting out timber for a grist-mill. The framework of this mill was erected near the saw-mill, back of where the Court House now stands, but was never inclosed or used, owing to Mr. Wheeler's death. After Mr. Wheeler was killed, the saw-mill lay idle, or was in charge of a Green Bay man for the Wheeler heirs, until August, 1849, when it was got into running order by Horace Seymour, who now resides in Fond du Lac, and is blind, although in early times he was credited with having the best eyes, capable of making the quickest and most accurate measurement, of any one in the vicinity. In September, 1849, Mr. Herman Bissell, who had arrived from Connecticut the year before, and who was killed in the terrible Angola railway disaster, December 18, 1869, bought the mill of Mr. Morley and the Wheeler heirs; but, as there was some flaw in the title, he never gained a deed of the half belonging to these heirs, though no rent or interest was ever required of him. His son, L. C. Bissell, now Superintendent of the Fond du Lac Boom Company, was put in charge of the mill, which, with early rising and late retiring, would turn out 2,500 feet of lumber per day. The young man had no help about the mill to assort, carry away or pile the lumber, or tend the mill; and, small as these figures look, they are actually large, for the best mill in Fond du Lac does not now manufacture 2,500 feet of lumber per day to each man engaged in tending it. The logs, of course, were larger then than now, as 720 of which Mr. Bissell kept account averaged 557 feet of lumber each. Now it is a good lot of logs that average 250 feet each. The first logs sawed by Mr. Bissell were owned by Pier & Newton (Edward Pier and Selim Newton, both deceased), and were hauled from Bannister's Landing on trucks drawn by oxen, and driven by Charles Colman, now a millionaire lumberman of La Crosse, and brother to Elihu Colman, lawyer, of Fond du Lac. Sometimes, when these logs were so large that Mr. Bissell could not roll them on to the "carriage," his wife would come from the house, near by, and render such assistance as was sufficient to accomplish the task.

Before the first lot of logs was sawed, they were purchased by Curtis Lewis, now of Escanaba, Mich. The contract was to the effect that the saw-bill should be paid every month, but he couldn't always fulfill it, and at such times gave his notes at 5 per cent a month—60 per cent a year! The notes were all paid.

About this time, home-made lumber became scarce and was higher, the mills at Fond du Lac (two in the village and one in the town) not being able to supply the demand, and rafted lumber was brought from the Shioct mill, two miles below Shiocton, and from the Shawano mill. These were both water-mills, the one at Shawano being owned and run by Curt Lewis, who also was managing the Lewis House, on the site of the present Patty House. He had life and vim enough in those days for a score of men, and it was nothing uncommon for him to start for his mill at Shawano on an "Indian trot," and not stop to sleep or eat, except to partake of such food as he put in his pocket and could be eaten on the run, until he reached his destination. The return journeys were made in the same manner, and in an almost incredibly short time.

This old Wheeler & Morley mill was quite a curiosity in its day, and was visited by almost everybody. The dam extended across the East Branch, a few feet below where the sidewalk now crosses, on the north side of Western avenue, near Meyer's factory. It only furnished about seven feet head of water. The wheel was a curiosity, being of wood, and built like the modern iron or brass turbine water-wheels. Sometimes the water couldn't start it without a lift from the sawyer; but, once started, it furnished a large amount of power. The saw was the ancient "sash," the jerking of whose heavy framework kept everything in a shake. The mill building was 24x36 feet, and the wooden carriage on which the logs were sawed ran out over the pond. On this carriage, flocks of shouting children, now the prominent men and women of the city and State, were in the habit of riding, in a slow, hitching manner, out over the pond, to be "giggled back" with a rush.

In September, 1855, a great freshet swept the dam away, and, as other and more modern mills had sprung up near the lake, where logs were more easily reached, the Wheeler & Morley mill was never again put in operation. The site is now owned by C. J. L. Meyer.

First Steam Saw-Mill.—The first steam saw-mill built in Fond du Lac or Northern Wisconsin was erected in 1846 by Davis & Ruggles, on the east bank of the river, just above where Cotton street now is. Cornelius Davis, using the name of his brother, E. F. Davis, furnished the "experience," and A. G. Ruggles, now President of the First National Bank, furnished the money. The logs and timber for the mill were cut on the Wolf River, in the summer of 1846, and rafted to Fond du Lac, after which Mr. Ruggles went East and bought the engine, boiler and machinery. These were put on to the Hudson at Cleveland, and among the passengers with Mr. Ruggles was David R. Curran, ever since a resident of Fond du Lac, then making his first trip to the West. A terrific storm overtook the boat, and the frightened passengers for a time were determined to heave the heavy mill machinery overboard, to insure the safety of the vessel, being very free in making threats of this character. Mr. Ruggles was far more thoroughly frightened at their threats than at the storm, bad as it was, for all he had in the world was represented in the machinery, which seemed in a fair way to be dumped into the lake. The storm subsided, however, and the machinery was landed in safety. It was then brought to Fond du Lac and put in place during the winter of 1846-47, and, in the early spring of 1847, sawed the first lumber ever cut by steam in Northern Wisconsin, for B. F. Moore, now owner of the La Belle Wagon Works. In June of that year, the mill sawed its own logs.

The first saw used in the mill was an old-fashioned "sash saw," the whole frame in which it was fastened resembling a window sash, and churning up and down with terrific jerks. Soon after, a muley saw was put in, which was regarded as a great innovation in milling. After the new saw was put in, the mill was run night and day, in season, cutting about eight thousand feet of lumber in twenty-four hours, and proving a profitable investment. In 1847 or the beginning of 1848, Davis & Ruggles dissolved partnership. The mill was finally burned, but the machinery in it was taken out by George W. Sexsmith, and used in his first milling operations in Fond du Lac.

First Planing-Mill.—In 1851, A. G. Ruggles, now President of the First National Bank, purchased several lots on the east bank of the river, where Johnson street now is, and staked out a site for a planing-mill, which seemed to be in good demand. In the fall, Mr. Ruggles went East and purchased the best planing-mill machinery then to be had, and when he returned, in February, 1852, he found his mill-site overflowed by the river as far as what was later called East Water street, the water being several feet deep. For some days the cause of the overflow was a mystery, until it became known that the first dam had been erected at Menasha. The set-back of the water caused by the erection of this dam had overflowed Mr. Ruggles' mill-site, and much other property as well. He crossed the street, however, and built his planing-mill that year. But no one could sharpen a planer or "hang" the knives, and everything moved under difficulties. There was business enough, but no one could be had who was expert enough to do it properly. Mr. Ruggles was compelled to run the engine himself. In 1852, he did his last work with the planing-mill on a job of basswood boards which Jason Wilkins wanted dressed for the manufacture of baby carriages. The building and engine were afterward used for a saw-mill.

McDonald & Stewart's Factory.—In 1867, a large wooden building was erected on the corner of Arndt and Brooke streets, for a sash, door and blind factory. It was run a short time by a Mr. Jones, now deceased, and, in 1869, fell into the hands of Alexander McDonald and Alexander Stewart, by whom it has since been owned and managed. The factory gives employment to about fifty persons, and turns out $120,000 worth of manufactured stock per year.

City Stone Mills.—This substantial stone structure was begun by a branch of the Congregational Church for a church edifice. Before it was finished, the two factions re-united. The walls remained as they were left by the church, until April, 1858, when Dr. M. C. Darling bid them off, with the site, for $1,000. They were soon thereafter completed for a flouing-mill, and the mill put into operation. In 1869, the property was purchased by Moore & Aldrich, and in 1874, by Allen & Aldrich, the present proprietors. The mill has four runs of stone, which receive motion from an ample steam engine.

J. C. Huber's Drug-Mill.—Mr. Huber began in a small way in 1868, on Main street, to grind spices, herbs and roots. In 1872, business having outgrown his capacity, he erected a large steam drug-mill on the corner of Sibley and Marquette streets. He employs ten men, and grinds spices, mustard, herbs, roots and all medicinal plants and barks. About 300 of these are found in Wisconsin, to gather which he has agents in all parts of the State, the Indians being especially valuable and skillful in this work. Mr. Huber imports all spices and medicines not obtainable in America. At the session of the Wisconsin Academy of Arts and Sciences, held in January, 1880, samples of drugs and spices from nearly every mill in the country were tested and none found pure, except from J. C. Huber's mill, at Fond du Lac. This report was officially published.

G. W. Sexmith & Sons' Saw-Mill.—Mr. Sexmith is one of the pioneer lumber men of Fond du Lac. He has operated a mill continuously since 1854. Sexmith & Sons' Mill, corner of Cotton and Satterlee streets, gives employment to fifty men in season. Last year it turned out 4,000,000 feet of lumber. The mill building was erected by A. G. Ruggles, and contained the first planing, dressing and matching machinery in Fond du Lac.

Alexander McDonald's Saw-Mill.—This mill building was erected in 1853 by E. A. Galloway for a warehouse. In 1855, T. S. Henry & Co. transformed it into the first rotary saw-mill ever run in Fond du Lac. In 1865, two rotary saws were put in, after which Henry & Co. sold out. Mr. McDonald has been alone in the business since 1870. The mill has a capacity of 50,000 feet of lumber per day. The boilers now used in it were built in 1856, and are now considered better than first-class modern boilers. Mr. McDonald saws hard lumber for the thrashing machine works, and special grades for McDonald & Stewart's sash, door and blind factory.

Fond du Lac Spring Wagon Company.—In 1875, A. T. Perkins and C. L. Clement purchased from the J. A. Archibald estate the small shops near the corner of Macy and Court streets, and began the manufacture of carriages and cutters, under the firm name of Perkins & Clement. Their business continued to increase, until now they have five buildings, employ twenty-two men, and turn out 1,000 jobs per annum. Their machinery is driven by a thirty-five-horse power steam-engine, built by the Novelty Iron Works. In 1879, the firm added a complete saw-mill to their factory, and now saw all the boards and stock used. No other carriage factory in the Northwest has facilities for sawing its own lumber. The especial lines of work turned out at this factory, are cutters, all styles of carriages, and the celebrated platform-spring wagons, which are called "mountain wagons."

Fond du Lac Building Association.—This corporation, whose factory is on Scott street, near Main, was organized January 4, 1876, and incorporated January 4, 1879. Its capital stock is $10,000, paid up. C. K. Pier is President, and G. W. Mihills, Manager. The concern has out 280 agents, who make 70,000 sales per year of screens, window blinds and articles of that class. No firm in Fond du Lac sends out and sells as great a number of articles as this institution, though several others receive much larger amounts of cash in return for manufactured articles sold.

Galloway Mills.—This large flouring-mill, situated on the corner of Arndt and Packer streets, was begun by John Maginnis and Charles R. Harrison. In 1866, the property was purchased, rebuilt and finished by T. S. Henry & Co., the present owners. The mill is well equipped with all the most modern milling machinery, and is constantly busy. Its capacity is 120 barrels of flour per day.

Fond du Lac Steam Bakery.—The large business of the steam baker, located at 35 East First street, in a handsome brick building built especially for it, was begun by Benjamin Wild, in a small way in 1860. Trade constantly increased, and in 1869 the business was transferred to Second street, where it now gives employment to nineteen men, who make into crackers, all kinds of bread, cakes and pies, about fifteen barrels of flour per day. The manufacture of candies is also extensively and successfully carried on. The firm has three traveling salesmen; a retail store on the corner of Main and First streets, under the charge of H. L. Noble, and does a business of $80,000 per year. The sales extend into adjoining States.

J. Q. Griffith & Sons' Saw-Mill.—J. Q. Griffith began the lumbering business as early as 1856, and in 1859 operated the old Wilbor & Henry mill. In 1860, he purchased the mill, which then stood on Forest street. It was built in 1856, by Deacon Fuller, Nathan Leavitt and George Hunter, and was known as the Fuller & Leavitt Mill. It had a muley saw and siding machine. The company failed after operating it several years, and the property was purchased by Mr. Griffith, who operated it until he built the present mill, in 1871, on West Division street. In 1866, his son, Carver N. Griffith, became a partner in the business, and in 1870, Wilber A. Griffith, another son, took an interest, and the firm name then was J. Q. Griffith & Sons. In 1872, a planing-mill was added to the facilities of the mill, and in 1879, machinery for grinding everything but flour. The yards and mill give employment to thirty-five men, and a corps of loggers and raftsmen is kept in the woods, securing logs for each season's work.

Steenberg's Sash, Door and Blind Factory.—In 1867, H. H. Lewis, now a resident of Kansas, erected a sash, door and blind factory on the corner of McWilliams and Juneau streets. In 1871, Prof. O. C. Steenberg was taken in as a partner, and, in 1877, became sole proprietor. When running to its full capacity, the factory gives employment to sixty men. Its products are sold mostly in the West and South, for which there was demand enough during the panic to keep the factory in operation.

George W. Lusk's Saw-Mill.—In 1856, Asa Pierce, now of Racine County, Daniel W. Smith, Charles Chandler, W. D. Sherwood, now of Chicago, and L. C. Bissell, built the mill now owned and run by George W. Lusk, on Moore street, the capacity of which is about forty thousand feet per day. It was called the Pierce, Smith & Co. Mill. The boilers were made of the best locomotive boiler iron, and have never had a cent expended on them for repairs. The mill had a forty-eight-inch saw, a double-cutting sider, shingle and lath machines. Pierce, Smith & Co. failed, and, in 1867, George W. Lusk became a member of the firm of Merryman & Co., which consisted of A. C. & R. W. Merryman, George W. Lusk, Lewis Rood, of Monroe, Wis., and E. A. Newton, of the same place. In 1869, A. C. Merryman withdrew from the firm. In June, 1877, Mr. Lusk purchased Mr. Newton's interest in the business; in April, 1878, purchased that of the Merrymans, and, in March, 1879, secured the interest belonging to the Rood heirs. He is now sole proprietor of the mill and lumber-yard.

Fond du Lac Manufacturing Company.—In 1873, a company consisting of Alexander and John S. McDonald, and Benjamin Nightingale, was incorporated for the manufacture of straw boards, building and wrapping paper. The capital stock was $54,000, all paid up. The factory ran two years, giving employment to a large number of men, and producing first-class articles, after which it was closed on account of the costliness of fuel. The building and machinery therefore lay idle until the spring of 1878, when they were destroyed by fire.

Alfred K. Hamilton's Saw-Mill.—In 1856, I. K. and W. C. Hamilton built a mill at Luco, between Fond du Lac and Taycheedah, on the lake shore, and, in 1857, began the manufacture of all kinds of lumber. In 1868, A. K. Hamilton and W. S. Finley became partners in the business, under the firm name of A. K. & W. C. Hamilton & Co. In 1871, A. K. Hamilton and W. S. Finley became the proprietors, and continued in business together until May, 1879, when Mr. Finley sold to A. K. Hamilton, who is now sole proprietor of the business. In addition to the lumber-yard at the mill in Luco, a yard and an office are located on Main street, in Fond du Lac. This mill, which employs fifty men, and has a capacity of 6,000,000 feet of lumber per year, has not been idle a season since it was first started, in 1857. About forty men are kept at work in the woods securing logs, on which to keep the mill in operation.

Fond du Lac Harrow Company.—In the spring of 1876, the manufacture of "H. B. Fargo's V-shaped, steel-toothed harrow" was begun by H. B. Fargo, W. A. Knapp, M. D. Moore, C. A. Galloway and W. B. Galloway, under the name of the Fond du Lac Harrow Company. The Company was organized in 1878, and incorporated October 1, of that year, by W. A. Knapp, C. K. Pier, G. A. Knapp and Frank A. Knapp; with a capital of $10,000. The officers of the corporation are C. K. Pier, President, and W. A. Knapp, Secretary and Treasurer. The act of incorporation gives the Company the right to make all kinds of agricultural implements, though only Fargo's patent harrow is made at present. The factory is on East Division street, and turns out 3,000 harrows per year, making a business worth $35,000. These harrows are mostly sold in Minnesota, Iowa, Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska and Wisconsin. The business is increasing.

The Fond du Lac Trunk Factory.—The business of making trunks was first started by Andrew Payne, who entered to the retail trade only. He sold to D. C. Lang in 1874, who enlarged and carried on the business until March, 1875, when John H. Lang, his brother, became a member of the firm. The firm name then became, and now continues, D. C. & J. H. Lang. The factory is a large brick building on East First street, in which is the office. The business is now wholly carried on for the wholesale trade, and gives employment to eighteen men. The sales in Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana, amount to over $25,000 per annum.

McDonald Manufacturing Company.—This was first known as the Fond du Lac Threshing Machine Company, which was organized in 1874, and built threshing machines until 1876, when the Company failed. The following year, March 14, the present Company was organized, with John S. McDonald, President; Alexander McDonald, Vice President, and John Spence, Treasurer and Secretary. These, with C. H. Benton, constitute the Board of Directors. The present officers are the same as just recorded. The capital stock of the concern is $100,000, all paid up, and its principal business the manufacture of the "Pride of the West" threshing machines, which were invented in Fond du Lac, and which are becoming celebrated for several superiorities in construction and manner of doing work. There are also made by this firm the "Common Sense" sleigh, for lumbering purposes, and Berry's Stump Puller. Since the formation of this Company, its business has increased from 100 to 300 per cent per year, and new facilities are constantly added. The large shop is located on Scott street and gives employment to forty men.

Mihills Manufacturing Company.—The foundation of the immense business now carried on by the Mihills Manufacturing Company in sash, doors and blinds, on the corner of Brooke, Sibley and Juneau streets, was laid when Uriah D. Mihills began the manufacture of lumber, in 1864, in the old dismantled mill now standing near the Scott street bridge. In 1868, he added to his business the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds, and continued both the mill and the factory until 1874, when he became involved, and the establishment was taken in charge by the present Mihills Manufacturing Company December 24, 1874, with a capital of $200,000. Of this corporation, Parlan Semple, of Shawano, was President; R. A. Baker, Vice President; C. K. Pier, President; G. N. Mihills, Secretary and Superintendent. These, with Welcome Hyde, of Appleton, constitute the Board of Directors. The present officers are R. A. Baker, President; C. K. Pier, Treasurer; G. N. Mihills, Vice President, Secretary and Superintendent. The factory, which is a fine brick building, contains 160 employes, and the articles manufactured are sold in all the States of the Union, except New York and New England. The business now amounts to $300,000 per year. The Mihills Manufacturing Company also owns a large saw-mill at the foot of Hone and Spring streets, which is leased by Henry Sherry, of Neenah, and managed by A. D. Parker. During the last two seasons, it has been run to its full capacity, night and day a portion of the time; running in winter also, logs being received by rail.

Fond du Lac Wheel & Seeder Company.—In 1872, Daniel Y. Sabin, J. B. Bushnell and Henry Hastings began, under the name and style of Sabin, Bushnell & Hastings, the manufacture of the Fountain City Seeder and patent buggy wheels. In 1874, this firm sold out to the Wheel & Seeder Company, which was chartered August 31, 1874, and which was composed of D. Y. Sabin, J. B. Bushnell, Henry Hastings, J. C. Wedge, Alexander McDonald, Frank Dillingham (of Milwaukee), M. W. Simmons, E. C. Gray, Byron Town, Kalk & Kent, J. F. Aldrich, P. Conrad, A. T. Perkins and Ela C. Waters. The first officers were: Alexander McDonald, President; J. C. Wedge, Vice President; Byron Town, Secretary and Treasurer; J. B. Bushnell, Superintendent. The capital stock was $50,000. The company ceased manufacturing wheels in 1876, because they were too costly for the market. The manufactures, which now consist of grain-drills and force-fed, broad-cast seeders, with clover and timothy seed attachments, are sold mostly in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. Their number is 1,500 seeders and drills per year, and their value about $75,000. The shops give employment to seventy-five men, and the business is annually increasing. The present officers are: Alexander McDonald, President; J. C. Wedge, Vice President; Byron Town, Secretary and Treasurer. The shops are located on Forest street, next to the river, and with the additions of the season of 1879, complete throughout.

Moore & Galloway's Saw-Mill.—The business of this firm was begun in 1864 by M. D. Moore, who then engaged in the manufacture of lumber, lath and pickets, with Charles Crane. The partnership, if such it could be called, was a novel one. Mr. Crane had built the saw-mill in 1863, but was financially embarrassed. Mr. Moore therefore purchased an undivided half-interest in it, and paid for it, and for two years thereafter Mr. Crane operated the mill one week and Mr. Moore the next week. The same crew worked for both, but the lumber cut by each was kept separate, as well as all the business affairs. In 1866, Mr. Moore bought out Mr. Crane, and soon after, in the same year, C. A. Galloway became a partner with Mr. Moore in the business, and several years later, in 1870, W. E. Baker purchased an interest in the business, which embraced extensive operations in the lumber districts, in addition to operating the mill and yards at Fond du Lac. In 1878, W. E. Baker withdrew from the firm, which is now composed of M. D. Moore and C. A. Galloway. The firm gives employment to eighty, and at some seasons to 150, men, and cuts from five to eight and one-half millions of lumber. The mill and office are located on Packer, near McWilliams street.

Peerless Job Office.—November 13, 1878, P. B. Haber and Charles H. Swift opened a job printing office in the rear of Wells' Bank building, corner of Main and First streets, under the title of the Peerless Printing Office, by Haber & Swift. The material was all new and the office has had a liberal share of business since it was opened. Mr. Swift has in connection with the office, the business of city bill-posting.

Globe Job Office.—On the 1st of August, 1872, Thomas Bryant, now of the Omaha (Neb.) Bee newspaper, opened a job printing office over J. C. Whittelsey's store on Main street. In the fall of 1874, George C. Hicks, now of Minneapolis, purchased an interest in the office, continuing as one of the proprietors until 1876, when Mr. Bryant became sole proprietor. In 1878—April 25—John W. Lockin purchased the entire establishment and moved it to the ground floor of No. 6 Forest street, September 20, 1879. He added a large cylinder press and engine in 1879, and the office now contains 150 fonts of type, four presses and good steam machinery. The Wisconsin Farmer is published at the Globe Office.

La Belle Wagon Works.—In 1869, what is now the second largest wagon factory in the State was begun by Farnsworth, Knapp & Co., on the site now occupied by the works. The firm changed soon after to Farnsworth, Woodward, Knapp & Co., and then to Farnsworth Brothers & Knapp, who continued in the business until February, 1874, when B. F. Moore and A. G. Ruggles purchased the entire property and business interests. This firm began immediately to increase the business, although the works had a capacity of 2,000 wagons per year under Farnsworth Brothers & Knapp. Mr. Ruggles continued in the establishment only eight months, when B. F. Moore became sole proprietor. He went on with making improvements and increasing the facilities, until in January, 1879, when a stock company was formed and incorporated, with a paid-up capital of $200,000, consisting of B. F. Moore, President; A. L. Moore, Vice President and Superintendent; James H. Farnsworth, Secretary, and C. H. Moore, Treasurer. The business, that of manufacturing wagons, gives employment to 200 men, who turn out twenty complete wagons per day. The shops, which are located between the West Branch River and the Chicago & North-Western Railway, on Forest street, are run to their utmost capacity, and turn out $300,000 worth of wagons per year. During the past year an immense fireproof, stone, iron and brick storehouse has been built by the La Belle Wagons Works Company, which is capable of holding 3,000 finished wagons; also an oil-house of stone. Every foot of room is utilized, and preparations are going on to increase, next season, the capacity of the shops. The wagons turned out are sold mostly in California, Oregon, Texas and British America.

Novelty Iron Works.—The Novelty Iron Works building, a large, substantial structure of brick with cast-iron door and window frames, was built by Horace and George O. Trowbridge, on the corner of Doty and Rees streets, in 1866. Horace Trowbridge now resides at Sheboygan Falls, and George O. at San Francisco. C. H. De Groat purchased G. O. Trowbridge's interest in 1875, and soon after A. E. Bosworth became a member of the firm. In 1876, George Giddings bought an interest in the business, since which time the firm has been De Groat & Giddings. Their business is that of manufacturing agricultural implements, saw-mill machinery and general repairing. They also manufacture the famous Gowan head-blocks and set works for saw-mills, which are in use by nearly all the mills in the vicinity.

C. J. L. Meyer's Factories, Mills and Furnaces.—One of the most extensive and successful manufacturers in Wisconsin, or in the Northwest, is Charles J. L. Meyer. No history of Fond du Lac, or of Wisconsin, would be complete, therefore, without a more or less elaborate account of his business. Mr. Meyer arrived in New York from his native place in Prussia, in 1849, at the age of eighteen. He had been educated under the thorough Prussian school system, and had also learned the sash and door trade, which he now carries on, by working in his father's shop, which had turned out a fine quality of sash, doors and furniture since the beginning of the present century. Not finding employment at his trade at once in New York, Mr. Meyer engaged at farming for a short time, but soon found employment with one of the best millwrights of the East, thereby acquiring practical knowledge which has since been of great value in carrying on his business. In 1855, being desirous of engaging in business on a larger scale, and in a timbered country, Mr. Meyer made a tour of the West and settled upon Fond du Lac as offering the best advantages on account of healthful climate, fine soil, great timber resources and contiguity to navigable waters. He did not settle at Fond du Lac through accident, but after a thorough examination of various other places in the West.

In 1856, he started in business at Fond du Lac, in a very small way, doing such miscellaneous jobs as his limited means would allow. In 1859, Mr. Meyer went East, spending five months in careful examination of manufacturing establishments in that section. He resolved, as a consequence, to enter upon the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds, and returned in the fall of that year to lay the foundation of his present immense business. In 1860, himself, a brother and an apprentice were working with rented power. In 1861, mostly with his own hands, he erected a small wooden shop on Western avenue, purchasing a small portable engine for power. In this shop he planed lumber, made sash, doors and blinds, and did various jobs; not on a large scale, as that business was not then heavily patronized. In 1864, however, having got a firmer foothold, and trade having received a strong impetus from the war, Mr. Meyer put his goods on the Chicago market. The excellent finish and thorough workmanship displayed marked them at once as superior to any then before the public, and, as if by magic, the demand for them outstripped that of all competitors. From that time, the demand for his goods rapidly and constantly increased. A large factory was erected on the north side of Western avenue—since demolished—and a branch was permanently opened in Chicago. In 1866, he erected the present wood-working building, which is 200x100 feet on the ground, and three stories high, of brick. There were large additions built for boiler and engine rooms. In 1867, a large brick warehouse, 44x128 feet and two stories high with basement, was erected on the corner of Western avenue and the Chicago & North-Western Railway. In 1868, being desirous of obtaining lumber for his factory, at more advantageous terms, Mr. Meyer erected a saw-mill in "Lower Town," in Fond du Lac, which had a capacity of 80,000 feet of lumber per day. In 1874, finding it necessary to protect his interests in that city, he erected a model sash, door and blind factory in Chicago, which has a capacity equal to that of any other in the Garden City. Owing to its perfectness and completeness, this factory has several times been examined by officials sent from foreign countries to learn the details of American manufacturing. As logs began to grow more scarce on the Wolf River, Mr. Meyer found it necessary to purchase large tracts of pine lands, which he did in Michigan, fifty miles north of Menominee. Here he built a large saw-mill, which runs all the year round, a planing-mill, stores, offices and boarding-house, making a village all his own, called Hermansville, after his son Herman. The product of these mills is mostly used in the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds in his own factories. In 1870, fearing a scarcity of logs on the Wolf River would render Fond du Lac less advantageous as a wood-manufacturing point, and expecting, therefore, to change his business to that of manufacturing iron, he erected a large blast furnace at "Lower Town," with ample charcoal kilns, which was hardly completed when the panic laid its iron hand upon all manufacturing interests. Since then railways have been pushed into the most productive timber countries, thus indefinitely postponing the time when there will be a scarcity of lumber in Fond du Lac for manufacturing purposes. Mr. Meyer, therefore, has continued to increase his wood-manufacturing business, erecting in 1879 an additional factory, 100x100 feet, just east of the main building.

On the corner of Western avenue and Macy street Mr. Meyer has one of the best equipped machine shops and foundries in the Northwest, at which all his own engines and iron machinery are made, and a general business in manufacturing heavy mill furnishings carried on. During 1880, the blast furnace will be put into operation under a company organized for that purpose, and his sash, door and blind factory will consume over twelve million feet of lumber—an increase over any previous year.

To keep in motion the large amount of machinery in all of Mr. Meyer's shops—not including his blast furnace—are required ten steam engines and twenty-one boilers. The former are made at his Western avenue iron works, and the latter by J. C. Pierron, of Fond du Lac, of whose work Mr. Meyer speaks in the highest terms.

The Chicago shops furnish employment to 300 persons; those at Hermansville, to over 200 and those at Fond du Lac to 400—making a pay-roll with over 900 names.

The products of C. J. L. Meyer's factories are sold in Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina,

A. S. Gibson

FOND DU LAC.

Florida, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Dakota and Minnesota—twenty-four States, besides Wisconsin.

Breweries.—The oldest brewery in Fond du Lac is that of J. & C. Frey, near the corner of Macy and Division streets. The buildings now used in the business have all been built by the Frey Brothers at different times, the first dating back to 1848. They have an extensive trade at home and abroad, and do also a large business in bottling and exporting beer.

On Portland street, south of Division, is situated the large brick building erected by Paul Hauser, for a brewery. It is a well-built and convenient structure for the business of brewing, and is now leased by Antony Voght.

Bechaud Brothers' Brewery, on Eleventh street, west of Hickory, is doing a large and increasing business, additional buildings being required and erected during 1878 and 1879. The Bechaud Brothers are practical brewers. They have a large trade outside of Fond du Lac, their beer being bottled by H. W. Eaton.

Joseph Schussler, a practical brewer, has a brewery on Hickory street, south of Grove. His method of brewing is different from others, and known only to himself. His operations are less extensive than those of the other city brewers.

Rueping & Son's Tannery.—In 1854, William Rueping erected a small wooden building on Doty street, and began the business of tanning leather. Two of his elder sons had learned the tanner's trade in Germany, and they carried on the business after the manner learned in that country. In 1870, the present building, a brick structure, 170x42, feet and three stories high, was erected to accommodate the increasing business. Thirty men are constantly employed, who turn out 8,000 hides and 7,000 kip and calf skins per year. No vitriol or acid is consumed in this tannery, hemlock bark alone being used for tanning, of which 1,000 cords, costing $6,500, are required annually. This tannery turns out mostly harness leather, which is of the most durable quality, and sells largely to Boston, New York and St. Paul jobbers. The firm consists of Frederick, Louis, Charles and Henry, the four sons of the late William Rueping.

Other Manufactories.—A very important branch of business in Fond du Lac is C. L. Pierce's Plow Works, corner of Macy and Court streets. It is also an old established branch, the Pierce Brothers having a shop open on Division street before any other houses had been erected in that vicinity. The shop is equipped with steam machinery, and turns out a large number of plows adapted to Western soil.

Goddard & Burrows, on Macy street, have as large a business as their buildings will accommodate, in the manufacture of patent carriage tops.

Sherrer's File Works, on Johnson street, employ five or six men at making new and cutting over old files. There are but few file works in the country, hence Mr. Sherrer has a large business.

Albert Buechner, at his shops on Forest street, is a manufacturer of heavy wagons.

Edson & Son, on Western avenue, near the railroad, have a large factory, run by steam, for the manufacture of bed frames, springs, hay-cutters, and to do a general business in wood turning.

Wolf & Potter have a large shop on Macy street, for the manufacture of cutters, sleighs, phaetons and buggies.

E. G. Main, corner of Macy & Second streets, has a steam factory, where harrow frames and the wood for other agricultural implements are made.

B. F. & H. L. Sweet, on Arndt street, are manufacturers of Sweet's "Common Sense Sleighs." They are very large and strong, for work in lumbering, and are pronounced superior to any other lumbering sleigh. Smaller sizes, with the same patent improvements, are made for farmers and general purposes.

The old Hiner & White Iron Works, on Arndt street, employ fifteen men. Up to 1877, while owned and run by Hiner & White, the works gave employment to 125 men, and turned out great quantities of milling machinery, some mowing machines and all kinds of iron machinery. A stock company composed of Hiner & White's creditors now run the shops.

The only boiler works in Fond du Lac are situated on Arndt street, and owned by J. C. Pierron. He has all the local trade, and constructs large boilers for mills and steamboats in various portions of the country.

Jacob Kunze has a wagon-shop on Division and Sophia streets, at which mostly heavy work is turned out.

YACHT CLUBS.

Of all the Wisconsin lakes, there is not one to compare with Winnebago for yachting. The shores are low, and, as a usual thing, cultivated, with very little timber, save the beautiful wooded points, with here and there just a fringe, to screen the growing crops from the strong winds. Thus storms approaching the lake can be seen, prepared for, or a safe harbor reached. Even if it were necessary to beach a boat, it could be done anywhere, on either shore, without the slightest damage to the craft, and with nothing more than a partial wetting of the persons in it.

This lake is also one of the finest for the concomitant of yachting, that is, camping out, either beside the cool springs of the east shore, or in the shady groves which are still left on most all the high, projecting points on the west shore.

But the greatest blessings are sometimes the least prized—at least, it appears so in the case of Fond du Lac people, who are just beginning to appreciate what they have for so long neglected. But they are rapidly making up for lost time.

Indulgence in these aquatic sports, however, has become a habit only, so to speak, to the few. The many are yet to taste the joys and reap the benefits to mind and body that they are sure to give. Their growth has been slow, but, at this writing, it is a good, healthy growth, and possibly, by the end of another decade, the lake, large as it is, will be insufficient for the demands put upon it in this regard.

The pioneers in yachting were good men, all possessed of an ardent desire to be good yachtsmen: good swimmers, plucky fellows, but without a particle of experience as to building, rigging, manning or sailing a yacht.

In 1865, an organization was perfected, as follows: S. A. Dudley, Captain (qualifications—related to a ship carpenter); R. A. Baker, Capitalist (qualifications—served a term of years as purser on board the United States steamer Michigan); John Mathews, First Officer (qualifications—crossed the Atlantic in a sail vessel); T. S. Weeks, Second Officer (qualifications—went across the Hudson in a skiff when a small boy); James Coleman, wader (qualifications—height, and ability to walk ashore in case of accident).

During the winter of 1865, they bought an old fishing boat, and with the aid of Col. Ewen and Capt. Johnson, rigged it out, in April of that year, with a lug sail and steering oar. During high water in the spring, they launched it in what is known as "Meyer Sluice," which, at that time, extended up from the lake to Scott street, opposite W. H. Hiner's residence. Here the first naval school was established for Fond du Lac. They cruised up and down this sluice during the entire season. When the wind was abeam, the sailing was fair both ways; but with a north wind, they had to tow their craft down and sail back, and with a south wind, vice versa. Their skill and efficiency being approved (by themselves), the yacht Water Lily was ordered built in Milwaukee, to be delivered here in time for the season of 1866.

This little boat, just sixteen feet over all, rigged with portable mast, sprit-sail and oars, took the city by storm, and yachting commenced in earnest.

The Water Lily's complement of men being six, another man was shipped, and George P. Knowles was taken in the capacity of cook.

Long excursions were taken in this boat, frequently making the entire circuit of the lake. She proved an excellent sea boat, and soon established a reputation for safety. This snug little craft is still afloat, at her moorings, off R. A. Baker's cottage, at Green Lake.

The next accession to the yachting interest was the yacht Rosendale, built at Rosendale, in this county, and put into the waters of Lake Winnebago in 1868, her owners being the Rev. H. W. Beers and H. H. Tenbrock, then a candidate for orders, and subsequently ordained a priest. He made, during the summer months, this boat his home, using it as a means of transit to the various points on the lake to which he was assigned for missionary labor. Being no sailor, he depended upon any one he could pick up who professed to have the slightest knowledge or experience in this line. The consequence was that the Rosendale was continually overdue, either being ashore, wind-bound, or in some creek, or high and dry on the beach; so that, when Mr. Beers had occasion to want the boat for his favorite fishing excursions, recourse was had to the Water Lily's crew to hunt her up and bring her into port.

A choice amusement of Tenbrock's was to take six to eight of the parish schoolboys on board this vessel and put out for a day's sport, the outcome being that when night set in, and the boys had not returned, so many anxious mothers had started out as many anxious fathers, to go in search of the supposed lost vessel and crew. As a usual thing, about 9 o'clock in the evening, Capt. Johnson, of the tug Minnie, would be got up and dispatched to the relief of the Rosendale. As a matter of course, he returned no wiser than he went. In the mean time, the boys would have found their way home, some on foot, some in farmers' wagons, and foot-sore, tired and half-famished, to gladden the hearts of their distressed parents. Tenbrock, in the end, became a good sailor, keeps the boat still, which now makes one of the fleet on Green Bay.

The advent of the Daisy, in 1870, was an event of marked importance to yachting, which was not confined to any one locality on the lake. This vessel was a Boston-built yacht, 19 feet 6 inches over all, by 8 feet 6 inches beam, and the best weather vessel ever sailed on the lake. She had fair speed and great beauty. She was hailed with delight all along shore, and stimulated a generous rivalry, that has led to the present state of yachting on the lake.

Her Captain, the lamented Dudley, had made himself master of the art of managing water craft of this description, and to his zeal and enterprise, more than anything else, were the yachtsmen indebted for the Daisy being placed upon these waters.

He was assisted by R. A. Baker, H. H. Dodd, L. L. Lowry, John S. McDonald, and I. K. Hamilton, in the purchase and transportation of this little craft to Fond du Lac Harbor. Messrs. Baker and Dodd, who have fallen heir to this little old lady of a yacht, keep her now at Green Lake.

Next the Gipsy was built here by Z. & I. W. Maxim, in 1871, the same gentlemen who have since built the Belle, and the steam yacht Guy. The first formal organization was made in 1871, with but these four boats represented, viz., Rosendale, Liberty, Daisy and Gipsy. The organization was styled the Fond du Lac Yacht Club. The first officers were: H. H. Dodd, Commodore; R. A. Baker, Vice Commodore; S. A. Dudley, Fleet Captain; George P. Knowles, Secretary and Treasurer. This club continued to be the nucleus around which the yachting interest gathered, until 1878, when the great number of yachts and diversity of interests demanded a new organization, which was perfected by the election of the following officers: H. H. Dodd, Commodore; C. H. Benton, Vice Commodore; H. C. Dittmar, Fleet Captain; Thomas Terrell, Measurer; Robert H. Wharton, Secretary; R. C. Baker, Treasurer.

The number of yachts now is fifteen of all sail, of which the Mystic, Pinafore, Lolita, Lulu, Hawk, Aquila, and the steam yacht Guy, may be noted as equal to any in the State as to beauty, speed and safety.

CONFLAGRATIONS.

Fond du Lac, when compared with other cities of equal size, has, fortunately, suffered from few conflagrations resulting in great loss of life or property. As it is largely a wooden city, this freedom from destructive fires is considered remarkable by those who are not acquainted with the promptness and efficiency of its Fire Department and its admirable water-supply for fire purposes. The earliest fires, of which no record was kept because there was no organized fire department, entailed the greatest comparative loss, because the inhabitants were poor, insurance companies were little patronized, and building material was scarce.

On the 13th of May, 1847, Charles Kenkall's house, with all its furniture and all the money he possessed, was consumed by fire. This was an almost irretrievable loss, as the property was not insured.

Under the head of "Terrible Conflagration," some person, name not known, wrote, in December, 1848, an extravagant account of the destruction by fire of the first schoolhouse erected in Fond du Lac. The building was located on Fifth, between Marr and Main streets:

"On the evening of the 12th inst., our quiet village was visited by the most destructive fire ever known in this place, within the memory of the oldest inhabitant! The Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist Churches, the former Court House, the Academy, the Town Hall, the Franklin Schoolhouse and lecture-room, besides the spacious room occupied as the public room of the Lyceum, together with their valuable contents and all the outbuildings, were, in the short space of a few hours, entirely consumed!!

"Although it was not discovered until near the dread hour of midnight, and the weather was intensely cold, still our efficient and well-trained Fire Department was soon on the ground, endeavoring, by its magnanimous and almost superhuman efforts, to stay the devouring element; but, in defiance of their utmost efforts, the flames continued to spread with great rapidity from one to another of the above-mentioned buildings, until the whole were completely wrapped in one enveloping sheet of flame!! It was truly a grand and appalling sight.

"It is uncertain, as yet, how or by what means this terrible catastrophe was brought about: but it is generally believed to have been caused by the contact of fire with the wooden portion of the schoolhouse.

"The calamity is much more severely felt at this particular season of the year, as the building cannot, probably, be replaced before next summer. The ruins present a sad appearance, indeed, comprising the entire number of buildings in the block. Our village wears a really forsaken aspect. Not a public building of any consequence is left, except the jail, ball-alley and billiard-room, besides a few other holes of a worse sort!"

The substance of the above inflated account of the destruction of the small wooden schoolhouse was telegraphed to some of the leading newspapers, from which news went to the people of the entire Union that Fond du Lac had been wiped out of existence by fire. Newspapers, published in other cities and States, could not know that a single pine building of one room was used as a church for several denominations, a court house, lyceum, "academy" and all the other purposes enumerated in the account sent abroad; and these localities, doubtless, which to this day have not been disabused of the impression, believe that Fond du Lac was at that time laid in ashes. The joke was a very good one, but it caused much needless anxiety in the hearts of those who lived in other States and had friends in Fond du Lac, and, the next week, the labors of the Postmaster were increased by the numerous letters inquiring about the "terrible fire."

On Saturday night, January 17, 1852, the wooden block belonging to E. W. Davis, situated on the east side of Main street and occupied by Drs. John Pantillon, W. T. Galloway, N. W. Howard and L. Kellogg; Johnson's saloon and Mr. Norwood's store were burned. Adjoining buildings were saved by tearing down a small building belonging to Mrs. Rapelje.

This was considered a large fire, and the enthusiastic ones who turned out with buckets and pails to carry water, had not finished reciting their exploits when, on Monday morning (two days later), the row of wooden blocks between First and Second streets, on the east side of Main street, was discovered to be on fire. The weather was intensely cold, the thermometer indicating 22° below zero, and the few gallons of water the citizens attempted to carry frequently congealed before they reached the fire. That entire block was burned, except Darling, Wright & Co.'s Exchange Bank, which stood on the corner of First and Main streets, where Wells' Bank now stands. This was a wooden building, built for temporary occupation, and Dr. Wright rushed in, as soon as he reached the scene of destruction, and filled his ample pockets with $20,000 in bills, and then went out to fight fire. D. R. Curran and A. P. & G. N. Lyman were the heaviest losers, Mr. Curran's store and stock of goods being burned, and his dwelling-house, near by, damaged to the extent of $300. The Lyman Block was valued at $2,500. Case & Alling lost $3,000 in stock; Carswell & Dee, $1,000 in dry goods; Mr. Nash, on building, occupied by Carswell & Dee, $1,200; John H. Martin, on building occupied by Case & Alling, $500, and other losses, the amounts not given, by H. C. Keys, A. D. Bonesteel, Z. L. Chapman, W. A. Dewey, D. Lyon and others. There was a finger, an ear, a toe or a nose frozen for every thousand dollars of damage wrought. The liveliest scene was at the reservoir, on the corner of Main and Second streets, where those who attempted to save goods were showering each other to extinguish burning clothing.

One of the greatest losses by fire at one time was in 1866, when the east side of Main street burned from Robert A. Baker's bank north to, and including, the Lewis House, which stood on the present Patty House site; and east on Sheboygan street far enough to destroy the dwelling-house and outbuildings belonging to Richard Dix.

March 4, 1868, the High School building burned to the ground. Loss, $16,000.

In the spring of 1878, a small dwelling in "Lower Town" caught fire from an unknown cause, and was totally destroyed. George Hewins, a maimed soldier, who had lodgings in the building, was burned to death.

On September 8, 1879, five wooden buildings on the east side of Main street, between Second and Third, were burned. The fire began, from an unknown cause, in Thomas Gibson's store, in which himself and an eight-year old daughter were burned to death. The buildings were old, and the greatest loss was that of life.

The burning of the McDonald & Nightingale paper-mill, in 1878, entailed a loss of $25,000.

In the winter of 1874-75, the row of wooden buildings from Opera Hall to the Rottman Block, on the east side of Main street, were burned.

The fire that probably entailed the greatest loss of property was set, July 15, 1871, by sparks from the steamer Gabe Bouck in the Bannister warehouse, on Scott street. Twenty-two buildings, including the Mihills Mills and Factory and a large quantity of lumber and wood, were destroyed. Loss, $100,000, with less than $10,000 insurance.

RIENZI CEMETERY.

In an early day, as is the case with all new settlements, Fond du Lac had no burial place. Matters ran along thus past the usual period when action is taken in this direction, and when Eastman & White took possession of the Journal, they trained their guns on what was termed the barbarity of the people of the village for neglecting to provide a suitable burying-place for the dead, and in their issue of May 4, 1849, published the following article:

"Fond du Lac Village, containing 1,200 inhabitants, has no public or private burial ground, but buries her dead in the public highway. We never before saw a village without a graveyard of some kind. In the wildest times of the wildest State of the West, her people always respected the dead, and gave them some decent habitation. The Indian tribes honor the dust of the departed, and protect their graves from destruction. But Fond du Lac, whose people claim relationship with the oldest, the most Christian-like, moral and enlightened of the old States, dig their graves by the roadside, and bury their friends where the cattle's hoofs and passing vehicles will soon obliterate all marks of their resting-place! Whose duty is it to see to this matter? If the duty of nobody, who will volunteer to rescue Fond du Lac from its reputation? The act incorporating our village says: 'SECTION 14. The Trustees shall have the following powers: To purchase, hold, own and lay out graveyards or cemeteries, to regulate the burial of the dead, and to make and enforce any regulation or ordinance relating to the same.'"

But no public burial place was secured, and the high land on the east side of Main street, a mile south of the city, was used as a cemetery, as it had been from the earliest settlement of Fond du Lac, the first interment being that of Fanny Pier, wife of Colwert Pier, who died March 1, 1838. Later, the beautiful knoll, now occupied by the "old grounds" of Rienzi Cemetery, was used by a few who would not bury their friends by the roadside; but it was only used as such by sufferance, being owned and occupied by N. P. Tallmadge. The spot contained a grave, however, before it was seized upon by any portion of the public as a burial place. Mr.

Tallmadge had been contemplating making a gift of land for cemetery purposes, and walked out, one day, with his son, William D., then a young man, to look over the place now called Rienzi. The "Governor," as he was popularly called, thought what is now known as the "new grounds" would be suitable for burial purposes; but the son chose the lower hill, or what is known as the "old grounds," saying, "When I die, I wish to be buried right here." It was a beautiful spot, and, four weeks later, he was buried on the very ground he stood upon when the wish was uttered. That settled the choice of location, and Mr. Tallmadge laid out around his son's grave eight and one-half acres for a cemetery. This was the beginning of what finally became the beautiful Rienzi Cemetery—William D. Tallmadge being the first to choose the location and the first to sleep in its bosom.

The following is the record of the incorporation of Rienzi Cemetery, as found in the Register's Office:

WITNES, On the 15th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, pursuant to agreement and pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided, the following persons, residing in the county of Fond du Lac in the State of Wisconsin, desirous to form an association for the purpose of procuring and holding lands to be used exclusively for a cemetery, or burial place for the dead—namely, N. P. Tallmadge, M. J. Thomas, A. D. Bonesteel, Robert A. Baker, Napoleon Boardman, Isaac S. Tallmadge and A. G. Butler, met at the banking-house of A. G. Butler, in the city of Fond du Lac, and proceeded to appoint the undersigned, N. P. Tallmadge, Chairman, and A. D. Bonesteel, Secretary, by a vote of a majority of the persons present:

Now, therefore, the undersigned Chairman and Secretary, as aforesaid, do certify, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, that, at such meeting, N. P. Tallmadge, M. J. Thomas, A. D. Bonesteel, Robert A. Baker, N. Boardman and A. G. Butler, attended, as associates; that the corporate name of the association determined upon by the majority of the persons who met was "The Rienzi Cemetery;" that the number of Trustees fixed upon to manage the concerns of the association was seven; that the names of the Trustees chosen at said meeting are N. P. Tallmadge, M. J. Thomas, A. D. Bonesteel, Robert A. Baker, N. Boardman, I. S. Tallmadge and A. G. Butler, for the purpose of managing the affairs of said association, to be known by its corporate name as "The Rienzi Cemetery;" that the undersigned, as Chairman and Secretary, aforesaid, proceeded to divide the said Trustees into three classes, by lot, as follows: Those of the first class to hold their offices one year, those in the second class two years, and those in the third class three years, as follows: First class, N. Boardman and A. G. Butler; second class, Robert A. Baker and M. J. Thomas; third class, N. P. Tallmadge, A. D. Bonesteel and I. S. Tallmadge.

And the undersigned Chairman and Secretary, aforesaid, do further certify that the future annual election of Trustees of said association, known as "The Rienzi Cemetery," was fixed to be held on the second Monday of August, in each year, at such place as said Trustees shall from time to time appoint. All of which, the undersigned Chairman and Secretary, as aforesaid, do hereby certify, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, and, in witness whereof, have hereunto set their hands this 15th day of August, 1853.

(Signed)

N. P. TALLMADGE, Chairman,
A. D. BONESTEEL, Secretary.

This act of incorporation, duly sworn to, was recorded, on the same day and year, in Vol. 1 of "Cemeteries and Power of Attorneys," page 61. On August 17, 1853, a meeting of the officers was held, and N. P. Tallmadge chosen President; A. D. Bonesteel, Secretary, and Robert A. Baker, Treasurer. It was then decided to purchase, for $400, thirty-nine and six-tenths acres of land of N. P. Tallmadge for cemetery purposes (a portion of which had already been laid out and used as a cemetery by Mr. Tallmadge), and to grant to him, free of charge, forever, such a plat or tract as he might choose as a burial place for his family. At a subsequent meeting, held in December of the same year, N. P. Tallmadge offered to convey to the association, free of charge, a tract of eight and one-half acres which he had already inclosed and laid out as a cemetery, which offer was accepted. That tract is now known as the "old grounds," and is composed of the first knoll of land at the entrance to the cemetery, in Sections 18 and 19, town of Empire, situated two and one-half miles southeast of the city. The tract of thirty-nine and six-tenths acres was, therefore, not purchased.

N. Boardman was authorized to survey and lay out lots, walks and avenues in the cemetery, the expense of which should be paid out of the sale of lots, and proceeded immediately to do so.

In October, 1863, the Trustees authorized the purchase, at $20 per acre, of N. P. Tallmadge, a tract of twenty-four acres of land, lying east of the "old grounds," which was done, and the land was immediately laid out and offered for sale. Rienzi now contains thirty-two and one-half acres, composed of beautiful hills and valleys, covered with oaks, and carpeted in summer with a profusion of wild flowers. It is one of the most charming spots in nature, lying nearly a half-mile from the street, and reached by a smooth carriage-way, shaded on either side by thrifty trees, and refreshed by a clear spring brook. In the valley between the old and new grounds is a miniature artificial lake, fed by a never-failing spring, as though from the very resting-place and ashes of the dead gushed forth the water of life. An extract from the report of the Trustees in 1877 is here made:

“It is the natural feeling of the human heart that it would lie down by the side of its kindred after it has ceased to beat; that one inclosure should garner its ashes. Our dust is sacred. In this cemetery we expect to bury our friends, and we expect they will bury us there. In those sacred shades now rest the remains of its founder. N. P. Tallmadge died in the month of November, 1864, and was interred upon the spot selected and beautified during his life. There he sleeps by the side of his wife and sons who had gone before; distinguished in life as a statesman, Senator, Governor and literary man, he is at last gathered to his fathers.

“Since our organization, in addition to our clearing the grounds (which was a dense wood) and fencing it, including the lane leading to it, we have purchased and paid for twenty-four acres, built an observatory and a handsome stone vault, a house for the sexton, and expended nearly $200 for a fountain near the sexton’s house, besides keeping the grounds in good order.”

At a meeting of the Trustees of Rienzi Cemetery, held August 12, 1875, the prices of lots were fixed as follows: In the old grounds, $30 each; in the new grounds, $50 (to be paid in cash to the Treasurer, before an order will be given to open the ground for interment); single graves for adults, $5; single graves for children under twelve years of age, $3. Sexton’s fees, digging graves, $3. For use of vault for one month, or less, $5; over one month, $1 per week additional.

The “old grounds” contain a “potter’s field,” a lot belonging to the Freemasons and one owned by the Odd Fellows.

FLOODS AND FRESHETS.

No one who drives over the smooth, solid pavements and splendidly macadamized roads in and about Fond du Lac, can form any adequate conception of the condition of the streets, roadways, streams, prairies and dooryards in early times, nor can any pen record a description that will do justice to the subject. The site on which the city stands was level, and but a few feet in its highest place above the lake or rivers. The soil was deep, rich and mellow, finely adapted in every way to the production of mud. This mud, which was black in some places, and a dirty yellow in others, was endowed with such consistency and stickiness as could be boasted of by no other article in the same line. In wet times, the whole prairie in and surrounding Fond du Lac would be covered by water, on which myriads of ducks appeared in season. The roads were almost wholly impassable, teams being frequently from three to five days on the road to Sheboygan, and the stage three or four days on the road from Milwaukee. On these occasions, the rich verdure and beautiful wild flowers of the prairies did not always suppress profusely, and the most dejected, forlorn and bedraggled horses and men ever beheld, were those arriving in the village with the stage.

The main street in the spring and fall had the appearance of a long vat of blacking, and the other streets were successions of bottomless sloughs and prodigious ruts. Nor could any of them be avoided, for one portion of the fenceless prairie was as soft and sticky as any other. The stickiness of this mud can be likened to nothing but the irresistible grip of the octopus. Whenever a wheel or a foot sunk into an unusually deep hole, it seemed to be grasped at once by some immeasurable power below, which would not diminish or let go.

The Fond du Lac Journal of June 16, 1847, mentioned the public roads in the following comprehensive paragraph:

“We would earnestly call the attention of the proper authorities to the condition of the public roads and bridges in this vicinity, and especially between Fond du Lac and Taycheedah, where, within a few days, several accidents have happened. It is mortifying in the extreme to hear the comments of strangers on the public spirit of the people of this town, and we hope to see the evil remedied without delay."

In 1850, when James Ewen was keeping the Lewis House on the corner where the Patty House now stands, the mud was as universal and deep as it had ever been. In fact, everything was blocked by muddy roads, and business was almost at a standstill. He waded out into the street before the inmates of the hotel were up in the morning, and placed a pair of boots and a hat in the mud, in such shape as to resemble a man just disappearing in the earthy mucilage. Knowing the possibilities of the surrounding country in wet times, many of the burghers at first thought a man had been indeed drowned on land, and the frightened children refused to pass on their way to school until "the man" was helped out of the mud.

On another occasion, a prominent lumberman rented for his family the house situated on Macy street, in the rear of Amory Hall, in which the family of the late Robert Flint resides, to the end that during his absence in the woods there should be no trouble in reaching the main street for provisions and groceries. He was absent a little over three weeks, and on his return, was informed the children hadn't been out of the house, which was surrounded by water, during that time. When anything was wanted from the stores or neighbors, Milt. Ewen, now a resident of Fond du Lac, then a boy ten years of age, rolled his pantaloons up as near to his waist as possible, and went barefoot on the errands.

As late as September, 1855, a man rowed a canoe from Oshkosh to the Rock River Valley, the water being deep enough on the marsh in Oakfield Township for his passage to the Rock River.

In 1855, the mill-dam back of the Court House, and the bridge on Western avenue, were carried away by a flood, and more than a dozen times have thousands of feet of lumber, and hundreds of cords of wood been afloat in Lower Town. In 1869, occurred a remarkable freshet, in which nearly every portion of the city was flooded; cellars without number were full, and water stood in the rooms on the ground floor of scores of residences. A swift stream of muddy water, as broad as the street, rushed down Fourth and Main streets, leaving a large shed or outbuilding—which had been brought from another quarter of the city—on Main street, near the American House; carrying lumber, wood, boxes, barrels and furniture out into the lake, and destroying the newspaper files and a stock of paper for the Commonwealth newspaper. These floods were owing mostly to the fact that the de Neveu Creek, which is a narrow, tortuous stream, flowing through the east portion of the city, is several feet higher than Main street, or any street between it and Fond du Lac River. Whenever, therefore, its banks were overflowed, the city was flooded. In 1870, the "Dutch Gap," a deep, wide canal extending across the south border of the city to the river, was dug at public expense, and, in 1879, de Neveu Creek bed was deepened, widened and straightened, so that the disastrous floods of the past will never occur again.

When any one has a desire to verify the stories told of the early mud embargoes, they have only to repair to some spot on Main street where gas or water pipes are being laid, where first stone, then plank, then gravel, then plank, and, finally, sticks and brush will be found extending several feet below the surface, and showing the different efforts made to rise above the canals of black mucilage, which were the most serious drawbacks to the early growth and development of Fond du Lac.

INCIDENTS AND FIRST THINGS.

On Thursday evening, January 14, 1847, Eli Hooker, now of Waupun, then of the Fond du Lac Journal, delivered a temperance lecture at the schoolhouse.

In the winter of 1847-48, the people of the village convened twice for donation purposes. The first time Rev. H. R. Colman, now a resident of this city, received about $150, and the second time Rev. L. C. Spofford received $123.21—amounts fully equal to those resulting from donations of the present time.

In May, 1848, the first circus and menagerie—Raymond & Co.'s—visited Fond du Lac Village. Everybody went, and it was the talk of the villagers during several weeks afterward.

The ground where S. B. & J. Amory first built their gunshop, and where Amory Hall now stands, cost $10 per foot. The site is now worth $14,000.

Main street, beginning at Forest street, bears to the east several degrees, which makes "jogs" in the streets, extending either way, perpendicularly from it. The main street of the Fond du Lac Company's plat was thus diverted by Dr. Mason C. Darling, who turned it eastward from the East Branch River in order to preserve the "water-lots." He had an idea the stream would be made navigable at some future day, and lots next to it (for wharves and warehouses) would be valuable. His idea was never realized, and Macy street afterward cut through the land intended for "water-lots."

In 1845, the citizens of the village of Fond du Lac congregated to discuss the action of the County Commissioners, who had purchased, for the Sheriff, a pair of brass and steel shackles, at a cost of $2.50. The heavy taxpayers characterized the transaction as an "outrageous extravagance," while those slipshod-and-go-easy citizens who occasionally fell into the custody of the Sheriff vehemently protested that it was the height of indignity to put shackles on a man in a free country.

The famous Taycheedah Democratic Convention was held the day on which Edward Beeson published his paper, the Fond du Lac Journal. He was anxious to lay the proceedings before his patrons, but could not do so and "catch the mail." He therefore wrote out an elaborate account of the proceedings of the convention and inserted it, the papers being all delivered before the convention had fairly met. In order to have everything jibe, he started for Taycheedah with the bogus proceedings in his pocket and actually had the same persons appointed for chairman, secretary and committee as were named in his article, and so manipulated the convention as to make the nominations tally exactly with those announced several hours before in the Journal. For nearly thirty years it was not settled whether Mr. Beeson was a wizard or had a vision.

On Monday, August 23, 1847, Dr. Cator's house was entered by robbers and $142 in cash taken. This was a heavy robbery for those days, and was a serious loss to Dr. Cator.

The first real steamboat excursion was in July, 1847, which went around Lake Winnebago on the steamer Manchester.

Upon one occasion, in the early fifties, J. C. ("Curt") Lewis and Nathaniel Waterbury desired to enter some pine lands above Shawano, 100 miles from Fond du Lac. Mr. Waterbury started on horseback, taking a good animal from the livery stable, and Mr. Lewis started on foot. The friends of each laid wagers on which would reach the destination first. Those who bet on Mr. Lewis won, for he reached the place, located his lands and met Mr. Waterbury on a jaded horse several miles south of Shawano. On these wonderful journeys, Mr. Lewis rested himself by running when he got tired of walking, and by walking when he was tired of running.

The first celery ever brought to Fond du Lac to be sold was grown by James Smith, an English gardener—who is now a resident of Empire—and driven about the streets and to the different groceries. For some time no one was found who knew what it was, and, after smelling of the neatly tied bunches, the people would turn up their noses, wag their heads and pass by on the other side. Finally, Dr. T. S. Wright, seeing Mr. Smith's wagon, seized a bunch of the celery and began to devour it, much to the astonishment of those who had been entirely satisfied with the smell of "the truck." Finally, James Ewen, who kept the Lewis House, purchased the entire lot, and thereafter Mr. Smith found a market for his "decayed pie-plant," as some of the citizens called the celery.

J. W. Partridge was badly injured in the famous Belleville railway disaster of November 1, 1859. He boarded at the Lewis House, which stood on the corner of Main and Sheboygan streets, where the Patty House now stands, and had a room in the third story. The polls for that ward were held in the same building, on the ground floor, and directly under Mr. Partridge's bedroom window. He had a strong desire to vote, but could not leave his bed. He asked the inspectors to allow a friend to deposit a ballot for him, but they refused, as they did of course, to carry the ballot-box to his room. But T. F. Strong, Jr., mastered the situation.

He moved Mr. Partridge's bed to the window, got a string of sufficient length to reach the ground. Mr. Partridge attached a ballot to the string and leaned out of the window, so that the chairman of the ward could know and identify him, and the ballot was lowered and received.

The first Fourth of July celebration ever held in Fond du Lac was in 1848, when speeches were made by S. Judd, of Fox Lake, and S. W. Beall, G. D. Ruggles, Alexander W. Stow and E. W. Drury. The Sunday-school scholars had a picnic, and the day was generally observed.

While searching for his oxen, Charles Bigford was drowned in Fond du Lac River, on the 18th of October, 1848.

In October, 1847, Finley & Morrow established a stage line between Fond du Lac and Oshkosh, and, in the following November, a weekly stage and mail line was established between Fond du Lac and Watertown.

On the 22d of October, 1847, considerable excitement was caused by the lecture of a fugitive slave, named Lewis Washington, on the condition of negroes in the South. He was the first negro to appear in public in Fond du Lac.

In 1844, George McWilliams sold 300 bushels of potatoes, which he had raised the year before on the west side of the river and kept through the winter in "heaps," covered with prairie grass and earth, for three shillings per bushel. Settlers came from twenty miles in either direction to secure them. He also fattened a ton of pork, which was the first exported from the settlement or fattened, except for family use.

After cars began to run to Fond du Lac in 1859, on what is now the Chicago & North-Western Railway, the "devil" on one of the city papers, who had been left in charge of the office during the editor's absence, lost his position and pay by writing and publishing with all due gravity the following descriptive paragraph: "The cars are quite long, and capable of holding sixty passengers with doors at each end!"

John A. Eastman built the first law office in Fond du Lac. It stood on Main street, about half-way between First and Second streets.

On the 27th of January, 1849, a public meeting was held at the court house to organize for protection against horse-thieves and burglars, their depredations having become unbearable.

A fellow came from Racine to Fond du Lac in the latter part of 1848 to take one of the Fountain City belles to wife, and, the next week, the following paragraph in the paper set the society gossipers into a flurry:

"A FINE WEDDING GIFT.—Giving the bride the prairie itch while vowing at the altar to love, cherish and protect. The idea is not original with us. We deal only in facts."

In the days before artesian wells were known in Fond du Lac, and even as late as 1846-47, the settlers were compelled to go for fresh water to a spring situated three-quarters of a mile west of Main street, where B. F. Moore's stone quarry now is.

There were few gardens belonging to the first settlers of Fond du Lac which were inclosed by fences, and the potatoes and "sass" raised therein by the thrifty, but needy, inhabitants were very frequently stolen by the Indians, who were numerous. They were bold about their depredations of this sort, solemnly entering the gardens in broad daylight, and often, despite all protests and threats, appropriating whatever they desired.

Edward Beeson, now editor of the Wisconsin Farmer, gave to Fond du Lac the name of "Fountain City," by referring to it in his paper as "the city of fountains," finally reducing the expression to "Fountain City."

In August, 1848, a tri-weekly mail was established between Fond du Lac and Milwaukee.

In September, 1849, two persons, a woman and her child, died in Fond du Lac with the cholera. For a few days there was great consternation lest the disease should spread, but it did not.

The city of Fond du Lac was lighted by gas the first time on the evening of Thursday, September 18, 1862.

The Common Council ordered at its second meeting, in September, 1862, that a committee, composed of its members, go to Chicago as a guard of honor for the body of Edward S. Bragg, who had been reported killed in battle. The committee went, as directed, but found instead of Gen. Bragg's body, that of E. A. Brown. Mr. Brown was buried in the grave dug for the body of Mr. Bragg.

In May, 1867, Charles Susan sold in Fond du Lac 150 bushels of wheat for $500 to John Marshall. On the same day, C. B. Bartlet paid $105 to John H. Martin for a fat cow. Those were war prices.

EARLY TIMES IN FOND DU LAC.

BY JOHN A. EASTMAN.

"When I was Postmaster of Fond du Lac (1845 to 1849), remuneration came from a percentage on receipts. In 1845, I kept the office in a small United States blue desk. Mail came twice a week from Green Bay, Milwaukee and Fort Winnebago. The mail carrier, whose name was Conklin, rode on horseback. All the letters were kept in one small pigeon-hole, and when any one asked for mail I took all there were in the office in one hand and looked them over with the other.

"Before I left the office I had to have a full set of alphabetical cases and a clerk. Three times a week there would be ten to twenty bushels of mail matter to look over and distribute to different routes—mostly single transient newspapers—and, as the heavy mails came in during the night, it was not a luxury to distribute them, especially when the mercury was 20° below zero.

"The first term of Territorial District Court was held in June, 1844, with A. G. Miller, Judge; Tom Sutherland, United States District Attorney; Isaac Brown, Clerk; John J. Driggs, Sheriff; Theodore Conkey and Alonzo Raymond, Deputies. Court was held in a small frame schoolhouse standing on the east side of Main, between Second and Third streets. The present Court House was built some years after, and was very well in its day, but it now seems to be a standing disgrace to a large, wealthy and populous county. The grounds for the Court House and public square were donated by M. C. Darling, and I doubt if the condition of the gift is well performed by maintaining such a burlesque.

"Of course, the first lawyers to attend courts were from other older counties. It was the practice then for lawyers to 'travel the circuit;' so there came to Fond du Lac, Marshall M. Strong, E. G. Ryan, A. W. Stow, Squire Palmer, W. P. Lynde, J. E. Arnold, M. L. Martin, H. S. Baird and S. R. Cotton.

"The first resident lawyer was Stephen S. N. Fuller, from Great Bend, Penn. He settled in Fond du Lac in 1843, and lived and had his office in a small frame house opposite the Court House east, where Bannister & Eldredge's office afterward was. He built the house with his own hands. He moved to Hudson, and is now dead.

"The second resident lawyer was myself. I came from Franklin County, Me., and settled at Fond du Lac in September, 1844.

"The third lawyer was W. H. Harmon, who only remained about one year and emigrated to Iowa. The fourth was James Monroe Gillet, who came from Ellicottville, N. Y., in 1846. He drove a flabby, yellow, long-legged mare the entire distance from Ellicottville to Fond du Lac, and traded her to M. C. Darling for the lot where Cornwell's hardware store is on Main street, next to D. R. Curran's drug store. Myron C. Eaton, who was drowned at St. Anthony's Falls, Minn., Amzi L. Williams and E. W. Drury followed later in 1846.

"The first school taught in the county was taught by Miss Harriet Harding, from Hingham, Mass., in 1840-41, in the log house built by Edward Pier, which stood opposite the fair grounds, then occupied by Russell McCarty.

"A school was taught at Taycheedah by Edgar Conklin in 1842, to which scholars from Fond du Lac went. In 1843 and 1844, Theodore Conkey taught school in the then new schoolhouse in Fond du Lac. In the winter of 1844 and 1845, I taught a 'select school' in the same building; had about twenty scholars, though they were not all from the village of Fond du Lac.

“The first physician was Dr. M. C. Darling, and the next was Dr. William H. Walker.

“Daniel W. Bromley was the first merchant in Fond du Lac. His store was opened in 1842. Dr. Darling gave him one and one-half acres of land as an inducement to open a store there.

“Moses S. Gibson brought a stock of goods by the way of Sheboygan in 1844. He was from Genesee County, N. Y. O. S. Wright came with him as clerk.

“Clock & Weikert came to Fond du Lac with a stock of goods in October, 1844. They went to Indian ‘payment’ at Shawano, and after ‘payment’ returned to Fond du Lac and opened a store in the Fond du Lac Company’s house, which was then occupied by George McWilliams, who kept ‘bachelor’s hall.’ The next spring, 1845, they came ‘up town’ and occupied Bromley’s store, as he had gone to Milwaukee.

“Walter Smith and George W. Gillet opened a stove and hardware store in 1845. T. L. Gillet opened a general store in 1846. George N. Lyman, of Sheboygan, opened a branch store (W. A. Dewey, manager) in 1846, and David R. Curran opened the first drug store in the fall of the same year.

“In 1844, Rev. William H. Sampson was residing at Fond du Lac, and was Presiding Elder of that (Methodist) district. Mr. Joseph Lewis was circuit minister. After that came Morgan L. Noble. He and T. P. Bingham, a Methodist minister, built a house on ‘West Prairie.’ They occupied the house together, but disagreed, and, to divide interests, sawed the building in two parts, and thus divorced themselves.”

“ INFORMATION WANTED.”

Under the heading “Information Wanted,” the Badger State newspaper at Portage City published October 1, 1853, the following :

“Will some of our Fox River boatmen inform us if the persons who attempted to make a settlement at Fond du Lac have all moved away and abandoned the project? A. Hyatt Smith told us there was such a place as Fond du Lac, and that he proposed running a branch of his railroad to it, but we suppose the erection of the dam at Menasha has drowned it out. At all events, we have sent copies of our paper regularly to the Union and Herald, directed to ‘Fond du Lac,’ and have received no answering tidings : from which fact it is to be inferred there is nobody there, and, consequently, no such place as Fond du Lac!”

CHAPTER IX.

CITY OF RIPON.

FIRST OWNERS OF RIPON—EARLY SETTLEMENT—RIPON'S EARLY PROGRESS—CITY INCORPORATED—CITY OFFICERS, 1858 TO 1880—POST OFFICE—PUBLIC SCHOOLS—RIPON WATER-POWER—FIRE DEPARTMENT—GAS-WORKS—HOTELS OF RIPON—PUBLIC HALLS—CHURCHES OF RIPON—BANKS—SECRET SOCIETIES—BENEVOLENT, LITERARY AND OTHER SOCIETIES—MANUFACTURING INTERESTS—RIPON CEMETERIES—CONFLAGRATIONS—RIPON'S FIGHTING CAREER—"THE BOOTH WAR"—FIRST THINGS—GROWTH OF THE CITY—RIPON OF TO-DAY.

FIRST OWNERS OF RIPON.

The land on which is located the principal portion of the city of Ripon (not including Ceresco) was bid off at the public-land sales in Green Bay, by John S. Horner, November 5, 1838. The "Patent," which was issued to Mary Eleanor Watson, of Washington, assignee of John S. Horner, is dated October 2, 1840. The next transfer was by Mr. Horner, as attorney in fact for Mary Eleanor Watson, to David P. Mapes. This deed was as follows:

WARRANTY DEED.—This indenture, made this 28th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1840, between John S. Horner, as attorney in fact of Mary Eleanor Watson, of the city of Washington, pursuant to a power of attorney hereto annexed, of the first part, and David P. Mapes, of Fond du Lac County, Wis., of the second part, witnesseth; That the said party of the first part, for and in consideration of the sum of $500, to him in hand paid, receipt whereof is hereby confessed and acknowledged, does grant, bargain, sell, remise, release and convey unto the party of the second part, and to his heirs and assigns forever, all the following lots in the town of Ripon, in the county of Fond du Lac, Wis., according to the plat of said town to be of record, to wit: Nos. 2 and 4, of Block 1; Lots No. 2, 3 and 5, of Block 2; all of Block 3; Lot No. 5, of Block 4; Lots No. 2 and 3, of Block 5; Lots No. 2, 4, 5, 6 and 8, of Block 6; Lots No. 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 11, of Block 8; Lots No. 2, 4 and 5, of Block 9; Lot No. 2, of Block 10; also Outlots No. 1, 3 and 4; and he, the said Horner, as aforesaid, his heirs, executors and administrators, do covenant with the said David P. Mapes as follows: First, that she, the said Mary Eleanor Watson, is lawfully seized of the said premises; second, that she, the said Watson, has good right to convey the same, so that the same is free from encumbrances; that the said Watson and the said Horner will forever warrant and defend the title of the same against all lawful claims.

Witness my hand and seal, the day and year first above written.

JOHN S. HORNER, Attorney in fact for Mary Eleanor Watson.

Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Mary Frisbee and J. Wilber.

State of Wisconsin, Fond du Lac County, ss.—On April 28, 1840, came before me John S. Horner and acknowledged the foregoing instrument to be his free act and deed.

A. P. MAPES, Notary Public

EARLY SETTLEMENT OF RIPON.

Under the deed just recited, Mr. Mapes and his two sons struck the first blows for the beginning of Ripon early in the spring of 1840. The transfer of land was burdened with certain conditions, one of which was that Mr. Mapes should build and have in running order a public house and a grist-mill within one year, and that the hotel should be kept open by him personally during the following year.

The buildings called for by Mr. Mapes' contract with Mr. Horner, required an outlay of about $10,000, but was accomplished according to agreement, the mill being located a few rods from the present Ripon Mills, and the hotel, called the Ripon House, where Wood's Hotel now stands.

In order to induce settlers to locate at Ripon, Mr. Mapes gave away lots, upon condition that the recipients should make certain improvements or erect thereon specified buildings before a given time. The first was given to E. L. Northrup, on the east side of Public Square. The terms imposed were that he should keep thereon a stock of goods open for sale one year. This was the first store in Ripon. The second was to Mr. Pedrick, on condition that he would erect and paint a two-story building. The third was to Alexander Beardsley, who stipulated that he would erect a blacksmith-shop, which he did, and which is the stone shop now standing just east of Wood's Hotel on Jackson street.

The first building erected in Ripon was a board shanty, by Samuel Pedrick, near where the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway depot now stands. It was 12x24 feet, in one room, and finished April 9, 1849. The lumber was sawed at Strong's Mill, Ceresco. Its occupants, the Pedrick family, consisted of Samuel, his wife and five children—Marcellus, Charles R., Cyrus, Zebulon and Mary J. They occupied this house until Mr. Pedrick built another, on the corner of Scott street and Public Square, in 1850, when their first house became a school-house. Samuel Pedrick died that year (September, 1850), that being the second death in Ripon.

Ezra Lathrop Northrup, who opened the first store in Ripon, arrived in November, 1849, and had a stock of goods ready for customers in about six weeks. He is still a resident of the city.

In May, 1850, Samuel Sumner and Dana F. Shepard began the mercantile business in Ripon as one firm. Mr. Shepard sold out a year later and built Shepard's Hotel. Mr. Sumner has retired from business, still making Ripon his home. Mr. Shepard is in the West.

John P. Taggart arrived in Ripon in September, 1850, and opened a stock of hardware and general merchandise. In 1852, William M. Taggart arrived and became a partner in the business, under the firm name of Taggart Brothers. John P. has retired from business, still living in Ripon. William M. is in Missouri.

Alvan E. Boyay came to Ripon in August, 1850, and was the first lawyer in the place. He is yet a resident of Ripon.

Jehdeiah Bowen came to Ripon in June, 1850, and erected a store for merchandise, on the northwest corner of Public Square, which he occupied in December of that year. Since that time he has erected more buildings than any other man in Ripon, having averaged one a year for the thirty years he has resided in this city. Mr. Bowen has not yet retired from business.

David Greenway came to Ripon in August, 1850, with his wife and three children. He soon engaged in the grocery and drug business, which he followed nearly twenty years. He still resides in Ripon.

After 1850, Ripon, having a mill, hotel, post office, blacksmith-shop and several stores, attracted many settlers, and grew rapidly and constantly.

RIPON'S EARLY PROGRESS.

The Ripon country is one of beauty. The Creator fashioned it in His smiling moments. As it came from His hands, before man had furrowed it with the plow and scratched it with the harrow and divided it off with fences and dotted it with barns and houses, it was one of nature's most perfect landscapes. There is just as much scenery in it as is consistent with the highest degree of agricultural wealth; if there were more, some of the land must be waste, if there were less, tameness would begin to mar the perfectness of the scene. There is prairie and timber, water and stone, hill and vale, bluff and ravine; and none of them in excess. It is beautiful.

But what makes the city of Ripon? There is nothing, or at least not much, in the spot, or in the surrounding country to determine the fact that here shall grow up one of the finest, handsomest and most vigorous cities in the Northwest; but here the place is. And what brought it here? Well, it is what might be called an accident, or a series of accidents. It was that of those early settlers who first looked upon this beautiful spot, and said to themselves, "This is good; I will plant myself and my family here, and help to make a town and grow up with the country," a large number were men of strongly marked characteristics. They were clear-headed, liberal, brave and persistent men; and this was the secret of the early success of Ripon. Such men were not going to stick themselves down here, or any where, and grow up like so many transplanted Eastern basswoods: it was not in their nature to do anything of the kind. They said, "We are going to make the utmost of the capabilities of this spot," and they did. First, they said: "In process of time, all over this beautiful country will be scattered educational institutions of a high order; the needs of an intelligent people will demand it. What is to hinder us from building a college on this hill, which overlooks one of the most lovely landscapes in the world? Nothing is to hinder; let us do it." And it was done. At that time there were fourteen houses and shanties in this little hamlet of Ripon, all told; and the commencement of anything so pretentious as a college, in so small a community, without a penny of foreign aid, would have seemed preposterous to the average mind, but it was done nevertheless, and there stands the college to-day, the chief supporting pillar of Ripon. Considering all the circumstances: the times, the poverty of the county, the sparseness of the population, the infinitesimal size of the village—the erection of the first college building—stone, fifty feet square, three stories high, with observatory, and so on—was a great achievement. It is safe to say that four persons, or four families, subscribed four-fifths of all the money it cost, and it is also safe to say that three of the four contributed one-tenth of all they were worth in the world to this single enterprise. True, they reckoned that this money for some of it would come back to them in after times; and it did. There the college stands, three noble buildings in a campus, which, when time has produced its results upon the shrubbery and trees, will scarcely be surpassed by any college campus in the country. This is the result of the efforts of those far-sighted, persistent, self-sacrificing men.

After the college came the railroad. Now Ripon was not on any great line. It was a little community away off by itself. The Chicago and North-Western Railway was projected—and begun—to strike a line of cities, north and south, through the center of the State; the Milwaukee & La Crosse was projected to run east and west through the State, but neither was to come here, nor was any line projected to come here or in this direction. What then? The men of Ripon did not propose to be cut off from the rest of the world merely because they did not happen to be located on one of the world's highways. They forthwith determined to have a railroad, and they got it. They held little informal gatherings among themselves to talk over the matter: they sent committees to Berlin and Waupun to arouse an interest in those places in the matter—a thing quite easy to do, for the railroad fever was beginning to take on the epidemic form throughout the county—Brandon was not then in existence. When the home energies were sufficiently concentrated, they sent a committee to consult the railroad magnates in Milwaukee, as the thing which seemed most feasible to do next. These magnates scarcely knew of such a place as Ripon, and knew nothing of the splendid capabilities of the county. But after the due amount of solicitation, a committee of them came up here to look the ground over. It was good; on that there was no discount. But railroads cost money, in fact, a great deal of money, and would Ripon, Berlin, Waupun and the farming population between, do the handsome thing by a company that would undertake to build a railroad to them? Ripon thought it would do about $130,000 worth, Berlin thought it would do about as much more, and Waupun half as much; which the same Ripon and Berlin did, but Waupun did not. The promises, however, were cheering and the road was undertaken. This was in the autumn of 1853; and, in the autumn of 1856, Ripon had direct communication, by rail, with Milwaukee, a year or more before Fond du Lac had reached the same achievement. $130,000, at that time, for the little community in and about Ripon, was an immense subscription; $80,000 of it was in cash and mortgage subscriptions, and $50,000 in an issue of town bonds. All the individual subscriptions, of course, were paid years and years ago, and this present year the last of the bonds has been redeemed and canceled, which brought Ripon out of debt.

CITY INCORPORATED.

By an act approved April 2, 1853, the villages of Ceresco and Ripon were consolidated and named Morena. The inhabitants, however, paid little attention to this change, retaining, as they have since done, the original name; and when incorporated it was as the city of Ripon. The first charter was for a city government, and was secured by E. L. Runals, a member of the Assembly, in 1858. The measure met with strong opposition from some of the Fond du Lac County members of the Legislature, who were backed by quite a number of the citizens of Ripon, who did not want the city incorporated on account of adding the expense of building sidewalks and making other improvements. The members of the Legislature opposed the charter because it provided for three wards, each with a Supervisor, which would give Ripon, they thought, too large a representation in the County Board. Although the charter had been adopted in a large mass meeting at Ripon, section by section, and was entirely satisfactory, it had to be amended so that it should provide for but two wards before its passage could be secured.

The city contains, ponds and waterways included, 2,560 acres, described as follows: The west half of the southwest quarter of Section 15; the south half of Section 16; the south half of Section 17; the whole of Sections 20 and 21; the west quarter of Section 22; the west half of the northwest quarter of Section 27 and the north half of Section 28.

Ripon is governed by the Mayor and two Aldermen from each ward, called the Common Council, who are aided by a City Clerk, Treasurer, Marshal, and one Constable and one Justice of the Peace in each ward. These are all elected annually except the Justices of the Peace and the Clerk, whose terms extend over two years. The latter was elected annually until 1863, when the charter was amended as just mentioned.

The Council has power to open streets, appoint special policemen, elect a Street Commissioner and a City Attorney.

The City Clerk receives $1 per day, and fees; the Marshal, $1 per day, and fees for serving papers; the Treasurer, a percentage on the taxes collected; Assessor, a per diem during actual service, and the Street Commissioner $1.50 per day for actual service. The Mayor and Aldermen receive no pay for their official labors.

By a special act of the Legislature, in 1863, the City Clerk was made ex officio Clerk of the Municipal Court. His compensation consists of the usual court fees, and $3 per day while the court is in session.

In January, 1880, the city of Ripon paid the last of its bonded debt, thereby freeing itself from all debt burdens whatsoever.

During the ten years ending with 1879, there have been levied and collected in the city of Ripon, $257,122.54 of taxes. The lightest tax was $20,306.88, in 1870, and the next lightest $23,284.38, in 1879. Why the village was named Ripon has already been explained. Naturally the city, which was but the development of the village, received the same name. It is popularly known as the "Prairie City."

CITY OFFICERS—1858 TO 1880.

Mayor.—Harvey Grant, 1858; J. Bowen, 1859; H. S. Town, 1860; Philo England, 1861; Ceylon North, 1862; C. F. Hammond, 1863; Bertine Pinkney, 1864; H. T. Henton, 1865; A. M. Skeels, 1866; Samuel Sumner, 1867; J. Bowen, 1868; William Workman, 1869; George L. Field, 1870; Aaron Everhard, 1871; O. U. Akin, 1872; O. J. Wolcott, 1873; A. Everhard, 1874-77 (at the election of 1877, A. Everhard and S. Sumner each received 368 votes. They agreed to cast lots for the office, the lot falling upon Mr. Everhard); A. Everhard, 1878; Samuel Sumner, 1879.

Treasurer.—Solon G. Dodge, 1858; D. E. Shepard, 1859-60; Jacob Woodruff, 1861; N. H. Wyckoff, 1862-65; C. E. Bennett, 1866; George W. Peck, 1867; C. E. Bennett, 1868; Edward Wood, 1869; Charles E. Bennett, 1870; J. H. Wyckoff, 1871-73; P. H. Jussen, 1874; John Irving, 1875; P. H. Jussen, 1876; N. H. Wyckoff, 1877; D. W. Akin, 1878; G. E. Bushnell, 1879.

City Clerk.—Alfred W. Hewitt, 1858; W. K. Wyckoff, 1859; J. J. Foote, 1860-61; George Perkins, 1862; J. J. Foote, 1863-66; H. B. Baker, 1867-69; A. T. Glaze, 1870-72; G. F. Horner, 1873-78; I. M. Dakin, 1879-80.

J. Robb

RIPON.

City Marshal.—Gilbert Lane, 1858; E. B. Pride, 1859; L. Grant, 1860; E. B. Pride, 1861; N. C. Strong, 1862; C. V. N. Brundage, 1863; O. R. Ellis, 1864-67; H. J. Goodall, 1868; O. R. Ellis, 1869; O. C. Stickle, 1870; O. R. Ellis, 1871; E. T. Efner, 1872-75; George L. Riggs, 1876; I. F. Stickle, 1877; George H. Jussen, 1878-79.

Superintendent of Schools.—G. B. Cooley, 1858; George Perkins, 1859; L. H. D. Crane, 1860; C. J. Allen, 1861. After 1861, the system was changed and the city was placed under the jurisdiction of the County Superintendent.

Aldermen, First Ward.—William Starr and William M. Taggart, 1858; H. S. Town, G. W. Dellinger and W. B. Kingsbury, 1859; W. B. Kingsbury, L. Turner and G. W. Dellinger, 1860; H. S. Town, R. D. Mason and Benjamin Pratt, 1861; O. J. Clark, C. N. McLane and S. R. Patton, 1862; W. B. Kingsbury, J. Hitchcock and W. H. Deming, 1863; A. B. Pratt, N. Mason and B. G. Webster, 1864; B. Pratt, W. Workman and O. P. Reed, 1865; T. G. Luther, W. Workman and Asa Kinney, 1866; B. Pratt, C. Pedrick and S. B. Clark, 1867; O. P. Reed, O. U. Akin and Norman Mason, 1868; C. B. Seward, H. B. Bateman and O. U. Akin, 1869; J. J. Foote, P. M. Potter and Samuel Sumner, 1870; S. Sumner, N. Hunter and S. A. Coe, 1871; H. S. Town, S. Sumner and R. D. Mason, 1872; George E. Sutherland, W. B. Kingsbury and B. P. Mason, 1873; J. Bowen, C. T. Shepard and R. D. Mason, 1874; E. L. Northrup, J. Hitchcock and Matt Lambert, 1875; John P. Taggart, N. Mason and W. M. Treanore, 1876; E. L. Northrup, A. Osborn and R. D. Mason, 1877; W. B. Kingsbury, E. Manville and D. P. Parkhurst, 1878; J. M. Geery, O. U. Akin and C. B. Hart, 1879.

Aldermen, Second Ward.—Lyman Turner and E. L. Runals, 1858; G. W. Mitchell, H. T. Henton and J. S. Barnes, 1859; H. T. Henton, J. L. McCord and D. L. Harkness, 1860; J. L. McCord, H. Pierce and E. L. Northrup, 1861; M. W. Secley, A. M. Skeels and I. S. White, 1862; E. L. Runals, T. J. Olmsted and J. S. Barnes, 1863; H. T. Henton, W. W. Robinson and G. W. Dellinger, 1864; T. J. Olmsted, C. F. Dodge and G. W. Dellinger, 1865; H. S. Town, C. F. Dodge and A. C. Nye, 1866; A. Cook, N. G. Hurlbut and C. M. Cooley, 1867; George L. Field, A. B. M. Lindsley and A. Cook, 1868; C. P. Dunning, A. Zinth and A. W. Pettibone, 1869; William Workman, J. N. Foster and J. S. Barnes, 1870; J. Dobbs, C. E. Bennett, and H. D. Phelps, 1871; William Workman, C. F. Dodge and John Bush, 1872; J. Dobbs, J. M. De Frees and William Ralston, 1873; J. Dobbs, H. D. Phelps and C. A. Shepard, 1874; J. Dobbs, Charles Cowan and G. W. Dellinger, 1875; J. Dobbs, S. W. Dodge and August Zinth, 1876; J. Dobbs, C. M. Cooley and A. Wood, 1877; J. Dobbs, W. M. Treanore and F. S. Wilson, 1878; E. L. Runals, N. Mason and T. R. Freeman, 1879. (Mr. Freeman moved into the First Ward after his election, thereby losing his office, to which C. E. Bennett was elected by the Council.)

Justices of the Peace, First Ward.—O. J. Clark, 1858 and 1859; L. Hazen, 1860, 1861, 1862 and 1863.

Justices of the Peace, Second Ward.—L. Hazen, 1858 and 1859; P. B. Kissam, 1860 and 1861; E. B. Pride, 1862 and 1863.

Justices of the Peace elected at large.—H. Williams and Thomas Harris, 1866 and 1867; Thomas Harris and W. Workman, 1868 and 1869; Thomas Harris and N. H. Wyckoff, 1870 and 1871; W. W. Robinson and Thomas Harris, 1872 and 1873; Thomas Harris and A. Cooley, 1874 and 1875; A. Cooley and J. W. Hall, 1876 and 1877; A. Cooley and J. W. Hall, 1878 and 1879.

Sealer of Weights and Measures.—S. Valentine, 1867; only one ever elected.

Assessor, First Ward.—Norman Mason, 1859; G. W. P. Pew, 1860; W. B. Kingsbury, 1861; B. Pratt, 1862, 1863 and 1864; Jacob Woodruff, 1865, 1866, 1867 and 1868; S. R. Patton, 1869, 1870 and 1871; N. H. Wyckoff, 1872, 1873 and 1874; D. W. Akin, 1875 and 1876; W. B. Kingsbury, 1877; L. M. Carlisle, 1878 and 1879.

Assessor, Second Ward.—S. Hazen, 1859 and 1860; Darius Phelps, 1861; L. P. Rivenburg, 1862; W. W. Robinson, 1863; C. P. Dunning, 1864; J. S. Barnes, 1865; W. W. Robinson, 1866 and 1867; Thomas Harris, 1868 and 1869; W. T. Whiting, 1870; D. Y.

Sabin, 1871; W. T. Whiting, 1872 and 1873; L. M. Carlisle, 1874, 1875 and 1876; E. Wilson, 1877 and 1878; J. P. Stone, 1879.

NOTE.—For the year 1858, Daniel Y. Sabin served as Assessor for the whole city.

Constable, First Ward.—C. Linkfield, 1858; N. C. Strong, 1859; H. Rivenburg, 1860; N. C. Strong, 1861; J. Landon, 1862, 1863, 1864 and 1865; N. C. Strong, 1866; Frank Woodward, 1867; T. P. Smith, 1868; S. Valentine, 1869, 1870 and 1871; W. R. Pearson, 1872; L. Martin, 1873; B. Cheeny, 1874; S. Valentine, 1875; T. Lambert, 1876; T. R. Freeman, 1877; W. H. Lambert, 1878; C. J. Derby, 1879.

Constable, Second Ward.—I. A. Norton, 1858; E. B. Pride, 1859, 1860 and 1861; J. P. Smith, 1862; T. Parmalee, 1863; O. R. Ellis, 1864; Spencer Whiting, 1865, 1866 and 1867; A. Wood, 1868; Spencer Whiting, 1869; O. R. Ellis, 1870; S. Whiting, 1871; J. E. Cook, 1872; A. P. Matteson, 1873; E. C. Mayham, 1874 and 1875; George Jussen, 1876; J. E. Cook, 1877; W. S. Howe, 1878 and 1879.

POST OFFICE.

The name of the first place for the reception and delivery of mail in Ripon was Ceresco. The office was located in Ceresco—for there was not even one house on “the hill” where Ripon now is—and Lester Rounds was Postmaster, receiving his commission in 1844. The mail was carried during the winter of 1844–45, from Ceresco to Fond du Lac by John Lambert once a week. He went on foot, and had one of Nathan Hunter’s pillow-cases for a mail pouch. Sometimes he was well laden. The second Postmaster was William Starr (now deceased), and the office still remained in Ceresco. In 1849, D. P. Mapes made an exertion to remove the post office from Ceresco to “the hill,” which had been named Ripon. The Whigs were then in power, and, as the members of the Wisconsin Phalanx were mostly Democrats, the task was accomplished, and E. L. Northrup was given the appointment. Mr. Northrup did not secure possession of the office until March 30, 1850, although appointed the latter part of 1849. In 1853, Mr. Starr made an effort to secure the appointment of Postmaster again, and to move the office back to Ceresco. His competitor was David P. Mapes, who, of course, desired to retain the office at Ripon. The contest was a spirited one, both candidates making the journey to Washington to plead their cause. Mr. Mapes was successful, however, and that ended all efforts to get the post office at Ceresco. When the members of the Wisconsin Phalanx first lost the post office, they formed themselves into a funeral procession and turned their loss, which was really a serious one, into a joke. In January, 1854, in order to induce A. M. Skeels (now deceased) to settle his business at Ripon, Mr. Mapes resigned the office of Postmaster to him. The name of the office was changed from Ceresco to Ripon in 1855. Mr. Skeels was succeeded in May, 1861, by Jehdeiah Bowen, who erected a stone building on the east side of Public Square especially for the post office. During the month of February, 1864, Mr. Bowen received the mail but once on time, owing to the snow blockade. He therefore employed a man and team to fetch the mail from the cars wherever they might be blockaded. This he deemed necessary, as the war of the rebellion was at its height and people were anxious to receive intelligence from their soldier friends. Many times during that winter the post office was kept open all night, the lobby being crowded until 3 o’clock in the morning by men and women who had friends in the army. Mr. Bowen resigned and was succeeded in September, 1866, by David McKercher, who had just become a resident of Ripon at the time of his appointment. Mr. McKercher was succeeded in 1870 by Hiram S. Town, the present incumbent. In the spring of 1879, the post office building burned, together with a quantity of mail matter and valuable records. A room on the ground floor of Greenway’s Block was then arranged for the post office, which is the most commodious and convenient Ripon ever had. The post office at Ripon is second-class, with a salary of $2,000 per year to the Postmaster, and an allowance of $450 for clerk hire. When the office was first removed from Ceresco, the revenues were $1.60 for the first quarter. Now the receipts are $1,000 per quarter, aside from the money-order fees, which amount to $150 per year.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The first school taught in Ripon was in the fall of 1844. Lester Rounds was teacher, and the schoolroom was in the Wisconsin Phalanx building in Ceresco. The next year, the Phalanx people erected a stone schoolhouse on Lot 1, Block 5, corner of Church and Liberty streets, in which Mr. Rounds was also a teacher. This was not at first a public school, for it was maintained by the citizens of Ceresco for the benefit of their own children, there being no others in the vicinity. As the surrounding country became settled soon after, they took advantage of the law which allowed ten families to erect themselves into a school district, and it became a public school.

District No. 5.—The following contract shows that the schools of this district were organized in 1849:

It is agreed between School District No. 5, in the town of Ceresco, and Edward Daniels, a qualified teacher of Green Lake, that the said Edward Daniels is to teach the common school of said district for the term of five months, for the sum of $26 per month; and for such services, properly rendered, the said district is to pay to the said Edward Daniels the amount that may be due according to this contract by the 1st day of May, 1850.

Dated November, 1849.

[Signed] M. E. MORSE, District Clerk.

[Signed] EDWARD DANIELS.

Mr. Daniels taught this "term of five months" in the stone schoolhouse erected by the Wisconsin Phalanx, which was afterward, February 27, 1852, deeded by them to School District No. 5, for the sum of $225.

The deed is a quaint document. The Phalanx seal, a piece of yellow linen cloth about one-half an inch wide and three times as long as wide, appears next to the names of the grantors, which are signed in a small hand. The grantors are Warren Chase, R. D. Mason, Russell Smith, Jacob Woodruff, Jacob Beckwith, James Clarkson, J. M. Boutelle, Carlton Lane and John Irving. The old school building here deeded has disappeared.

In March, 1857, Hiram S. Town and his wife, for the sum of $200, deeded Lot 5 in Block 1, Ceresco, to District No. 5 for a schoolhouse site, and that same spring, Gilbert Lane and Seth G. Strong gave bond to build for $2,000, and furnish all material, the octagon-shaped building of mortar and gravel, now called the Ceresco Schoolhouse. When first finished, it contained but two rooms, one above and one below. These have since been partitioned so as to furnish rooms above and below for study and for recitations. Up to 1879, the building had been sadly neglected, having gone without repairs, paint, sidewalk and proper outbuildings. It was surrounded by gullies or mud, and was a dreary place. During the year mentioned, several hundred dollars were expended in repairs. The scholars have laid out tasty flower-beds and gardens; purchased through their own efforts an encyclopedia, and now contemplate erecting a fountain, for which abundant water is near.

The school is prosperous. A high-school department was established in this district in 1877, as the following minutes, taken from the school record-book, show:

July 23, 1877, 8 P. M.

Adgurn meetin Cald To order By the Director L E Nole R D Alen was elected Chairman The Comity Report the Clerks Books is Correkct With one or to Mistake.

The Reporte of the Comity it is exepected moved and cared that the Report of the Clerk is a dopted.

Motion made to Re Consider the motion to adopt the Clerks Report motion lost

Motion made to exepect the Report of the Comity is exepected Motion mad to adopt the Treasurers Report adopted.

Motion to adopt the free high school law amenament to adopt the high school law if it dont in Criese our expences Motion Loste Vote on motion to adopt free high schoole was adopted

Motion mad to pay the Clerk Twenty Dollars Per yeare

Motion Card

moved to adjoirn for four weekes.

Motion cared Adjoirned

The district employs four teachers, who have charge of four departuents—Primary, Intermediate, Grammar and High School—all in one building. The total number of children of school age in District No. 5 is 324.

District No. 2.—Notice for a meeting to be held at Mapes' Hotel (the Ripon House), October 21, 1850, for the formation of District No. 2, was posted about the 1st of October, of that year, by Levi Parker, Superintendent of Schools of the town of Ceresco. The meeting was held at the house of H. D. Scott, in Ceresco, instead of at the hotel. D. F. Shepard was chosen Director; E. L. Northrup, Treasurer, and C. R. Pedrick, Clerk. Those present voted to erect a school, and raise for that purpose a tax of $300. Arrangements were made for the use of the house then occupied by D. F. Shepard for a schoolhouse until one could be erected. This building was the one erected in 1849, near where the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway depot stands, by Samuel Pedrick. The following contract shows who was the first teacher in the district:

It is agreed between School District No. 2, in the town of Ceresco and Emily E. Turner, a qualified teacher of said town, that the said Emily E. Turner is to teach the common school in said District for the term of three months, for the sum of $1.75 per week; and for such services, properly rendered, the said District is to pay the said Emily E. Turner the amount that may be due according to this contract, on or before the 1st day of April, 1851.

Dated, Ripon, December 5, 1850.

[Signed] C. R. PEDRICK, Clerk.

[Signed] EMILY E. TURNER.

I hereby consent to the within contract.

E. L. NORTHRUP, Treasurer.

In April, 1851, the first school tax, amounting to $69.05, was collected in District No. 2, to pay teacher's wages and other expenses, which had been advanced by E. L. Northrup. Finally, in October, 1852, it was voted to add another $100 to the sum ($300) already voted to be raised to build a schoolhouse, and to erect a building 22x36 feet. The Building Committee were: H. Sabin, Mr. Bearss, A. E. Bovay and A. P. Mapes, who furnished the plans and specifications. The building, now occupied as a dwelling, was erected on what is now called the "Park," opposite the present brick schoolhouse on Fond du Lac street.

The main portion of the brick schoolhouse was erected in 1860, by G. W. Sawyer, for $2,900, who furnished all materials. The site, which is Lot 40 on Fond du Lac street, was purchased of E. P. Brockway for $600. In 1871, Samuel Allen built an addition to the brick schoolhouse, 25x35 feet, for $2,615, and furnished everything. The building is now in good condition.

The district being large and the number of scholars constantly increasing, two wooden schoolhouses were erected in 1860 for the accommodation of small scholars. The one on the corner of Shepard and Doty streets cost $485, and the site $150. The one on Howard street cost $500, and the site $150. The number of scholars still continuing to increase, the Mapes dwelling, next to the brick schoolhouse, was purchased in 1877 and made into a schoolhouse, at a cost of $1,038.89 for the site and building.

The total expenditures in District No. 2 during the last ten years have been $41,847.60, as follows: 1870, $2,700.62; 1871, $5,948.02; 1872, $3,732.26; 1873, $3,124.45; 1874, $3,378.24; 1875, $3,816.64; 1876, $4,168.18; 1877, $4,442.33; 1878, $5,536.59; 1879, $5,000.27.

The total number of scholars in 1879 in District No. 2 was 724. The district employs ten teachers, who have charge of four Primary Schools, two Intermediate, one Grammar and one High School.

RIPON WATER-POWER.

The privilege of using for manufacturing purposes the heavy fall of water in Silver Creek, where it flows through the city of Ripon, was purchased by David P. Mapes, of Mary Eleanor Watson, through her attorney, John S. Horner, in 1849. It was first improved by Mr. Mapes, in 1849 and 1850. The first dam was built by him where Eureka street now is, the road-bed being originally the dam. The next dam was built by Mr. Mapes at Scott street, in 1853, for the Gothic Mill. The Eureka street dam was tapped when Mr. Dellinger built the new Ripon Mills power, in 1866. The very first utilization of the water in Silver Creek was in 1844, at Ceresco, by the Phalanx. The fall is about 100 feet from Scott street to Ceresco Mills, and before the large marshes east and south of Ripon were drained and cultivated by the farmers, water was abundant for all purposes. Before such drainage, these marshes acted as reservoirs from which the water came down slowly. Now the water runs off much more rapidly, thus making the supply somewhat inadequate after the marshes are once drained.

As a compensation for the privilege of laying the trunk which conveys water to G. W. Dellinger's mill, he was obliged to stipulate that the city might always take water from his bulk-head for fire purposes and for sprinkling streets. It has a "head" (fall) of fifty feet, thus furnishing a tremendous power.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The city of Ripon was without a fire engine or fire department until 1875, when a chemical engine was purchased for $2,500, and a volunteer company organized with Hazen R. Hill as Chief Fire Marshal. He was succeeded in a few months by H. J. Goodall, who has since held that position. The company numbers fifty members, who are divided into "Engine Company, No. 1," and "Prairie City Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1." The members receive no pay from the city, but after serving seven years they are exempt from poll tax, jury duty and military service, except in case of an invasion of the State. They have good uniforms and a sum of money in the treasury which was obtained from firemen's balls and the 2 per cent tax on premiums from the insurance agents of the city.

For gallant service at the great fire in Oshkosh, in 1876, the company received two silver trumpets. The city erected, on the north side of Jackson street, a two-story wooden building in which the engine and hook and ladder truck are kept, and in which fire meetings are held. The city has a standing reward to the teamster who has the first load of water to the fire, and also pays a private individual for hauling the engine to and from fires.

The officers are: H. J. Goodall, Chief; W. B. Allen, First Assistant; A. Lanning, Jr., Second Assistant; B. F. Keenan, Secretary; W. H. Vermilye, Treasurer.

GAS WORKS.

In 1872, C. L. Lightburn began the erection of the Ripon Gas Works, on Pond street, on the south shore of the upper mill-pond. Although comparatively small, the works cost upward of $25,000, being thoroughly built and well equipped. The city advanced $1,000 in cash to Mr. Lightburn, to aid in their construction, which was returned to the municipality in gas at $30 per lamp-post per annum. In 1876, A. L. Dobbs came into possession of the works, which had been idle for some months. Mr. Dobbs entered upon the manufacture of gas, which, however, he discontinued after eighteen months, the business being unprofitable. The works now lie idle. They are now owned, except a claim of the county for two or three years' taxes, by a Milwaukee firm.

HOTELS OF RIPON.

Ceresco had no hotel at first, but travelers and strangers were lodged and fed at the large boarding-house belonging to the Phalanx people, or by D. P. Mapes, who lived on a farm east of the present city, or by the Dakins, who lived a few miles west. The Central House, which now stands opposite Bateman's flouring mill, was erected in one or two years after the Wisconsin Phalanx began business, but Ceresco has had no hotels for many years.

Ripon House.—In 1850, David P. Mapes erected on the site of Wood's Hotel, at the north end of Public Square, a two-story, square, wooden building, which he called the Ripon House. A grand opening was had when the house was completed, at which were present people from Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Berlin, Milwaukee, Green Lake and other places. It was a memorable affair. This hotel was afterward called the American House, and, in 1859, Larrabee & Fargo ran it as a temperance house. From 1861 to 1866, it was owned and managed by Town & Fargo, who, at the end of that time, sold it to Wood & Fisk. When Wood's Hotel was built, the American House was moved down into the valley back of its original site, where it now stands unoccupied. It was the first business building erected in Ripon—that is, in the portion of Ripon not known as Ceresco. Among its early proprietors were E. P. Ketcham, Henry D. Scott, Larrabee and D. P. Mapes.

Wood's Hotel.—This is a brick building, the largest and finest in the western portion of Fond du Lac County. It was erected in 1872 by Alanson Wood, the present proprietor. At the opening ball, which occurred on the very spot where D. P. Mapes had the first hotel opening in Ripon, in 1850, over $1,200 was realized from the sale of tickets. The building is of brick and stone, and five stories high. It is commodiously arranged, with parlors, reading-room, office and dining-room level with Public Square. It is well furnished, well kept, and has seventy-five rooms. The building faces Public Square on the south, with streets on its east and west fronts. It is one of the most noticeable buildings in Ripon.

Mapes House.—The Mapes House, a large, four-story stone structure, located on the west side of Broadway, at the corner of Blossom street, was erected in 1853, and opened by T. J. Mapes. It was the largest hotel in the western portion of the county until the erection of Wood's Hotel, in 1872, and secured a large share of patronage. It has been kept at various periods by T. J. Mapes, Wheeler & Peck, J. J. Smith, Gilbert Lane and John Weisgerber, the present proprietor, who is doing a profitable business.

Shepard's Hotel.—In 1851, a building was erected on the corner of Public Square and West Fond du Lac streets, for a hotel. It was called Shepard's Hotel, and managed by Dana F. Shepard. The first "Independence ball" held in Ripon was in this unfinished building, July 4, 1851. During the dance it was several times set on fire by fireworks. In 1853, the name of the hotel was changed to the National, and so continued until the building was destroyed by fire about the year 1856.

Lum's Hotel.—This was built by L. Portugal in 1870, for a public house, and called the Commercial Hotel. He was its proprietor and manager until 1877, when he moved to Milwaukee. In 1879, H. Lum remodeled the inner portion of the building and opened it for the accommodation of the traveling public. It is comparatively a small hotel, but is kept in a neat and homelike manner, and draws its full share of patronage.

Princeton House.—This is a German hotel, situated on Jackson street west of Public Square, and caters mostly for the custom of farmers. It is owned and managed by H. Kohl, who enjoys a large share of the hotel business of Ripon.

PUBLIC HALLS.

City Hall.—The first public hall in Ripon was built by David P. Mapes, over two stone stores on the west side of Broadway or Main street, in 1851. It was first called Henton Hall, and afterward City Hall. It is now used as a storeroom in connection with Gehbe's furniture store. At the opening ball, by which it was dedicated, enough tickets were sold to net $250 in cash.

Greenway Hall.—This hall was built by David Greenway in his V-shaped, three-story brick building in 1861. Until the opening of Opera Hall, it was the best place for public meetings in Ripon. It now is mostly used for balls, socials and masquerades, for which its large size and absence of galleries make it desirable.

Opera Hall.—This is the principal hall of Ripon. It was built by Marcellus Pedrick in 1869, of stone and brick, on the corner of Blossom street and Broadway. It has a gallery on three sides, a neatly arranged stage and two good entrances—one on Broadway by a stairway, and one on Blossom street, direct from the sidewalk. It has admirable acoustic properties, and will seat 600 persons comfortably. It is now owned by M. Pedrick, its original builder and proprietor. It is an exceedingly safe and substantial place for public gatherings.

CHURCHES OF RIPON.

Congregational Church.—There was held, at the Ripon Hotel, November 21, 1850, a meeting for the purpose of organizing a church. Rev. D. Clary, of the American Home Missionary Society, was Moderator, and Rev. J. H. Kasson, Clerk. The organization was effected by admitting the following persons, who had been members of churches before coming to Ripon, on presentation of the proper papers: Winthrop C. Lord, Elizabeth Lord, Mary Parker, Wilson Holt, Abigail Holt, Francis A. Strong, Merriam B. L. Strong, Andrew Sherwood, Clarissa Sherwood, William Dunham, and Griffith Beynon. Rev. F. G. Sherrill was there invited to become acting Pastor, which he did. In the fall of 1853, a small wooden church edifice, which had been erected just north of the old college building, was dedicated as a place of worship. In 1857, the increased number of members made it necessary to enlarge the building, which was done in June of that year. In 1867, the present splendid stone structure was begun on College Hill, which was finished and dedicated in February, 1868. The old church building, which stands only a few rods north of the new one, was then sold to the Temperance Germans, who now use it for a church. The present structure is the largest, finest and costliest in Ripon. It was built entirely of Ripon stone, except the trimmings, and cost $22,000.

The following persons have acted as Pastors of this church: Rev. F. G. Sherrill, three years; J. W. Walcott, one year; H. M. Chapin, one and one-half years; B. B. Parsons, three years; H. W. Brown, one and one-half years; J. A. Hawley, three years; W. E. Merriman, E. W. Cook, R. W. Sawyer, L. Curtis, L. J. White, Carter and S. M. Newman. The first real Pastor—one duly installed as permanent Pastor—was Rev. H. M. Chapin. Mr. Newman has also been installed as permanent Pastor.

The following persons were elected Deacons: Andrew Sherwood and Wilson Holt, in 1850; Griffith Beynon, in 1851; William Dunham, in 1852; Sylvester Richmond, in 1855; Darius Phelps, in 1856; Ceylon North, in 1861; G. R. Slaw, in 1865; A. C. Chittenden and A. M. Phelps, in 1870; William M. Bristol, in 1873; Ira C. Lyon and Charles F. Hammond, in 1874; A. P. Harwood and C. A. Kenaston, in 1875. The following have been elected Deaconesses: Mrs. E. N. Harris, in 1870; Mrs. C. B. Woodward and Mrs. Mariam B. L. Strong, in 1873.

The bell which now hangs in the old college building, and which was the first one in Ripon, was procured through the energy of Rev. H. M. Chapin, who solicited subscriptions both in Ripon and among his friends abroad. It was first hung in a wooden frame near the old wooden church. This frame was paid for with funds raised by the Ladies' Aid Society. When the little church had been enlarged and this bell hung, the members of the church felt proud of their achievement. People not acquainted with those times can hardly appreciate the magnitude of this work.

St. Peter's Episcopal Church.—In September, 1859, having been previously heralded by kind letters of introduction, Bishop Jackson Kemper sent Rev. Fayette Durlin to Ripon, expressing the wish that he might become the "settled minister" of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the place. Mr. Durlin was heartily received, and a determination to erect a house of worship and establish a regular parish at once obtained. The first inscription on the church records is as follows:

RIPON, Wis., March 1, 1860.

On opening the records of this parish, hereinafter to be inscribed, some few preliminary words may be of interest to those who shall peruse them hereafter. I believe that I am the first resident Episcopal Clergyman ever engaged in the work of organizing and building up a parish in this place. Several different clergymen—among them the Rev. J. P. T. Ingraham, the Rev. L. D. Brainard, the Rev. Thomas Greene and the Rev. Peter B. Morrison—have held services here at rare intervals; but no organization of a parish was ever effected, nor anything undertaken at the request of the Bishop, and, through the invitation of some interested in the services of this church, particularly that of Dr. B. B. Spalding, I arrived here to take up my abode and begin my labors, on Monday, February 13, 1860. The following Sunday, February 19, I held my first service here, in the Baptist meeting-house, having but the morning service, there being no place for us in the afternoon. During the week, a hall was procured and rented for our exclusive use, over H. F. Olmsted's store, and being neatly and properly fitted up for the purpose, we now have regular services there every Sunday morning and afternoon, and expect to until we are able to build a church.

Thus much I thought it well to put down here, as what might be of interest, as matter of reference, in future years. It is a humble beginning; but, relying on God's blessing and the all-sufficient presence, guidance and help of the Great Head of the Church, we cannot doubt that somewhat will grow out of it to the glory and honor of the ever-adorable Trinity and to the everlasting good of souls.

[Signed]

FAYETTE DURLIN,

Pastor of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Wisconsin.

It was resolved, April 10, 1869, to erect a church, and B. B. Spalding, A. E. Bovay, William M. Taggart, George W. Mitchell and E. P. Brockway were appointed to secure plans and specifications. Afterward, Mr. Bovay resigned and Mr. Durlin took his place.

Rev. Fayette Durlin was formally elected Rector of Grace Church, as it was then called, May 16, 1860. Three days later, he accepted.

The contract for erecting the church edifice was let to A. Lanning for $2,800, the site being at the head of Blossom street, and secured from John S. Horner. The building committee consisted of H. S. Eggleston, G. W. Mitchell, William Starr and Rev. F. Durlin. The subscriptions taken for the erection of the church amounted to nearly $3,350. Taggart Bros. and E. P. Brockway each gave $200; A. E. Bovay, B. B. Spalding, D. F. Shepard, G. W. Mitchell, W. H. Dakin and H. S. Eggleston each gave $150; M. W. Seeley, William Starr, T. B. Robbins and A. M. Skeels gave each $100; H. Willard and B. Pinkney gave each $75; L. H. D. Crane, H. S. Townen, J. Bowen, D. Greenway, C. Pinkney, Prairie City Bank, E. Root, H. Pierce, George Marshall, A. D. Foote, Mrs. E. F. Peck and A. B. Beardsley gave each $50. The balance was made up by numerous, smaller subscriptions.

The building was completed, consecrated and occupied for worship early in 1861. The consecration was by Bishop Kemper, January 23, 1861. The parish schoolhouse was erected in 1864, at a cost of $1,897.12, including the site, which was purchased of George W. Lyman for $300.

The rectory or parsonage, erected west of the schoolhouse in 1866, on a lot purchased of G. N. Lyman, cost about $2,300, and was constructed by Samuel Allen. All three of the buildings are of the Gothic style of architecture and of wood.

By an act of the Legislature, approved February 20, 1866, the name of Grace Church was changed to St. Peter's, the style of the corporation being "The Rector, Church-Wardens and Vestrymen of St. Peter's Church, in the city of Ripon, Wis."

The different Rectors have been: Fayette Durlin, from February 13, 1860, to June 11, 1865; George Armstrong Whitney, August 1, 1865, to May 20, 1866; E. F. Baker, June 1, 1866, to September 1, 1868; Jubal Hodges, May 30, 1869, to July 5, 1869; M. V. Averill, May 15, 1870, to December 31, 1872; Fayette Durlin, November 30, 1873, to date. The brief term of Jubal Hodges' rectorship was owing to a renewed attack of an old brain difficulty, which finally resulted in death.

The Clerks have been Henry S. Eggleston, George W. Root and George L. Field, the present official, who has held the position since April, 1863.

Those who have held the office of Warden are as follows: A. E. Bovay, E. Root, Edward P. Brockway, H. S. Eggleston, Howard Pierce, Bertine Pinkney, William Starr, J. M. De Frees, John Corbett, W. L. Gillett and Robert Allen. Mr. Brockway was Senior Warden from 1861 to 1867, with the exception of one year, when he was absent.

At the beginning of 1873, the parish being somewhat in debt, George L. Field presented a resolution, which was adopted by the Vestry, providing that, from that day forth, no expense whatever should be incurred unless sufficient cash or pledges were available to pay it. This novel resolution in church government made it impossible to secure a Rector, and, from that time, lay services only were held until the debt was wiped out, which was done at the close of that year. The parish is now out of debt. The present number of communicants is 96. The baptisms have been, altogether, 275; the confirmations, 170; the marriages, 50; the burials, 52.

One notable feature in the management of the affairs of this parish is that it never owed any of its rectors a dollar, even over night.

The first Wardens were A. E. Bovay and E. Root. The first Vestrymen were B. B. Spalding, M. W. Seely, H. S. Eggleston, William M. Taggart, George W. Mitchell, E. P. Brockway and William Starr.

The present Wardens are W. L. Gillett and Robert Allen. The present Vestrymen are George L. Field, Charles Cowan, J. M. De Frees, D. W. Akin, J. P. Taggart, W. W. Davy and O. U. Akin.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—As nearly as can be ascertained, the Methodist Church was first organized in 1852, the class consisting of only three members, of whom George Limbert was appointed leader. He also held the office of local preacher, having first united with the Wesleyan Church in England. He remained a worthy and useful member till his death, which occurred December 29, 1879.

The first church was a small structure, located in that part of the city then called Ceresco. In this building the church worshiped till the summer of 1860, when the present edifice, on Jackson street, was built. This building is 40x82 feet. It is a fine wooden structure, very well finished, with an audience-room the full size of the building; a commodious lecture-room and two classrooms in the basement. A good and convenient parsonage was purchased in 1863, located on Liberty street, in Ceresco. Mr. Corliss contributed $800 toward the purchase of the building, the final securing of which was due largely to the efforts of Rev. J. T. Woodhead, who was then Pastor.

The different Pastors have been: 1857-58, R. Moffat; 1858-59, J. M. S. Maxon (died June 19, 1858; W. Morse filled out the year); 1859-60, W. Morse; 1860-61, W. Morse; 1861-62, J. T. Woodhead; 1862-63, J. T. Woodhead; 1863-64, J. Anderson; 1864-65, H. Requa (died at Little Rock, Ark., May 19, 1865, while in the service of the Christian Commission, in the army); 1865-66, Wesley Lattin; 1866-67, Wesley Lattin; 1867-68, George C. Haddock; 1868-69, George C. Haddock; 1869-70, W. G. Miller; 1870-71, Rev. W. G. Miller; 1871-72, A. C. Manwell; 1872-73, A. C. Manwell; 1873-74, J. Lavelle and W. F. Randolph; 1874-75, J. M. Craig and A. A. Reed; 1875-76, J. H. Jenne; 1876-77, I. Wiltse; 1877-78, I. Wiltse (died March 28, 1878; year filled out by E. B. L. Elder); 1878-79, George Fellows; 1879-80, C. D. Pillsbury, who is the Pastor at the present time.

The church has experienced severe trials, but its present state is one of very general harmony of feeling and of unity of action, with a good degree of spiritual interest.

Baptist Church.—In 1852, Elder D. Sabin, still a resident of Ripon, and in his eighty-fifth year, began Baptist preaching in the schoolhouse on Fond du Lac street, alternating with the preacher of some other denomination, who also held services at the same place. In April, 1853, a meeting was held at this schoolhouse for the formation of a church. Elder Sabin was Moderator, and Henry Lansing, Clerk. The organization was perfected, the following persons becoming members: D. Sabin, Carrie Sabin, Rev. Roswell Osborn, W. W. Robinson, Mrs. S. Robinson, Mrs. George N. Lyman, Mrs. H. H. Mead, John Russell, Elizabeth Russell, Mrs. Mary M. Russell, Henry Lansing, David I. Parks, Philander Parks and Avery Brown. In May, 1853, a Baptist council was held at the Congregational Church in Ripon, and re-organized the new organization. Elder Sabin acted as Pastor until 1854, and was succeeded by Rev. M. Hutchinson, who died soon after. In 1855, the church received a charter from the State, and Avery Brown, J. A. Barnes, H. H. Mead and W. W. Robinson were chosen Trustees.

In 1856, the erection of a church on Fond du Lac street, the present structure, was begun. It was finished, dedicated and occupied in December, 1857. In 1867, blinds were added, the building was painted and other repairs made, so that it is now an exceedingly tasty and comfortable place of worship. During this same year, 1867, twenty-five new members were received into the church, which is the greatest number received at any one time. The church is entirely out of debt, and has been for some years. The Pastors (those before this having been merely "supplies" or acting Pastors) have been: H. I. Parker, 1856 to 1860, who preached in the City Hall until the church was completed; C. T. Tucker, who was the first to devote his whole time and attention to the church; E. L. Walker, 1860 to 1863; A. Latham, September, 1863, to March, 1864; P. Work, July, 1864 to August, 1869; J. C. Burkholder, a portion of 1869 and 1870; L. L. Gage, 1870 to 1872; R. W. Arnold, 1873 to 1877; D. Crosby, June, 1877, to date, being the present Pastor.

This church first belonged to the Marquette, but now to the Winnebago Association. It has a resident membership of eighty-three.

First Presbyterian Church.—This church was formerly called "Grace" Methodist Episcopal Church, and was an "independent" organization formed by Alfred E. Bishop, Elizabeth Bishop, Albert P. Corliss, Hattie Corliss, Mathew Miller, Rosa Miller, Edward Smith, Judith Smith, Cornilius Brundige, Katherine Brundige, Alphonso S. Crooker, Miss Emeline M. Crooker. It was incorporated under the laws of the State May 8, 1877, by E. J. Smith, E. Babcock, A. P. Corliss, D. Furniss, R. T. Graves, Alfred E. Bishop, D. G. Woodward, Edward Smith, John Martin and B. Kingsbury.

Rev. J. M. Craig was the Pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, as he now is of the new Presbyterian organization, which was effected January 19, 1880, on petition of the congregation. After entering the Presbyterian denomination, an organization was completed by the election and ordination of R. T. Graves, A. S. Crooker, John Martin and Dan Furniss, as Elders, and Edward Smith and D. G. Woodward as Deacons. Services have always been held in the Unitarian Church,* which is rented for that purpose.

The members of this church were those who left the old Methodist Church on account of some difficulty or dissatisfaction. It is in a prosperous condition.

Immanuel's Kirche.—This is a branch of the German Evangelical Church of North America. It was organized May 8, 1870, at the house of W. Luck, with the following members: Rev. A. Huelster, August Buchholz, W. Luck, A. Scheewe, W. Aker, A. Zank, G. Burger, G. Rad-drenzel, M. Drahim and F. Hoft. A. Scheewe, W. Aker and W. Luck were elected Trustees. At this first meeting, arrangements were made to erect a place of worship, and Rev. A. Huelster, August Buchholz and A. Zank were elected Building Committee. A lot was secured in Ceresco plat, on Jackson street, on which, in September, 1870, a building, 30x44 feet, was erected at a cost of $2,273. The dedication was by Bishop J. J. Escher, in October, 1870, at which time the entire indebtedness of the church was liquidated. In 1875, the congregation had grown so rapidly that more land, costing $175, was purchased, on which additional accommodations for teams were built, and on which an enlargement of the church building will also be erected soon. The congregation numbers 200 members, and money enough is on hand to make all contemplated improvements. The different Pastors have been: Revs. A. Huelster, six months; C. F. Finger, two years; John Koch, two years; Fr. Stroebel, three years; O. Kuederling, the present Pastor, two years.

Evangelical German Lutheran Church.—In 1866, Rev. G. Thiele, who built the stone church on Scott street, and had been its Pastor about two years, took a few of its members, among them F. Leistikow, C. Bremer and C. Daluege, and started a Temperance Lutheran Church. Services were first held in the college building until a small dwelling near the end of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railroad bridge was purchased, which is now the parsonage and schoolhouse. In this services were held, the Pastor resided, and school was held until the Congregationalists erected their new church, when the Lutherans purchased of them the old wooden building on College Hill.

The church now is composed of seventy families. The school, in which only children who are thirteen years old are taught, contains thirty-six scholars. The Pastors have been, G. Thiele, E. Meyerhoff, G. Hoelzel, A. Liefert and Joseph Westenberger, the present Pastor, who came in 1878. The Trustees are W. Wallschlaeger, Gustave Ruestau and W. Ponto. The Elders are C. Daluege, E. Neuenfeld and William Schmidt. The church has no debt and is in prosperous circumstances.

Evangelical Lutheran Church.—During the month of February, 1864, a German Protestant minister, named G. Thiele, arrived in Ripon and attempted to organize a church. He succeeded in securing pledges from thirty men to sustain him as their Pastor and erect a church. Accordingly, in 1865, a church edifice, 36x52 feet, was begun on Scott street. It was constructed entirely of stone from the Ripon quarries; had a basement for school purposes and ornamented with a graceful spire. In 1866, Mr. Thiele was dismissed, and the name of the church changed to the Evangelical Lutheran, with by-laws and ritual in conformity with this religious subdivison. The new minister was Rev. W. Schmidt, who resigned on account of ill health at the end of the year. In 1868, Rev. David Tunkele was chosen Pastor, who remained with the congregation five years. He was succeeded by Rev. Conrad, who filled the pulpit about eighteen months, and was succeeded by Rev. C. Dalies, the present Pastor. Under the ministration of Mr. Dalies many improvements have been made on the church property. A handsome and commodious parsonage was erected in 1879, and the surrounding grounds fenced and beautified. The school, taught in the basement of the church, has 125 students, who have books, maps, charts and a fine organ. The inside of the church edifice is neatly finished and furnished, having an organ which cost $700. At present the church has 185 members, and is in a prosperous condition.

* This church was erected mostly by Elder Striborn at the beginning of West Fond du Lac street, as a Universalist house of worship. The number embracing this form of religious worship being small, the church was changed to the Unitarian denomination. But this maintained a formal organization for only a short period, and the house had been without worshippers, for several years, until it was rented by the above-mentioned.

St. Patrick's Catholic Church.—This church was organized by Rev. E. Gray in January, 1859. Those present at the first mass were N. Roche, Thomas Leo, Michael Lyman, M. Spellman, James Flattery and M. Bannon. The church, a well-built wooden structure, is located on the south side of Oshkosh street. Formerly a portion of the church yard was used as a cemetery, but is no longer. The parochial residence is a fine brick structure, two stories in height, located near the church on Oshkosh street. For some years the church was heavily in debt, but, through the efforts of Father Graves, the present Pastor, and his congregation, this has been nearly wiped out, and the finances are now in a sound condition. The church is constantly increasing in membership, its members constituting a strong and active temperance society.

BANKS OF RIPON.

The very first exchange, or banking business, done in Ripon was in 1853, by E. P. Brockway, who opened an office for that purpose, and which was really the beginning of the present First National Bank. In 1855, Catlin & Brockway—Richard Catlin and E. P. Brockway—opened a banking and exchange office. This continued until the organization of the Bank of Ripon.

Bank of Ripon.—In December, 1856, the exchange office of Catlin & Brockway was organized as a bank of issue; capital, $25,000, with E. P. Brockway, Richard Catlin, H. H. Mead, E. L. Northrup, Thomas B. Robbins, George W. Mitchell, B. B. Parsons and A. M. Skeels as stockholders. After October, 1860, until the organization of the First National Bank, E. P. Brockway and H. H. Mead owned all the stock of the bank.

First National Bank.—This bank was organized with a capital of $50,000, March 19, 1864. The stockholders and directors were E. P. Brockway, H. H. Mead, George L. Field, William M. Taggart and Bertine Pinkney, the three first named being the principal holders of stock. The first election of officers was held April 1, 1864, and resulted in the choice of E. P. Brockway, President; H. H. Mead, Vice President, and George L. Field, Cashier. These men still retain the same offices. In 1869, S. T. McKnight and S. Richmond succeeded William M. Taggart and Bertine Pinkney as Directors, who still continue in office. This bank, from its commencement, has been a prosperous and successful institution; the growth of its business has been such that it now ranks among the safest and best in Wisconsin. It has always maintained in circulation the full amount of bills allowed by law. The bank building, a solid structure of Ripon stone, was erected in 1855, especially for banking purposes, on the west side of Public Square.

Prairie City Bank.—This was a bank of issue, organized in 1861 or 1862 by Julius Burdick, as President, and C. H. Smith as Cashier. Its circulation—amount of bills issued under the State law—was $20,000. The charter was sold at the end of the first year to Oshkosh parties, the bank thereupon going out of business at Ripon.

Oneida Bank.—L. H. Kellogg opened, for a few months, in Ripon, a branch of the Oneida Bank at Berlin. The concern proved disastrous to its patrons, and soon closed its doors.

Bowen & Wheeler's Bank.—This is a private banking institution, the business of which is carried on by Jehdeiah Bowen and Charles F. Wheeler. They formed a copartnership in May, 1864, for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking, except to issue bills, and first opened in Mr. Bowen's stone building, in which was located the post office, on the east side of Public Square at that date. The affairs of the bank are managed by Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Bowen having other business to occupy his attention.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Ripon Lodge, No. 95, F. & A. M.—In September, 1857, a dispensation was granted by the Grand Lodge to the following persons: Robert O. Selfridge, David N. Hosmer, A. B. Pratt, Philo England, David P. Mapes, Charles Hopkins, Thomas Ford, G. P. Bragdon, J. E. Brown and J. K. Hunt. The Lodge was duly chartered and numbered June 9, 1858. The first officers were: R. O. Selfridge, W. M.; A. B. Pratt, S. W.; D. M. Hosmer, J. W.; J. M. S. Maxon, S. D.; Thomas Ford, J. D.; J. E. Brown, Secretary; B. Dailey, Tiler. The Past Masters are R. O. Selfridge, A. B. Pratt, W. M. Taggart, H. S. Town, Jay Mayham, A. B. Russell, H. L. Barnes, L. E. Reed, E. Babcock, G. F. Horner, W. T. Whiting and J. C. Miller. The present officers are L. E. Reed, W. M.; A. Zinth, S. W.; A. S. Crooker, J. W.; J. Hitchcock, Treasurer; G. F. Horner, Secretary.

The Lodge has 107 members, and meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, in Masonic Hall.

Ripon Lodge, No. 144, I. O. O. F.—On the 11th of March, 1868, Samuel Ryan, D. G. M.; E. M. Loomis, D. D. G. M., and Charles Marks, G. W., instituted this Lodge of Odd Fellows, at Ripon. The charter members were L. S. Shepard, A. E. Olin, Daniel Stafford, O. R. Ellis, and H. McArthur. The first officers were L. S. Shepard, N. G.; Daniel Stafford, V. G.; S. G. Dodge, R. S.; George W. Peck, P. S.; A. E. Olin, Treasurer. Thereafter the following officers were duly elected:

1868—D. Stafford, N. G.; C. Combs, V. G.; P. N. Dellinger, S.; D. W. C. Root, P. S.; A. E. Olin, Treasurer. 1869—C. Coombs, P. N. Dellinger, N. G.; P. N. Dellinger, H. T. Henton, V. G.; H. T. Henton, C. B. Valentine, S.; D. W. C. Root, H. Bowerman, P. S.; G. E. Bushnell, H. R. Hill, Treasurers. 1870—H. T. Henton, T. Harris, N. G.; T. Harris, H. R. Hill, V. G.; I. W. Gaylord, S.; R. Stuart, P. S.; H. R. Hill, A. P. Matteson, Treasurers. 1871—H. R. Hill, I. W. Gaylord, N. G.; I. W. Gaylord, G. E. Bushnell, V. G.; G. E. Bushnell, R. Stuart, S.; R. Stuart, C. R. Stickle, P. S.; Ed Smith, Treasurer. 1872—G. W. Bushnell, A. E. Olin, N. G.; A. E. Olin, R. Stuart, V. G.; R. Stuart, E. A. Bradish, S.; C. R. Stickle, L. M. Allen, P. S.; Ed Smith, D. Stafford, Treasurers. 1873—R. Stuart, A. P. Matteson, N. G.; A. P. Matteson, L. M. Allen, V. G.; E. A. Bradish, W. W. Davy, S.; L. M. Allen, J. E. Chappell, P. S.; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1874—L. M. Allen, J. Rogers, N. G.; J. Rogers, J. M. Bonnell, V. G.; J. M. Bonnell, J. E. Chappell, S.; J. E. Chappell, R. Stuart, P. S.; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1875—J. M. Bonnell, J. E. Chappell, N. G.; J. E. Chappell, W. W. Davy, V. G.; C. N. Hodges, W. T. Runals, S.; R. Stuart, E. W. Sylvester, P. S.; O. E. H. Zobel, Treasurer. 1876—W. W. Davy, O. E. H. Zobel, N. G.; O. E. H. Zobel, John Mulvey, V. G.; W. T. Runals, S.; E. W. Sylvester, C. H. Milliman, P. S.; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1877—John Mulvey, N. G.; W. T. Runals, C. J. Derby, V. G.; E. H. Upham, S.; C. H. Milliman, D. Stafford, P. S.; C. N. Hodges, C. H. Milliman, Treasurers. 1878—C. J. Derby, C. H. Milliman, N. G.; C. H. Milliman, E. H. Upham, V. G.; E. H. Upham, R. Stuart, S.; L. M. Allen, P. S.; R. Stuart, D. Stafford, Treasurers. 1879—E. H. Upham, C. S. Latimer, N. G.; C. S. Latimer, Ed Smith, V. G.; G. E. Bushnell, A. E. Olin, S.; L. M. Allen, P. S.; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1880—Ed Smith, N. G.; H. J. Goodall, V. G.; R. Stuart, S.; L. M. Allen, P. S.; D. Stafford, Treasurer.

The Lodge is prospering, owning all its furniture and having a sum of money out at interest. The present membership is eighty-five, though 200 persons have belonged to the Order since 1868.

Ripon Encampment, No. 37, I. O. O. F.—A dispensation was granted to this lodge February 10, 1870, and a charter January 18, 1871, with the following charter members: H. R.

Hill, H. Bowerman, D. Stafford, J. B. Crossan, P. N. Dellinger, A. E. Olin, S. B. Taylor and D. P. Inson. The elective officers have been :

1870—H. R. Hill, G. W. Dellinger, C. P.; S. B. Taylor, A. E. Olin, H. P.; G. W. Dellinger, G. E. Bushnell, S. W.; H. Bowerman, H. J. Goodall, J. W.; J. B. Crossan, S. B. Salisbury, Scribes; A. E. Olin, D. Stafford, Treasurers. 1871—G. E. Bushnell, D. Stafford, C. P.; H. J. Goodall, T. Harris, H. P.; D. Stafford, S. B. Salisbury, S. W.; S. B. Salisbury, J. Mulvey, J. W.; T. Harris, H. N. Williams, Scribes; E. Smith, Treasurer. 1872—A. E. Olin, E. Smith, C. P.; E. Smith, A. E. Olin, H. P.; J. Mulvey, H. N. Williams, S. W.; H. N. Williams, R. Stuart, J. W.; G. E. Bushnell, L. M. Allen, Scribes; T. Harris, D. Stafford, Treasurers. 1873—G. W. Dellinger, R. Stuart, C. P.; G. E. Bushnell, L. M. Allen, H. P.; R. Stuart, C. J. Derby, S. W.; J. E. Cook, A. P. Matteson, J. W.; L. M. Allen, J. E. Chappell, Scribes; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1874—C. J. Derby, H. J. Goodall, C. P.; J. E. Chappell, D. Stafford, H. P.; A. P. Matteson, T. J. Lynch, S. W.; T. J. Lynch, C. S. Latimer, J. W.; R. Stuart, W. W. Davy, Scribes; D. Stafford, A. E. Bishop, Treasurers. 1875—J. Mulvey, C. S. Latimer, C. P.; J. M. Craig, H. P.; C. S. Latimer, J. D. Owen, S. W.; R. Stuart, J. E. Chappell, J. W.; W. W. Davy, O. E. H. Zobel, Scribes; D. Stafford, E. Smith, Treasurers. 1876—J. M. Craig, C. P.; W. R. Pearson, A. E. Bishop, H. P.; A. E. Bishop, O. E. H. Zobel, S. W.; W. T. Runals, C. H. Milliman, J. W.; O. E. H. Zobel, W. T. Runals, Scribes; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1877—O. E. H. Zobel, C. P.; J. M. Craig, C. H. Milliman, H. P.; C. H. Milliman, E. H. Upham, S. W.; J. D. Owen, A. P. Matteson, J. W.; W. T. Runals, C. S. Latimer, Scribes; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1878—C. H. Milliman, C. P.; E. H. Upham, H. P.; E. Smith, S. W.; A. P. Matteson, J. W.; C. S. Latimer, Scribe; D. Stafford, Treasurer. 1879—E. H. Upham, C. P.; A. E. Bishop, H. P.; Thomas Harris, S. W.; L. M. Allen, J. W.; C. S. Latimer, Scribe; D. Stafford, Treasurer.

By an order from the Grand Encampment, the officers of this and other encampments hold office for one year. Meetings are held twice each month in Odd Fellows' Hall.

Ripon Lodge, K. of H., No. 1,328.—This Lodge was instituted January 15, 1878, by W. H. Ballou, D. P. D., of Oshkosh, with the following charter members: C. B. Hart, I. M. Linderman, John Haas, Henry Lum, C. F. Dodge, J. J. Luck, M. Vankirk, G. F. Wilson, Geo. H. Jussen, C. G. Thompson, S. R. Patten, Alanson Wood, H. L. Barnes, I. M. Dakin, H. S. Town. The first officers were: P. S. H. S. Town; Dictator, I. M. Linderman; V. D., S. R. Patten; A. D., J. Haas; R., C. G. Thompson; F. R., H. Dauben; Treas., A. Wood; G., G. H. Jussen; C., H. L. Barnes; Guardian, J. J. Luck; Sentinel, G. F. Wilson; Rep. to Grand Lodge, H. S. Town; Alternate, I. M. Linderman; Trustees—J. J. Luck, one year; C. B. Hart, two years; M. Vankirk, three years.

At the second election, held June 27, 1878, I. M. Dakin, who has since held this office, was elected Reporter in place of C. G. Thompson. The same Treasurer and Financial Reporter were chosen, and have held the office ever since. The Dictators have been I. M. Linderman two terms and S. R. Patten. The Lodge now has nineteen members. Meetings are held on the first and third Fridays of each month, in the Sons of Herman Hall, over Graf & Jussen's store.

Living Water Lodge, No. 328, I. O. G. T.—This Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars was instituted by Rev. James Lavelle, November 5, 1866, with the following charter members: Fred S. Veeder, Will F. Bundy, Geo. C. Duffie, J. C. Oaks, C. F. Hammond, O. Vanorman, H. L. Strong, T. P. Smith, George W. Peck, N. S. Bristol, Clarence Skinner, L. M. Allen, Z. A. Pedrick, C. V. N. Brundige, Mrs. C. F. Hammond, Hattie Hammond, Mrs. H. L. Strong, Mrs. O. Vanorman, Mrs. E. N. Harris, Mrs. C. Allen, Mrs. J. C. Oaks, Miss C. M. Oaks, Miss Minnie Cook, Miss M. Anness.

The first officers were as follows: W. C. T., Fred S. Veeder; W. V. T., Mrs. E. N. Harris; W. R. S., Z. A. Pedrick; W. F. S., J. C. Oaks; W. Treasurer, Hattie Hammond; W. M., George C. Duffie; W. I. G., Mrs. C. M. Oaks; W. O. G., N. S. Bristol. George Washington Peck, now proprietor of Peck's Sun newspaper, at Milwaukee, was chosen Lodge Deputy. The Trustees were Z. A. Pedrick, J. C. Oaks and H. L. Strong.

Living Water Lodge has continued to meet regularly every week since its first organization, and has initiated 1,000 members. The highest number of members in good standing at one time was 150. The present active membership is 50. The lodge-room in old Masonic Block, on the west side of Public Square, was nicely furnished at a cost of $300. Of the original charter members only one remains, L. M. Allen, who is hardly ever absent from the regular meetings.

Ripon Grange, No. 57.—Ripon Grange, No. 57, was organized February 4, 1873, by C. W. Foster, Local Deputy of National Grange. The charter members were Jabin Lawson, Mrs. Jabin Lawson, L. K. Hyde, A. Chisholm, Miss Lizzie Chisholm, Robert Kuderling, Mrs. Robert Kuderling, A. G. Kellogg, Mrs. A. G. Kellogg, W. O. Hargrave, H. W. Kellogg, H. S. Hunt, Fred Nohl, Jr., Fred Nohl, Sr., L. Nohl, James Henderson, Sr., Miss Aggie Henderson, E. C. Stewart, Mrs. E. C. Stewart, C. W. Kurz, M. W. Meyer, A. W. Sage, Mrs. A. W. Sage, F. Everez, E. Babcock, A. R. Hargrave, Mrs. A. R. Hargrave and R. Sheldon.

The first officers were: W. M., E. Babcock; W. O., Robert Sheldon; W. L., E. C. Stewart; W. S., James Henderson, Sr.; W. A. S., H. S. Hunt; W. C., F. Nohl; W. Treas., A. R. Hargrave; W. Secy., W. O. Hargrave; W. G. K., Jabin Lawson; Ceres, Miss Lizzie Chisholm; Flora, Mrs. A. R. Hargrave; Pomona, Mrs. R. Kuderling; L. A. S., Mrs. J. B. Ager.

The organization was effected, and, for some time thereafter, meetings were held in the hall over O. J. Clark & Co.'s hardware store. Subsequently the lodge moved into Good Templars' Hall, and finally into the Grange Hall in Salisbury Block, which they now occupy. Business meetings are held in the afternoon of the first Saturday in each month. Special meetings were held weekly for two years after its organization. The Grange has always had a large membership of enterprising and intelligent farmers. It has lost some members by withdrawal demits and suspension, but the loss has been well made up by the addition of new members. E. Babcock, J. B. Ager, O. H. Chamberlain, J. M. Little, Henry Willard and A. R. Hargrave, the present Master, have held the office of Master in succession. W. O. Hargrave, J. M. Bonnell, Mrs. H. E. Chamberlain, J. B. Ager and J. M. Bonnell have been the Secretaries. It is now in good working condition, out of debt, and looks forward to a long time of usefulness and prosperity. Its membership is made up of successful farmers, representing a large portion of the wealth of the farming community in the vicinity of the city. The annual meeting is held on the first Saturday in December of every year.

Ripon Temple of Honor and Temperance, No. 13.—This lodge, which is a secret fraternal as well as temperance organization, was instituted March 19, 1875, by Jerome A. Watrous, with forty-five charter members and the following officers: W. C. T., H. L. Barnes; W. V. T., J. D. Owen; W. R., W. R. Lyle; W. F. R., Robert Stuart; W. T., N. H. Wyckoff; W. W., P. Hales; P. W. C. T., Byron Kingsbury; Chaplain, J. M. Craig. The Temple increased rapidly in numbers until it contained 250 members, and then decreased no less rapidly, until only enough members in good standing were left to hold the charter and keep up the form of organization. The lodge is financially prosperous, owning its furniture and paraphernalia, and having a sum of money out at interest.

Ripon Lodge, No. 37, Sons of Herman.—The formation of this Lodge was secured by Hyp. Dauben, May 18, 1878, with the following charter members: Hyp. Dauben, Gust. Muller, George H. Jussen, J. J. Luck, Hugo Shultz, Emil Schaff, A. Singer, F. W. Butzke, John Haas, Frank Jupp, August Zinth, William Quast, F. Schoeffler, S. Schmudlach and H. Mathwig. The first officers were: President, Hyp. Dauben; Vice President, J. J. Luck; Reporter, Wm. Butzke; Financial Reporter, Robert Giese; Treasurer, Hugo Schultz; Guide, G. Muller; Inside Guard, George H. Jussen; Outside Guard, S. Schmudlach. This Lodge now has twenty members and a surplus capital of over $400. The Order is one for purely benevolent purposes. It has forty lodges in the State, and a membership of 2,319. During the last year, it has paid out in benefits to sick brothers, $5,262.72, and to the families of nineteen brothers who died, $19,000. Its real estate was valued, January 1, 1880, at $56,178.98. Ripon Lodge holds its meetings regularly in Sons of Herman Hall, over Graf & Jussen's store on Main street.

BENEVOLENT, LITERARY AND OTHER ASSOCIATIONS.

Young Ladies' Guild.—The first meeting to organize this benevolent society was held at the house of W. L. Gillett, in the fall of 1876. This portion of the constitution adopted at that time, shows the objects of the society:

“We, the undersigned, do hereby organize ourselves into a society, to be called the Young Ladies' Guild. Our object—to visit and sew for the poor, and give them such other assistance as we may see fit. We agree to meet weekly; to pay an initiation fee of 25 cents, and a fine of 5 cents for absence from any meeting.”

The first officers were: President, Miss Nellie Skeels; Vice President, Miss Alice Taggart; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Carrie Wolcott; Directors, Misses Anna Gillett and Lizzie McCracken. The first funds were $30, as the proceeds of selling the furniture of the old “Library Association,” and $10 donated by the members of the society. The “Guild” has done much to relieve the sufferings of the poor, giving entertainments and resorting to various commendable means to secure funds to make their labors more comprehensive. It started out with a membership of forty, which has increased since the date of organization.

American Red Ribbon Club.—In the spring of 1879, W. L. McCollister began a series of revivals in Ripon, which resulted in securing the signatures of several hundred persons to a pledge of total abstinence, among them many of the prominent citizens of the city. Having secured the names of 1,400 persons, a permanent organization of the signers was effected the 1st of May, by electing Hiram S. Town, President; A. L. Dobbs, Recording Secretary; Edwin Wilson, Financial Secretary; C. F. Wheeler, Treasurer. At the annual election of officers, in January, 1880, C. H. Upham was chosen President; Mrs. S. F. Crosby, Recording Secretary; Edwin Wilson, Treasurer; G. R. Shaw and O. J. Wolcott, Managers. The Club supports a reading-room opposite Opera Hall, at which papers and periodicals are free, and where members congregate to indulge in social games and amusements. The Club has 200 active members.

St. Patrick's Total Abstinence Society.—A total abstinence society was organized in St. Patrick's Church, of Ripon, October 17, 1875. A constitution and by-laws were adopted, and the work of securing converts at once begun. The Society has been very successful, constantly increasing its numbers and influence. It now consists of 250 members, including women and children. Its meetings are held regularly on the fourth Sunday of every month, in the basement of St. Patrick's Church. The officers of the Society are as follows: President, Rev. E. A. Graves; Vice President, E. Raymond; Secretary, B. F. Keenan; Treasurer, William Brennan; Marshal, James Brennan.

Ripon Improvement Association.—The idea of forming an association of this kind originated through an article in the August number of Scribner's Monthly for 1878, written by Dr. B. W. Dwight, of Clinton, N. Y. George L. Field, of the First National Bank, wrote to Dr. Dwight in relation to the article, who sent the constitution of the “Rural Art Association,” of Clinton, which had been in existence many years. With this information for a foundation, Mr. Field began the labor of forming a similar association in Ripon. An informal meeting of invited persons was held January 26, 1880, at the residence of J. Bowen, but no organization was perfected, though George L. Field, Prof. C. A. Kenaston, E. L. Runals, A. Everhard and J. Bowen were appointed to draft a constitution. They reported at the residence of A. Everhard, February 2, 1880, at which meeting the constitution was adopted. Article II gives the objects as follows: “The objects of this Association shall be in general the improvement and advancement of public and private grounds, the cultivation of rural art and taste among its members, and the development of such enterprises as may furnish a field for co-operation in rendering the place more desirable as a place of residence.”

At a meeting held at the residence of George L. Field February 16, 1880, the following officers were chosen for one year: President, J. Bowen; Vice President, A. Everhard; Secretary, O. U. Akin; Treasurer, L. E. Nohl; Executive Committee, C. A. Kenaston, C. B. Seward and G. L. Field. In no city has an association of this kind a more promising field for its labors. The natural beauties of Ripon are acknowledged; its inhabitants are wealthy, and for the most part cultured, and the soil is rich, deep and productive. One of the objects of this Association is to lay out a fine drive-way to Green Lake from Ripon.

Ripon Educational Club.—The idea of forming a club of this sort was brought to Ripon by Mrs. S. F. Crosby, from Lansing, Mich., and took material shape in 1878, with the following charter members: Mrs. S. F. Crosby, Mrs. A. M. Cowan, Mrs. L. F. Chamberlain, Mrs. M. F. Hanchett, Mrs. A. V. Everhard, Mrs. P. Thompson, Mrs. J. M. De Frees, Mrs. W. B. Kingsbury, Mrs. J. Grant, Mrs. H. H. Mead and Miss Lizzie Clark. The first officers were as follows: President, Mrs. S. F. Crosby; Vice President, Mrs. C. T. Tracy; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. P. Thompson; Recording Secretary, Mrs. A. M. Cowan; Assistant Secretary, Miss Lizzie Clark; Treasurer, Mrs. A. V. Everhard; Membership Committee, Mrs. W. W. Robinson. The object of the club is mutual mental improvement only, and it has been an unexpected success. It is on a firm foundation, and considered an established feature of Ripon.

Ripon Rifles.—This is a military company organized, drilled and equipped under the Wisconsin militia law. It was organized March 28, 1877, with Hugo Schultz, Captain; Ferdinand Thiel, First Lieutenant; Ed Kaath, Second Lieutenant, and the following privates: F. Steinbring, William Mathwig, A. Steinbring, F. Degner, M. Kruger, H. Willwock, S. Schmudlach, F. Dannalls, John Mathefes, Charles Giese, William Kohl, William Reck, Martin Wizard, George Bishholz, G. Derizen, William Dregor, F. Butzin, William Drews, C. Eggart, M. Gartzke, G. Gehlhaar, H. Grutzmacher, F. Grutzmacher, John Haas, G. Hildebrandt, A. Hildebrandt, John Hasse, O. Johnson, William Kaath, G. Kohl, G. Litz, R. Lubitz, Tom Lambert, John Milahn, H. Martwig, F. Manthei, H. Martin, Fred Milke, G. Otto, J. Pischke, L. Prutz, John Prill, W. Rapp, Ed Steinbring, T. Steinbring, M. Streich, F. Schrandt, H. Schrader, A. Sauger, E. Tobolt, F. Tumm, Charles Timm, C. Tobolt, G. Teske, William Wegner, A. Weishaar, John Weinke, M. Wizinske, William Zimmerman, C. Zimmerman, F. Zweiger, William Zweiger, Aug. Zick, F. Ziebart, William Quast, Henry Kohl. Meetings are held in Grange Hall, but the company has an armory in Kleifoth's block. It has a good martial band. The state donates $300 annually.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

Wisconsin Phalanx Mills.—The first mill in Ripon, or Ceresco, was the saw-mill built by the Phalanx or Fourierites in 1844, and run by a "flutter-wheel." The first grist-mill was also built by them a little more than two years later on the site of the Ceresco Mills. It had but one stone, with a capacity of about three bushels per hour. But this was ample for the time. Mr. Dellinger, who took charge in 1848, was the first practical miller, and he made some improvements in the wheel, which increased the capacity of the mill to six bushels per hour. The water-wheel for driving the flouring-mill consisted of a hollow wooden "log," attached in the center to the shaft, from which the machinery received its motion. Both ends of this "log" were closed and a large hole cut in opposite sides of it near each end. The water being let into this "log" from below rushed out at these holes, and the re-action gave motion to the "log," or wheel. This quaint little mill was rebuilt by Brockway & Dellinger in 1851, who had purchased it from the Phalanx the year before. It is still standing across the street from the Ceresco Mills.

Stephen Bates was the first man to do grinding in the Phalanx Mill. In 1845, buhrs for grinding coarse flour were fixed in the saw-mill and served the purpose of something better until the grist-mill was completed.

Gothic Mill.—The "old stone mill," as it is now called, was erected on Silver Creek, where that stream crosses Scott street, in 1853, and was opened for business in December of that year. It was a stone building, three stories high, and run by water. D. P. Mapes, the proprietor, was its builder. It was in use about twenty years, coming into the hands of G. W. Dellinger in 1862, who is the present owner of the building and the water-power. The Gothic was always a custom mill.

W. Stan
(DECEASED)
RIPON

Treanore & Blodgett's Wagon Factory.—In 1853, Harvey Dodge & Son erected a two-story shop on the corner of Jackson and Blackburn streets and began the manufacture of wagons, carriages and sleighs. In 1860, the firm became Dodge & Manville, consisting of C. F. Dodge and E. Manville. They erected, as their rapidly increasing business demanded, four additional shops, three of brick and stone and one of wood. They gave employment, finally, to forty men, and turned out a large amount of work, making lumber-sleighs in lots of 100 during several years. In 1874, the firm became Dodge & Mitchell; in 1877, C. F. Dodge, and, in February, 1878, Treanore & Blodgett, the present proprietors. This firm carries on the most extensive business in the manufacture of wagons, carriages, cutters, phaetons and sleighs of any in the western portion of Fond du Lac County. This firm owns the business, but not the buildings.

Ripon Mills.—The milling operations of G. W. Dellinger, owner of Ripon Mills, extend far beyond his present mill property. He at one time owned the entire water-power of Ripon, extending from Scott street one mile west to Ceresco, and owned and had in operation at once the three flouring-mills then within its limits, giving personal attention to all of them. He erected into their present shape the Ceresco and Ripon Mills, and the water-power which now drives them. In 1862, Mr. Dellinger bought the Gothic Mill and water-power of H. T. Henton, and also three-eighths of the old Ripon Mills, built in 1850 by D. P. Mapes, at the foot of Mill street. He at the same time owned and run the Ceresco Mills. In 1864, he purchased of J. B. Maxfield the balance of the Ripon Mills. In 1865, he sold half of the Ceresco Mills and purchased the woolen-mill water-power of Dodge & Manville for $1,600. In 1866 and 1867, Mr. Dellinger converted the Gothic, Ripon and woolen mills water-powers into one power, with a head of fifty feet, which is greater than that of any similar one in the State. During these two years, he also erected the present Ripon Mills at the foot of Mill street. This building is five stories high, has six run of stones and a capacity of 1,100 barrels of flour per week. The usual product, when all the stones are running, is 1,000 barrels per week. The total cost of the mill and water-power was $36,500. The mill is one of the best in the Northwest, every stick of timber being dressed and of the best quality. The "trunk" which carries the water from the Scott street dam to the mill is ninety-four rods long and cost $3,600. It contains 40,000 feet of lumber and 19,000 pounds of iron. In 1869, Mr. Dellinger sold the Ripon Mills to A. K. Shepard, of Albany, N. Y., but was compelled to take the property back in 1879. Immediately upon coming into possession of them again, Mr. Dellinger rebuilt the Scott street dam, putting in a fine stone structure, laid in cement, at a cost of $1,000. The mills now have water enough, except during a short period in the summer, but are supplied with ample steam-power for such occasions. The products of Mr. Dellinger's mills are not sold in this country alone, large orders being shipped direct to England and Scotland.

Ceresco Mills.—In 1860, G. W. Dellinger moved across the street the old Phalanx Mill and erected on its site a four and one-half story mill, with an overshot water-wheel, twenty-five and a half feet in diameter, for power. The water was carried under the street in a trunk to the wheel-house, where an elbow raised it to the top of the wheel, which was one of great power. In 1865, H. B. Bateman purchased a one-half interest in the property and immediately added another stone and purifiers. In 1870, the overshot water-wheel was taken out and four turbine wheels put in its place, which were made by W. H. Elmer, of Berlin. One is a ten-inch and three are thirteen-inch wheels. In 1875, Mr. Bateman became sole proprietor. Since he entered the mill, an addition 40x44 feet has been added, and a large steam engine and boilers for use during low water. The water-power has a head of twenty-eight feet, which affords a strong moving force. In 1879, machinery for producing "patent flour" was put in by Mr. Bateman. The capacity of this mill is 100 barrels of flour per day.

Ripon Packing Company.—The Ripon Packing Company was organized and incorporated in 1873, with a capital of $8,000. The stockholders were J. J. Smith, C. F. Hammond, B. W. Smith and W. A. Corner, of whom J. J. Smith was President, and C. F. Hammond was Secretary and Treasurer. The buildings, located at the intersection of Scott street and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, were erected in 1873-74, and are 100x160 feet on the ground. They are equipped with all the appliances for canning cucumbers, tomatoes, horse-radish, making catsup, chow-chow, and putting up mixed pickles and sauces. The Company contracts with the farmers for any desired number of acres of cucumbers, or other stock, at a certain price per bushel or hundred weight, the cucumbers to be from two to three and a half inches in length and all delivered at the factory. The Company is prosperous, transacting a little less than $20,000 worth of business per season. The present stockholders are C. F. Hammond, W. J. Corner, A. P. Harwood and D. V. N. Harwood, of whom C. F. Hammond is President, and D. V. N. Harwood, Secretary and Treasurer.

Laning & Son's Planing-Mill.—This building was erected in 1874 by A. Laning, on the site of a burned structure used for a similar purpose, on Fond du Lac street. In 1879, A. Laning, Jr., became a partner in the business, under the firm name of Laning & Son. The machinery, which is for dressing, matching, sawing and ornamenting lumber, is driven by steam, and is of the most modern patterns. The mill has a good patronage, as there is no other similar institution in the vicinity.

Ziuth's Foundry.—In 1859, Lucius Thatcher erected a two-story wooden building on Jackson street, at the crossing of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railroad, for a foundry and machine-shop. Afterward, D. W. Furniss became a partner in the business with August Ziuth, the present proprietor. In addition to custom founding and repairing, the "Prairie City Seeder" and horse-power threshing machines were manufactured during several years at this shop. Harrows, plows and smaller agricultural implements are now manufactured. In 1872, Mr. Ziuth became sole proprietor. All Mr. Thatcher had to begin business with was one pair of oxen. He got trusted for most of the building and the steam machinery, but, being an excellent mechanic, he soon built up a large business.

Goodall's Carriage Factory.—In 1874, H. J. Goodall erected, on Jackson street, a brick and stone carriage factory, sixty-six front and two stories high, and began the manufacture of "light work," or carriages, cutters, phaetons and buggies. In 1875, W. T. Runals purchased an interest in the business, and the firm was Goodall & Runals until 1878, when the proprietary interest returned to H. J. Goodall, in whom it still remains. Fine work is a specialty, Mr. Goodall having been granted the first premium on carriages and phaetons at every competitive exhibition where his work has been entered. When running at full capacity, the factory has employed twenty men.

Hazen & Son's Windmill Factory.—In 1871, L. Hazen invented and had patented a wind-mill, the manufacture of which was immediately entered upon by Hazen Brothers, on Fond du Lac street. In 1878, S. Hazen secured a patent for a geared and pumping mill, which is wholly unlike any other ever put upon the market. The patent was upon a rotary vane, hinge and shifting works. In 1880, S. Hazen made a further improvement in the mill, which consists in a stationary vane, a hollow iron standard, and an eccentric wheel for changing the rotary to horizontal motion, which is a great saving in power and friction. These mills, together with a patent harrow, are now made by S. Hazen & Son, at their factory on Scott street, at the crossing of Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway, who maintain agencies in nearly all parts of the United States and Canada, patents having been secured in both countries.

Haas' Brewery.—The only Brewery in Ripon belongs to John Haas. The building was formerly the old "woolen-mill," built in 1850, just below the Ripon Mills, by S. Ford, and run later by S. R. Patton, now of Oshkosh. It is well calculated for the brewing business. In addition to his local trade, Mr. Haas has large orders from the surrounding cities, to supply which he erected a substantial stone bottling-house near his brewery. Bottling and shipping beer is now one of the prominent features of his business.

Powers' Cooper-Shop.—J. J. Powers carries on a large business. His first factory or shop was in a portion of the old Ripon Mills building, which was burned in 1879. He erected a new shop on the old site immediately after the fire, three stories high. It is conveniently located, being connected with Ripon Mills, for which Mr. Powers does a large amount of work, by an apparatus for sending barrels from one building to the other. Mr. Powers now employs six men.

RIPON CEMETERIES.

Ceresco Cemetery Association.—The first cemetery in what is now Ripon was laid out by the Wisconsin Phalanx in 1845, in the northwest corner of the village of Ceresco. The lot was deeded from the Phalanx to the Association by R. D. Mason, Jacob Beckwith, Jacob Woodruff, Carlton Lane, John Irving and Russell Smith, and contained five acres and twenty-six rods. Warren Chase, now a newspaper publisher at Santa Barbara, Cal., laid out the grounds—made a plat of them—by a rude pocket compass. The first burial in this cemetery was that of Caroline Danks, one of the Fourierites, and the next was that of Uriel Farmin, a child. The cemetery has been little used for many years. At the first death and burial, the Phalanx people marked the sad event by appropriate demonstrations of sorrow.

Ripon Cemetery Association.—The first burial in Ripon was that of Timothy J. Mapes' wife on College Hill. The next was that of Samuel Pedrick, who died in September, 1850. A few others were buried on College Hill before a cemetery was set apart. These, or the most of them, were removed to the present cemetery a few years later. The original deed, which transfers from J. Bowen to D. Sabin, D. P. Mapes, E. L. Northrup, Dana F. Shepard and E. P. West, two acres and four rods of land in the northwest quarter of Section 21, is dated March 8, 1853. Although there are no records, it appears a cemetery association had been formed before this, in 1852, as J. Bowen, Avery Brown, T. J. Mapes, D. F. Shepard, J. Wilbur, S. G. West, E. P. West, A. P. Mapes, G. F. Lynch, A. B. Beardsley, M. King, J. McConnell, H. S. Eggleston, A. McStevens, William Light and A. G. Kellogg, subscribed $100 to "save the deed" of Ripon Cemetery in February, 1853. In the course of a few years, officers were chosen who kept no record of the affairs of the Cemetery Association, which soon fell into a deplorable condition. From the latter part of 1859 to 1863, no officers were chosen at all on this account, and lots were occupied without approved record or title.

After various troubles, the remaining members of the old Cemetery Association met, March 17, 1863, to re-organize under the State laws. They therefore elected Dana F. Shepard Trustee for one year; George N. Lyman and A. M. Skeels, for two years, and B. G. Webster and Solon G. Dodge, for three years. Ripon Cemetery, located just west of the college campus on the southwest quarter of Section 21, which had been used up to this time, without its affairs being properly attended to, was found to be in a mixed-up and unsatisfactory condition, and many conflicting claims were alive. In 1863, after these matters were adjusted as well as possible, four acres additional were purchased of J. Bowen for $500. In 1866, a lot was purchased of Mrs. Mayo for $100, and in 1869, still another of M. Lehan. Now, although the lots are mostly taken and the cemetery limits begin to show signs of being too small for a city the size of Ripon, there can be no enlargement of the grounds, on account of a statute which forbids the erection of new or the enlargement of old cemeteries within the limits of cities.

The Presidents of Ripon Cemetery Association have been Dana F. Shepard, who served six years; E. Manville, H. T. Henton, and W. W. Robinson, the present officer, who has had the office since 1871. The Secretaries have been S. G. Dodge, M. W. Seeley, B. G. Webster, Byron Kingsbury, and George L. Field, the present official, who was chosen in 1878. Samuel Sumner has been Treasurer since the beginning of 1865.

The cemetery now contains 633 lots, nearly every one of which has been disposed of. A movement to secure another cemetery lot, outside of the city, is now in contemplation.

CONFLAGRATIONS.

The fire that destroyed the greatest amount of property in Ripon was in April, 1869, when all the offices and stores were burned from Zobel Bros.' present building, on the east side of Public Square to Jackson street, and then east on that street to Dodge & Manville's shop. The loss in dollars was not great compared with the number of buildings burned, as they were old wooden rookeries which were immediately replaced by substantial ones of brick and stone, thus beautifying the city. One of them, however, was of stone, and a fine structure, which Mr. Bowen, to whom it belonged, built for the post office. There were nine blocks destroyed on Public Square, entailing a loss of $45,000.

The greatest number of buildings were burned September, 1868, when all those on the east side of Broadway, or Main street, were burned from the corner of Public Square through to Blossom street. These were also wooden buildings, and worth but little, the conflagration, therefore, resulting in beautifying the city. The loss was about $20,000.

In the winter of 1876, Samuel Sumner's large stone and brick block on the corner of Scott street and Public Square was burned, together with S. Salisbury's grocery store next to it. The upper floor of Sumner's block was occupied by W. M. Lockwood's large photograph gallery. The loss was about $10,000.

On the 10th of January, 1877, the Centennial Block, corner of Public Square and Main street, burned from a cause generally unknown. The block was a very large one, fronting on Main street and Public Square, of brick, and two stories high. It was built in 1876 by E. C. Kellogg. The loss was $34,625, and the insurance about $20,000.

A very disastrous fire, in some respects, occurred February 6, 1879, when the post office on West Fond du Lac street, near the Unitarian Church, was burned. The entire edition of the Ripon Free Press, unnumbered letters and papers and all the stamps, money and paraphernalia of the post office were destroyed. Two brick and stone blocks, one belonging to E. L. Runals, and the other to Rev. J. Allen, were burned. The Postmaster, H. S. Town, received an appropriation from the Government in 1880, to re-imburse him for the loss of money and stamps, for which he was personally liable. At this fire the total loss was about $12,000.

RIPON'S FIGHTING CAREER.

The position of Ripon from the first, as regards county-seat facilities, was of a desperate character. Nor did the completion of a railroad to the city relieve her in that respect, coming as it did from Waupun. It so happened that the seat of justice of Green Lake County was on wheels, moving from Marquette to Berlin, and to Princeton, and to Dartford, all of which was an aggravation to Ripon, because she felt certain that if the city were within the limits of Green Lake County, she could capture and hold the prize with but half an effort. But Ripon was in Fond du Lac County, where she could no more get the county seat than she could get the State Capital. Then Ripon would bend her energies to getting out of Fond du Lac County. But there, again, the State Constitution lay like a rampant lion right across her path.

An act of the Legislature could not set her out of Fond du Lac County; it must be supplemented by a vote of the people of the county. The case looked desperate, but Ripon was bound to try. She sent a trusted friend to the Assembly, in the full belief that he could obtain the necessary legislation, and he did. At that time Fond du Lac County had one Senator and five members of the Assembly, and the whole six—except the member from the west district—were opposed even to submitting the act to the people. They fought it in every way and shape; in the two Houses, in the newspapers, in the streets and in the saloons. The odds were fearful—five against one, but the one carried it by a vote of sixty-eight to eighteen in the Assembly, which was so large a majority that the Senator took counsel of his prudence and did not undertake to defeat it in the Senate. It went through, so the people were to vote on the question of "detaching Ripon" at the next general election. And now commenced an agitation, the like of which probably no other county in the State ever saw. It was, in fact, Ripon against the rest of the county of Fond du Lac, for it was soon very plainly seen that there was no—outside of the city and town of Ripon—one single person that was willing to let Ripon go. The county held on to Ripon with a more desperate grip than the Egyptians did on to the Israelites, and in the end the county was more successful than the Egyptians. Ripon selected fifteen workers, making them a campaign committee with powers to do anything, undertake anything, or promise anything in the name of the community. Following are the names of this committee: George N.

Lyman, George W. Mitchell, William M. Taggart, E. L. Northrup, H. H. Mead, J. Bowen, William Starr, B. B. Spalding, A. E. Bovay, D. P. Mapes, A. M. Skeels, George W. Parker, T. B. Robins, J. Dobbs, H. S. Eggleston. These men raked the county over from end to end and from side to side, the whole summer through, appealing to individual voters by every consideration that could be thought of, to let Ripon go. Never was a community roused to such a degree of unanimity before. Every man made it his own individual fight, and thus the struggle went on from the day the bill was passed until the votes were counted. It was the plan of the committee to post two men at each and every polling-place throughout the county—outside of Ripon—on election day, and for this purpose assignments were made long beforehand, that the men might get in their work and become acquainted with their precincts during the summer. The result was that Ripon was finally defeated by an adverse decision of the Supreme Court; not on the constitutionality of the act—for that was affirmed—but on the counting of certain crooked votes which turned the scale. It was a fierce struggle and a bitter defeat; and no man who was in it has the least desire to go through any such fight again. In fact, this campaign may be said to have ended Ripon's fighting career. Since that time, she has been gradually losing her belligerent material and settling down into the quiet ways of peace. The men who were in that struggle have gone this way and that; some to the other world, some to the cities and some to the farther West, leaving Ripon to the possession of the shades of Aeademus, a quiet old age and the repose of a peaceful conscience.

“THE BOOTH WAR.”

Ripon was never so thoroughly and intensely excited as when Sherman M. Booth sojourned within her limits. Booth, as elsewhere related in this work, had personally aided an alleged escaped slave, named Joshua Glover, to deliver himself from prison, into which he had been thrown under the fugitive slave act. For this he was imprisoned in Milwaukee. After remaining in prison about a year, through the aid of friends he escaped and came to Ripon, where he arrived Saturday, August 4, 1860, under an armed escort from Waupun. Notice that he would speak at the City Hall in the evening was sent out, and, at the appointed time, a large audience filled the hall to its utmost capacity, while some hundreds in the streets were unable to gain admittance.

The meeting was called to order by C. J. Allen, when William Starr was chosen Chairman, and Mr. Allen Secretary. Booth was introduced to the audience, and was greeted with hearty applause, and bouquets were thrown on the platform by several ladies.

Booth had proceeded for some time with his speech, when Deputy Marshal F. D. McCarty, of Fond du Lac, suddenly came on the platform and said, “I have a warrant to arrest you, Mr. Booth.” He barely succeeded in putting one hand on Booth, when he was instantly pulled away by the bystanders. A scene of intense excitement and indescribable confusion followed. “Kill him!” “Shoot him!” “Hang him!” went up in shouts from all parts of the hall. McCarty was thrust out of the hall by the enraged people, being kicked and beaten by his pursuers, and was thrown down the lower flight of stairs, falling upon his face. Instantly regaining his feet, he fled to the Mapes House, followed by the crowd in pursuit. The Mapes House was the headquarters of the Marshal and his friends, and they appeared at the door armed, and forbade entrance to the pursuers.

At the hall, as soon as order could be restored, a resolution was offered by A. E. Bovay: “Resolved, That Mr. Booth shall not be re-arrested in Ripon,” which was adopted amid deafening shouts and hurrahs. Edward Daniels took the stand and made an impassioned speech for a few minutes, and moved that a League of Freedom be organized, the members of which should be pledged to resist any attempt to execute the fugitive slave act. One hundred and twenty persons were enrolled as fast as the names could be written. A. E. Bovay was elected President, and C. J. Allen Secretary. A vigilance committee of twelve members was appointed, consisting of Edward Daniels, O. H. La Grange, A. B. Pratt, Dana Lamb, A. E. Bovay, C. D. Loper, J. S. Landon, F. R. Stewart, I. A. Norton, F. W. Cooke, Lucius Thatcher, A. M. May, Benjamin Pratt, L. P. Rivenburgh. The mass of the people then formed a procession, preceded by the Ripon Wide Awakes, and escorted Booth to the residence of Prof. Daniels. Some twelve or fifteen persons were put on duty as a volunteer guard to defend the residence of Prof. Daniels, and the remainder dispersed.

The vigilance committee held a meeting in the morning, and took measures to effect a military organization, to subserve the purposes of the League.

The next day, the people came pouring in from the country, and at 3 o'clock a mass meeting was held in a grove. Asa Kinney was called to the chair, and C. J. Allen appointed Secretary. A committee, consisting of Edward Daniels, A. Pickett, C. J. Allen, J. W. Sanders, I. A. Norton, P. F. Drury and J. A. Burt, was appointed to prepare resolutions. Booth then addressed the meeting, after which Mr. La Grange was called out and spoke for a short time.

Mr. Daniels reported from the committee a series of resolutions, which were adopted unanimously. A procession then formed and marched to the City Hall—Booth going to the hall, as he had gone to the grove, escorted by a body of armed men. The hall was taken possession of, and guards stationed for its defense.

At the hall, a committee of ten was appointed to wait upon the Deputy Marshals and request them to leave town. Messrs. William Starr, A. E. Bovay, E. Reynolds, C. J. Allen, I. A. Norton, F. A. Strong, F. R. Stewart, L. P. Rivenburgh, A. B. Pratt and A. Leonard were appointed such committee, who repaired to the Mapes House and had an interview with Deputy Marshals McCarty, Henry, Stryker and Garlick. Mr. Starr conveyed to them the request of the meeting, and received from them an answer that they were United States officers, that they had in their possession a warrant for the arrest of S. M. Booth, and they should depart quietly when such departure was consistent with the performance of their duties.

While the committee and Marshals were in conference, Rev. Hiram McKee addressed a large concourse of people in the streets, which were crowded with excited people, while Booth was strongly guarded at the hall, to which only known friends were admitted.

When the crowd re-assembled Monday morning, they found the hall vacant. Booth had escaped during the night, as it had been announced that a regiment of soldiers (militia) from Milwaukee was on the way to Ripon to arrest him and all engaged in preventing his capture by the Deputy Marshals. He left to avoid this anticipated addition of strength, which, however, did not appear. He went to the residence of a friend, in the edge of Green Lake County, where he remained a few days. Thence he secretly fled to the town of Rosendale, and thence to Utica, Winnebago County. Here he was discovered by agents of the Marshals, who undertook his arrest, but were unsuccessful. Booth fled to Berlin, in Green Lake County. In these escapes, he had been powerfully aided by Prof. Daniels, who was soon after arrested and taken before Judge Miller, of Milwaukee, who asked him to plead. Prof. Daniels declared he committed the alleged crime for which he had been deprived of his liberty, and did it understandingly, after mature deliberation. He then proceeded to justify the act, making an eloquent but scathing speech, attacking Judge Miller and all who in any way upheld or sympathized with the "infamous fugitive slave act." The prisoner was fined $25, which was cheerfully paid. This ended, so far as Ripon was particularly concerned, "the Booth war."

The idea of rescuing Booth originated with Edward Daniels, now a resident of Washington. Before going on with the work, however, he conferred with Charles Sumner, who gave unexpected encouragement. He then told his plans to O. H. La Grange, afterward Superintendent of the United States Mint at San Francisco, and these two Ripon men rescued Sherman M. Booth from the jail at Milwaukee in broad daylight.

FIRST THINGS.

The first birth was that of Charles Fourier Seaman, at Ceresco, in June, 1845.

The first death was that of Caroliue Danks.

The first school was kept by Lester Rounds, in 1844, in the Phalanx House, at Ceresco.

The first schoolhouse was erected in 1845, in Lot 1, Block 5, Ceresco, at the corner of Church and Liberty streets. It was of stone, but has not occupied the original site for some years. Mr. Rounds was the first teacher.

The first election was at the house of Lester Rounds, about the 1st of April, 1845.

The first building erected in Ripon was a small shanty by the Pedricks, April 9, 1849.

The first hotel in Ripon was the Ripon House, built by D. P. Mapes, in 1849.

The first Postmaster, was Lester Rounds, at Ceresco. The first one in Ripon was E. L. Northrup.

The first newspaper was the Herald, begun by Mapes & Root, December 14, 1853.

Rev. G. H. Stebbins, a Baptist, preached the first sermon in May, 1844, at Ceresco.

The first flouring-mill was at Ceresco, in 1847. The first saw-mill was built by the Phalanx early in 1844.

The first bank was organized in 1856, called the Bank of Ripon, by H. H. Mead, E. P. Brockway, A. M. Skeels, B. B. Parsons, Richard Catlin, T. B. Robbins, George W. Mitchell and E. L. Northrup.

The first lawyer was Alvan E. Bovay, who came in 1850 to Ripon.

The Milwaukee & Horicon, now Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, first reached Ripon in November, 1857.

Ripon was connected by telegraph lines with Milwaukee in 1860. George England was active in securing the line by raising subscriptions, which were paid back in telegraphing after the line was in operation.

The first school on "the hill," in Ripon, before Ceresco and Ripon became one, was taught by Emily E. Turner, in a slab shanty, erected in April, 1849, by Samuel Pedrick, near the present site of the Sheboygan and Fond du Lac Railway depot, as soon as there was any organized school district.

The first marriage in Ripon (not Ceresco) was Jessie Campion's.

GROWTH OF THE CITY.

Ripon grew with astonishing rapidity during the first ten years of its existence—more than it has since. That is to say, the portion founded by D. P. Mapes grew in new business enterprises and population more from 1850 to 1860 than from 1860 to 1880. At the beginning of the rebellion, almost as much ground was covered by hotels, shops and stores, as in 1880. More men of property, education and business experience were drawn to Ripon than to almost any other place of equal size that could be mentioned. To these it owed its rapid but substantial growth, as much as to its rich prairies and beautiful location. Productive prairies could contribute a large but limited amount; a community of men with experience, unbounded energy and pretty liberal means, could contribute to an unlimited extent to the growth of a newborn city.

True, more money was expended in building after 1869 than for ten years before, but it was rebuilding. The two great fires were in 1868 and 1869, sweeping away almost one entire side of Main street and Public Square. The destroyed property was of wood, and too old and small to be of value. It was replaced with handsome and costly structures of stone and brick. In 1870, twenty business blocks were thus rebuilt in Ripon. This could not be chronicled as growth—enlargement; but it showed a wonderful ability and willingness to mend the broken city, and mend it well.

RIPON OF TO-DAY.

Ripon, containing at the census of 1875 a population of 3,501, has justly earned the reputation of being one of the most beautiful, wealthy and pleasantly situated cities in the Northwest. It is diversified by hill, valley and stream, and thickly shaded by choice trees of more than the usual variety and beauty. It is not, in any sense of the term, a manufacturing center, owing to the limited supply of water in Silver Creek, during more than half the year. It has, however, acquired an enviable reputation as being the center of a rich agricultural district, the seat of a prosperous college, and the nearest city to Green Lake, an already famous summer resort. Its inhabitants are largely composed of men retired from their various occupations, and the place has therefore a clean, quiet, comfortable air, quite in contrast with the usual hurry and bustle of Western cities. Ripon contains good limestone for building purposes, which lies well to the surface. The three college buildings, two churches and nearly half the business blocks are of Ripon limestone, though some of them are fronted with brick. In Ceresco is a deposit of good brick clay, from which the material for several large blocks has been secured. Fuel is reasonably cheap, large forests of oak, a few miles distant, furnishing the supply.

Ripon has convenient railway facilities. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway puts the city into communication with at least five States over its own lines, and persons desiring to do business in Milwaukee or Chicago, the Western centers, find the most desirable arrangements always in force. What is quite remarkable, every one of the surrounding cities and villages is directly connected by rail with Ripon; on the south and north by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and on the east and west by the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac. Since the latter road came into possession of the Chicago & North-Western Railway Company, Ripon wheat-shippers have occasionally enjoyed unparalleled transportation privileges. During several weeks in the fall of 1879, competition became so lively between the two roads that each carried wheat for nothing.

CHAPTER X.

CITY OF WAUPUN.

FIRST SETTLEMENT—MEANING OF THE WORD WAUPUN—FIRST EVENTS—GROWTH OF WAUPUN—VILLAGE AND CITY OFFICERS, 1857-1879—A REMINISCENCE—CHURCHES—WAUPUN A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO—SECRET SOCIETIES—WAUPUN PIONEERS—MANUFACTORIES—BANKS—OLD SETTLERS' CLUB—WAUPUN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION—WISCONSIN STATE PRISON—WAUPUN A DOZEN YEARS AGO—WAUPUN FIRE COMPANY, No. 1—DODGE COUNTY MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY—A CONTRAST—WAUPUN SCHOOLS—THE POST OFFICE—WAUPUN AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL ASSOCIATION—CEMETERIES—PUBLIC HALLS—HOTELS—FUN IN YE OLDEN TIME.

FIRST SETTLEMENT.

In the early fall of 1838, Seymour Wilcox, then engaged on the Government works near Green Bay, came to what is now the city of Waupun to locate land for a home. He did so at the suggestion of John Bannister, who had surveyed in the vicinity, and who described the Rock River Valley as the most beautiful and fertile he had ever seen. He determined to make himself a home where he afterward settled and resided, about twenty rods east of what is now Markle & Harris' flouring-mill, on Rock River. Therefore, in February, 1839, with John N. Ackerman, Hiram Walker (and another man who remained but a few days), he arrived at the spot previously visited, driving from Green Bay a yoke of oxen laden with a few boards and some provisions. Four burr-oaks were found, to which the boards were nailed for shelter. In this small shanty they lived, or stayed, until a log house was nearly finished, when Mr. Wilcox returned to Green Bay for his family. Ackerman and Walker finished the house, which was occupied by Mr. Wilcox and his family for the first time on the 20th of March, 1839. Ackerman and Walker were single men, and boarded with Mr. Wilcox, helping him to break land and raise a few oats, some corn and potatoes and a little "garden truck," but no wheat. Pork and flour came from Green Bay, and, occasionally, $20 was paid for a barrel of the latter, which was so hard and sour that it would stand alone after the hoops and staves had been removed.

From this time up to 1841, no other persons were added to the settlement. Living in that rude hut, the days came and went without registering any very strange event. They heard no startling news to disturb their serenity; no rise or fall of stocks broke in upon their equanimity; there was no crash in business, no downfall of dynasties, no new fashions to attract their attention. The gray of each morning was heralded by an old, pompous-looking rooster that had been imported, who blew his clarion trumpet at 4 in the morning, one blast following another with great rapidity. Around Mr. Wilcox's home were beautiful openings; beyond these were blooming prairies, extending he hardly knew where. These natural meadows were interlaced with silver rivulets that danced to their own music. Amid these openings—nature's mighty parks—roamed the noble deer; and over those prairies, which were like so many gorgeous pearls in richest settings, the soft wind played.

The first day of that pioneer family can well be pictured. It was in the season of the year when frosty nights were succeeded by sunny days; when the crows crept into the woods, as if they felt approaching May. The kittens ran round the cabin, and chased each other up the trees; and the dog wandered along the river-side, for reasons best known to himself. The woodpecker tapped his drowsy music on the decayed trunks; the turkey peered from behind the roots of the upturned trees, where she had been waiting so long to hail the blessed warmth, and inquired, "What business have you here?" The squirrel pushed his nose out of the door of his castle, and, after looking cautiously upon the intruders, threw his tail over his back, and, with an angry chirrup, trotted to the nearest stump; and then, as the sunbeams pierced through the tangled woods, the bluebird broke forth into a note of song, tuned the strings of her harp for the coming summer, and inquired when gentle May was coming, with her music and her flowers.

In after years, the daughters of Mr. Wilcox would tell how they learned to get breakfast and wash dishes; how, one night, they heard a wolf howl in the woods; and how a dirty old Indian poked his head in at the door, and asked for fire-water. They would tell how they used to thrust their little bare feet into the faces of the violets, with a dainty sauciness; how they went down to the river, of a morning, to wash, and arranged their locks with a wooden comb; how, when they milked the cows for the first time, the white current went fizz into their eyes, and shot over into a cluster of wild roses that were blushing at the performance.

There are threads of beauty that pervade every household, wherever it may be, and whatever may be its lot. There are always pleasant thoughts, kind words and happy remembrances flying to and fro. How must the hearts of this family have rejoiced when, as the long shadows of evening were stretching over the landscape, some traveler, in his Kentucky-jeans coat and stoga boots, alighted from his shaggy old horse, and asked entertainment for the night. They looked upon it as a sort of angel-visit; each one strived to outstrip others in acts of hospitality; and though they could not offer him the luxuries of life, he soon felt that he was welcome to anything they had. The old fireplace, if it was winter, was soon piled with logs up to the very throat, and shook its shadows around the room in defiance of the winds that roared without. If the traveler happened to have a paper a month old, their joy was at its height, and the younger members of the family ransacked its columns with the greatest delight.

This little band had, as it were, severed all connection between themselves and the past. True to their purpose, they went to work in their new home as if they were going to tear down the whole forest and pile it into boards. Amid wind and storm and suffering and privation, they helped to lay the foundation of Wisconsin's greatness. Morn's early dawn, and evening's gentle hush, bore witness to their industry; and the happiness now enjoyed by the citizens of the city of Waupun is, in a degree, the product of their labor. They were firm to their purpose as flints, and the sparks struck from them are transfigured into images of beauty and romance. Their memory will ever be necessary to the loveliness of the city.

The family of Mr. Wilcox was relieved from the monotony of such complete isolation, in 1841. In that year, the settlement received an accession in the persons of C. Carrington, Mr. Town and others, who heroically entered upon the hardships of a pioneer life, in a section of country where everything was new. But to work they went, girdling the trees, fencing the land, raising log houses, and making the old "openings" echo with the din of their industry. From morn till night, they toiled in their new homes, and sent the breaking-plow, drawn by yokes of sturdy oxen, through the native sod. Then came the green grass, the corn and the wheat, some bearing sixty-fold and some an hundred-fold. There were no arbitrary lines drawn amongst them; no memorable fictions in the way of their progress; society, habit and custom hung no dead-weight on their ambitious minds. It was thus the first settlement began, in what is now the city of Waupun.

MEANING OF THE WORD WAUPUN.

The Indian word Waupun (meaning "the early day," or, perhaps, strictly speaking, "the early light or dawn"), which was intended to have been given to the town organized in 1842, in the western portion of Fond du Lac County, was, upon its first use by the early settlers, written incorrectly; and its orthography was not fully settled until some years after, when "Waupun" came into general use. The town in Fond du Lac County being called "Waupun," the name was also given to the village, although the latter was located both in Fond du Lac and Dodge Counties; and, of course, when the place grew into a city, and was incorporated, it was still called "Waupun," which name has the merit, at least, of being unlike any other in the United States. Although the place was first called Madrid, after the native place of Seymour Wilcox, yet, when the commission of the first Postmaster arrived, it was found that the name had been changed to Waupun; this was done by James Duane Doty, who was then a delegate in Congress; so that to Doty belongs the honor of the name.

FIRST EVENTS.

The first store in Waupun was opened by Thomas C. Snow, in John N. Ackerman's house, in Upper Town, in 1845. He kept a limited stock of dry goods, groceries, crockery and a few medicines.

The first Postmaster was Seymour Wilcox, commissioned in the winter of 1840 and 1841. The first sermon was by Rev. S. Smith, a Methodist, who then lived at Calumet, in the little schoolhouse erected near where the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway crosses Main street, in 1844. He had presided at informal prayer or class meetings, at the house of Seymour Wilcox, as early as 1840.

At the first election held at the house of Seymour Wilcox, in the spring of 1842, eleven votes were cast.

The first hotel was the log residence of Seymour Wilcox, who entertained travelers as soon as he moved into it, in 1839. The next hotel was J. N. Ackerman's, opened in 1845.

The first grist-mill was built by Forest & Smith in 1846, where Markle & Harris' stone mill now stands. The same firm built a saw-mill a few rods distant a year earlier.

The first newspaper was the Times, in 1857, by J. H. Brinkerhoff.

The first school was opened in 1844, by Charles Cleveland, in a small frame building situated near where the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway crosses Washington or Main streets.

The first marriage in Waupun was that of William G. McElroy to Miss Lucinda Collins, in 1841, at Seymour Wilcox's house, by Mason C. Darling, of Fond du Lac. An enthusiastic pioneer, writing in 1857, thus describes the wedding:

"The wedding day came; the woods were a frozen poem written by invisible fingers. The earth was wrapt in its winding-sheet of snow, but in our little cabin the light flickered grotesquely from the fireplace on the unhewn rafters. There was no useless array among the bridal party, no satin dresses dotted with stars, no jewels spangled in the bosom of the bride, no bracelets encircled her arm, nor did any veil fall from the back of her head to hide the simple evergreen that shone in her hair. There were no dandified, white-gloved, scented, feline-looking, empty-headed scions of codfish aristocracy present; no fashionable birds with beautiful plumage and sickly looks; no pale pets of the parlor who had vegetated in unhealthy shades until their complexions had assumed a greenish color like a potato in a dark cellar. The ceremony throughout was characterized by Quaker-like simplicity. The building was humble. The ceremony over, I can see the white cloth placed on the table, and on it a plate or two of biscuits almost as white. Then I see a big gobbler, fattened for the occasion, and almost smell the sage with which the stuffing was sprinkled. Then came a bowl of pickled cabbage, a dish of baked beans, a plate of boiled beets fantastically decorated with cloves, and after that the crowning dish of all—a glorious jelly-cake, well seasoned with ginger and molasses plentifully spread between the layers for jelly. * * * The day following the wedding the bridal party proposed a journey to Lake Emily, where the bride's parents resided, and which lay twelve miles distant through roadless woods and prairies. And what was their chariot? a magnificent sled. By what was it drawn? a magnificent yoke of oxen. With what was it enshrined? a magnificent bundle of clean straw, and on this the beautiful bride and her attendant sat as dignified as did Cleopatra when surrounded with all that wealth could purchase."

The second marriage ceremony, performed October 11, 1842, although not performed in Waupun, snatched from single blessedness one of its earliest settlers, John N. Ackerman. Mr. Ackerman, with two small Indian ponies, went to Fond du Lac and secured the services of Alonzo Raymond, a Justice of the Peace, and the two proceeded by Indian trail to Oshkosh, where the bride, Miss Hannah A. Ford, was stopping. After the ceremony, the young couple mounted the ponies and made the journey to Waupun. The trail was exceedingly rough in many places, making it impossible for the riders to stick to their ponies unless they sat astride, which they occasionally did. Just imagine a modern belle making her bridal tour astride of a shaggy little Indian pony!

The first birth was that of a son, Ira, to Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Wilcox, April 17, 1841. The second was that of J. N. Ackerman's daughter, Marian A., in October, 1843.

The first death was that of a boy named Town, which occurred at his father's house. At Mr. Town's "barn-raising" a pail of whisky was set out for the men, and the boy, unnoticed, drank so freely of it that he soon after died.

The first frame building was a barn built by John N. Ackerman in 1843. The next two were Mr. Ackerman's residence and a building erected by Seymour Wilcox, where the Exchange Hotel stands.

The first railroad train reached Waupun February 15, 1856.

The first church building was erected by the Baptists in 1849.

GROWTH OF WAUPUN.

The first settlement in what is now the city of Waupun was made, as we have seen, in 1839, at which time Seymour Wilcox, perceiving that here was a water-power on the west branch of Rock River—then a stream of considerable size—combined with other natural advantages, determined to locate at this point, and, in that year, removed with his family from Green Bay and became the first settler and founder of what has since become a beautiful and flourishing young city. At the same time, Hiram Walker and John N. Ackerman, attracted by the reports brought to Green Bay by Mr. Wilcox, were induced to accompany him and settle at this place, where Mr. Ackerman still resides on the farm originally entered by him, having lived to see the silence of the prairie where he had chosen to build his home give place to a community of happy settlers, again changing to a thriving village, and, again touched by the wand of progress, transformed into a busy and ambitious little city, of which he had the honor of becoming the first Mayor.

In these early days, the location of but a few families in one locality was necessary to form a nucleus for others, and, in this case, but few years had passed before a small store was opened, a mill erected, and it became evident that a village must eventually grow up. To facilitate that result, Mr. Ackerman, in 1846, laid out into village lots, platted and recorded as the village of Waupun, about ten acres of land on the southeast corner of Section 31, in the town of Waupun, Fond du Lac County, since known as the "upper town." The year following, Mr. Wilcox, whose farm lay about three-quarters of a mile to the eastward, unwilling to see the prospective village grow up without sharing in its benefits, proceeded, with others, to lay out and plat into village lots about fifty acres of land, lying across the county line, partly in Dodge and partly in Fond du Lac County, and called their village East Waupun. Then commenced a lively but friendly contest between the rival villages, to determine which should be the future city. This rivalry continued until the location of the Wisconsin State Prison, adjoining East Waupun, in 1851, and the completion, to this point, of the Milwaukee & Horicon, now the Northern Division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, in the year 1856. These events practically settled the question, and the "upper town" reluctantly submitted to the inevitable, and, in 1857, the rival villages were united, under the name of the village of Waupun, by a special charter, granted by the Legislature, and approved March 6, 1857. By this act, the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of Section 4, the north half of Section 5, and the east half of the northeast quarter of Section 6, taken from the town of Chester, in Dodge County, and the east half of the southeast quarter of Section 31, the south half of Section 32, and the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of Section 33, taken from the town of Waupun, in Fond du Lac County, was incorporated. The village lying thus in two counties, special provisions were required and granted in the charter, among which, jurisdiction in both Dodge and Fond du Lac Counties was conferred upon Justices of the Peace, and the Village Marshal was given authority to serve process in both counties.

The growth of the place had been so rapid, that at the first charter election in April, 1857, three hundred and twenty-three votes were cast, indicating a population of over sixteen hundred.

In 1858, and again in 1865, the charter was amended to provide more fully for laying out and opening new streets. In 1871, the original charter, with its amendments, was revised and consolidated by an act of the Legislature, approved March 21, 1871.

The steady growth of the place was such, that in 1878 it was considered advisable to incorporate as a city, with a charter entirely re-written, adapted to the peculiar geographical situation of the place. A city charter was accordingly granted March 5, 1878, including within the city limits additional territory, the residents of which, having observed the economy and good judgment displayed in the management of the affairs of the village, desired the advantages to be derived from a city rather than a town government. This additional territory was taken partly from each county. The southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of Section 4, and the north half of the south half of Section 5, a total of 200 acres taken from the town of Chester, and the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of Section 23, from the town of Waupun.

The growth of Waupun has been steady and constant from the beginning. Very few commercial failures have intervened, to retard its general prosperity. Its business men have, as a rule, been honorable and enterprising tradesmen. Its professional men and other citizens have generally been public spirited and liberal in everything tending to build up the place. The tone of its society and government was originally imparted, and has since been maintained, by the sound judgment and strict integrity of its earlier citizens, many of whom still remain prominent and influential in social and business affairs, among whom W. H. Taylor, who came in 1846, Dr. H. L. Butterfield, Eli Hooker, Edwin Hillyer and B. B. Baldwin, in 1847, John Bryce, M. K. Dahl and R. L. Graham, in 1849, and M. J. Althouse, about 1853, have done much in giving direction to the management of affairs, and making the city what it now is, while many other useful and valuable citizens, who were among the first to come, having performed their full share of the builders' work, have crossed the river to their homes upon the other shore.

The prudent and conservative policy pursued by its earlier citizens has produced its natural result. No municipal debt has ever been created, and while Waupun possesses superior railroad facilities—both the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & North-Western Railways competing for its trade—and has a thoroughly equipped fire department, and all necessary buildings for a city of its size, it is entirely free from debt, and by the terms of its charter must ever remain so. Its numerous churches, schools, fine business establishments, elegant private residences, and valuable public library of about 3,000 volumes, together with its general healthfulness and the natural beauty of its situation, are constantly attracting new residents to aid in its further development. The name is in itself suggestive. The Indian word "Waubun" signifying "early light," changed to Waupun is emblematically represented by a device on the seal of the city, showing the sun just rising over a low range of hills, which may well be taken to represent the well-known "Jedge" which lies a few miles to the eastward.

VILLAGE AND CITY OFFICERS, 1857-1879.

1857—J. Look, President; Ira Hill, Treasurer; Cromwell Laithe, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; A. P. Phelps, Street Commissioner.

1858—L. P. Preston, President; T. B. Moore, Treasurer; Phelps Moore, Marshal; Eli Hooker, Clerk; William Ware, Street Commissioner.

1859—T. Carpenter, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; F. Hamilton, Marshal; Eli Hooker, Clerk; D. E. Dingman, Street Commissioner.

1860—J. N. Ackerman, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; A. A. Greenman, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; D. E. Dingman, Street Commissioner.

1861—A. H. Rounseville, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; A. A. Greenman, Marshal; Eli Hooker, Clerk; George V. Ackerman, Street Commissioner.

1862—George Wirt, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; J. T. Bennett, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; D. E. Dingman, Street Commissioner.

1863—T. W. Markle, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; A. J. Spear, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; A. A. Greenman, Street Commissioner.

1864—D. P. Norton, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; A. J. Spear, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; A. A. Greenman, Street Commissioner.

1865—John Ware, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; A. B. Kimball, Marshal; L. B. Hills, Clerk; A. A. Greenman, Street Commissioner.

1866—George W. Bly, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; A. B. Kimball, Marshal; John Ware, Clerk; F. W. Stewart, Street Commissioner.

1867—G. W. Stanton, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; J. B. C. Drew, Clerk; T. W. Markle, Street Commissioner.

1868—A. Robinson, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; J. L. Sargent, Street Commissioner.

1869—Charles Jones, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; D. C. Brooks, Street Commissioner.

1870—George W. Bly, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; D. C. Brooks, Street Commissioner.

1871—D. P. Norton, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; S. Heath, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; J. L. Sargent, Street Commissioner.

1872—J. N. Ackerman, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; S. Heath, Marshal; C. W. Henning, Clerk; D. C. Brooks, Street Commissioner.

1873—M. J. Althouse, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; S. Heath, Marshal; C. W. Henning, Clerk; D. P. Norton, Street Commissioner.

1874—M. K. Dahl, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; C. W. Henning, Clerk; A. G. Pierce, Street Commissioner.

1875—George W. Stanton, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; C. W. Henning, Clerk; D. C. Brooks, Street Commissioner.

1876—M. K. Dahl, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; S. Heath, Marshal; C. W. Henning, Clerk; D. C. Brooks, Street Commissioner.

1877—George W. Stanton, President; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; W. H. Taylor, Clerk; Charles Graves, Street Commissioner.

1878—Under the city government—John N. Ackerman, Mayor; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; S. J. Sumner, Clerk; A. Colburn, Street Commissioner.

1879—George Jess, Mayor; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; Simon Heath, Marshal; S. J. Sumner, Clerk; Charles Graves, Street Commissioner.

A REMINISCENCE.

[BY A PIONEER, 1878.]

"It was in the summer of 1844 that I, for the first time, set my eyes on the broad prairies and pleasant openings of Waupun. Beautiful indeed was the panorama which greeted my sight. The landscape was then covered with a luxuriant growth of vegetation, the greater part of which was new and strange to me. Wild flowers of every shade and color that fancy could paint or imagination conceive were blooming on every hand, richly contrasted by the tall prairie grass, which in wild luxuriance was waving in the gentle breezes of that balmy summer afternoon. You may imagine, but can scarcely realize, with what rapture and delight I gazed on the lovely scene. Coming as I did from the bleak and rugged hills of the Empire State, it seemed to me more like a vision of fairy-land than it did a reality before me.

"The road on which I came from Watertown led past Oak Grove to Waupun. The scene as I came upon Rolling Prairie was beautiful indeed. Far away before me stretched the prairie, rolling in gentle undulations until the outlines were lost against the dark green forest. The prairie grass was broken into billows by the breeze and it looked like a sea of emerald.

"No habitation was in sight; but once or twice I caught a glimpse of a settler's cabin nestled far away on the borders of the prairie, or the blue smoke ascending heavenward marked the home of the pioneer. As I entered the openings on the Waupun road, no sound disturbed the scene, save now and then the whirl of the prairie-hen as she arose into the air, or the shrill whistle of the plover, or the more harsh notes of the sand-hill crane might be heard in the distance. The first house I passed was on the farm now owned by Mr. Cole, then owned by a man by the name of Mickle. I called at the door for a drink of water and to inquire the distance to Waupun. He sat playing on his flute, reminding one of the Arkansas traveler. I was told it was five miles to Waupun.

"The next cabin I passed was occupied by a man known as Bach Davis, standing near where Mr. Bancroft's residence now is. As I came near where the prison now stands there was a cultivated field on either hand which extended down to where Main street now is. As I came down Prison street, I caught sight of a log house on the south bank of the river, which I found to be a hotel kept by Mr. Wilcox, where the hungry were fed, where the weary found rest and where strangers were taken in.

"Most of what is now the village of Waupun was not as yet broken by the plow of the husbandman. Mr. William McElroy was living in a small house, on the site where Mr. C. J. Bush now resides. Mr. Collins still lived a little farther west, and Col. Lyman Town lived near by. Esq. Ackerman and Esq. Hinkley were then both residing on the Walker place opposite and a little farther west from where Mr. Stanton's elevator now stands. These, together with old Elder Smith and a son-in-law by the name of Hooker, constituted the entire population of what is now the village of Waupun. There were but five families in the town of Waupun. A man by the name of White was living on the farm now owned by Mr. Atwood, near Willow Creek. Mr. L. P. Preston then resided where Mr. Gee's house now stands, opposite the old slaughter-house, while Mr. Hawley then owned the farm now owned by Mr. Merriam. Jedediah Amadon had built his cabin on the land now owned by Mr. Ichabod Franklin. A Mr. Gould had built a house on the Corrigan place. The next house on the Fond du Lac road was about three miles beyond the east branch of Rock River, or about eight miles from this place.

"In the town of Chester, Mr. N. J. Newton then owned the farm that now belongs to his heirs, and Mr. Lyman Barrows then lived on the Sumner farm, and there were a few more settlers in that town. With these few exceptions, Waupun and the most of Chester presented to the eye an unbroken scene of timber, prairie, openings and meadow lands, which could be bought for $1.25 per acre.

"The nearest physician was at Fox Lake on the west and Fond du Lac on the east. There was no lawyer to stir up strife and litigation between neighbors. We had but one minister, and he was good, for he taught the people to do as they should. The United States mail was then carried on horseback from Fond du Lac to Portage and back once a week, by Mr. Wilcox. His boy would go to Fond du Lac and get it on Tuesday and back home: then take it to Portage Wednesday and back Thursday, then take it to Fond du Lac Friday: and if we got a letter from friends in the East, it would take from ten to fifteen days, and would cost 25 cents, which was no small sum at that time. Esq. Hinkley was then Postmaster.

"Having given you a sketch of the early white settlement, let us turn for a few moments to the aborigines. It was no uncommon sight to see a band of Indians with their squaws, paposes and ponies traveling through the country, or to see their wigwams at their favorite camping grounds, or to hear the tinkle of the bells on their ponies on a still night. On a beautiful elevation on the west side of the east branch of Rock River, about sixty rods north from where Mr. Zelloner's mill now stands, was the remains of an old French trading-post, known as Scalp Village. A fine spring of pure water issued from the bank and flowed into the river, but is now submerged by the mill-pond. A deep, worn path led from the village to the spring. The ground for some distance around the village was literally covered with bones of deer and other game that had been slain to provide food for the red man. Still further back from the river, scattered here and there among the rolling burr-oak openings, were a number of Indian graves, each being protected by a miniature log house, or what more resembled the second floor of a pioneer cabin, covered with shakes as the pioneer covers his, the top being about three feet high. But the plow and the ax of the white man have swept them all away, and naught is left to mark the spot where the red man sleeps his last sleep. About half a mile west from this village, was the Indian planting-ground, or cornfields, on lands owned by Mr. Dean and Mr. Hillebert. And about three-quarters of a mile southwest, on the lands now owned by Mr. Oleson, was the Indian sugar-bush, or sugar-camp, and from the scars the trees bore, it had evidently been used as such for many a year. From this village an Indian trail ran up the river, crossing at the place where the Fond du Lac road crosses, thence to Fond du Lac. The trails were the Indian roads leading from one trading-post to another, or from one favorite camping-ground to another, and were often worn four or six inches deep. The second trail ran in a northwesterly direction, crossing the river on the rapids above the place known as the Sheldon deep hole, and thence through the grove and near the large oak (that one of our village lawyers in his early practice addressed with great force of eloquence as an imaginary Judge), thence through this village to Fox Lake. The fourth led in a northwesterly direction, near Mr. George Wells' residence, to Green Lake. Near this trail, on lands owned by Mr. Carpenter, on the south bank of what was then a small stream or brook, lay scattered here and there among the tall grass a number of human skeletons: who they were, or by what means they came to their death, is not known. Probably they fell in battle."

CHURCHES.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church.—The Catholics of Waupun were first attended, as a mission, by Rev. James Roch. from Fox Lake, 1850 to 1853. Then by Rev. R. Dumphy, from Fox Lake, to 1855. Next by Rev. J. Haly, from Fox Lake, to 1856. Afterward by Rev. Louis Daily, from Fond du Lac, to 1858; followed by Rev. J. Morris, who built the present church in 1862, and attended it as a mission from Fox Lake, to 1863. Next attended as a mission by Rev. J. Smith, from Fox Lake, to 1865. Then attended as a mission by Rev. W. Doherty, from Fox Lake, to 1867. Next came Rev. G. T. Willard, first resident Pastor. Father Willard remained until 1869; added twenty feet to the old church. Then came, as resident Pastor, Rev. M. Hanna, who left November, 1870. The present Pastor, Rev. J. Smith, has resided here for the last nine years, and built the tower and steeple, making the church 80x30. Father Smith has presented the church with a bell weighing 1,350 pounds. It is now a very nice, convenient church, with a fine pastoral residence, has two lots nicely ornamented with trees and shrubbery, and all paid for. Rev. Joseph Smith, Pastor, is also Catholic Chaplain to the State Penitentiary for the last nine years. The Church numbers fifty-three families.

First Congregational Church.—In July, 1845, a Church of ten members was organized in Waupun, by Rev. Stephen Peet. Of this Church Joel Norton was chosen Deacon, and Barnabas Hinkley, Clerk.

In September following its organization, the services of Rev. E. S. Peck were secured on alternate Sabbaths for one year. Services were held in the schoolhouse.

It would naturally be expected that those who differ only in their answer to the question whether one is more effectually rendered "clean every whit," by the symbolical application of water to the whole surface of the body than to a part, while agreeing in their views of church government, and on all doctrinal points, as perfectly as do the Baptists and Congregationalists, would co-operate in efforts to advance a common cause; and we accordingly find these two branches so drawn together that the bonds uniting Baptist and Congregationalist almost equal in strength those binding Baptist to Baptist. At times, Congregationalists have joined with Baptists in sustaining a Baptist preacher, and sometimes the reverse.

After the termination of Mr. Peck's labors, the services of Rev. Mr. Murphy, a Baptist clergyman, were secured.

J. H. Brinkerhoff

WAUPUN.

In 1850, the Congregational society took measures to secure the erection of a house of worship. A house costing about $1,000 was accordingly built, to which an addition has since been made, not increasing the perfection of its architectural proportions, but increasing its capacity and affording a place of meeting which to those who meet seems homelike.

The pulpit has been occupied for periods of five years or more each by Revs. Mr. Ashman, Mr. Williams and Mr. Darling. The services also of Revs. Mr. Bradford (two years), Mr. Blake (one year), Mr. Benson (two years), and specially of Mr. Marble (two years), will not soon be forgotten.

Believing that "prevention is better than cure;" that it is better to keep out of the ditch than to wash off its filth; to start the young in a virtuous course of life, than to reclaim them from a vicious course when fallen, the Congregational Church has given prominence to its Sabbath school. And although other organizations may, perhaps justly, boast of surpassing it in efforts to relieve distress, it is not admitted that it has been surpassed in efforts to prevent distress. The successive Superintendents of the school have been C. C. Bayley, Josiah Drummond, L. B. Hills, Abijah Hubbard, Edwin Judd, Martin Short, Edwin Hillyer and John Bryce.

The number connected with the school at present is about one hundred and twenty-five, not differing very much from the number of members of the Church.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—As Methodism has always been progressive in its nature, and always among the first to plant the standard of Gospel liberty in new countries, there has been no exception to this rule in Waupun, but, to give its history, we must go back to the first settlement of the country, and trace its working, along down to the present time.

As early as the year 1844, a class was formed in what was then called the Upper Town, consisting of the family of the Rev. Silas Miller, Eunice Miller, Henry L. Hillyer, Malvina Hillyer, Ezekiel T. Miller and Weston G. Miller (now Dr. Miller), six persons in all. The Doctor says this band consisted of three officers and three privates; his father was the local preacher, his brother the class-leader, and he the exhorter; his mother, sister and sister's husband were the members.

During the same year, the Rev. Samuel Smith, an aged local preacher, and father of the Rev. Charles Smith, settled with his family in Waupun, and held religious services in private dwellings, whenever convenient. Father Smith and family soon identified themselves with the little class, and became efficient laborers in the Lord's vineyard. At the same time, the class was made stronger by the addition of Dr. Brooks Bowman and wife. Others were added during the year, including S. J. Mattoon and Mr. and Mrs. S. A. L. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sexmith, and Mrs. F. F. Davis, the class now numbering twenty-two members. A building had been erected by the contributions of the people in the village and the country adjacent, for the purpose of a chapel and a schoolhouse, in which regular services were held, both morning and evening, and the Lord poured out His Spirit upon the people abundantly. The eldest daughter of Dr. Bowman, as the first trophy of grace, was converted. Other conversions followed, and in a short time the number increased to twenty; among them were W. G. McElroy and wife, and several others who became leading and influential members of the Church in Waupun, many of whom have gone home to reap their reward in heaven; but the Master has not left himself without others to take their places.

Thus the work went on for some years, growing in interest, as might have been expected under the able administration of such ministers as the Rev. J. S. Prescott, Rev. S. B. Tharp, Rev. William H. Thompson and Rev. William Shraff, until it became evident that schoolhouses and private dwellings would no longer accommodate the people.

During the winter of 1854, it was decided to build a church. A site was secured, the material was provided, and during the next summer, under the administration of the Rev. James Lawson, a building was erected and dedicated to the service of God. A revival soon followed, and the interest increased so that, in a short time, it was found necessary to add a number of feet to the length of the building; in addition to the audience-room, it is furnished with two large classrooms.

In the year 1858, a parsonage was erected on the lot, within a few feet of the church, and is now furnished with a number of articles that are needed to make a minister and his family comfortable.

In 1877, the Annual Conference was held in this church, presided over by Bishop Peck. Its pulpit has always been supplied by some of the ablest talent in the Conference, such as the Rev. James Lawson, Rev. S. L. Brown, Rev. J. C. Robbins, Rev. Nelson Green, Rev. S. W. Ford, Rev. J. M. Walker, Rev. Wesley Lattin, Rev. D. W. Couch, Rev. E. S. Grumley, Rev. J. T. Woodhead, Rev. J. H. Jenne, Rev. E. D. Farnham and Rev. A. P. Mead, the present able and efficient Pastor, who is laboring earnestly for the glory of the Master and the salvation of souls. The Church is out of debt, and peace and harmony reigns within.

Episcopal Church.—Previous to the year 1867, there were no regular services of the Episcopal Church in Waupun, although the Rev. W. C. Armstrong, the Rector of Grace Church at Oakfield, paid several visits, and encouraged the few faithful members to keep together in faith and hope. In the year 1867, the Church was organized, under the name of Trinity Mission, and the Rev. C. Thorp, Deacon, commenced regular services on September 1. The first lay officers appointed by the Bishop, were Sam. Chamberlin, Warden; J. W. Secley, Treasurer; G. E. Jennings, Clerk. The year 1871 saw the resignation of the Rev. C. Thorp, and the appointment of the Rev. Robert B. Wolseley, on the 23d of June. Up to this time, the services were held in the Disciples' Church, and in halls rented for that purpose; but the faithful ones rallied under the active administration of their new missionary, and, on September 11, 1871, the Bishop laid the corner-stone of Trinity Church. One year from that date, the Rev. R. B. Wolseley accepted a call to a parish in Tennessee, when the congregation nominated and the Bishop of the Diocese appointed the Rev. William E. Wright, Rector of Trinity, Berlin, Missionary in charge. At the date of writing, the Rev. Mr. Wright is still at the post, ably assisted by the following lay officers: Sam. Chamberlin, Senior Warden; A. F. Morse, Junior Warden; R. W. Wells, Treasurer; D. A. Lowber, Clerk. The Church numbered about eleven communicants in 1867, and, while losing by death and removal very many, has now, in 1880, upward of eighty. One hundred and seventy-six souls have been baptized; ninety-seven received the Apostolic rite of Confirmation; twenty-five couples have been united in the holy bonds of matrimony, and forty persons have been committed to the earth by the Ministers of the Church since its inception.

The First Baptist Church of Waupun.—This Church was organized September 16, 1845, with a membership of eleven persons. The first business meeting was held February 14, 1846, when Rev. J. Murphy was engaged as Pastor. In 1879, active measures were taken for obtaining the means to build a house of worship. A lot was secured on Main street, and $700 were subscribed. A. K. Starkweather and N. B. Cleveland were elected Deacons of the Church. On the 1st of May, 1879, Rev. W. Look was called to the pastorate, with a salary of $250. In the winter of 1851, as the result of revival efforts, thirty-five persons were added to the Church. In the spring of 1853, Rev. G. W. Freeman accepted a call to the pastorate. In May, of this year, the house was dedicated, it being the first church edifice erected in Waupun. Mr. Freeman's successor was Rev. John Williams, a man of sterling worth, who served the Church, as Pastor, for three years. In 1862, Rev. W. W. Ames, the Chaplain at the State Prison, accepted the pastorate of the Church, in connection with his chaplaincy—remaining for two years. His successor was Rev. H. S. Fish, who remained two years. Rev. J. O. M. Hewitt served the Church in a pastorate of four years. During this time long-needed improvements were made in the Church property, in which generous assistance was received from the citizens of the place. Rev. A. Whitman was the next Pastor, who also remained four years. Mrs. Whitman was an efficient helper to her husband in his pastoral labors, and a worker in every good cause. During Mr. Whitman's pastorate, the Church suffered an irreparable loss in the death of Deacon Starkweather, a man who possessed the esteem and confidence of the community in an unusual degree, adorning his Christian profession by a godly life and a well-ordered conversation. Rev. G. W. Lincoln remained with the Church less than two years, and was immediately followed by Rev. Victor Kutchin, the present Pastor. Mr. Kutchin has the esteem and confidence of the Church and community. His pastorate has been marked in an unusual degree by peace and harmony. He has lately received the appointment of Chaplain of the State Prison; but he will still continue to serve the Church, as their Pastor. The present membership of the Church is one hundred. Value of church property, $5,000.

Disciple Church.—One of the first religious societies to obtain an organization in the growing village was the Christian or Disciple society, which was established in 1848. Its first Elder was Noah Wirt, whose untiring zeal and religious fervor was at first its chief support. It was not until 1863 that the society was sufficiently numerous or wealthy to attempt the building of a house of worship. In that year, a commodious and substantial church building was erected, the society, at that time, numbering about ninety members, which has since been reduced, by various causes, to a membership of about forty. The society is entirely free from debt.

Free-Will Baptist Church.—The Free-Will Baptists had a church organization in Waupun as early as 1852, and erected their present building about the year 1855, in "Upper Town," on the Fond du Lac County side. Its cost was about $5,000. In 1868, the structure was moved to its present site, corner of Prison and Madison streets, and a comfortable parsonage, near by, purchased. The first Pastor was Rev. Charles Smith, and the last, Rev. A. G. Brand. At present, the society is without a permanent Pastor.

WAUPUN A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO.

"Our village," says a writer of 1857, "like other Western settlements, is made up of all kinds of materials, and its society is exceedingly miscellaneous. We have the inquisitive Yankee, pushing forward his new inventions; the illustrious Pennsylvanian, amassing wealth by the aid of his iron sinews; the shrewd Irishman, digging out trenches and looking as cheerful as the blue smoke that curls up from his woodland cabin; the deliberate Englishman, boasting the superiority of his country and its laws; the canny Scotchman, making his few acres blossom like the rose; and the ruddy-looking German, singing his songs of 'Faderland' and hoarding up every little 'shiner' that gets between his fingers. Each has brought along with him his early habits and associations; his own views of business, laws and religion; and, as a natural consequence, when brought together on public questions, they are apt to boil up like a mixture of salt and soda.

"There are, in Waupun, no church steeples with bells in, that tolled our great grandfathers to the tomb; no long lines of graves, in which are buried the virtues of those ancestors only known from tradition; there is no gray-headed Pastor, rising up like a sacred statue in the memory; no aged deacon, with his head resting on the side of the pew and enjoying a brief sleep as he listens to the sermon; no old sexton, limping away to the burying-ground with his spade upon his shoulder for the purpose of making an unceremonious rattle among the dry bones. No; Waupun has scarcely any past upon which the historian can dwell. Nature's mighty cathedral still stands, with its lofty dome of sun, moon and stars; but its oaken pillars are overgrown with the moss of centuries. The great High Priests that worshiped at the altars and burnt incense to the Great Spirit—where are they? The temple still stands, but the worshippers are gone. Here and there, we meet with melancholy fragments of some tribe that has wandered back from its place of exile; but the mass are buried in yonder mounds, with their weapons of war, crumbling to dust, and their history has died with them.

"Waupun is the center of new associations. It borrows no propelling power from venerated antiquarianism, since the spot where it stands was but yesterday wrapt in solitary grandeur. Some Western settlements are filled up with bankrupts who have fled from Eastern creditors, anxious only to obtain peace of mind and bread enough to eat; they are decayed and tempest-tossed vessels, stripped of spars and rigging. Waupun, however, may claim a large exemption from these. Its first settlers were iron-souled and true-hearted men. They came to the banks of the west branch of Rock River determined to cut their way through the wilderness and make unto themselves pleasant homes—and they succeeded. They had a mission, and they nobly performed it. They did their work roughly, yet they did it for all time. There is a sort of romance in their history that fascinates; there is a kind of rustic simplicity connected with them that is truly poetic. Behind them were the homes they had left, the waterfalls that danced to their childish music, and the hills that echoed back their playful shouts. Before them was the wilderness, dark and gloomy, standing in all its solemnity.

“Look at the little village now,” continues the writer, “and see what a contrast it presents. It is set off with beautiful dwellings, cultivated gardens and shaded streets. True to the progressive spirit of the age, its people have devoted themselves to the decoration of their homes. There are five dry-goods stores, fifteen grocery stores, three clothing stores, four hotels, three drug stores, five physicians, two lawyers, two hardware and tinning establishments, two grist-mills, one planing-mill, one pump-factory, two printing houses, three wagon-shops, several lumber merchants, cabinet-makers, stonemasons and painters. There are two banks—the Waupun and Exchange—two schoolhouses and four churches. A few years ago, produce had to be drawn to Milwaukee, a distance of seventy-five miles, and disposed of for a trifle as compared with present prices. Now the Milwaukee & Horicon Railroad runs through the village. It is already completed to Berlin, a distance of forty-two miles, where it connects with the navigation of the Fox and Wolf Rivers. It is soon to extend to Stevens Point, on the Wisconsin. It was opened to Waupun on the 15th of February, 1856, to Brandon on the 15th of October, and to Ripon November 15 of the same year.

“Up to the 1st of January, 1857, the passengers going east were over 13,000; going west, over 14,000. The freight east was over 11,000 tons; west, over 14,000 tons. There is in Waupun a depot building, a water-station and a turn-table. The wheat shipped from Waupun from February 18, 1856, to January 1, 1857, was 275,692 bushels.”

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. of G. T.—The first Lodge of this Order in Waupun, was instituted September 25, 1858, and was named Waupun Lodge. The first meeting was held at the residence of William Euen, and was called to order by G. W. C. T. Dr. T. J. Patchen, of Fond du Lac. Mr. P. B. Moore, of Brandon Lodge, No. 81, was chosen Recording Secretary pro tem. The following charter members were then instructed in the work of the Order: William Euen, Mrs. C. M. Euen, Miss M. A. Baldwin, Mr. J. H. Barker, Mr. C. H. Whitney, Mr. G. G. B. McGraw, Mr. E. Y. Ridout, Mr. S. Griffith, Rev. R. W. Bryant, William Ware and Eli Hooker.

The Lodge then proceeded to the election of the following officers for the quarter ending October 31, 1858: W. C. T., William Euen; W. V. T., Caroline M. Euen; W. R. S., Charles H. Whitney; Assistant W. R. S., Susan Moore; W. F. S., John H. Barker; W. Treas., Melissa A. Baldwin; W. Marshal, Byron McGraw; Dept. Marshal, Edith Bunce; W. I. G., Ezra T. Ridout; W. O. G., Seth Griffith; W. Chap., Rev. R. W. Bryant; R. H. S., Mary A. Jarvis; L. H. S., Ellen M. Grandy; P. W. C. T., B. B. Baldwin.

After the election of officers, the Lodge adjourned to meet Monday evening, September 27, at the Odd Fellows' Hall, Main street, just west from the railroad. November 1, the name of the Lodge was changed to Prison City, No. 96. February 1, 1859, some difficulty having occurred, a portion of the membership withdrew, and with the consent of the Lodge, formed a new one, Welcome Lodge, No. 112. During the following summer, both Lodges were very prosperous, working harmoniously together. The membership of the two societies was about three hundred, Prison City having a majority.

April 23, 1860, Prison City moved into a hall, owned by Phelps Moore, on Fond du Lac street, just north from Main. It continued to flourish until the breaking-out of the rebellion, April, 1861, when quite a number of the members enlisted in defense of their country. At first, all other interests seemed absorbed in the peril that threatened the nation, and the Lodge suffered in consequence. During the war, thirty, at least, of its members entered the army, and several enlisted from Welcome Lodge. Some of these soldiers returned to take their places in the Lodge—some came home sick and maimed, while others were killed in battle or died in Southern prisons—but whatever their fate, their memories are cherished as brave defenders of the “old flag.”

April 23, 1862, Prison City again occupied Odd Fellows' Hall. Somewhere between April and November of this year, Welcome Lodge surrendered its charter. May 13, 1863, Prison City moved into a hall on Main street, in the Amadon Block, now owned by J. W. Seely. On the following Fourth of July, the members were assigned a place in the procession which celebrated the day, and marched to “Summer's Grove,” making quite a creditable display. At the conclusion of the exercises in the grove, the Good Templars held a picnic, in which many of their outside friends participated.

October 5, 1864, the Lodges in the State having been re-numbered, the number of Prison City was changed to 21, which it still retains.

Sometime between September 1 and November 1, 1865, the Lodge moved into what was then known as Dodge's Hall, over the insurance office of Edwin Hillyer; the lower part of the building was then occupied as a dry-goods store by L. B. Dodge—now occupied by Silber Brothers. The name of the hall was changed to Temperance Hall. It was occupied until March 12, 1878, when the Lodge rented a hall in Rank's Block, Main street. November 11, 1879, the Lodge negotiated with John S. Gee for the purchase of the old hall on Fond du Lac street, occupied by it from April 23, 1860, till April 23, 1862, and where it remains at this date, January 9, 1880. The hall has been considerably renovated, and tastily fitted up, and it is expected that still further improvements will be made during the year. The Lodge now numbers about ninety, and is in good working order. Its officers, at present, are: Lodge Deputy, Rufus H. Oliver; W. C. T., William T. King; W. V. T., Nellie A. Blodgett; W. R. S. and Treas., M. Em. Rounseville; Assistant Sec., Merton R. Wilber; W. F. S., Lawson J. Tompkins; W. Chap., Mary H. Heath; W. Marshal, Herbert F. Gillman; Dept. Marshal, Alvira Cornell; W. I. G., Steina Otten; W. O. G., Luman J. Pryor; R. H. S., Ada M. Thompson; L. H. S., Florence Sheldon; P. W. C. T., Lewis J. Althouse.

Prison City Lodge, like all kindred societies, has had its successes and its reverses. It would be nearly impossible to estimate the number who have been connected with it during its existence—suffice it to say, that comparatively few of the inhabitants of Waupun have not, at one time or another, been numbered among its membership. Its record will compare favorably with that of its sister societies; the Grand Secretary considers it one of the best in Wisconsin. It is proud of its career, proud of its military history, and proud of the numbers it has educated and sent out to labor in the “harvest fields of temperance,” and it proposes to exist and to work, as long as there is a call for its existence and a demand for its services.

Advance Temple of Honor, No. 21.—This secret temperance society was organized October 9, 1875, with the following charter members: James McElroy, R. H. Oliver, S. W. Keyes, P. M. Pryor, G. B. Durand, O. D. Hudson, N. Raymond, J. S. Gee, S. J. Morse, E. H. Drew and P. H. Kelley. The first officers were: E. H. Drew, W. C. T.; G. B. Durand, W. V. T.; R. H. Oliver, W. R.; O. D. Hudson, W. F. R.; James McElroy, Treasurer; S. J. Morse, W. M.; P. H. Kelley, W. D. U.; J. S. Gee, Guardian; N. Raymond, Sentinel; S. W. Keyes, P. W. C. T.

In June, 1876, occurred one of the greatest temperance revivals ever known in Waupun or vicinity, during which 100 members were admitted to the Temple in the week beginning June 16. In the following July, the Lodge reached the height of its strength in point of numbers, containing at that time 275 members in good standing. The present officers are: J. S. Gee, W. C. T.; L. C. Owen, W. V. T.; R. H. Oliver, W. R.; W. T. King, W. F. R.; O. F. Stoppensbaech, P. W. C. T.

A. O. U. W.—The Order of the Ancient Order of United Workmen is purely benevolent. It was brought into existence to promote mutual benefit to its members in sickness or trouble, as an insurance to their heirs after death. Each member is assessed $1 at the death of any member within the jurisdiction. The Lodge at Waupun was instituted February 3, 1879, and consisted of the following charter members, who were also the first officers: W. W. Houghton,

P. M. W.; H. W. Frost, M. W.; F. F. Zimmerman, G. F.; Christian Johnson, O.; J. C. Wilms, G.; Chas. H. Lindsley, Recorder; William E. Warren, Receiver; H. Johnson, I. W.; F. S. Keech, O. W.; Frank C. Hill, Medical Examiner

The present officers are: H. W. Frost and W. W. Houghton, P. M. W.; J. C. Wilms, M. W.; R. L. Oliver, Recorder; C. Johnson, G. F.; John Fieldstad, Overseer; Herman Hanisch, Guide; Richard Goff, Financier; J. R. Viall, Receiver; August Pobuns, I. W.; W. C. Peterson, O. W. The Lodge meets every Monday evening, at Old Fellows' Hall. W. W. Houghton was Representative to the Grand Lodge for 1879, and H. W. Frost for 1880. The present Medical Examiner is Dr. J. N. O'Brien. The Lodge now has twenty-three members.

Telulah Lodge, No. 33, I. O. O. F.—This Lodge was instituted at Waupun by Deputy Grand Master Lowther, December 25, 1848, with the following named persons as charter members: Isaac Valentine, L. B. Hills, George Howe, W. S. Post and J. Dickenson. It occupied rented rooms until 1852, when a joint stock company was formed among the members, and an Old Fellows' Hall was built, at a cost of about $600, which the Lodge continued to occupy for Lodge purposes until 1871, when the old hall was disposed of and a new one was erected as a permanent home for the Order in the city of Waupun. The property is valued at $5,000. The Lodge is and has been in a prosperous condition.

Waupun Lodge, No. 48, A. F. & A. M.—At some time during the last end of the year 1852, D. L. D. Huntington, L. B. Dodge, Milo Sikes, Andrews Burnham, Sr., Jeremiah Look, George T. Wood, C. B. Carrington, Joseph Bardwell and Charles Spoor conceived the idea of instituting a Masonic Lodge at Waupun, and for that purpose petitioned the Grand Master of the State for dispensation. On the 20th day of April, 1853, Hon. H. L. Palmer, then Grand Master, granted the petition, appointing D. L. D. Huntington to be the first Master, L. B. Dodge the first Senior Warden and Milo Sikes the first Junior Warden. August 12, 1853, the Lodge was organized under dispensation with the above named brethren as Master and Wardens. June 20, 1854, the Grand Lodge granted a charter for a Masonic Lodge, to be located at Waupun, to be known as Waupun Lodge, No. 48, appointing C. B. Carrington Master, Joseph Bardwell Senior Warden, and L. B. Dodge Junior Warden. The charter so granted was signed by Henry W. Billings, Deputy Grand Master, attested by William R. Smith, Grand Secretary, under the seal of the Grand Lodge. The first election for all of the elective officers of the Lodge was held June 1, 1855, when C. B. Carrington was elected Master. Since which time the following named brethren have been elected and served as Masters: Cromwell Laithe, William E. Howard, Ira Hill, Robert Cosgrove, W. H. Taylor, C. W. Henning, M. C. Short, S. J. Sumner, G. W. Stanton, C. S. Gillman, John J. Roberts and F. S. Keech. The Lodge now has an active membership of ninety-two. She has been and now is free from debt.

WAUPUN PIONEERS.

[FROM JAMES MCELROY'S ADDRESS BEFORE THE OLD SETTLERS OF WAUPUN AND VICINITY, JUNE 11, 1879.]

Many of the old pioneers and our former associates are gone from our circle, some to other fields of toil, and others, whose prospects were as bright for a long and happy life as any of us now living, have received their discharge; their work is done; they have been called from labor to rest; and if, while mingling with the busy crowd, we sometimes remember them, let it be with kindness. We see many of the old veterans still with us, whose whitened locks and wrinkled brows tell us that their little bark has been tossed on the billows of life's ocean for many long years; and that they were ever at their posts, fearless of the cold of winter or the heat of summer, needs no other proof. These are some of the men who left their Eastern homes to assume a life of toil and danger incident to settling in a new country, so that they might provide for themselves and their children homes of independence and freedom, and, though sometimes meeting with trials and disappointments, yet most nobly have they done their work, and why? Because they were men of strong minds and determined wills to accomplish, as far as possible, whatever they undertook to do.

"They were not of that stripe of men who hang around the corners all day whittling dry-goods boxes and never have courage enough to get away from the end of their mother's apron strings; but men and women who pitched their nightly tents on the broad prairie or under the spreading oaks, night after night, until they found a resting-place in Waupun and the country around it, where they have labored to build up and improve the place of their choice and make it what it is to-day, the pride of its people; men who have stood by it in clouds and sunshine watching with interest its slow but sure growth, ever firm in the belief that there was before it a bright prospect of future usefulness and prosperity."

MANUFACTORIES.

The Waupun Pump and Windmill Works.—Like many another institution, the Waupun Pump and Windmill Works had their origin in the day of small things. In 1852, when Dodge and Fond du Lac Counties were only thinly settled with new-comers, Milo J. Althouse, then a young man just starting to make his way in the world, with no resources but his own hands and his energetic will, made his first essay in the pump manufacture—a single pump planed, bored, fitted with handle, spout and bucket, and finished by his own hands, and by his own hands then set in a well. Returning from this completed job, he commenced another, to be finished and carried to the customer before a third was entered upon. By these slow steps was first put in motion a business which has since reached across the continent, finding its principal market in a dozen States. Endeavoring always to make his work excel, Mr. Althouse soon found his business and his reputation so growing as to warrant the opening of a shop and the purchase of improved tools. In 1859, he left the little shop, on a farm where he had worked alone, and opened a shop in the village of Waupun. From working by hand he advanced to horse-power for running the augers, and gradually augmented the force as the demand for his work increased. In 1861, Mr. Althouse introduced steam-power, and again enlarged his shop to meet the growing business. He still carefully maintained the quality of his work, and his stamp was a synonym for the best on all work in his line. Every stick of timber used was carefully inspected, and every piece of leather for packing was selected from the best part of first quality sides, all else being rejected and sold for scraps. The same careful selection of material has been continued throughout.

In those days, the wind sweeping overhead was undreamed of as a motive power, or at least not dreamed of in any practical way as a power applicable to the ordinary work of a farmer; but, about 1860, the first windmills, with partially self-regulating devices, were introduced in the Northwest. Their progress was slow for years; the devices themselves were imperfect. Those who now find such a machine a necessity were not then educated to the knowledge of the benefits to be derived from its use; and the large stock and dairy interests of Wisconsin, which now more than ever before make this machine necessary, were then comparatively in infancy. But, ten years ago, Mr. Althouse foresaw the growing future of this power, and its intimate connection with the pump business, and made arrangements for manufacturing one of the best windmills then invented. In 1873, Messrs. George and Albert Raymond having their attention called to the matter, commenced experimenting with wind-engines, and, in February, 1874, in connection with Mr. Althouse, patented the Althouse & Raymond Windmill, which, with some later modifications, is now known through Wisconsin and the Northwest as the "Althouse Vaneless Windmill," and enjoys the reputation of being the most perfect self-regulating wind-engine yet invented. In the following spring, Hon. George F. Wheeler and L. D. Hinkley became associated with Mr. Althouse, under the firm name of Althouse, Wheeler & Co. Since that time, the business has been carried on by the firm, and their trade has extended from Massachusetts to California, and from Canada to Florida and Texas, within the Union, and still further on the west, has reached the Australian fields, and, in the Far East, the winds which ripple the old Euphrates propel the sails of their engines.

Nearly sixty thousand pumps, made in this establishment, are in use in the Northwest; and nearly three thousand wind-engines bearing their stamp are pumping, churning and grinding.

The pumps made are mostly wooden pumps, of all sizes, from a cistern pump of two inches bore to a mammoth of six inches. The special feature of these pumps, introduced by Mr. Althouse, and distinguishing them from the old wooden pumps, is the making of a detachable hard-maple cylinder in which the bucket works. This simple improvement adds immensely to the durability and ease of working of the pump. Of course, the greater part of the windmills made are of the smaller sizes, the most common size for farm use being the ten-foot wheel. They manufacture pumping windmills of eight feet, ten feet, twelve feet, fourteen feet, sixteen feet and twenty-five feet in diameter, and also make geared mills for driving machinery. These are mostly made in sizes of sixteen feet and twenty-five feet. In prosperous times, the business of the establishment has been $10,000 per month, with a pay-roll of $3,000 per month, distributed among about fifty men. Like all other business, this has felt the depression of the last three years, in reduced production and sales, and continues its work on a somewhat narrowed scale, awaiting the "good time coming" which shall justify more active efforts.

This is one of the institutions which has contributed, in no small degree, to give Waupun a steady and solid prosperity when other places have stagnated after premature expansion.

M. K. Dahl's Plow-Factory.—One of the oldest manufacturing establishments in Waupun is Dahl's Plow-Factory, on the Dodge County side of Washington street, Upper Town. The first building, now occupied by Mr. Dahl, was erected in 1846 or 1847, by Bly & Ely, and had been occupied as a plow-factory since about 1850. Mr. Dahl manufactures plows, land rollers, sulky plows, harrows, cultivators and other farming utensils, in which he has built up a large business.

F. E. Zimmerman's Wagon Factory.—In 1865, Mr. Zimmerman began the business of wagon making and repairing, on the Fond du Lac County side of Washington Street, in Upper Town, in a building formerly occupied in the country as a schoolhouse. He manufactures wagons, carriages and cutters, giving employment to from ten to sixteen men. He now has three large buildings, and carries on an extensive and constantly increasing business.

Morse & Morris' Carriage Factory.—In 1876, O. A. Morse, Jr., erected, on the corner of Franklin and Drummond streets, three commodious buildings for a carriage factory. In 1877, Mr. Morris purchased an interest in the factory, which gives employment to nine men in the manufacture, exclusively, of carriages, phaetons, buggies and cutters.

Thomas Stoddart's Organ Manufactory.—Thomas Stoddart brought his knowledge of organ-building from Scotland, and about 1860, after retiring from the post office and other active business, began the manufacture, in a shop near his residence on Prison street, of pipe and reed organs. He has patent "compos" and resonance boxes, as well as a patent bellows or air pump, and makes all with his own hands the softest-toned instruments extant. He does not manufacture "for the trade," but for musical people only. He has built over fifty instruments, one of which is a "barrel organ," eight feet high. This is an organ which plays by machinery. Mr. Stoddart is one of the only three men in America, who can make a "music barrel," which will play the simplest or most difficult music. The one mentioned plays from Handel, John Sebastian Bach and other distinguished composers.

The Waupun Stone Mills.—The first flouring-mill built in the vicinity of Waupun, was erected in 1846, by Forest & Smith, at the foot of Mill street, on the Rock River, in the North Ward of Waupun. The lumber for it was sawed the year previous, by the same parties who had a saw-mill near by. In 1848, the mill burned, having caught fire from lumber spread over the engine to dry. In the fall of the same year, the present stone mill was begun and finished for business in the early spring of 1849. It is four stories in height, and equipped with both water and steam power, and is the oldest mill in the vicinity. It has three runs of stones, with a capacity of one hundred barrels of flour per day. The mill is now owned by T. W. Markle and W. W. Harris, Mr. Markle having owned an interest in it since 1857.

Clisby's Steam Mill.—In 1876, Lorenzo Clisby erected a large steam flouring-mill, near the track of the C., M. & St. Paul Railway, on the Fond du Lac County side of Waupun. It is equipped in modern style, with all the latest improved machinery. It has five runs of stones, with a capacity of 125 barrels per day. It does both custom and job work.

BANKS.

The Waupun Bank.—The first bank of issue, or real banking institution of any sort in Waupun, was the Waupun Bank, which opened for business in 1856, with L. B. Hills as Cashier. Owing to hard times, it suspended in September, 1857, and its business passed into the hands of its creditors. John N. Ackerman was chosen President, and L. B. Hills, Cashier, and the bank resumed operations again in November of the same year. It continued in business until about January, 1859, when it suspended, never to be revived. On searching the safe after the second suspension a pack of cards and two dollars in counterfeit money were found. There were no losses to speak of occasioned by the failure of this bank.

The Corn Exchange Bank.—In 1857, William Hobkirk was the means of securing a charter, and starting the Corn Exchange Bank, in a stone building on the south side of Main street, erected by him for that purpose. It was organized under the State law as a bank of issue. Andrew Proudfit was President, and William Hobkirk, Cashier. When State Banks were compelled to withdraw their circulation, by high taxes purposely imposed, the Corn Exchange continued on in the general banking business. On the 6th of August, 1875, the bank having been some time without any officer but a cashier, Mr. Hobkirk closed its doors and made a trip to South America. The heaviest loser was Mrs. Margaret Drummond, who had about $60,000 intrusted to the bank. Several years after the failure Mr. Hobkirk returned and settled a portion of the bank's indebtedness, but never opened it for business.

The Citizens' Bank.—After the failure of the Corn Exchange Bank, in 1875, the village of Waupun had no bank until early in 1876 when Almon Atwood, of the town of Waupun, started the Citizens' Bank in the old Corn Exchange building. Almon Atwood was President, and A. Robinson, Cashier. The enterprise not proving satisfactory to its projector, business was discontinued, and the bank closed in February, 1877.

George Jess & Company's Bank.—In the summer of 1876, George Jess and David Metcalf began the erection of the handsome two-story brick and stone block on the corner of Main and Prison streets for a bank, and, in the fall, opened for business, under the name of George Jess & Company, with a paid-up capital of $50,000. The firm has a commodious and well-appointed office, and does a general banking business, such as buying and selling inland and foreign exchange, receiving demand deposits without interest, selling letters of credit and selling ocean steamship passages. It is a private bank, having no charter.

WAUPUN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

In 1858, the following petition circulated in the village of Waupun: "We, the undersigned, agree to pay the sum of $3 yearly, until we withdraw from the society, for the purpose of establishing a Library Association in the village of Waupun, the same to be governed by laws adopted by its members. Books shall be received for the first year's subscription, if said books shall be approved by a committee to be chosen. Said subscriptions shall be paid as soon as the society is organized."

This was signed by eighty persons, and on petition the following order was issued:

STATE OF WISCONSIN, }
 VILLAGE OF WAUPUN, } ss: Whereas, an application has been made to me by five proprietors of the Waupun Library Association, requesting one of their number to be authorized to call a meeting of the proprietors thereof, for the purpose of making a permanent organization of said Association, as provided in Chapter 49 of the Revised Statutes of said State. It is therefore ordered that Edwin Hillyer be and is hereby authorized to call said meeting, to be convened at Dodge's Hall, on the 16th of February, 1858, at 7 o'clock in the evening, and that he give due notice of said meeting.

Given under my hand this 8th day of February, 1858.

JOHN WARE, Justice of the Peace.

At this called meeting, Edwin Hillyer was elected Chairman, and W. H. Taylor, Clerk. L. B. Hills, John Ware, William Euen and J. H. Brinkerhoff were appointed a committee to draft a Constitution. They performed the task, and the Constitution was adopted the same night. The election for permanent officers resulted as follows:

President, H. L. Butterfield; Treasurer, George W. Bly; Collector, William Euen; Clerk and Librarian, Edwin Hillyer. Directors—C. S. Kneeland, David Ferguson, A. H. Rouns-ville, George Wirt, Geo. Babcock, M. Leary and Charles Smith. Book Committee—L. B. Hills, Jesse Hooker, R. W. Wells, John Ware, George E. Jennings. The latter committee began at once to receive books from members and purchase others with the funds obtained for fees and dues. The library was opened in Edwin Hillyer's office: and when he moved to Thomas Stoddart's stone block, corner of Prison and Washington streets, the library was also moved there, where it has since remained. During several years, Mr. Hillyer served as Librarian and gave the use of a large room in his office free of charge. Latterly, a nominal rent has been paid, and the Librarian is now paid $30 per annum for his services. The library contains nearly three thousand volumes of choice books, which may be used by any person not a member of the Association by com-plying with the rules and by-laws, and paying ten cents per volume. On every Saturday even-ing the library-room is open, and has always been well patronized. Its financial condition is sound, and new books are constantly added. Since the first year the officers have been as follows:

1859—President, A. H. Rouns-ville; Clerk and Librarian, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, George W. Bly; Collector, William Euen.

1860 and 1861—President, A. H. Rouns-ville; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treas-urer, G. W. Bly; Collector, George E. Jennings.

1862, 1863 and 1864—President, A. H. Rouns-ville; Clerk, W. W. Houghton; Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, G. W. Bly; Collector, George E. Jennings.

1865—President, A. H. Rouns-ville; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, G. W. Bly; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1866—President, D. Ferguson; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, A. H. Rouns-ville; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1867 and 1868—President, Charles Jones; Vice President, W. H. Taylor; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, A. H. Rouns-ville; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1869—President, W. H. Taylor; Librarian and Clerk, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, A. H. Rouns-ville; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1870—President, Thomas Stoddart; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, A. H. Rouns-ville; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1871 and 1872—President, D. Ferguson; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, A. H. Rouns-ville; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1873—President, W. H. Taylor; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, E. W. Jones; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1874, 1875, 1876, 1877 and 1878—President, W. H. Taylor; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, E. W. Jones; Collector, G. E. Jennings.

1879 and 1880—President, L. D. Hinkley; Clerk and Librarian, E. Hillyer; Treasurer, E. W. Jones.

To the late William Euen belongs the credit of taking the first steps to organize the Wau-pun Library Association.

OLD SETTLERS' CLUB.

On the 8th day of February, 1875, many citizens of Waupun and vicinity, who had long been residents of the State, met together for the purpose of organizing an Old Settlers' Club. A Club was formed and a committee appointed to draft rules for its government. A resolution was also adopted, that all citizens of Waupun and vicinity, who had been twenty-five years resi-dent of the State, should be entitled to membership. The meeting adjourned to February 15, 1875, for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization.

On the last mentioned day, rules for the government of the Club were presented and adopted. The Club permanently organized by the election of James McElroy, President; John Bryce, Treasurer, and W. H. Taylor, Secretary. A resolution was adopted that the Old Settlers' Club hold their first meeting March 2, 1875; that a picnic dinner be furnished, and that members of the Club only participate.

Before the meeting, appointed for March 2, 1875, convened, the following named residents of Wisconsin became members, giving the date of their entrance into the State:

Jedediah Amadon.....	1844	Simon Heath.....	1838	R. L. Oliver.....	1846
Samuel Amadon.....	1845	Eli Hooker.....	1846	J. C. Owen.....	1846
Henry Amadon.....	1846	E. Hillyer.....	1847	C. T. Owen.....	1846
Almon Atwood.....	1847	J. C. Hillibert.....	1849	Joseph N. Olin.....	1839
Dudley Andrews.....	1845	Daniel Hiler.....	1845	Daniel Pierce.....	1844
M. J. Althouse.....	1849	S. C. Hill.....	1842	A. P. Phelps.....	1846
John Bryce.....	1849	Ira Hill.....	1846	E. A. Padgham.....	1849
H. L. Butterfield.....	1847	Frank Johnston.....	1844	C. W. Page.....	1840
B. B. Baldwin.....	1844	A. S. Johnson.....	1843	John Ross.....	1848
W. T. Brooks.....	1846	Benjamin Lyons.....	1847	C. F. C. Rank.....	1848
John A. Baker.....	1842	B. Lemeness.....	1847	A. J. Sheldon.....	1848
Luther Butts.....	1846	John Landaal.....	1846	B. C. Sawyer.....	1842
D. L. Bancroft.....	1843	John Kastine.....	1847	W. H. Smithers.....	1845
C. C. Bailey.....	1847	Philip Kramer.....	1847	J. J. Sargent.....	1845
David Bruce.....	1842	Isaac Keech.....	1837	August Spannagel.....	1846
D. C. Brooks.....	1848	Elias Kennedy.....	1845	T. C. Sanborn.....	1849
John Burns.....	1842	James McElroy.....	1848	L. C. Stewart.....	1849
L. B. Balcom.....	1844	John McCune.....	1848	Edward Stokes.....	1844
David Boynton.....	1845	Robert Mosher.....	1845	H. N. Smith.....	1847
Ira Clement.....	1847	S. J. Mattoon.....	1844	W. E. Scott.....	1845
H. E. Collins.....	1836	John W. McElroy.....	1848	W. H. Taylor.....	1846
Philander Cole.....	1837	Ira Merriam.....	1844	Lynn Town.....	1844
Sylvester Dodge.....	1845	John Manz.....	1847	Cyrus Taylor.....	1838
M. K. Dahl.....	1849	Silas Marsh.....	1840	William Thompson.....	1847
James Davison.....	1846	John Mosher.....	1845	Caroline S. Town.....	1844
E. M. Dodgson.....	1842	D. S. Morse.....	1843	John Taylor.....	1842
J. H. Elkins.....	1843	A. F. Morse.....	1843	William N. Walker.....	1846
Joseph Fairbank.....	1844	Parley Merriam.....	1844	C. B. Whitton.....	1846
August Fisher.....	1844	Nelson Merriam.....	1844	Rev. E. N. Wright.....	1844
E. Franklin.....	1846	Alexander McElroy.....	1848	Thurston Wilcox.....	1836
Rev. E. D. Farnham.....	1844	E. T. Miller.....	1844	C. H. Walker.....	1846
John S. Gee.....	1846	O. A. Morse.....	1843	Jane A. Walker.....	1846
Martin Grider.....	1843	S. W. McDonald.....	1844	H. B. Wilcox.....	1836
Charles Grant.....	1845	N. J. Newton.....	1839	Horatio Wedge.....	1844
R. L. Graham.....	1849	D. V. Nickerson.....	1845	Newel Whiting.....	1844
T. W. Gee.....	1846	John Nickerson.....	1847	H. T. Wood.....	1844
S. H. Harris.....	1845	W. G. Oliver.....	1846	Whitman Young.....	1848
C. W. Henning.....	1849

These only comprise those who settled in the State previous to the year 1850, yet all who came in that year, were admitted to participation, together with their families.

On the 2d of March, 1875, pursuant to notice and invitations, the old settlers met in Wauwun. A large company was present. An old-fashioned dinner of pork, beans and brown bread was served in abundance. Men and women partook of it with a relish. Old times and old scenes were talked over. The evening was spent in social enjoyment. All were pleased with the first Old Settlers' Club meeting.

On the 25th of November, 1875, the Executive Committee of the Club appointed December 4, 1875, as the time for the election of officers. On the day last named, James McElroy was re-elected President; John Bryce, Treasurer, and W. H. Taylor, Secretary. A resolution was then adopted, that the Club hold their annual meeting on December 21, 1875. Accordingly, on that day, the second annual meeting of the Club was held in Wauwun. It was a success. The banquet was enjoyed by about 650 old settlers and their guests. The evening was spent in social intercourse, music and literary entertainments. This meeting, though held in 1875, was really the meeting for 1876.

Owing to the inclement season of 1877, and other reasons, no annual meeting was held. The Executive Committee having previously called a meeting, for the election of officers, on the 6th day of February, 1878, all of the past officers were re-elected. A resolution was adopted that the Club hold their annual meeting for 1878 on February 15, and that all who had been residents of Waupun or vicinity for twenty years, be entitled to membership. On the day last named, the Club held their third annual meeting. The gathering was large. Old men and women, with their families, met and exchanged congratulations. A banquet was served, and many partook of the repast. The afternoon and evening was spent, by those present, in pleasant intercourse. All were pleased and all voted the meeting a success.

At this time, it was determined that the Club should not hold its annual meetings in the winter; that the next one should be held in the open air. Consequently, on the 15th of June, 1879, the fourth annual meeting of the Club was held in a grove one mile from the city, invitations to all old settlers having been extended. The novelty of an out-door meeting, the season of the year, and the pleasure of meeting old friends and faces, brought out a large assembly. A long table had been prepared and was spread, loaded with the good things of life, generously furnished by the old settlers. It was estimated that at least 1,200 partook of the ample bounty. This meeting was a success, and will be remembered by all present with pleasure. The day was beautiful, and was enlivened by music and addresses.

WISCONSIN STATE PRISON.

This institution was located in the village of Waupun during the year 1851, and opened for the reception of convicts in the spring of 1852. By a law enacted in 1851, Messrs. John Bullen, John Taylor and A. W. Worth were appointed Commissioners to determine the best point in the State for the location of a State Prison. They examined different points, and, on July 4, 1851, a majority of the Commissioners (Bullen and Taylor) decided to locate at Waupun, Mr. Worth dissenting in favor of Madison.

On July 21, 1851, a contract was made with J. K. Smith for the construction of a main, upright part of a temporary prison for $4,600, the dimensions of which were 26x80 feet, three stories high, of wood, above a stone basement. The Commissioners estimated the sum necessary to continue the erection of the prison and pay indebtedness at $25,000, and also recommended the purchase of an additional twenty acres of land, for the sum of $800, which recommendation, however, does not appear to have been acted upon.

John Taylor, of Waupun, was, March 28, 1852, appointed Commissioner by the Legislature, but was removed by Gov. Farwell before taking possession of the office, and Henry Brown, of Fond du Lac, appointed in his place, who took charge of the prison April 2, 1852.

On July 12, 1853, the Legislature directed the Commissioner to let the contract for the mason work of the south wing of the prison, and, in December following, Andrew Proudfit contracted to complete the work by December, 1854, for the sum of $12,624; it was ready for the accommodation of prisoners in January following.

In his report for the year 1853, the Commissioner put the value of personal property belonging to the State at $4,181.71.

By an act of the Legislature, the management of the State Prison was placed in the hands of a Commissioner, who was elected by the people at the general election in November, 1853, to hold his office for two years, from January 1 next succeeding the election. He appointed one person to perform the duties of Deputy and Clerk, and also appointed all other officers. The prison building, at this time, only contained sixty-seven cells: number in confinement, sixty-one.

The Commissioner, from January 1, 1854, to December 31, 1855, was A. W. Starks, of Baraboo. In accordance with a law passed by the Legislature the Commissioner, during the year 1855, let the convict labor as follows:

To Whitney & Danforth, for the labor of the convicts in the carpenter-shop, for two years, at 55 cents per day.

To Starkweather & Elmore, for the labor of convicts in tin-shop, for thirteen months, at an average rate of 48 cents per day.

To Mensink & Boland, for the labor of convicts in shoe-shop, for one year, at 60 cents per day, and 25 cents for apprentices for the first six months.

Total amount received from the State to December, 1855, $30,156.94. Prisoners confined, sixty-eight males.

E. McGarry, of Milwaukee, was the Commissioner from January 1, 1856, to December, 1857; John Lowth, Deputy. An appropriation of $10,000 had been made by the Legislature for the construction of the main or center building, but there being no money in the treasury, the wry, the Commissioner had to negotiate for the purchase of material on credit and keep the convicts employed. He also recommended the building of a stronger wall around the prison yard, as the board fence had become much decayed and afforded poor protection against escapes.

Gov. Bashford, in his message, recommended the leasing of the labor of convicts, providing, that they should be fed, clothed and furnished with the usual necessities of life by the contractors, who also should pay all expenses of guarding the prison, and allow the State a reasonable compensation for the services of the convicts.

Prisoners confined January 1, 1857, 108; received in all up to that time, 241.

E. M. McGraw, of Sheboygan, held the office of Commissioner from January, 1858, to December, 1859; James Giddings, Deputy.

Hans C. Heg, of Racine, held the office to December, 1861; L. W. Evans, Deputy.

On account of the convening of the Legislature each year early in January, it was impossible to complete the annual report for the preceding year before the meeting of that body. The time for making the annual report was therefore changed to October 1.

The Legislature also passed a law giving the Commissioner the authority to diminish the term of any convict, sentenced for a specific term, against whom no infraction of the rules had been reported, not more than five days in each month.

The foundation for nearly all the front wall was laid during the year 1861, also iron-work for front wall received, each panel weighing about 800 pounds. The prison report states that the prison continued to turn out shoes for the soldiers.

In August, 1861, the office of Deputy and Clerk was divided, one of these could not be held by the officer holding the other.

Hans C. Heg was re-nominated by the Republican State Convention, for the office of Commissioner, but afterward declined, and Alex. P. Hodges, of Oshkosh, nominated in his place, and elected; he held the office for the next two years, with Martin Mitchell as Deputy and Henry Cordier, Clerk. Seven hundred and eighty prisoners were received to September 30, 1862, of whom 116 remained in prison at that time.

The next Commissioner was Henry Cordier, of Waupun (formerly of Oshkosh), who held the office for three terms, from January, 1864 to December, 1869. John Wingender, Clerk; N. H. Palmer, Deputy.

The joint committee of the Legislature on State affairs, having recommended the construction of a sewer from the prison yard to Rock River, a distance of 2,800 feet, the Legislature appropriated the sum of $2,500 for that purpose, and work was commenced during the spring of 1864, and finished next year.

A number of convicts were let to the Green Bay Stave Company, for making barrels for a term of one year. The contract did not prove profitable, and was not renewed.

Number of prisoners confined September 30, 1865, was 99, being a decrease of 23 since the year previous; total received up to that time, 1,011.

Four thousand dollars were appropriated by the Legislature in 1866, for steam-power, and a contract was made with Hiner & Co., of Fond du Lac, for an engine of sufficient capacity to be used in the cabinet shop.

The prison buildings at this time consisted of main building (used as Commissioner's residence, office, officers' rooms, chapel and hospital), cell-room, female prison, workshops, wash-house, barn and stable and woodshed. The prison proper, or cellroom, is 200 feet long, 50 feet wide and 50 feet high; built of dressed limestone; ten windows on each side, each being 16x5 feet. In the middle part of this room is a stone block containing the cells, four tiers, 280 cells in all, which are 7 feet long, 4½ feet wide and 8 feet high; the north cellroom to be a fac-simile of the south cellroom.

The manufacture of chairs was, during the year 1868, inaugurated at the prison; a considerable number of the prisoners were employed in quarrying and cutting stone. The prisoners' dress was changed from the striped dress heretofore worn, to one uniform color—light gray—the former being used only as a means of punishment, but has since been entirely abandoned.

On January 1, 1870, George F. Wheeler, of Fond du Lac, assumed the management of the prison, having been elected Commissioner; he appointed C. S. Kelsey, of Montello, Deputy; D. B. Parkhurst, of Berlin, Clerk; Dr. H. L. Butterfield, Prison Physician.

The workshops were, on the 2d day of May, 1870, destroyed by fire; also about 300,000 feet of lumber, considerable cord-wood and other property. The shops were immediately rebuilt, and ready about January 1, 1871. They are now 375 feet long, 54 feet wide, two stories high, with engine-house attached, two dry-houses and brick smoke-stack, 110 feet high.

During the next year, Mr. Kelsey resigned his position as Deputy Warden, and was succeeded by B. H. Bettis; L. D. Hinkley was appointed Clerk, in place of D. B. Parkhurst, resigned. Mr. George F. Wheeler was re-elected Commissioner, and held the office until December, 1873.

The Legislature, during the session of 1873, passed a law, changing the management of the prison, which law went into effect in January, 1874. Three Directors were appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to hold their office for two, four and six years, and thereafter all appointments to be for six years. In place of the Commissioner, heretofore elected by the people at the general election, the Directors appointed a Warden, who has charge and custody of the prison, also appointed the Clerk, both to hold their office for a term of three years. The Warden appointed all other officers, subject to the approval of the Directors.

The Governor of the State appointed as the first Board of Directors, ex-Gov. Nelson Dewey, of Grant County, for six years; W. E. Smith, of Milwaukee, for four years; Joel Rich, of Dodge County, for two years. They met at the prison February 12, 1874, and appointed George F. Wheeler, the former Commissioner, as Acting Warden, and L. D. Hinkley, Acting Clerk.

On April 1, 1874, H. N. Smith, of Sheboygan County, was appointed Warden, and Jacob Fuss, of Brown County, Clerk, for a term of three years from January 1, 1874. The Warden appointed S. D. Hubbard, Deputy; Dr. H. L. Butterfield, Prison Physician; Rev. E. Tasker, Chaplain; G. J. Heiderman, Superintendent of Shops.

During the first year of the new administration, arrangements were made with the C., M. & St. P. R. R. to run a side track into the prison yard, for which purpose four and one-half acres of land lying between the railroad track and the prison grounds had to be bought. The manufacture of wagons was also introduced, employing from twenty-five to thirty convicts.

S. D. Hubbard resigned his position as Deputy Warden September 30, 1874, and was succeeded by V. B. Knowles, who remained until April 30, 1875, when he resigned, and Joel Rich, one of the Directors, acted as Deputy until January 1, 1876, when his term of office as Director expired, and he was appointed Deputy.

George W. Burchard, of Fort Atkinson, was, January 1, 1876, appointed one of the Directors, in place of Joel Rich, whose term had expired.

The Legislature having authorized the leasing of the labor of convicts, the Warden advertised for proposals for the labor of from fifty to seventy-five men, but no bids were received.

The Warden, H. N. Smith, and Clerk, Jacob Fuss, were re-appointed January 1, 1877, for another term of three years.

On the morning of February 1, the engine-house was burned, also about 20,000 feet of lumber, and the engine. The house was immediately rebuilt, making it a one-story building, with fire-proof roof. The engine was also repaired, and two new tubular boilers put in in place of the old flue boilers worn out.

An experiment was made by employing a number of convicts in the manufacture of brooms, which, however, did not prove satisfactory, and was therefore abandoned.

The convict labor was leased to M. D. Wells & Co., of Chicago, for the manufacture of boots and shoes, for five years from January 1, 1878, at the rate of 40 cents per day, nine and three-fourths hours to be a day's work. All other manufacture on the part of the State was therefore discontinued after January 1, except that a few men were kept in the wagon-shop, where it was intended to work up the old material on hand.

H. M. Kutchin, of Fond du Lac, was, in January, 1878, appointed one of the Directors in place of Wm. E. Smith, whose term had expired, and who had been elected Governor of the State.

Alexander White, of Fond du Lac, was, April 10, of the same year, appointed Deputy Warden in place of Joel Rich, resigned. The continued increase of the number of prisoners seemed to make it necessary to complete the north cellroom, which was done during the summer following at an expense of about $8,000.

From the Directors' and Warden's report for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1879, the following statistics are gathered: Total number of prisoners received to that time, 2,730; total number confined, 309, of which 225 were employed under contract. Age of those confined, 21 under twenty years; 47 from twenty to thirty; 65 from thirty to forty; 56 from forty to sixty; 20 over sixty. The total number of life prisoners received were: Murder, 54; murder, first degree, 29; murder, second degree, 11; rape, 2; desertion, 1—total, 97. Discharged on Governor's pardon, 31; on order of courts, 8; on order of Secretary of War, 1; removal to Insane Asylum, 3; died, 6—total, 49; leaving in prison, September 30, 1879, 48. Longest time served, 17 years; shortest, 2 years and 9 months.

The prisoners confined September 30, 1879, were received during the several years as follows: 1857, 1; 1860, 1; 1862, 1; 1863, 2; 1865, 3; 1866, 1; 1867, 2; 1868, 5; 1869, 2; 1870, 2; 1871, 5; 1872, 6; 1874, 8; 1875, 14; 1876, 22; 1877, 48; 1878, 108; 1879, 78.

On June 17, 1878, the number of prisoners was 366, the highest number ever reached.

The total amount of appropriations received from the State since the organization of the prison is $1,993,481.23, or an average of $41,240 a year to September 30, 1877. Owing to the large amount of manufactured goods, material and bills receivable on hand when the convict labor was contracted to Wells & Co., no appropriation was asked for and received, for the two years from October 1, 1877, to September 30, 1879, and none asked for the year ending September 30, 1880, the last annual report showing all bills paid, with cash on hand $11,090.

George W. Carter, of Fond du Lac, was, January 1, 1880, appointed Warden in place of H. N. Smith, whose term of office expired on that day. Jacob Fuss was re-appointed Clerk, Alexander White continued as Deputy Warden; Rev. Victor Kutchin, Chaplain; Drs. H. L. Butterfield and D. W. Moore, Prison Physicians; Henry Brooks, Turnkey.

WAUPUN A DOZEN YEARS AGO.

"Waupun, a village containing something over 3,000 inhabitants," says a writer in 1868, "is situated on the Horicon Branch of the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. The village lies in the counties of Fond du Lac and Dodge, Main street being the county line. The distance from Milwaukee is about sixty miles; from Green Bay, eighty-five miles; from La Crosse, one hundred and fifty miles, and from Madison fifty miles. There are direct railroad communications with all of these places. Chester, a small station on the C. & N-W. Railway, is situated about two and one-half miles east of the village. The ready communication thus afforded with Milwaukee, Chicago and Green Bay, renders this a better place of market than most inland towns. One great essential to the rapid growth of a place—a good water-power—is wanting here; and Waupun has been obliged to depend mainly upon the agricultural wealth of the surrounding country, and the enterprise and energy of the early settlers, for its advancement.

"The first white settlers in this locality came here between the years of 1839 and 1841. One of the first buildings, if not the first erected here, was a tavern put up by Mr. Seymour Wilcox. Soon after him, Nathan Newton, John N. Ackerman, Nathaniel Dodge and William McElroy made settlements here. Since that time, Waupun has grown slowly but steadily, and the wilderness has been converted into rich and well-cultivated farms. In the 'early days' of the settlement, Seymour Wilcox owned nearly all of the land where Waupun now stands. Gen. Winfield Scott, the hero of many a well-fought battle with our country's foes, once stopped over night at Mr. Wilcox's tavern. Before the railroad was laid through this place, most of the farmers carried their produce to Milwaukee with ox teams and heavy lumber wagons, the trip there and back taking about five days at shortest.

"I know of no more accurate criterions by which to judge a place than its churches, schools, press and saloons. At the last village election the temperance ticket was chosen, and there is not now a whisky saloon in the place. Of the churches, schools and press, I propose to speak.

"There are six churches in the village. The Congregational Church, Rev. J. M. Williams, Pastor, has a large membership, and exerts an extensive religious influence upon the community. The Methodist Church has been longest organized at this place, and probably has the largest membership. The Pastor, Rev. J. C. Robbins, has labored earnestly among his people, and with good success. The First Baptist Church, Rev. J. O. M. Hewitt, Pastor, though hardly equal to the others in membership, is not inferior in other respects. The Free-Will Baptist Church, Rev. E. N. Wright, Pastor, prospers well financially and spiritually. There are also the Trinity Protestant Episcopal Mission, Rev. Charles Thorp, Deacon in charge, and the Catholic Church, Rev. G. L. Willard.

"There are three ward schools, all well supported, and all under the direction of well qualified teachers. There has been considerable talk about establishing a central high school here, but no very energetic action has ever been taken about the matter.

"Two weekly newspapers are published here, both strongly Republican. The Waupun Times, John R. Decker, editor, is published every Tuesday, and has now nearly closed its eleventh year. The Prison City Leader has just entered its third year, and is a live local sheet, edited and published by Short & Oliver.

"Western States generally have shown much liberality in the construction of their public buildings, but perhaps none more than Wisconsin. Surely its penitentiary is one that may compare favorably with the best institutions of the kind in the Union, and has often been termed the 'model prison of the country.' The convicts are under excellent discipline, the result of the earnest labors of the present Commissioner, Mr. Henry Cordier, who has been three times elected to this office. The institution is now nearly self-supporting, and it is expected soon to be entirely so. A prison school, established a little more than a year ago, is now in successful operation.

"The manufacturing interests of Waupun are considerable. The Waupun pump, patented and manufactured by Mr. M. J. Althouse, is the premium pump of the Northwest. Mr. A. came here in the 'early days' of the village, worth but little, as far as pecuniary wealth is concerned, but containing within him the indomitable energy and perseverance which have since characterized him as an extensive business manager. He made his first pump with his own hands, and for his own well. Afterward, he made a few for his neighbors, and soon obtained a patent and started a small factory. Enlarging and erecting new buildings, he rapidly won the favor and patronage of the public, and acquired considerable property. But every one must expect reverses in fortune. Mr. Althouse was not an exception. His large manufactory was entirely destroyed by fire last winter, and Mr. A. suffered a loss of $12,000 in stock not easily replaced. Fortunately, he owned a planing-mill separate from this factory, and, building a large addition to this, he immediately converted it into a manufactory. He is now doing an immense business. He employs thirty-five hands, besides twenty-three who are engaged in the sale of the pumps throughout the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. Two teams are kept running continually from each of the points, Madison, Mineral Point, Fond du Lac, Appleton and Waukesha, in this State. Mr. A. usually makes about 6,000 pumps annually, but will turn out 7,800 this year. The timber used in the manufacture of these pumps is white-wood, and is obtained from Michigan. The machinery is all new, and is run by steam. Besides his manufactory, Mr. A. has a large building which he uses for a repository and office.

Mr. J. Lathouse

"The mammoth wagon and carriage factory of Messrs. Wells & Co. is an institution in which Waupun justly feels a pride. This firm succeeded that of A. D. Allis & Co. Mr. Wells employs thirty hands, and makes 300 wagons, 100 carriages and 50 cutters annually, selling them chiefly in the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota. He obtains his stock from the East, and gives special attention to light work.

"Messrs. Zimmerman & Geidel are doing a good business in the wagon and carriage line. This firm employs thirteen hands, and manufactures 125 wagons, 30 carriages and about 40 sleighs and cutters annually, and finds a sale for them in this State.

"The Prison City Marble Works of J. S. Gee & Son are worthy of mention. These have been established many years at this place, and work of a first-class character is done.

"Mr. Robert B. McElroy has a large door and blind factory here.

"There are four hotels, the best of which are the Carrington and New York Houses, kept respectively by A. Shipman and Charles Simpson.

"There is only one bank—the Corn Exchange—in Waupun. Its capital is $50,000. President, D. Ferguson; Cashier, W. Hobkirk.

"The flouring-mills of this place were quite useless in the summer season until Harris & Son put an engine into their mill in order to run it by steam when water was low. The other mill runs the greater part of the year, and Mr. William Warren is doing quite a good business with it. Both mills have two run of stones, one each for flour and feed."

WAUPUN FIRE COMPANY NO. 1.

Early in 1874, the village of Waupun having suffered several losses from fire which might have been avoided had there been an organized fire department, purchased a Champion Chemical fire engine at a cost of $2,000, and built a neat two-story engine-house on Main street near the railway crossing for its reception. This building cost about $750. On the 6th of October, of the same year, a meeting was held for the purpose of organizing a fire department, when the following persons signed the by-laws and became members, to serve without pay: O. A. Morse, Jr., S. J. Morse, Frank Heath, J. E. Stanton, P. M. Pryor, Albert Raymond, George Raymond, Ole Oleson, J. W. Oliver, J. A. Baker, W. E. Warren, C. H. Ackerman, P. Weidner, Isaac Thompson, S. Peterson, W. H. Purcell, E. L. Schofield, D. S. Pryor, H. D. Schulte, P. Thompson, Thomas Purcell, J. F. Jones, W. G. Oliver, C. Christophersen, H. O. Shipman, W. Blösfeldt, Thomas McDonald, D. A. Lowber, W. Germain, F. H. Robinson, E. A. Conrad, James McFarlane, J. M. Robbins, B. W. Mentink, F. R. Pierce, W. T. King, H. McRoberts, H. Hanisch, C. A. Pierce, J. Stanb, John Fieldstad, Charles Larson, Charles Hanisch, Charles Dahl and T. W. Gee. At the same time, the following officers were elected: Foreman, J. A. Baker; First Assistant, W. E. Warren; Second Assistant, P. Weidner; Secretary, J. W. Oliver; Treasurer, W. G. Oliver.

In 1878, the city purchased a water engine for $500, and caused to be made at a local shop a hose-cart, which is far more light, durable and convenient than those made for that purpose at the regular factories, and its cost was one-third less. The hook and ladder wagon and appurtenances were also made in Waupun, and are models for neatness, durability and effectiveness. The present officers of the Company are: Foreman, Drysdale Ferguson; First Assistant, T. W. Gee; Second Assistant, Frank Heath; Secretary, J. W. Oliver; Treasurer, O. A. Morse, Jr.

DODGE COUNTY MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

An act was passed by the Legislature and approved April 17, 1852, incorporating the Dodge County Mutual Insurance Company, with Edwin Hillyer, L. B. Hills, Josiah Drummond, B. Hinkley, J. N. Ackerman, George W. Bly, L. P. Preston, N. J. Newton, J. D. Tanner, Joseph T. Hillyer, J. W. Brown, J. Look and Logan Graves, as Directors.

The act declared that "the corporation shall have power and authority to make contracts of insurance with any person or persons or any body, corporate or politic, against loss by fire of any houses, stores or other buildings whatsoever, or of any goods, chattels, or personal estate whatsoever, for such term or terms of time, and for such premium or consideration as may be agreed upon by them, the said corporation, and the person or persons agreeing with them (it), for insurance. * * * Every person who shall at any time become interested in said Company, by insuring therein, and also his heirs, administrators and assigns, continuing to be insured therein, as hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed and taken to be members thereof, for and during the terms specified in their respective policies, and no longer, and shall at all times be concluded and bound by the provisions of this act."

The act of incorporation further declared that, when any loss should occur, every stockholder would be compelled to pay his proportion of it, according to the amount of insurance on his property; and the corporation would have a lien upon that property for the amount, whatever it might be. This was an unconstitutional provision, but it served the desired purpose.

At the first meeting of the Board of Directors, the salary of each was fixed at $2 per day for services actually rendered. The Company began at once to secure business, which constantly increased during nearly twenty years. Risks were taken in all portions of the State; losses were paid promptly, the assessments were light, and misfortune alone was the cause of the Company's failure. As high as $2,500 per year salary was paid to the Secretary and $1,500 to the President, with good compensation to the Directors and other officers. In the latter part of 1870, George W. Bly, the Secretary, conceived the idea of going abroad, and, as he never returned, the Company was finally compelled to go out of business, which it did in 1875, by going into bankruptcy. E. D. Foote was appointed Assignee and E. M. Beach Attorney for the Assignee. About nine hundred premium notes were sued, and a dividend of 10 per cent declared in favor of the stockholders. The notes outstanding amounted to $40,000, but many of them were worthless. The officers, from the organization down to its death, of the Dodge County Mutual Insurance Company have been as follows:

1852 and 1853—President, Edwin Hillyer; Vice President, J. D. Tanner; Secretary, L. B. Hills; Treasurer, George W. Bly.

1854, 1855, 1856 and 1857—President, Edwin Hillyer; Vice President, C. C. Cheney; Secretary, L. B. Hills; Treasurer, George W. Bly. In October, 1857, the President and Secretary having resigned, John Ware was chosen President and Edwin Hillyer Secretary for the balance of the year.

1858—President, John Ware; Vice President, E. Barker; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, G. W. Bly.

1859—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, E. Barker; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, John Ware.

1860—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, E. Barker; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, W. G. McElroy.

1861—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, E. Barker; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, Logan Graves.

1862—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, E. Barker; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, M. L. Coe.

1863—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, L. B. Hills; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, J. T. Hillyer.

1864—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, Logan Graves; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, L. B. Hills.

1865—President, George W. Bly; Vice President, Logan Graves; Secretary, Edwin Hillyer; Treasurer, George Babcock. In July, the President and Secretary resigned, and J. T. Hillyer was chosen President and George W. Bly Secretary for the balance of the year.

1866—President, Joseph T. Hillyer; Vice President, Logan Graves; Secretary, George W. Bly; Treasurer, Hanson Ely.

1867—President, J. T. Hillyer; Vice President, Logan Graves; Secretary, George W. Bly; Treasurer, D. C. Brooks.

1868—President, J. T. Hillyer; Vice President, Logan Graves; Secretary, George W. Bly; Treasurer, O. L. Ohnstead.

1869—President, J. T. Hillyer; Vice President, Logan Graves; Secretary, George W. Bly; Treasurer, W. G. McElroy.

1870—President, J. T. Hillyer; Vice President, O. L. Ohnstead; Secretary, George W. Bly; Treasurer, Townsend Carpenter. Before this term expired, Mr. Bly went on a tour from which he has never returned, and George Babcock took his place as Secretary.

1871—President, J. T. Hillyer; Vice President, George G. Marvin; Secretary, J. A. Baker; Treasurer, George Babcock. Before the year ended, the President and Treasurer resigned, and William Hobkirk was chosen President, and George F. Wheeler, Treasurer.

1872, 1873 and 1874—President, William Hobkirk; Vice President, G. G. Marvin; Secretary, J. A. Baker; Treasurer, George F. Wheeler.

1875—President, William Hobkirk; Vice President, G. G. Marvin; Secretary, J. A. Baker; Treasurer, Townsend Carpenter. In August, Mr. Hobkirk disappeared, and Chester Hazen was chosen President. Mr. Baker resigned in June, and E. D. Foote was chosen Secretary in his place.

Five or six days after Mr. Hobkirk left, the Company was declared bankrupt, and it has transacted no business since.

A CONTRAST.*

There is a marked contrast between the times of thirty-five years ago and now, in and around Waupun. Those who now live upon the same farms upon which they settled at that time cannot realize the change. Like the years of man, it has been creeping steadily on. Then the entire country was mostly one unbroken wilderness, streams and prairies. About thirty-five years ago, the great majority of land around Waupun was entered or pre-empted. Though the soil was rich and productive, yet what an amount of determination and courage was required to develop the country to make it a suitable abode for man, those who possessed that determination and courage very well know. With an unflinching hand the commencement was made; there was no putting the hands to the plow and looking back. The cabin was erected, the home, however homely, was started, the grounds were broken; then, in case there were funds left sufficient to buy the few necessaries for immediate use, that was a happy home.

At that time, there were no roads laid out or opened. The settler was compelled to travel with his ox team, in some instances, thirty or forty miles to mill, and fortunate was he who had a grist to grind. There were no schools or churches. There were none of the conveniences so requisite to make life in a new country desirable; there were none of the conveniences and privileges of to-day.

The country was rich in all the natural advantages, yet no country, however fruitful, however rich the soil, can be brought to a satisfactory state of production except by the untiring energies of man.

The commencement was made, the cabins were built, the lands were cleared and broken, and each succeeding year brought in additional numbers, so that in five years there was hardly a piece of Government land to be found.

Many coming in without money sufficient could enter no land. Did they lie down under the misfortune of having no money? No; a home they would have, and where there is a will there is a way. They pre-empted a quarter-section, and soon found an opportunity to sell for money enough to pay for an eighth.

Necessity with many of the older settlers was often great, and often became the mother of invention. Who, of this day, would think of building a wooden house without the use of boards. Our latter-day mechanics would tell you that it would be almost impossible, yet it was sometimes done, with not a board either in floor, door or casing from foundation to ridge, and it was a good, warm and cleanly kept house, and in it hospitality was extended in a regal manner.

*Adapted from an address delivered June 15, 1879, before the old settlers of Waupun and vicinity, by W. H. Taylor.

Between the old settlers, as they came in and became acquainted (and they did not wait for an introduction), there existed a bond of sympathy, a bond of love. There was a bond of friendship formed which continued for years, and which still exists.

What with all their poverty, their inconvenience, and, in many cases, their entire ignorance of life in a new country, by their determined perseverance and energy they accomplished more than many in more affluent circumstances would.

In those days manual labor, real backbone, was the great desideratum.

Agricultural and domestic implements were very crude. Contrast the difference between the appliances now used in husbandry and housekeeping with those used thirty-five years ago—those were the days of the bull-plow and crotch-drag, with wooden teeth; then bone and sinew was the motive power. From earliest morning until late at night the watchword and reply was work, work.

As soon as the land was taken and occupied, so as to have a population sufficient to form a town government, towns were laid out and organized; roads were laid out and opened; school-houses, however rude, were built, and schools, the great precursor of all good society, were opened.

Those rude schoolhouses served a double purpose: a place where the old settlers held religious service, as well as for schools. Contrast the difference between those attending service and the style and manner of that service, at that time and now.

Thirty-five years ago, those who desired to attend religious service in the style of the day, their conveyance would have been a lumber wagon, drawn by a yoke of oxen, and happy was he who could indulge in that luxury.

Think of a man at this day loading his good wife and family into a lumber wagon, and driving to either of our churches! No matter how devout; no matter what the circumstances; no matter if he had no mortgage upon his farm, and determined to have none, the universal expression would be, that man is a boor, his wife a slave, and both unfit for society.

As the years rolled on, the settler, by his industry and frugality, was enabled to exchange his cabin for a home more commodious. The farms were improved and soon began to return to the husbandman a surplus.

Milwaukee was then the only market. Men, to-day, complain of the prices paid for their produce. Thirty years ago, many a load of wheat was drawn by ox teams to Milwaukee, often requiring ten or twelve days to make the trip, and sold for four shillings per bushel.

Those were times that tried men's perseverance. Some fell by the wayside; others, with that determination characteristic of the brave man, met with that signal success born of valor and zeal. Mechanics began to come in, and, in almost every department of mechanism, the artisan had something to do. Mills were built, thereby relieving many of the terrible inconveniences the old settlers had to contend with.

As soon as the farms began to produce more than required for the family, thereby having something to exchange for merchandise, stocks of merchandise were brought in and opened.

From the earliest settlement up to twenty-five years ago, the settlers had kept on in the even tenor of their ways; contentment and thrift, peace and good will, among and with all were kindred associates. Our own beautiful village (now city—mark the change!) was being built up. Men of the different professions found a place where to lay the foundation for reputation and wealth. Most signally have many of them failed to reach the mark aimed at, while others, more successful, are enjoying the fruit of their labors, and wear their honors well.

About that time that memorable enterprise so well remembered by most of you, to wit, the building of a railroad from Milwaukee northwest, to run through our section, was started.

Many still living have a recollection of the ease with which they could mortgage their homes to aid in that enterprise. Many, who had so mortgaged their farms, will remember the hardships and difficulties encountered in redeeming their homes.

Up to this time there had been no marked distinctions in society, no graded classes. The honest poor man was a peer with the more affluent. Then poverty was no crime, there was that fraternal feeling existing between all the people, which characterized them, and which left an indelible impression upon the mind that can only be eradicated by death.

From twenty-five down to twenty years ago, there had been no very marked change; the industry and frugality that had characterized the lives of very many of the first settlers were then prominent, and I can truthfully say is a marked feature with them to-day. As industry and frugality were with them the cynosure to success, so it will be with any and all people.

Railroads opened into the county, new branches of enterprise started, an influx of men who had nothing to lose, but everything to gain, bent upon getting a living and wealth by their wits, and too often at the expense of every moral principle. Teachers of almost every creed known, either social, political or moral, setting forth their peculiar dogmas, teaching a new order of things, the influence of which was then deeply felt, and in some instances to-day lamentably deplored; all these with many other influences brought to bear, it is not strange that a radical change should have been produced upon society.

From the earliest settlement to twenty-five and even down to twenty years ago, the wants of the settler were few and easily supplied. That which they could not buy and pay for they went without, but now a change was approaching, and, indeed, we may say a change had come.

The county being settled up, the farms better improved, society of a grade said to be more refined introduced; the children, growing to manhood and womanhood, anxious to adopt the advancing style of the day; schools of a higher grade established; fine churches built, whose pulpits were occupied by salaried ministers; the means of communication being supplied; agricultural and domestic implements of a higher and more costly grade being introduced in place of those now worn out. The consequent attendants of an additional and heavy expense in supporting all these, it is not strange that a change should come. Under the rigid economy of the old settler, with his determination to be free and untrammelled from debt, too many of them were seemingly compelled to succumb to the influences, the demand and seeming necessities of the times, and, as Adam yielded to the importuning of Eve, to eat the apple, and thereby fell from his high estate, so, in some instances, we find the old settler who had a home free and unincumbered, a fireside around which he could rally his family and say, this is my possession, listened to the siren song sung by all these influences, and, listening, fell, a slave to style, a slave to things external and perishable, a slave to his own folly.

The people felt the effects of that change then, and it is felt to-day.

The query arises, Are the people to-day more happy, more prosperous? Is society better? Is the standard of morals higher under the enhanced cost of living and supporting caste and style than were the old settlers in their honest industry and frugality? In short, are the people more happy? Are they more contented? Do they enjoy themselves better with a "plaster" on their farms and homes, though they dress in style and ride in a coach, than did the old settlers with homes free and unincumbered, though they dressed in homespun and rode in lumber wagons?

One thing is certain, and that is that manual labor and the demand for it is the measure of a people's prosperity. In the earlier days, the farmers' sons were educated for farm work, the noblest of all professions; to-day they are educated for all other professions, and, in every other kind of business, there is an over-supply of labor. The farms are deserted by the farmers' sons, and machinery takes their place, the result is the country is filled with idlers and tramps.

When, by the introduction of any of the appliances, the demand for labor is cut short; when we see honest labor go begging for work and none to be had, then we may readily conclude that our country, in its financial condition, is not prosperous.

No country can be prosperous in all its enterprises where the masses have only employment and wages sufficient to enable a man to support his family and educate his children.

No country can be prosperous where labor does not receive its just reward, or where the expense of living is greater than the income.

That there are errors in our system of living is a foregone conclusion. The question for old settlers to consider is, What is the remedy? It is suggested that a strict adherence to those habits of a rigid economy, industry and punctuality that so characterized the fathers; a strict adherence to honesty and sobriety; a fraternal regard for all; a strict observance of these rules will place us on a higher plane, and mark our distinction among our fellow-men.

WAUPUN SCHOOLS.

District Number 1.—The first school opened in Waupun was taught in 1844, by Charles Cleveland, in a small wooden building, situated on the line between Fond du Lac and Dodge Counties, near where the railway crosses Washington street. The schoolhouse was large enough to seat thirty scholars, but there were by no means thirty school children in Waupun at that time. The district was No. 1, and composed the territory of the present city of Waupun, a portion of the town of Waupun in Fond du Lac, and a portion of the town of Chester, in Dodge County.

In 1847, the original school building having become inadequate to satisfy the demands made upon it by the rapidly increasing numbers of school children, a new frame building was erected on the corner of Madison and Jefferson streets, where the Episcopal Church edifice now stands, in the South Ward. This served for District No. 1 until 1853, when the building now used by Utter as a warehouse, on Washington street, was built. On the 23d of September, 1853, $1,000 was pledged for the erection of a schoolhouse, and A. K. Starkweather, E. Munger, John Ware, Charles Smith and B. B. Baldwin, were appointed a building committee, with instructions to purchase not less than one acre of land for a site. They purchased the land on which the present South Ward building now stands, and erected the building now owned by Mr. Utter.

On the 22d of October, 1860, by a resolution offered by Eli Hooker, District No. 1 was divided into two districts, the line between Dodge and Fond du Lac Counties separating them.

The Clerks of District No. 1 were W. H. Taylor, Eli Hooker, S. K. Vaughn, B. Hinkley, B. B. Baldwin, A. K. Starkweather, Jesse Hooker, Charles Smith, Cromwell Laithe and William Euen.

The South Ward School.—After the division, in 1860, of District No. 1, that portion lying in Dodge County was called the South Ward School and continued to use the school building that had served the undivided district. The number of school children continued to increase, and, in 1872, $10,000 was voted for a new building of brick and stone. Thomas H. Green, of Fond du Lac, furnished the plans, and the contract for constructing the edifice was let to A. Wisnom, of the same city. The building is a handsome two-story structure of brick, with basement and cupola, and contains four commodious schoolrooms, capable to accommodate 400 scholars. It was finished in 1872, and the old school building was sold to Graves & Norton. In 1877, a high school department was organized, and money for its support is obtained annually from the State. The average in the South Ward is 220, divided in four departments—the high school, grammar, intermediate and primary, requiring five teachers. In the high school department, all the higher branches and languages are taught. The average wages paid to male teachers is $80 per month, and to female teachers $31.25 per month.

The Secretaries of the South Ward District have been William Euen, John Ware, Ira Hill and L. D. Hinkley.

The North Ward School.—The North Ward, after being set off as a separate district in October, 1860, had no schoolhouse. A lot on Franklin street containing three-fourths of an acre of land was therefore purchased of Seymour Wilcox for $450, and early in 1861, the erection of the present plain but substantial brick and stone structure began. The plan was furnished by Mr. Whiting, who also had the contract for the wood-work. Eli Hooker was overseer of the work of construction. The building cost something over $6,000, and was finished for occupancy in the fall of 1861. It contains four large rooms, which accommodate 250 pupils. The school is divided into four graded departments, the same as the South Ward School, and gives employment to five teachers. The high school department has quite a number of foreign scholars, and the room is crowded.

In 1868, all the records and papers of the North Ward School were burned. The clerks have been Eli Hooker, M. J. Althouse, A. Nudd, W. J. Oliver and Emil Hauelsen.

THE POST OFFICE.

The first Postmaster to serve the inhabitants of Waupun and vicinity was Seymour Wilcox, who was appointed in the winter of 1840 and 1841, and kept the office in his log house near where the old family residence now is. He received no stated salary, and the revenue of the office at first was very little, indeed, only a few letters coming into his hands during the first year. There were neither envelopes nor postage-stamps in use then, and the Postmaster collected 25 cents for an ordinary letter from the person to whom it was directed. Even at that exorbitant rate the settlers were thankful enough to get a letter, and whenever one arrived the whole neighborhood knew it, and sooner or later learned the contents of the precious missive. Mr. Wilcox was succeeded as Postmaster by B. Hinkley.

In 1848, John N. Ackerman secured the appointment of Postmaster, and moved its office to his residence in "Upper Town," or the western portion of the village. As there had been a spirited rivalry between Upper and Lower Towns for some time, the inhabitants of the latter naturally rebelled at having the office moved a half-mile to the west. They could do but little, however, but complain, until the ingenuity of William Euen brought both revenge and a return of the post office. He drafted a general order demanding that the Postmaster deliver to him whatever mail might be in the office for persons whose names were signed to the document. As all the people of "Lower Town" signed this order, Mr. Ackerman was obliged to deliver the mail to Mr. Euen, who thereafter was compelled to take a horse to transport the large quantities of letters and papers directed to people living in "Lower Town." Finally, early in 1849, L. B. Hills received a commission as Postmaster, and the post office was moved back to "Lower Town." Mr. Hills served nearly four years.

In 1853, Artinadorus Ingersoll was appointed Postmaster by Franklin Pierce to succeed Mr. Hills, but was removed before the end of the year for refusing to obey the orders of the politicians in appointing a deputy, and Cromwell Laithe was appointed to take his place. Mr. Laithe served the balance of the term, and soon after Buchanan took his seat as President in 1857, Thomas Stoddart was appointed Postmaster. He served four years, until June, 1861, when J. H. Brinkerhoff, the present incumbent, was appointed by Abraham Lincoln. The Waupun post office became a money-order office in August, 1866.

During several years after the office was first established, mail was sent and received only once each week, and when the mail carrier arrived twice a week, the inhabitants thought there could be nothing like modern mail facilities. Now, mail is received and sent out six times each twenty-four hours, and the revenue of the office amounts to nearly $1,000 per quarter. When the Dodge County Mutual Insurance Company was doing business, the Waupun post office paid out through its money-order department as much as any office in the State, with two or three exceptions.

When Mr. Hinkley was Postmaster, he carried the letters remaining in the office to all great occasions in the crown of his hat. When, therefore, any one asked whether there was any mail in the office, he took the office from his head and looked over the little package of begrimed missives in short order, handing out whatever he found for parties present. The inhabitants regarded this as a great convenience, and were not backward in praising Mr. Hinkley for establishing the post office on the top of his head.

WAUPUN AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL ASSOCIATION.

This society was organized in 1868, holding its first fair in the fall of that year, at Waupun. There were seven annual exhibitions by the society. The organization wound up its affairs in 1875. Except financially, its fairs were always a success; they had a material influence for good upon the agricultural interests of the vicinity.

CEMETERIES.

The First Burial Place.—A knoll of dry land near the railroad store where the C., M. & St. P. Railroad crosses Washington street, was first used as a burial place by the inhabitants of Waupun. When the railroad was built, the graves were all defaced and dug over, and no one knows now precisely where the first graves were located.

Waupun Cemetery.—In 1853, a tract of one and one-half acres of land was purchased of John N. Ackerman, on the west side of the Beaver Dam road in Dodge County, in Section 5, and named Waupun Cemetery. This was used mostly by the people of Upper Town and vicinity during several years, but in 1862, when Forest Mound Cemetery was opened, it nearly fell into desuetude.

Forest Mound Cemetery.—In 1860, Thomas Stoddart made a visit to the cemetery at Alton, Ill., and was then impressed with the idea that Waupun had no such burial place as the inhabitants and the beautiful surroundings entitled her to. "Go back to Waupun," said Mrs. Brown to Mr. Stoddart, "and open a beautiful cemetery, and do make it large enough, for there is plenty of room in this country for the dead to have eternal sleep undisturbed." Mrs. Brown was a Scotch lady, and made such a remark because in Scotland the want of room is so great in cemeteries that corpses are buried one upon another, and seven years is about as long as the dead can be allowed to rest without being dug up to make room for others. The subject was thereafter agitated in Waupun, and resulted in a meeting at the office of W. H. Taylor, when the statutes concerning cemeteries were consulted. On the 16th of November, 1862, W. H. Taylor, George W. Bly, Thomas Oliver, Thomas Stoddart, Charles Jones, T. W. Markle, H. L. Butterfield, A. W. McNaughton and William Hobbirk were chosen Directors or Trustees of Forest Mound Cemetery, and these nine, with Edwin Hillyer, subscribed $75 each for twelve acres of shaded, hilly, dry land, on Section 32, in Fond du Lac County. Thomas Stoddart platted the grounds into lots and laid out the carriage ways. The lots are all of uniform size, each lot and walk being one rod in width. The grounds had many oak shade trees, just as nature planted them, and evergreens and maples have been added since, until Forest Mound Cemetery is an attractive spot.

W. H. Taylor was Secretary until 1867, and Thomas Stoddart has occupied that position ever since. There has been no change in the Board of Trustees, although some of them are dead and others permanently absent.

PUBLIC HALLS.

Dodge's Hall.—The first public hall in Waupun was called Dodge's Hall. It is now owned by Thomas Stoddart, and known as Grange Hall. It was finished in 1856, and was the pride of the village in those days.

Opera Hall.—The principal hall of Waupun is Opera Hall, built by Thomas Oliver, in 1868. It is light and high, capable of accommodating 500 persons, and well appointed as to stage property and scenery. It is owned by Luther Butts, and situated in the second story of the large brick block on the corner of Mill and Washington streets.

Other Halls.—Utter's Hall, in the second story of the old South Ward School-house, is a large room frequently used for balls and other public entertainments and meetings. It is on Washington street, opposite the Simpson House. O'Donovan's Hall, in the fine brick block belonging to Patrick O'Donovan, is used mostly for dances, balls and festivals. The Good Templars' and Odd Fellows' Societies have halls, but they are little used except for lodge meetings.

HOTELS.

Simpson House.—This hotel, of which Mrs. M. A. Simpson is proprietor, is a well-kept house, and consists of two buildings situated on the north side of Washington street, east of the railroad. Mrs. Simpson makes a success of hotel keeping.

Fisher House.—This hotel, by the Fisher Brothers, is on the site of the old Exchange, built by Seymour Wilcox, now the corner of Fond du Lac and Washington streets. It is well patronized.

Other Hotels.—The Western Hotel and Hanisch's Gast-Haus are the other hotels of Waupun.

FUN IN YE OLDEN TIME.

Along in the forties, Waupun was notorious for practical jokes, lively social gatherings, wide-awake old folks and tricky young ones. A few illustrations will be given to convey an idea of what was constantly kept up by the fun-lovers for nearly twenty years.

By invitations, and other modes of advertising, David Bruce once gathered a large crowd at his place for a dance, but the fiddlers failed to appear. Dennis Morse and a companion were present, and being a good whistler, Dennis was requested to whistle for the dance while Mr. Bruce drove five miles for a fiddler. Dennis complied, and his friend thumped a sonorous dishpan, to enable the dancers to keep time. Bruce found no musician, and, on returning, requested Dennis to keep on with the whistle and dishpan while he went for yet another fiddler. Both journeys were unsuccessful, but the dance went off merry enough, and Mr. Bruce collected the usual fee to "pay the fiddlers." When the crowd had gone, Mr. Morse inquired of Mr. Bruce if he was still agent for the Moline plows—if so, he would take one, provided credit could be extended until spring. Credit was offered, and Mr. Morse took the plow. When spring came, Mr. Bruce dunned Mr. Morse for pay for the plow. "Pay!" exclaimed Dennis; "I paid you well enough when I whistled for your dance." Mr. Bruce was indignant, and sued for the value of the plow. Mr. Morse, as a good joke, put in a counterclaim for whistling and pounding on the dishpan, and won the suit! From that day, David Bruce never engaged a whistler until he had agreed upon terms.

When Dr. H. L. Butterfield first came to Waupun, he had neither money nor clothes, and as people were very backward about getting sick enough to require a physician's services, his condition grew worse instead of better. Finally, the wife of Mr. N., one of their prominent citizens, fell ill, and the husband sent for Dr. Butterfield. The Doctor did not appear as ordered, and a few hours later, Mr. N. called at his office and personally requested Dr. Butterfield to go and attend to his wife. Mr. N. returned home, but no Doctor appeared that day. Next morning, he called at the Doctor's office, and again demanded "why in christendom his wife was not attended to?" "I'll tell you," meekly replied Dr. Butterfield, who now smokes rich Havanas in a luxurious home; "I am too ragged to go anywhere—I can't even leave my chair when anybody is around." "I can fix you out," said Mr. N.; "you just put on my pantaloons and visit the woman. I can stay here till you return." The Doctor pulled off his dilapidated trousers, consisting of nothing but short legs and a weak waistband, donned his customer's suit and left. He paid a visit to the patient, and spent a half-day in making other visits and calls, and attending to business that he had neglected a fortnight for want of pantaloons. When he returned to his office, he found Mr. N. nearly insane. People had called on him in numbers, and as he couldn't possibly get into the ragged, short-legged unmentionables left by the Doctor, he had to receive in his bare legs or shin down the streets in the same ludicrous condition. No little merriment has been had over this laughable circumstance.

Joseph Hobkirk was at one time Justice of the Peace. As such, a certain young man was brought before him to be tried for stealing a turkey. The prosecution had a shrewd lawyer; the case was well presented and the evidence of guilt was overwhelming. However, to the great astonishment of all—even the prisoner—and the disgust of the plaintiff and his attorney, Justice Hobkirk decided "Not guilty." Shortly afterward, he was taken to task by the angry plaintiff for rendering such an unjust verdict. "You see," replied the sly Justice, "I couldn't find the boy guilty, for he didn't steal the turkey, and knew nothing about it. You just come along with me to dinner, for my wife is an expert at roasting turkeys, and then tell me if you don't think the old bird was worth catching." Thus the joke leaked out.

Thirty years ago, or more, heavy merchandise was very costly in Waupun, owing to heavy freight rates. Salt, in particular, was regarded by the farmers as a most burdensome necessity on this account. When, therefore, on one bright winter's morning it was announced that a salt well of great strength had been struck on Dr. Butterfield's lot, a perfect furor of excitement ensued. The glorious news spread far and wide, and the usually quiet little village was soon crowded with an excited populace, who had come in from miles around. Salt water from the rich bonanza well was handed freely around; was sipped by every one and pronounced by many who professed themselves judges, to be equal to water from the famous Syracuse wells. It was found in every store; was carried home in bottles; boiled down by many to test its strength; and analyzed by a village expert, and found to contain soda, magnesia and other ingredients, and a very large percentage of pure salt. Property rose at a bound two or three hundred per cent, and, as the location of the State Prison was still an unsettled matter, a meeting of the citizens was called and a committee appointed to draw up and forward to Madison a full statement of the rich discovery, which was thought would be a powerful lever to use with the prison locating Committee in favor of Waupun. But, on account of a private dispatch, this letter was not sent, and, when the citizens found out that fact, a howl of indignation went up against the Postmaster, who was denounced as a traitor. Immediately, steps were taken to oust him from his office, and the excitement grew more intense than ever. Matters finally began to look serious, as property was advancing, leases were being made and various improvements planned, and the secret was let out that a young Scotch clerk, who is now an old Scotch hardware merchant, had poured half a barrel of rock-salt into the famous well. Next day, not a man could be found who would acknowledge that he had been sold, but a peep into several woodsheds would have disclosed dozens of tin pans spoiled in boiling down water from the salt well.

Richard Graham, the clothier, was very bashful in his earlier days. He, therefore, was made the butt of numerous practical jokes. On one occasion he invited a friend to a New Year's dinner. The wags of the village issued between one hundred and two hundred invitations to the best people in the vicinity to appear at his house to dine on New Year's Day, signing Mr. Graham's name. Enough of them came to fill the house, much to the chagrin and consternation of all, as there was not food enough in the house to feed one-quarter of those present. However, necks had not begun to grow stiff in those days, and the joke was taken good-naturedly.

John Carhart came to Waupun unmarried, and soon after began to pay marked attention to one of the village belles. Occasionally, he prolonged his visits well into the night. Two fun-loving Scotchmen, who afterward became prominent business men, stretched a rope across the street on which John would return, and attached to it a man of straw. This straw man was placed in the path, and the boys posted themselves on house-tops on either side of the street, each grasping one end of the rope. Just as Mr. Carhart reached the spot, the rope was jerked and the straw man shot into the air past his head. The sight of a man springing from the ground into the air like a rocket was so unusual that the frightened lover took to his heels and was never seen to pass that spot alone after dark.

Other tricks without number were perpetrated by a certain mischievous clique, whose members are now the principal citizens of Waupun, such as temporarily stealing horses, cows, fowls, carriages and anything come-at-able; sending out bogus wedding cards, frightening excitable individuals by arresting and trying them on bogus processes for various crimes; sending the doctors post haste where they were not wanted; causing prominent men to be sued for bogus bills of indebtedness; using young ladies' names to invite Tom, Dick and Harry to call; charging losses by theft upon innocent but nervous parties, and keeping the vicinity in an uproar generally, and everybody on nettles lest they should be made the butts of practical jokes. There was only now and then one who would not take these pranks in good part, and all such were reserved for further tantalization.

CHAPTER XI.

TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

Fond du Lac County, when town organization was first consummated, was all one town, that of Fond du Lac, as the following imperfect act, passed January 2, 1838, will show:

SECTION 34. That the country included within the limits of Fond du Lac County be and the same is hereby set off into a separate town, by the name of Fond du Lac; and the polls of election shall be open at the house of --Pyer [Edward Pier].

Then, March 8, 1839, another act was passed, making three towns of the county, as follows:

SECTION 41. Fractional townships sixteen and seventeen, in range eighteen, and townships sixteen and seventeen, in range nineteen, shall be a separate town by the name of Calumet; and the elections in said town shall be holden at George White's store.

SEC. 42. All that district of country within the limits of Fond du Lac County, not included within the towns of Calumet and Batte des Morts,* shall be a separate town by the name of Fond du Lac; and the elections in said town shall be holden at the dwelling of M. C. Darling.

Then, again, by an act approved February 18, 1842, the county was divided as explained by this act:

SECTION 1. That townships fourteen, fifteen and sixteen, of range sixteen; townships fourteen and fifteen, and fractional township sixteen, of range seventeen, and townships thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, and the south half of township sixteen, of range eighteen, and townships thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, and the south half of township sixteen, of range nineteen, be and the same are hereby organized into a separate town, by the name of Fond du Lac; and the first election in said town shall be held at the house of M. C. Darling.

SEC. 2. That fractional township seventeen and the north half of town[ship] sixteen, of range nineteen, be and the same are hereby organized into a separate town by the name of Calumet; and the first election in said town shall be held at the house of George White.

SEC. 3. That townships fourteen, fifteen and sixteen, of range fourteen, and townships fourteen, fifteen and sixteen, of range fifteen, be and the same are hereby organized into a separate town by the name of Waupun; and the first election in said town shall be held at the house of Seymour Wilcox.

ASHFORD.

This town was first a constituent part of the town of Auburn in its organization, but was set off from it and separately organized in 1849, the first election being held in April of that year, at the house of William Boener, at which Robert E. Adams was elected Chairman, and George Thorn, Town Clerk.

The territory included in Ashford is Township 13 north, in Range 18 east, of the Government survey, containing, theoretically, thirty-six sections, or 23,040 acres of land. In reality, it has 23,096 $\frac{27}{100}$ acres, being 56 $\frac{27}{100}$ acres more than thirty-six full sections. Its boundary lines were surveyed by Mullett & Brink, in the first quarter of 1834 and during the second quarter of 1835; while its sections and quarter-sections were run out in the third quarter of the last-mentioned year, by Hiram Burnham.

The first settlement in Ashford was made in the summer of 1846, by Henry Barnett, Josiah L. Perry, Charles Crownhart, and several others, who settled in the easterly part of the town, near the West Branch of the Milwaukee River, not far from where Crouchville was afterward located. On their arrival, they found not a human habitation within many miles, except the little beginning commenced by Mr. Crouch. They soon threw up log shanties, and commenced clearing land for crops for the ensuing year. They had many hardships to meet and overcome. The town had neither prairies nor openings ready for the plow, but was everywhere covered with timber. Hard-maple trees were found in abundance, affording rare opportunities for the manufacture of maple sugar. Basswood, ash, elm, oak, hickory, butternut with other kinds of hardwood constituted the forest growth.

* Townships eighteen and nineteen, in ranges fifteen and sixteen, and fractional townships eighteen and nineteen, in range seventeen, in Batte des Morts. First election at the house of Webster Stanley.

The surface of Ashford is undulating, or, perhaps, it may with propriety be called hilly. The soil is uniformly strong and fertile, and much of it of a warm nature. The hills are underlaid with limestone, and the soil is clay and loam, with sand, producing good wheat, oats, peas, and other grains, and excellent pasturage. The valleys are alluvial and very fertile; grain of all kinds has a luxuriant growth. These lowlands, when stocked-down, make excellent meadows. The town is well watered—the West Branch of the Milwaukee River running through it from northwest to southeast, receiving several tributaries upon both its sides. Springs and small brooks also abound.

Among the annoyances which the early settlers had to contend with, was the ferocity of bears; these were numerous, and they became bold and frequently dangerous.

The first death which occurred in Ashford was that of Mrs. Electa Pryor. Her daughter, Mrs. Watson, died so soon after, that they were both buried in the same grave. The first birth was that of C. D. Helmer, in the family of J. E. Helmer. The first marriage was Eleazer Cisco, to Miss Fanny Pryor.

The first school was taught by Miss Calista Colvin, in the house of J. L. Perry, in the summer of 1847. The first religious meeting was held at the house of Henry Barnett; the sermon was preached by Mr. Sears, in 1846.

Ashford is bounded on the north by the town of Eden, on the east by Auburn, on the south by Wayne, in Washington County, and on the west by Lomira, in Dodge County.

The Northwestern Union, or Air Line Railroad crosses the northeastern part of this town, entering it at the southeast corner of Section 13, and, after a northwesterly course of over three miles, leaves it on the north line of Section 2, crossing into the town of Eden, on its way to the city of Fond du Lac, ten miles distant.

Ashford was originally organized as the town of Chili; but for some reason this name was not satisfactory, and by act of the Legislature, approved January 26, 1854, it was changed to Ashford, which, it is said, was suggested on account of the great quantity of ash timber growing in the town. This name was given by Dr. S. G. Pickett.

On the 14th of February, 1874, the Ashford Fire Insurance Company was organized with thirty-two members. The towns of Ashford, Auburn and Eden, in Fond du Lac County, and Lomira, Dodge County, compose this company. The meetings are held annually on the first Monday in January, at the Carter Schoolhouse, in Ashford. The capital stock subscribed at the organization was $37,600; the amount insured (1889) is $985,338; total losses paid, $4,500; percentage of loss, .9112; number of members, fifty-seven. The Presidents have been: A. Dieringer, H. J. Carter and Thomas Coleman, who has held the office since 1876. J. A. Hendricks, of Ashford, has been Secretary since the organization of the company.

The Chairmen and Town Clerks of Chili and Ashford have been as follows: 1850—Daniel B. Wilcox and Seth G. Pickett; 1851—D. B. Wilcox and Ely B. Hull; 1852 and 1853—Henry B. Crowhart and Ed. Boener; 1854—Peter Johnson and Jacob Haessly; 1855—Peter Johnson and E. B. Hull; 1856 and 1857—Jacob Haessly and John Mauel; 1858—P. Johnson and J. Mauel; 1859—Andrew Hendricks and J. Haessly; 1860—Andrew Dieringer and John Mauel; 1861 and 1862—Joseph Wagner and John Mauel; 1863—J. Wagner and John Berg; 1864—A. Dieringer and J. Berg; 1865, 1866 and 1867—A. Dieringer and Peter Mauel; 1868—P. Johnson and P. Mauel; 1869—P. Johnson and J. Berg; 1870—George Anderson and P. Mauel. Since 1870, except for 1877, when George C. Denniston filled the office, Peter Mauel has been Town Clerk. The Chairmen since then have been: 1871—Jacob Haessly; 1872 and 1873—Peter Johnson; 1874—Michael Serwe; 1875, J. A. Hendricks, since which time Michael Thelen has held the office of Chairman.

The first land was entered in the fall of 1846, by Henry Barnett, in the southeast quarter of Section 11.

The first settler in the northwestern portion of the town was E. Welton. He was also one of the first Postmasters in Ashford.

The first frame house was built by R. F. Adams.

ASHFORD.—This village (Elmore Post Office) was formerly called Leglerville, after its founder, Ulrich Legler, who platted it and built a saw mill in 1857. He also built a grist-mill here in 1861, on the West Branch of the Milwaukee River. In 1867, the Evangelical Reformed Church erected a building here for worship, having one, also, at New Cassel. The first Postmaster was C. F. Brokmeyer; the present Postmaster is William Reinhartt. The village contains a store, saloon, wagon-shop, meat market, shoe store, tailor-shop and blacksmith-shop.

CAMPBELLSPORT.—This village and post office had a very recent and novel birth. The Air Line Railway folks desired to establish a station on H. B. Martin's farm of 120 acres, Section 13. He would sell no fractional part, but offered the whole of his farm for $10,000. Stuart Campbell purchased the farm, gave the railroad company three acres, the company afterward buying three more, and platted a village. Jacob Haessly named the place Campbellsport, in August, 1873, on the day the deed for Martin's farm was signed, in honor of its public-spirited founder. It is now a thrifty village. The first lot was sold to J. M. Saeman, and the second to James McCulloch, who built thereon the first store. Mr. Saeman built the third store and second warehouse. All of the original plat, except sixty-three acres, has been sold in village lots.

The first organization of Methodists was in December, 1862, and meetings were held in the Carter Schoolhouse. The organizers were, some of them, J. N. McSchooler and wife, L. Norton and wife, William L. Andrews and wife, George Mosher and wife and Leonard Goodax. Regular services were not held until the present edifice was erected in 1875, at a cost of $3,200. The members number over forty. The building committee was composed of J. N. McSchooler, W. Saeman and William S. Hendricks. The first organization was by Rev. McFarland, and the first Trustees, in 1862, were: J. N. McSchooler, President; W. L. Andrews, William Dusenbury, Stuart Campbell, W. S. Hendricks and M. Saeman. Mr. McSchooler is still President, the other Trustees being John Hughes, F. A. Rosco, J. H. Denniston, W. L. Andrews, S. Campbell and W. S. Hendricks. A Union Sabbath School, begun in 1862, at the Carter Schoolhouse, is still in existence.

Wicker Lodge, No. 138, I. O. O. F., was organized January 8, 1868, by G. M. Cheeney, of Janesville. The charter members were S. L. Marston, I. S. Sheldon, E. P. Odekirk, D. Wilcox, R. Romaine, G. Romaine, T. F. Gage, M. H. Flint and Mr. Hancock. The Lodge, which now numbers fifty working members and owns $1,200 in property, including the hall and lot, was named after Grand Warden Wicker. The first officers were: S. L. Marston, N. G.; M. H. Flint, V. G.; E. P. Odekirk, R. S.; Mr. Hancock, P. S.; G. Romaine, Treasurer. Present officers: G. C. Denniston, N. G.; T. F. Wicker, V. G.; E. P. Coburn, R. S.; C. F. Ladwig, P. S.; E. F. Martin, Treasurer.

New Cassel Lodge, I. O. G. T., was first organized as the old Ashford and Auburn Lodge, by S. G. Pickett and wife, J. E. Hehner, E. P. Odekirk, William and S. Tattle, H. Burnett, Martin Dyer and others, who belonged to the Kewaskaw Lodge, organized in 1859. S. G. Pickett was the first W. G. T.; Mrs. E. P. Odekirk, W. V. T., and George Pickett, W. S. The twenty-eight members soon grew to two hundred, and met weekly in what is now Odd Fellows' Hall. The war took so many members away that the charter was finally surrendered. In 1872, however, J. S. Thompson began open temperance meetings, which, December 11, 1874, resulted in the organization, by Deputy G. W. C. T. Ross, of the present strong Lodge, with thirty-one charter members. J. S. Thompson was the first W. C. T. Meetings were held in Odd Fellows' and Yancy's Halls until 1877, when a hall, costing $1,000, was erected by the Lodge, under supervision of J. S. Thompson, H. Darrow and A. H. Miller. The first $50 was raised by the ladies, who held sociables and made fancy work for that purpose. The hall is 28x55x14 feet, and will seat two hundred. It is an ornament to the village. The Lodge now numbers one hundred, mostly young people.

New Cassel and Campbellsport Turnverein was organized November 18, 1878, by Dr. L. Eidemiller, Adam Holzhauser and others. The first officers were: D. Gudex, President; A. Holzhauser, Treasurer; P. Tillaek, Secretary; L. Eidemiller, Turnwart. The society now has forty members. Meetings are held on Friday evenings, in Good Templars' Hall. Present officers: L. Eidemiller, President; John Schrooten, Vice President; M. Herbert, Secretary; J. Dagenhardt, Treasurer; J. Terlinden, First Turnwart, and A. Fuchs, Second Turnwart.

The New Cassel and Campbellsport Literary Society, with a membership of twenty, is in a flourishing condition. Its entertainments consist of lectures, debates, readings and affairs in that line. It was first organized in 1879.

Campbellsport has a large local trade. In the place are one drug store, four general stores, one elevator, two warehouses, two lumber-yards, two wagon and blacksmith shops, pump-factory, boot and shoe store, harness-shop, barber-shop, furniture store, two tailor-shops, meat-market, picture-gallery, cheese-factory, cigar-factory, two saloons and three hotels—Railroad House, New Cassel House and Central Hotel. S. L. Marston is the only physician and S. C. Matteson the only lawyer in the place. Platt Durand is Postmaster.

AUBURN.

In the southeast corner of Fond du Lac County lies the town of Auburn. It is bounded on the north by the town of Osceola, east by Scott, in Sheboygan County; south by Kewaskum, in Washington County, and west by Ashford, in the county of Fond du Lac. It contains thirty-six sections of land, but these are not all full sections. The actual number of acres in the town is 22,901.99, being 138.01 acres less than the full 36 sections—23,040 acres. The territory of Auburn includes that platted by the United States as Township 13 north, in Range 19 east. The township lines were run during the first quarter of the year 1834, by Mullett & Brink. It was subdivided into sections and quarter-sections during the second quarter of 1835, by Deputy Surveyor Hiram Burnham. By him the lake on Sections 10 and 15 was called "Crooked Lake;" the one on Sections 11, 12, 13 and 14 was named "Off-Set Lake." But these names were not retained.

The face of Auburn is smooth in appearance, though not level in surface; it is gently undulating, with ascents and declivities of various heights and depths. The streams of water—of which the principal are the three branches of Milwaukee River—flow with a strong current. Lying as it does within the broad belt of heavy-timbered land skirting the northerly part of the western shore of Lake Michigan, the territory now included in the town of Auburn presented to the eye, in its natural state, neither prairie, openings, nor hay marsh—nothing but continuous woods. The forest trees proclaimed the excellence and fertility of the soil which sustained their growth: the principal of which were sugar-maple, basswood, elm, black ash, white ash, red oak, white oak, hickory and butternut. The large groves of sugar-maple offered excellent opportunities for manufacturing maple sugar.

The soil of this town is a deep, black, sandy loam, with a mixture of marl, and a subsoil of reddish clay. In early spring, when the county was first settled, the ground in the woods became covered with grass and herbage, giving good support to cattle before vegetation was developed in cultivated fields. Many of the farms of Auburn have living springs upon them, which send their running waters to swell the outlet of Long Lake and the three branches of the Milwaukee River. The soil is rich in those properties which make it warm, productive and durable. The different varieties of grain are cultivated with success, while the growth of grass is generally excellent. The Northwestern Union Railroad crosses the southwestern corner of Auburn in its northwesterly course toward Fond du Lac, entering it near the center of the south line of Section 32, and leaving it at the northwest corner of Section 19, crossing into the town of Ashford.

The first settlement in this town was made in 1846 by Ludin Crouch and John Howell, on the spot afterward occupied by Crouchville, now New Cassel. Here Mr. Crouch built a log shanty and then commenced building a saw-mill. The same year, there was a small settlement made in the neighborhood by J. O. Baldwin, J. L. Perry, C. Crownhart, Rev. H. A. Sears and others, but some of them settled across the line in what is now Ashford. In February, 1847, Roswell Hill purchased a lot on the west side of the Milwaukee River, near what was subsequently Crouchville, built a house, and, in July following, removed his family into it. Alamon Wheeler, Seward Wilcox and Harvey Woodworth soon located in the same neighborhood. Several other settlements were made in different parts, and, that year, the town of Auburn was organized, its territory including, also, the present town of Ashford.* At the first election, held at Mr. Crouch's mill, there were twenty votes polled. Ludin Crouch was elected Chairman, and Hiram Hatch, Town Clerk.

The first marriage was C. Hemenway to Harriet Hall in December, 1847.

The first school taught in Auburn was in the summer of 1848, in the house of Mr. Crouch, by Miss Maria Bristol. Mrs. Crouch taught the school the next year.

The first death was that of Mrs. J. O. Baldwin in 1846 or 1847. Rev. Harvey A. Sears preached the funeral sermon.

The first stock of goods—general merchandise—was opened in the fall of 1849, probably, at Crouchville.

Auburn was named by R. F. Adams and brother, after Auburn, N. Y., their native place.

Michael McCulloch was the first Irish settler; Philip Oelig and Gerhardt Volkerts, the first German settlers in Auburn.

The most notable event in the history of this town was the tornado of July 4, 1873, which killed one person and laid waste forests, crops, buildings, fences and other property in large amounts.

The first election after Auburn and Ashford were separated, was in April, 1849, at which twenty-seven votes were cast. T. S. Wilcox was elected Chairman; M. Buckland, Clerk; A. W. Wheeler, Assessor; C. D. Gage, Collector, and M. Miller, Superintendent of Schools.

NEW PROSPECT.—This is called "Jersey" because its first settlers came from New Jersey. The first Postmaster was B. Romaine, who held the office twenty years, being appointed probably in 1859. He was with Gen. Scott in the Mexican war. In 1877, a two-story building for a schoolhouse and church was built on Mr. Van Blarcom's farm. The church is non-sectarian.

EBLESVILLE.—This village was founded by Andrew Eble, who came from Milwaukee, in 1855, purchased the water-power and built a saw-mill. He was accidentally shot on Christmas, 1859. The New Fame Post Office, established on the line between Sections 29 and 30 in 1851, by T. S. Wilcox, was moved to Eblesville in 1875. The village consists of a saw and feed mill, two stores, Lutheran Church, built in 1871, and the usual number of shops.

NEW CASSEL.—This is an old village; has the honor of being the first settlement in the towns of Auburn and Ashford. Ludin Crouch, a school teacher from "York State," came to the spot from Waukesha, in February, 1846, camping over night with an Indian named Weh-aug-wok-na. He was in search of a water-power, and had followed up the Milwaukee River. Here he found the desired power and returned to Waukesha. As soon as spring came, Mr. Crouch and his brother-in-law, John Howell, returned to the spot and erected a log wigwam, with shaker roof and puncheon floor—the first white man's domicile in the present towns of Ashford and Auburn. Mr. C. entered 160 acres of land on the west side of the stream (Middle Branch of Milwaukee River), and Mr. H., eighty acres on the opposite side. These two were joined in June, by H. Barnett and J. L. Perry, with their wives. The dam was then begun. C. Crownhart and wife came next, and during the year, J. O. Baldwin and wife, E. B. Hall and wife, Joseph Johnson and wife, C. and R. Hemenway, L. Pryor, William Brown, C. North, H. Hatch, J. E. Helmer and wife, William Pool and wife, Adin Nelson and wife, T. S. Wilcox and others. The village plat was surveyed by John Bannister, and after a celebration gotten up by the three ladies then in the settlement, July 4, 1846, the place was formally named Crouchville. In 1856, Emil Brayman changed the name to New Cassel, in honor of Hesse-Cassel, his birthplace. Some of these early settlers claimed by Crouchville actually located just over the line in what is now Ashford. Crouch's saw-mill, the first in the vicinity, was put in motion in the fall of 1846, and did good service for the settlers. Lumber was scarce, and what was not wanted for home use brought a good price at Taycheedah. The Hemenway brothers, millwrights, first used it without roof or sides. It changed hands many times before going into disuse. In 1856, Emil Brayman purchased 160 acres including the mill, and raised the frame of the present flouring-mill. He failed, and the mill stood incomplete and unused until about 1863, when the Hirsch brothers finished and put it into operation. It has since changed hands several times, A. Colburn & Sons, the present proprietors, finally making it one of the best mills in the county.

* The first settlement of Ashford and Auburn being so near to the line now dividing the two, it is no wonder there is a dispute as to who were first settlers in each.

New Cassel Post Office was called Auburn for many years. It was changed to New Cassel in 1856. Squire Crownhart was the first Postmaster, keeping the office in his tavern at Crownhart's Corners. The Postmasters have been, Marion Buckland, S. C. Matteson, Seth G. Pickett, Adin Nelson, Emil Brayman, Mrs. Emil Brayman, S. Hirsch, who kept it in his mill, P. Berkhauser, David Gudex, F. M. Findeisen, and William Pool, Jr., appointed August 3, 1870.

The Baptist Church society is comparatively an old one. The first services were held in the fall of 1846, in H. Barnett's house, by Rev. H. A. Sears. In 1852 an organization was formed in the schoolhouse at the five corners, town of Auburn. R. F. Adams was elected Deacon and Clerk. In 1866, the present edifice, costing $2,200, was built under the supervision of J. E. Helmer. Henry Barnett and C. Yancy, Building Committee. The first preacher in the town, Rev. H. A. Sears, is the present Pastor. The Trustees are F. W. Tanner, President and Treasurer; E. Borchert, Clerk, and William Scheid.

The Evangelical Reformed Church was organized and built a log place of worship, in 1855, in the south part of Ashford. The leaders in the work were Ulrich Legler, John Senn, C. Gundel, and others. In 1867, they built the present edifice in New Cassel. The first Pastor was Rev. Reine, the present is Rev. Charles Huicker.

The Roman Catholic Church is now the richest in New Cassel. The first services were held by Father Dael, of Fond du Lac, in Owen Bannon's house. James Kramer, J. Guippe, C. Becker, O. Bannon, T. Hoy, M. McCulloch and others composed the first organization. The first attempt to build a house failed. In 1866, however, the congregation having been re-organized in 1865, the church edifice was erected; soon after, a pastoral residence was built by Father Michels. Since 1872, when Father A. Michels took charge, additions costing $1,800 have been made, the debt of $1,100 cancelled, and in 1874, St. Joseph's Convent built, at a cost of $10,000. This was erected for the Sisters of St. Francis, who numbered eighty-five. They teach a boarding-school in the Convent building, and a parochial school in a building near the church. They also teach music, needlework and all useful branches. The church numbers ninety families. A new parochial school building, 30x54 feet, two stories high, will be built during 1880.

In 1846, O. R. Potter sold the first goods in New Cassel, then Crouchville.

The Adams House was built in 1869, by Adam Holzhauer, who opened the first hotel in New Cassel, in 1856.

BYRON.

The first settlement in the town of Byron was in the year 1839; John Case and Oscar Pier, Patrick Kelley and William Stewart, selected a position and commenced the improvement of a neighborhood a little east of the middle of the north line of the town. Their location embraced a desirable variety of rich prairie, warm and fertile oak openings, and a beautiful grove of forest timber, with a small brook flowing through it. John Parsons, arriving direct from England, located upon a lot about a mile farther west. James Balson and Samuel Butler settled in this neighborhood in the fall of 1842. In the summer of 1844, John Potts, with his wife and four children, removed from the State of New York to Mound Prairie, in Byron. He set up crotches, upon which he laid long poles. He used prairie grass for a covering to this rude structure, and hung up blankets for its sides. Here he and his family were domiciled until he could build a house, obtaining hands from about ten miles distant to assist in rolling up the logs. Another settlement was soon after commenced by Hiram Merriam, Jabez C. Clemens and Jonas C. Reynolds, the last mentioned arriving in November.

William Lockers
DECEASED
BRANDON.

These pioneers on Mound Prairie, were, many of them, nearly destitute of capital when they arrived at their new homes. They were able, however, to purchase some cows, which were then very cheap in Illinois. They put their cows together for a team; broke up the prairie land, and planted corn on the sod in the spring. They realized a good harvest, and, although they met with some inconveniences, felt they were getting rich. In 1845, Messrs. Bullock, Churchill and Roan settled in the southeasterly part of the town, and in the month following, Sumner Sweet and Joseph Nightingale came into the same neighborhood. They were joined the same season by several others. Rev. Mr. Vaughn and some friends from the county of Genesee, N. Y., settled near Oakfield, and formed what was called the "Genesee neighborhood."

The early settlers in Byron shared in all the privations and difficulties so common in new countries. They raised grain in abundance, but found it very difficult to get it ground; the few mills in this region were small and could not supply the demand. For several years the settlers went to Watertown, a distance of forty miles, to get their grinding done. The roads were bad, and they had to wait several days to get their grists. Mr. Vaughn once sent his son to mill, and told him to wait for his "grinding;" he was gone ten days. Mr. Reynolds once paid $14.50 for the milling of twenty bushels, and did not think it more than an average cost.

Byron was organized in 1846. William Stewart was elected Chairman, and Orrin Morris, at whose house the first election was held, Town Clerk. Its boundary lines were run by Mullett & Brink during the first quarter of 1834 and the second quarter of 1835. Hiram Burnham ran out the sections and quarter-sections in the third quarter of the last-mentioned year. The town has for its territory the whole of Township 14 north, in Range 17 east, of the Government survey. It contains 23,122 $\frac{67}{100}$ acres of land. The town is bounded on the north by Fond du Lac; on the east by Eden; on the south by Lomira, in Dodge County, and on the west by Oakfield. The face of the country, before improvements began, presented a pleasing variety of prairie, oak openings, marsh and timber land, undulated with gentle ascents and declivities. There is, however, one bold elevation where "the ridge" passes through the town, which, in several places, breaks out with a rugged front. Springs and brooks are frequent, but not as abundant in this as in some of the other towns of the county. The springs furnish some of the headwaters of the east branch of Fond du Lac River. The southern part of Fond du Lac Prairie stretches into Byron. Mound Prairie, near the center of the town, is more elevated, lying above the ridge. The soil is generally fertile and easy of tillage, the more elevated part of the town being dry and warm.

The first birth which occurred in Byron was that of Eliza, daughter of William Stewart, about the last of the year 1840. The first school taught was in the summer of 1843, in Mr. Butler's corn-barn, by Miss Mary Butler, afterward Mrs. F. Tallmadge. The first death was that of a German woman, in the summer of 1845. She came into the house of Joseph Nightingale—was greatly distressed; said she had just drunk heartily at the cold spring near by; lay down on a bench and immediately expired. Her name or place of residence was never learned. The first religious societies formed in Byron were Baptists, Methodists and Wesleyans. At the first town election, held April 7, 1846, it was voted that the officers chosen serve gratis. There were 34 votes polled—18 in favor of a State government and 16 against it. At the second election, held April 6, 1847, a motion to allow Orrin Morris $16.50 for stationery as Town Clerk was lost, as was also a motion to allow C. P. Phelps $10 for serving as Assessor. At this election, 43 votes were cast against and 26 in favor of license; 43 in favor of, and 74 against the Constitution, and 43 in favor of and 33 against equal suffrage. Patrick Kelley and his family, who settled in Byron in September, 1839, were the first Irish to make Fond du Lac County a permanent home. The first German in Byron was Phillip Bodemar. The first schoolhouse was erected at the expense of five men, in 1841, on land donated by Patrick Kelley. The first preaching in the town was in this schoolhouse. The "Ledge" passes through Byron, on which, in Sections 20 and 29, is located the M. E. camp-ground, not far from the Narrow-Gauge Railway. In the vicinity of this camp-ground are many interesting natural curiosities in the line of mighty masses of rent limestone and winding passage-ways into the "Ledge." Very large and cold springs are also found near this spot. The Chairmen and Town Clerks have been: 1846, William Stewart and Orrin Morris; 1847, William Stewart and D. W. Cruthers; 1848-49-50, the same; 1851, D. C. Brooks and Franklin Nye; 1852, D. C. Brooks and Emerson Fay; 1853, Henry Conklin and E. Fay; 1854, H. Conklin and Joseph Noyes; 1855, C. B. Brown and J. Noyes; 1856, B. R. Harrington and J. Noyes; 1857, F. Nye and D. W. Cruthers; 1858, F. Nye and Alfred Bliss; 1859, J. M. Adams and A. Bliss; 1860, N. C. Lewis and A. Bliss; 1861, C. P. Phelps and A. Bliss; 1862, N. C. Lewis and A. Bliss; 1863, D. D. Jones and A. Bliss; 1864, Henry Bush and A. Bliss; 1865, E. A. Cook and A. Bliss; 1866-67-68-69, Delos Allen and A. Bliss; 1870, D. D. Treleven and F. Nye; 1871, D. D. Treleven and A. Bliss; 1872, John Bell and Delos Allen; 1873, John Bell and A. Bliss; 1874-75, John Bell and Delos Allen; 1876, John Bell and George Radliff; 1877, John Bell and D. Allen; 1878, John Bell and F. Nye; 1879, John Bell and John Lonergan.

At Byron Post Office, on Section 22, is a good town hall.

CALUMET.

The town of Calumet, so called from the Menomonee Indian village ("Pipe") of the same name, formerly located on the northeast quarter of Section 27, is the northeast town of Fond du Lac County, and contains 19,146.91 acres of land, as follows: In Township 16 north, of Range 18 east, 2,307.56 acres; in Township 17 north, of Range 18 east, 4,742.13 acres; in Township 17 north, of Range 19 east, 12,097.22 acres; total 19,146.91 acres. It is bounded on the north by Calumet County; on the east by the same county and the town of Marshfield in Fond du Lac County; on the south by the towns of Marshfield and Taycheedah, and on the west by Winnebago Lake.

The three sections numbered 1, 2 and 3, and the fractional section numbered 4 in Township 16 north, in Range 18 east, in the town of Calumet, were surveyed (as was the remainder of that township) by Nehemiah King and C. T. V. King, during the second quarter of the year 1835; but the sections and quarter-sections in the fractional Township 17 north, in Range 18 east, also those in the fractional Township 17 north, in Range 19 east, were surveyed by A. G. Ellis, in the last quarter of 1834. The township lines were run by Mullett & Brink during the first half of the last-mentioned year.

Deputy Surveyor A. G. Ellis, in speaking of the northwestern portion of what is now the town of Calumet (fractional Township 17 north, in Range 18 east), says: "This fractional township must be considered as first-rate and valuable land. It consists almost wholly of extensive oak openings and dry and wet prairies. The soil is first rate—a mixture of red loam and black sand. Its position (east side and above the center of Winnebago Lake) gives it an additional value. The stream entering [the lake] at [a little distance southwest of] 'Pipe Village,' though small and barred at the mouth, is nevertheless large enough for a harbor for boats; and a small pier at the mouth would deepen the water so that it might be entered. The banks are high and beautiful, and 'Pipe Village' is a beautiful site." This was written upon the spot over a year before there was a white settler in Fond du Lac County.

The same writer, in November, 1834, in speaking of what is now the eastern portion of the town of Calumet (south half of Township 17 north, Range 19 east), says: "That part of this fractional township lying east of the stream (Manitowoc River) is rather low, though on the whole it may be considered first rate land. The soil is very deep and rich, with fewer stones than are found farther east. The stream is sluggish and muddy. No wild animals ford it. The marsh has on it deep water, and the grass is very thin. West of the stream the land is high and mostly openings, with a suitable quantity of good timber, and water in small prairies. Numerous trees were observed to have been cut here, by Indians, for honey-bees." Seeing this region before any portion of it was cultivated, such were his impressions.

The first settlement in Calumet was made in 1837, near what was afterward known as Pipe Village, by Rev. George White, William Urnston and a Mr. Norton, Mr. White, however, locating there first. About the same time or a little later, a company of Germans settled in the north part of the town, which then formed a part of Calumet County. In 1840, this part was, on application being made to the Legislature of the Territory, by George White, set off from Calumet and joined to Fond du Lac County. The town was organized March 8, 1839, including a large territory. It was re-organized in 1842, the first election being held in April of that year, at Mr. White's house. George White was elected Chairman, and Charles Amundon, Clerk. The town is watered by springs and brooks, some of which help to form the Manitowoc River, while the waters of others flow into Winnebago Lake. At the present time, as well as when in its native wildness, no country in the State has a more pleasing aspect than that high, dry, rich portion of Calumet which lies just back from the shore of Lake Winnebago. It is the most picturesque town in Fond du Lac County. In 1851, Herman Heeson erected a large stone flouring-mill close to the lake shore a little below Pipe Village, and, in 1854, Mr. Allen erected, on the road from Taycheedah to Pipe Village, another flouring-mill, to run by water carried high in the air to a very large "overshot" wheel.* In 1838 and 1839, Pipe Village was much more of a business center than Fond du Lac, as it contained a store of goods for Indian trading, and the Germans were coming in very rapidly, many of them bringing considerable capital; and at one time the town of Calumet cast more votes than the village and very large town of Fond du Lac. The "Ledge" extends through this town nearly parallel with the lake shore; and, besides being in early days the refuge of numberless snakes and wild animals, was the source of numerous beautiful springs, a famous resort for nut and grape gatherers and the seat of fine stone-quarries and lime-kilns. In Calumet the roads are unusually good; fruit trees are easily cultivated and bear in comparative abundance, and grazing for sheep is especially good. While the yield of wheat per acre may not equal that of some other towns, the quality is always unsurpassed.

Rev. George White, the first permanent settler in Calumet, now well advanced beyond fourscore years, is a clerk in the Pension Office at Washington.

Calumet Village, with its large local trade, is partly in Calumet County. It is in the midst of a rich farming country, and is pleasantly located near Lake Winnebago.

Marytown is a hamlet and post office in the eastern portion of the town. It has a good grist-mill, blacksmith-shop, and other village concomitants. St. Mary's Church is south of the village, on Section 27, and St. John's Church east, on Section 30. Both are Catholic and prosperous.

Pipe Village, on Section 26, called Calumet Harbor Post Office, is a place of resort in summer. It has a very large hotel, is near the lake and in the midst of the most beautiful farming country in the whole West.

EMPIRE.

Empire, Township 15 north, Range 18 east, originally was a portion of Taycheedah, and it is difficult, therefore, to separate the early history of the former from that of the latter. Gov. Doty entered the first land in Empire and caused to be built the first frame house in Fond du Lac County, on what is now the Welis farm, on Section 7—possibly on Section 8, in 1838. This house was mostly built by the Piers and Joseph Olmsted. The first school-house in the county was also built in Empire, but never was used for school purposes, owing to a greater number of scholars living at Taycheedah. The building was of logs, and erected by G. de Neveu and others. The first permanent settlers were probably Mr. de Neveu and his hired help—the family of A. T. Denniston, who worked the large de Neveu farm, unless one of the La Bordes had taken up a residence within what is now Empire a few months earlier. But all this time Empire belonged to Taycheedah. In March, 1851, the Legislature passed an act erecting all of Township 15, Range 18, except Sections 1 to 6, both inclusive, into the town of Empire, the first election to be held at the Meiklejohn schoolhouse. The town, therefore, contains only thirty sections; but the west tier of sections overruns to the extent of about one hundred and eight acres, making the town contain 19,308 acres. The southeast portion was originally heavily timbered. Fond du Lac prairie laps on to its northwest corner. The "Ledge" extends the whole distance across its west side. The east and some of the south portions abound in hay marshes, and the balance is composed of oak openings. The soil is warm and quick. Springs, some of them very large, abound in great numbers, especially along the Ledge. A very large one exists on F. M. Phelps' farm; another on the farm of G. de Neveu; one or more on David Gidding's farm; a very large and peculiar one on the old Henry Conklin place, and another on the old John Westervelt farm. Streams in the east flow through Sheboygan River to Lake Michigan, while those from the west flow into Lake Winnebago. Stone quarries and limekilns abound, and the surface is broken in many sections where the ridge of limestone crops out, being too rough and barren for cultivation. These localities are, however, profitably used as sheep pastures, or as sources of wood, building-stone and lime. On Section 17 is a woolen-mill, whose machinery is turned by water. It is near G. W. Carpenter's residence; is known as the Empire Woolen Mills, and turns out an excellent quality of goods. It is now the only factory of the kind in Fond du Lac County.

* Now in the town of Taycheedah.

A beautiful sheet of water, known as de Neveu Lake, named after G. de Neveu, who first purchased it of the Government, lies in Sections 30 and 31 of this town. It abounds in bass, perch and pickerel; has had other fish put in by artificial means, and is a resort where thousands "camp out," or have good summer-houses during the heated term.

In 1847, Miss E. Maxwell taught a school near the Lyons place. In 1854, the town contained three schoolhouses, and in 1880 it contained seven; all modest structures, but in good repair. Peter Vandervoort, an authorized Methodist exhorter, who settled in the adjoining town of Eden, held the first religious services in Henry Conklin's very large log house. The first births were not far apart, in 1839, in the families of G. de Neveu, A. T. Denniston and Luke La Borde. They were the very first, except John A. Bannister, in the county.

In addition to plenty of hardwood fuel, good building stone, and good brick-clay, Empire has rich peat beds, though none of them were ever worked. No town, unless it is Calumet, in the eastern portion of the county, is more favorable for apples, grapes and other fruits. The different Chairmen since 1851 have been: F. S. Crans, John Y. Westervelt, J. E. Fisher, John Berry, A. T. Germond, John Meiklejohn, James H. Haight, G. S. Wilson, Edward Ray, Edward Colman, James Laferty and John Wiley. The Town Clerks have been: A. S. Wilson, James A. Fisher, G. S. Wilson, George Keys, James Laferty, John Campbell, A. H. Carpenter and Alexander Campbell.

Empire has no railroads, and but one post office and one church edifice.

Rienzi Cemetery, the finest in the county, is in this town, on Sections 18 and 19.

The first grist-mill in the county was erected in Empire, on Section 22, by Henry Conklin.

Empire M. E. Church.—On the 6th of March, 1850, the Methodists of the town met to devise means for building a church. Logs were hauled, but the enterprise ended at this point, the timber rotting on the ground, on the site of the present edifice, Section 23. In 1866, the project was revived. Theron Berry donated the ground, and a donation of $200, by Hannah Thorne, of Lockport, N. Y., was followed by liberal subscriptions from others in Byron and Empire, and the edifice, costing $3,000, was built. Dedication took place July 28, 1867. The first Pastor, who also aided greatly in securing the erection of the building, was Rev. J. W. La Fever. The first Trustees were John Berry, A. T. Germond, H. Westervelt, B. White, R. Willis, Thomas Mayhew, L. H. Jennings, W. M. Dusenbury, John Vinton. The first Stewards were J. Berry, W. M. Dusenbury and William Edwards. The church never was in debt.

Empire Cemetery.—This Cemetery Association was organized July 10, 1852: John Berry, Sr., President; T. J. Dougherty, Secretary, and E. Vincent, Treasurer. One acre of land was bought near the M. E. Church, of J. V. Jewell. A few years later another acre was purchased, and in 1879 two acres more were added. It is tastefully platted and decorated. T. Berry is President, A. T. Germond, Secretary, and H. Westervelt, Treasurer.

EDEN.

In a southeasterly direction from Fond du Lac, bounded on the north by Empire, east by Osecola, south by Ashford and west by Byron, lies the town of Eden—named after the habitation of our first parents. Two ridges of limestone, suitable for building material, extend north and south through the town. Otherwise the surface is gently undulating, and was originally composed of prairies, wide hay marshes, rather small oak openings and limited belts of heavy timber. In early days, wild plums, cranberries, grapes and crab-apples grew in abundance and were unusually large and edible. The highest point of land in Fond du Lac County is said to be on Section 16 in this town, being 352 feet above Lake Winnebago and about five hundred feet above Lake Michigan. There are several large springs in Eden, and several lakes, in which fish and waterfowl, in season, are abundant. The soil is not alike in all sections, but is generally of a deep, rich loam, with a subsoil of limestone gravel. Farmers can follow almost any branch of agriculture with equal and satisfactory success. The town is well watered by springs, lakes, the West Branch of Milwaukee River, and other small streams, some of which flow north and some south. The lake in which the branch of Milwaukee River takes its rise, flowing nearly south, has another outlet on the north, which flows into Lake Winnebago; and streams in the south part find their way into the Gulf of Mexico, through Rock and Mississippi Rivers.

The mounds, pottery, earthenware and various peculiar articles found in this town, make it a peculiarly rich and interesting field for the archaeologist. These relics of an ancient and extinct race have been found in no other town in this vicinity in such profusion and variety.

Joseph Carr is generally conceded to be the first permanent settler in what is now Eden, though he did not enter the first land. In November, 1845, he began building a log house, which was the foundation for the first settlement in the town. In February following, Samuel Rand and Peter Vandervoort came with their families, and immediately put up log houses. The first crops were raised in 1847, and they were of such abundance as to exceed the most sanguine expectations of the hopeful settlers. That fall, settlers began to arrive rapidly, or select locations on which to locate in the spring. Therefore, in April, 1848, by authority of an act passed March 11, 1848, a meeting was held at the house of Peter Vandervoort and town officers chosen. Peter Vandervoort was chosen Chairman, and Samuel Rand Town Clerk. The year before, or some time before, a meeting was held to name the town. The proceedings are thus recorded: "Adam Holiday, an eccentric character, arose to propose a name. After commenting on the many beauties of the place, the richness of the soil, the abundance of fruits and flowers, and the beautiful woods and fields, he remarked that Adam dwelt in the garden of Eden, and that there were holy days there." Therefore, amid some merriment, the town was named Eden.

The first child born in the town was a daughter of Adam Holiday, in 1847. The first boy born in the town, who also voted in it, was John L. Martin, now of Fond du Lac. The first religious service was at Peter Vandervoort's house, in August, 1846, by Rev. Dickinson. Mr. Vandervoort began preaching the same year. The first marriage ceremony was that uniting Margaret Bell to a Mr. Baldwin, in 1848, and was performed by Rev. M. L. Noble. The town of Eden is settled largely by a fine class of Irish in the south, though Dutchess County New Yorkers, Germans and some New Englanders form important elements in the population. In 1850, there were two pretty thoroughly ventilated log schoolhouses in Eden—now there are seven good school buildings in good repair. The Air Line Railroad crosses the town, and maintains a station called Eden, on the southwest quarter of Section 8. There are some good stone quarries and limekilns in Eden, and on Section 17 is a large spring, in which one branch of the Milwaukee River takes its rise, while from Twin Lakes, on the line between Sections 9 and 16, flows a stream into Lake Winnebago.

The town of Eden, Township 14 north, of Range 18 east, contains 25,058.79 acres, or 18.79 acres more than thirty-six full sections of land.

EDEN VILLAGE.—Prior to 1873, there was no village at Eden. The Air Line Railroad gave it birth. The land, owned by L. Batterson, was platted when that road was built, and the first lot sold to A. Edelman, who built the first store. The second purchase was made by M. Altenhofen, who built a store. The large steam elevator was erected by Mr. Batterson. The first wheat shipped from the station was by Isaac Advance. The hotel was built by John Botzem, its proprietor. The post office was established by Peter Vandervoort in 1850. He kept it in his house, near by, until 1872, when he resigned. T. Hardgrove is the present Postmaster. In addition to three stores and the various shops, Eden has a thriving cheese factory.

Foster Post Office was established by Egbert Foster. It is now out of use.

The German Reformed Church erected a place of worship on Section 10, which is now used by the German Methodists.

St. James' Catholic Church first held services in a log house built in 1849, on the line of Section 29, by Joseph Lawler, C. Mangan, E. McInroe, P. Ryan, T. Ward, T. McGinty and others. This was used until 1865, when Rev. J. McGowan built the present structure. The first mass said to this congregation, which now numbers 120 families, was by Rev. Ehrle. Father M. O'Brien, the Pastor, has charge also of St. John's Mission, in Byron.

ELDORADO.

Eldorado—Township 16 north, of Range 16 east, bounded on the north by Nekimi (Winnebago County), east by Friendship, south by Lamartine and west by Rosendale—was named, in all probability, by John O. Hemming, now of Hudson, editor of the first paper in Fond du Lac County. Its surface is considerably but gently undulating, and contains less prairie than most of the other towns in the vicinity. It has considerable heavy timber, some oak openings and several marshes; one, called Eldorado Marsh, being of considerable size. From them an immense quantity of wild hay is cut, while some portions have been seeded to tame hay and make productive meadows.

The first settlers were Moses S. Barnett, Theodore R. Sheldon, William Hall and others, who located within its borders early in 1846. It was a large town at first; an act approved March 11, 1848, making what is now Eldorado and Friendship a separate town called Eldorado. The first town meeting was held in April, 1848, at the house of Cyrus Parks, at which M. S. Barnett was chosen Chairman, and James Cowhan, Town Clerk. Another act, passed February 1, 1849, divided the original town into the present towns of Eldorado and Friendship, the first election being held in April, 1849, at the house of William C. Walcott.

Eldorado is well wooded, the sale of cord-wood, stove-bolts and materials for hard-wood work being an important item with its inhabitants. It is also well watered, has a good soil of loam (except the marshes) and in some parts is well adapted to sheep raising, which is profitably followed. No license for the sale of intoxicating drinks was ever granted in Eldorado, and never but once did the town give a Republican majority on a State or national question. The first school was taught by John F. Steele in the north portion of the town. Now there are six schoolhouses within its limits, in which there is a good attendance. There are also three church buildings, on Sections 18, 15 and 26, the first being built about 1860. The Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway, which maintains a depot near Eldorado Mills, passes through the extreme southwest corner of the town. The West Branch of the Fond du Lac River flows through the southern portion of the town, affording water-power at Eldorado Mills, where Scribner's large flouring mill is in operation. This stream, in an early day, also turned M. S. Barnett's mill, built in 1846, and the first of any kind in the town.

The inhabitants of Eldorado are largely Irish-Americans, though a good sprinkling of Germans and Americans is found. The records being burned, only the following Chairmen and Town Clerks can be presented:

1861, L. M. Dunham, Thomas Woods; 1862, C. W. Frederick, William Kirkwood; 1863, C. W. Frederick, William Kirkwood; 1864, C. W. Frederick, William Kirkwood; 1865, C. W. Frederick, William Kirkwood; 1866, C. W. Frederick, William Kirkwood; 1867, C. W.

Frederick, David Ackerson: 1868, C. W. Frederick, David Ackerson: 1869, C. W. Frederick, L. M. Dunham; 1870, C. W. Frederick, L. M. Dunham; 1871, C. W. Frederick, L. M. Dunham; 1872, James Lewis, L. M. Dunham; 1873, James Lewis, George Gibson; 1874, C. W. Frederick, George Gibson; 1875, C. W. Frederick, W. S. Hall; 1876, John Remer, George Gibson; 1877, John Remer, George Gibson; 1878, John Remer, Mark Crain; 1879, James K. Scribner, Mark Crain.

The first to make a location in Eldorado was Harvey Anderson, in the fall of 1845. In May, 1846, Moses S. Barnett, now of Neenah, Wis., made a permanent settlement.

The first land was entered by Samuel Sanborn, on the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section 31, in 1846.

The first grist-mill was built in 1857 by Hiram Wheeler and James K. Scribner on Section 31.

The first store was opened in 1849, on Section 7, by N. Jorgensen.

The first schoolhouse was built in November, 1848.

The first sermon was preached by Elder E. N. Wright, a Free-Will Baptist, in the fall of 1848, at Cyrus Pasco's house.

The first child born was Charles A. Wolcott, July 30, 1847.

The first death, George Barnett, in 1847.

The first marriage, Stephen Claggett to Margaret O'Neil, in 1847.

The first post office was established in the spring of 1848, by Necoli Jorgensen, called Bothelle. Not far from this time, John O. Henning was postmaster on the east side of the marsh, and some think his commission was received before Jorgensen's.

Stephen Claggett, Alex. Cronk, and Thomas and James Merchant settled in the town in 1846, after the first settlement. In 1847, Cyrus and Joseph Pasco, John and Robert Cowhan, John Claggett, John F. Steele, William Dilts, M. Ducl, Isaac Claggett, John Adams, David Austin, E. and William Williams, A. R. Wilber, Nelson Phillips, A. M. Donnelly, H. Dilts and perhaps others.

FOND DU LAC.

As the first settlement, first birth, first village, first death and many other first things in the county were in the town of Fond du Lac, its history will be found elaborately recorded elsewhere. It has, however, some interesting town history. It once, by act approved January 2, 1838, comprised the entire county of Fond du Lac. A year later, it contained all the territory in the county, except the towns of Calumet and Butte des Morts, the first election being held at the house of Edward Pier, and the second, in 1839, at the house of Mason C. Darling. In 1842, it was made one of three towns—Fond du Lac, Waupun and Calumet—in the county, but it now contains only the territory in Township 15 north, of Range 17 east. The City of Fond du Lac, however, does not belong to the town in any matter of local government, and Lake Winnebago cuts off a small portion of its territory on the north. The town territory, therefore, is a mere shell. In June, 1835, Nehemiah King, Deputy Surveyer, made the following report as to what now constitutes the town of Fond du Lac:

"This is a fine township. The prairie and woodland are good and deserving the attention of the farmer. The merchant and mechanic will soon find it for their interest to invest capital here. Its location is such it cannot fail of becoming a place of considerable business. It commands a handsome view of the lake, and abounds in streams of water sufficiently large and rapid to drive mills. Along the shore there are evidences of Indian habitations. From the fertility of the soil and abundant supply of fish in the lake and streams, it is presumed this has been a favorite residence of theirs. In short, from the location of the Green Bay and Portage road, and the probable location of other important ones leading to and through it, its future prosperity is rendered almost certain. Along and near the margin of the lake, however, there is some marsh, but it is not without dry and solid ground for buildings."

On the 21st day of April, 1837, Colwert Pier and his brother, Edward Pier, turned the first furrow in the county and town of Fond du Lac, breaking some sixteen acres, about one mile south of the spot where the court house now stands, probably in the northeast quarter of Section 22. Six days later, they sowed wheat, oats and peas. A log house was erected on Section 22, east of the river, and occupied by Edward Pier and his family July 4, 1837. This was the second house built in the county, and the first in the town outside the present city limits. When first occupied, the structure had neither doors nor windows. During the fall, the first winter wheat was sown in the county and town, by Colwert Pier. He brought five bushels on his horse from Green Bay. From this wheat he raised enough to furnish his neighbors seed for the next year. The yield was abundant. The first school in the county was taught by Harriet Harding, in Edward Pier's residence. The first mill of any kind in the county was erected in the town of Fond du Lac.

On the 29th day of August, 1836, James Duane Doty, as trustee for the Fond du Lac Company, sold for $240 to John Drake, of Warren County, N. J., and Charles C. Pinckney Arndt, of Green Bay (afterward shot dead in the Legislature at Madison), the land and water privilege situated in the town of Fond du Lac, known afterward as the "Clark Mill," and described as the east half of the northeast quarter of Section 20 in that town. The contract had a proviso which required Drake & Arndt to finish the mill within a specified time, which they failed to do. On account of this failure and the strength of the proviso, after giving proper notice to Drake & Arndt, the Fond du Lac Company sold the mill site and water privilege, together with whatever improvements had been made thereon, to Mason C. Darling, on the 21st of May, 1838. He completed the mill and sold a one-half interest in it to Bannister & Clark (John Bannister and A. D. Clark), August 15, 1838, for $300. This mill, which has nearly or quite disappeared, cut the first lumber in Fond du Lac County, with a "sash saw."

The first house built by an actual settler in the county, was erected in the town of Fond du Lac; the first burial was also in this town.

At a meeting of the West Fond du Lac Temperance Society, held at the house of Joseph Stowe, on the third Tuesday of January, 1848, it was Resolved, That the prairie situated between the north and south (east and west branches) of Fond du Lac River, and between Deacon Humiston's on the east and Quincy Hall's on the west, be named Temperance Prairie. That we will use all honorable means to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors, and the vomit of the inebriate from polluting its virgin soil.

A. C. Everest was President of the meeting which adopted this resolution, and E. Humiston, Secretary. Thereafter for many years, the locality was known as Temperance Prairie.

At the election held in May of that year, the town gave a majority of thirteen against granting licenses to sell intoxicating liquors.

The records of the town officers from 1838 to 1848, are not extant. The following are the Chairmen and Clerks from 1849 to 1879, inclusive: 1849, John C. Lewis and Frank McCarty; 1850, Edwin Flint and Hiram Walker; 1851, Isaac Brown and William C. Brown; 1852, Edward Pier and Eric Tallmadge; 1853, Edward Pier and Henry R. Colman; 1854, Sewell N. Hawes and George H. Clark; 1855, Seth A. Chase and George H. Clark; 1856, Seth A. Chase and Lewis M. Darling; 1857, Seth A. Chase and H. Spafford; 1858, Charles Brown and David Crofoot; 1859 and 1860, G. K. Stanchfield and D. Crofoot; 1861 and 1862, S. A. Chase and D. Crofoot; 1863 to 1870, both inclusive, G. K. Stanchfield and D. Crofoot; 1871, Dana C. Lamb and David Crofoot; 1872, Henry Van Allen and D. Crofoot; 1873, Dana C. Lamb and D. Crofoot; 1874 and 1875, Dana C. Lamb and S. B. Stanchfield; 1876, 1877 and 1878, Henry Van Allen and S. B. Stanchfield; 1879, L. B. Dunham and Henry Landreman.

Four lines of railway cross the town of Fond du Lac—the C. & N. W., Air Line, Sheboygan & Fond du Lac and Narrow Gauge; but they maintain no stations within its limits outside of Fond du Lac City. Both branches of Fond du Lac River flow through its territory, furnishing limited water-powers on Sections 27, 22 and 16. Four toll roads are in this town: Empire Gravel Road, extending southeast from the city to Empire; one extending on Main street south; one extending east through Taycheedah, and one southwest toward Waupun from the city. During 1879, a lively agitation was made against them; indignation meetings were held, and the question of surrendering their charter was submitted to vote in Fond du Lac City, that corporation holding a majority of their stock, but the move failed of accomplishing its purpose. The Poor House and Farm are on Section 21 in this town. There are several fine sand-pits, two good brick-clay beds, two hay marshes, two good stone-quarries and one small peat-bed in Fond du Lac Town, but no timber of any account.

Fond du Lac Fire Insurance Company.—This insurance company, composed of farmers in the towns of Fond du Lac, Empire and Friendship, was organized April 24, 1875, and issued its first policy May 20, 1875, with the following officers: G. K. Stanchfield, President; J. L. Colman, Secretary; A. T. Germond, Treasurer. The Directors were, for town of Fond du Lac—G. K. Stanchfield, H. Van Allen and J. L. Colman; Empire—A. T. Germond, John Meiklejohn and Benjamin White; Friendship—Joseph Kinsman, Charles Carberry and F. Rondeau. The present officers are as follows: President, John Meiklejohn; Secretary, John J. Brayton; Treasurer, William Adams. Directors, for Empire—John Meiklejohn, Richard Kaye and William Adams; Fond du Lac—R. C. Wilson, J. J. Brayton and H. Van Allen; Friendship—Robert Shields, Horace Hodgkin and Joseph Kinsman. The last formal report of the Company was made in September, 1879, when the total amount of the policies in force was $466,110. The losses from incendiary fires and by lightning have been heavier in this than in other similar companies in this county, but they have all been paid so promptly as to render the Company a favorite one. The three assessments made for losses aggregate $5,991.50—not including expenses.

FOREST.

The town of Forest was named after the splendid forests of hard timber that originally covered much the larger portion of its surface. No town in the county was blessed with finer hardwood timber, with occasional jungles of tamarack and some patches of cedar. It contains no genuine prairie, and but few oak openings. In early days, it was excellent for winter wheat, and is yet, as compared with other towns, owing to the peculiar soil of the timbered tracts. A great amount of labor has been expended in this town to fit the land for crops; but the cash return for hard timber and cordwood, the abundance of it for home use, the protection forests afford in winter and the excellent soil when once ready for crops, abundantly repay the inhabitants for their extra exertions. The town is well watered, is rather more uneven than prairie towns, has some splendid sugar-maple groves and several water-powers. On Sections 28 and 33, in the south, is Mullet Lake, whence rises a stream of the same name, flowing northeast into the Sheboygan River, which flows across the entire western portion of the town, turning a lathe, two mills and other machinery even as early as 1853. At Dotyville is a flouring-mill run by water—by the Sheboygan River. In February, 1847, the following act was passed:

Sec. 32. That township number fifteen north, and the south half of township number sixteen north, of range number nineteen east, in the county of Fond du Lac, be, and the same is hereby, set off into a separate town by the name of Forest, and that the first town meeting be held at the house of George Chase, in said town.

In March, 1848, another act, as follows, was passed by the Legislature:

Sec. 16. Township number fifteen and the south half of township number sixteen north, in range number nineteen east, organized into the town of Forest, is hereby declared to be a town by that name, and the acts and proceedings of said town in its affairs for the year 1847 shall not be deemed illegal or invalid by reason of said township having been included in Taycheedah.

The town is now the six full sections in Township 15 north, of Range 19 east. It was settled in 1845, Henry C. Giltner, now of Minnesota, probably making the first location, though Josiah A. King settled there permanently in May of that year, and James Davis and P. T. King settled the same year near the center of the town, and were, probably, permanently located a month or two earlier than Mr. Giltner. Early in 1846, William Chase, at whose house the first election was held; O. C. White, Solomon Benedict and others settled not far from Mr. Giltner's, in the western portion of the town.

The town is now largely owned by Germans, who are unusually well-to-do, a considerable amount of their ready money being derived from the sale of wood, which they haul to Fond du Lac.

At the first election, held April 1, 1848, H. C. Giltner was chosen Chairman. The first birth was that of Sarah Chase; first death, James Davis; first marriage, a Mr. Slocum to Miss Riley. The first schoolhouse was built on Section 14, and, in the summer of 1849, S. Corbett taught school in it. The town now has eight schoolhouses.

CHURCHES.—Some time in 1847, the first sermon was preached, at the house of William Chase, by Rev. Mr. Scott. In 1858, the Catholics built a church on Section 19, and now the town has five church edifices. The Union Church, on Section 36, was organized, April 7, 1879, by Henry Stannard, E. C. Coon, William Stewart and P. H. Montgomery; Henry Stannard, President and Secretary; E. C. Coon, Treasurer; H. Stannard, E. Conger and E. C. Coon, Trustees. It was dedicated by Rev. F. A. Marsh, February 19, 1880, who preached the first sermon in it. On Section 13 is the Methodist Episcopal Church. The society was organized November 17, 1873, at James Corbett's house. The edifice was built in 1874. The first sermon was by Rev. J. T. Woodhead. The first Trustees were James Corbett, S. Elecson, David Rogers, Ezra Coon, William Bennett and J. O. Dowling. The first Pastor was J. S. Bolton. Present Pastor, Rev. H. Knight. The first marriages in the church were Joseph Colton to S. Hall and S. Gibson to Sarah Bolton.

The first post office was established early in 1847, called Oasis, of which H. C. Giltner was Postmaster. The second was Dotyville, established by Thomas Davidson in 1849. In 1852, Mr. Davidson opened the first store in Forest, at Dotyville. In 1866, C. A. Corbett established Banner Post Office.

The first cheese-factory was built on Section 16, in 1877, by C. C. Lyon and J. Smith. It is the only one in the town.

FRIENDSHIP.

This, one of the most level and unbroken towns in the county, was, previous to being erected into its present proportions, a portion of Eldorado. An act by the Legislature, approved February 1, 1849, set off so much of the territory of Eldorado as was in Township 16 north, Range 17 east, into a separate town called Friendship, the first election to be held at Lyman Walker's house. Friendship lies along the west shore of Lake Winnebago, and contains but seventeen full sections of land, the balance being shore-marsh and lake. In this town the State owns some overflowed lands in Sections 3 and 10. The town contains but few springs and streams. Its soil is very deep and rich: its timber tracts of excellent quality: its crops varied and profitable, and its inhabitants, being near a good market, generally well to do.

The first election was held at Lyman Walker's house April 12, 1849. The first settler was Champion Wilson, who came in 1845. In 1846, L. Forbes, Russell McCarty, Edwin Roberts, C. B. Matteson and, perhaps, others settled in the town.

The first births were Julius Roberts and Dora Cook.

The first deaths were two, recorded near together—Burns and Coleman.

In 1847, a school was taught on Section 28, by Elias Worden.

In 1848, a schoolhouse was erected on Section 21, in which Miss Robinson taught the first school.

In 1849, John Prescott preached the first sermon in the town in Lyman Walker's house.

In 1848, Friendship Post Office was established—Jackson Pritchard, Postmaster. Van Dyne is the present post office, and D. N. Morgan, Postmaster.

In 1851, Adolph Henning opened, on Section 16, the first store in Friendship.

In 1869, the German Methodists built a church edifice on Section 17. The town now contains two churches—the German Methodist, P. Limber, Pastor, and German Lutheran, John Rosenthal, Pastor.

In 1879, a cheese factory was built in the town. The Chicago & North-Western Railway extends across Friendship from south to north, maintaining a station at Van Dyne. In 1851, the inhabitants along the lake shore began to be uneasy when, without any apparent reasonable cause, Lake Winnebago began to steadily advance upon their shore lands. As the waters continued to advance, they continued to be more uneasy. Nearly one thousand acres were overflowed at this time, caused by the erection of dams at Neenah and Menasha.

In 1854, the cholera made its appearance in Friendship, causing greater consternation than the sudden rise in Lake Winnebago. The disease appeared in August, and resulted fatally in six instances.

Champion and Minor Wilson, soon after the first settlement of the town, began the manufacture of chairs, which they continued until the larger factories made the business unprofitable. Whether Minor Wilson settled within the town limits in 1841, the year before the accepted time of permanent settlement, is a matter of question. There seems to be more than a probability that he did.

The population of Friendship is composed mostly of French and Germans.

The Chairmen and Town Clerks, since the town was separated from Eldorado, have been: In 1849, Henry Bruce and Edwin R. Roberts; 1850, Henry Bruce and Edwin R. Roberts; 1851, Charles Wheton and Edwin R. Roberts; 1852, Minor Wilson and Hector Munro; 1853, Adolph Henning and Hector Munro; 1854, Adolph Henning and Hector Munro; 1855, Ebenezer Austin and Hector Munro; 1856, John Stoddart and Hector Munro; 1857, Charles Carberry and Hector Munro; 1858, John Stoddart and Hector Munro; 1859, John Stoddart and Hector Munro; 1860, John Stoddart and Mitchel Perrizo; 1861, Charles Carberry and John Stoddart; 1862, Joseph Kinsman and Mitchel Perrizo; 1863, Joseph Kinsman and Mitchel Perrizo; 1864, Joseph Kinsman and Mitchel Perrizo; 1865, Charles Carberry and Mitchel Perrizo; 1866, Charles Carberry and Mitchel Perrizo; 1867, Charles Carberry and Hector Munro; 1868, Charles Carberry and Hector Munro; 1869, Charles Carberry and W. J. Raycraft; 1870, Joseph Kinsman and William Lumly; 1871, Joseph Kinsman and William Lumly; 1872, Hector Munro and Fitch Kinsman; 1873, Hector Munro and Fitch Kinsman; 1874, Charles Carberry and Fitch Kinsman; 1875, Joseph Kinsman and Hall McCourt; 1876, Patrick McMonagle and Hall McCourt; 1877, Joseph Kinsman and Hall McCourt; 1878 and 1879, Theodore Herling and Hall McCourt.

LAMARTINE.

This town, lying directly west of the town and city of Fond du Lac, Township 15 north, of Range 16 east, was named after Alphonse de Lamartine, the French poet and historian, who sprang into such wonderful popularity during the French revolution of 1848. Before that time the town had been called Seven Mile Creek, an awkward name, derived from the settlement on the creek about seven miles from Fond du Lac, and an act of February 11, 1847, erected it into a legal town, the first election being held at Peter V. Sang's house. The name was changed to Lamartine (Lan-ar-teen) by an act approved August 8, 1848. The first settler was John Parker, Jr., though the first location and claim of land were made by Edward Beeson in 1837, and perfected by Peter V. Sang in 1840. The former began residing upon the latter's farm early in 1842, and, in August, 1842, Mr. Sang became a boarder in the Parker family. The next settlers were John Parker, Sr., J. M. Loomis, Samuel Bacon and, soon after, others. The first child born in the town was Martha Parker, in February, 1843.

The first death, John Parker, Sr., in September, 1844. In January, 1847, S. Westfall, aged forty-five, was frozen to death while crossing Lamartine to his home in Oakfield (then called Lime) with a yoke of oxen.

The first marriage was Cyrus E. Stowe to Hannah M. Hooper, a step-daughter of P. V. Sang's.

The first school was taught in the fall of 1847, by Russell Northrup, in a schoolhouse erected that year on Section 34. The town now contains eight schoolhouses and twelve districts, the schoolhouse at the little village of Seven Mile Creek being the largest in the town.

The first sermon was preached by the Rev. Morgan L. Noble in 1844, in Peter V. Sang's house. The town now contains four church edifices—one Baptist, two Methodist and one Catholic, the Methodists erecting the first on Section 34, about 1859 or 1860.

The first post office was established in 1845, called Seven Mile Creek, and Peter V. Sang was the first Postmaster, which position he retained twenty years. George H. Ferris is the present Postmaster, his office being now called Lamartine.

The first store was opened in Peter V. Sang's building at Seven Mile Creek, in 1846, by William Hughes.

The first town officers were: A. C. Everest, Chairman; Thomas Magee and C. H. Warren, Supervisors; P. V. Sang, Clerk; J. H. Fancher, Treasurer; William Magee, Assessor, and C. E. Stowe, Justice of the Peace. A. D. Nash is now Chairman; George H. Ferris, Clerk; H. Gilbert, Assessor; James Galland, Treasurer, and George H. Ferris, Justice of the Peace.

The first hotel was opened by Peter V. Sang, as soon as he had made a settlement. He did a large business, but now there is little hotel business done in the town. The Lamartine House, built in 1860, is kept by Charles De Voe, at Lamartine.

The soil of Lamartine is somewhat different from that of other towns. It is of a whitish clay mixed with black loam: the lowlands are deep, rich and dark, while several large marshes are unfit for cultivation. Section 17 is largely a marsh, and the Lamartine Peat Fuel Company's tract of peat is in this town. The northern portion is the most heavily timbered. Sheep-raising, dairying and raising grass form almost as important branches as grain-raising in Lamartine.

There is neither mill nor water-power in the town, though the West Branch of Fond du Lac River flows across the northeast corner, and a branch of the East Branch takes its rise in the center of the town.

The Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway crosses the northeast corner, but only a flag-station, called Woodhull, which is also a post office, is maintained. This office was named after John Woodhull, for nearly twenty years Deputy Postmaster of Fond du Lac.

Lamartine Post Office, or Seven Mile Creek, is the business center of the town. Orchard Brothers have a wagon factory; G. H. Ferris and the Wisnoms stores; besides blacksmith-shops, cheese-factory, schoolhouse, two churches, a Good Templar's Lodge and shoe-shop. In May, 1848, Peter V. Sang wrote as follows to one of the Fond du Lac papers:

"Just look at it; it is but five years since Sang moved into this town, and was then the only landholder in it; in fact, the only resident between Fond du Lac and Waupun, remaining such for nearly two years; and now there are not over eight sections of vacant land in the town not owned by actual settlers. We have, in the vicinity of Sang's place, a tavern, blacksmith-shop, weaver, wagon-maker, tailors and mechanics, post office, land agency, schoolhouse, and a number of other buildings. Arrangements have been made to open a dry-goods and grocery store during the coming summer. Nearly one-third of the inhabitants of the town and its immediate vicinity have experienced religion, of different denominations, and the revival is still progressing. The credit for this is due to the Revs. Card, Elwell, Burgess, Elsberry and other preachers of the Gospel."

The M. E. Church, first formed by Rev. Henry Requa, in 1856, has a good edifice for worship and a good parsonage. The first meetings were held in the schoolhouse, but in 1859, the first building, costing $700, was erected. In 1867, it was rebuilt at a cost of $1,600. The first Trustees were P. V. Sang, D. E. Hutchins, Asher Williams, C. H. Warren, Ezra Stearns and E. Humiston. The present Trustees are J. Jackson, B. R. Harrington, G. W. Jackson, William Warner, J. Fisher, F. Orchard, George Lang, E. Gibson and D. Walters; Pastor, Rev. J. B. Coe.

The Baptist Church was organized April 15, 1848, at Cyrus E. Stowe's house. The first services were held in 1847, by Elder Burgess. Services were held in the schoolhouse on Section 34 until 1861, when the church was built on land donated by William Townsend, at a cost of $1,500, and dedicated in 1863. The first Trustees were A. L. Robbins, J. Fairbanks and E. E. Crowe. Present Trustees—Samuel Wells, William Quick and James Walters.

On New Year's Day, 1847, four deer were caught in P. V. Sang's barn, where they had taken refuge from the cold.

MARSHFIELD.

Township 16 north, of Range 19 east, is now Marshfield. It belonged to more towns, before being separately erected into its present shape, than any other town in the county. In 1852, by an act approved April 17 of that year, it was detached from Calumet and Forest and named Kossuth, the first town election to be held at George Harkness' house. This name, three years later, was changed to Marshfield, which was suggested on account of the unusually large marsh tracts covering the town. May 10, 1835, Deputy United States Surveyor C. T. V. King gave the town a hard name in his report to the Government, saying: "This is a poor township, and needs no general remarks; too great a portion of it is marsh and swamp." This, in the light of more recent advancement in population and wealth, is seen to have been an unjust judgment. Notwithstanding the marshes, it is not wholly a "poor town," containing, as it now does, a population of forehanded and thrifty Germans.

The first settler was Stephen Goeser; the next earliest, Anton Kramer, John Lochr and John Fuchs, all of whom made locations in 1841.

The first child born was Joseph Fuchs in 1842.

The first marriage was Anton Kramer to Mary Ann Bröst, December 13, 1843.

The first death was that of Joseph Stump in 1843.

In 1847, Rev. Caspar Rehl taught the first school at Mount Calvary, on Section 29. The same year, the Catholics built a church on the same section. The town now contains three Catholic Churches. The Pastors are Revs. P. Dominicus, P. Andrew and P. Mathew. It also contains six good schoolhouses.

In 1851, John Blougen established a post office called Moria. J. H. Coolidge is now Postmaster of St. Cloud, on Section 25, and P. Rothgary, of Mount Calvary.

In 1859, John Preuss built the first mill in the town, on the Sheboygan River.

In 1859, the first store was opened at Mount Calvary by M. Bourgeois.

The first Clairman of Marshfield was Joseph Wagner, who held the office several years. F. Konz is the present Chairman.

The first cheese factory was built in 1878 at Mount Calvary. There is another at St. Cloud, belonging to J. H. Coolidge.

Marshfield Mutual Insurance Company was organized February 2, 1874. Over one hundred persons were present at the first meeting, at which Calumet, Marshfield, Forest and Taycheedah were represented. In 1875, Osceola and Empire were added to the organization, and, in 1880, Russell and Greenbush, of Sheboygan County; Brothertown, of Calumet County, and Auburn, Ashford, Byron, Eden, Friendship and Fond du Lac, of Fond du Lac County, were added. The first officers were: John Holchmecht and A. Millenbach, of Calumet; Nicholas Steffes and Michael Wirtz, of Taycheedah; Joseph Feldner and Jacob H. Walderschmid, of Forest; Fred Konz, N. Kramer and M. J. Miesen, of Marshfield. The first President was N. Kramer. In 1876, Fred Konz was chosen President and still holds that office. M. J. Miesen was the first Secretary and still holds the position. The present Directors are: F. Konz and M. J. Miesen, Marshfield; M. Wirtz and N. Steffes, Taycheedah; August Pitzen, Calumet; P. Bouese, Forest; H. Seibel, Empire; N. Strick, Osceola. There are now out 1,036 policies, aggregating $1,004,992 of insurance. In 1879, $49 losses were paid; losses to January, 1880, $906.56. The Company has a fund of $5,598.65 now on hand, and is one of the most prosperous in the county.

St. Francis Monastery.—This is the head of the Capuchin Church in America. It is a strong and prosperous institution, equal to any similar ones of other denominations in Wisconsin. It is thus described: "It is located at Mount Calvary, twelve miles east from Fond du Lac, and two miles south of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railroad, and comprises the church, convent and college of the Capuchin Order of St. Francis. On the 15th of October, 1856, the place was selected by two secular priests, P. Francis Haas and P. Bonaventura, with the advice of Rt. Rev. John Martin Henry, Bishop of Milwaukee, for the foundation of the Order. In March, 1858, possession was taken of the first eastern wing of the building, the dimensions of which were 27x111 feet. Three years subsequent to this time, the two priests, assisted by three lay brothers and others, under the direction of P. Francis, as Guardian, commenced to enlarge the building on the south side, and to lay the foundation of the church with the choir, on the north side, which was completed the following year, 1862. Meanwhile, others having joined the Order, it became desirable to build a college, which was done in the summer of 1864; this formed the southern wing; it was opened, under the patronage of St. Lawrence, of Bordeaux, in November of the same year. The western wing, together with the Chapel of St. Francis on the north, was commenced in 1857, and completed in the fall of 1868. It was hardly occupied when the whole edifice was destroyed by fire on the 26th of December, the same year, except the aisle of the church and St. Francis Chapel. The church and convent were again rebuilt, and completed in 1879. The following year, it was enlarged by St. Joseph's Family Hall and Monument, which was opened on the 4th of July, 1872. It was again enlarged in 1873, by the addition of a new study hall and dormitory for the accommodation of students. Other additions were made in 1874 and since, and money continues to be expended in enlarging, beautifying and furnishing the institution."

The different Chairmen of Marshfield have been Joseph Wagner, H. C. Giltner, William Wolf, Richard Schrage and Fred Konz. The Clerks have been Otto Rollmann, F. J. Isaak, M. J. Miesen, John Konz and John Hennen.

METOMEN.

This fine agricultural town lies on the west line of Fond du Lac County, immediately south of Ripon and northwest of Waupun. This is called the richest town in Fond du Lac county, cities not included. This reputation is sustained by the taxes paid in 1879 by Metomen, which were about $300 in excess of those of any other town. It is Township 15 north, of Range 14 east, containing 36 full sections of arable land. The town as a whole is a rich, undulating prairie, scarcely one-twentieth of its area being timber. The most uneven portions have a soil of sandy loam, with a subsoil of gravel, and with an occasional outcrop of limestone, which can be profitably worked. In the lowlands are found the vegetable mold—the choice alluvium of the marshy meadows. These, when thoroughly drained, constitute a mine of agricultural wealth. "Round Prairie," comprising several thousand acres northwest of Brandon is justly celebrated for its beauty and fertility. Much of Metomen is similar to Ripon, which has been called the "Eden of the West." Its elevation its gradually rolling surface and deep, warm soil combine to render it attractive and productive. Other portions of the township claim equal fertility. Much of the land is higher than any of the surrounding country—is, in fact, a watershed from which the streams flow southeasterly, northerly and westerly. The East Branch of the Rock River rises in Metomen. The Grand River, in the southwest corner, affords mill privileges at Fairwater. Wells upon the high prairie are not deep, but furnish exhaustless water supply. Creeks and brooklets are found, except upon the uplands. For a prairie country, Metomen contains some remarkable springs and streams. The spring on Almon Osborn's farm, Section 2, is the largest in the county, being the principal source of Silver Creek, which flows into Green Lake. Caraboo Spring, on the old Col. Mansfield farm, is twenty-five feet across and discharges an astonishing volume of water. This is the head of Grand River. The land has been well adapted to wheat-raising, but, lately, attention has been profitably turned to stock-raising, particularly of sheep; and wool is becoming a leading export. For general farming purposes, Metomen is excelled by few in the State.

HISTORIC INITIALS.

"Metomen," in the Menominee language, signifies "a grain of corn;" and this town was thus christened by F. D. Bowman. The first "white man's cabin" within the present limits of this town was built by Col. Mansfield, in 1844, north of Fairwater, in western portion. He kept bachelor's hall that summer and the next, but did not bring his family here till several other homes were established. On the 29th of May, 1844, the first entry of land in Metomen was made, by C. D. Higley, who was then an active young bachelor. It was the farm upon which he now resides with his family. The honor of founding the first home in Metomen is clearly due to Daniel Eggleston, who brought his family to a log cabin, not far from their present home, in the third week of June, 1845. Jacob Carter and family located near him just one week later. Among the settlers of that season were Almon Osborn, S. H. French, E. F. Mansfield, Robert Jenkinson, John and Thomas Coats, William C. Worden, M. D. Wilson, Mathew Wilson, A. Dart. The settlement was prosperous and rapidly increased, and, within two years, all Government land was claimed by actual settlers. Franklin French has the honor of being the youngest pioneer who arrived in the township during the first year of the settlement, he having been born on the 26th of October, 1845, in the unfinished cabin of Jacob Carter. Esq. French's hay-thatched cabin had been, the previous month, accidentally burned, and that can date first "fire" in Metomen. In the spring of 1846, the first sermon was preached by a Baptist minister named Jeremiah Murphy, in the cabin of Daniel Eggleston. During the summer of 1846, Rev. W. G. Miller, now well known in this State, began preaching in the schoolhouse on Section 2, in the Walworth District, and Rev. Miller was the first preacher whose charge included the town of Metomen. Elder Marcellus Barnum was the first settled Pastor in the town, having organized a Wesleyan society at Reed's Corners in 1847. This was afterward changed or merged into the present Congregational church, located at Reed's Corners. No death occurred the first year of settlement, but in March, 1846, Frederick Nay was consigned to earth. In April, of the same year, a Mr. Farnam and a Miss Collins were united for "better or worse." The first public school was established the same season on Section 2, and Lois Walker was the presiding officer; this was in a private house; but, next summer, a schoolhouse was built on the same section, and J. W. Wilsie was the first pedagogue. In the spring of 1846, within a year from date of the first family's arrival, a post office was established, named "Grand River," with Jacob Carter as first Postmaster. At about the same time, the Post-Office Department had established another office called "Mansfield," with Daniel Eggleston as Postmaster. These were so near together that, as an old pioneer expressed it, "one cabbage leaf would cover both." "Grand River" was soon discontinued, but "Mansfield" remained for years the only post office in the town. William Stanton built a saw-mill in 1846, and Messrs. Dakin & Lathrop erected a flouring-mill in 1847 on the branches of Grand River, within the town limits and near Fairwater. The flouring-mill, remodeled, is now owned by Mr. Hurlbut, and has been "on duty" since its erection. The proprietors of the first flouring-mill, Dakin & Lathrop, were also the first merchants, having started a store at Fairwater in 1847. For several years all religious services were held in the settlers' cabins or in the schoolhouses, but, in the summer of 1856, the Free-Will Baptists of Fairwater erected the first church edifice in Metomen.

ORGANIZATION.

Metomen Town was organized at a meeting of citizens duly convened on the 7th of April, 1846, at the house of F. D. Bowman. Samuel A. Carpenter was chosen Moderator, and A. C. Robbins, Clerk. The town of Waupun and part of the town of Alto were then embraced in the town of Metomen. The first resolution which was passed established the pay of all town officers at 75 cents per day, unless otherwise fixed by law. The town officers elected at this first town meeting were: Chairman, Almon Osborn; Side Supervisors, Daniel Eggleston and S. A. Carpenter; Assessors, James English, D. L. McCorpin and Jacob Carter; Treasurer, Harvey Sexton; Town Clerk, A. C. Robbins; Collector, S. H. French; School Commissioners, Henry Boardman, A. C. Robbins and Robert Jenkinson; Justices of the Peace, S. H. French, S. A. Carpenter and Ira Lee. The total amount of taxes levied in Metomen, in 1846, was $161.32, of which $100.87 were collected. The present officers of the town are: Chairman, P. K. Pickard; Side Supervisors, J. Warner and W. Watson; Treasurer, J. McClelland; Clerk, E. Eusign; Justices, E. Reynolds and T. Watson; Assessor, A. M. Bly.

BRANDON.

This prosperous village lies in the southeastern part of Metomen. The first building within present corporation limits was built by R. W. Pride, in 1849, and stood on the site of F. M. Hillman's residence. The place was not improved nor continuously occupied for several years.

It did not become a center of business until the completion of the railroad in 1856, when it began rapid strides toward the dignity of a city. In its early history, it was a lively place and known as "Bungtown." The station and village was named "Brandon" by William Lockin, in honor of many Vermont settlers. It was not organized as a village until January 8, 1878. The first Trustees were, J. Abercrombie, W. D. Ash, J. Lockin, L. Marsh, G. H. Paine and J. Ranbe. First President, William Plocker, and Clerk, Charles Heuman. The present officers are, President, G. A. Russell, and Clerk, E. Ensign.

CHURCHES.

A Methodist class was formed as early as 1848, by Rev. H. Allen, a lay preacher and farmer, in the north part of Metomen. Meetings were held at Union Prairie Schoolhouse, which was one of a circuit containing three charges. This society in 1861 removed to Brandon, which by its rapid growth had become of central importance. The first official record of the Brandon Methodist Episcopal Church, is that of a quarterly conference held on Round Prairie, November 24, 1855, Rev. J. M. Walker, Presiding Elder, and Rev. John B. Armatage, preacher in charge. Services were held in private houses or schoolhouses, or sometimes in the hall of the building now kept as a hotel by Warren Hall. The present church was built in 1863, during the pastorate of Rev. Henry Requa. The present Board of Trustees are F. M. Hillman, F. P. Ferguson, T. R. Darrow, William Bronson, G. A. Russell, C. P. Knapp and A. G. Yorty; Clerk is W. R. Brown; Superintendent of Sunday school is Leander Ferguson; Rev. Jesse Cole is present Pastor. The total membership is 153. They have a commodious church and a comfortable parsonage. The society is an active force, and numerically exceeds any other religious association in the town. The Methodist Episcopal Church at Reed's Corners is also connected with this charge.

The Congregational Church of Brandon was organized on the 19th of April, 1857, by Rev. S. Bristol, in the schoolhouse near the center of Metomen Town. John Wilson was the first Deacon, and Robert Jenkinson the first Clerk. In July, 1862, the society removed to Brandon, and during the following summer their present house of worship was erected, under the pastorate of Rev. Norman McLeod. The present Board of Trustees are R. M. Wilsie, R. Graham and R. C. Kelly. Mr. Kelly has been a member of the Board continuously from its organization. The Deacons are George Bly, A. Turner and R. Graham. Martin C. Short is both Clerk of the Church and Superintendent of the Sunday school. Rev. Homer W. Carter is Pastor. Membership numbers seventy-five. The society is harmonious and prosperous.

The German Methodist Episcopal Church of Brandon erected its church edifice in 1876, under the pastorate of Rev. F. Strobel. A class was formed about ten years before that, by Rev. August Turnitzer, who supplied them with preaching. Their meetings were held in the Congregational Church. Trustees are Fred Ganger, F. Praatz and F. Nordwig. Superintendent of Sunday school is F. Sheffelbein. Present Pastor is Rev. John Deitrick. Membership, eighty-eight.

The German Lutheran Church was built in 1874. The Pastor was Rev. Holtzner. At the present time they are supplied with preaching once in two weeks, by the Pastor in charge at Ripon. The society is small, and a majority of the members live in the country.

BRANDON PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

From the small school taught by a single teacher in 1856, the Brandon school has gradually developed to its present acceptable proportions. In 1864 the present schoolhouse was erected. It is a wooden, two-story structure, containing four schoolrooms. The Principal, Prof. Kirk Spoor, has been in charge since 1872. He has three assistant teachers, all ladies. The present Board of Education are, James Turner, M. D., President; M. C. Short, Clerk, and F. R. Foster, Treasurer. The Board, under the high-school law of 1877, adopted the three-years course recommended by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. A class of four graduated in June, 1879. The course is designed to fit graduates for practical business life, and includes more than is required for a first-grade certificate for teaching. For the last five years, the school has drawn a gratuity under the law to promote high schools. In January, 1880, the average attendance was 170, with a total enrollment of 211. There is an average attendance of twelve non-resident tuition pupils. The teachers are faithful, the administration quietly efficient, and the school enjoys public confidence.

Chester, Hazen,

LADOGA

SOCIETIES.

The Brandon Lodge, A., E. & A. M., was organized under dispensation dated June 13, 1863. The first meeting occurred July 10, 1863. The charter members were: Elisha Gallop, who was the first Master; R. C. Kelly, who was the first Secretary; Hanson Ely, James McClelland, E. H. Yorty, James McGill, Henry Henriksen and Zenas Scott. The charter is dated June 14, 1864.

The present officers are: William Irwin, W. M.; Thomas Ivers, S. W.; H. H. Green, J. W.; J. P. Lyon, Treas.; E. Ensign, Sec'y; James McClelland, S. D.; John O'Hara, J. D.; Henry R. O'Hara, S. S.; C. A. Danforth, J. S.; A. Butts, Tiler.

The present membership is fifty-two. They have an attractive hall and are in working condition.

Lodge No. 107, I. O. O. F., was organized under a charter from the Grand Lodge dated January 21, 1864. The charter members were Lewis Whistler, Frank Perkins, C. B. Pierce, L. S. Shepherd and Isaac W. Tower.

They have a substantial two-story brick hall, 70x38 feet, built in 1871 at a cost of nearly $5,000; it is not yet free from incumbrance.

The present officers are: H. H. Green, N. G.; N. A. Stevens, V. G.; J. E. Gee, P. S.; Samuel Weinstock, Treas.; T. Watson, R. S. The Trustees are G. W. Sargeant, A. Butts and T. Watson. The society has been large and of social prominence.

Brandon Encampment, No. 25, was organized January 19, 1869. Its officers are: G. H. Paine, C. P.; G. W. Cole, H. P.; H. J. Parker, S. W.; H. H. Green, J. W.; T. Watson, Scribe; S. Weinstock, Treasurer.

Martha Lodge, No. 6, Daughters of Rebecca, was organized January 21, 1870. The officers are: L. J. Hall, N. G.; E. Butts, V. G.; M. Austin, R. S.; J. Watson, Treasurer.

Hope Lodge, No. 87, I. O. G. T., organized April 7, 1869, with ten charter members. The first W. C. was William R. Brown, and the first Recording Secretary was A. Pallister. The membership of the Lodge is fifty-six, and the officers are: Horace L. Brown, W. C. T.; Mary Whitton, W. V. T.; Eva C. Knapp, P. W. C. T.; Charles Allen, W. R. S.; Fayette Butts, W. F. S.; Lizzie Yorty, W. T.; F. E. Jones, W. M.; Rev. H. W. Carter, W. C.; Jennie Randall, W. G.; Charles Blake, W. S. The Lodge is thoroughly efficient.

Honest Temple, No. 85, Juvenile Templars, was organized in March, 1878. Its officers are: Lincoln McClelland, C. T.; Edith Yorty, V. T.; Charles Whitton, P. C. T.; Neil Knapp, R. S.; George Porter, F. S.; Mimmie Danforth, Treas.; Almer Hall, M.; Frank Knapp, C.; Grace Whitton, L. G.; Andrew Yorty, O. G.

The membership is forty-nine, and is composed of those who are in the habit-forming period of life, namely, from six to sixteen years of age. Most of the members are pledged to abstain not only from intoxicants, but from tobacco and profanity. Fully six thousand of these Juvenile Templars are numbered in Wisconsin, and ought to be a potent factor in shaping the future history of the State.

Brandon Grange, No. 52, was organized January 24, 1873, by Edwin Reynolds, Deputy of the State Grange. The first Master was John Wormwood, and the first Secretary was R. C. Kelly. The present membership is forty-four.

In the autumn of 1877, the Brandon Grange, in connection with several surrounding Granges, organized a stock company for the management of a co-operative store in Brandon. They commenced with a capital of $4,050. Chester Hazen is President of the Co-operative Association; F. Collins, Secretary; J. Wormwood, Treasurer. R. C. Kelly was engaged to take charge of the store, which has thus far been a success. It is conducted mainly on a cash basis. The profits are divided among the stockholders, not in proportion to their stock invested, but according to the amount of purchases they have made at the store during the year. Mr. Kelly is assisted by Frank G. Fowler, salesman, and also most of the time by an additional clerk. The capital, on the 1st of October, 1879, was $5,950, showing a net increase of $1,904. The Grangers express satisfaction at the result of the experiment. The present Master of the Lodge is William Irwin, and the Secretary is O. B. Knapp.

RAILROAD.

The efforts of this township and others in this locality were successful in securing railroad connections, and the Milwaukee & Horicon Railroad was built through this township in 1856. It passes northwesterly, from Section 36 to Section 3, in its course through Metomen. The road is now owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company. It was built by a construction company, who did not meet all their obligations, which caused some difficulties. Near Reed's Corners, the tracklayers were forcibly prevented from putting down the rails, by the unpaid workmen who had graded the road-bed. Civil and military aid was invoked and the rails were laid amid much excitement. The scene of the encounter is still known as the "battle ground." During the building of the railroad much freight had accumulated at Waupun, and some was sent over the line before the regular running of trains.

Way-bill No. 1 and first freight receipt were dated Tuesday, October 14, 1856. The goods were consigned to G. Perkins & Co., who were merchants, then located in the Walker House. The senior member of that firm is now County Judge of Fond du Lac County. Regular freight trains did not run until the 19th of October, 1856. The first regular passenger train which left Milwaukee for Brandon, and returned on schedule time, came into Brandon with flying colors about noon on Saturday, October 18, 1856. The event was an occasion of special rejoicing: Charles Larrabee, of Horicon, was the leading orator of the day; a public dinner and free drinks made it a memorable day. H. W. Gregory was the first station agent at Brandon. The express and railroad agent at the present time is W. S. Randall.

MANUFACTORIES.

The village is fairly supplied with manufacturing establishments, and among the leading ones are the planing-mill and sash, door and blind factory of O. P. Knapp; the wagon factory of Alexander Turner, and the flouring-mill of H. G. Mathews.

There are two hotels—the Ensign House, kept by the owner, Esquire Ensign; it has twenty-two rooms for guests, has a good reputation, and is a pleasant home for pilgrims and strangers. The Walker House, about the same size, is kept by the owner, Warren Hall. This was the first hotel in Brandon, and still retains a share of the traveling patronage.

The business interests of Brandon are represented by enterprising men in the various departments of industry and commerce. An extended sketch of most of them will be found in the Biographical Department of this History. A rich agricultural country is tributary to Brandon, which is a thrifty village of 800 population. It contains four general stores, three hardware stores, two drug stores, two groceries, three milliners' stores, one notion store, one jewelry store, one flouring-mill, one planing-mill, two wagon-shops, three harness-shops, two shoe-shops, two meat markets, two hotels, one merchant tailor, two paint-shops, one cooper-shop, one cabinet-shop, three blacksmith-shops, one barber-shop, four grain warehouses, two lumber-yards, five grain and produce buyers, two jobbers and contractors, two stonemasons, four agricultural-implement dealers, one drayman, two justices of the peace, one lawyer, three doctors, four ministers and four churches, three saloons, two insurance agents, one police magistrate, one broker, one newspaper and printing office, one money-order post office, one depot, one graded high school and seven secret societies.

FAIRWATER.

In the southwestern part of Metomen, on the Grand River, in 1847, a flouring-mill was built by Messrs. Dakin and Lathrop; it was a favorable site for a village and was the starting-point of Fairwater, which rapidly grew and was for ten years the commercial center of a large tract of rapidly developing country. The railroad, in 1856, left Fairwater "out in the cold," and a decline was inevitable.

The first church in Metomen was built at Fairwater. The society was organized February 2, 1850, with the name of the First Free-Will Baptist Church of Fairwater, under the ministrations of Rev. William Mitchell; the first Clerk was Deacon R. M. Harwood. Their church edifice was dedicated on the 10th of July, 1856, by Rev. Ransom Dunn. The cost was $1,600, and, in 1863, the society built a $1,000 parsonage. The original membership was eight; the present is thirty. The Trustees are F. Newland, C. Tinkham and P. P. Tucker, who also is Clerk. John Hogben is Deacon, and Rev. J. P. Hewes, Pastor. This first church of the town, at the present writing, is the scene of unusual religious interest. The First Regular Baptist Church of Metomen, at Fairwater, was organized March 30, 1851; the Council was held April 30, 1851. Original membership, thirteen. Elder Peck was the organizing Pastor. Their church was dedicated in July, 1860. The society was at one time quite flourishing, but by deaths and removals has become very small. It is now nominally a branch of the Ripon Baptist Church, but most of the former members attend and help support the Free-Will Baptist Church of Fairwater. No regular services are now held in the church; it is the temporary lodge-room of the Good Templars.

The temperance people of Fairwater and vicinity organized Lodge No. 111, of I. O. of Good Templars, on the 9th day of February, 1876. The officials are: W. C. T., Frank Hunt; R. S., Warren Batson; Lodge Deputy, Frank Collins. They have a membership of forty, and are in good working condition.

The first Evangelical Lutheran Church of East Fairwater was organized at a meeting held on the 21st of June, 1872. The presiding and recording officers of said meeting were William North and Louis Dreis. The first Pastor was Rev. G. Heolzel, who began his pastorate in the autumn of 1872, and a church was erected the same season. The membership includes forty-seven families. The President of the Board of Trustees is Gottlieb Klawon, and the Clerk is H. Kath.

The leading industry of Fairwater is the flouring-mill of N. C. Hurlbart. The Postmaster is J. H. Brown. The village has two general stores, one flouring-mill, one blacksmith-shop, one shoe-shop, two carpenter-shops, one stonemason, a post office, one secret society, two ministers, three churches and one saloon.

REED'S CORNERS AND METOMEN.

The northern portion of Metomen was settled as early as the western, and several of the first settlers located in the vicinity of what is known as Reed's Corners. A post office was established at that point in 1852, with Giles Eggleston as Postmaster. In 1847, a Wesleyan Church society was organized by Rev. Marcellus Barnum, but no church was built until 1857. This organization was consolidated with or merged into a Congregational society on the 21st of May, 1865, and Rev. S. Bristol was their first Pastor. The church property was decded by the Trustees of the former Wesleyan society to the new organization, which is named the "Second Congregational Church of Metomen," and is located at Reed's Corners. The Deacons are M. Barnum, L. Stillwell and G. C. Goodfellow. The Clerk is H. E. Stillwell. Pastor, Rev. Heman Safford. Membership, thirty-two.

Rev. W. G. Miller, Methodist, held meetings on Section 2, near Reed's Corners, in 1846. Services were afterward discontinued, but, in 1860, were revived by Rev. S. S. Lang, who organized a class and appointed S. T. Wilsie Class Leader. Their present church edifice was built in 1866, during the pastorate of Rev. A. A. Reed. The Trustees are S. T. Wilsie, N.

Van Camp, J. B. Russell, N. A. Miller and T. Hutchinson. The charge is connected with Brandon, and is served by Rev. Jesse Cole, as Pastor. Present membership about thirty.

The place was once of local importance, and had stores, shops, depot, post office, etc., but in 1873, the post office and depot were removed half a mile south and the station named Metomen. The location of the two churches at Reed's Corners gives it prominence. It receives its name from Warren Reed, deceased, who was actively identified with the locality.

Metomen is the other railroad station in the township, besides Brandon. It has no business houses, stores shops or manufactories. The post office is in official charge of Mrs. E. Reynolds.

There are two cheese factories in the town, one established by H. C. Kibbie, on Section 18, in 1871. The other by Hazen & Norris, on Section 26, in 1872. The town is noted for its pleasant farmhouses and spacious, substantial barns. Probably no portion of Wisconsin can show so large a percentage of first-class barns as Metomen and the few surrounding towns. The contents of these barns are supposed to be more secure because of the existence of a thoroughly organized Protective Association, with fully seventy members. The name suggests its purpose. E. Reynolds is President, and R. M. Wilse, Secretary. In 1875, the town had a population of 1,838, and will doubtless show its proportionate growth according to the census of 1880. More than the usual percentage of old pioneers still retain their original purchases from the United States Government. There are eleven schoolhouses and nine churches in the town; the people, being largely from New England, are of the class which builds churches and schoolhouses very soon after securing their first cabin homes. Metomen is a choice town, both in the fertility of its soil and in the character of its inhabitants.

OAKFIELD.

This is a rich, prosperous and pleasant town. It was erected into the town of Lime by an act approved February 2, 1846, and the name changed to Oakfield February 10, 1847. The extensive and rich quarries of limestone afforded by the "Ledge," in Township 14 north, of Range 16 east, suggested the name of Lime, and the beautiful oak openings suggested the present name of Oakfield. It is about equally divided between the high oak openings and prairie. That portion of Horicon Marsh which extends into Oakfield has been drained, and is now mostly tillable land. The Ledge is very prominent in this town. It furnishes lime, building material, delicious springs and picturesque scenery—"Darling's Gap," a wild spot near the village of Oakfield, being the most notable and attractive. Its winding crevices, deep caverns, overhanging precipices and vast domes of disintegrated rocks attract thousands of tourists and picnickers.

The first settlement was begun in 1819, south of the present village of Oakfield, by Russell Wilkinson, who came with his family from Rensselaer County, N. Y., early that year, and built a log house. The Winnebago Indians were very numerous about the Ledge then, owing to the abundance of game in its retreats, and were highly displeased by the invasion of the pale-face. They stole nearly everything he possessed that was movable, and finally burned his home with all its contents. Mr. Wilkinson then procured a yoke of oxen and removed his wife, who was in delicate health, to the house of Edward Pier, at Fond du Lac. The Indians then held undisputed sway in that section until October, 1843, when Mr. Wilkinson and his brother Robert returned to the farm and made a permanent settlement. They were for some time the only white denizens of the town, but were joined not much later by John Wilkinson, John Beirne, S. Botsford and Messrs. Silvernail, Hubbard and Hazen. When once the richness and warmth of the soil, the beauty of the location and the healthfulness of the climate became generally known, the town settled with wonderful rapidity, and has always maintained itself in the front rank of prosperous and populous towns.

The first town election was held in April, 1846, at Russell Wilkinson's house, at which C. T. Rich was chosen Supervisor, and Lorenzo Hazen, Clerk.

In 1844, Lorenzo Hazen was one of the leaders in forming the Washingtonian Society, the first regularly organized temperance society in the county.

The first birth was Martha, daughter of Robert Wilkinson, in May, 1844.

The first death was that of John Wilkinson, killed by the fall of a tree in 1846. The neighbors, meager in numbers and poor as they were, massed their means, and paid for the "forty" which Mr. Wilkinson had entered, but not paid for, and gave it to his stricken family. Russell Wilkinson died suddenly May 4, 1847.

The first marriage was Thomas Burns to Elizabeth Stene in 1844.

The first school was taught in 1845, by Mariah Moore, afterward Mrs. A. Hubbard, in a schoolhouse built that year on Section 14. The town now contains eight schoolhouses.

The first sermon was preached in February, 1845, by Rev. Harvey Bronson, at Russell Wilkinson's house. The first church was not erected until 1852, by the Congregationalists, on Section 22.

The first post office was established at Avoca, one mile east of what is now the village of Oakfield, on Section 13. Isaac Orvis was the first Postmaster. Henry Cornell is the present Postmaster of Oakfield, as it has many years been called.

The first mill was a saw-mill, built in 1844 by J. Allen. In 1851, Col. Henry Conklin built the first flouring mill, at a cost of $12,000, on the East Branch of Fond du Lac River, near the village of Avoca.

The first store was opened in 1845, on Section 22, by William I. Ripley.

In 1869, Strong & Hammond built the first cheese factory in the town.

In 1852, the Chicago & North-Western Railway was built through Oakfield. It maintains two stations in the town—Oakfield and Oak Center.

The town of Oakfield never granted license to sell liquors of any kind as a beverage.

Oak Center is the geographical center of the town. It has a post office, store and elevator.

The Journal of September 15, 1848, said: "A fragment of a bowl or vase was presented to us last week, which was found in the town of Oakfield, ten inches under ground. It is about a quarter of an inch thick, marked with parallel lines and dots. The curve indicates the vessel to have been fourteen inches in diameter. The substance appears to be a brown clay buried." Many other similar relics have been found in the town.

OAKFIELD VILLAGE.

The first village in the town of Oakfield was called Avoca, and was situated on Section 13, on the "old plank road." Here were opened the first mill and established the first post office. When the Rock River Valley Union Railway was put through the town the center of trade was transferred to the present site of Oakfield, one mile west of Avoca. It is one of the most pleasant inland hamlets in the county. From the residences on the hill, Fond du Lac, Lamartine, Mount Calvary Monastery, the whole sweep of Lake Winnebago and a stretch of thirty miles of hill and prairie can be seen, and the Ledge, only a few rods back of the village, is a resort of all pleasure parties in the vicinity.

The most prominent industry, Putnam & Blair's sash, door and blind factory, was torn down and removed in 1879, after years of prosperity.

The cheese factory, built by Strong & Hammond, in 1869, now owned by Bristol & Orvis, is prosperous.

The Vermont House, so named because its builder came from Vermont, is owned and managed by William H. Brown. It is the only hotel in Oakfield. Since coming into possession of the house in 1876, Mr. Brown has enlarged and improved it.

The physicians are William Moore, J. W. Burns and G. B. Durand. Burns Bros., of which firm Dr. J. W. Burns is a member, have the only drug store.

The general stores are by W. S. Russell, Bristol & Worthing and H. Cornell.

Bogie & McDonald have the only meat market.

Oakfield Lodge, No. 158, A. F. & A. M., was granted a dispensation February 22, 1866, and a charter June 13 of the same year, with the following charter members: William Moore, N. Filby, H. Cornell, O. Hatch, S. G. Pickett, D. H. Spencer and Theodore Conklin. The first officers were: S. G. Pickett, Master; H. Cornell, Senior Warden; N. Filby, Junior Warden; T. Conklin, Secretary; and D. H. Spencer, Treasurer. The Lodge now has fifty members; rents a hall in H. Cornell's building. The present officers are: J. W. Burns, W. M.; William Moore, S. W.; H. A. Burns, J. W.; H. A. Ripley, Secretary; William Worthing, Treasurer. The first officers elected after the charter had been granted were: H. Cornell, W. M.; William Moore, S. W., and N. Filby, J. W.

Oakfield Lodge, No. 174, I. O. O. F., was organized December 24, 1869, with the following charter members: John Hubbard, E. A. Hubbard, Thomas Burns, A. H. Odell, Michael Foley, J. E. Collins. The first officers were: N. Filby, P. G.; J. H. Hubbard, N. G.; E. A. Hubbard, V. G.; M. B. Dille, P. S.; Treasurer, A. H. Odell. The present officers are: A. A. Swan, P. G.; E. T. Hitt, N. G.; W. S. Orvis, V. G.; L. R. Wells, R. S.; J. W. Burns, P. S.; Thomas Burns, Treasurer. The Lodge is in good working order, and has forty-two members. Meetings are held in Masonic Hall.

The Sons of Temperance organized along in the fifties, but disbanded when the war broke out. H. D. Hitt was the first Worthy Patriarch.

Wide-Awake Lodge, No. 504, I. O. G. T., was organized in September, 1879, P. E. Gilson being the first Worthy Chief. The Lodge is wide-awake in more than name. It now has thirty-five members, with frequent additions. P. E. Gilson still holds the office of Worthy Chief.

Oakfield Grange, No. 55, was organized in 1872 with H. D. Hitt as Master. The lodge has a fine hall over the cheese factory, and holds regular meetings at which all farm, fruit and dairy topics are discussed in their season. The lodge now numbers forty thrifty farmers, with Levi Large as Master. The Patron's Aid Society is a branch of the Grange, which secures for the family of any member at his death an assessment of $1 from each member in the State. H. D. Hitt, who is one of the Directors of this branch, was also one of its originators.

The Union Church was built in 1867, by a stock company, at a cost of $4,000 for building, site and furniture. The organization consists of about one hundred members who are stockholders. The building is free to be used by any denomination, and was erected with that plan in view. The first officers were: H. D. Hitt, President; J. T. White, Treasurer, and E. A. Putnam, Secretary. The present officers are: H. D. Hitt, President; William Worthing, Secretary, and Henry Cornell, Treasurer.

Grace Episcopal Church had its origin in an Episcopal Sunday school started in 1857 in District No. 10, by Mrs. L. Russell and T. J. Wood. A school teacher named Palmer then began lay-reading, and a sermon or two by Rev. George B. Eastman, of Fond du Lac, increased the interest, and Mrs. Russell and Mrs. N. Filby began the collection of funds for the erection of a church edifice. They were aided by Mrs. Robert Kinniment, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Finally, a meeting for organizing the church was held, and the gathering lacking one of the number required by law to complete the legal formation, Mrs. L. Russell crossed the field and asked in William Butler, who then donated the site for the edifice. The consecration of the building, erected on Section 13 but moved to its present location in Oakfield Village in 1868 or 1869, took place in 1861, by Bishop Kemper. The first Pastor was Rev. Turner; present Pastor, Rev. W. E. Wright, residing at Waupun. The first officers were N. Filby, Senior Warden, and Robert Palmer, Junior Warden.

Avoca Cemetery, platted in 1856, on Section 13, by H. D. Hitt and N. Filby, covers two and one-quarter acres of ground, and is an unusually neat and well-kept burial place. It is beautifully shaded by deciduous and evergreen trees. The first officers were H. D. Hitt, N. Filby and Jacob Avery. The present officers are W. W. Wheeler, H. D. Hitt and A. H. Steen.

The first elevator in Oakfield was built in 1868 by George W. King. It burned, and he erected in its place the present fine steam elevator, which some seasons is compelled to run night and day. The proprietors are George W. King & Son.

M. R. Hubbard & George W. King erected a large steam hay-press which began a thriving business early in 1880. It is the only steam press in the county.

Willard & Morgan built a steam saw-mill in the winter of 1879-80. It is also fitted with machinery for turning out materials for various kinds of hardwood work.

The Henry Conklin mills, built in 1851, run now by H. Hanson and owned by C. K. Pier; the Avoca mills, built by Mr. Large and run by Charles Frensel, and the Stroup mills, built by Isaac Orvis, are flouring-mills near Oakfield Village, all situated on the East Branch of the Fond du Lac River.

O. W. Willard has a large stone wagon factory, the only one in Oakfield.

The school is graded and very thorough, although managed on the district plan.

OSCEOLA.

The name of the famous chief of the Florida Indians is perpetuated in the name of this town—Township 14 north, of Range 19 east. It is rich in timber, small lakes, fish and wild waterfowl. The town was named by W. R. Longstreet. It was first settled, probably, in 1845, by Washington Noble, James Farr, and Peter Radliff, at what is now Waucousta. About eight months later, W. R. Longstreet, John Beeson, William Mitchell and Silas Allen settled at the same place, and John Graham, William Oliver, John Airhart, Joseph Cavanagh and others soon after settled in other parts of the town.

The first birth was in William Oliver's family in 1847: Byron, son of John and Louisa Graham, was born March 14, 1849.

The first marriage was that of Washington Noble to Helen Airhart.

In February, 1849, the infant daughter of Michael and Ellen Scannell died, and later the same year, Mrs. Noble died—the first death in Osceola.

The first election was held in April, 1851, when the town was set off from Eden. Rev. J. W. Whitney was elected Chairman; W. R. Longstreet, Superintendent of Schools; William Mitchell, Clerk; Leander Mayhew, Treasurer.

In 1850, Sarah J. Walters taught the first school, at the house of N. Carey. In the winter of that year a schoolhouse was erected on Section 8. The town now contains seven good schoolhouses. The first sermon was preached in William Mitchell's house, by Rev. John W. Whitney, in 1847; probably the first church edifice was built in 1855 or 1856, on Section 2, by the Catholics.

The first post office was called Osceola, as it is still. C. W. Prescott was the first Postmaster.

Post offices are now open at Dundee, Waucousta and Armstrong's Corners—the latter named after Asher Armstrong.

The first saw-mill and first grist-mill were built at Waucousta, by John Beeson—the former probably in 1848; the latter two or three years later. Both were on Middle Branch of the Milwaukee River.

C. W. Prescott entered the first land—northeast quarter of Section 9—in 1846.

William Crosby built the first cheese factory in 1877, at Waucousta.

The first Irish settler was Michael Scannell, 1848; first German, John Airhart; first Scotchman, William Mitchell; first Americans, William Oliver and John Graham.

The highest point of land in the town is on Section 34.

T. W. Purcell opened the first store in Osceola, at Waucousta, not earlier than the fall of 1859. J. H. Trentledge now has a large store at this place, and there are also blacksmith, shoe and wagon shops, cheese factories, and the store kept by Mr. Tompkins, in which is the post office.

At Dundee, which was platted, recorded and named by E. M. McIntosh, in February, 1864, is a good water-power. The first dam and saw-mill were built by Stephen Palmer and Mr. McIntosh, in 1855. Soon after, the property fell into the hands of William and Leroy Palmer, who built the flouring-mill in 1858. It is now owned by F. Hollensteiner. The first Postmaster at Dundee was I. S. Sheldon. The office is now kept by Jacob Arimond, though F. Hollensteiner is Postmaster. Dundee Hotel is kept by Mr. Brokmeyer, who started the cattle fair for Dundee in 1870. There are three churches at this village—a Catholic mission, supplied by Father Michels, of New Cassel; a Reformed church, built in 1876, of which F. Hollensteiner is Treasurer and Rev. F. Maurer, Pastor, and a Lutheran church, built in 1878.

RIPON.

Although a rich and important town, Ripon has little history of interest not to be found in the history of the Wisconsin Phalanx and the city of Ripon. The first settlement and all important events took place within the limits of the city of Ripon. As to who made the first settlement of that portion of the town outside of the city is not undisputed, though D. P. Mapes, Dr. Spalding and A. Loper were among the first. This is a magnificent town as to location and soil, Green Lake Prairie, on which it largely lies, being unsurpassed in Wisconsin. The original marsh land, what there was, is now productive meadow or pasture, and the oak openings have been turned into wheat fields. Rush Lake touches the north side of the town, but destroys the value of but little land.

By an act approved January 23, 1845, the present towns of Ripon and Rosendale were erected into the town of Ceresco, the first election being held in April of that year, at the house of Lester Rounds. The next year, the town was reduced, by the organization of Rosendale, to its present dimensions—Township 16 north, Range 14 east.

The Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway crosses the town from east to west; the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul from north to south, and the Oshkosh & Mississippi crosses Sections 1, 11, 12, 14 and 15, extending northeast from Ripon City.

At Arcade, a mile west of Ripon City, is a fine water-power, which drives the Arcade Flouring-Mills, owned by J. N. Foster and W. F. and S. Crawford. The mill is equipped, also, with steam machinery, for use during low water, and is one of the most modern and prosperous custom mills in the county.

Ripon Farmers' Fire Insurance Company.—This comprises the towns of Ripon and Metomen, in Fond du Lac County, and Green Lake and Brooklyn, in Green Lake County. It was organized, under the State law, in 1874, and began issuing policies June 6, of that year, with a capital of $200,000. The charter members, or original incorporators, were Edwin Reynolds, C. W. Foster, P. Cole, E. Babcock, H. Willard, H. S. Hollenbeck, W. O. Hargrave, James Henderson, William Palmiter, Mrs. Jane Frazier, N. Van Camp, S. T. Wilsie, Robert Sheldon, J. M. Bonnell, E. P. West, A. G. Kellogg, F. Bessett, M. Barnum, John Niver, A. Osborn, H. B. Reed, J. H. Hurlbut, A. R. Hargrave, William Ralston, Josiah Batson, J. W. Allen and J. E. Mason. The first Directors were J. Niver, R. Sheldon, J. H. Hurlbut, H. B. Reed, A. Osborn, J. Batson, J. W. Allen, J. E. Mason and E. P. West. First officers: J. H. Hurlbut, President; R. Sheldon, Vice President; John Niver, Treasurer; E. P. West, Secretary. Present officers are: R. Sheldon, President; H. B. Reed, Vice President; J. M. Cuykendall, Treasurer, and E. P. West, Secretary. The number of policies now in force is about five hundred, insuring $725,000 of property. For five years, the total cost for losses and all expenses was 6½ mills in the dollar.

The offices of Chairman and Town Clerk have been filled in Ripon by the following: 1845 (Ceresco), Morris Farmin and Uriel Farmin; 1846, Lester Rounds and William Starr; 1847, J. M. Clark and William Starr; 1848, D. P. Mapes and William Starr; 1849, William Starr and James Stewart; 1850, William Starr and Stephen Bates; 1851, Warren Chase and Stephen Bates; 1852, E. A. Newton and Samuel Sumner; 1853, T. B. Robbins and Samuel Sumner; 1854, A. B. Beardsley and Samuel Sumner; 1855, A. B. Beardsley and C. J. Allen; 1856, D. P. Mapes and J. V. Fitch. 1857 (Ripon), H. H. Mead and H. S. Town, and also Abram Thomas and H. S. Town; 1858, Abram Thomas and S. M. Brown; 1859, Abram Thomas and Ferdinand Richter; 1860, Abram Thomas and Ferdinand Richter; 1861, T. B. Robbins and H. E. Stilwell; 1862, T. B. Robbins and H. E. Stilwell; 1863, T. B. Robbins and H. E. Stilwell; 1864, T. B. Robbins and H. E. Stilwell; 1865, William Light and H. E. Stilwell; 1866, William Light and H. E. Stilwell; 1867, H. H. Dixon and H. E. Stilwell; 1868, A. A. Loper and H. E. Stilwell; 1869, A. A. Loper and H. E. Stilwell; 1870, A. A. Loper and H. E. Stilwell; 1871, A. A. Loper and H. E. Stilwell; 1872, A. A. Loper and H. E. Stilwell; 1873, A. A. Loper and H. E. Stilwell; 1874, A. A. Loper and I. F. Stickle; 1875, E. P. West and I. F. Stickle, W. M. Ralston; 1876, E. P. West and W. M. Ralston; 1877, W. M. Ralston and J. M. Bonnell; 1878, W. M. Ralston, A. R. Hargrave and J. M. Bonnell; 1879, E. Babcock and J. M. Bonnell.

ROSENDALE.

In an early day the name Rosendale was the most appropriate that could have been given to the tract of land constituting the town of that name. It was suggested by Mrs. George D. Curtis, "because it was such a perfect dale of roses." The town, as erected by the act of February 2, 1846, was much larger than at present, consisting of Township 16, Range 15; the north half of Township 15, Range 15, and Sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18 of Township 15, Range 16. It was finally reduced to its present dimensions when Springvale, Eldorado and Lamartine were organized.

The first settler was Samuel Sanborn, who located on the southeast quarter of Section 35, in June, 1844. He plowed during the summer, keeping "old back," and sowed wheat in the fall. He returned to Waukesha County for the winter, returning with his family in the spring of 1845. Dana Lamb, however, had located in the town with his family before Mr. Sanborn's returned in the spring; so Mrs. Lamb was the first woman in the settlement. That year also came over twenty other families, and in 1846, nearly as many more, and Rosendale at once became one of the leading towns in the county, which position it still maintains.

The first election was April 7, 1846, at the house of Samuel Sanborn, electing Samuel Sanborn, W. H. H. Dodd and H. C. Ward, Supervisors; F. Scofield, Clerk; S. Sanborn and H. A. Bixby, Assessors; J. D. Price, Collector; H. W. Wolcott, W. H. H. Dodd and Dana Lamb, Justices; Jerome Yates, B. Dodd and S. E. Smith, Constables; Jerome Yates, H. W. Wolcott and O. Grant, School Commissioners; G. D. Curtis, Dana Lamb and A. Kenyon, Fence Viewers; C. M. Balcom, A. Kenyon and L. A. Bemis, Road Commissioners; Stephen R. Sanborn, Sealer of Weights and Measures.

The first birth was that of James, son of Alban Harroun, October, 1845. [This was in what is now Springvale.]

The first marriage [also in what is now Springvale], Eliphalet Smith to Sallie Warren, November, 1846.

The first death, Mrs. Jerod Patrick, daughter of Jonathan Dodd, May 22, 1846.

The first schoolhouse was built in 1845 and 1846, on Section 35, of logs, and Dwight Hall taught the first school in the winter of 1846.

Rev. Jeremiah Murphy, Baptist, preached the first sermon in Samuel Sanborn's house, in January, 1846. The first church edifice was raised November 4, 1853, on Section 35, by the Congregationalists. The town now contains six churches—Methodist, German, Episcopal, Free-Will Baptists, Congregationalist, and Welsh Congregationalist.

The first post office was called Rosendale, and was near the present one of the same name; established in May, 1846, Dana Lamb, Postmaster. J. R. Blackburn is now Postmaster.

In the fall of 1846, Jonathan Daugherty opened the first store in Rosendale, for Fay & Collins, where the present village is situated.

Cars passed through Rosendale on February, 1872, on the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railroad. Two stations are maintained in the town—Rosendale and West Rosendale.

At its organization the town voted "no license," and has never changed that decision.

At the first election, Captains William and N. P. Stevens offered to vote but were debarred. They entered into an argument and finally convinced the Judge that "seafaring men could vote at any seaport in the United States," and were allowed to vote. So Rosendale has been a "seaport" since that time.

A. H. Bowe was the first physician in the town. Rosendale contains several large mounds, from some of which have been taken bones and various interesting evidences of a prehistoric race. Rosendale is comparatively level and has a warm, rich, quick soil. It is one of the leading farming towns of the county in nearly all branches, and fruits of various kinds are raised with fair success. Originally the town was moderately wooded, but the extent of heavy forests was very limited. The West Branch of Fond du Lac River has a portion of its source in a marsh in the center of the town, but the streamlets forming its head-waters are mostly from Springvale. The town contains no mills, water-power or manufactories, and not much stone of any kind. It has always been a forehanded section of the county, and its society is good, the people being nearly all natives of New York or New England. Some of its prominent men were Philetus Sawyer, C. F. Hammond, Henry C. Bottum, Dr. A. H. Bowe, Dr. Storrs Hall, James Saunders, Joseph Scribner and N. C. Hill, who were early settlers. A list of its first settlers comprises the following: 1844 and 1845—Samuel Sanborn, Dana Lamb, Frederick Scofield, Job Humphries, Henry Wheeler, Almon Kenyon, George D. Curtis, Henry W. Wolcott, William H. H. Dodd, C. M. Balcom, Alban Harroun, James Port, Noah H. Jewett, Henry C. Ward, H. A. Bixby, Jerome Yates, Bushnel Dodd, Othello Grant, J. D. Pierce, S. R. Sanborn, L. A. Bemis, Samuel E. Smith, Allen Perry, David Brinkerhoff, John H. Chapman, Frederick Jewett. 1846—James T. Elliott, Moses Ranger, S. D. Ranger, Samuel B. Parsons, Clinton Matteson, C. R. Pease, James Scofield, D. C. Thompson, Eliphalet Smith, Myron Howe, C. Stow, John Ackerson, Thomas Fletcher.

ROSENDALE FARMERS' INSURANCE COMPANY.

In March, 1873, Joseph Scribner and H. C. Bottum, a committee appointed by the Farmer's Club, circulated the articles necessary to form an insurance company under the State law. The required number of signatures were obtained, and the company organized March 7, 1874, thirty-four persons subscribing $34,300 of capital. The first officers were: W. J. Jennings, President; C. H. Seymour, Secretary and Treasurer. Directors—W. J. Jennings, C. H. Seymour, Melvin Duel, A. C. Perry, Canfield Marsh, H. C. Bottum and Joseph Scribner. The present officers are: Joseph Scribner, President; C. H. Seymour, Secretary and Treasurer; Frank Bowe, Assistant Secretary. Directors—Joseph Scribner, C. H. Seymour, Frank Bowe, W. T. Innis, C. W. Frederick, C. H. Anderson and A. C. Perry. The amount insured, by towns, January, 1880, was as follows: Rosendale, $190,150; Springvale, $241,305; Eldorado, $240,792; Lamartine, $26,091. Total, $698,163. The Company is for the four towns just enumerated.

ROSENDALE FARMERS' CLUB.

The formation of this Club was suggested by W. J. Jennings, on Thanksgiving Day, 1865, and was organized a week later. The first annual meeting was held in January, 1866, at which W. J. Jennings was chosen President, and W. B. Dishrow, Secretary. Rev. J. N. Powell then delivered the first annual address, and the custom has been kept up every year since. Mr. Jennings was President nine years. The present officers are: William J. Barnes, President; E. S. Jenkins, Secretary.

The most successful and influential farmers, stock and fruit growers are members of the Club, and its discussions are widely published. The first meeting in each month is a "social" one, at which essays, music, readings and a good repast are served, the ladies being always in attendance.

Two conventions have been held under the auspices of the Club: one, a general convention for Northern Wisconsin, in 1872, which was largely attended, and the other a county convention, held in honor of Washington's Birthday, February 22, 1876.

ROSENDALE VILLAGE.

This little hamlet is not wholly in the town of Rosendale, the South Side being in Springvale. The first hotel was built by Daugherty & Woodruff, on the Springvale side, in 1847. In 1859, Wheeler & Humphrey erected a larger hotel where Blackburn's hotel now stands, in Rosendale. The builders were the first landlords. In 1878, J. R. Blackburn rebuilt and enlarged this hotel, making a large, comfortable and well-appointed hostelry of it.

C. Stowe opened the first blacksmith-shop in 1846.

The village has two stores, a drug store, blacksmith-shops, cheese factory and hotels.

The school has two departments, and was formerly called Rosendale Academy, the originator being A. S. Crooker.

W. H. H. Dodd was, for twenty-five years, the leading merchant of Rosendale. He resides now in Dakota.

The first Episcopal services were held in 1847, by Bishop Kemper. In April, 1861, Rev. F. Durlin organized St. Mark's Church, with B. Pinkney, Senior Warden; A. H. Bowe, Junior Warden. Vestrymen—George Walton, W. Danielson and Adam Seely. The cornerstone of the church edifice was laid in 1863, and the consecration was by Bishop Kemper April 12, 1864. The building cost $1,800. The church has been supplied mostly by the Rector of the church at Ripon.

The Congregational Church was given its first sermon by Rev. Dana Lamb, and was organized in the schoolhouse May 21, 1848, by him, with twenty members. The first Deacons were David Brinkerhoff, Homer Barnes and W. G. Winnegar. The church edifice was built at a cost of $2,000, while Rev. Dana Lamb was Pastor, in 1854. The dedication took place in January, 1855. In 1870, the building was enlarged and repaired, and again dedicated September 5, of that year. The church property consists of the building, site and a parsonage, which cost $1,100, purchased in 1875. The first Pastor was Rev. L. Bridgeman; the present Pastor is Rev. E. J. Montague; the present Deacons, Storrs Hall, I. N. Woodruff, George C. Hill and C. L. Hoyt.

The first Methodist services and the organization of the first class took place in December, 1848, or January, 1849, in the schoolhouse, under Rev. Lathrop. The first class consisted of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Halsted, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kibby, J. W. Innis, Miss E. Covell, Mr. and Mrs. E. Warring, Mr. W. Hyde and his mother, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ballard and two daughters, and four others. The first Trustees were H. G. Halsted, John M. Cowhan, A. H. Bowe, H. W. Wolcott, George D. Curtis, J. Berto, Almon Burt, A. L. Kibby and William Stevens.

Services were held in a schoolhouse until 1854, when the church edifice was built, at a cost of $1,219. It was dedicated by Rev. N. E. Cobleigh, of Appleton, in January, 1855. The property is valued at $3,000—$2,500 for the church and site, and $500 for the parsonage. The first Pastor was Rev. Lathrop; the present Pastor is J. B. Trenery; present Trustees, A. Sisson, John O'Neil, E. S. Jenkins, A. H. Bowe, W. J. Barnes, Frank Bowe, T. Murray, C. Marsh and James Thomas.

The Chairmen and Clerks of Rosendale have been as follows: 1846 and 1847, Samuel Sanborn, Chairman, and F. Scofield, Clerk; 1848, Jonathan Daugherty and George D. Curtis; 1849, Jerome Yates and George D. Curtis; 1850, Charles F. Hammond and Joseph Scribner; 1851 and 1852, Charles F. Hammond and William H. Strong; 1853, George D. Curtis and Charles F. Hammond; 1854, Bertine Pinkney and S. M. Smead; 1855, Clinton Matteson, S. M. Smead; 1856, Clinton Matteson and Charles Pinkney; 1857, H. W. Wolcott and H. C. Bottum; 1858 and 1859, J. W. Sanders and H. C. Bottum; 1860 and 1861, Stanton Fordice and H. C. Bottum; 1862, Jerome Yates and H. C. Bottum; 1863 and 1864, Wm. T. Innis and H. C. Bottum; 1865 and 1866, George D. Curtis and H. C. Bottum; 1867, Stanton Fordice and H. C. Bottum; 1868, Wm. Scribner and H. C. Bottum; 1869, M. D. Kenyon and J. W. Powell, William L. Vincent; 1870, J. W. Sanders and H. C. Bottum; 1871, E. C. Stewart and H. C. Bottum; 1872-73-74-75, H. C. Bottum and John Wilson; 1876 and 1877, H. C. Bottum and Charles Pinkney; 1878, George D. Curtis and E. C. Stewart, and Charles Pinkney; 1879, E. C. Stewart and Charles Pinkney.

SPRINGVALE.

This town—Township 15 north, of Range 15 east—is purely an agricultural district, being without railroads, villages, water-powers or manufacturing interests. By an act of the Legislature approved March 11, 1848, it was made a separate town, and the first election was held at Abel Willard's house. The name was suggested either by Squire Dana Lamb or Warren

Whiting—probably by the former—on account of the numerous vales and springs within its limits. The first land was entered in 1844, on Section 35, by John A. Allen, but the first settler was William Cheeney, who located on Wedge's Prairie, Section 33, in April, 1845; very soon after, Chester Hazen located in the town, and was the second settler. Alban Harroun, James Post, W. H. H. Dodd, E. B. Parsons, Rev. Dana Lamb, Squire Dana Lamb and several others are claimed as first settlers by both Rosendale and Springvale, because, doubtless, the latter for two years formed a part of the former.

The first religious services were held at William Cheeney's house, in November, 1845.

The first post office was Rosendale, Squire Dana Lamb, Postmaster, established in May, 1846, in Rosendale. The first office in Springvale proper was Pulaski, established February 26, 1847, William Cheeney, Postmaster.

The first marriage was Mr. E. Smith to Miss Sallie Warren; second, F. Scofield to Calista C. Bemis; both in November, 1846.

The first birth was H. Sydney, son of John and Melissa Hazen, in September, 1847.

The first religious (M. E.) class was formed June 3, 1846, by Rev. W. G. Miller, at William Cheeney's house, consisting of William Cheeney, leader, Abigail Cheeney, D. S. Cowles, Ann Cowles and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moore.

The first death was Phoebe, wife of John Yates and daughter of Amos Prouty, died March 14, 1848.

The first school was taught by Mrs. H. N. Jewett in a shanty on Section 18.

The first cheese factory (see another part of this work) was built by Chester Hazen at Ladoga. Rev. Dana Lamb was the first minister in Springvale. He desired to name the town Aynee, the Indian name for Rock River, a branch of which rises in this town, but failed to have his views indorsed.

The Methodists erected a church edifice in Section 2, in the town of Waupun, in 1868, which is used largely by members living in Springvale. It cost $1,800. The Trustees were J. M. Hawkins, William Cheeney, W. S. Randall, G. G. Randall, W. M. Stearns; present Trustees, J. M. Hawkins, William Cheeney, W. S. Randall, G. G. Randall, William Stearns, William Galland, George Rogers and Thomas Walters.

The Baptist society never built a church in Springvale.

The Universalist society was organized in 1849, but has never erected a church edifice. It was organized by Rev. Joseph Ward, and has twenty members.

The Catholics held their first services in 1847 at J. O. Riley's house, Father Haley, of Watertown, officiating, and for three years thereafter services were continued by different priests at Mr. Riley's residence. In 1858, the church building, costing $1,500, was erected on Section 17, and has been supplied by priests from Fond du Lac, Ripon or Waupun, since that time. The church embraces fifty families.

The Chairmen and Clerks of Springvale have been as follows: 1848, Warren Whiting and Charles D. Beers; 1849, Warren Whiting and A. C. Whiting; 1850, Warren Whiting and A. C. Whiting; 1851, H. I. Ackerman and Charles D. Beers; 1852, A. C. Whiting and James T. Elliott; 1853, A. C. Whiting and Joseph Scribner; 1854, A. C. Whiting and Edward Ensign; 1855, W. B. Disbrow and Edward Ensign; 1856, W. B. Disbrow and Edward Ensign; 1857, Edward Ensign and F. M. Wheeler; 1858, W. B. Disbrow, J. B. Spencer; 1859, W. B. Disbrow and J. B. Spencer; 1860, G. F. Wheeler and Edward Ensign; 1861, Warren Whiting and Edward Ensign; 1862, A. C. Whiting and Edward Ensign; 1863, J. B. Spencer and Edward Ensign; 1864, J. B. Spencer and Edward Ensign; 1865, F. M. Wheeler and Edward Ensign; 1866, F. M. Wheeler and Edward Ensign; 1867, James H. Scofield and C. H. Seymour; 1868, James H. Scofield and C. H. Seymour; 1869, S. Wilkinson and C. H. Seymour; 1870, S. Wilkinson and C. H. Seymour; 1871, S. Wilkinson and G. W. Sizer; 1872, S. Wilkinson and C. H. Seymour; 1873, T. K. Gillett and Frank Bove; 1874, T. K. Gillett and Frank Bove; 1875, F. M. Wheeler and Frank Bove; 1876, T. K. Gillett and Frank Bove; 1877, A. C. Whiting and Frank Bove; 1878, F. M. Wheeler and Frank Bove; 1879, T. K. Gillett and D. E. Whiting.

ALTO.

Alto is the southwestern township in Fond du Lac County. It is bounded north by Metomen, east by Waupun, south by Trenton, in Dodge County, and west by Mackford, in Green Lake County. It is Township 14 north, in Range 14 east. It contains 23,153.31 acres, which is 93.31 acres more than thirty-six full sections. It was subdivided by John Brink in November, 1834, and in his field notes he wrote: "This township is second rate, and rolling, save its marshes. It is thinly timbered with burr oak, white oak, yellow and black oak, except its prairies and marshes, where trees are wholly wanting. The soil is of a yellow, ashy color, of clay loam and sand. The streams are sluggish and have a muddy channel." Fully one-fourth of its area is marsh, most of which yields valuable hay product. Nearly one-half was openings and timber land, which is highly prized by wheat-raisers. The remainder is prairie, rolling, warm and rich. The South Fork of the Rock River passes through the entire width of the town in its southern part, having two principal branches coming in from the north. These, with brooks and springs, give abundant supply of water. Notwithstanding the United States Surveyor marked the soil of the town "second rate," it is, in fact, rich and highly productive. Wheat and wood are the chief exports. Waupun and Brandon afford convenient markets.

Frances D. Bowman, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., was the first settler in Alto, having located on Section 36 late in 1841, and for more than two years, was the "monarch of all he surveyed" in the town. His daughter, born in 1842, was the first birth, and his son, born in 1844, was the second child in the town. After spending a season there, he went to Ohio and bought a flock of sheep and drove them to Alto, while he was still the "Robinson Crusoe" of the town. William Talcott was probably the second settler, and came early in 1844. Silas Miller, a lay preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church, came the same year; he named "Alto." Marcus Thwing, Dr. Green, Mr. Hillyer and perhaps a few others came with their families in 1844. Martin Grider is undoubtedly the earliest settler who still lives in the town; he moved his family into Alto in May, 1845, but he had entered land and sowed wheat in the fall of 1844. Mr. Bowman sold his claim in 1845 to F. F. Davis. Mr. Davis was afterward Sheriff of the county. His daughter, Cornelia C., died of consumption on the 7th of December, 1845. In the summer of 1846, Miss Angeline Booth taught the first school in Alto in the house of Mr. Davis, and the first religious meeting in the town was also at his house—preaching by Silas Miller, the father of Rev. W. G. Miller, who is now so favorably known in Wisconsin. Silas Miller built a saw-mill on a branch of Rock River, in the southeast part of the town, in 1845. The first advent of a Hollander (said to have been a Mr. Meek) into Alto was in 1845, and now three-fourths of the population are of that nationality. Politically, Alto is the banner Republican town of the county. In 1875 the inhabitants numbered 1,430. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway passes through the northeast corner of this town, but the nearest station is, on the north, Brandon, and on the south, Waupun.

Alto was organized on the 6th of April, 1847, at a meeting held in the schoolhouse near Miller's mill, in the southeast part of the town. Townsend Green was Moderator, and Benjamin Davis and Frederick Talcott were Clerks. The north half of Alto had previously been connected with Metomen, and the south half with Waupun, for town purposes. The first town officers elected were: Chairman, M. Talcott; Side Supervisors, J. R. Mathews and William Talcott; Town Clerk, G. W. Sexmith; Justices of the Peace, F. F. Davis, G. W. Sexmith and Henry Boardman; Assessors, Daniel W. Briggs; Treasurer, Zephaniah Miller; School Commissioners, David Adams, T. Green and F. Talcott. At this first town meeting the proposition to confer "equal suffrage to colored people" was voted down by five majority. The "anti-license" ticket was carried at the same election by twelve majority. The town officers of Alto in the spring of 1880 are: Chairman, G. H. Downey; Side Supervisors, John Bruins and William J. Boom; Treasurer, John Gysbers; Assessor, John W. Kastein; Clerk, William H. Smithers.

The first school district was organized March 18, 1850, at a meeting, of which George W. Sexmith was Chairman and Z. Miller Secretary, held for that purpose. The first officers were: George W. Sexmith, Director; A. McMasters, Clerk, and John L. Sargent, Treasurer. The first schoolhouse, a frame building, 24x18 feet, was erected, that season, on Section 23, and Clara F. Pierce taught the first school in it, during three months, at $5 per month. The tax first raised amounted to $85 for all purposes. In 1877, a building costing $1,400 was erected. Alto now has nine schools, of which three are in union districts.

In 1856, February 13, land was bought, in Section 23, for a church building, on which "Ebenezer Church" now stands. It was organized as the Reformed Church, with forty-seven members, which number has swollen to about two hundred, embracing 100 families. The congregation is divided into three classes, which meet on different week-days to receive instruction. The first Trustees of this church were M. Mensink, F. Becuwkos, M. Duven, G. Duitman, G. Stilsel, C. Landaal, J. Straks, J. Landaal, L. Slijster and J. W. Kastein. The first settlement of the people composing this church, who are Hollanders, in Alto, was in 1846, near the center of the town. They immediately began to hold religious services in private houses, building a church of logs in 1848, which building, 16x26 feet, was also used for a schoolhouse. These people now form, in this part of the town, a very large, thrifty and respectable portion of the inhabitants, the 101 school children in District No. 1 being all Hollanders.

There are now seven churches in Alto, and all, save one, are well sustained. The First Reformed or "Ebenezer" Church was first organized. The others are the Second Reformed or "Ebenezer" Church, which was recently built, mainly at the expense of Henry Bruins; the Dutch Presbyterian and the Dutch Congregational, the German Methodist and the Methodist Episcopal Churches, and one Congregational Church, in which no regular meetings are held, the society being much reduced by deaths and removals.

Alto has two stores, but neither a village, nor a saloon, nor a post office; though, in early days, a post office, called Black Hawk, was located in the center of a large prairie of the same name, on a spot which the celebrated Indian chieftain and warrior of that name is said to have once used as a camp.

The following have served as Chairmen and Clerks of the town of Alto: 1847, Milton Talcott and George W. Sexmith; 1848, S. A. Carpenter and G. W. Sexmith; 1849, Henry Boardman and G. A. Russell; 1850, Daniel Wilcox and R. M. Harwood; 1851, H. Boardman and A. McMaster; 1852, James McElroy and R. M. Harwood; 1853, William Brisbane and R. M. Harwood; 1854, R. M. Harwood and D. Adams; 1855-56, R. M. Harwood filled both offices; 1857, O. L. Olmstead and R. M. Harwood; 1858, R. M. Harwood filled both offices; 1859-60, J. McElroy and A. J. Mattoon; 1861, A. J. Mattoon and R. M. Harwood; 1862, J. McElroy and R. M. Harwood; 1863, J. McElroy and A. J. Mattoon; 1864, Jehiel Wight and A. J. Mattoon; 1865, J. McElroy and A. J. Mattoon served two terms; 1868, J. McElroy and A. J. Mattoon (Mattoon died and W. H. Smithers appointed to fill the vacancy, and has since continuously held the office). The Chairmen since then have been: 1869, J. McElroy; 1870, H. C. Williams; 1871, J. McElroy; 1872, J. McElroy. Mr. McElroy served a portion of the term, and was succeeded by G. H. Downley, who has since held the office.

TAYCHEEDAH.

This town took its name from the village of that name, which was at one time larger than Fond du Lac, and promised not only to be the commercial metropolis of this portion of Wisconsin, but the county seat of Fond du Lac County.

Taycheedah formerly belonged to the town of Fond du Lac: then was made up of the towns of Forest, Empire, a portion of Friendship (across the lake) and its present territory; then of the present town of Empire and half of Taycheedah as it is; and now is composed of the north tier of sections which should belong to Empire and twenty-three full and several fractional sections in Township 16 north, of Range 18 east. It has been in this shape since Empire was organized, in 1851. Lake Winnebago cuts into the town on the west, leaving but twenty-nine full sections of land within its limits. Of this land, Nehemiah King, Deputy United States Surveyor, said in 1835:

“Under the Ledge, there is very fine timber and a soil as rich as any other in this country. On the upper level, the timber is somewhat deficient in quantity and growth. Some of the prairie is rather wet, but will make fine meadows. From the commanding prospect from the upper level, the lake [Winnepago], stretching as far to the north as the eye can reach, and to the west from six to ten miles—there are but few places that can compete with this for beauty of situation. It will probably be a healthy location.”

Francis D. McCarty and Reuben Simmons lived in a shanty in the south part of Taycheedah, from December, 1838, to the spring of 1839. This was the first settlement in that part of the town. Mr. Simmons then built a house, near by, for James Duane Doty, and Mr. McCarty erected one for himself where the village of Taycheedah now stands. During the summer of 1838, O. P. Knapp entered land in the timber, further north, which was the first settlement in that part of the town, and might be called the first in what is now Taycheedah. The many beautiful springs bursting from the Ledge, the delightful location and bright prospects for the future, called settlers rapidly to Taycheedah. They were at first mostly from New York, Ohio and New England, and Taycheedah once could claim more than half of the aristocracy, culture and honorable men of the entire county. No town has undergone greater changes in this respect. The governors, judges, generals, lawyers and other high officials have all emigrated or paid the last debt of nature, and a community of German and Irish farmers has taken their place.

The Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway crosses ten sections of Taycheedah. It was built in 1868, and maintains three stations in the town.

The first election was held in April, 1847, at which George D. Ruggles was elected Chairman, and Charles Doty, Town Clerk.

The first births, deaths and marriages are not recorded, except such as occurred in territory once belonging to, but not now a part of, Taycheedah.

PEEBLES CORNERS, on Section 32, which has a post office, tollgate, store and cheese-factory, was named after E. Peebles. It is a station on the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway, which is really the father of the place.

NORTH TAYCHEEDAH is a post office, on Section 17. Near by is a grist-mill, run by water and steam.

TAYCHEEDAH VILLAGE.—This is comparatively an ancient hamlet. It was the rival of Fond du Lac and Oshkosh, and, for some years, outstripped them both, having, in the early forties, a larger store, better lumber-yard and greater lake commerce than both of them combined. It was, also, the first Wisconsin village to send steamboats up the Wolf River and carry on, in those afterward famous timber regions, the business of lumbering. Here, also, were the first school-house, first bell and, possibly, though not probably, the first religious class in the county.

The first mill was a large stone flouring-mill, on the lake shore, which began a large business in 1848, but was burned in 1854. In 1850, a steam saw-mill was built by O. R. Potter, but that, too, was burned in 1853.

The first store was opened by J. L. Moore and his brother-in-law, B. F. Moore, now proprietor of the La Belle Wagon Works at Fond du Lac, in September, 1841. This was the first store in the county. Trade in it was brisk, the Brothertown Indians sometimes paying in $300 per day, cash, while large amounts were exchanged for furs. The warehouse connected with this store was burned in 1844, destroying goods and wheat to the value of $6,000—the first fire of any note in the county.

The first schoolhouse in the county was built by James Duane Doty, Henry Conklin and the two Moores, at Taycheedah, in 1842. Henry Conklin gave a bell for this building, the first one in this county, which still does service in the more modern schoolhouse.

The first hotel was built by B. F. Smith in 1840. It was first kept by Francis D. McCarty, next by John Case, and then by Nathaniel Perry, who built a new and larger building in its place a third of a century ago. This building, B. F. Moore moved to Scott street, Fond du Lac, where it was burned.

In 1842, John W. Philbrick and family arrived in the village, and opened the first tinshop in the county.

George Carlton opened a dry-goods store in Taycheedah, in 1842.

J. L. Ault and a man named Lawrence started the first blacksmith-shops, Mr. Ault being first, probably.

Among the first settlers were George W. Elliott, Nathaniel Perry, B. F. Smith, John Case, Walter Cunningham and those already mentioned.

The glory of Taycheedah has flown. It is now a place of no importance, commercially, whatever. A blacksmith-shop, little store, post office and a saloon or two constitute its business places. Its trade and prospects were killed by Mason C. Darling, when he gave a site for a court house at Fond du Lac. Its first Postmaster was Nathaniel Perry.

Taycheedah was named by James Duane Doty. It is not, in its present form, a proper Indian term, being a corruption, no doubt, of the term tee-charrah, which, in pronouncing, should be run together with a quick guttural sound, barely sounding "tee." It means camping-place. Mr. Doty's translation was "our home," which was very nearly correct, though the present English pronunciation of the word is far from it.

The different Chairmen of the town of Taycheedah have been: George D. Ruggles, George W. Elliott, F. S. Crons, John Hett, Charles Geisse, O. R. Potter, B. F. Smith, B. F. O'Laughlin and Michael Wirtz. The Clerks have been: Charles Doty, William White, J. D. Van Plack, C. W. Tallmadge, John Elwell, Cromwell Laithe, William Craig, B. F. Smith, J. M. Mitchell, O. H. Petters, James O'Neill, William Bassett, S. D. Schooley, Frank Harzheim, Paul Buchholz, B. Adleman and Joseph Ditter.

WAUPUN.

This town, by the act of 1842, was made one of the three towns which, for some time thereafter, constituted Fond du Lac County—Fond du Lac, Waupun and Calumet—the first election being held at Seymour Wilcox's house, located within what is now the North Ward of Waupun City. But the organization of Alto, Metomen, Ripon and other towns cut it down to its present limits—the land embraced in Township 14 north, of Range 15 east.

The good judgment of the pioneers who first settled in Waupun cannot be doubted, for it is now one of the wealthy and desirable towns of the county—healthful, productive and beautiful. Originally, the town contained some marsh with its rich, warm prairies, fine oak openings and splendid belts of timber. The three all-desirable attributes for a successful farming community, of wood, water and soil, were admirably distributed in Waupun. The two branches of Rock River unite in this town, after one of them has crossed its entire eastern portion, forming very good water-powers—excellent, in fact, before the destruction of timber reduced the streams. Grain-raising, fruit-growing, dairying and stock-raising are all profitably carried on in Waupun.

The first settlement of the town was begun in what is now the city of Waupun, in which, also, were the first mills, hotel, post office, church, school and store, and the early history of the city will furnish the early history of the town.

The first settlement on Wedge's Prairie was April 23, 1845, by Benjamin Cheeney. That same season, J. C. Wedge and Warren Florida entered lands on the same beautiful prairie, which has since borne the former's name. Deacon James Judd settled with his family in the western portion of the town October 6, of the same year.

Early in 1845, Solomon White entered land and began farming operations on another prairie, which has ever since been called White's Prairie.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway crosses this town on the west, and was built as the Milwaukee & Horicon Railway in 1856. Its only station in the town is at Waupun City.

There is but one post office in Waupun, except Ladoga, which is on the line between Waupun and Springvale.

McHamilton

FOND DU LAC.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Co.....	Company or county	W. V. I.....	Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry
dr.....	dealer	P. O.....	Post office
W. V. A.....	Wisconsin Volunteer Artillery	S. or Sec.....	Section
W. V. C.....	Wisconsin Volunteer Cavalry	st.....	street

FOND DU LAC.

GEORGE C. ALDRICH, of the firm of Allen & Aldrich, proprietors City Stone Mills; was born in Chicago Aug. 26, 1853; when 3 or 4 years old, his parents removed to Providence, R. I.; about thirteen years ago, removed to Kenosha Co., Wis., and then to Fond du Lac; he has been connected with the milling business since 1872. He was married at Fond du Lac, June 15, 1876, to Florence Gordon, born in Lewis Co., N. Y.

JAMES F. ALDRICH was born in Saratoga Co., N. Y., May 24, 1822; was educated in the common schools and the Academy at Union Village, Washington Co., N. Y.; in October, 1841, he removed to Jackson, Mich., and, in 1845, with his brother William (now Congressman from the First Illinois District) and George F. Rice, began the mercantile business, which he continued until 1854, sometimes having branch houses in East Jackson, Concord and Battle Creek; during that year he and his brother William formed a partnership with B. & J. W. Medbury, of Milwaukee, and H. H. Smith, of Two Rivers, Wis., and engaged extensively in the manufacture of lumber, furniture, tubs and pails—William attending to the factory at Two Rivers, and J. F. attending to the sales at Chicago, where he then lived; this firm continued in business until 1859, passing safely through the panic of 1857. In 1861, William and J. F. Aldrich sold to Mann Bros., of Milwaukee, and, in July, the former removed to Chicago, and the latter to Providence, R. I., where he resided two years, making frequent trips to the West to purchase wool, flour, etc.; in 1867, Mr. A. came to Fond du Lac, with his family, where he now resides in one of the finest houses in Forest street, and, with his father-in-law, Dr. Capron, of Providence, R. I., invested largely in real estate. Mr. A. has also dealt in wool, woollen goods, and wools, as well as run a woolen mill; he has three children living—George, one of the proprietors of the Sons Mill; J. W., a music teacher, and Mattie, attending the Cathedral School.

DAVID D. ALEXANDER, carriage manufacturer, is a son of Isaac Alexander, Sr., a ship-carpenter, and Mary Johnson, natives of England, but immigrants to America more than thirty years ago. David was born in Durham, N. J., in 1848; at the age of 10, he left his home in New Jersey, and went to Port Byron, N. Y., thence to Medina Co., Ohio, where he attended school most of the time for three years. In 1861, he came to Sheboygan, thence to Fond du Lac, Wis., where, in 1862, he began the blacksmith trade, working in a foundry for about nine months, and then went south in the employ of the Government as blacksmith for three months. In 1863, he returned to Fond du Lac, and began the carriage manufacture, which he has since continued on Scott street. He married Miss Augusta Sears, daughter of Roland and Mary Sears, of Fond du Lac, in 1867; they have three children, as follows—Cora, George and Ida. Mr. A. is a Seventh-Day Baptist, and a Republican politically.

ISAAC ALEXANDER, proprietor of livery stable; was born in the State of New Jersey in 1840; from there he moved to Ohio in 1859, and followed blacksmithing till 1861, when he enlisted in Co. A, of the 1st Ohio V. I. for three months; at the expiration of his term of service, he re-enlisted in the 6th Ohio; was in the battle of Shendoah Valley; was wounded in the battle of Harrison's Landing, near Richmond; after his recovery, he came to Fond du Lac in 1863 and re-enlisted, but was rejected at Madison on account of his wound; he then returned to Fond du Lac, and became manager of a saw-mill for George Wade for about six years; in 1874, he began the livery business, which he now follows; was elected a member of the City Council, from Fifth Ward in the spring of 1879; member of I. O. O. F. In 1863, he married Miss Louisa C. Danks, of Fond du Lac, who died in 1864, leaving one daughter, Lillian. Married Miss Sarah J. Danks, sister of his first wife, Oct. 11, 1866; they have three children, as follows: Louisa C. Walter (deceased) and Walter, Jr.

PETER ALLAR, Sr. (deceased), was a son of Joseph and Josette Allar, natives of France, but emigrants to Canada East, where Peter was born in 1812; four years after, his parents removed to Colechester, Chittenden Co., Vt.; at the age of 14, entered upon an apprenticeship at the miller's trade, in Burlington, Vt., where he continued the trade with one man for forty-two years, during which he made the flour that took the medal at the first fair held at Crystal Palace, N. Y., also that which took the medal at a London fair; in 1870, he came with his family to Fond du Lac to live with his son Peter, who had come out in 1868, and bought a farm of 120 acres in Sec. 4, of the town of Fond du Lac; having spent nearly fifty years of his life at his trade, he now turned his attention to agricultural pursuits for a few years only, when he was called to that bourne whence no traveler returns; he died Nov. 16, 1844, leaving a wife, whom he married in Lower Canada in 1837—Sophia, daughter of Basil and Margaret Lapierre; they had nine children, as follows: Sophia, Mrs. Thero, of Fond du Lac; Phelomenie, Peter, Exhilda, Louisa, Joseph, William, Edmund, Virginia, all of whom are members of St. Louis Catholic Church.

ROLVIN F. ALLEN, miller, was born in Brooklyn, Hancock Co., Me., Aug. 14, 1849; removed with his parents to Providence, R. I., when 12 years of age; came to Kenosha, Wis. in 1867, and to Fond du Lac in 1868, where he engaged in handling woolen goods, flour and feed, in company with Charles French, the firm continuing together one year; Mr. A. continued the business another year and then became a member of the firm of Langlois, Allen & Co., which continued until 1874, when the firm of Allen & Aldrich was framed, proprietors of the City Stone Flouring Mills, on Forest street. He was married at Fond du Lac, Oct. 19, 1879, to Miss Ida E. Van Norder. He is an Odd Fellow, and a Mason.

JOHN AMES, farmer, son of Fredrick and Sarah Ames; born in Milwaukee in 1827; his parents were emigrants from England, and on their way to Juneau, Dodge Co., Wis., and had reached Milwaukee, before his birth; they, however, settled in Walworth Co., where they lived on a farm until 1835; thence they removed to Ripon, Wis., where they resided till 1839; thence to town of Fond du Lac, where he has since made his home, and has followed farming most of his time. Enlisted in Co. A, of the 38th W. V. I., under Col. Pier, with whom he served till he was wounded by the exploding of a shell, in the battle of Petersburg, Penn.; was discharged at Madison, Wis., on account of wound; returned to Fond du Lac, and, after partially regaining his health, he began farming again. At Ripon, in 1849, he married Miss Sarah Colton, of that city; they have four children—Augustus, Frank, Henry and Jennie. The family are members of the Baptist Church.

REV. WILLIAM D. AMES, Pastor of the Cotton St. M. E. Church; was born in Monroe Co., N. Y., Oct. 25, 1832; his father, Henry Ames, was the son of Peter Ames, and a lineal descendant of Thomas Ames, who came from England and settled in Dedham, Mass., as early as 1641; his grandparents died in Petersham, Mass., leaving a family of eight children, the oldest 20 years, the youngest 20 months, of whom Henry, the father of our present subject was the sixth, and was born Feb. 7, 1807; the estate was swallowed up in the administration, and the children left penniless; seven of them afterward settled in Hillsdale and Lenawee Cos., Mich., and all became well off; his mother, Ann E., daughter of John and Jerusha Wheeler, was born in Litchfield, Conn., and was married to Mr. Ames Oct. 16, 1831, in Rochester, N. Y. When William D. was quite young (1834), he removed with his parents to Lenawee Co., Mich., and made that his home till 21 years old; was educated in the common and high schools of Hudson, Mich.; joined the church in February, 1853; was licensed, and began preaching in July following; studied theology at the Garrett Biblical Institute, of Evanston, Ill., during the years of 1855 and 1856; entered the regular work of the ministry as a supply at Port Clinton, Ill., in 1856; in September of the same year, he was sent as a supply to the church of Sun Parish, Dane Co., Wis.; here, Aug. 16, 1857, he married Martha J., daughter of Asahel and Mary Bailey, nee Sawyer; he joined the Wisconsin Annual Conference at Milwaukee in August, 1857, and was appointed to the charge of Hebron, Jefferson Co., Wis.; in May, 1858, he was appointed to Jefferson, Wis.; was ordained at the Sheboygan Falls Conference in the spring of 1859, by Rev. O. C. Baker, D. D., then Presiding Bishop, and was returned to Jefferson; in the fall of 1859, he was assigned to the charge at Hartford, Washington Co., Wis.; in 1861, he was sent to Menasha, Wis., and, in 1862, to Vineland, Winnebago Co., Wis., where his wife died June 13, 1863, leaving three children—Henry A. (now deceased), Mary E. (now a student of Lawrence University) and Robert H. (now deceased). In the spring of 1864, he entered the army as Chaplain of the 41st W. V. I. at Milwaukee; went immediately to Memphis, Tenn., where they remained on post duty till September following, then returned to Milwaukee and was mustered out; he then resumed his place in the Conference, and was appointed to the church at Grand Rapids, Wis.; here, in December, 1864, he was married to Miss Abbie, daughter of Joseph and Mary Fellows, a native of DePuyster, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., and a sister of the Rev. George Fellows, of the Wisconsin Conference, also a descendant of Sir Charles Fellows, of England; in 1865, he was appointed to Stevens Point, Wis., and, in 1867, to Plover, Portage Co., Wis.; in 1869, to Princeton, Green Lake Co.; in 1871, was sent to the charge of Centenary Church, town of Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis.; in 1873, to Stoughton, Dane Co., Wis., and in 1876, to Edgerton, Rock Co., Wis.; in 1878, was appointed to Allen's Grove, Walworth Co., Wis., and, in 1879, to Cotton rock, Fond du Lac; their children are Joseph W. F., Edith A., Edward B., Elbert H., Eva V. and Ernest.

CHARLES H. ANDERSON, salesman in Whittelsey's dry-goods store, is a native of Newark, N. J.; born July 25, 1851, residing there till 1867, when he went to New York City, and there engaged in mercantile pursuits till May, 1871; immigrating to Wisconsin, he began the cheese manufacture in the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., where he continued business till 1875; in spring of 1878, came to Fond du Lac, and has since been in the employ of Mr. Whittelsey.

SQUIRE ARTHUR, farmer, Sec. 31; 320 acres; P. O. Fond du Lac; a native of Lewis Co., N. Y.; born in 1810, spent his early life there on his father's farm, and in 1855, he came to Wisconsin, and settled on his present farm, and has since followed farming and stock-raising.

JOHN AMORY, retired; son of James and Martha Burtus Amory; was born in New York City Oct. 18, 1826, where he resided until coming to Fond du Lac in August, 1850. His father was among the first manufacturers of whips on New York Island, and one of the first importers of saddlery, whips, whalebone, etc., beginning in 1793, on Pearl street; he retired from business, dying in February, 1836, his wife following him in December, 1853. When Rufus King was United States Minister to England, he often went personally, during Washington's Administration, to look after James Amory's business among the English manufacturers. Before coming to Fond du Lac, John Amory was engaged as a clerk in an exchange broker's office; in Fond du Lac, he went into the business of making guns with his brother, S. B., which they carried on until selling out to T. S. Weeks in 1860. Mr. A. was absent ten years from Fond du Lac, from 1856 to 1866, living at Middletown, Orange Co., N. Y.; in company with his brother S. B., he built Amory Hall Block in 1856; old Post Office Block in 1866-67, and on his own account, in 1872-73, a block of stores south of Amory Hall Block; Mr. A. is one of the largest individual tax-payers in Fond du Lac. He was married at Goshen, N. Y., May 28, 1850, to Jane Smith, a native of that place; they have six children living—Martha Burtus, John James and Jane Reimsen Allston, born in Fond du Lac; Anna Dolsen, Mary Frances and Samuel Burtus, born at Middletown, N. Y.; their first child, a daughter, died at Middletown of scarlet fever, aged 2 years and 3 months.

SAMUEL BURTUS AMORY, retired; was born in New York City in November, 1822, where he learned the trade of a gunmaker; previous to coming to Fond du Lac, in 1849, which has since been Mr. Amory's home and place of business, he resided five years at Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y.; the trade of gunsmith was learned by Mr. Amory because he thought every man should have a trade or profession, and not for profit; it was not necessary for him to have either to earn a living, as the Amory family were large owners of Central Park, on Manhattan or New York Island, and are still owners of a portion of it. In Fond du Lac, Mr. Amory has been largely engaged in erecting substantial business blocks and residences, of which Amory Hall Block is the largest, and the largest in the city; he was President of the Farmers and Mechanics' Bank, is President of Rienzi Cemetery; has been Alderman, and is connected with the Gravel Road Company. He was married at Goshen, N. Y., March 16, 1846, to Frances E. Smith, a native of that place; they have had four children—Mrs. Charles H. Benton, born at Goshen, N. Y.; Mrs. Robert J. Moore, of Lincoln, Neb., born at Goshen; Mrs. J. A. Merryman, born at Goshen, died June 18, 1879, and a daughter born in Fond du Lac, who lives at home.

CHARLES BAILEY was born at Windsor, Berkshire Co., England, Aug. 11, 1838; son of George Bailey, a native of Old Windsor, England, Parish Teacher and Poor Commissioner, and, fifteen years prior to his death, which occurred March, 1856, was Register of Births, Marriages and Deaths; George Bailey left seven children—Ann, now Mrs. R. W. Baldwin, of Hotwells, Bristol, England; William Henry, a resident of London; Louisa Martha, wife of George de Hochepeid Larpent, who died in 1856; George, a resident of Croydon, England; Emily E., now Mrs. Alfred Jenkins, Brighton, England; Elizabeth (deceased); Frederick (deceased), and Charles. Charles Bailey came to Fond du Lac in May, 1858; was employed one year in the C. & N. W. car-shops, and, losing his fingers, was compelled to change his business, and began the manufacture of spruce beer; he served five years' apprenticeship in London as brass finisher and gas-fitter. He was married, at Old Windsor Church, Berkshire, England, July 17, 1857, to Catherine Beech Audley, born in Staffordshire, England a daughter of Dr. John Beech Audley; they have one child—George Alfred, born July 17, 1861, and have lost two infants; George Alfred is station agent, telegraph operator and express agent at Elkhart Lake; Mrs. Bailey's brothers and sisters are James, William, Ann and Eden, all deceased; Catherine, Emma, Hannah, Elizabeth, John, Mary, Thomas and George, now living; Ellen was the wife of John Long, Eaton, Buckinghamshire, England.

DAVID BABCOCK, attorney, was born at Utica, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1835; moved to Chicago in June, 1855, and thence to Waupun, Wis., in the fall of the same year; the next year, 1856, he went to Milwaukee, where he resided until 1858, when he came to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided. He enlisted, at the first call for three-months' men, in Co. I, 1st W. V. I. In 1860, Mr. Babcock was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court; was re-elected, serving until Jan. 1, 1865, after which he began the practice of the law, which he has since followed.

ROBERT A. BAKER, banker, came to Fond du Lac in 1844; purchased property here at that time, but did not locate here until the spring of 1851; commenced banking in this city in the spring of 1854, and has continued in the same business ever since; he is at the present time President of the Millills Manufacturing Company.

DR. C. W. BARNES, dentist, was born at Colosse, Oswego Co., N. Y., Oct. 18, 1840; went with his father, Lorenzo D. Barnes, to Green Co., Wis., in 1845, where he remained until 1853, when he moved to Mount Pleasant, working upon a farm; in August 31, 1861, he enlisted in the 5th W. V. Bat., in which he served three years, participating in all the battles in which his battery was engaged; he was mustered out as Gun Sergeant Oct. 1, 1864; after leaving the army he was a pupil in the office of M. B. Johnson, at Janesville, two and a half years, after which he took a complete course in the Ohio College of Dental Surgery, from which he graduated March 4, 1869, coming to Fond du Lac in August, 1869. Doctor Barnes was married April 13, 1870, at Fond du Lac, to Mrs. B. L. Davis, a native of New York State; they have one child—Mary. During 1873 and 1874, he was President of the State Dental Society; he is a Mason, member of the Knights of Pythias, and of the Division Street M. E. Church. He is now a member of the dental firm of Barnes & Sackett.

JAMES A. BARNES, foreman in McDonald & Stewart's sash, door and blind factory; was born in England, in 1849; moved to Canada West with his mother in 1852, where he lived till 1865; he then moved to Janesville and began his trade with Wm. Hume, then in the manufacture of sash and blinds in that city, remaining with him till 1868; he went to Oshkosh; where he was foreman in sash, door and blind factory for Gould & Hume, for six years; in January, 1878, he came to Fond du Lac, where he has since been foreman in factory for McDonald & Stewart. Married Miss Mary A. Sutton, of Oshkosh, in 1873; they have had four children—Arthur J. (deceased), infant (not named, deceased), Edith E. (deceased), Eva M. He and his wife are members of the Congregational Church; Mr. B. is a member of the Temple of Honor, also of the A. O. U. W. Owns a residence in Oshkosh valued at $2,000.

CHARLES B. BARTLETT, senior partner of the firm of Bartlett & Carstens, proprietors of meat market, was born in Ellicottsville, N. Y., in 1836, whence he came to Fond du Lac, in 1855, and engaged in farming for two years; disposing of his farm in 1857, he became the partner of Mr. Van Dresar, in the butcher trade, where he continued till 1863, when, by mutual consent, the firm was dissolved. Mr. Bartlett soon began the business again, of which he was sole proprietor till 1869, when a co-partnership was formed with Mr. T. J. Wood; in 1871, Mr. Carstens took the place of Mr. Wood, and the firm has since been known as Bartlett & Carstens. Mr. Bartlett has been variously connected with the city and county offices, being a member of the City Council from the First Ward in 1874, member of School Board in 1877, and Superintendent of the County Poor in 1878 and 1879.

WILLIAM B. BEACH, former, P. O. Fond du Lac; is a son of Silas and Olive Beach; born Sept. 11, 1817, in Westford, Chittenden Co., Vt.; he received his early education in the public schools of his native county, after which he attended select school for a short time; he was principally engaged in farming till his 22d year, when he was employed to drive a peddling wagon for a paper manufacturing company, continuing this for nearly four years; he was next a farmer for about the same length of time, from 1838 to 1840, he was in the employ of Bradley, Page & Co., who were interested in the building of the Rutland & Burlington Railroad, of Vermont; for the next two years he was in the employ of Bradley & Canfield, on a line of boats from New York City to Lake Champlain; in 1853, he removed to Illinois, where, for two and a half years, he was employed in the construction of the North-Western Railway, from Chicago to Woodstock, Ill.; in 1855, he removed to Fond du Lac, Wis., and began work for Butler & Co., lumber dealers, with whom he continued till Mr. Mitchell purchased Mr. Butler's interest and took in Mr. R. M. Lewis as partner, with whom Mr. Beach remained for some time; he was next in the employ of I. K. & W. C. Hamilton, lumber dealers, for two and a half years; in 1860, he began farming, which he has since followed in this county; in 1873, he bought his present farm of 30 acres in Sec. 20, town of Fond du Lac. In August, 1857, he married Miss Celinda, daughter of Elijah and Anna Shepard, of Fond du Lac. His wife is a member of the M. E. Church.

F. H. BECHAUD, brewer; was born in Bavaria Jan. 19, 1848, and came, with his parents, J. B. and Mary Josephina Bechand, to Buffalo, N. Y., in 1852, where they lived for a time until coming to Fond du Lac; he engaged in farming until starting in the brewing business in 1871, under the firm name of A. G. Bechand & Bros. He was married, at Fond du Lac, Oct. 1, 1876, to Anna Abel; they have two children—Cora A., and Laura. Mr. B. is a member of the Sons of Hermann.

JOHN B. BECHAUD, of the firm of A. G. Bechand & Bros., proprietors of brewery on La Salle street; was born in Bavaria in 1846, and is the son of John P. and Mary J. Bechand, with whom he came to America in 1852, and settled in the city of Fond du Lac, Wis., where his father died in September, 1877; in 1873, he, with his brothers, established the brewery on La Salle street, of which they have since been proprietors, and now do an extensive business in their line. In 1874, he was married to Miss Mary, daughter of Mathias and Elizabeth Kremer, of the town of Taycheedah; their children are Josephine, Ida, Walter, Rudolph. They are members of the Catholic Church.

WILLIAM BEERS, pattern-maker for C. J. L. Meyer; was born in Bristol, England, in 1829, and came with his father, William Beers, to America when 10 years old; they settled at Syracuse, N. Y., where he afterward learned the carpenter and joiner's trade; in 1855 he removed to Janesville, Wis., and in 1860 came to the city of Fond du Lac, where he worked in the railroad car-shop for 12 years; in the spring of 1870 he began in the pattern-room for Mr. Meyer, where he has since been employed. In 1850 he was married to Mary, a daughter of Abram Beers, of N. Y.; their children are Julia, now the wife of A. T. Stewart, and lives in Minnesota; Ada, now Mrs. William Gove, and lives in Minnesota; Robert C., who died in March, 1878; Ella, unmarried and lives in Minnesota; Edwin, at home. Mr. and Mrs. Beers are members of the M. E. Church.

EDWARD BEESON, editor and publisher; the oldest editor in Fond du Lac Co. or the State of Wisconsin; was born in Columbiana Co., Ohio, in July, 1815, and came to Fond du Lac Co., locating on Sec. 32, town of Fond du Lac, in May, 1812; he engaged in farming for over four years, after which, in 1846, he came to Fond du Lac Village and purchased an interest in the Journal, which had just been established by Henning & Hooker, and has continued in the newspaper business, with one or two short intervals ever since—thirty-four years; his last venture was establishing, in 1879, the Wisconsin Farmer, at Fond du Lac, which immediately attained success. Mr. Beeson went to Europe with his wife and daughter, Abbie Beeson Carrington, in August, 1877, returning in August, 1879; most of his time abroad was spent in Italy, where he was correspondent for the Chicago Times, and for the papers at Fond du Lac. He has held several offices, being County Treasurer two terms, Alderman several times and a member of the County Board. Mr. Beeson first published a paper called the Democratic Watchman during Andrew Jackson's second Administration, at Beaver, Penn., where he learned his trade in 1832; he remained at Beaver until 1835, when he made a journey to Wisconsin, passing over Fond du Lac before there was a person living in it, but returned within a year. Although 65 years of age, Mr. Beeson puts in a full day's work every day in the mechanical and editorial management of his paper, the Farmer.

NEIL C. BELL, Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co., was born in the town of Brock, Victoria Co., Canada West, March 22, 1838, whence he came, with his father, John Bell, a native of Scotland, to Eldorado, June 1, 1849, where he was engaged in farming until the rebellion. He enlisted in Co. A, 2d W. V. C., Oct. 17, 1861, in which he served three years, re-enlisting in the same company, and serving until the fall of 1865; some of the time he was on detached duty in the Provost Marshal's office at Vicksburg, and with Capt. Gray, at Raleigh, N. C. Mr. Bell was Under Sheriff during 1878 and 1879; Town Treasurer of Eldorado three years in succession; and elected Sheriff on the Republican ticket by a large majority in November, 1879. He was married, at Eldorado, to Marcia C. Wilbur, a native of Wisconsin; they have three children—Earl J., Neil J. and Ethel. Mr. Bell's father resides in Marinette, Wis.

CHARLES H. BENTON, fifth son of Daniel S. Benton, was born at New York Dec. 31, 1840; he came with his father to Geneva, Wis., in 1843, where he lived until 14 years of age, going to school most of the time; in 1854, he came to Fond du Lac, where he lived with an elder brother, going to school but spending all his spare time in the office of the Fountain City Herald, learning the printer's trade. At the breaking-out of the rebellion he at once enlisted as a private soldier in Co. K, 1st W. V. I., for three years; he was in the battles of Chaplin Hill, Stone River, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge, Resaca, Kenesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek and the capture of Atlanta; when mustered out, Oct. 13, 1864, Mr. Benton was Brigade Quartermaster; he purchased an interest in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, and became its local editor, which position he left at the end of six months, to enter into the storage and commission business at Chattanooga, Ga., where he remained three years. He was married to Miss Francis E. Amory, of Fond du Lac, and returned to that city in 1869, and soon after entered the hardware business, in which he still continues, as a member of the firm of C. H. Benton & Co., who are among the heaviest hardware dealers in this portion of the State. In all matters of public interest or improvement Mr. Benton always takes a leading and active part. He is a self-made man.

CORNELIUS A. BEVIER is a native of Ulster Co., N. Y.; born in 1820; is a son of Johannes and Elizabeth Bevier; in 1843 or 1844, he, with two other brothers, removed to Aurora, Kane Co., Ill., where he engaged in farming for about two and one-half years, whence, in 1846, he came to Fond du Lac Co., and purchased a farm of 120 acres in the town of Byron, on which he made his home for fifteen years; in 1861, he sold that farm and bought another, his present one, of forty acres in Sec. 8, town of Fond du Lac; probable value, $100 per acre. He married Miss Laura A., daughter of Willis and Laura Wilder, nee Huston, of Middlebury, Vt., in 1865. They are members of the Presbyterian Church.

ANDREW J. BIRDSALL, farmer; is the son of Amos Birdsall, a coaster, and Martha Headley, natives of New Jersey; his father having a vessel burned in the last war with England; Andrew spent much of his early life with his older brothers, who were coasters from New York City to Carolina; in 1844 he came to Wisconsin and made his home in Milwaukee, where he was dealing in real estate and engaged in sailing from that city to Michigan for about ten years; in 1845, he walked from Milwaukee to Fond du Lac and bought 160 acres of land—the northwest quarter of Sec. 9, town of Fond du Lac—to which he moved in 1855, built a house and made other improvements; he has an artesian well which affords ten gallons of medical water per minute; the well is 220 feet deep.

L. A. BISHOP, M. D., was born in the town of Eden, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Aug. 24, 1846; he attended the district schools until 13 years of age, and then attended the Grammar and High Schools of Fond du Lac; while attending school he studied medicine with Dr. T. J. Patchen, one of the oldest established physicians of the city; Feb. 25, 1870, Dr. Bishop graduated with high honors, delivering the valedictory address of his class, at Hahnemann College, Chicago; about the same time he received a diploma from the Chicago Eye and Ear Infirmary. Dr. Bishop returned to Fond du Lac and immediately began the practice of his profession with Dr. Patchen, whose daughter, Cynthia, he married; Dr. Bishop now has the entire practice of the old firm of Patchen & Bishop, which is large; in 1879, he erected, on Marr street, the finest physician's office in Fond du Lac, equipped for all operations upon the eye and ear as well as for ordinary practice.

EDWARD BISSELL, attorney at law; is a native of Litchfield, Conn., where he was born in 1828, and spent most of his early life; he completed his collegiate course at Yale in 1851, after which he entered the Law Department of the same institution, and graduated in 1853; he began the practice of law in his native town with his cousin, who was an established lawyer of that place; a young man of pride and energy, he was not content to plod slowly along by trying to compete with the old established attorneys of his town, but sought a more lucrative practice and honor at the bar in the then Far West; in 1854, he came to Fond du Lac, opened an office and began the practice of law in the courts of this and adjoining counties; his merits and judgment of law were appreciated by the citizens of Fond du Lac, and in 1858, they elected him Justice, which office he filled with credit and honor to himself for nine years, when, in 1867, they elected him Police Justice for two years; still reflecting such credit upon the official positions to which he had been elected, he was again called in 1870 to another and higher position for four years, that of Municipal Judge; not yet willing to relinquish their claims upon his judgment on points of law at the expiration of his term as Municipal Judge, they again elected him Justice for two years, his last term expiring in the spring of 1877; having thus spent seventeen years of his life in the judicial service of his fellow-citizens, he resumed the practice of law in 1878; in 1854, he married Miss Elizabeth Hazen, of New Haven, Conn.; they have had two children—Edward H., jeweler at Redwood Falls, and Mary E., deceased. He and his wife are members of the Congregational Church.

ALBERT C. BLANKENBURG, furniture dealer, was born at Fond du Lac, Wis., Dec. 28, 1852, where he has been engaged in the furniture business twelve years, beginning for himself, being successor to his father's large trade, in April, 1878. Mr. Blankenburg was married, Aug. 5, 1875, at Lake Mills, Wis., to Emily Wegeman, who was born at that place. He is a member of the Knights of Honor.

C. BLANKENBURG, furniture dealer; born near Berlin, Prussia, June 11, 1824; came to America, landing in New York May 6, 1844, where he remained until December, when he came to Fond du Lac; in January, 1859, he began the furniture business, which he has continued ever since, being the oldest dealer in furniture in this city; he was married at Fond du Lac, Sept. 21, 1851, to Augusta Ziekerich, a native of Prussia, who came to Fond du Lac in 1848; they have six children—Albert C., Ferdinand, Othelia, Minnie, Ellen and Charles. Mr. B., who was one of its organizers, and his wife, are members of the German Evangelical Church.

FERDINAND BLANKENBURG, proprietor of drug and grocery store on Fourth street; is a son of C. Blankenburg, furniture dealer of Fond du Lac, born in November, 1855; was educated in the public schools and business college of this city; he was engaged in the furniture store with his father from the time he finished school till 1874, when he began the drug business with Mr. J. C. Huber, where he remained as clerk till January, 1879, at which time he began the drug and grocery business for himself. In August, 1879, he married Miss Emma DeHaas, daughter of Carl DeHaas, editor of the Northwestern Courier.

EDMUND BLEWETT, County Clerk; was born at Roxbury, Conn., Feb. 25, 1849, and came with his father, Thos. Blewett, to Eldorado in 1855, and engaged in farming, which vocation he followed until elected County Clerk on the Democratic ticket in November, 1876; since that time, he has resided in the city of Fond du Lac, being re-elected to the same office in November, 1878. He was married to Margaret, daughter of James Casey, of Fond du Lac, Oct. 12, 1872; they have two children—Edmund R., and Robert Lawrence.

HENRY BLOEDEL, proprietor of general merchandising store and wagon-shop, on the corner of Military and Hickory streets, also manufacturer of the Diamond Cultivator, which he makes a specialty, was born in Hesse-Darmstadt in 1832; came to America in 1850, and in 1854 settled in the town of Herman, Sheboygan Co., Wis., where he followed the blacksmith's trade from 1854 to 1859; from 1859 to 1854 he spent in the States of New York and New Jersey; in 1859, he came to the city of Fond du Lac, where, in 1874, he established his present business on the corner of Military and Hickory streets. In 1856, he was married to Miss Lena Maurer, a native of Germany, who died in 1865, leaving five children—Richard, William, Lena, Katie and Julius. In 1867, he was married to Mary Bloedel, a native of Germany; they have two children—Emma and Mary. Their children attend the Congregational Church.

NAPOLEON BOARDMAN, civil engineer; was born on Grand Isle, an island in Lake Champlain, Jan. 31, 1825, moved to Burlington, Vt., in 1836; he began engineering on the Vermont Central Railway in 1844; in 1846, he made an exploration of the mineral regions of Lake Superior, camped on the present site of Duluth, then occupied by a solitary Indian wigwam; he coasted along the south shore to Brule River, then struck through the wilderness to Chippewa Falls, where he secured a bark canoe, with which he descended the Chippewa and Mississippi Rivers to Galena, a distance of about 800 miles; thence continued the journey in a "prairie schooner" to Chicago; he crossed Lake Michigan to St. Joseph, then took the stage to Kalamazoo, from where he rode to Detroit, the headquarters of the American Exploring and Mining Co., on the Michigan Central Railroad, and reported the results of the exploration; late that fall he returned to Vermont and to Norwich University, in which he finished a collegiate course. Mr. Boardman was engaged in the engineering department of the Rutland & Burlington Railway from 1847 to 1851; in 1852, he came to Fond du Lac, and was civil engineer on the Chicago & North-Western Railway, with which he was connected until enlisting as First Lieutenant in the 2d W. V. C. in September, 1861; Mr. B. was detailed as Chief of Ordinance on the staff of Gen. Brown; was in the same capacity with Gens. Herron and Totten, and Assistant Chief of Ordinance with Gens. Schofield and Rosecranz; he was then promoted to Captain of Battery M, 2d Mo. L. A.; after participating in the raid upon Gen. Price, he went to Cape Girardeau, after which he rendezvoused at Pacific Junction and Omaha in June, 1865, preparatory to entering the Indian country, with one of the United States expeditions for the Powder River country, which he did in 1865; his route lay up the Platte and Loup Rivers, across the Sand Hills and Bad Lands through the north end of the Black Hills; an Indian fight was participated in at the mouth of the Powder River, after which the command was ordered to Fort Reno, thence to Laramie, Fort Kearney, Fort Leavenworth, and, finally, to St. Louis, where it was mustered out Dec. 22, 1865; after this, he returned to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided, following his profession of civil engineer; has been chief engineer of Michigan Grand Trunk Railway, Milwaukee & La Crosse; built part of the Air Line of the Michigan Central Railway; was five years City Engineer of Fond du Lac, and is now chief engineer of the St. Paul Eastern Grand Trunk Railway.

LA FAYETTE BOND, Principal of First Street School; was born in the town of Farmersville, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Feb. 5, 1844. Engaged in teaching when 16 years of age, and has been engaged in the same occupation most of the time since except several terms devoted to study at the Rushford Academy in his native State, having commenced teaching before completing his course at that institution. Came to Fond du Lac in the spring of 1870. In September of the same year, he was appointed Principal of the Ruggles Street School in this city; after teaching for about three years there, he became Principal of the Cotton Street Grammar School; continued there until his appointment, in 1879, to his present position. He has served for four years as Alderman of the Eighth Ward. He was married in the town of Avon, Lake Co., Ill., Dec. 25, 1876, to Sara L. Slusser; she was born at Hainesville, Lake Co., Ill., Dec. 15, 1848. They have one child—Lyle E., born Oct. 10, 1878. Mr. Bond is a member of the A., F. & A. M. Lodge.

WILLIAM BOND, mason; was born near Plymouth, County Devon, England, April 13, 1830; came to Fond du Lac from Europe May 9, 1867, where he has since resided. Mr. B. has worked at the brick and stone mason's trade ever since he was 10 years of age, and has erected some of the best business blocks and residences in Fond du Lac, among them the French Church and the Amory's blocks of stores. His first wife, whom he married in England, and her first child, died in that country. He was married a second time, at Fond du Lac, Nov. 11, 1868, to Ann Levy, born in Bohemia.

O. P. BOWE, real-estate agent; came to Wisconsin in 1855, and located at Plymouth, Sheboygan Co., where he engaged in farming until 1864. On Feb. 18, 1864, he enlisted in Co. E, 36th W. V. I.; was wounded at the battle of Coal Harbor; was mustered out May 23, 1865, after which he came to Fond du Lac and began dealing in stock, and keeping a market, which was continued only a year, when he began the real-estate business. In 1867, his brother, W. H., became a member of the firm of Bowe Brothers, and has so continued ever since. The firm has been connected with the emigrant and land department of the A., T. & S. Fe Ry., since 1865. He was born at Lyme, N. Y., April 17, 1834, and was married, March 15, 1860, in the town of Forest, this county, to Frances, daughter of George Chase; she was born in Salem, Kenosha Co., Wis., Sept. 17, 1810; they have three children—Mabel S. (born Jan. 17, 1864), Willis G. (born June 9, 1866), and Arthur C. (born April 2, 1872).

WILLIAM H. BOWE, real-estate agent, was born in Jefferson Co., N. Y., July 16, 1843, a son of Prosper and Lois Batchelder Bowe; came to Plymouth, Sheboygan Co., Wis., in September, 1855. In March, 1864, Mr. Bowe enlisted as a private in Co. E, 36th W. V. I., and served in the Army of the Potomac through the campaign of 1864, participating in the battles of Cold Harbor, Deep Bottom, Weldon Railroad and the movement to Richmond, in Hancock's Corps, and all the battles in which his regiment was afterward engaged, being mustered out in 1865; after leaving the army, Mr. Bowe settled at Fond du Lac, and engaged in the stock and market business with his brother, which continued six months; was in the confectionery business six months; engaged in the insurance business at Elmira, N. Y., for six months, after which he returned to Fond du Lac and engaged in the real-estate business with his brother, which they now continue. Mr. Bowe was married at Waupun, July 23, 1866, to Angie F., daughter of William and Elizabeth Durand, now of Fond du Lac; she was born March 7, 1843, in Erie Co., Penn.; they have two children—Guy C., born Sept. 16, 1869, and Addie P., born March 28, 1873.

S. S. BOWERS, M. D.; was born at Berlin, Waterloo Co., Canada; came to Fond du Lac in May, 1865, where, for two years, he was Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager of the Lamartine Peat Co.; after that began the practice of his profession, having been a physician in Canada. He received a scientific education at Rockwood Academy, and at Coburg Victoria University; after which, he pursued the study of medicine in the Toronto School of Medicine, Victoria University, at Toronto, Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, at Kingston, and University Medical College of New York City. He began the practice of his profession in 1856. In 1879, the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons conferred upon Dr. B. the degree of Licentiate. The degree of M. D. was conferred by Queen's University, of Kingston. He has been connected with several heavy mining corporations. Is Mayor of Fond du Lac; has been Chairman of the First Ward; member of the Board of Education; Director of the Public Library; is a member of the State Medical Association; Rock River Medical Association; President of the Fond du Lac Co. Medical Society, and Dictator of Economical Lodge, Knights of Honor.

WILLIAM BRADLEY BRAND (deceased); was born in Hopkinton, R. I., June 2, 1808; he was deprived of his father when quite young, but his mother, a woman of rare Christian virtues, was long spared him; when 11 years of age, he sought a home in Madison Co., N. Y., where, in 1839, he married Miss Julia A. Crumb, daughter of Joseph and Susannah Crumb; he held the office of Deputy Sheriff and Sheriff of that county for six years; in 1859, he immigrated to Wisconsin and settled at Fond du Lac, where he was actively engaged in business and regarded as one of the solid business men of the city, till, attacked with fatal disease, his failing health led him to abandon his active business life, and seek recuperation through rest and travel; he tried the climate of Washington during the winter of 1864-65,

FOND DU LAC.

(Too late for insertion in proper place.)

GEN. EDWARD STUYVESANT BRAGG, M. C., was born at Unadilla, Otsego Co., N. Y., Feb. 20, 1827; his education was finished by a three-years course in Hobart College, of Geneva, N. Y., after which, in 1848, he was admitted to the bar at Norwich, Chenango Co., N. Y.; in 1850, Gen. Bragg came to Fond du Lac, where he since resided and practiced his profession; he has been a member of the City Council; was elected District Attorney in 1854; represented his district in the State Senate in 1868 and 1869, and has been a member of Congress from the Fifth District since March 4, 1877, two terms; in Congress, he has been a prominent member, making a national reputation by his position on Southern war claims, by his revision of the rules for determining claims against the Government, and by his arduous labors in all committees of which he has been a member. Gen. Bragg was Postmaster of Fond du Lac in 1867, delegate to the Democratic National Conventions of 1860 and 1872, and candidate of the Democratic Liberal Reform Caucus for U. S. Senator in 1875. He entered the army in 1862, having recruited a company called "Bragg's Rifles," with which he went out as Captain, serving in that grade and as Major, Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel in the 6th W. V. I.; was commissioned Brigadier General June 10, 1864, upon recommendation of Gen. Hooker, for gallant conduct at the battle of Fitz-Hugh's Crossing. He participated in the following battles in 1862: Rappahannock Station, Gainesville, Second Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam and Fredericksburg. In 1863, the following: Fitz-Hugh's Crossing (at which he crossed the Rappahannock in open boats, under heavy fire, carrying the enemies' rifle-pits on the opposite bank, for which he was commended in general division orders and recommended, by Maj. Gen. Hooker, commanding the army of the Potomac, for promotion to Brigadier General), Chancellorsville, Mine Run, all the battles of the Wilderness, and, May 6, was detached as Colonel of the 6th W. V. I., and specially assigned to the command of a Pennsylvania brigade, which he commanded in the battles of Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Hanover Crossing, and the battles on the Tolopotomy Creek. At the Chickahominy, in June, 1864, he was specially assigned, though a junior Colonel, to the command of the Iron Brigade, which he commanded at the assault upon Petersburg, the battle of the Weldon Railroad and Hatcher's Run. In 1865, he was placed in command of a Pennsylvania brigade attached to the Iron Brigade, making the command, for the time, thirteen regiments. He participated in the raid from Petersburg south to the North Carolina line, in aid of Gen. Sherman's movements from the south, and commanded the rear-guard on the retreat. He commanded the advance line in the battle at Dabney's Mill, in February, 1865. At the battles of Gainesville, Second Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, the Wilderness, Petersburg, Hatcher's Run and Dabney's Mill, he was complimented in the official report of his superiors. He was once severely wounded by a musket-ball, and once knocked from his horse by a cannon-ball, sustaining only temporary injuries from concussion. Gen. Bragg was very active, at the beginning of the war, in securing recruits and making ringing war speeches, which aided largely in obtaining for Fond du Lac County the excellent war record of which she is now so proud. He was married at Fond du Lac, January 2, 1855, to Miss Cornelia Colman, sister to Col. Edward Colman, of Fond du Lac. They have had three children, two of them daughters, now living, William Kohl Bragg, their only son, who had received a good military education, and who was the pride of his parents, died in the spring of 1878.

JAMES WISEMAN CARNEY was born near Banbridge, County Down, Ireland, Oct. 24, 1836; came to Staten Island, N. Y., in 1848; resided there several years, attending school, studying also at Orange, Mass., and Orange, N. J.; in 1856, came to Fox Lake, Dodge Co., Wis., having, in an early visit to the State with his father, selected that spot; in his first journey West, he slept with the soldiers and Indians during one week at Fort Winnebago; at Fox Lake, he was engaged in the grocery business; came to Fond du Lac in 1864, where he has since resided and carried on business. Mr. Carney was married in St. Louis Church, Fond du Lac, by Rev. J. Perodin, April 27, 1863, to Mary A. Egan, born June 4, 1844, at Boston, Mass.; they have six children—Nellie E., born Sept. 29, 1866; Robert Emmet, Dec. 5, 1868; Susan C., Oct. 26, 1870; James E., April 14, 1872; John P., Jan. 30, 1874, and Mary Genevieve, March 3, 1877; Nellie E. is a musical prodigy; she has six years of training in classical music; began playing in concerts at the age of 9, and is now master of all the most intricate compositions extant.

and with favorable results; in the winter of 1865-66, he visited the Island of Cuba and New Orleans, staying till convinced that his disease—consumption—was incurable, when he returned home in the latter part of May, 1866, and died on the 11th of August following, in his 59th year. In connection with this biographical sketch, it is well to give the words of Rev. Mr. Hawley, an intimate friend, who in his funeral discourse says: "I knew him. I knew his many excellencies, knew, too—and he knew—his faults. I knew his trueness, his trueness as a man, trueness as a husband, trueness as a friend, trueness as a patriot. There was nothing false in him; he was ever what he seemed. Neither was there anything uncharitable in him, rarely did he speak evil of a person, and always chided those who did so in his presence. He was in his domestic relations all that could have been desired. He loved his home, and the objects that were the light of his home. Here his affections had their natural play, and his best qualities their brightest manifestations. A strong and clear mind was his; his mental processes seemed almost intuitions. He was an accurate reader of man; he, beyond most I ever met, knew men. And this, of course, gave rise to distrust, distrust of others, and distrust of himself. His severe analysis of men was applied to himself. He was no cynic, he saw the bright side as well as the dark side of human nature. He saw trueness among men, not perfectness, but trueness, and when he saw this, he almost worshipped it. He was a man of great force of character. Few have such energy; few have such force of will. What he attempted, if within the limits of possibility, he was sure to accomplish. And his decision was equal to his force. When he made up his mind, and his clear and rapid reasoning enabled him to do this readily, he was fixed. He had positive convictions, and he was true to them. You always knew where to find him. He had none of that accommodating quality that puts a man on all sides of a question. He was on one side or the other, and on that side firmly and strongly. He was no twaddler, no policy man, i. e., he had principles, and he adhered to them. He was patriotic, he was true to his country, and truest when his country was neediest. He was a friend of men."

CORNELIUS BRANSHAW, proprietor of blacksmith-shop on Division street; is a native of Canada, where he was born Feb. 26, 1824; when only 6 months old, he moved with his parents to Vergennes, Vt., where he lived till he was 21 years of age, when he moved to Troy, N. Y., where he followed the blacksmith's trade, having learned it under Mr. E. Seaver, while at Vergennes; in the year 1855, he came from Troy to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided and continued at his trade. Oct. 22, 1844, he married Miss Mary Desotell, at Burlington, Vt., she being a native of Canada also; they have had four children—Albert (deceased), Albert (the second son being named in honor of his elder brother, who died when he was only 17 months old, and only a short time before the birth of Albert, Jr.), Mary L. (who, in 1872, became the wife of Mr. N. Branchaud, of Fond du Lac, where she lived till her death, in 1874), and Edwin C. All the family are members of the Catholic Church; Mr. Branshaw was elected Alderman from the Third Ward, for the year 1869. He has been a resident of Fond du Lac for twenty three years.

JOHN J. BRAYTON, farmer, Sec. 32; is a son of a farmer, Carr Brayton, of Washington Co., N. Y., born in 1823; he obtained a limited education in his native county; in 1846, came to Fond du Lac Co., via Milwaukee, and settled on his present farm, and has since made it his home; he, like many of the first settlers, experienced disadvantages of the old open-cylinder thrashing machine, and traveling twenty-five or thirty miles to get his wheat ground after separating it from the chaff. In 1859, he was married to Miss Marietta, daughter of William and Lydia Vincent, of Oshkosh; they had one son—Carr (deceased), and a daughter, Etna (now Mrs. Emmet Barden, of Le Roy, Wis.); Mrs. Brayton died in 1860; Mr. Brayton married Miss Eunice, daughter of William and Malinda Boyce, of Ogdensburg, N. Y.; they have three children—Charles J., Grant and Nellie. Mr. Brayton has a farm of 240 acres in Sec. 32, and forty acres in Sec. 29, all in Township 15, Range 17; probable value, $75 per acre.

KARL F. G. BRENNER, assistant teacher in Lutheran school; is a native of Baden, Germany, where he was born in 1845; came to America in 1865; in 1868, he began his college course in the Lutheran Seminary at Addison, Ill., where he graduated in 1870, and began teaching at Hustisford, Dodge Co., Wis., which he continued at that place for eight years, when, on account of his health, he was forced to quit the profession for a while; after regaining his health, he came to Fond du Lac in 1879, and became assistant teacher in the Lutheran school. He married Miss Barbara Werner, of Franklin, Wis., in 1870; they have three children—Karl G. F., Johannes W. O. and Lydia L. B. M.

HERMAN BROCKER, of the firm of P. Brocker & Sons, grocers on Western Avenue; was born in Fond du Lac in 1854; was educated in the public schools of this city, and in 1875 he began the grocery business with his father.

CHARLES BROCKER, of the same firm; was born at Fond du Lac in 1856; received his early education in the public schools of Fond du Lac, after which he attended Commercial College in this city, in 1876 became interested in the grocery business with his father and brother.

PHILLIP BROCKER (deceased); was a native of Lippe Detmoldt Holstein; born Jan. 12, 1816; was a brickmaker by trade, which he followed, both in his native country and in the United States. In 1849, emigrated to America and settled at Fond du Lac, Wis., where he followed his trade most of the time till 1875, when he began the grocery business, shortly after which he died, Nov. 21, 1876. He was married to Miss Helen Traeger, daughter of Ferdnan Traeger, ropemaker, of Saxon, Germany; they have five children, as follows: Henry, Herman, Charles, Augusta and Minnie.

G. F. BROWNSON, retired; is a native of Richmond, Chittenden Co., Vt.; was born Aug. 16, 1817, and is the son of Asa and Betsey Brownson, who were also natives of Vermont: when quite young, he with parents removed to St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., where he spent much of his earlier life, and was educated in the common schools and the Potsdam Academy; he was employed as clerk in mercantile business for eight years in Potsdam, and afterward removed to Parishville, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., where he continued the business as a member of the firm for nine years; in 1849 he came to Fond du Lac, formed a copartnership with Mr. Laughlin, under the firm name of Brownson & Laughlin, dry-goods merchants, where he continued the trade till 1861; after the dissolution of the firm he continued in the business for two years, and since that time has been dealing in general merchandising stock; he has been Freight Solicitor for the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac R. R. for the past ten years; he was City Clerk for one term, Superintendent of City Schools for three years, and a member of Common Council for several years. In 1845 he was married to Emily C., daughter of Esther Sheppard, of Rome, Oneida Co., N. Y. Their children are Hiram L., now acting Ass't Supt of the Smoky Hill Div. of the Kansas Pacific R. R.; G. F., now an engineer on that road; William J., a passenger conductor on the K. P. R. R.; Emma C., now Mrs. Strong, and lives at home; Virginia B., now Mrs. Wm. Beem, and lives in Kansas; Adelia E., now the wife of Charles H. Gardner, a passenger conductor on the Kansas Pacific R. R. Mr. Brownson's family are members of the Episcopal Church.

ELLIOT BROWN, M. D., is a native of Whittingham, Windham Co., Vt.; born Aug. 15, 1804; he spent his boyhood till 8 years old on a farm, when, on account of physical inability for that kind of life, his father put him to study with the medical profession in view; he received his early education at the academies of New Ipswich, N. H., and Ashfield, Mass., spending one year at each; in 1826, he graduated at Middlebury College, Vermont, completing his collegiate and medical course at the same time; he at once entered upon the practice of medicine at Whittingham, Vt., which he successfully continued there for eight years; thence he moved to Shaftsbury, Bennington Co., Vt., and there for another eight years devoted his time to his professional duties; in 1842, he removed to Fort Ann, Washington Co., N. Y., where he continued his profession till 1846; having thus devoted twenty years of his life to the practice of medicine, he came to Fond du Lac, then nothing but a very few log houses, a trading-post and a hotel, with the intention of devoting the rest of his life to agricultural pursuits and stock-raising; it was impossible, however, to wholly withdraw from professional duties, as his friends were constantly making demands on him for his services in their families; he devoted much of his time to dealing in real estate, and at one time owned 600 acres of land in Fond du Lac and adjoining counties, and has disposed of most of it and now lives a quiet life in a commodious home one mile south of the city of Fond du Lac, which, by his own industry, he has prepared for himself and family, and looks back upon a long and well-spent life, with satisfaction of enjoying its fruits in his old days. In 1826, he was married to Miss Mary, daughter of Jeremiah and Mary Kingsbury, of Whittingham, Vt.; they have had seven children, as follows: Mary M., now Mrs. Erastus Temple, of Harden Co., Iowa; Sarah S., now Mrs. S. B. Kezerta, of Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.; Love L., now Mrs. Rev. Warren Corcoran, of Oshkosh; Elliot K., of Eldorado, Hardin Co., Iowa; Hannah H., widow of the late Roswell Bacon, who was killed by the last shot fired in the battle of Mobile, Ala.; Harriet H., Henry B., deceased at four weeks old. The Doctor has long been a member of the County Medical Society, of Fond du Lac, was also a member of the County Board for two years. His family are connected with the Congregational Church.

RT. REV. JOHN HENRY HOBART BROWN, S. T. D., first Bishop of Fond du Lac, was born in the city of New York Dec. 1, 1831; was educated at Trinity School; graduated at the General Theological Seminary, New York June, 1854; ordained deacon at Trinity Church, New York, July, 1854; was assistant to the Rev. Francis Vinton, D. D., Rector of Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights; organized the Church of the Good Angels at Brooklyn Oct. 1, 1854; was ordained priest at the Church of the Holy Communion, New York, Dec. 1, 1855, and became Rector of the Church of the Good Angels in Brooklyn, N. Y.; was Rector of the Church of the Evangelists, Old St. George's Chapel, Beekman street, New York, from June, 1856, to June, 1860; accepted rectorship of St. John's Church, Cohoes, Albany Co., N. Y., in January, 1862; was Secretary of the Diocese of Albany, member of the Stamlng Committee, Deputy to the General Convention, and Archdeacon of Albany; received the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology from Racine College in 1873; elected Bishop of the Diocese of Fond du Lac Sept. 15, 1875; was consecrated in St. John's Church, Cohoes, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1875, by the Rt. Rev. H. Potter, D. D., L. L. D. (Oxon.), Bishop of New York, assisted by the Bishops of Vermont, Albany, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New Jersey. July 29, 1856, he married Anna Combs Upjohn, the youngest daughter of Richard Upjohn, Esq., architect, born at Boston, Oct. 1, 1836; have adopted two daughters—Jane Campbell and Clementine Boem.

JOHN BROWN, retired farmer, was born in Hillsboro Co., N. H., April 27, 1801. He married, in Rutland Co., Vt., in 1826, Mercy Mason, a native of that county. In 1831, they removed to Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., where they resided until 1851, in which year they came to Wisconsin and settled on a farm in the town of Fond du Lac, Fond du Lac Co., where they lived until 1879, when they removed to the city of Fond du Lac. Mr. Brown is a Republican in politics. He owns a well-improved farm in the town of Fond du Lac, and improved property in the city. Their children are Julia A., wife of Theodore Haight, Perrysburg, N. Y.; Cynthia, wife of Martin Engles, of Fond du Lac; Jennie, wife of Harvey Durand, also of Fond du Lac, and Mary, wife of William Blaine, of Kansas. Mr. Brown is an enterprising and well-known citizen, and has lived a useful and successful life.

HENRY P. BROWN, retired; is a native of Cumberland Co., Me.; born in 1830; grew up on a farm, and received his preparatory education at North Bridgeton Academy, after which, he entered Bowdoin College, Maine, in 1850, and graduated with the class of 1851; whence he went to Cherryfield, Me., as Principal of the Cherryfield Academy for two years. In 1856, he immigrated to Wisconsin, and for sixteen years followed teaching in the cities of Ripon, Waupun and Fond du Lac, in the latter of which he had charge of the public schools. In 1863, he gave up the profession, and, for nine years, dealt quite extensively in agricultural and farming implements; disposing of that business in 1872, he has since been interested in various speculations in Fond du Lac Co. Mr. Brown was elected a member of the City Council from the Third Ward, in 1870 and 1871; was President of the Council in 1871; was a member of the County Board during the same time; was a member of the Board of Education from 1856 to February, 1879. In 1860, he married Miss Maria K. Hall, daughter of Simeon Hall, farmer, of Willoughby, Ohio; they have three children—Annie R., Lizzie M. and Thomas H. Wife and daughter are members of the Congregational Church.

ALEXANDER BRUSH, Sr., farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a son of Alexander Brush and Nancy Griffith; was born in Delaware Co., N. Y., in 1800; came to Wisconsin in 1849, bought a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 13, of Fond du Lac, and twenty acres in the town of Eden. He did not settle on his farm, however, for some time, but devoted his attention to the lumber trade, principally on the Wolf River, built a saw-mill in what is now known as the Indian Agency in 1850, and there followed the saw-milling business for about six years; thence, in 1856, he removed to his farm, and has since made it his home. In 1830, he married Miss Jane, daughter of James and Mary Story, of Delaware Co., N. Y., by whom he had five children, three of whom, with wife, are dead—William (deceased), Priscella (deceased), Alexander, Jr., of Fond du Lac, William, Jr., of Taycheedah, Augusta (deceased). He married Miss Jennette, daughter of John and Jennette Murry, of Delaware Co., N. Y., in 1849; they have one son—Henry.

ALEXANDER BRUSH, Jr., farmer, on Sec. 27, 15, 17; is the son of a farmer, Alexander Brush, Sr., and a native of Delaware Co., N. Y.; born in 1833; immigrated to Wisconsin in 1846, and settled in Fond du Lac, where he afterward was engaged in the lumber business for several years, part of the time with his brother, and part of the time with Mr. Merryman & Co. In 1876, he disposed of his interest in the lumber trade, and bought a farm of 110 acres in the section above named, and has since followed farming. In 1874, he was married to Miss Mary E., daughter of R. S. and Ruth E. Cole, of Otsego Co., N. Y.; they have two daughters—Mable and Maud. Mr. and Mrs. Brush are members of the Presbyterian Church.

REV. L. H. BUEHRIG, Pastor of the German Evangelical Freedmen's or Peace Church, was born at Luttrum, in the kingdom of Hanover, Germany, in 1832; he received his early education in the schools of Braunschweig, Germany; after his confirmation, at the age of 14, he came, with his parents, to America and located at New Orleans; in 1853, he entered the Missouri Theological Seminary, at Marthasville, where he received his degree in July, 1857; in the same month, he was examined for ordination at the yearly conference, at Evansville, Ind., when, upon being ordained, he received a call to the church at Okawville, Washington Co., Ill., where he was installed as Pastor by the Rev. L. Nollan; the malaria of that climate proving too much for his constitution, he resigned that charge, after four years' service, for that of St. John's, near Burlington, Iowa, where he remained for three and one-half years, when, for two years, he became successor to the Rev. R. John, Ph. D., at Central City, Ill.; from 1867 to 1871, he served the church at Hollowayville, Bureau Co., Ill., when he was called to the United Reformed Lutheran Church at Ft. Madison, Iowa, whence, in 1873, he went to Minneapolis, Minn., where he organized the church and remained for nearly five years, being then called to the church at Fond du Lac. In 1858, he married Miss Martha Krochuke, daughter of Rev. D. Krochuke, of Rock Run, Stephenson Co., Ill., who died in 1863, leaving three children—Lydia, Martha and Mary; in 1864, he married Miss Caroline Austmann, daughter of Rev. L. Austmann, of Nashville, Ill., by whom he has four children—Annie, Adolph, Henry and Amanda.

N. L. BULLIS, of the firm of Bullis & Robbins, livery-stable proprietors; was born at Rouse's Point, N. Y., whence he came to Fond du Lac in March, 1855, and engaged in clerking, which he followed three years; after that, he was eight years in the grocery business, and has been fourteen years in the livery business with Alfred Robbins. He was married, at Fond du Lac, in 1859, to Adice C., daughter of Stephen Joubert, who came from Troy, where she was born, in 1849; they have six children—Nelson L., Jr., Minnie (now Mrs. Theo. D. Trelever), John Edward, Alfred Stephen, Emma and Pauline. Mr. B. has been Assessor five years, and has held various other city offices.

GUSTAV BURGHARDT; was born in Saxony May 27, 1836; came to America Aug. 10, 1851, locating in Milwaukee; came to Fond du Lac in 1855. Enlisted, in September, 1861, in the first cavalry company sent from Wisconsin, which was assigned to Gen. Sigel's command; was with his regiment in all its general engagements, and was mustered out in the summer of 1863; returned to Fond du Lac and engaged in the grain business until 1871; was Deputy Sheriff under Peter Rupp; was afterward Democratic candidate for County Clerk; was elected County Poor Commissioner in 1875 and served three years in that position; since April 1, 1878, Mr. B. has kept the Fond du Lac House. He was married, first, to Katherina Pfeiffer, who died Dec. 22, 1865, leaving one child—Frederick; married a second time, June 29, 1866, to Anna Schoene, born in Saxony; they have two children—Lena and Emma.

JOHN S. BURROWS, bank cashier; was born in London, England, in March, 1836, whence he came to America in September, 1857, spending a few weeks in Buffalo, N. Y., before locating at Fond du Lac in November, 1857. Mr. Burrows has been in Baker's bank, of which he is now cashier, since September, 1858; has been City Treasurer and Deputy Treasurer, Alderman, and President of the City Council. He was married, at Taycheedah, to Elizabeth, daughter of John Leeman, a resident of Taycheedah; she was born in Yorkshire, England; they have three children—Frank E., John W. and Eva T.; they lost three children from scarlet fever, within a few days of each other.

J. W. BYAM, photographer; born in Guilford, Medina Co., N. Y., Dec. 12, 1840; lived there until he was 14 years of age, then came with his parents to Michigan; they located in the town of Burns, Shiawassee Co., where he remained two years; he then went to Chicago; remained there a short time, then came to Madison, Wis., where he learned the business that he is now engaged in; resided in Madison two years and a half and returned to Michigan and lived two years; then he came to Chicago again and after a residence of a year and ten months there he came to Fond du Lac, in 1865. He was married in Fond du Lac, Dec. 12, 1869, to Emma Lewis; she was born in Le Roy, Dodge Co., Wis. They have one child living—Josephine E.; lost one son, Herbert, who died at the age of 10 months.

EDWIN A. CAREY, dry-goods merchant, of the firm of Laughlin & Carey; was born in the State of New York, in the year 1830, where he lived till 1845, when he came to Fond du Lac, which was then a small village, having only four houses; his father died the first year after their arrival, leaving his mother, an older brother and himself to care for the family; he spent most of his time, for a number of years, at work on a small farm, near the city of Fond du Lac, during the summer months, and at clerking in a store during the winter; in 1854, he started the first omnibus line in the city of Fond du Lac, which he continued for three years; he became a member of the firm of Laughlin & Carey, dry-goods merchants, in 1862, where he has since continued business, and is now one of the leading business firms of the city of Fond du Lac. He married Miss Mary Taylor, daughter of ex-Mayor Taylor (deceased). Mr. Carey and wife are prominent members of the Episcopal Church, and he also was, for five years, a Vestryman of that church.

AUGUST L. CARSTENS, junior partner of the firm of Bartlett & Carstens, meat market; is a native of Germany, where he was born in 1844; he learned his trade, and followed it in his native country till 1865, when he removed to Fond du Lac, and has since continued the butcher trade. In 1870, he married Miss Julia A. Treleven, daughter of D. D. Treleven, of Fond du Lac, by whom he has had two children—Lola G. and Alister (deceased).

COL. GEORGE W. CARTER, Warden of the Wisconsin State Prison; was born at Wayne, Erie Co., Penn., April 20, 1839; came to Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., in 1845, where his father, Jacob Carter, still resides. He lived on the farm until the war of the rebellion, when he enlisted—being one of the very first to do so—April 19, 1861, serving to the close, and returning home with a crushed thigh; he was educated at Ripon College and Wisconsin State University, and has practiced law since the war. Col. Carter has been two terms Clerk of the Circuit Court, a member of the Governor's staff; many years Chairman of the Republican County Committee; several years a member of the Republican State Central Committee; Republican candidate for Congress, and, since January, 1880, Warden of the Wisconsin State Prison. He was married July 4, 1861, to Emeline N. Harkness, a native of Tioga Co., Penn.; they have five children—Albert C., George H., Elvira, Elizabeth and Jay E.

CYRUS CHADBOURNE, photographer; was born in Harrison, Cumberland Co., Me., and learned the photographer's business in 1864, which he has since followed. He came to Fond du Lac in August, 1874, where he began business for himself. He makes a speciality of fine photographs, for which he has earned a wide reputation.

THOMAS CHAPELAIN, residence Fourth street; was born near Montreal, Can., Nov. 1, 1843; he learned the carpenter trade in Montreal, and worked at it several years, served in the Canadian militia five years; came to Wisconsin in 1866, and has lived in the city of Fond du Lac since. The maiden name of Mr. Chapelain's wife was Jennie La Pointe; she was born near Montreal, Can., in 1842; they have three children—Virginia M., T. W. and Amelia. In politics, Mr. Chapelain is a Republican. His father, Peter Chapelain, was a native of Canada, born near Montreal; he married Miss A. Darwin; he died in 1819; she married again, and resides in Canada; their children now living are Thomas (whose name heads this sketch), Wolford (who lives in Escanaba, Mich.), Ovida (who lives near Montreal, Can.), and Lizzie (wife of Daniel Deshambena, Canada). Mrs. Chapelain's parents, George and Julia La Pointe, were natives of Canada; they moved from there to Waukegan, Ill., in or about 1849, thence to Fond du Lac in 1860; they now reside in Egg Harbor, Door Co., Wis., and are esteemed people; their children are Jenny (wife of Thomas Chapelain, the subject of this sketch), Ellen (wife of O. Anderson, Egg Harbor, Wis.), Stephen and John (who live in New London, Wis.), Addie (wife of Joseph Mocha, of Fond du Lac), Mary (wife of Michael Furnier, of Buffalo, N. Y.), Emma (wife of P. Hennigan, of Fond du Lac), George and Cordelia.

ALMOND W. CHAPMAN was born in the town of Hebron, Washington Co., N. Y., June 15, 1833; at the age of 21, he moved to Oswego Co., remained there one year, and, in the fall of 1855, came to Fond du Lac, arriving here Nov. 16; Mr. C. was reared as a farmer, and was an engineer for stationary and locomotive engines for a time; in 1858, he established the ice business at Fond du Lac, which he continued nine years; for several years, he has carried on the manufacture of spruce beer and soda water, and for twenty-seven years furnished music for parties and dances. He was married at Fond du Lac, Nov. 16, 1856, to Lucy A., daughter of Joseph King, born in the town of Fond du Lac, Feb. 3, 1840; they have two children living—Josephine D., born Dec. 20, 1857, and Walter A., July 22, 1861; Jamie died in March, 1859, aged 6 months. Mr. C. is a member of the Lodge of A. F. & A. M.

CHARLES CHURCH, of the firm of Church Bros., house, sign, carriage and ornamental painters, was born in Ellicottville, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., July 23, 1855; came with his parents to Fond du Lac in 1855; he has worked at the painter's trade since his youth, and for himself (with his brother William) for the last four years. He was married in Fond du Lac, July 25, 1876, to Miss Katie French, a native of Ontario; they have one child—Susie; Mr. Church is a member of the I. O. O. F.

WILLIAM CHURCH, of the firm of Church Bros., house, sign, carriage and ornamental painters, was born in Fond du Lac June 16, 1856; commenced work at painter's trade when a boy; engaged in business with his brother for the last four years. He was married in this city, Feb. 20, 1878, to Miss Josie Crawford, who was born at Watertown, Jefferson Co., Wis. Mr. Church is a member of the Fond du Lac Band, having been connected with it since its organization in 1874.

S. B. CLARK, of the firm of Clark & Myers, proprietors of First Street Livery Stable, was born in Canton, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., Dec. 24, 1824; went to California in 1852, and remained there until 1857; in 1858, he returned to Canton, and carried on the milling business there for several years; in 1868, he went to Montana to recruit his health; spent two years there, and then came to Ripon, Wis., where he remained until 1872, when he came to Fond du Lac.

C. L. CLEMENT of the firm of Perkins & Clement, carriage manufacturers; was born in Jefferson Co., N. Y., in 1839; at the age of 17 he went to Newark, N. J. with S. B. Sanders; remaining there till 1868, whence he came to Fond du Lac and continued his trade alone till 1874, when Mr. Perkins became a partner in the carriage manufactory.

JOHN F. COATES, engineer of Fire Engine No. 3, was born in Gloucestershire, England, Nov. 30, 1847; came to America in 1867; spent three years in Buena Vista, Portage Co., Wis., came thence to Fond du Lac; he began the trade of a locomotive machinist at Swindon, England, on the Great Western Railway; has followed engineering eleven years. He was married at Fond du Lac in April, 1872, to Mary Lucas, born in Wisconsin; they have two children—Chas. F., born March, 1874, and Myrtle, born in October, 1878.

A. G. COFFMAN, butcher: was born in Bavaria Oct. 22, 1839, and came with his parents to Marshfield, Wis., in 1850; in 1858, he went to Illinois and enlisted in July, 1861, at Geneva, in the Kane Co., cavalry, serving on detached duty with Gens. Curtis, Halleck, and as Gen. Steele's escort, being mustered out in September, 1864; he returned to Bloomingdale, Ill., where he lived until December, 1866, when he came to Fond du Lac and engaged in the butchering business, which he has since followed. He was married at Bloomingdale, Ill., March 29, 1867, to Hannah E. Trewing, a native of England; they have six children—George W., Ida May, Charles G., Clara P., Edith E., and William H. Mr. C. is a member of the A. O. U. W.

DR. J. R. COLE, dentist: was born in Morris, Otsego Co., N. Y., June 30, 1826; moved to Illinois in 1845; to Mineral Point in 1849; thence to Milwaukee, and to Fond du Lac in 1851, having a capital of 25 cents when he first reached Wisconsin; began the practice of dentistry thirty-one years ago; Dr. C. carried on his farm five years, located in Lamartine, platted Cole's addition to Fond du Lac at the close of the war, and engaged in building and other real-estate operations. He was married, at Fond du Lac, June 21, 1854, to Emma T., daughter of Jared M. Taylor; she was born at Vergennes, Vt., Jan. 9, 1836; they have seven children—Dudley N., Milton H., John M., Mary A., Alfred D., Burton and George R.; Emily died at the age of 2 years and 6 months; Dr. C. has been a member of the Common Council and of the Board of Education.

MILTON H. COLE, dentist: was born at Fond du Lac Feb. 7, 1856; during five years, he has been engaged in the practice of his profession with his father, the firm name being J. R. Cole & Son; he was married, at Mitchell, Sheboygan Co., Wis., to Anna L. Reed, Oct. 14, 1877.

HON. JAMES COLEMAN, attorney, son of the Rev. Seymour Coleman, of the Troy, (N. Y.) M. E. Conference; was born in Schoharie Co., N. Y., June 29, 1836; he received an academic education; read law three years in Troy and Albany; graduated from the Albany Law School in 1856, was admitted to the bar the same year, and in 1857 began practice at Fond du Lac, which has since been his home. Mr. Coleman was elected District Attorney in 1860, and re-elected in 1862; served two terms in the Legislature; was Register in Bankruptcy in 1868, and Postmaster of Fond du Lac from 1869 to 1877. He is now, and has been since 1876, a law partner of United States Senator Matt H. Carpenter, with an office in Washington; they have a larger practice, with perhaps one exception, in the United States Supreme Court, than any other firm. Although spending much of his time in Washington, Mr. C. still maintains a residence at Fond du Lac, where he passes the summers.

COL. EDWARD COLMAN; was born at Rochester, N. Y., where he was a resident engineer on the Erie Canal; he came to Fond du Lac in 1852, and engaged in farming, though he followed his profession of civil engineering more or less, until the fall of 1861, when he enlisted in Co. A, 18th W. V. I., going out as First Lieutenant. He was wounded at Shiloh and Champion Hills, on account of which he was absent a year from his company. He still carries the bullet in his head. Afterward, he was in the recruiting service acting as Adjutant, and stationed at Madison, Wis. In the Veteran Reserve Corps, he was stationed at St. Louis, but afterward at Washington on the Examining Board. He was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of the 49th W. V. I., and just before being mustered out, in the fall of 1865, was commissioned as Colonel, though the commission failed to reach him before he was mustered out. From 1866, he was Superintendent of public property at Madison one and one-half years; after which, he engaged nine and one-half years in banking, being the first Treasurer of the Fond du Lac Saving's Bank. Mr. Colman engaged in farming from January, 1877, to January, 1878, when he took the office of Sheriff, to which he was elected on the Republican ticket by a very large majority. After leaving the Sheriff's office in January, 1880, he became cashier of the Mibills Manufacturing Co. While residing in Fond du Lac, he was elected City Treasurer two terms.

ELIHU COLMAN, attorney; was born in Oneida, Brown Co., Wis.; came to Fond du Lac in August, 1847. In the fall of 1861, he enlisted in Co. G, 1st W. V. C.; served as Quartermaster's Sergeant, Issuing and Entry Clerk in Commissary Department. In January, 1863, he was discharged on account of disability. He is a graduate of Lawrence University, at Appleton, Wis. Admitted to the bar in May, 1865, and has been engaged in the practice of law ever since. He represented this district in the Wisconsin General Assembly in 1872; served as Register in Bankruptcy for this district, from 1868 to 1872.

REV. HENRY R. COLMAN, retired; was born at Northampton, Montgomery (now Fulton) Co., N. Y., Oct. 9, 1800; at 6 years of age, went with his parents to Connecticut; seven years later, returned to Northampton, where he resided until 31, engaged in farming until joining the Troy (N. Y.) M. E. Conference in 1831. He was on the circuit composed of Warren and Essex Cos. one year; at Luzerne Village fifteen months, in which he had fourteen appointments; at Bridgeport, Addison Co., Vt., one year; Tienderoga, N. Y., two years; village of Essex, having several appointments, one year; Middlebury, N. Y., two years; Northampton, N. Y., one year; Green Bay, Wis., where he arrived in September, 1840, five years as missionary to Oneida Indians; missionary to Stockbridge Indians, Calumet Co., two years; then at Fond du Lac, his present home, two years, after which, on account of ill health, he has taken no appointment. Rev. Colman was married at Northampton, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1823, to Livia Spier, born at Lake Pleasant, Hamilton Co., N. Y., April 25, 1802; she has been a member of the M. E. Church fifty-eight years, and her husband fifty-seven years; they have five children—Charles J., a lumberman at La Crosse, Wis.; Julia, residing at Brooklyn, N. Y.; Rev. Henry, preaching at Milwaukee; Joseph Spier, of La Crosse, and Elisha, a lawyer at Fond du Lac.

REV. FATHER JAMES COLTON, priest of St. Patrick's Church, Follett street; is a native of County Tyrone, Ireland, where he was born June 24, 1824; he received his preparatory education in his parish at County Tyrone; entered college at Mynouth, Ireland, in 1840, and received his diploma from the same in 1844; he came to America in September of the same year, and continued his theological studies in St. Thomas' College at Beardstown, Ky., for three years; in 1847, he was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Henni, of Milwaukee, Wis., immediately following which he entered the ministry at Menomonee, Waukesha Co., Wis., where he remained until 1850, when he moved to Cedarburg, Ozaukee Co., Wis., where he had a charge for three years; in 1854, he was changed to Oshkosh, Winnebago Co., remaining there for about three years; he was then changed by the Bishop to Kenosha for a little more than three years, whence he was again changed to Shullsburg, Wis.; remaining at Shullsburg for nearly four years, when he was sent to Fitchburg for a few months only, when he was changed to St. Patrick's, Fond du Lac, in 1862, where he has since remained in charge of a congregation of about two hundred and five families and about fifteen hundred members.

REV. FATHER OLIVER COMTOIS, priest of St. Louis' French Catholic Church; is a native of Canada; was born in Montreal May 8, 1842, he pursued his preparatory collegiate studies at Theresa College, near Montreal, entering in 1855 and graduating in 1863, after which he pursued his theological studies in the same institution, receiving his degree in 1870; for two years after his graduation in 1870, he was Professor of French in the University of the Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass.; he was ordained to the priesthood at Marquette, Mich., in 1872, after which he held services at several missions in the Diocese of Marquette till June, 1879, when he was transferred by the Bishop to St. Louis' French Church, Fond du Lac, to succeed Father Dale, whose death occurred in March previous.

HON. WILLIAM D. CONKLIN, attorney; born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1831; came to Fond du Lac Co. in 1841, with his father, Henry Conklin; he was educated at Madison and Hamilton Colleges; graduated from the latter institution in 1852; degree of A. M. conferred in 1863; commenced the practice of law in Fond du Lac in 1854; served one term as County Judge, two terms as Alderman, and six years as Municipal Judge. He took an active part in the organization of the 14th W. V. I. during the late rebellion, and was appointed Quartermaster of the regiment, but soon relinquished the position to his brother.

COL. HORACE E. CONNIT, attorney; was born at Elyria, Ohio, May 20, 1822; resided there five years, when his father died and he moved to Medina, N. Y., for nine years; spent two years at Yates Academy; read law three years at Lockport, N. Y., teaching a portion of the time, after which, Oct. 13, 1847, he came to Horicon, Wis.; he was admitted to the bar the same fall, and practiced his profession at Horicon until enlisting in September, 1862, as Captain of Co. C, 29th W. V. I., in which he was promoted to Major in 1864, and Lieutenant Colonel in June, 1865; Col. C. was with his regiment in all its engagements except the Red River expedition, during which, on account of a wound received at Port Gibson May 1, 1863, he was detailed to the Quartermaster's Department in New Orleans. After leaving the army, he returned to Horicon for two years; engaged in farming two years at Oakfield; moved to Waupun in 1870 for four years; spent one year on a farm, and came to Fond du Lac in 1876, where he has since practiced his profession. He was married in the town of Herman, Wis., Sept. 13, 1848, to Susan F. Chase, a native of Barry, Orleans Co., N. Y.

D. G. CRIPPEN, veterinary surgeon and proprietor of breaking and boarding stable; born in North Granville, Washington Co., N. Y., April 22, 1832; came to Fond du Lac in April, 1856. He was married in West Granville, N. Y., April 29, 1852, to Mary E. Farnsworth; she is a native of West Granville; they have had six children; the living are Mary Ida, George Norman, Willard, Charles E. and Ada Belle; they have lost one son—Nathan R., who was born April 8, 1857, and died Dec. 16, 1878. Mr. Crippen commenced handling horses at the age of 8 years, while at home with his father; for the last twenty-five years he has carried on the business of a veterinary surgeon; he is among the well-known horse-trainers, and his reputation for successfully breaking horses is fully established.

ALVA CROFOOT, superintendent of Meyer's saw mill, is a native of Lewis Co., N. Y., where he was born in 1833; came to the State of Wisconsin and settled at Green Bay in 1840, whence, in 1841, he removed with his parents to Kaukauna, where they lived for two years; in 1843, he came to Fond du Lac, and began farming, which he has continued in connection with the lumber business since; in 1853, he began the lumber business with Brand, Olcott & Co., with whom he remained until 1865, when for a while he was out of the lumber trade; he soon began the lumber business again for Mr. Sawyer, remaining with him until he sold out to Mr. C. J. L. Meyer, when Mr. Crofoot began for Mr. Meyer. In 1853, he married Miss Cornelia House, of Lewis Co., N. Y.; they have nine children, as follows: Effie, now Mrs. Robbs, of Fond du Lac; Jay P., Edward E., May, Miranda, Clinton A., Carlos B., Minnie and Ella. Mr. Crofoot was a member of the County Board in 1866; he owns a farm of 145 acres four miles southwest of Fond du Lac, valued at $7,250.

JAMES L. CROWLEY, grocer, was born in County Kerry, Ireland, in 1831, where he lived till he was 16 years of age, when he came to America and located in the State of Maryland, where he stayed for one year; he then moved to West Virginia and resided there for two years; from there he went to Ohio where he lived three years; thence to Pennsylvania for nine months; thence to Ohio again for a few months, and from there he came to the State of Wisconsin and settled at Fond du Lac in 1855. He was married to Miss Julia Fitzgerald, of the town of Empire, Wis., in 1856; after his marriage he settled on a farm near Empire, where he lived until 1873, when he moved to Fond du Lac and began the grocery business, which he has since followed. His wife died in May, 1872, leaving nine children, as follows: John and Bridget (twins), born in 1857; Margaret, born in 1859; Mary, born in 1861; James, born in 1863; Catharine, born in 1865; Julia, born in 1867; Edmond, born in 1870, and Honora, born in 1872. Mr. Crowley and family are members of the Catholic Church, and he has at different times been a Trustee of the same. He is now a member of the Catholic Benevolent Society of Fond du Lac.

DAVID R. CURRAN, a native of Ithaca, N. Y., came to Fond du Lac in the fall of 1846, and has been in business and resided here ever since; he began to clerk for his brother in a drug store in 1837, and when he came to Fond du Lac brought a stock of druggist's goods and put them upon the market as soon as a suitable building could be procured; in 1853, R. P. Root became Mr. Curran's partner for one year, and, in 1858, C. F. Kalk became a member of the firm of Curran & Kalk, as Mr. Curran had been appointed Register of the Wisconsin Land Office at Menasha, which position he held three years; in 1866, the firm of Curran & Kalk dissolved, the former continuing alone until 1873, when his son, E. S. Curran, was admitted to partnership under the firm name of D. R. Curran & Son; in 1879, D. R. Curran retired from the firm. He has been Under Sheriff two years; Deputy County Treasurer four years; member of the School Board thirteen years, and held other local offices. He was married at Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 5, 1847, to Eveline Stoddard, of that city.

ED S. CURRAN, druggist; was born at Fond du Lac, July 15, 1849; he is a graduate of the Fond du Lac High School; during thirteen years, up to March, 1879, he was in the drug business with his father, since which time he has carried on the business alone.

GEORGE P. DANA was born in the town of Empire, Fond du Lac Co., Nov. 25, 1849; came to city of Fond du Lac when 6 years old, and attended school, with the exception of working six months at the jeweler's trade, until 14 years of age; after that, he clerked one year for N. L. Bullis, in a grocery store, and then began, in 1865, the business of a gunsmith with T. S. Weeks, which he has followed ever since; in 1877, he was appointed First Assistant Fire Marshal; was appointed Chief in 1878, and re-appointed in 1879, and has been a fireman fifteen years. Mr. D. was married at Fond du Lac, May 19, 1874, to Phoebe Lammers; they have four children—Alexander G., Paul J., Lavona J., and George A.; he is a member of St. Michael's Society, and is President of the Firemen's Mutual Aid Society.

JOHN L. DANA, hatter, furrier and dealer in gents' furnishing goods; born in the town of Fond du Lac Sept. 12, 1851; he is a son of John Dana, who came to this county in 1844, and is now a resident of this city. The subject of this sketch was employed as a clerk in a grocery store for two years, and, for five years, he was in the employ of Hoyt & Cole, hatters, of this city; in 1872, he engaged in business for himself.

SAMUEL R. DANIELS was born in Clinton Co., N. Y., in 1831, and is the son of David and Hannah Daniels, nee Roblee, also natives of New York; he spent his early life on a farm in New York, and, with parents, came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled in the town of Eden, where his father died in the following year; his mother now lives in Michigan; he followed farming in Eden for thirteen years, and then removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he has since followed teaming; he now owns a house and lot on Green street, a lot on Grant, and one on corner of Grant and Eleventh streets. In 1861, he was married to Miss Prussia, daughter of Howard and Electa Mitchell, natives of New York, but immigrants to Wisconsin in 1859; they have one daughter—Cora E. Mrs. Daniels is a member of the Free-Will Baptist Church.

P. S. Wally

FOND DU LAC.

(DECEASED.)

GEORGE D. DANKS, house, sign and ornamental painter; was born in New London, Wis., in 1856; came to Fond du Lac in 1862; learned the painter's trade under his father while young; during the year 1877, he was steamboating on the lake; in 1878, began grocery business in city of Fond du Lac, on Scott street, which he continued till spring of 1879; owns brick building on Scott street. He married Miss Mary E. Parrish, of Fond du Lac, in 1877; they have one son—Edward L.; has been a member of the Order of United Workmen since March, 1878.

KEYES ARMSTRONG DARLING, oldest son of the pioneer Dr. M. C. Darling, of Fond du Lac, was born in Greenwich, Mass., in 1824; received his early education in the schools of Amherst, whither his parents removed when he was quite young; thence, in 1836, to Fond du Lac, where Keyes spent most of his time for many years; at the age of 18, his father sent him and his sister, now Mrs. Helen Eastman, back to Albion, N. Y., to continue their studies; his sister completed her course and he, after remaining two years, changed to Janesville, Wis.; thence to Beloit, where he attended a select school in the basement of the old brick church; in 1846, he, with his father, opened a broker's office at Fond du Lac, which they continued for about ten years, when, in company with Dr. T. S. Wright, opened a banking-house under the name of Darling, Wright & Co. In 1850, he married Miss Ann M., daughter of John and Lovice Bowman, of Monroe Co., Wis.; they have two sons—William M., of Minnesota; John B., medical student at Madison. The family are members of the Episcopal Church.

E. W. DAVIS, retired; was born in the town of Sebago, Cumberland Co., Me., Aug. 26, 1808; when 16 years old, went to Boston and vicinity, where he lived seven years; attended Beverly Academy, in Massachusetts, two years and six months; removed then to Schenectady, N. Y., for six months; went to Syracuse in 1837; where, in the fall of 1838, he enlisted in the "Patriot War;" was Captain of a company of patriots composed principally of salt-boilers; after a campaign of a few weeks, returned to Syracuse for a short time and then went to Massachusetts; in 1839, he removed to Rochester, N. Y., where he carried on the boot and shoe business for Massachusetts factories until 1841, when he went to Des Moines Co., Iowa. Mr. D. remained in Iowa, where he was a farmer and a member of the Legislature, until coming to Fond du Lac, in August, 1847; at Fond du Lac he has been engaged in building; he resided one year at Appleton, where, with Dr. M. C. Darling and Amos A. Lawrence, he built a mill, which he sold, and returned to Fond du Lac. Mr. D. has been Alderman ten years, School Commissioner, Fire Warden, and held other offices. He was married, in Massachusetts, to Lavina Brown, who died in 1833. He was married a second time, at Milwaukee, in February, 1853, to Emma B., daughter of Dr. John B. Audley, who came to Milwaukee in 1842; she was born at Newcastle-under-Lyme, England; Mrs. D. has two brothers and a sister at Nashotah, and one brother keeps the Nagowicka Cottage, near Pewaukee Lake; her father and mother—who was Eleanor Rubathan—were born in Staffordshire, near Newcastle, England; Mrs. Davis inherited some poetical genius, and has written several articles of merit, the latest being "Well-remembered scenes of early girlhood in old England."

FREDERICK F. DAVIS was born in Marbletown, Ulster Co., N. Y., in 1803; came to Fond du Lac in 1844, and followed farming for a short time; in 1845, he built the first flouring-mill in Fond du Lac, there being only one log and two frame dwellings in the town at that time; Mr. McWilliams occupied the log house, Dr. Darling one of the frame dwellings and the other was occupied by a Frenchman; Mr. Davis soon sold his mill to Col. Conklin and began farming the land on which the town of Waupun is situated, his being the only shanty there at that time; in 1847, he returned to Fond du Lac, and in company with A. G. Ruggles, built the first steam saw-mill erected here; brought the first raft of logs from the Wolf River to the town of Fond du Lac, after which, in the winter of 1847-48, they placed 3,000 logs on the banks of that river, which they rafted down to the mill in the spring of 1848, and sawed in the following summer; they continued this business together for about two years, when Mr. Davis bought out Mr. Ruggles and managed the mill for a year longer, when, upon his election as Sheriff of the county of Fond du Lac, he disposed of his saw-mill; after his term of office had expired, he purchased a lumber establishment on the Sauk River, of which he was proprietor for two years, when he exchanged it for property at Calumet; being a man of enterprise and not content when out of business, he soon purchased a flouring-mill at Calumet, of which he was proprietor for three years, when inducements were such as to cause him to dispose of this, move to New York State and purchase a large flouring and saw mill and farm, with which he operated for twelve years; in 1874, he again returned to Fond du Lac and has since led a more quiet life, having been one of the most active and enterprising men in the early settlement of that city and county. He married Mariah Johnson, of Ellenville, Ulster Co., N. Y., in 1826, who died at Fond du Lac in 1859, leaving three children—Cornelia (deceased), Sarah J., now Mrs. Lee, of Fond du Lac, and Betsy, now Mrs. West, of Fond du Lac. In 1862, he married Miss Sarah Smith, of Ulster Co., N. Y., by whom he had three children, as follows: Frank, Leonard and Annie.

C. H. DE GROAT, of the firm of DeGroat & Giddings, manufacturers of engines, mill machinery, brace saw-mill machinery, foundry, farm machinery and agricultural implements; is a native of the State of New York; born in 1839; came to Fond du Lac in 1852. In 1861, he enlisted in Co. K, of the 1st W. V. L.; served with his company one year; came home to recruit; raised Co. A, of the 32d W. V. L.; was elected Captain, and, before the close of the war, was made Colonel of his regiment; was with Gen. Sherman on his march to the sea; was mustered out of service, at Milwaukee, in June, 1865; returned to Fond du Lac and followed farming for one year; was elected County Clerk in 1866 and served for four years; in 1870, moved to Salt Lake; in 1874, returned to Fond du Lac and became partner of Mr. Giddings, in the firm of De Groat & Giddings. In 1862, he married Miss Josephine Allen, of Fond du Lac; they have four children—Charles, Grant, George and Paul. Mr. D. and wife are members of the Congregational Church. Mr. D. has also been a K. of P. since 1877.

FRED WILLIAM DEHNERT, brick manufacturer; was born in Prussia May 4, 1840; came direct to Fond du Lac in December, 1868, where he has been engaged in the manufacture of brick for six years. He was married, in Lomira, Dodge Co., Wis., Nov. 6, 1871, to his first wife, and to his present wife, Caroline Spielberg, at the same place, Feb. 21, 1876; she was born in Prussia; they have two children—William and Bertha; Mrs. Dehnert has four children by a former marriage—Albert, Emil, Emma and Minnie.

ADELBERT DE LAND, druggist, was born at Detroit, Mich., July 28, 1849; came with his father, John R. De Land (who still resides here), to Fond du Lac, in 1851; Mr. De L. began clerking in Dr. T. S. Wright's drug store, in 1864; in 1865, he went to Chicago, and was with J. H. Reed & Co., and their successors, H. A. Hurlbut & Co., until he returned to Fond du Lac and established his present business Jan. 1, 1877. He was married, at Janesville, Wis., Dec. 25, 1876, to Emma A. Terwilliger, a native of Saratoga Co., N. Y.

EDMUND DELANY, Jr., City Clerk; was born at Factoryville, Tioga Co., N. Y., Nov. 11, 1841; a son of Edmund Delany, who is now a resident of Fond du Lac; came to Calumet, in this county, in 1849, and to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided, in 1853. Mr. D. enlisted in Co. A, 14th W. V. L., in October, 1861, as a private, but was elected Sergeant at the organization of the company, and promoted, Aug. 9, 1862, to Second Lieutenant of Co. I, 21st W. V. L.; he was in all the battles in which his regiment participated; was mustered out March 29, 1863, after which, he was clerk in the Provost Marshal's office until it was abolished in October, 1865; he studied engineering and aided in preparing a map of the city of Fond du Lac; in 1870, Mr. D. was chosen City Clerk, which position he has since continuously occupied.

CHARLES DEMARIS, blacksmith; was born in Massachusetts in 1852; came to Fond du Lac with his parents, and settled at Fond du Lac in 1855; was educated in the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, at Delavan, Wis., from 1863 to 1870; learned the cabinet-maker's trade, but did not work at it very long; began blacksmithing in the La Belle Wagon Works in 1877, and has continued there since that time.

JULIEN DEMERS, proprietor of saloon; is a native of Canada, where he was born in 1837; he removed to Fond du Lac in 1854 and began running a saw-mill, which he now continues in connection with his saloon business. In 1859, he married Miss Lucy Latournau, a native of Canada, by whom he has had thirteen children, only two of whom—Julien and Adis—are living, and, with parents, are members of the Catholic Church. Mr. Demers has taken quite an active part in the political interests of the Greenback party in his ward; was one of the men who organized the Greenback club in the Sixth Ward, and has since held the office of Vice President of the same.

H. G. DE SOMBRE, dealer in fine watches and jewelry, silver and plated ware, musical instruments, etc.; is a native of Prussia; he came to America with his father, B. C. De Sombre, in 1856 (his father is still a resident of this city), located here at that time; commenced learning his trade of watchmaker and jeweler in October, 1861; began business for himself in the spring of 1866. He is Alderman of the Eighth Ward at the present time.

FRED W. DE QUINE was born in Calumet Village, this county, Oct. 30, 1853; in September, 1854, his father, Louis De Quine, died, and he came with his mother to Fond du Lac in 1855; she resides at No. 27 Doty street; Mr. D. attended school until April 4, 1870, when he served three years' apprenticeship as a machinist, and has worked ever since at that trade in Fond du Lac; he is foreman of the Union Iron Works; is a Turner, and a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge.

DR. C. E. DICKINSON, dentist; was born at Guilford, Chenango Co., N. Y., Nov. 23, 1849, where he lived until removing to Delaware in 1868, whence he came to Fond du Lac in 1871; he began the study of dentistry with Dr. C. W. Barnes in 1873, and began practice in April, 1878, in the city of Fond du Lac, where he now has a good business.

JOHN W. DILLON, photographer; was born in London, England, Oct. 27, 1847, and came to America when 12 years of age, living in New York City until July 27, 1864, when he enlisted in Battery B, 5th U. S. A., for three years, as a musician or bugler; at the expiration of his term of service in 1867, he went to Chicago, thence to Bloomington and Lincoln, finally, coming to Fond du Lac the same year, and engaging in his present business, that of a photographer. He was married in Fond du Lac Feb. 25, 1873, to Ella M., a native of Manitowoc Co., daughter of Evander Soper, one of the earliest settlers of Wisconsin; they have two children—Frank Earle and Harry Walton. Mr. D. belongs to the Masonic, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias Lodges of Fond du Lac, and has been Alderman from the Eighth Ward since the spring of 1879.

JOHN A. DITTER, druggist, was born at Baden, Germany, June 2, 1852, whose father, Amos Ditter, now resides in this county; he came to Taycheedah in 1857, where he resided until coming to Fond du Lac in 1868; in 1871, he removed to Waterloo, but after three years returned to Fond du Lac, where, in December, 1875, he began the drug business. In 1877, Mr. Mitchell became his partner, under the firm name of Ditter & Mitchell. Mr. Ditter was married, at Fond du Lac, Nov. 15, 1877, to Katie Trimbor, a native of Marshfield, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Ditter are members of St. Mary's Church, and Mr. Ditter of St. Joseph's Benevolent Society.

PHILIP DITTER, was born in Baden, Germany, June 27, 1844; came to Taycheedah from Europe in 1857. He enlisted Feb. 15, 1864, in Co. K, 35th W. V. I., and was mustered out in May, 1866—serving in the Department of the Gulf at the siege of Mobile, White River and ten months in Texas. Mr. Ditter began his trade in March, 1861, and has been in business for himself about nine years. He was married at Fond du Lac July 6, 1871, to Mary Trimbor, who was born near Marytown, Wis.; they have five children—Joseph A., John P., Mary J., Mathias J. and Edward J. Mr. Ditter is a member of the Capuchin Church, and St. Joseph's Benevolent Society.

HENRY C. DITTMAR, proprietor of a steam dyeing and scouring establishment; born in New York City July 4, 1846. He entered the United States Navy Feb. 22, 1864; served on the steam sloop Pawnee, United States sloop New Hampshire, the flag-ship Malvern and the surveying steamer Bibb; left the naval service Feb. 20, 1867, and was located in Philadelphia until he came to Fond du Lac in 1873. He commenced work at the business he now carries on twenty-two years ago. He was married in Philadelphia, Dec. 31, 1867, to Catharine Johnson, a native of that city; they have two children—Annie H. and West A. Mr. Dittmar is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the K. of P. He is a son of Henry Dittmar, who came to this county in 1865, and is now engaged in farming in Calumet Township.

HENRY DIRCKS, Foreman of the Hook and Ladder Co.; was born in New Holstem, Germany, Dec. 25, 1852; came with his parents, Henning N. and Theodocia Dircks, to America in 1857; after one year's residence in the State of New York they came to Fond du Lac, where they still reside; at the age of 11 years Henry commenced to work in Griffith's saw-mill, in this city, where he remained three years; afterward, for six years he was employed in the sash, door and blind manufactory of C. J. L. Meyer; since that time he has been engaged in some work at the Mihills factory. He was married in the town of Lomira, Dodge Co., Wis., Nov. 13, 1879, to Amelia Wollenburg, who was born near Berlin in Prussia. Mr. Dircks was Secretary of the Volunteer Fire Department for about five years; since the organization of the present system he has been Foreman of the Hook and Ladder Co. He is a member of the Fireman's Mutual Aid Society. He belongs to the Lutheran Church, and St. Peter's Society connected with the church.

RICHARD DIX, was born in Saxony, April 27, 1827, from where, after attending Jena University, Dresden College, and studying for a veterinary surgeon and practicing that profession about one year, he came to America in 1849, locating in Milwaukee; he followed the profession of veterinary surgeon in Milwaukee and vicinity until 1855, when he came to Fond du Lac and engaged in the business of brewing, which he continued until 1862. Mr. Dix lived in Green Bay three years, where, with his parents, he built the gas-works; during the last two years he has not been in active business. He was married at Fond du Lac July 11, 1859, to Josephina Krembs, a native of Wurtemberg; they have one son—Richard. Mr. Dix also has a son by a former wife—Edwin J., who is in C. J. L. Meyer's office at Chicago. The two fine brick stores south of the Patty House belong to Richard Dix, who is a member of the Masonic Lodge and Chapter at Fond du Lac.

JULIUS DOZOTELL, engineer; residence corner of Brook and Ruggles street; he was born in Lewis Co., N. Y., July 20, 1839; in 1849 he went to Galena, Ill., and came to Fond du Lac in 1850. He married in Jefferson, Wis., in 1861, Jennie McInnis; their children are May, Josephine, Jennie L., Caddie V. and Francis A.; Mr. Dozotell has been engaged as an engineer for over eighteen years. In politics, he is a Republican.

ERASTUS W. DRURY, son of Needham and Clarissa Drury, nee Ladd; was born in Bangor, N.Y., in 1814; when he was about 2 years of age, his father changed his residence to Pittsford, Vt., from there, to Highgate, Vt., where he died in 1822. His son Erastus, being then only 8 years of age, was left to struggle upward alone as best he could; he acquired a taste for study from his father, who was a teacher and had excited his ambition; he afterward improved every opportunity, until he acquired a good academic education; he was decidedly a self-made man; he was early apprenticed to the printing business, and at the age of 18 years, became editor and publisher of the Vermont Argus, a Democratic paper which he conducted with remarkable ability and energy, working until midnight and rising at 3 A. M., thus allowing himself but three hours of sleep, and from three to five minutes for his meals; he continued the paper about two years, and then passing it over to his brother Hamilton Drury, he devoted himself to the study of law, was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Middlebury, Vt. In 1837, Mr. Drury was married to Eveline T. Horton, daughter of Daniel G. and Mary Horton, nee Drury, of Sudbury, Vt., went to Washington, D. C., on his wedding tour, and received the appointment of Postmaster at Middlebury, Vt., through the influence of Hon. Silas Wright, U. S. Senator, from New York, and a personal friend of Mr. Drury; in 1843, he came to Wisconsin Territory, and after entering a tract of land near Racine, he came to Fond du Lac County and entered 400 acres in Lamarine; he then formed a pleasant acquaintance with Dr. Mason C. Darling, became much interested in his plan for "laying out" the village of Fond du Lac, and concluded to make it his future home; he went back to Middlebury, Vt., intending to return soon, but on account of the protracted illness and subsequent death of his wife, he was delayed until 1846, when he returned to Fond du Lac and found the village being formed, with here and there a house on Main street, and a few buildings seemingly scattered over the prairie, but each stood on a street regularly laid out; Mr. Drury then formed a partnership with Mr. John A. Eastman, a son-in-law of Dr. M. C. Darling, for the practice of law. In 1847, Mr. Drury went back to Schenectady, N. Y., and was married to Deborah Van Patten, daughter of Simon P. and Hannah Van Patten, nee Toll, and returned soon after to Fond du Lac with his wife, and two children of his first wife, a daughter and son, named Mary Eveline, who died after a few years, and Hamilton Horton; of Mr. Drury's children after his second marriage, but one is living, a daughter named Harriet Deborah; after having a house built on Marr street for his residence, Mr. Drury had a block erected on Main street, opposite from where the Patty House now stands, for stores and offices, in which he had his law office for a number of years until the building was destroyed by fire; Mr. Drury made investments in Fond du Lac and the vicinity from time to time, and in different parts of the State; he continued in the practice of law until his failing health compelled him to retire from business. While Mr. Drury aimed to occupy a respectable position among his fellow-citizens, he was most anxious that his moral and religious influence in the church and community might be such as would meet the approval of his dear Savior to whose blessed service he consecrated himself at the early age of 11 years, when he became a member of the Congregational Church; when he came to Fond du Lac, he united with the Congregational Church, which was then in its infancy, and assisted in sustaining it for several years, when he felt it his duty to join with eleven others of the members in organizing a Presbyterian Church, in which he labored to the best of his ability until his strength failed and he was laid aside, but he has been sweetly sustained through many trying years of illness by the presence of the dear Master whom he sought to serve.

PETER DUFRANE, Jr., grocer, on West Division street; was born in Canada in 1853; when quite young, his parents moved to Fond du Lac, where he has since made his home; in 1870, he began clerking in a grocery store for C. E. Errard, with whom he remained until 1877, when he began the grocery business for himself. Mr. Dufrane is a member of St. Louis Catholic Church.

FRANK F. DUFFY, attorney; was born in Richmond, Va., Feb. 2, 1851, and was educated at St. Charles College, in Maryland, where he graduated in 1870; he came to Fond du Lac in 1872; studied law with Coleman & Spence; was admitted to the bar, and is now serving his second term as City Attorney of Fond du Lac; he is a member of the law firm of Conklin & Duffy, and has a good business.

HARVEY DURAND was born at Westfield, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., Nov. 2, 1827, where he resided until coming to Fond du Lac, in 1853; he read medicine five years out of curiosity; after coming to Fond du Lac, was engaged with the engineer corps three years, on the Chicago & North-Western and Milwaukee and La Crosse railroads, after which he engaged in farming and speculating in the town of Fond du Lac about four years, after which he removed to the city where he has since resided, amusing himself by speculating and dealing in real estate; he has been Assessor five years; was in the Provost Marshal's office of the Fourth District during the war, and has been Deputy U. S. Marshal since 1861. Mr. Durand also spent one year with James Coleman securing the right of way between Fond du Lac and Milwaukee, for the North-Western Union Railway; in 1876, he made a tour of Europe, landing at Glasgow, Scotland, in which country he visited Melrose Abbey, Abbotsford, Dumfries and the birthplace of Burns; traveled over England and France, spending some time in London and Paris; visited the amphitheater at Niems; explored Lyons, Versailles, Nancy and other French cities; passed down the shore of the Mediterranean to Rome, Naples and the Italian seaports; ascended Mt. Vesuvius, exploring its crater; spent some time in Venice, at the Italian lakes, in Switzerland, Baden-Baden, and several German and Alsatian cities; he returned in 1877, bringing, among other valuables, one of the finest guns to be found in England, with which he has since slaughtered great numbers of "yellow-bills," being fond of hunting and fishing, to which he devotes considerable attention. He was married at Rosendale, Wis., Sept. 23, 1860, to Jennie E., daughter of John Brown, who was born at Towanda, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.

HENRY W. DURAND was born at North East, Erie Co., Penn., Feb. 2, 1813; came to Racine, Wis., in 1855, to town of Fond du Lac the same year, and to Fond du Lac City in 1859; he attended school until the rebellion, and then enlisted in Co. I, 1st W. V. I., in April, 1861; after serving three months, he re-enlisted, in Co. A, 14th W. V. I., in which he served till the close of the war, being mustered out as First Lieutenant; he was in all the battles in which his regiment engaged, except the Red River expedition, being at home recruiting, in which he secured fifty-two men; the principal engagements in which he served were Shiloh, Pittsburg Landing, Corinth, Vicksburg, Spanish Fort, Mobile, Tupelo and Nashville; after leaving the army, he engaged for four years in the fruit and confectionery business, since which he has dealt in hay and grain. He was married, March 20, 1866, at Fond du Lac, to Mary M. Heth, who was born at Silver Creek, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., July 12, 1844; they have one child—Ella M., born March 10, 1867.

R. K. DYE, Jr., dealer in musical instruments and musical merchandise; born in Lomira, Dodge Co., Wis., Dec. 13, 1854; came to Byron, Fond du Lac Co., with his parents, in 1865; resided there until 1877, when he came to this city; engaged in present business ever since; he has taught instrumental music for the last four years. Oct. 28, 1877, he was married in Washington, Conn., to Sarah Mayhew.

REV. GEORGE B. EASTMAN was born at Randolph, Orange Co., Vt., Dec. 24, 1811; pursued his preparatory studies at Orange County Grammar School, entering when about 15 years of age, and continuing the same till in his 21st year, when he changed to and entered the freshman class at the University of Vermont in 1832, from whence he was transferred to the sophomore class of Dartmouth College, where he graduated with the class of 1836; for three months immediately following his graduation, he was teacher and theological student under Bishop Hopkins, of Episcopal Institute of Vermont, at Burlington; in the fall of 1836, he went from there as tutor in Bristol College, at Bristol, Penn., where he remained till the spring of 1837, when he was chosen Principal of the Classical School, at Detroit, Mich., which he held till the spring of 1838; in the spring of 1838, he was chosen Principal of the Kalamazoo branch of the University of Michigan, but resigned this in the fall of 1839 for the professorship of language in the Episcopal Institute, of Troy, New York; resigning the professorship in the spring of 1840, he became Rector of Grace Church, at Waterford, N. Y., having previously pursued his studies for holy orders, which he received Aug. 25, 1839, under Bishop McCoskry, of Michigan. He held the pastorate of Grace Church till the summer of 1845, when he was chosen Rector of Christ's Church, Quaker Farms, and St. Peter's Church, at Oxford, having the two charges at that time; from the summer of 1846 to the spring of 1847, he was general missionary of Rensselaer Co., N. Y., when he became Rector of Zion, Avon, N. Y.; in 1850, he was chosen Rector of St. Paul's, Brownville, N. Y., and after three and a half years' pastorate at Brownville, he was chosen Rector of St. Paul's Church at Fond du Lac, being its second Pastor, and which charge he had for more than twelve years; in autumn of 1866, he went from St. Paul's, Fond du Lac, to the pastorate of St. Paul's, East Saginaw, Mich., where he remained till the spring of 1870, when he became Rector of Trinity Church, at Monroe, Mich., which, on account of his health, he resigned in May, 1878, and again took up his residence at Fond du Lac, Wis. Dec. 31, 1838, he married Miss Margaret Brother, a native of Geneva, N. Y., where she was born May 1, 1819, the children are Wilber, Francis, Henry B.; Mary, now Mrs. Griffith, of Fond du Lac; Margaret, now Mrs. Col. Ferris, of Idaho; George E., Catharine M., William T., Elizabeth T., Charles W., and Eleanor H.

HIRAM W. EATON, born in Canada Nov. 28, 1833, son of Hiram Eaton; came to Wisconsin in 1845, locating near Whitewater, where he lived fifteen years; spent the next twelve years in Missouri and Illinois; returned to Monroe, Wis., and came to Fond du Lac in February, 1874, where he has since carried on the business of manufacturing soda water and spruce beer, which he has followed for twenty years, recently adding facilities for bottling lager beer. He was married at Whitewater, May 10 1857, to Jane, daughter of Wm. Page, who came to Wisconsin in May, 1845; she was born in the town of Marshall, Oneida Co., N. Y.; they have seven children—Roderick D., Maud A., Blanche, Harry, Charles F., Alma J. and Bessie, and two infants have died.

RUDOLPH EBERT, President of the German American Savings Bank; was born at Dermbach, Grand Duchy of Saxe Weimar, Eisenach, June 29, 1829, and came to America, to Fond du Lac County in the fall of 1848, first locating in the town of Calumet; he there engaged in farming, which he continued until the spring of 1850, when he moved to Fond du Lac; he at once secured a position as Clerk in the Register of Deeds' office, which he held until he was elected Register in November, 1852; he served 1853 and 1854—one term—after which he opened an office for the transaction of real-estate, loan and abstract business; in the spring of 1865, Mr. E. visited Europe, returning in the fall to renew his business, which was continued until 1866, when the private banking-house of Ebert & Perry was established; in 1873, the bank was organized under the State law as a savings bank, R. Ebert, President, and J. C. Perry, Cashier. Mr. Ebert has been six terms City Treasurer of Fond du Lac, and a member of the Board of Education. In November, 1856, he was married to Louisa Encking, a native of Holstein, Germany; they have had six children, but only one is living—Augustus, born July 22, 1861, and now in the order and sale department of C. J. L. Meyer's factory.

HIRAM EDGERTON, retired farmer; is a native of Rome, Oneida Co., N. Y.; born in September, 1802; he spent his boyhood with his father on a farm, and received a limited education in the district schools of that county; came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1846; settled on a farm of 160 acres in the town of Fond du Lac, which his brother Thomas had entered two years prior to their immigration; having built a small frame house 16x24 feet, though at that time, perhaps, the best in the neighborhood, in the spring of 1847, he returned to New York for his family, with which he reached Fond du Lac June 16 following; he did not get his house plastered, however, till December, and then it was by constantly thawing the mortar by the stoves, around which the family sat while the men plastered the walls. Thus beginning pioneer life in Fond du Lac Co., Mr. Edgerton has always been one of its reliable and successful farmers; though the toil and struggle were severe, his resolution to succeed was equal to the task, so step by step he has gradually acquired a comfortable home to enjoy in his old age. In 1825, he married Miss Lucinda Felton, daughter of Robin and Sylva Felton, of Rome, Oneida Co., N. Y., who died at her home in Fond du Lac, Wis., in 1864, leaving five children—Francis (now Mrs. John J. Tripp, of the town of Fond du Lac), Sarah (who married Oliver Pier, but her husband dying in three years after their marriage, she married Mr. De Witt Williams, of Oneida Co., N. Y.), Sylvia A. (now Mrs. David H. Vinton, of Empire), Ophelia (now Mrs. Samuel B. Stanchfield), Charles B. (who married Miss Matilda Hamilton, daughter of Henry Hamilton, of Fond du Lac, Jan. 1, 1866; they have two children—Katie and De Witt). Mr. Edgerton married Miss Jule Olmstead, of Fond du Lac, in the spring of 1866; she had three children—W. J. Olmstead, C. O. Olmstead, Dr. Austin F. Olmstead, of Green Bay.

JAMES EDMUND, foreman of engine-room and round-house of N.-W. R. R. Co., is a native of Yorkshire, England, born in 1829; spent most of his time till 20 years of age on a farm; came to America in 1849, and settled at Fond du Lac, where he engaged in farming for about two years; from 1851 to 1854, he was employed in the construction of the Rock River Valley & Union Railroad; in 1854, he was employed in the Union Iron Works, where he continued three years; was next employed as engineer in Butler & Hiner's saw-mill for three seasons; from 1861 to 1866, was employed as machinist in the shops of the N.-W. R. R., when he was appointed foreman in the car and locomotive shops of railroad at Fond du Lac, which position he now holds. He married Miss Alice Gainford, a native of Durham, England, in 1856; they had two children—William J. and an infant deceased. Members of the Presbyterian Church.

WILLARD EDSON was born at Swanton, Franklin Co., Vt., Feb. 5, 1813. Was married at Braintree, Vt., to Ann Pratt, in May, 1837; she died Dec. 24, 1852, leaving one son—Solon W.

SOLOM W. EDSON, was born at West Randolph, Orange Co., Vt., March 31, 1838; came to Wisconsin in October, 1854, where he has since resided; he was eight years clerk in a shoe store; since then has been engaged in manufacturing pumps, horse-rakes, and various articles in wood. Mr. E. has been a member of the Odd Fellows' Lodge since 1859. He was married at Greenbush, Wis., March 31, 1861, to Frances Josephine, daughter of Perry O. Weaver; she was born in Chitt-mango, N. Y., in 1833; they have two children living—Eugene Willard, born May 17, 1868, and Mabel Elizabeth, born Dec. 8, 1878, and have lost two—Mary Knowles, died at the age of 6 months, and Anna Pratt died at the age of about 5 years. Edson & Son are manufacturers of plain and ornamental building-work, brackets, moldings, newel-posts, stair-railing, balusters, etc.; ornamental carving, furniture, office-work, turning and scroll-sawing to order. Much of their work will be found in the private residences, public buildings, lodge-rooms, churches, etc. Solon W. Edson was a member of the Fond du Lac Fire Department from the time of its organization until the abandonment of the hand machines, a period of about twenty years, the last five years being an honorary member. He helped draw the first engine from the depot.

VITAL EDWIN, foreman of yard at McDonald's saw-mill, was born in France in 1838; came to Fond du Lac in 1863, and began work for Sexmith & Davis, in a saw-mill, where he continued for six years, after which, in 1869, he worked one year for the Fond du Lac Lumbering Co.; in 1870, he worked in a planing-mill for Mr. McDonald, whence he was transferred to the position of foreman of the lumber-yard by Mr. McDonald. Married Miss Malvina Deneault, of Russelltown, Canada, in 1859; they have seven children—Alfred, Lafayette, Thelisford, Alexander, Adaline, Meredine and Emma. Owns house and lot and five acres of land two miles from the city.

OSCAR C. EGGER, order and shipping clerk for C. J. L. Meyer's sash, door and blind factory, was born in Saxony in 1854; came to America with his parents in 1858, and settled at Watertown, Wis., where he lived and attended school most of the time till 1874; in 1874, he came to Fond du Lac, and was employed as clerk in Sarp & Whittelsey's dry-goods store for one year; in 1875, he was employed by Mr. Meyer as salesman in the sash, door and blind factory; in 1878, he was made order and shipping-clerk of the manufactory. Mr. E. has been a member of the I. O. O. F., since 1875—Knights of Pythias since 1878.

CHARLES A. ELDREDGE was born at Bridgeport, Vt.; when a child he moved with his parents to the State of New York and settled in St. Lawrence Co., near the village of Canton; at this time, St. Lawrence Co. was little better than a wilderness, and Mr. Eldredge endured the hardships incident to the settlement of a new country, enjoying only the meager educational advantages afforded by the district schools of the neighborhood; from about the time he was 18 years of age, he attended the academy at Canton, being able to secure this aid to his education only by the severest labor, supporting himself, and, at the same time, paying the wages of a man to take his place upon his father's farm; when 21, he had prepared himself for college, but, finding that he must still rely upon his own exertions alone, he unwillingly gave up the hope of attending college, entered the law office of John L. Russell, of Canton, and began his legal studies; here he remained for nearly six years, supporting himself by teaching school; some of the time, also, acting as Superintendent of Schools; in 1847, he was admitted to the bar; in 1848, having practiced for some time in the lower courts of New York, he came West, settled at Fond du Lac, and at once began the practice of his profession. In 1849, he married Maria A. Bishop, only daughter of Arch Bishop, then of Washington Co., N. Y., but afterward of the town of Eden, Fond du Lac Co.; his family consists of five children—William A., Arch B., May R., Charles and Adda. In 1854, Mr. Eldredge was elected State Senator, served two terms and refused a renomination; in 1862, he was elected a Representative in Congress over Edward S. Bragg, a Democrat, who accepted the Republican nomination; in 1864, 1866, 1868, 1870 and 1872, Mr. Eldredge was unanimously renominated, and re-elected by large, though varying, majorities; his opponents, during this time, were A. Scott Sloan, J. A. Watrous, Orrin Hatch, Judge Frisby, of West Bend, and Louis Baetz, formerly State Treasurer; in 1874, Mr. Eldredge was defeated for a renomination, the result being largely, if not wholly, due to his action on the "back-pay bill," generally called the "Salary Grab," which measure he supported and defended in Congress, and as to his error or wrong in the matter is still unconvinced. Mr. Eldredge's service in Congress was during the most heated and bitter time of the war, and, while he supported and favored, with all his energy, every measure having for its object only the suppression of the rebellion and the forcing back of the seceding States to their allegiance, he opposed with equal vigor every measure which he believed had for its object the subjugation of those States as conquered provinces, every measure tending to keep alive and prolong the hostile and bitter feelings resulting naturally from the war; he claimed then, and the same doctrine has been held by every court which has yet passed upon the question, that only by successful rebellion could those States get out of the Union, and that legislation by Congress which produced or admitted such a result was only less criminal than actual rebellion in that it saved the country from the horrors of war; by his speech on the subject, he forced from Thaddens Stevens the announcement that the rebel States were out of the Union; were conquered provinces and rightly to be treated as such. Mr. Eldredge served for many years upon the Judiciary Committee of the House, and, with Mr. Marshall, of Illinois, made the minority report against the impeachment of Andrew Johnson; he opposed the passage of the law known as the "Federal Election Laws," and, in his speech upon the bill, foretold, with a clearness almost prophetic, the result; his predictions have been more than fulfilled, and the time is rapidly coming when they will be blotted from our statute-books; when the question of the distribution of the Geneva award was before Congress, Mr. Eldredge differed with both the majority and minority of the Judiciary Committee, and, in opposing the bill proposed by the majority, held in a forcible and eloquent speech, that as the money awarded came from Great Britain, whose wrong was against the United States, and the losses from which the whole people of the United States suffered, and as it was an indemnity paid by a neutral nation for wrongs done to this nation or its citizens and for losses sustained by the nation or its citizens during the war, nothing would more completely and justly satisfy the demands of equity, than to cover the money into the people's Treasury for the people's use, and not to pay it over to insurance companies and corporations who were making money and dividing among themselves two dollars for one of their investments, while the mass of the people suffered all the horrors and calamities of the war. In 1870, Mr. Eldredge opposed the right of the Federal Government to determine the qualification of electors, and in an able speech spoke against the action of party and party spirit in regard to such a measure. In opposing a bill very materially changing our present naturalization laws, making it much more difficult for foreign immigrants to become citizens, Mr. Eldredge advocated "that the immigrant, coming here in good faith to make this country his country and to cast his lot in with us, should be granted all these privileges at once. Actual residence, with intention of remaining, renunciation of all former allegiances, and his oath of allegiance to the United States being all that should be required.

W. A. ELDREDGE, of the firm of Butterfield & Eldredge, merchant tailors; born in Fond du Lac June 25, 1850; son of Hon. C. A. Eldredge, who came here in 1849; Mr. Eldredge graduated from the Law Department of the Georgetown University at Washington, D. C., in June, 1875; he was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; he was engaged in practice at Milwaukee for a short time prior to engaging in his present business, in November, 1878. He married Miss Lillie Cook, daughter of Charles Cook, of Washington, D. C., in Washington, Nov. 11, 1873; she died in that city in March, 1875; his present wife was Anna, daughter of William Mason, of Fond du Lac; they were married Dec. 25, 1878; she was born near Windsor Castle, England.

C. L. ENCKING, real-estate agent, was born at Holstein, Germany, Jan. 17, 1837; came to Tavecheedah in 1852, where he lived two years; he then came to Fond du Lac and engaged as a dry-goods clerk with Sewell & Co., which firm he bought out eighteen months later, the firm becoming Bower & Encking; this firm continued two years, after which Mr. Encking followed agricultural pursuits until 1862, when he returned to the city and, in January of that year, began clerking in the Register's Office, which he followed until December, 1864, when he bought out R. Ebert's real estate, loan and notary business, and has continued in it ever since; he is also ocean steamship ticket agent, abstractor of lands, perfecter of titles, etc. He has been City Comptroller two terms, Alderman and in other local offices. He was married, at Fond du Lac, Jan. 6, 1868, to Ida Bechard, a native of Germany; they have two children—Emelie and Louise. Mr. Encking is a member of the Commandery, Chapter, Masonic Lodge, Concordia Benevolent Society and German-English Academy.

CALICE E. ERRARD, proprietor of grocery store; was born in Canada in 1824; he grew up and lived on a farm there until 1862, when he went to Vermont, from there to New Hampshire and thence to Michigan, spending six years in the three States, after which he returned to Canada and spent the winter of 1868-69; in the spring of 1869 he moved to Fond du Lac and began the grocery business, in which he has continued since that time. He married Miss Delphine Ladduke, of Fond du Lac, in 1874, and has two children—Malina and Joseph. Mr. Errard and his family are members of St. Louis Catholic Church.

SEBASTIAN EUDEMILLER, proprietor of marble works, was born in Germany in 1829; came to New York City with his parents in 1845; in 1846, he began his trade with the firm of Fisher & Bird, of New York City, and with whom he remained until 1861, when he came to Fond du Lac, and was in the employ of Sterns & Sherwood marble men, for one year; in 1863 he began the business for himself, and has since been proprietor of the same. He is one of the charter members of the German Odd Fellows' Lodge, prior to which he was a member of the American Lodge; was a member of the City Council from the Second Ward in 1875; was assistant engineer of the Fire Department for two years; organized the Hook and Ladder Company, of which he was Foreman until 1873; he was also a member of the Fire Department while in New York City. In 1852, he married Miss Barbara Schneider, of New York; they have seven children—Rebecca, Barbara, Katie, Paulina, Matilda, Louisa and Charles.

OWEN EVANS, Foreman of Fire Engine No. 3; was born in Trenton, Oneida Co., N. Y., Nov. 22, 1855; came with his parents, William and Catherine Evans, now residents of the city, to Fond du Lac in 1868; Mr. E. has been connected with the fire department three years, prior to which time he was connected with various mills and factories; he is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge.

ASAPH C. EVEREST, grain-dealer; was born in the town of Addison, Addison Co., Vt., in 1816; his parents, Zadock Everest and Olive Taylor, both died in Vermont; in 1836, he immigrated to Knox Co., Ill., and for one and a half years was engaged in merchandising, and then removed to Rock Island, Ill., whence, in 1840, he returned to Vermont; in 1841, he came again to Knox Co., Ill., and was in business one year in Knoxville and then returned a second time to Vermont; in 1816, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm in the town of Lamartine, where he followed farming till 1854; he was one of the organizers of the town of Lamartine and was the first Chairman of the Town Board; in 1854, he entered some land in Minnesota, but never settled on it; in the fall of 1854, he removed to Galesburg, Ill.; remained the winter, and, in the spring of 1855, came to the city of Fond du Lac, where he has since been dealing in grain and produce. In June, 1846, he married Miss Clara Drury, who died in the spring of 1857, leaving two children—Anna, now the wife of Daniel Abererombie and lives in the Province of Quebec, Canada, and Mary D., now the wife of William Coolbaugh and lives in Algona, Iowa. In 1857, he married Thankful M., daughter of Ralph and Sarah Abererombie, of Lower Canada; their children are Kate A. (now a student at the State University), Byron (deceased), Albert C., now at home. Mr. and Mrs. E. are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. E. has been a member of the City Council several terms.

JAMES EWEN, retired; is a native of New York City, where he was born in 1806 and resided until 1831, spending much of his time with his brothers, who were civil engineers of that city, and, at the same time, devoting his attention to steamboat building; in May, 1831, he went from New York to Canada to build steamboats for the navigation of the St. Lawrence River, which he continued till 1835, when he returned to the city of New York and made that his home till 1840; after an absence of five years from Canada, he was again sought by the company, in whose employ he had been, to again engage in building steamboats for them, which he consented to do, and remained with the company for nine years; in 1849, he came to Fond du Lac and began the lumber trade, which he continued one year, when he exchanged that business for a hotel, then known as the "Lewis House," of which he was proprietor for a little more than ten years; his wife growing weary of such a life, he rented the hotel and retired to private life; in two or three years after that, he disposed of the hotel building, and has since been mostly engaged in buying and selling real estate, cashing notes, loaning money, etc. He married Miss Isabella Milton, of Niagara, in September, 1835, by whom he has had seven children, three of whom are now deceased; those living are Mariah (now Mrs. Dudley, of Fond du Lac), Milton, John J., Isabella and Frank E.

J. L. D. EYCLESHIMER is a native of Pittstown, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., born June 1, 1824, and is the son of John P. and Mary (Cushman) Eycleshimer, also natives of New York, but of Holland descent; he spent his earlier life on a farm in his native county, and, in October, 1850, immigrated to Wisconsin; he first settled in the city of Janesville, Rock Co., where for seven years he was engaged in the livery business and at the same time carried on a farm; during the year 1858 and part of 1859, he was dealing in fast horses, and spent much of the time in the Southern States; returning to Janesville in October, 1859, he formed a copartnership with Louis P. Harvey, afterward Governor of Wisconsin, H. O. Clark and John S. Harvey, and began milling at Shopiere, Rock Co., Wis., which they, as a firm, continued till 1865; Nov. 21, 1859, he removed to the city of Fond du Lac for the purpose of supplying their mill with wheat from that market; after the dissolution of their milling firm in 1865, he continued dealing in grain and produce, more or less, till the fall of 1870; in November, 1862, he was elected Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co.; in the spring of 1864, he was appointed Chairman of the Board of Public Works in the city. In the fall of 1870, he was elected Register of Deeds of this county and filled the office with such credit to himself and satisfaction to his friends that he was re-elected to that office in 1872; his term of office expiring January 1, 1875, he again resumed the grain trade, which he has followed most of the time since; spent one year (1879) in the business in Dakota; he is now operating in grain at Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co. Sept. 1, 1847, he married Miss Harriet A., the youngest daughter of Elisha and Lydia Sherman, of Pittstown, Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; they have two sons—Charles S., now Deputy Register of Deeds of Fond du Lac County, and Fred L. D., who is now a student at stenography in this city. Mrs. Eycleshimer is a member of the Baptist Church.

JAMES H. FARNSWORTH, Secretary of the La Belle Wagon Works; is a native of St. Charles, Ill., where he was born in 1839; his parents soon afterward moved to Racine, Wis., where they lived till James was about 8 years old, when in 1848 they came to Fond du Lac; in 1868 he became a partner in the firm of Farnsworth, Knapp & Co., wholesale and retail hardware merchants; then the largest wholesale house in the State outside of Milwaukee; in 1873 he disposed of his interest in the hardware trade, and in 1874 became business manager of the La Belle Wagon Works, in which capacity he served till 1879 when it became a stock company and he was chosen Secretary for the company. In February, 1868, he married Miss Aurelia S. Ingram, niece of Dr. Darling, of Fond du Lac; they have three children—Dana A., born Nov. 29, 1871; Claire, born April 1, 1875; Annie, born Dec. 29, 1877. Mr. F. and wife are members of the Congregational Church. Mr. F. has been a Mason for a number of years. Mr. Farnsworth has been connected with the La Belle Wagon Works since its origin; he was one of the originators of the works which are now so well known throughout this country.

WILLIAM FARNSWORTH, (deceased); was born in Groton, Mass., Oct. 23, 1819; received his education at the Seminary of Groton by the time he reached his 15th year; in 1834, he with his parents moved to St. Charles, Ill.; he desired to learn the cooper's trade, and his father agreed to give him his time and all he could earn from that time on; before he reached his 21 year he had saved $300 from his earnings, but the company failed and caused him so much trouble in getting his hard-earned savings that he firmly resolved that in after life he would make his living with his brains rather than his hands, which resolution he faithfully kept; in 1840 he with his parents moved to Racine, Wis.; whence in 1848 he came to Fond du Lac, landing here with only $5 in his pocket to meet his expenses till he could find a way by which he could replenish his much-reduced purse; his first business after settling here was with his father in the manufacture of grain cradles, which he continued till 1854, when he established the wholesale and retail hardware store; in the same year he took Mr. Isaac Sherwood in as a partner when the firm was known and existed till 1868 as Farnsworth & Sherwood, hardware merchants; in 1868 James H. Farnsworth and William H. Knapp purchased Mr. Sherwood's interest, and the firm was then known as Farnsworth, Knapp & Co.; in 1868, under the name of Farnsworth, Knapp & Co., the La Belle Wagon Works were established, Mr. Farnsworth being the prime mover in the establishment, and the most active and energetic man connected with the works till 1873, when the business changed hands, though he continued an interest in the business till 1876; in June, 1877, he went to Colorado and was there interested in the sale of wagons and lumber till his health suddenly failed him and he was compelled to return to his home at Fond du Lac, shortly after which he died, Sept. 3, 1878. In 1852, he married Miss Mary Edgerton, sixth daughter of Dr. J. Edgerton, of Fond du Lac, whom he left a widow with three children—Cara, M. Antoinette and Emma. Mr. Farnsworth was one of those enterprising and public-spirited men to whom much credit is due for the establishment of some of the most beneficial industries of which Fond du Lac to-day is so justly proud.

HON. JAMES FITZGERALD, was born in County Cork, Ireland, April 13, 1817; came to Boston April 20, 1818; resided in the town of Randolph, Mass., six years; arrived at Fond du Lac July 12, 1854, and began the business of shoemaker, which he has followed for over fifty years. Mr. F. has taken an active part in politics; served as Alderman of the Fourth Ward, and was a member of the Assembly for the city of Fond du Lac in 1878. He was married in Boston, Aug. 5, 1849, to Johanna Berry, born in county Cork, Ireland. They have five children—William, James, John, Thomas, Edmund and Johanna.

FRANK A. FLOWER, journalist; was born at Cottage, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., May 11, 1854; began attending school at the age of 6, and, from that time until his education was finished, was never absent a whole day from his classes; at 13, he was sent to Madame Staats' private school for Latin, French and literary students; at 14, to the Gowanda Academy, and at 15 to the State Normal School at Fredonia, N. Y., where he took a classical course. His first contributions to the press appeared, under a fictitious name, simultaneously in the New York Tribune and Ellicottsville Union, in 1867. From that time he has written continuously for the leading newspapers and periodicals. At 18, he was engaged for one year as reporter and traveling correspondent for the Fredonia (N. Y.) Advertiser and Union. At 19, he was engaged as Principal of the school at Perrysburg, which position was retained until he came to Fond du Lac in November, 1874. At school, he was chosen editor of the Zetesian and the Sans Souci. He wrote several dramas, which were successfully put upon the stage, and numerous stories, while carrying three extra studies in school. At the graduating exercises at the State Normal School, after delivering his oration on "Hogs Amongst Kings, or Kings Amongst Hogs," he was requested to elaborate and deliver it as a lecture for the benefit of the Public Library of Sinclairville, which he did to a full house. This earned for him the title of "boy lecturer," and this oration, or "lecture," was delivered twenty times during that winter in Erie, Cattaraugus, and Chautauqua Cos. After arriving in Wisconsin, Mr. F. engaged to deliver the same lecture in Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, but, being taken severely ill, only filled two engagements—at Eureka and Winneconne, Wis. During the winter of 1874-75, he did his first newspaper work in Wisconsin upon the Ripon Commonwealth, which he left in the early spring of 1875, to read law with Coleman & Spence. May 1 of that year, he engaged as local editor of the Fond du Lac Saturday Reporter, continuing in that capacity until the paper changed hands, after which he was employed upon the Milwaukee News. Connection with that paper was severed in the fall, and Mr. F. took the "stump" with Congressman Charles G. Williams, Hon. E. C. McFetridge, Satterlee Clark and Quartus H. Barron against the re-election of William R. Taylor for Governor, his first speech being at Waupun. Immediately after the State election of 1876, he went to Iowa, where he taught school one term at Mitchell, returning to Fond du Lac March 1, 1877, to become associate editor of the Daily Commonwealth, which position he held, performing most of the necessary editorial labors, until Nov. 8, 1879, when he resigned on account of ill health, and to accept literary labors of a less exacting nature. Mr. Flower was married at Ripon, Dec. 22, 1875, to Miss Nettie E. Appleby, born in Green Lake Co., Wis., April 20, 1854. He never has used tobacco in any form, played a game for money, or used liquor as a beverage. In 1874, he was awarded the cash prize by the National Butter and Egg Association, which was paid by Daniel W. Dake of Beloit, Wis., for an illustrated pamphlet on the manufacture of butter and cheese.

CHARLES W. FLOWER, dealer in books and stationery; was born in Middlebury, Vt., Dec. 22, 1842; lived several years in Montreal, Canada; came to Fond du Lac in 1861, and engaged in the lumbering business; in 1871, he began his present business. Married at Chicago, Jan. 18, 1870, to Frances E. Arnett, of Chicago; they have one child—William Arnett Flower, born in April, 1874. Mr. Flower's only brother, Aaron Parker Flower, is a hardware merchant at Spring Valley, Minn.

EDWARD FLYNN was born in County Waterford, Ireland, in 1832; his parents, William and Honora (Coreoran) Flynn, were also natives of that county; he came to America in 1853, and stopped in Massachusetts for three years; in 1856, he came to this city, where he has since lived; he now owns a house and lot on corner of Rees street. He was married to Catherine, daughter of Joseph and Julia Lynch, nee Foly, also natives of County Waterford, Ireland; their children are John, Hanora, William, Ellen, Patrick, Mary, Julia, Edward, Joanna, Margaret. The family are members of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

E. F. FORD, paper dealer; was born at East Livermore, Me., March 14, 1840, where he resided until 1852, when he moved to Massachusetts, after which, Aug. 15, 1854, he came with his father to Fond du Lac; after 1858 he was the traveling representative of a confectionery establishment at Milwaukee for nine years, three years thereafter, represented a wholesale grocery house, and, in 1877, began dealing in paper, bags, twine, etc., at Fond du Lac. Mr. F. was married, Sept. 23, 1863, to Maggie Dewrose, who was born near Pittsburgh, Penn.; they have one child—Nellie E. Mr. Ford's father, Luther L. Ford, died at Fond du Lac in 1872.

FRANK N. FOX, dealer in hats, caps, ladies' fine furs, gents' furnishing goods, sachels, valises, etc.; born in Prussia Nov. 4, 1842; came to Milwaukee with his parents in June, 1854. In August, 1865, he enlisted in Co. C., 24th W. V. I.; served until June 28, 1865, when he was mustered out at Milwaukee; during his service, he was detailed to do provost-marshal duty at Gen. Sheridan's headquarters for about nine months. Came to Fond du Lac in August, 1865; commenced business here Aug. 25, 1865; learned the trade of hatter and furrier in Milwaukee; commenced work at his trade in 1858; Mr. Fox is a member of the Turner Society, I. O. O. F., and A. F. & A. M. Married, in Fond du Lac, to Miss Mary Altpass, Aug. 20, 1867; they have two children—Frank E. and Edwin F.

JOHN FRANCIS was born in Cornwall, England, July 17, 1834; came to Canada in 1854, to Portage City in 1857, where he resided one year, and to Fond du Lac, June 28, 1858, engaging for two and a half years in the livery business, since which time he has been in the hardware trade; he first began this business with S. E. LeBerts, and has been with him and his successor twenty years. Mr. F. was married in the town of Ashford, Fond du Lac Co., April 25, 1861, to Mrs. Sophronia Harris, born near Cornwall, Canada, Dec. 19, 1833; she is a daughter of Elizabeth Hitsman, who came to Fond du Lac Co. in 1845.

EDWIN C. FRENCH (deceased), was a native of Cornwall, county of Stormont, Can.; born May 5, 1817; he received a common-school education in his native county, and early in life began to earn his own living by clerking in a dry-goods store; later, he became interested in public works, as follows: Beauharnois, Laehine and St. Ann's Locks; the Northern Railroad, of New York; the Bytown & Prescott, now called the Ottawa and St. Lawrence, of Ontario; the Union Canal, of Pennsylvania, and several railroads of Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The last few years of his life were devoted to the manufacture of gas and building of railroad bridges; having thus spent most of his life in public enterprises, which shall be of lasting benefit to those who may come after him, he died at his home in Fond du Lac June 30, 1876; he was a man of an active and acquisitive disposition, and by his public spirit, enterprise and industry, he acquired a reasonable portion of this world's goods as the fruits of his honest toil. Nov. 21, 1848, he was married to Miss Margaret, daughter of Daniel and Esther McArthur, of Montreal, Can., by whom he had five daughters—Esther A. (the late Mrs. G. P. Knowles), Catherine (now Mrs. G. P. Knowles, of Fond du Lac), Josephine, Jennie and Jessie M. The family are members of the Episcopal Church.

CHARLES L. FREDERICK, attorney, was born in Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., in 1853; son of Charles W. and Louise D. Frederick, who were early settlers of the town; attended the Fond du Lac High School and Commercial College; was in the Register's office two years; studied law with Coleman & Spence, after which he entered the Michigan University, graduating in the law and literary departments in 1876, being then admitted to the bar of the Circuit and Supreme Courts of Michigan; he was admitted to the bar in Wisconsin the same year, since which time he has been in the practice of his profession.

JACOB FREY, of the firm of J. & C. Frey, grain-dealers and brewers; was born in Germany in 1824; came to Milwaukee in August, 1848, and in May, 1849, he, with his brother Charles, began the brewery business here in the summer of 1849, and have since continued the business; in 1866, they purchased an elevator, having capacity of 30,000 bushels, and have since been engaged in buying grain in connection with their brewery establishment. Mr. Jacob Frey married Miss Dora Newkirk, of Milwaukee, in 1850, she being a native of Germany also; they have three children—Amelia, Frank and Anna. Mr. Frey was a charter member of the first Odd Fellows' lodge organized at Fond du Lac.

CHARLES FREY, partner and brother of Jacob Frey; was born in Germany in 1826; came with his brother Jacob to Milwaukee in 1848, and to Fond du Lac in 1849; has always been a partner in business, so that the history of one's business is a history of the other's also; in 1859, he married Miss Mary Schafer, of Fond du Lac, by whom he has three children—Charles, Julia and Johanna. Messrs. J. & C. Frey are now the oldest German residents in the city of Fond du Lac, the few who came prior to them having died or moved away.

RUDOLPH FRITZKE, Principal of German Lutheran School; was born in Prussia Oct. 7, 1849; came to America in 1867 and settled at Milwaukee, Wis.; he was educated at Du Page Seminary, Addison, Ill., where he entered in 1871 and graduated in 1873, soon after which he began teaching in the Lutheran school at Fond du Lac, and after his first year's work, he was made Principal of the school, which position he has since held. In 1874, he married Miss Emma Luseberg, of Addison, whose acquaintance he formed while there at school; they have three children—Julia, Emma and Rosa.

JACOB C. FUHRMAN, superintendent of J. C. Huber & Co.'s drug-mill; was born in the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., April 11, 1851; son of Jacob and Kate Fuhrman, now residents of that town; Mr. F. was raised on a farm; served an apprenticeship at wagon-making in Calumet Village; worked at that trade three years; went to California in 1870; returned after six months to Missouri, where he worked one year at his trade; removed then to Woodville, Calumet Co., where he worked one year at his trade, and two years at farming; in 1874, he sold out and came to Fond du Lac, where he has since been engaged in the medicine-manufacturing business, associated with J. C. Huber; Mr. F. is one of the proprietors and Superintendent of the drug-mill. He was married at Fond du Lac April 15, 1879, to Clara L. Bischoff; she was born in the city of Fond du Lac Aug. 22, 1856. He is a Turner and a member of Economical Lodge, K. of H.

JOHN F. M. GAERTNER, overseer of the County Poor and Insane Asylum; was born in the province of Rhine in 1831; emigrated to America with his parents, John and Barbara Gaertner, reaching the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Aug. 12, 1847, where he followed farming for about fourteen years, whence, in 1861, he removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he was in the employ of J. & C. Frey, brewers, from 1862 till 1868, after which, for one year, he was interested in the grain trade with Mr. Louis Rupp, of that city; he next was in the saloon business till September, 1877; Jan. 1, 1879, he was installed overseer of the County Poor and Insane Asylum, by the County Board, which office he has efficiently filled. In January, 1855, he was married to Miss Helena, daughter of Mathias and Mary Schmidt, of the town of Lamartine; they have five children—Maggie, Mary, Bertha, Dina and Annie. Mr. Gaertner and family are members of the Catholic Church.

CHARLES NELSON GALLAND, carpenter and traveling salesman; was born in the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Dec. 25, 1857; a son of William and Mary Galland, who came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1841, and who are still living on Sec. 2, town of Fond du Lac; at the age of 14, Charles N. began learning the carpenter's trade, which he has ever since followed, working winters in the McDonald Manufacturing Co.'s shops, and traveling summers selling and setting up their machines.

CHARLES ALFRED GALLOWAY, lumber manufacturer; was born near Lowville, Lewis Co., N. Y., in April, 1835; came to Fond du Lac in 1863, where he very soon after enlisted in the 39th W. V. I.; on his return from the army, he was employed in the lumber business with his brother, Edwin H. Galloway, now deceased, with whom he continued a few years before entering the same business for himself, which he still follows on an extensive scale, being a member of the firm of Moore & Galloway. Mr. Galloway has served as Alderman, Mayor, member of the Board of Supervisors, and, March 4, 1880, was appointed by President Hayes United States Collector of Revenue for the Third Wisconsin District. He was married at Sergeant's Bluffs, Iowa, in November, 1870, to Emma A. Kennedy; they have one child, born in September, 1871.

JAMES GAYNOR, lumberman; was born in Canada in 1839, and lived there till 1855, when he went to Janesville and lived one year; in 1856, he came to Fond du Lac; began the lumber business, rafting from Oshkosh to Fond du Lac, which he continued till 1874, since which time, he has been operating in lumber over on the Chippewa and its tributaries, where he has 7,000 acres of pine land, shipping from three to five million feet annually down the Mississippi River. Mr. Gaynor has a one-acre lot on Sheboygan street which is covered by a growth of the natural forest trees, making one of the nicest lots for a dwelling in the city of Fond du Lac. He was a member of the City Council from the Second Ward in 1875. Married Miss Mary Doherty, of Fond du Lac, in 1872; they have three children—Teresa, Stella and Edward J., all of whom, with their parents, are members of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

AUGUST GEISLER, proprietor of meat market; was born in Germany in the year 1830; he followed farming there until 1855, then came to America and began the butcher trade in Milwaukee, whence he came to Fond du Lac in 1874. In 1855, he married Miss Ernestina Biele, of Germany, by whom he has three children—Edward, Paulina (deceased), Amelia. He and family are members of the Lutheran Church.

HENRY J. GERPHEIDE, attorney at law; he was born at Manitowoc, Wis., May 5, 1833; from 1871 to 1873, he was a student at the State Normal School at Oshkosh; he then entered upon the study of law with the firm of H. G. & W. J. Turner, of Manitowoc, and continued in their office until early in the year 1875; after spending a short time in Appleton, he came to Fond du Lac, locating here in March, 1875; May 7, of the same year, he was admitted to the bar, and has continued the practice of his profession in the city ever since. In October, 1878, he married Eleanor P. Perkins, daughter of Hon. George Perkins, present County Judge of Fond du Lac Co.; she was born at Brandon, in this county; they have one son—George H.

JOEL B. GERMOND, watchmaker; he was born at Pleasant Valley, near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1818; in 1839, he removed to Savannah, Ga., where he lived two years; lived one year in Philadelphia; twenty-three years in New York City; removed to Chicago in 1865, and to Fond du Lac in 1872. Mr. G. began the business of watchmaking in 1833, and has worked at it ever since. He was married in New York City, April 12, 1849, to Permelia Hunt, born in that city March 23, 1828; they have four children—Irving Hunt, Joel Armonx, Harry Johnson and Myra Jane.

GEORGE GIDDINGS, of the firm of De Groat & Giddings; is a native of Wisconsin, and was born in 1852; lived at Sheboygan till 14 years of age, when, with his parents, he came to Fond du Lac; was educated in the public schools of Sheboygan and Fond du Lac; followed farming till 1872; from 1872 to 1875, he worked in a flouring-mill with his father; in 1876, became a partner of Mr. De Groat, in the firm of De Groat & Giddings, manufacturers of engines, mill machinery, etc. In 1878, he married Miss Hattie Belle Hunter, daughter of George Hunter, of Fond du Lac; she is a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Giddings has been a K. of P. since 1878.

NATHAN C. GIFFIN; was born Oct. 18, 1833, at Hamilton, a small village seven miles south of the city of Ogdensburg, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.; he is the oldest son of Nathan Ford Giffin, and a lineal descendant of Simon Giffin, who, about the year 1761, was a prominent citizen of Halifax, Nova Scotia; his grandfather, David Giffin, was a native of Bennington, Vt., who, in 1800, at the age of 34 years, settled in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., on a farm in the town of Oswegatchie, six miles above Ogdensburg, where he resided for forty years; he was a captain during the war of 1812. Nathan Ford, his fourth son, in 1830, at the age of 25 years, located in Hamilton, where he still resides, having, by his untiring energy and strict business habits, secured a competency for his old age; he has one daughter, his firstborn, who resides in Nebraska, and his six living sons (one died at the age of 16 years) are all married and well settled in life; two are lawyers, one a physician, one a merchant, one a teacher and one is a farmer. Dr. L. W. Giffin, the youngest of the family, is a resident of this State and at present located at Menasha. Nathan C. Giffin, the subject of this sketch, was educated at the Gouverneur Wesleyan Seminary, N. Y., and Union College, of Schenectady, N. Y., at which latter institution he graduated in 1859, and at once went to New York City to finish his law studies; he was admitted to the bar in 1860; during the Thirty-Seventh Congress, he was Clerk of one of the United States Senate Committees. In 1862, he was married to Miss Jane C. Eddy, daughter of Zephaniah Eddy, a prominent farmer of the town of Philadelphia, N. Y.; in 1863, he came to Fond du Lac with his wife and infant daughter, (where he has since resided), and opened a law office; he has held several prominent positions here; has been a member of the Board of Education, Chairman of the First Ward, President of the Common Council, for five years, City Attorney, and for four and one-half years County Judge, and is at present one of the Directors of the Public Library, which is maintained by the city of Fond du Lac. He has four children, three daughters and one son. He, his wife and three daughters, are members of the M. E. Church, of which he is one of the Trustees. Judge Giffin is at present practicing law in the city of Fond du Lac, and O. T. Williams, a graduate of Lawrence University and a promising young lawyer, is his partner. Mrs. Giffin is well known throughout the county, and is noted for her benevolence and zeal in every good cause.

JOHN W. GILL, roadmaster of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railroad; was born in County Mayo, Ireland, June 24, 1838; came to America in 1849; resided in Syracuse, N. Y., until he came to Fond du Lac, in November, 1856; Mr. Gill has been in the employ of the Chicago & North-Western Railway Co. about twenty years, spending four years in their employ in Michigan. He was married at Neenah, Wis., to Catherine Mongan, June 6, 1864, a native of County Roscommon, Ireland; they have five children—Mary A., Ellen M., William J., Catherine and John C. Mr. Gill has served several terms as Alderman; been member of the County Board, and for many years President of the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society.

COL. N. S. GILSON, attorney at law; was born at Middlefield, Geauga Co., Ohio; he came to Wisconsin in 1860; in September, 1861, he enlisted at West Bend, in Co. D, 12th W. V. I.; he entered the service as a private, and was promoted to be Sergeant of his company, then as Sergeant Major of his regiment; during a portion of the year 1862, his regiment was doing duty in Missouri and Kansas; in June of that year, they joined the Army of the Tennessee at Columbus, Kentucky; a portion of the time he was with the Army of the Cumberland on detached duty; in August, 1863, he was promoted to the first lieutenantcy of Company H, 58th Regiment U. S. Colored Infantry; he participated in the siege of Vicksburg, siege of Jackson, battle of Perryville, and other engagements; he served as Judge Advocate of the District of Natchez, on the staff of Maj. Gen. Davidson, and in 1865-66 was Judge Advocate of the Department of Mississippi, on the staff of Maj. Gen. Osterhaus, and also on the staff of Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Wood; he was mustered out of the service as Lieutenant Colonel June 12, 1866, and was brevetted Colonel of U. S. Volunteers by the President. After leaving the army, Mr. Gilson spent a year at the Albany (N. Y.) Law School, graduating in 1867; in 1868, he began the practice of his profession in the city of Fond du Lac; since that time Col. Gilson has served one term as City Attorney of Fond du Lac, and one term as District Attorney of Fond du Lac County; he is now practicing law as a member of the firm of Gilson & Ware, at Fond du Lac.

LOUIS GOLDSTUCKER, Justice of the Peace; born in the kingdom of Hanover, in January, 1819; came to America in October, 1849; came to Fond du Lac in April, 1853; elected Justice of the Peace first in 1857.

THOMAS GOUGH, groceryman; was born in Ireland in 1833, where he lived on a farm till 1852, when with parents he moved to Quebec, where he remained for three and one-half years; he came to Fond du Lac in the year 1856 and began clerking in a hardware store for R. Deacon, with whom he remained for one year; he then clerked in different stores in the city of Fond du Lac till 1863, when he entered the store of E. H. Jones & Bro., for whom he clerked eight and one-half years; leaving them in 1871 he started a grocery store of his own, which business he has since continued. He married Miss Katie Kelly, of Elba Township, Dodge Co., Wis., in 1870, who died in June, 1872, leaving three children, whose names are as follows: Mary, John T. and Katie; Mary and John T. are now living, but Katie, the youngest, lived only about two weeks after the death of her mother. Mr. Gough married Miss Sarah Ford, of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1876, by whom he has one child—Annie. Mr. Gough and all his family are members of the Catholic Church.

JOHN E. GOULD, farmer; was born in Monmouthshire, Wales, in 1821. In April, 1846, he with his parents—John and Margaret Gould—set sail for America, and landed in New York June 8, following; they stopped for one year at Minersville, Penn., where he engaged in coal mining; thence to Clinton, Ohio; thence, in 1849, to Fond du Lac Co., and followed farming in the town of Eldorado till 1865. He then disposed of that farm and bought his present home of ninety-eight and one-half acres in Section 4, town of Fond du Lac, of which he sold nineteen and one-half acres, leaving him seventy-eight acres, valued at about $80 per acre. He married Miss Isabella Kendall of Eldorado, in 1861; they have had three children—George, Charles (deceased), Martha. His wife is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

WENDEL GRAUS, proprietor of saloon; was born in Prussia in 1821; immigrated to America in 1845; landing at New York, he went to Pennsylvania; thence to Ohio, and there was employed as a molder in a foundry for about six years; leaving Ohio in 1856, he spent most of that year in traveling through Illinois, Iowa, down the Mississippi to St. Louis and back to Cincinnati, Ohio; thence he emigrated to California, where he remained till 1861. He then returned to New York, and there set sail for Europe, where he visited Hamburg, Heidelberg, Baden, Ludwick, Paris and Southampton, and various other places of interest. He set sail from Southampton, and reached America again in 1863, and settled in Fond du Lac, where he soon began his present business. Married Miss Eva Halk, daughter of Michael Halk of Germany; they have four children as follows: Louisa, August (deceased), George (deceased), Joseph, now of New York. Mr. G. and family are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Mr. Graus was a member of Common Council from Fourth Ward, for one term—1869.

LEROY GRAVES is a native of Truxton, Cortland Co., N. Y., where he was born in 1830, and lived till 15 years of age. He moved to Waukesha, Wis., and was engaged in the manufacture of saleratus and pearl-ash for about two years; moved to Rochester, Wis., and was with his father in same business for about three years; after which, he founded Gravesville, Calumet Co., and from which county he was a member of the State Legislature in 1861. From Calumet Co., he moved to Kansas, and was engaged in the horse and mule trade till 1866, when he began the dry-goods and grocery business at Fond du Lac. In 1867, he was appointed Chairman of the Committee of Councilmen of Fifth Ward; in 1868, was elected Chairman of the Board of Public Works, and has twice since been elected Chairman of the Council from the Sixth Ward. In 1878, he built a store at Coleman Station on Wisconsin Central Railroad, which burned Jan. 6, 1879, since which time he has been engaged in looking after lands along the Weston & Lake Shore R. R. Married Miss Kate Baldwin of Lowell, Dodge Co., Wis., in 1848, who died in 1866. In 1868, he married Miss Marietta Cumming of Fond du Lac, by whom he has had three children—John L. and Edwin (now deceased), and Pearl H. Mr. Graves has been an active worker in the Greenback party, and was one of the Delegates to the State Convention at Madison in 1876.

EDWIN C. GRAY, physician and surgeon; was born at Norwich, Chenango Co., N. Y., in April, 1838; studied medicine with his brother at Eaton, Madison Co., in the same State, where he began practicing in 1862; it the fall of 1867, Dr. Gray came to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided, engaged in the practice of his profession and in manufacturing. He is a member of the Masonic, Knights of Pythias and Knights of Honor Lodges, and is the State Medical Examiner of the last-named order.

JAMES T. GREENE, abstractor and insurance agent; was born at Rochester, N. Y.; came to Fond du Lac in 1847, which has since been his home; he was engaged in farming until 1863; in 1866, he entered the Register's office as Deputy, where he remained until January, 1871, where he was appointed Enrolling Clerk of the State Senate; Mr. G. then spent one year in Oregon; returned to Fond du Lac, and in May, 1862, became a member of the firm of Lamb & Greene, which lasted until January, 1875; he was then Deputy Register one year, after which he engaged in his present business; recently the firm became Greene & Newton; Mr. Greene was City Assessor in 1878; City Comptroller since April, 1879; Superintendent of the Poor and City Purchasing Agent since February, 1880.

COL. THOMAS H. GREEN, architect; was born in East Greenwich, Kent Co., R. I., April 2, 1828; reared in the town of North New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y.; on his 17th birthday, started for Fond du Lac, which has since been his home, arriving here May 1, 1845; after serving three years with Isaac Brown as carpenter, began contracting and building, his first contract being to build Fry's first brewery; in 1855, opened an office as architect, having done much of that kind of work previous to that time. Col. G. enlisted April 17, 1861 for ninety days, in Co. I, 1st W. V. I.; commissioned First Lieutenant April 23, 1861; at end of the ninety days, he re-organized the company for three years, and was commissioned Captain of Co. K., Aug. 28, 1861; was with his regiment in all its principal engagements; was shot through the neck at Perryville, July 8, 1862; wounded in left foot and forehead at Chickamauga, September, 1863; promoted to Major July 1, 1864, having acted as Major and had virtual command of his regiment after first year's service as Captain; discharged Oct. 13, 1864; soon after entered Gen. George H. Thomas' army, as Field Hospital Suter, of the Army of the Cumberland, in which he served to the close of the war; he then speculated in oil during two years in Canada, returning afterward to Fond du Lac and his profession. Col. G. was married at Fond du Lac, April 17, 1851, to Sarah L., daughter of Selim Newton, who located in Fond du Lac Co. in 1844; they have three children—Charles T., born Feb. 2, 1853; Lucy A., now Mrs. C. W. Morris, born Jan. 26, 1855; Dwight E., born Dec. 24, 1860. The finest blocks, residences and public buildings in Fond du Lac, Waupun, Clinton, Escanaba and other cities, were from designs by Col. Green; in Fond du Lac, some of them are the High School, residences of M. D. Moore and W. B. Brand, No. 5 engine house, Bartlett's market, Murphy Block, La Belle wagon works, storehouse and many others. He served as Alderman of the First Ward in 1856.

DR. E. L. GRIFFIN, physician and surgeon; was born at Hillsboro, N. H., Sept. 21, 1821; he was educated at Kimball Union Academy, of Meriden, N. H., and Dartmouth College; graduated at Pittsfield, Mass., from the Berkshire Medical College, in 1849; he practiced medicine in New Hampshire until 1855, when he came to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided and practiced his profession. Dr. G. was one to take initiatory steps in forming the State Board of Health, of which he is President; he is also a member of the Rock River Medical Society, and a prominent member of the Congregational Church. He married Abby M. Mason, of Newburyport, Mass.; they have two daughters living and two dead; the living ones are Abbie W., now Mrs. J. W. Bass, of Red Wing, Minn., and Susan M., residing with her parents; the deceased were an infant and Helen T., who died Sept. 12, 1868, aged 15 years.

JOHN Q. GRIFFITH, lumberman; was born at Pike, N. Y., March 4, 1818; came to Fond du Lac in 1859 and followed the transportation business between Fond du Lac and Sheboygan until engaging in the manufacture of lumber in 1856; he operated the old Wilbur & Henry mill in 1859 and, in 1860, purchased the Forest Street Mill, which he ran until 1871, when he erected his present large mill on West Division street; in 1866, his son, Carver N., was admitted to partnership, and, in 1870, Wilbur A., another son, was also admitted, the firm being since that time, J. Q. Griffith and sons. Carver N. Griffith was born at Centerville, Allegany Co., N. Y., and Wilbur A., at Hume, in the same county. The maiden name of the first Mrs. J. Q. Griffith, who was born in Vermont, and died in January, 1853, leaving four children, was Lucy Goss; the present Mrs. G. was Jennie M. Riddell, of Massachusetts; the children are Carver N., Wilbur A., Albert G., Hattie S., now Mrs. J. C. Heitbahn, of Fond du Lac, and Jennie (a daughter by the second Mrs. Griffith), now Mrs. Dr. Haucker of Oshkosh.

JOHN GRISSMANN, farmer, Sec. 21; was born in Germany in 1803; he learned the stone and brick mason's trade, which he continued there till 1847, when he immigrated to America and settled in Sheboygan Co., Wis., where he followed farming till 1876; he then bought his present farm of eighty-six acres in Sec. 21. In 1847, he married Maggie Sittler, of Germany; they have six children—Herman, Annie, John, Jr., Charles, Augustus, Jennie.

S. S. GULEE, veterinary surgeon; residence on Twelfth street; office and stable on Third street; he was born in Batavia, N. Y., May 11, 1832; in his native city he learned the profession of veterinary surgeon, and practiced there until 1853, in which year he came to Wisconsin, and practiced in Brandon, Fond du Lac Co., until about 1865, when he commenced delivering a series of lectures on the various diseases that the horse was heir to, and traveled over several of the Northwestern States and Canada; in 1872, he located permanently in this city (Fond du Lac) and successfully followed the practice of his profession here since; he has several fine blooded stock horses that are unequalled in the State. Mr. Guile has been twice married; his first wife was Martha Jones; she died in Rochester, Wis.; his present wife was Meta Paine; has one child—Nellie, born in Fond du Lac Co., Wis. In politics, Mr. Guile is a Democrat. In his profession he has an extensive practice, and has attained a good reputation as a thoroughly qualified surgeon.

REV. FATHER HAAS, ex-Custos of St. Joseph's of the Capuchin Order; is a native of Switzerland; born Nov. 25, 1826; he received his preparatory education at Salura and Lucerne and pursued the higher studies of philosophy and physics, in the Lyceum at Lucerne, but completing that part of his education in the Seminary of Besoul, France; his theological studies were pursued in the Universities of Freiburg, Tübingen and München; he was ordained to the Holy Order by Bishop Solzmann, of Basel, of Salura, Dec. 28, 1851; from the time of his ordination till 1856, he was assistant priest of Sts. Peter and Paul's Church, Liesberg; in 1856, he, in company with Rev. Father Bonaventura Frey, came to America to establish the Capuchin Order; they located at Kenosha for six months, and, in the spring of 1857, returned to Europe to get the ecclesiastical approval of the establishment of the Order in America, and also to bring over seven brethren, with Antowine M. Gachet, the appointed

Clinton Matteson

ROSENDALE.

(DECEASED.)

Superior for the establishment of the Order in this country; Dec. 2 was the day set for the investment of himself, Father Bonaventura Frey and one layman with the habits of the Order, at Calvary, Fond du Lac Co. After the departure of Father Antowine M. Gachet, May 19, 1859, Father Haas was appointed Superior of the institution of the Order; with its growth, he became Guardian Commissary and Custos of the Province till October, 1879, having thus safely guided the Province through the first twenty years of its life; it now numbers three convents and five houses with Superiors.

LOUIS F. HAAS, of the firm of McLean & Haas; was born at Worms, on the Rhine River, Nov. 3, 1843; came, with his parents, in 1848, to Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; three years later, came to Milwaukee; two years later, removed to Humboldt; in 1857, removed to Kershena, Wis., where his father, Frederick Haas, was Government farmer among the Indians until March, 1861; he came then to Fond du Lac, and began learning the blacksmith's trade in April of that year, which he has since followed, having been in business for himself since 1867. Mr. Haas was married at Fond du Lac, Nov. 3, 1870, to Maggie Vaughan, born in New York State. He is a Turner, and has been Foreman and First Assistant Chief Fire Marshal in the Fire Department.

JOHN HABERKORN, merchant tailor; was born in Prussia Nov. 24, 1830, and came from there direct to Fond du Lac in 1855, where he began work at his trade for others; in 1866, he began business for himself, which he has since continued. He was married at Fond du Lac April 19, 1856, to Johanna Hundt, a native of Prussia; they have ten children, seven sons and three daughters—Charles, William, Hermina, Louis, Othelia, Gustav, Dora, Edward, Frank and Albert, all living at home with their parents. His father and mother, John and Maria Haberkorn, live on Sec. 18, town of Ashford, where they settled in 1854. Mrs. H.'s father and mother, Martin and Sophia Hundt, reside with Mr. Haberkorn.

ERNEST HAENTZE, gardener and florist, on Linden street; is a native of Germany; born in 1839, began his trade when 12 years of age, and followed it there for four years; in 1856, he set sail for America, and landed in New York Dec. 24, and January following came to his mother at Fond du Lac, who had preceded him three years; in May, he went to Milwaukee, where he was in the employ of Mr. Jacob Mahler, florist, till 1861; he then returned to Fond du Lac, and for one year was interested in the sale of nursery stock; in spring of 1862, he went to New York City, and worked as gardener on Staten Island during that year; returning to Fond du Lac in 1863, he purchased three and two-fifths acres of land, and began the business of gardener and florist, with a capital of $4,000. In New York City, in 1863, he married Miss Caroline Beck, daughter of John Beck, a shoemaker of Germany; they have had seven children—Charles, Edward, Robert, Lena, Ernest, Richard, and Otto (deceased).

REV. SABIN HALSEY, Pastor of the Division Street M. E. Church, is a native of Elmira, Steuben Co., N. Y., born in December, 1843; at the age of 12, he with his parents immigrated to Illinois, where he attended public school for a while; then entered the seminary at Evansville, but completed his theological studies at Evanston, Ill. in 1870; in the following year, he was ordained Deacon at Milwaukee, and two years after, at Whitewater, he was ordained Elder in the Methodist Episcopal Church; his first was that of Pleasant Prairie, in 1869; in 1870, he was assigned to the charge at Pensaukee, and in 1871, to Waterford, and for the two years following at Union Grove; he was next at Waukesha, 1875-76; thence to Kenosha for two years, whence, by the Conference, in 1879, he was assigned to his present charge. He was married to Miss Ella Ward, daughter of O. M. Ward, a farmer of Walker's Prairie, Kenosha Co., in 1871. They have one daughter, Ethel. Mr. H. has been a member of the I. O. O. F. for two years.

ALFRED K. HAMILTON, lumberman; was born at Lyme, Grafton Co., N. H.; spent two years at the West Point Military Academy; came to Fond du Lac in 1863; followed the drug business two years, and then began the manufacture of lumber, which he has since continued; in 1868, he became a member of the firm of I. K. & W. C. Hamilton & Co., which continued until 1871, when the firm became Hamilton & Finley—A. K. Hamilton and W. S. Finley; in May, 1879, Mr. F. retired from the firm, and the mill and lumber business established in 1856 by I. K. & W. C. Hamilton, are now carried on by A. K. Hamilton; Mr. H.'s mill, which is located at Luco, just outside of the city limits, has been in operation for twenty-four consecutive seasons.

JOHN HAMILTON was born in the year 1812, near Newton, Stewart, county of Tyrone, Ireland, his father being a weaver by occupation, to which trade his son was early apprenticed; his father was John Hamilton, his mother Jane Meekin; when 21 years of age, the subject of this sketch, with his next younger brother, believing that free and generous America offered greater inducements to young men having their fortunes to carve and create by personal effort, than could be found within the crowded limits of his native isle, bade good-by to the loved ones at home, and set sail on the 6th of May, 1833, in the ordinary emigrant vessels of that day, for Quebec, where, after a stormy trip of forty-two days, they landed with but very little money; of course, there was no opportunity to work at his trade, but with ready and willing hands he sought any employment which by the most diligent effort and closest economy promised a livelihood; his first permanent engagement was probably as a farm hand to one Deacon Swift, to whom he engaged for six months at $5 per month; more faithful service was never rendered, and the most complete satisfaction given, but the "Deacon" cheated his employe out of every cent, and during the remainder of John Hamilton's life, so strong was he—by his early experience—prejudiced against this common church title, that it is probable the most unfavorable impressions always followed any name having this prefix. The great object was to earn money to send back to his home to defray the expense of bringing other members of the family to America; at the close of his six months' engagement, he had just one shilling in money more than when he commenced, and earned in the following manner: After dark, at the close of a long, hard day's work, a person stopping at his employer's house said to young Hamilton, who was milking the cows, "Can you find me a boy who will carry a letter to Ferrisburg (nine miles distant), and bring me a reply before morning? I will give him a shilling." Hamilton replied that as soon as the chores were done he would find some one to carry it. On foot and alone he made the trip that night, and earned the offered price. This, as before indicated, was the only pay he received for his first half-year's labor in free America. But here was demonstrated the secret of John Hamilton's coming success. When he left the Deacon's employ, he had every cent of his shilling in his pocket. The earnings of the first few years were all sent back to his home, to aid in the support of his invalid father, and in bringing over his brothers and his sisters with their families. In this enterprise he was always joined by his brother Henry, who, like John, got his start by severe manual labor, rendered for a remarkably low price. The brothers commenced and remained through life in business partnership. After three years, when they had saved for themselves a few dollars cash in hand, they united their capital and embarked in business—the sale of nice dress goods, silks, laces, fine linens, shawls, etc., goods in demand by the wealthier class of community, and for which high prices and corresponding profits were readily received. They were both excellent judges of the merchandise they handled, sold nothing but the best quality, bought and sold for cash, gained and held the confidence of their patrons, and, in comparison with their earlier efforts, accumulated rapidly. When 31 years of age, John married Miss Mary A. Meekin, at Charlotte, Vt., while his brother Henry, on the same day, hour and place, married her sister Kate. The wedding, in fact, was appointed for Henry and his bride, the additional nuptials having the very briefest origin, love, courtship and marriage all within twenty-four hours, and which, nevertheless, proved from thenceforth through life a most pleasant and harmonious union. Though still in partnership, the brothers ceased merchandising, and in an unostentatious way retired from active business of any kind, further than the purchase of securities and loaning of their money. In 1851, they both, with their families, started westward, and finally located at Fond du Lac, continuing the same business, and rapidly won and held the highest respect and esteem of all with whom their business or social relations brought acquaintance. Financial prosperity rewarded their efforts, not fast, but steadily and surely. Mr. Hamilton raised a family of three children—Henry M., the oldest, now a banker at Mankato, Minn.; Kate, the only daughter, now the wife of C. K. Pier; George T., the youngest, in the U. S. Army, now stationed at Fort Totten, Dakota Territory. The present labor and land troubles in Ireland recall an incident characteristic of the man, and at the same time explain the troubles referred to. While riding with his daughter along a country road, past a farm he had recently purchased, having reached a point commanding a rich scene of fields, groves and streams, it reminded him of some familiar spot of his younger days in the old country, and he remarked upon the fact, but added, it was much nicer in Ireland with its groves all trimmed, its level roads and beautiful hedges. "Then, father, if it was so much nicer, why did you leave there?" "Ah! Katie, your father stood no chance of owning them there." As a husband, parent and neighbor, he ranked among the purest and best. Although not a member, he was for years a regular attendant at the Presbyterian Church. In national politics, he was always a Republican; in local elections, his vote and voice were for the man he deemed best fitted for the office named. His social nature was most remarkable, his cup of happiness being apparently full to overflow when at home surrounded by his family, or neighbors, and his discomfort simply indescribable when left alone. The influence of his kindness of speech and sterling integrity was felt and seen in a thousand different ways. Borrowers preferred to borrow from him, at even a higher rate of interest than their securities would readily command with banks or brokers. Lenders, those having a surplus of money, urged that he take and keep it for them. The confidence of the people in John Hamilton's word was simply unbounded and without limit. His death occurred April 16, 1871, the result of a long and painful sickness, apparently having its origin in a simple indisposition, occasioned by an ordinary cold. His widow resides with her daughter, surrounded by ample and merited comforts, not the least of which are six grandchildren, while two others are in Minnesota.

HENRY HAMILTON, capitalist; was born in Ireland, thence he came to America in 1834, settling first in Vermont; in 1849, he went to California and afterward to South America, returning and locating in Fond du Lac in 1853. Mr. Hamilton has, since he came to Fond du Lac, been extensively engaged in real-estate transactions and loaning money. He been a member of the County Board, but gives no attention to politics.

IRENUS K. HAMILTON, lumberman; was born Dec. 1, 1830, at Lyme, Grafton Co., N. H.; came to Fond du Lac in the spring of 1855, where he was one of the leading citizens and lumber manufacturers until May, 1877, when he removed to Chicago to attend to the large lumber interests of the Hamilton & Merryman Co., of which he is President, in that city. Mr. Hamilton has held various local offices in Fond du Lac, and was a member of the Legislature in 1869. He was married at Brooklyn, N. Y., to Mary Louise Waterbury, a native of New York City; they have four children—Amy (now the wife of R. J. Orby Hunter, a prominent attorney of Kansas City), Louise, Nathaniel W. and Irenus K.

WOODMAN C. HAMILTON, lumberman and capitalist; was born at Lyme, Grafton Co., N. H., Feb. 22, 1834; came to Fond du Lac in May, 1855, and at once engaged in the manufacture of lumber; in 1866, he began lumbering operations in Menomonee, Mich., which he has since continued on an extensive scale; in 1879, Mr. Hamilton transferred his lumbering interests to Chicago and Northern Michigan. In 1873, he erected the Post Office Block, and the Grand Central Block in 1874. Mr. Hamilton has held various offices—among them, President of the Board of Public Works; President of the Board of Education; Alderman, and is now a member of the Prudential Committee of Ripon College. He was married, Feb. 16, 1858, at Brooklyn, N. Y., to Mary Taylor Weed, who was born at Dauen, Conn., but who was reared in New York and Brooklyn; they have had six children—William Irenus, Charles Woodman, Stephen Dolson (died January, 1868, aged 4½ years), Herbert Weed, Edgar Lockwood and Arthur Little, all born in Fond du Lac. Mr. Hamilton gives his personal attention to every department of his immense mining, real-estate and lumbering operations.

E. R. HAMMOND, was born in Massachusetts May 11, 1853; his father, Edward S. Hammond, came to Fond du Lac twenty-three years ago. Mr. Hammond has been connected with the Fire Department for some time, being now stationed at Beta Engine House No. 5. He is a member of the Firemen's Mutual Aid Society.

CHARLES A. HANDT, insurance agent; was born in Saxony, Dec. 7, 1824, came to Milwaukee June 28, 1849, located in Milwaukee, and, one year later, came to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided. Mr. Handt was educated for an architect; in Fond du Lac he was four years in the cigar manufacturing business; then a house and sign painter; next a hotel proprietor; three years in the Register's office, and, for eighteen years, has followed the insurance business. He was married at Fond du Lac in March, 1853, to Wilhelmina Eneking, born in Schleswig Holstein, Germany; they have had four children—Charles R. (died May 28, 1879, aged 22 years and 6 months); the living are Lena, Minnie C. and Louis C. Mr. Handt was three years City Clerk; is a member of the Concordia Society and L. O. O. F. Lodge.

P. H. HANNIGAN, senior member of the firm of Knicks & Hannigan, grocers, on the corner of Forest and Brook Streets; was born in Cleveland, Ohio, March 15, 1852; came to Dodge Co., Wis., with his parents, when only 1 year and 6 months old; settled at Horicon, whence they moved to Burnett Junction in 1858; thence to Fond du Lac in 1865; he first began in the shingle manufactory for J. Q. Griffith & Sons, where he was foreman of the shingle department till 1879; he was next in the grocery house of Branchaud & Branchaud, where he remained till a short time before his establishment of the firm of Knicks & Hannigan in May, 1878. July 30, 1874, he married Miss Emma Odett, daughter of George Odett, grocer, of Fond du Lac; they have one daughter—Alice. They are members of St. Patrick's Church.

H. S. HANSON, confectioner, was born in Lincolnshire, England, Sept. 25, 1829; came with his parents at the age of 4 years to Hudson, Ohio; removed to Beaver Dam, Wis., in 1856, and came from there to Fond du Lac in 1879; Mr. Hanson has been in the mercantile business since he became 17 years of age, and has followed his present business seven years. He was married at Beaver Dam on March 16, 1864, to Henrietta A. Price, born in Manchester, England, July 8, 1845; they have two children—Edward H., born Feb. 13, 1865, and Albert R., born April 10, 1872—and have lost one, a son, who died in infancy. Mr. Hanson is a member of the orders of A. O. U. W. and L. O. O. F. Their infant son, who died was named Guy Stringer; he was born March 2, 1876, and died Sept. 3, 1876.

MARK R. HARRISON, artist, was born at Hovingham, Yorkshire, England, Sept. 7, 1819; whence he was brought by his parents, Robert and Ann Balmore Harrison, to the village of Hampton, Oneida Co., N. Y., when 3 years of age; at the age of 14 he went with the family to Hamilton, Canada; he studied for an artist under Bowerman, in Toronto, Kimble, in Rochester, and Inman, in New York City, about five years, and then went to Europe, spending eighteen months in the Royal Academy under the tuition of Charles Hilton; after traveling for some time, Mr. Harrison returned to Toronto, lived there two years, at Rochester one year, and then went to Hamilton, where he painted dioramas, which were burned; Sept. 18, 1849, he located at Oshkosh, and engaged in shipbuilding, which was abandoned when he came to Fond du Lac in 1852, where he has since resided; in 1843, Mr. Harrison painted the "Death of Abel," which attracted much attention in this country and Europe; "The Deluge," "Jephthah's Rash Vow," "The Angel Delivering Peter from Prison," "Indian Summer," and "Peter Listening to the Cock Crowing," are some of Mr. Harrison's paintings which have gone to England at high figures; other paintings have gone to Paris, Boston, New York, the British Museum, Chicago, Indianapolis and other cities; Mr. Harrison painted four pictures from Longfellow's "Hiawatha," and photographs of them by Chadbourne having been sent to the poet, he replied as follows, referring also to "Gathering for the War-path," a strong picture of an actual scene before the Custer massacre:

CAMBRIDGE, February 2, 1880.

MY DEAR SIR—I have had the pleasure of receiving your letter, and the photographs you have had the kindness to send me have arrived safely. I hasten to thank you for them, and say how much I like them.

I cannot enter into any detail of criticism, but, in my judgment, your strong point is the landscape, and the Indian faces, which are very characteristic.

I should like to know if Sitting Bull, Rain-in-the-Face, and Crazy Horse are portraits or only fancy heads. It is a striking picture in which they appear.

Please accept my thanks for this mark of your consideration, and the compliment you pay me in illustrating "Hiawatha," and believe me, with best wishes for your success,

Yours, very truly,

HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

Among Mr. Harrison's other noted works are "Cleopatra's Triumph," "Castle Cañon," "Sunset on the Coast of Labrador," "The Haunted Lake," "Morning in the Elk Mountains," "Cromwell's Charge at Marston Moor," and various paintings of Western scenery. Although past 60, Mr. Harrison still makes daily use of his brush.

L. J. HARVEY, retired; is a native of Suffolk, England; born in 1809, and is the son of Joseph and Lydia Harvey; he early learned the nursery trade, and in the spring of 1830, he, with a friend, set sail for America, landing in New York in June of that year; after traveling over much of the country, from New York to Albany and Buffalo, and not being pleased with it, they concluded to return to New York and apply for passage to England; they did so, and after reaching New York, and delivering some messages to friends there, they applied for passage, but were told that they would have to wait about a fortnight, as the ships on the line to London sailed only on alternate Wednesdays; during the time they were waiting for passage, Mr. Harvey found employment in a nursery at Brooklyn for three days, July 1, 2 and 3; the 4th being Sunday, his friend came to see him at his hotel, and was murdered without any provocation by an Irishman; Mr. Harvey was bound by the authorities to appear at the trial of the murderer, and was thus detained; on account of the feeling in New York at that time, and the desire to keep all rumors of murder from European countries, for fear of retarding immigration, Mr. Hardy was detained till the fall of 1831 before being able to return; Feb. 29, 1832, he landed again in New York, and, on March 2, he began work with Mr. Hogg, at what is now known as the Botanic Gardens, where he continued for two years; in 1834, he went to Newark, N. J., where, in one house for twenty-seven years, he conducted a nursery business, and, at the end of that time, left it to his oldest son, who continued in the same for nine years more; in 1853, he came to Fond du Lac Co., and bought several hundred acres of land in the towns of Eden and Fond du Lac; he left a man, whom he had brought with him, to take charge of and superintend his land; Mr. Harvey returned to Newark, where he spent most of his time until 1861, occasionally coming out to look after his land in this county; during the first year of the war, Mr. Harvey moved his family to his land in the town of Eden, Fond du Lac Co., where they resided until 1864, when they returned to Newark; in 1870, he moved to Richmond, Va., and started a nursery for his son, which he himself managed or looked after until 1876, when he again came to Fond du Lac, and lived in the city until October, 1878; he then purchased eight acres of land in Secs. 24, 15 and 17, known as the John McDonald Place. Jan. 1, 1832, he married Miss Sarah A., daughter of John and Elizabeth Jones, of Suffolk, England, who died at Fond du Lac in 1871, leaving three children—Jacob J. (now of Richmond, Va.), Anna V. (now Mrs. Adams, of Fond du Lac), and Henry (of Lincoln, Neb.). Nov. 22, 1876, he married Mrs. Ruth R. Brown, widow of Capt. Brown, and second daughter of Edward Pier, the second white settler of Fond du Lac, she being the first baby in Fond du Lac, having been born at Green Bay and brought here when only four weeks old; she had two children, a son and a daughter—Edward Pier Brown and Hattie A. Brown, the latter of whom is a member of the Episcopal Church.

CHARLES W. HASKELL, dealer in boots and shoes, 458 Main street; was born in Cornwall, Addison Co., Vt., where he received a commercial education and the advantage of a position in his father's store; when a youth, he went to Greenwich, Washington Co., N. Y., and became connected with the extensive boot and shoe manufactory of Haskell & Lamb, afterward the Greenwich Boot and Shoe Co., with which concern he remained eight years; then, after spending a year with Weed, Haskell & Co., of Troy, N. Y., he was in the employ of the North Bennington (Vt.) Boot and Shoe Co. for two years; his connection with the best factories enabled Mr. H. to become familiar with all the different grades of goods placed upon the market; after severing his connection with these factories, Mr. Haskell engaged in business for himself, representing seven of the leading factories of the East, whose goods he sold extensively to the merchants of the Northwest; in 1874, he came to Fond du Lac and engaged in the boot and shoe business, at 520 Main street, and, in 1876, removed to his present quarters, where he has increased facilities for his extensive business; having traveled for and represented the leading manufactories for a long period of years, Mr. H. has the advantage of purchasing goods direct from the factories, thus enabling him to sell all classes of goods at the lowest prices.

CHARLES HASS was born in Schoenrade, city of Friedberg, New Mark, Germany, March 27, 1855; came to Fond du Lac from Europe in 1874; worked for C. J. L. Meyer for some time; April 3, 1877, he opened a saloon, which he has since continued; Mr. Hass is a member of the Sons of Herman, Turner Society and Sharp Shooters. He was married at Fond du Lac, Jan. 6, 1878, to Miss Minnie Beatzer, born in Germany; they have had one child, which died in infancy.

HENRY HASTINGS, son of Thomas and Eunice Clark Hastings; was born in the town of Amherst, Mass., May 1, 1818; removed to Oshkosh, Wis., in 1855; came to Fond du Lac in April, 1861; ran the Empire Mills until December, 1861; carried on butchering business until 1866; sold agricultural implements and ran a nursery two years; in 1868, carried on butchering business in Negaunee, Mich., and from fall of 1869, engaged in mining operations in Utah; worked one year in the car-shops at Fond du Lac; in 1872, helped form the firm of Sabin, Bushnell & Hastings, owning the wheel and seeder shops; spent four years in these shops and on the road; then manufactured tinware one year; in December, 1877, began the coal business and shipping produce and meats to the Lake Superior country; he still is a Director of the Wheel and Seeder Co. Mr. H. was married first at Amherst, Mass., June 2, 1840, to Sarah C. Pomeroy; she was born at Hadley, Mass., July 9, 1819, and died at Amherst, Sept. 21, 1849, leaving three children, two of whom are living—Harriet E., now Mrs. Geo. A. Badger, of Minneapolis, and Thomas H., residing at Amherst; Emily P., died Dec. 5, 1845. He was married a second time, at Springfield, Mass., June 10, 1851, to Mrs. Esther A. Dickinson, born in Amherst, Jan. 17, 1817; they have three children—Cora B., now Mrs. C. E. Plumb, of Oshkosh; George F. and Charles L. Mr. Hastings has been an Alderman two terms.

COL. ORIN HATCH, retired farmer; is a native of Duaneburg, Schenectady Co., N. Y.; born May 15, 1807; enlisted in Light Infantry, 188th Regiment, 14th Brigade, 14th Division of the New York State Militia; was soon elected Sergeant in his company, and thence gradually promoted till he became Colonel of his regiment in 1828; in 1834, was elected Assessor of the town of Florida, N. Y., which office he held for two years; in 1843, was appointed Superintendent of the Poor in Montgomery Co., by the County Board; was appointed Superintendent of Sec. 3 of the Erie Canal, by the Canal Board, in 1846, serving in that capacity till 1848, when he resigned to take charge of a farm he had purchased in Scholastic Co.; leaving the farm in 1849, he moved to Sharon Springs, N. Y.; bought forty acres of land and laid it out in town lots; in 1851, he moved to Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y., and engaged in the hotel business for about two years, after which, in 1853, he returned to the homestead in Schenectady Co.; thence in 1854, to Wisconsin, and settled in Fond du Lac Co. on a farm, where he followed agricultural pursuits till 1871; was elected member of the County Board of Fond du Lac Co. for three terms, was appointed United States Assessor for the Fourth District of Wisconsin in 1861, by President Lincoln; removed by President Johnson and re-appointed by President Grant in 1872; was a member of City Council, from Eighth Ward, in 1876; was elected Mayor of city in 1878. In 1830, he married Miss Mariah Howe, daughter of Judge Renben Howe, of Montgomery Co., N. Y., who died in 1840, leaving one son, Reuben, who died at the age of 18. In 1841, he married Miss Emily A. Braman, daughter of Dr. Joseph Braman, of Duaneburg, Schenectady Co., N. Y., by whom he has had five children—Delos, farmer; Marvin, of 1st W. V. L., died 1863; Eugene, farmer, near Jefferson, Wis.; Louis (deceased at 14 years), Julia A. Col. H. owns 700 acres, mostly in Fond du Lac Co., aside from town lots, of which he has four lots and two houses. The Colonel is a prominent Greenbacker politically.

JONATHAN A. HAZARD was born at Binghamton, N. Y., and came to Fond du Lac in 1868, where he began the real-estate business; four years later he added the fire and life insurance business, which he continued until 1878; dealing in real estate he has continued up to the present time; Mr. Hazard lived in Broome Co., N. Y., except one year in Steuben Co., until he moved to Wisconsin in 1868. He married at Windsor, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1857, Miss Achsa A. Blatchley; they have two children—Vesta J. and Willie J. Mr. H. is a member of the Division Street M. E. Church; has been Alderman of the Fourth Ward, and a member of the City or Ward Committee ever since he arrived in Fond du Lac.

MOTHER MARY AGNES HAZATTE, the first elected Sister Superior of St. Agnes' Convent, of Fond du Lac; is a daughter of Christopher and Mary Hazatte, natives of Loraine, France, but emigrants to Buffalo, N. Y., in 1846, where Mother Mary Agnes was born, May 7, 1847; not long after her birth, her parents removed to Detroit, Michigan, where they both died; her mother in 1853 and her father in six years after; at 5 years of age, she entered the school of the Sisters of Notre Dame, and continued there until about 12 years old, after which for two years she attended the school of the Sisters of "Sacred Heart" at Detroit; in 1863, she went to Barton, Washington Co., Wis., where her church had established a small community, and there continued her studies till 1865, when she was elected Superior of the Convent; was re-elected in 1868, and in 1870, removed the community to Fond du Lac, and has since been twice re-elected. Such is a brief sketch of the life-history of one, who, though deprived of her parents early in life, has ever kept in view the reward of a life of charity and Christian virtues; though motherless, she (possessing those maternal qualities) has been a kind mother to all connected with the convent.

JOHN HEATH, of the firm of B. Wild & Co.; was born at Over Cheshire, England, June 13, 1847; came to America to Mineral Point, Wis., where he remained one month, and then to Fond du Lac, his present home, in 1867; during his entire residence here, he has been connected with B. Wild's steam bakery, and, since 1872, has been one of its proprietors. Mr. H. has served as Alderman two terms and is in the same office now; is also a member of the Royal Arcanum, Knights of Honor and Royal Templars of Temperance. He was married at Fond du Lac, June 8, 1869, to Sarah J., daughter of B. Wild; she was born in Crewe, England; they have one child living, William Henry, born in December, 1871, and have lost an infant son.

WILLIAM A. HEATHCOTE, architect and practical builder for C. J. L. Meyer; is a native of Rotherham, Yorkshire, England; born in May 17, 1829; he began his studies in his native country, but came to America in 1848, and completed them with Fields & Corraeger, of New York City, in 1850; in 1853, he immigrated to Fond du Lac, where he has since continued his trade; his first work in Fond du Lac was the drug store for O. S. Wright, after which he was interested in and architect for several large buildings in the city and surrounding country and neighboring towns; among them, St. Patrick's Catholic Church, of Fond du Lac, the Oshkosh Court House, High School building at Waupun; the First Grammar School, of Fond du Lac; High School building at Plymouth, Wis.; Gas Works building, of Fond du Lac; the machine-shops and foundry for Mr. Meyer's factory; among the residences, Mrs. E. H. Galloway's, McDonald's, Mr. Meyer's and others; in 1864, he raised a recruit force of eighty men, and was appointed to take charge and superintend the construction of transfer barracks at Nashville, Tenn., under Capt. Irvin. He was married to Miss Jane M. Wherrey, daughter of William Wherrey, farmer, of West Farmers, Westchester Co., N. Y., May 14, 1850; the children are Margaret J., now Mrs. Alson Cole, of Vesper, Wood Co., Wis.; Mary A., now Mrs. R. G. Turner, machinist of Fond du Lac; Addie V., Susie, Henry, Sarah, Guy, Grace (deceased). The family are members of the Episcopal Church.

THOMAS HENNING, carpenter, contractor and builder; was born in Devonshire, Eng., Jan. 6, 1832; came to Hamilton, Canada, in 1838, where he resided three years; removed to Austerer one year; then on a farm at Port Dover until 1852; in May of that year, removed to Aurora, Kane Co., Ill., where he lived four years; returned to Canada for three years; in October, 1859, removed to Dixon, Ill., whence, in October, 1866, he came to Fond du Lac. He was married at Aurora, Ill., April 9, 1855, to Sarah Melissa Smith, a native of West Stockbridge, Mass.; they have two children living—Charles W. and John N.—and lost an infant son at Dixon, Ill.

ROBERT FITZ HENRY, confectioner and fruit-dealer; born in New York April 20, 1853; when he was only 2 years of age he was brought to Fond du Lac by his parents at the age of 9, years he was employed in the shops of the Chicago & North-Western R. R. Co., where he remained until the fall of 1876; Jan. 20, 1878, Mr. Fitz Henry engaged in his present business. Dec. 26, 1876, he was married to Katie Corcoran; she was born in the city of Fond du Lac; they have had two children—one son died Aug. 29, 1878, aged 9 months; they have a son named Georgie, he was born July 6, 1879.

THOMAS S. HENRY was born at Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y., in 1812, and moved to Erie Co., in that State, in 1832, where he resided until he moved to Fond du Lac, in 1849; he, with others, built the first circular-saw mill in Fond du Lac; has been engaged in lumbering and milling under the firm name of T. S. Henry & Co. ever since he came to Wisconsin; in 1866, he began the manufacture of flour in the Galloway Mills, which he has continued ever since; he has also been engaged in the grocery and foundry business, the former being an adjunct of his lumbering operations. Mr. H. was married in Erie Co., N. Y., to Miss Lucinda Howard, a native of Paris, in that State; they have three children—C. S., George A. and Frank W. Mr. H. has been Alderman one term and City Treasurer one year.

CHARLES HETH, retired; was born at Ticonderoga, Essex Co., N. Y., removed when a youth to Silver Creek, Chautauqua Co., in that State, where he lived, engaging in the hotel business the last few years before coming to Fond du Lac Township, in 1857, and to Fond du Lac City, which has since been his home, in 1859. Mr. Heth's business in Fond du Lac was that of dealing in hay and grain, which he carried on extensively until 1879, when he retired. He was married, at Silver Creek, N. Y., in August, 1843, to Vilitia Buxton, a native of Brockville, Genesee Co., N. Y., who died Oct. 11, 1879, leaving two children—Mary M., now Mrs. Henry W. Durand, and Emma A.; they lost two children—Louie and Allie, aged 8 and 9 years respectively.

G. W. HINES, dealer in agricultural implements; born at Aurelius, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Sept. 9, 1838; when he was only about 9 years of age, his father, James Hines, came with his family to Waukesha Co., Wis. In August, 1862, the subject of this sketch enlisted in Co. E, 24th W. V. I.; served until June 22, 1865, having been in the service two years and ten months; he was in the battles of Perryville, Chickamauga, Murfreesboro, etc. In February, 1873, he came to Fond du Lac, and has been extensively engaged in selling farm machinery ever since.

JOSEPH W. HINER, attorney at law; was born at Fond du Lac Sept. 12, 1854, where he has since resided; he was educated at the State University, at Madison, from which he graduated in 1876; the next year he began reading law with Coleman & Spence, and was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1879. Mr. H. is now a member of the law firm of Spence & Hiner; a member of the Board of Education, and Secretary of the Public Library Association.

WILLIAM H. HINER, retired; was born in Bedford Co., Penn., Dec. 16, 1821, and is the son of William and Elizabeth Hiner; when about 7 years old, with his parents, he removed to Wayne Co., Ohio, where he received his earlier education in the common and select schools; in 1840, he began teaching in the common schools of Wayne Co., and, a year later, secured a position in the select schools of that county, where he continued the profession for one and one-half years; in 1845, he removed to Madison, Ohio, where, for the next five years, he was engaged in the drug business, and, at the same time, pursued the study of medicine; he came to Fond du Lac in 1850, and continued the drug trade for four years, after which he turned his attention to lumbering for five years; in 1863, he established the iron foundry in this city, and continued that business till 1878. He was elected County Treasurer by the County Board in 1854 to fill a vacancy; was twice Mayor of the city; was elected a member of the Wisconsin Senate in 1871, and re-elected in 1873 and 1875; was President pro tem. of the Senate during the session of 1877. In 1850, he was married to Sarah Fisher, who died in 1868, leaving one son—Joseph W., who is a graduate of the State University, and is now an attorney of this city. He was married to Mrs. Mary L. Jenney (nee Fish) in 1870; she having two daughters prior to her second marriage; they are Mary C. and Frances L. Mrs. Hiner is a member of the Episcopal Church.

REV. PHILIPP HOEITZEL, Pastor of the German Lutheran Church; was born in Germany in 1854; he received his preparatory education at the High School of Hanover, Germany, entering in 1869, and remaining till his graduation in 1871; he then entered the Theological College of Steeden, Germany, where he graduated with the class of 1872; after his graduation in 1872 he left his native country to continue his studies in American colleges, beginning with the Lutheran Concordia College of St. Louis, Mo., at which he graduated with the class of 1875; he then attended Concordia Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ill., from 1875 to his graduation there in 1876; in September, 1876, he was ordained to the holy ministry at Great Bend, Kan., and immediately began his ministerial work at that place in connection with six other charges in the State of Kansas. In 1877, he received a call from the church at Fond du Lac, to assist his brother, who was the regular Pastor, but whose health failing, was unable to attend to all the duties of his church. After the death of his brother, which occurred in the winter, he was chosen regular Pastor of the church in February, 1878. Nov. 17, 1878, he married Miss Elbise Wambsgaans, daughter of the Rev. Mr. Wambsgaans, of Sheboygan Co., Wis.

ETHEL HOMISTON, farmer, Secs. 30, 15 and 17; is a son of Jere and Mary Homiston, of Berkshire Co., Mass., born Aug. 26, 1812; his father being a blacksmith as well as a farmer, Ethiel learned the trade, and worked with his father till 21 years of age, when he formed a copartnership with another man, and continued for five years. In 1838, he bought in that county and followed farming there till 1843, when he disposed of his land, and immigrated to Wisconsin, settling in Milwaukee Co. for one year. He was making arrangements to visit this part of the country, when his father and brother unexpectedly came out from New York. He, with his father, started to look at the country round Oshkosh, with a view to locating, but stopping at a tavern for the night, they met Dr. Darling, by whom they were induced to locate near Fond du Lac. After selecting an eighty-acre tract for each, they returned for their families—he to Milwaukee Co., and his father to New York. Ethiel reached his new home as soon as arrangements were made for a habitation, but his father and family did not get in till early the following year, 1845, coming via Sheboygan, where he met them with ox teams, requiring five days and nights to make the trip there and return, during which time they slept without shelter each night. He built a log shanty, which served them for a house for the next five years; the prairie hens and gophers being so troublesome that he was compelled to build a barn to protect his grain from them; often were they compelled to grind their wheat in a coffee-mill, and crack their corn in a burr-oak mortar in order to have bread of any kind for their families. He married Miss Abnira, daughter of Uriah and Ellen Woodruff, of Spencer, Tioga Co., N. Y., Jan. 12, 1837; they have one son—Aurelius, who married Miss Amanda, daughter of Col. Isaac Tompkins, of Fond du Lac, who died Oct. 18, 1863, leaving two daughters—Emma and Lydia. May 16, 1866, he married Miss Clara B. Tompkins, sister of his first wife; they have two children—Gracie and J. Mansfield. They are members of the M. E. Church.

FRANK B. HOSKINS, born in Chenango Co., N. Y.; came to Fond du Lac in December, 1850, with his father, D. Everett Hoskins, now deceased; after leaving school, he entered the First National Bank, of Fond du Lac, after which, during 1869 and 1870, he was Secretary of the La Belle Wagon Works; during five years thereafter, he was in the hardware business with the late Chapin Hall, as a member of the firm of Hall & Hoskins. Mr. Hoskins was elected Register of Deeds of Fond du Lac Co., on the Democratic ticket, in November, 1878, taking the office in January, 1879; he has also been three years a member of the Board of Education of the city of Fond du Lac, and two years Alderman and Supervisor for the First Ward.

CHARLES HOTALING, engineer for the Mihills Manufacturing Co.; was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1838, and is the son of Peter and Harriet (Buckbee) Hotaling, natives of New York also; his father came to Fond du Lac in 1842, and that year, by the aid of the Brothertown Indians, built the first steamboat (Manchester) that ever navigated Lake Winnebago, of which he was proprietor and Captain for fifteen years; he died in 1857; in 1845, his wife and two sons (one having come out with his father) joined him in his Western home; Charles began as a cabin-boy on the boat when quite young, and continued navigation till 1865; he was Captain of the "Fountain City" for the last year, and had been her pilot for five years before; he then began engineering, which he has since followed; he now lives with his mother, on Scott street, and she is 70 years old.

ALEXANDER HOUSTON, farmer; is a native of Ayrshire, Scotland; born in 1822; his birthplace being within two miles of that of Robert Burns; his parents, Alexander and Jane Houston, gave him an education in the parish schools of that country, after which he devoted his attention to farming there till 1848, whence he set sail for America and landed in New York, in June of that year; he stopped on Long Island, then removed to Buffalo, N. Y., where he worked at masonry for about four years; thence, in 1852, he came to Fond du Lac, and there continued his trade for ten years; in 1862, he purchased a farm of 115 acres in Sec. 19, town of Fond du Lac, where he has since devoted his time and attention to farming. He was married to Miss Annie, daughter of Thomas Miller, a wheelwright, and Bettie Martin, of Dundee, Scotland, in 1848; they have seven children—Thomas, Alexander, Robert, Mary (now Mrs. J. Asher, of Michigan), John, David and James. Mr. H. and wife are members of the Congregational Church.

J. C. HUBER, druggist, is a native of Switzerland; came to New York in 1847, with his father (Jos. Huber), being then about 7 years of age; resided in New York until 1849, when he moved to Taycheedah and to Fond du Lac in 1855, remaining two years; in 1861, returned to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided; he was employed as a clerk until June, 1864, when he began business for himself; in 1868, Mr. H. began running a drug, medicine and herb mill, which has several times been enlarged, and is now doing a thriving business. Mr. Huber is prominently connected with the Congregational Church, the County Bible Society, and other orders and associations.

SAMUEL HOTALING, engineer, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 20, 1842; when 1 year old, was brought by his parents, Peter and Harriet Hotaling, to Mineral Point, Wis., in 1843; came to Fond du Lac, which has since been his home, in 1846, enlisted, Aug. 14, 1862, in Co. A, 21st W. V. I; was in all the battles engaged in by his regiment; mustered out in June, 1865; was employed before entering the army and ever since as engineer for various mills; during the last seven years he has been engineer in the Galloway Mills. He was married, in Fond du Lac, Oct. 28, 1866, to Amelia Gardner, born near Ogdensburg, N. Y.; they have one child—Charles, born Jan. 4 1868; and have lost two—Belle, aged 2½ years, and Samuel, aged 4 years and 3 months.

PROF. C. A. HUTCHINS, Principal of the High School and Superintendent of Schools in the city of Fond du Lac, was born at Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., January 1, 1828; was taken by his parents to Adrian, Mich., in 1831, where he grew to manhood; Prof. H. was educated at the Norwalk (Ohio) Academy, and pursued his studies, before and after, under his brother at the academy at home; in 1852, he emigrated to Sharon, Walworth Co., Wis., where he engaged in farming until 1858, after which, for three years, he taught Latin and Greek at Wayland University; for two years, he was in charge of the public schools at Jamesville; had charge of the schools at Ionia, Mich., four years, those at Baraboo, Wis., one year, and thereafter was two years County Superintendent of Schools, coming to Fond du Lac in 1873, where he has since been Principal of the High School and Superintendent of the City Schools; Prof. H. has been President of the Public Library since its organization, and has done a great deal of work for it; he is also Church Clerk of the First Baptist Church, of which he is a member. He was married at Fairfield, Ohio, Nov. 1, 1853, to Mary E., daughter of Rev. Samuel Wadsworth; they have three daughters—Julia A., Sarah and Hattie.

PROF. C. M. HUTCHINS, musician, was born at Lisbon, N. H., July 29, 1838; came to Fox Lake, Wis., in November, 1845, where he resided on a farm twenty years; removed to Waupun, where he lived until 1873, and thence came to Fond du Lac; Prof. H. has followed teaching instrumental music twelve years, in which time he has organized a great many bands, and taken part in a great number of concerts and musical conventions in various parts of the country. He was married at Fond du Lac, January 19, 1877, to Annette Morse, a native of Waupun, Wis.; they have one child; Prof. H. has three children by a former marriage. His father is dead, and his mother resides with him at Fond du Lac.

S. MARTIN INGALLS, farmer, Sec. 26; a native of Essex Co., N. Y.; born in 1834, and is the son of a farmer; was educated in the district schools of his native county; in 1855, he came West, and for a few months traveled through La Salle Co., Ill., in the interest of a publishing house, after which he came to Tremont, Dodge Co., Wis., where he was employed by Mr. F. D. Mihills in his saw-mill at that place; in 1856, he removed to Ripon, Fond du Lac Co., and for about seven years followed the carpenter and joiner's trade, whence, in 1863, he removed to his father-in-law, Mr. John Brown's farm, a short distance west of the city of Fond du Lac, where he followed farming for about three years; he bought his present place of eighty acres in Sec. 26, town of Fond du Lac, in 1866, then an unimproved farm. He was married to Miss Cynthia, daughter of John and Mercy Brown, of Fond du Lac, in February, 1861; they have four children—Elmer B., Edith M., Fred M. and Willard.

E. B. INGRAM, farmer; is a native of Hampshire Co., Mass., where he was born in 1823; he was there engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods till 1848, at which time he emigrated to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm at Fond du Lac, where he followed agricultural pursuits for about five years; in 1853, he returned to Worcester Co., Mass., and engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods for nearly six years; disposing of his interest in that business in 1869, he came again to Fond du Lac, where he has since engaged in farming. In 1856, he married Miss Nancy Shepard, daughter of Samuel Shepard, blacksmith, of Barre, Mass.; they have five children—Fred A., Emily E., Frank, Edith and Eugene. Mr. Ingram and family are liberal in their religious views.

ALEXANDER A. JARVIS, carpenter; was born in Canada, of French parents, Nov. 30, 1834; came to Jefferson Co., Wis., in 1843; went to Menasha in 1865, and came to Fond du Lac in the spring of 1867; Mr. Jarvis learned the carpenter's trade, which he has since followed, when 18 years of age. He was married at Watertown, Wis., Jan. 20, 1861, to Elizabeth Blair, born in Rochester, N. Y.; they have five children living—Walter, George, Angeline, Mary Elizabeth and an infant son, and have lost two infant children.

EDWARD JONES, ticket clerk of the North-Western Railway at Fond du Lac; is a native of that city; born in July, 1857; was educated in the public schools of Fond du Lac; in 1873, he became freight receiver and biller for the road, and July 25, 1877, was promoted to the position of ticket clerk; has been a Mason since 1878; is also a Knight of Pythias.

HIRAM E. JOHNSON, retired farmer; was born in Addison Co., Vt., Aug. 7, 1818; is the son of Jonathan Johnson and Susan Burwell, natives of New Jersey; his grandfather was an early emigrant to America, and took part in the struggle for American Independence; Hiram is the son of a farmer, hence was brought up at honest toil, and has since tried to follow out the Divine injunction, "Go till the soil." When about 14 years of age, he removed to Niagara Co., N. Y., where he lived till 1847; leaving then, the old Empire State, he sought a home in the wilds of Wisconsin; sailing from Buffalo, he came via Sheboygan to Milwaukee, thence on foot via Watertown to Fond du Lac, where he stopped over Sunday with Edward Pier; he soon entered 320 acres of land in Sec. 10, town of Empire, and 160 acres in Sec. 8, town of Forest; returning to Milwaukee, he exchanged his money for land office orders and came again to Fond du Lac, bringing with him from near Waupun, some ox teams with which to break his farm; having made some improvements and built a board shanty 12x12 feet. Oct. 14, 1848, he married Miss Lucinda, daughter of Gilderoy and Rhoda McArthur, natives of Birdport, Addison Co. Vt., she with her parents having come West on the same boat with Johnson, and, till the time of marriage, had followed teaching in Vermont and Chicago; they at once removed to the board shanty, which served them as a home till their new house, then under construction, was completed; when their oldest daughter, Hattie, was about a year old, Mrs. Johnson made a visit to Chicago, and on her return, her husband met her at Sheboygan, and on their way home, they met two huge bears, which, though harmless, gave Mrs. Johnson one of the worst frights she ever had; they lived there on the farm till about 1878, when he sold that and moved to the city of Fond du Lac, where he has since lived a more retired life; they have had eight children—Hattie A., now the wife of Rev. William Fox, a Presbyterian minister of Quincy, Mich.; Rhoda C. (deceased), Sadie A., now Mrs. Dr. George Dixon, of Sacramento, Cal.; Fred A., farmer, of Sacramento Co., Cal.; Eva L., Lillie E., Willie E., Louisa D. Members of the Presbyterian Church.

JOHN JUCKER, salesman in Meyer's lumber-yard on Western Avenue; was born in Germany in 1850; came to America with parents in 1855, and settled at Burlington, Wis., where he received his early education; in 1860, he began clerking in a dry-goods store at Burlington, where he remained till 1864. In May, 1864, he enlisted in Co. D, 39th W. V. I., and served till his term of service expired Sept. 25, 1864, at Milwaukee; returning to Burlington, Wis., he re-enlisted in Co. C, 48th W. V. I.; served till March, 1866, when he was mustered out at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; he then came to Fond du Lac, and was engaged in the lumber business with P. Sawyer & Son till 1876, when he became salesman for Mr. Meyer's in lumber-yard, where he has since been employed.

MARTIN F. KAEDING was born in Prussia Sept. 11, 1844; came from there to Fond du Lac in July, 1862, where he engaged in wagon-making—his present business; from 1875 to 1878, was in the furniture business; sold lime and stone at Fond du Lac and Eden two summers; entered the La Belle Wagon Works in the fall of 1879, where he now is, and in which he had worked five years from 1870. Mr. Kaeding has been Alderman three years, and a member of the County Board two years. He was married at Fond du Lac March 2, 1869, to Amelia Nast, born in Prussia; they have five children—Herman A., Louise W.; Emma L., Amelia E. and Martin W. Mr. K. is a member of the Lutheran Church and of the Concordia Benevolent Association.

C. F. KALK, of the firm of Kalk & Kent, druggists; born in Berlin, Germany; came to America in the spring of 1848; located at Sheboygan, Wis., where he remained until he came to Fond du Lac in September, 1849; commenced clerking in drug store the month of his arrival here; in 1857, he entered into partnership with his former employer, D. R. Curran; continued with him until 1866, when he sold out to Mr. Curran, and formed a copartnership with William F. Kent, under the present firm name, which has continued to the present time. This firm has done a wholesale and retail business since its existence, and is one of the leading drug houses of the State. Mr. Kalk has held various important positions—Supervisor and Alderman several terms, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, member of the Board of Education, etc. He is esteemed as one of the most enterprising and public-spirited citizens of the county.

WILLIAMS KARSTENS, foreman second floor in C. J. L. Meyer's sash, door and blind factory; was born in Holstein, Germany in 1833; learned the carpenter and cabinet-maker's trade in his native country; came to America in 1854, and settled in Michigan, where he worked in a saw-mill for carpenter's trade; in 1867, he moved to Davenport, Iowa, continued the carpenter's trade for three years, eight months, whence he went to Sheboygan, Wis., where, for two and a half years, he followed the from there he moved to Fond du Lac in 1869, and still continued the carpenter's trade till 1872, and since that time has been employed by Mr. Meyer in sash, door and blind factory. In 1861, he married Miss Annie Wilkins, daughter of Fred Wilkins, of Holstein, Germany; they have three children, as follows—Charles, Annie, and Willie. Mr. K. and wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

FATHER JOSEPH J. KEENAN, Priest of St. Joseph's Catholic Church; is a native of County Tyrone, Ireland, where he was born in 1845; his parents came to America, and located at Philadelphia, when he was only 18 months old. In 1860, he entered the Milwaukee Seminary, where he spent five years, preparatory to entering upon his theological studies, after which he attended the Chicago University for one and a half years, and began his theological studies, whence he went to Mt. St. Mary's, at Emmitsburg, Md., where he received his degrees with the Class of '69. After his graduation, he returned to Milwaukee, Wis., and continued his theological studies under Archbishop Henni, by whom he was ordained to the priesthood in 1870. His first charge was that of Portage City, Wis., with five other missions, which he served for one year, when he was recalled to the Teacher's Seminary of Milwaukee, as Professor of English Language and Mathematics for three years, when, at the request of Bishop Heiss, of La Crosse, Wis., he went to Eau Claire, Wis., for a few months only, being recalled by his own Bishop to the diocese of Milwaukee, and placed in charge of Oconomowoc for one year; at the expiration of the year, he was sent back as Procurator of the Seminary and Professor of Natural Science, where he spent nearly two years; in February, 1879, he received the appointment to St. Joseph's, at Fond du Lac, to succeed Rev. Father G. L. Willard, who took his place at the Seminary.

A. A. KELLY, attorney; born at Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 4, 1848; he is a son of Anthony Kelly, who came with his family to Oseola, Fond du Lac Co., in 1852; the subject of our sketch was brought up on a farm, and attended the public schools of Oseola until 1872, when he came to Fond du Lac and entered a commercial college; he commenced the study of law in April, 1873; after reading with H. F. Rose, Hauser & Colman, and Judge Flint, he was admitted to the bar in November, 1875, and has engaged in the practice of his profession ever since. His father is still a resident of Oseola.

CHARLES DAVIS KENDALL, farmer; is a son of Nathan N. Kendall and Betsey J. Stearns. Charles was born in Rockingham, Vt., Jan. 28, 1813; his mother dying while he was quite young, he went to live with a married sister in Roxbury, Washington Co., Vt., remaining with her for two years; he then returned to Rockingham and made his home with his grandfather for about two years, after which he went to Warren, Vt., and worked one summer at farm labor; he then returned to his sister, where he made his home until 19 years of age; from that time until he reached his 22d year, he followed farm labor for the farmers in that vicinity. He then married Miss Malissa, daughter of William and Eunice Blanchard, and in November, 1835, removed to Westfield, Orleans Co., Vt., where he farmed for one year; thence to Northfield, Washington Co., for one year; at the end of this time, he returned to Roxbury, and purchased a farm of 100 acres of timber, and in clearing up about twenty acres, he received a severe injury from a log rolling over him while attempting to load it on a sled; he remained on this farm for about two years, and then took charge of his wife's grandfather's farm for two years, after which he moved to Brookfield, Orange Co., and rented a farm for two years. After these various changes, he returned to Roxbury, from whence, in September, 1847, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he soon pre-empted 120 acres of land and built a log house, which, with nearly everything they had, was burned the following May; Edward Pier, then living at Fond du Lac, allowed them to move to his farm, where they lived for two years; in the fall of 1848, he built what was long known as the "Two-Mile House," of which he was proprietor for eight years, during which time he kept the county poor for one year; in 1856, he sold this hotel, and built a house on the military road, where he owned a farm of forty acres; remaining here only a short time, he removed to Brandon, Wis., where he kept hotel for one year; the purchaser of the Two-Mile House failing to make his payments, Mr. Kendall was compelled to take it back; he kept this as proprietor for some time, then bought his present place, built a house and removed thither in 1868, and has since made it his home; in 1873, while finishing a house for his daughter in Cresco, Howard Co., Iowa, the scaffold fell with him, and injured his ankle so as to cause his foot to be amputated, since which time he has led a more quiet and retired life. His wife bore him seven children at six births, as follows: Eunice A., born Aug. 23, 1836, now Mrs. Alexander Stimpson, of Cresco, Iowa—she has now five children, the last two being twins; Jehiel, born June 27, 1837, deceased; Alden P., who enlisted in Daniel's cavalry in October, 1862, and was wounded the morning after reaching Arkansas, three bullets having struck him—his mother nursed him through his sickness at Memphis, Tenn., after which he was discharged, and, returning home, regained his health, enlisted in the 20th W. V. I., was placed in charge of the hospital at New Orleans, and died there with small-pox; Albert, born Nov. 10, 1846; infant, not named, deceased; Arabella and Isabella, twins—Arabella, now Mrs. Miles, of Waupun, has five children, two of whom are twins; this family had three pair of twins—the mother and two daughters.

CHARLES M. KENDALL, commercial traveler; was born at Martinsburg, N. Y., Nov. 19, 1842; came with his parents, Curtis N. and Maria M. Briggs Kendall, in 1843, to where Twelfth street crosses the river in Fond du Lac, and engaged in farming during the day and shoemaking nights; C. M. Kendall attended District No. 2 School and Fond du Lac Academy; clerked in a bakery; worked in a hotel at Brandon; spent three months on a farm in Rock Co.; learned the printer's trade at Beaver Dam in 1861, and in August, 1862, enlisted in Co. K., 29th W. V. I.; he participated in the battles of Grand Gulf, Port Gibson, where he received three flesh-wounds, and Champion Hills, where he had his leg broken and received four other bullet wounds, disabling him from field duty; after a furlough of thirty days in 1863, he went on duty as Ward Master of the hospital at Memphis for two months, and then, till mustered out in May, 1865, was acting Steward and Commissary of the hospital. He returned to Fond du Lac and carried on the painting business until 1877, when he became a commercial traveler. He was married at Fond du Lac to Jennie A. Oliver, Nov. 13, 1867; she was born in Byron, Fond du Lac Co.

EDWARD KENT, son of Alban and Walburge Kent, was born at Erie, Penn., Feb. 26, 1843; came to Sheboygan, Wis., in 1844; to Fond du Lac at the age of 18, where he engaged one year with Drummond Brothers, dry-goods merchants; one year with C. J. Pettibone; eight years with H. Woodworth; in the boot and shoe trade one year, as a member of the firm of Barber & Kent; three years with C. W. Seaver; two years with Haskill, and with Laughlin & Carey, dry-goods merchant, since January, 1878. He was married at Fond du Lac July 24, 1866, to Martha Jane Clark, who was born in Fond du Lac, the daughter of Alexander H. and Hannah Simmons Clark; they have two children—Nellie Eloise, born Jan. 24, 1869, and Mallory Alban, born Sept. 22, 1872.

JOHN E. KENT, attorney; was born at Beloit, Wis., July 8, 1850, where he resided five or six years, since which time he has resided in Janesville, Chicago and Rockford, until coming to Fond du Lac in 1875. He was educated at Beloit College and Chicago University; read law with J. B. Cassoday, at Janesville, and also studied with lawyers in Chicago. In August, 1879, Mr. Kent became a member of the law firm of Colman, Carter & Kent. He was admitted to the Supreme Court of Illinois at Mount Vernon, in June, 1875.

WILLIAM F. KENT, of the firm of Kalk & Kent, druggists; was born at Erie, Penn.; came to Sheboygan in 1843, and to Fond du Lac in 1854, where he clerked two years in the grocery business; two years in a confectionery store, and, in 1859, began clerking for the drug firm of Curran & Kalk. In 1866, the firm of Kalk & Kent was formed, which has been continuously in the drug business ever since, doing a wholesale and retail trade.

JOHN B. KILLIPP, engineer; is a native of Burlington, Vt.; born in 1808; followed engineering on Lake Champlain till 1855, when he came to Fond du Lac and began engineering for Butler & Mitchell in a saw-mill, which he continued with them till 1857; then with Wilber, Herman & Lewis till 1859; from 1859 to 1862 for Bissell & Co.; then with Crane & Moore for one year; in 1863, he began running the engine in U. D. Mihills' sash, door and blind manufactory, and remained there till 1870; kept flour and feed store from 1870 to 1871, when he went to Winneconne, Winnebago Co., for eight years; in 1879, returned to Fond du Lac, and has since been running the engine in Mr. Meyer's saw-mill. He married Miss Lucy J. Gaud, of Middlebury, Vt., in 1830, who died Jan. 26, 1860, leaving seven children, as follows—George (now deceased), Lucretia (now Mrs. Robinson, of Fond du Lac), William, Lucia (now Mrs. Bonnell, of Fond du Lac), Richmond (deceased), Henry and Elmira. Mr. Killipp is a member of the I. O. O. F. Fraternity.

JOSEPH KING, ice-dealer, was born in Lower Canada, Sept. 8, 1815, whence he removed to Green Bay, Wis., in 1834; in 1837, he engaged in the mercantile business at the Belmont lead mines, which he left in July, 1838, and came to Sec. 22, town of Fond du Lac, having visited the spot and purchased the land in 1836. Mr. King made two trips to Fond du Lac in 1836, "took up" his land in June of that year, on which he lived ten years, and then moved into the city which has since been his home, though he carries on his farm and generally spends the summers upon it; he has carried on the ice business in Fond du Lac for twenty-three years, and has also been engaged in passenger staging and teaming. He was married at Fond du Lac, in June, 1839, to Mrs. Dianthe May, who died May 28, 1861, leaving three children—Harry May, who died in the army; Lucy Ann, now Mrs. A. W. Chapman, of Fond du Lac, and Frank, who was a member of Bragg's Rifles, and shot at the battle of Gettysburg. Mr. King was married a second time, Oct. 5, 1863, to Mrs. Alice Tull, daughter of Benjamin T. Midgeley, who had three children by her former husband—Frank G., Georgiana and Mary—who are now living.

JUDGE A. KINYON, President of the Fond du Lac, Amboy & Peoria Railway Co., is a native of Cayuga Co., N. Y., where he was born in 1818; in 1837, he removed to La Salle Co., Ill., where he was engaged in contracting and building for about thirteen years; in 1850, he removed to California, where he continued the builder's profession for two years in the cities of Sacramento and San Francisco; he was next employed for one year in filling a contract for work on what was then known as the South Fork Canal; in 1853, he returned to Amboy, Lee Co., Ill., where he was engaged in contracting for the Illinois Central Railroad Co., during 1864 and 1865; for the next three years he practiced law in that county, and, in 1868, he was elected a member of the State Legislature from the county, and filled the office with such credit to himself and satisfaction to his friends that he was returned a third time to that body; failing health while in the Legislature compelled him to quit the practice of law, and seek some outdoor employment; in 1872, he built the Chicago & Rock River Railroad from Shabbona, De Kalb Co., to Sterling, Whiteside Co., Ill.; in 1874, he organized the Fond du Lac, Amboy & Peoria Railway Co., of which he has since been President. Such is a brief sketch of the career of one who has through life been actively engaged in public enterprises of various kinds.

ISAAC KLOCK (deceased), was the son of John and Nancy Klock, of Montgomery Co., N. Y.; born in 1812; he was educated in the district schools of his native county, and after he grew to manhood chose his father's avocation—that of an honest farmer; in 1839, he removed to St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., whence, in 1855, he immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of 100 acres, three miles southeast of the city of Fond du Lac, where he followed farming till about 1873, when he traded his farm for the old Soper grist-mill and 8 acres of land, this being the first mill built in the neighborhood and the second one in the county; he continued as proprietor of this mill till his death, June 9, 1876. He married Miss Laranay N., daughter of John and Nancy Nellis, of Montgomery Co., N. Y.; they have nineteen children, as follows: John L. Ira (deceased), Delos, Nancy (now Mrs. C. Raymond, of Appleton, Iowa), Robert (deceased), Christian, August (deceased), George, Joseph, Elizabeth (deceased), Lucinda (Mrs. John E. Parks), Zilpha (late Mrs. George T. Hamilton, deceased), Amy (Mrs. C. E. Baldwin), Arvilla (Mrs. William E. Hughes, of Chicago, Ill.) and Purley P., of Fond du Lac, who is now proprietor of the mill in his father's stead, and who was married to Miss Allie S., daughter of William E. and Elizabeth Davis, of Fond du Lac, May 13, 1879; there were four other children, who died in infancy. Mr. Klock was a member of the Masonic Fraternity for a number of years before his death, and he and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church.

G. A. KNAPP, Treasurer of the Fond du Lac Savings Bank, came to Fond du Lac in 1868, and engaged in the hardware business with Farnsworth & Knapp, first as book keeper; he continued in the hardware business until 1874, and has been Treasurer of the Savings Bank since Jan. 1, 1878.

W. A. KNAPP, Secretary and Treasurer of the Fond du Lac Harrow Company; he was born in Westmoreland, Oneida Co., N. Y., April 30, 1824; removed to Green Bay, Wis., in 1837; resided there eleven years, then went to Oshkosh, where he remained until he came to Fond du Lac in 1866; while at Green Bay he was in the hardware business with his brother; after 1841, he was a partner with him; at Oshkosh he was engaged in general merchandising for about three years; for a number of years he carried on steamboat business, and for a period of eight years prior to coming to Fond du Lac, he was engaged in farming; after coming here he was extensively engaged in the hardware trade until 1874; afterward, for two years, in insurance and real-estate business; since then he has given his entire attention to his manufacturing interests. March 26, 1845, he married Lucinda A. Gilbert, at Green Bay; she was born in Cortland Co., N. Y.; they have had six children; the living are Clarence A., Gaines A., Frank A. and Minnie A.; they have lost two daughters, Anah A., born Oct. 29, 1850, died in Fond du Lac, Nov. 8, 1871—at the time of her death she was the wife of C. W. Powers; Katie A., was born Jan. 16, 1857, and died Jan. 8, 1858. Mr. and Mrs. Knapp are members of the Congregational Church.

G. A. KRETLOW, Chief of Police, was born in Prussia Aug. 23, 1843, and came to Milwaukee in 1856, where he resided until coming to Fond du Lac in 1866; from 1866 to 1873, Mr. K. was engaged in the manufacture of tobacco; in 1874, was chosen Chief of Police, and has occupied that position continuously since. He was married to Pauline Quandt May 22, 1866; they have five children—Martha, Carl E., Albert Q., Paul G. and Alma. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., Turner Society, and German-English Academy.

F. KRUMME, druggist and apothecary; was born at Calbe, on the river Saale, Prussia, Oct. 7, 1831; came to Freeport, Ill., Dec. 25, 1854, where he resided until coming to Fond du Lac in 1866; in 1861, recruited Co. C., and was commissioned Captain of it in December, 1861; promoted to Brevet Major July 18, 1866; he resigned, on account of disability caused by typhoid fever, in April, 1862, after participating in the battles of Fort Donelson and Pittsburg Landing; Mr. K. has followed the drug business since 1846. He married at Freeport, Ill., in 1858, Sophie Huellhorst, who died Dec. 4, 1863, leaving one child, Sophie, born Nov. 26, 1863. June 9, 1864, he was married to Theresa Wolff, who was born at Schoeneburg, Alsace, Aug. 14, 1844; they have two children—Simon A., born April 10, 1865, at Freeport, and Frederick Otto, born Sept. 7, 1876, at Fond du Lac. Mr. K. is an Odd Fellow and Mason, Druid and member of the German-English Academy.

GUSTAV KUENNE, watchmaker, jeweler, engraver and practical optician; born in Prussia in 1825; came to America in 1849; first located in Milwaukee, where he resided two years; he then spent about nine months traveling in different States in this country, afterward was a resident of Chicago for six years; came to Fond du Lac May 6, 1856; engaged in present business ever since he came here. He was married at Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 17, 1858, to Louisa Preusser; she was born in Prussia; they have one child, Lena; Mr. Kuenne learned the manufacturing jeweler's trade in Europe, and the trade of watchmaker in Milwaukee and Chicago.

H. P. KUICKS, of the firm of Kuicks & Hannigan, grocers, was born in the city of Fond du Lac in 1851; was educated in the public schools; began telegraphing with the N.-W. R. R. in 1867; from 1869 to 1872, he worked as machinist for Heiner, when he changed to the machine-shops of the N.-W. R. R.; in May, 1878, he became a partner in the present firm. He married Miss Bettie Lannstein, daughter of P. Lannstein, of Fond du Lac, Oct. 4, 1878. They are members of the Lutheran Church.

JACOB KUNZE, manufacturer, corner of Division and Sophia streets; is a native of Prussia; was born Aug. 14, 1828; in his native country he acquired a liberal education, and, in about 1847, emigrated to America and engaged to learn the carriage and wagon making trade at West Menden, Monroe Co., N. Y. In 1856, he married, in Rochester, N. Y., Catharine Fee; immediately after they were married, they came to Fond du Lac; they have had four children, only one of whom is living—John J. Mr. Kunze established his present business about twelve years ago, and manufactures carriages, buggies, spring and lumber wagons; he is a skilled mechanic, and employs the best workmen, therefore turns out a superior class of work, which is widely known for durability and neatness; he possesses every facility for attending to general repairing, and for supplying all who require anything in his line.

HOWARD MALCOM KUTCHIN, journalist; was born in Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 4, 1842, where his father, the late Rev. T. T. Kutchin, was a clergyman; the family came to Wisconsin in 1853, and soon after arriving in the State, settled at Fond du Lac; Mr. Kutchin never was given a college instruction, but acquired a good education in the common schools which he attended; at the age of 19, he entered a printing office at Ripon, with a view to becoming a journalist, and from that time until 1866, was connected in an editorial capacity with newspapers in Peoria, Ill., St. Louis, Mo., Cairo, Ills., Memphis, Tenn., and St. Joseph, Mo.; from the latter city he removed to Fort Atkinson, Wis., where he purchased the Herald, which he conducted until 1871; in that year, Mr. Kutchin went to California and aided in founding a daily paper at San Diego, intending to make that State his home; but concluding not to do so, returned to Wisconsin in September, 1871, and purchased an interest in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth (daily and weekly), with which he has since been connected as part or sole editor and proprietor. Mr. Kutchin has taken an active part in politics, as a Republican, both local and general; served as Chairman of the Republican County Committee in 1878 and 1879; was appointed State's Prison Director in 1878, for a term of six years; was a prominent candidate for Postmaster of Fond du Lac, in 1877, but was defeated in spite of exceptionally strong petitions and recommendations, and was appointed by President Hayes, in 1879, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third Wisconsin District, which office he brought from Oshkosh to Fond du Lac. Mr. Kutchin is identified with the principal secret societies, and for two years was Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Wisconsin. To Mr. Kutchin and his paper is given the credit, and justly, of securing the election of Matthew H. Carpenter as U. S. Senator from Wisconsin, for the term beginning March 4, 1879. He was married to Elsie, daughter of John Irving, one of the earliest settlers of Ripon; they have two children—a daughter and a son.

P. J. LADD, baggage-master and collector for North-Western Railway at Fond du Lac; was born in Ontario, Canada West, Dec. 11, 1846; emigrated to Wisconsin in 1855, and settled at Neenah, Winnebago Co., where he received a common-school education; in the spring of 1865, he began braking on the Illinois Central Railroad, whence, in the fall of the same year, he changed to the North-Western road, where he continued as brakeman for two years, when he was appointed baggage-master on the road, in which position he remained till the fall of 1868, when he was assigned to the position of baggage-master and collector for the road at Fond du Lac. Dec. 11, 1867, he married Miss Jane A. Stewart, daughter of William J. Stewart, of Fond du Lac; they have three children—Willie, Eddie and Carrie. Mr. and Mrs. Ladd are members of the Congregational Church. Mr. Ladd has been a Mason since 1868.

PROF. JAMES S. LAKE, teacher of music and piano-tuner; was born at Reading, Penn., Jan. 9, 1853, where he resided until 7 years old, when his parents moved to Chicago; Prof. L. studied music under Theo. Gramman, a German Professor of Music, in New York, about five years, and studied also with his sister, Julia C. Lake; since he was 18 years of age, Prof. Lake has been engaged in teaching music and tuning pianos in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, and since November, 1877, in Fond du Lac.

LEON LALLIER, florist and market gardener, on Fourth street; is one of two surviving sons of a family of five; he was born in France in 1834, and learned the gardener's trade there with his father, who had learned it from his father before him; in 1852, the family came to America, and settled here in Fond du Lac, where they continued the business of florist and gardener; three years after, the family was afflicted with the typhoid fever, and Leon lost his only sister and two brothers within twenty days after the first was taken sick; in 1858, his only surviving brother removed to Kansas, leaving him and his father as the only members of the family here. In 1860, he married Miss Julia C. Pierron, daughter of J. C. Pierron, of Fond du Lac, she being a native of Syracuse, N. Y.; they have seven children—Frank E., Louis, Lovina, Leon, Charlotte, Charles and Hester.

D. C. LANG was born at Albany, N. Y., July 8, 1852, and came to Sheboygan Falls, Wis., in 1855; Springvale in 1857, and Fond du Lac in 1874; he purchased the Fond du Lac Trunk Factory of A. Payne that year, and managed the business alone until 1875, when his brother became a partner under the firm name of D. C. & J. H. Lang; the factory gives employment to eighteen men, and the sales, which are in several of the surrounding States, amount to $25,000 per annum. Mr. Lang was married to Miss Kittie Pogue, at Fond du Lac, Aug. 23, 1877.

JOHN H. LANG was born at Albany, N. Y., June 16, 1850, and came with his father, Wm. Lang, to Sheboygan Falls, Wis., in 1855, and to Fond du Lac Co., town of Springvale, in 1857; there he remained until 1873; he became a partner with his brother in the firm of D. C. & J. H. Lang as trunk manufacturers at Fond du Lac, in March, 1875. He was married to Miss Ida B. Lee, of Fond du Lac, Dec. 17, 1876.

LEANDER LANDERMAN, farmer; is a son of Augustin and Mary Landerman, born in Montreal Co., Canada, in 1825; at the age of 20 he entered upon an apprenticeship at the blacksmith's trade with his father, continuing with him four years; he then went, in 1846, to a place near Troy, N. Y., and for two years was engaged in an ax factory; in 1848, he came to Fond du Lac, and began work at the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he followed for a number of years; he was employed by the North-Western Railway Company to assist in building depots, etc., etc., and while finishing the woodshed at Fond du Lac, he was knocked off the scaffolding while an engine was passing, and it ran over his arm, crushing it so badly that it had to be amputated; he was then appointed night-watch at the depot, which position he held for seven years; in 1848, he began dealing in real estate, and has been at it more or less since that time; he now owns 180 acres in Sec. 8, town of Fond du Lac; probable value, $75 per acre. He married Miss Orellie, daughter of Lewis and Felicity Muller, of Fond du Lac, in 1848, by whom he has six children, as follows: Helaine, Martha, Henry, Pacific, Orellie (now Mrs. Jos. Balargeon, of Fond du Lac) and Rose. Mr. L. and family are members of St. Louis' Catholic Church.

FRANZ LAUENSTEIN, wholesale liquor dealer; was born at Brunswick, Germany, May 25, 1830; came direct to Fond du Lac in May, 1850; for two years conducted Henry Rahte, Sr.'s, distillery; worked two years at cabinet-maker's trade, and, in 1855, began the wholesale liquor business, which he has followed ever since. He was married at Fond du Lac, in 1852, to Lissetta Bergen, a native of Hanover; they have five children living—Frank H., Betty, Rosa, Frances and Johanna, three children are deceased. Mr. L. was one of the organizers of the German-English Academy, and is now its President; is a Turner, and a member of the Odd Fellows' Lodge, and a Director of the German American Savings Bank.

HIRAM K. LAUGHLIN, of the firm of Laughlin & Carey, dry-goods merchants; is a native of Hopkinton, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., where he was born in 1818, and lived till 1845, when he became connected with the Treasury Department at Washington, and remained till 1849, going in under James K. Polk and coming out under Taylor's Administration. In 1848, he married Mrs. Carey, of Fond du Lac, and, in 1849, he moved from Washington to Fond du Lac, and became engaged in the dry-goods trade, which he has since followed; they have only one son—William T., who is now the book-keeper for the firm. Mr. Laughlin and family are members of the Episcopal Church.

JOHN LEIKAUF, proprietor of meat market on Main street; was born in New York City in 1846; at the age of 15, he began to learn the butcher trade, which he followed in his native city till 1867, when he came to Fond du Lac and continued the same business, working for other parties till the spring of 1879; he then became proprietor of his present market. In 1871, he married Miss Lucinda S. Wright, daughter of Joseph Wright, of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; they have one daughter—Maggie. Mr. L. and wife are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

S. G. LELAND, Clerk of the Court; born in Holliston, Mass., in 1843; moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1853; resided there until July, 1869, when he came to Wisconsin, and located at Beaver Dam, where he remained until October, 1870; at that time he came to Fond du Lac, and engaged in business as a merchant, dealing in boots and shoes, having carried on same business in Brooklyn and Beaver Dam prior to coming here; continued in trade about one year after locating in this city; then, for seven years, was employed in the County Register's office, five years of the time being Deputy Register; in the fall of 1878, he was elected to the position which he now occupies. Mr. Leland was married, at East Bridgewater, Mass., Nov. 20, 1867, to Jennette C. Harlow, a native of Massachusetts; they have four children—Gilbert H., Harry H., Arthur Little and Alice Maud.

JOSEPH F. LENZ, of the firm of Lenz & Ehlers; was born in Austria Jan. 10, 1841; came directly to Fond du Lac in 1856, where he has since resided, working at the wagon-maker's trade, which he began learning in Europe. Mr. Lenz has been engaged in business for himself since 1873. He was married at Fond du Lac, Jan. 24, 1861, to Fredericka A. Eichmeyer, born in Holstein, Germany; they have three children—Joseph H., Rudolph and Louis. He has been one of the managers of the German-English Academy during thirteen years.

SAMUEL LEVEL, dealer in wood; was born in Ohio, but lived at Buffalo, N. Y., and vicinity, until coming to Fond du Lac May 8, 1858, where he has since resided; he engaged in lumbering several years; five years engineer for Stevely & Bartlett, but during the last eight years has been dealing in wood, stock and ice. Mr. L. is a bachelor, and a member of the Knights of Pythias.

A. H. LEWIS, of the firm of O. F. Lewis & Bro.; from Essex Co., N. Y., where he was born, came to Fond du Lac Co. in 1847, and settled with his father in the town of Springvale; he enlisted Feb. 22, 1864, in the 4th W. V. C. and was mustered out as Sergeant of Co. B, at Brownsville, Tex., May, 28, 1866, after which he went to Minnesota and engaged in farming for two years; in April, 1874, commenced business with his brother at Fond du Lac, as dealers in agricultural implements, pumps, etc. He was married at Fond du Lac, Dec. 15, 1874, to Martha F. Barber, a native of Vermont.

R. M. LEWIS, station agent; is a native of Madison Co., N. Y.; born in 1820; came to Chicago, Ill., in 1851, and engaged in the manufacture of saleratus till spring of 1854, when he came to Fond du Lac, and engaged in the lumber business till 1869; he was next interested in the grain trade; in 1867, he was appointed Postmaster at Fond du Lac, by President Johnson, which position he held for two years; was elected a member of the Legislative Assembly in fall of 1872; in February, 1876, he was appointed station agent of the N.-W. R. R. He married Miss Helen Williams, daughter of Imri Williams, of Madison Co., N. Y., in 1844; they have four children—Mary, now Mrs. E. L. Patrick, of Kansas City, Mo.; Ella, now Mrs. K. M. Adams, of Fond du Lac; Addie, now Mrs. H. B. Dodd, of Watertown, Wis.; Carrie, now Mrs. Lebrick, of Racine, Wis. Wife and family are members of the Congregational Church.

ORIN F. LEWIS, dealer in agricultural implements; was born in Hague, Warren Co., N. Y., Aug. 17, 1832; came to Rosendale in September, 1847, and engaged in farming, which he has since carried on in addition to other business; during five years, in addition to dealing in pumps and all kinds of farm machinery, as a member of the firm of O. F. Lewis & Brother, he has been a traveling salesman of the Fountain City Wheel & Seeder Co. He was married, Dec. 31, 1856, to Mary A. Murray, a native of Prince Edward's Island; they have five children—George A., Carrie A., Charles E., Arthur M. and Bertie O. While living in Rosendale—he now lives just east of the city of Fond du Lac—Mr. Lewis was Supervisor, and held other town offices. Mr. L.'s mother, Betsy Lewis, died in Rosendale Feb. 23, 1857; his father, Matthew L., is now a resident of Springvale.

I. R. LEWIS, marble dealer; was born in Wethersfield, Windsor Co., Vt., June 6, 1831, and moved with his parents to Maryland in 1833, where they resided until 1840, and then moved to Clinton Co., N. Y.; from there, in 1850, they came to Eden, Fond du Lac Co., and settled upon Sec. 16; Mr. Lewis engaged in farming, speculating, dealing in wood, and story-telling in Eden, until 1866, when he moved to Fond du Lac, and engaged in the marble business. He was married in October, 1853, at Taycheedah, to Miss Delilah, daughter of Stafford Potter; they have two children living—George W. and Cora E. In Eden, Mr. L. was Town Clerk and Supervisor, and has been Alderman, Supervisor and member of the Board of Education in Fond du Lac; his father, Stephen Lewis, died in Eden in 1871; his mother, Thankful Lewis, is living in Nebraska. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M.

R. LIEBERMANN, wool merchant, and dealer in grain, seeds, hides, furs, pelts, etc.; born in Austria Aug. 28, 1852; came to America with his parents when he was a child of about 5 years of age; they were located in Milwaukee for two years, then removed to Sheboygan; from there the subject of this sketch returned to Milwaukee, and graduated from the German and English Academy, and also from Bryant & Stratton's Commercial College, and for two years was in a tannery in Milwaukee, then he went to Manitowoc, where he was employed for about two years as a dry-goods salesman; in 1870, he came to Fond du Lac, and was associated with L. Rosenberg in the clothing business for several years, a portion of the time dealing in wool, grain, hides, etc.; he was with Mr. Rosenberg until the fall of 1878, since then alone; Mr. Liebermann is one of the live young business men of this city, enterprising and public spirited. He is a son of M. Liebermann, who was engaged in dry-goods business about 1868.

Jas. F. Alenick

FOND DU LAC.

EDWARD C. LITTLE (deceased), was a native of Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y., where he was born April 10, 1811; being the son of a farmer, he spent his boyhood and youth, except while attending district school, by which he received rather a limited education, in agricultural pursuits; in 1848, he began the business of a hardware merchant in New York City, which he continued with his brother till 1863; disposing of his interest there at that time, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., bought a farm of 160 acres in Secs. 33 and 34, town of Fond du Lac, where he followed farming till his death, which occurred Oct. 30, 1870. He was married to Miss Mary, daughter of Joshua and Sarah Smith, of Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y., in 1846; they have four sons and one daughter—Edward S., Charles S., John A., Joseph B. and Isabella F., now Mrs. Theodore Van Cleef, of Jersey City, N. J. The family are connected with the Presbyterian Church of Fond du Lac; formerly members of the Collegiate Church of New York City, one of the oldest churches of that city; its 250th anniversary was celebrated in 1878.

JOHN W. LOCKIN, printer and publisher, was born in Sauk Co., Wis., June 6, 1852; came to Fond du Lac Co. in October, 1864; began the printer's trade at Brandon April 13, 1869; had charge of the Ripon Free Press for some time; worked a few months in the old Star office at Milwaukee and came to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided, in August, 1872; in April, 1878, he purchased the Globe office, and, in August, 1879, purchased the Champion steam outfit and merged the two offices into one; in company with Edward Beeson, he began the publication of the Wisconsin Farmer in September, 1879. Mr. L. was married at Fond du Lac, June 12, 1878, to Jennie S., daughter of the late John Keyes; they have one child—Florence Edna.

ROBERT LONGSTAFF, retired; was born in County Durham, England, Nov. 11, 1804; came to New York City, where he worked at the carpenter's trade a few months; in September, 1844, he moved to Rochester, where he worked at wagon-making less than a year; returned to New York City for a few months and then came to Fond du Lac Co., which has since been his home; Mr. L. worked at the carpenter's trade one winter in Fond du Lac, and then bought a farm, on which he lived five years, and which he afterward rented. He was married in England, in December, 1831, to Dianah Atkinson, a native of County Durham; they have had eight children, of whom three are living—Jane, Robert B. and Anna; the five deceased were Thomas, who died in England; William, who died in Kansas, aged 26 years; Alice, who died in Eden, aged 19 years; Mary, who died in Fond du Lac, aged 23 years; and Sarah, who died also in Fond du Lac, aged 7 years. Although in his 76th year, Mr. Longstaff is in good health and works every day about his place.

MOTHER MARY AGNES LUBY, Sister Superior of St. Joseph's Convent and Orphan Asylum, is a daughter of Patrick and Mary Luby; born in Cashel, County Tipperary, Ireland, Aug. 28, 1816; at the age of 4 years, she entered the Convent of the "Presentation Nuns," of her native city, and remained there till she reached her 16th year, spending the first part of her time at study, the latter part at teaching; in October, 1870, she, with two other Sisters, came to America and entered the Convent of Mercy, at Sterling, Ill., in November following; remaining there about two weeks, they, with the Community, removed to Janesville, Wis., where, March 11, 1873, she was appointed Sister Superior of the Community by the Rev. Father Doyle; in January, 1876, the convent was removed to and established at Fond du Lac, under her care, who, as Superior, has carefully managed and guarded its interests as one whose life-work and life are consecrated to a work of charity toward the poor, the sick and the orphan children of the church; and many will be the thankful hearts, which, in future years, will beat with almost reverential pulsations when fond recollection brings to memory the many blessings they have received from her benevolent hands.

GEORGE W. LUSH, lumberman; a native of New Hartford, Oneida Co., N. Y.; came to Fond du Lac in May, 1866, and began the lumbering business in the firm of Merryman & Co.; this firm lasted until 1878, when Mr. Lusk became proprietor of the entire business, which he continues; he has a saw-mill with a capacity of about 40,000 feet of lumber per day, and in which are employed thirty five men; he manufactures from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 feet each year; before coming to Fond du Lac, Mr. Lusk was engaged as a lumberman at Edgerton, Wis., about nine years. He has been Mayor of Fond du Lac, and held various local offices.

GILBERT M. LEE. See last pages of this book.

FRANCIS D. McCARTY was born in Martinsburg, Lewis Co., N. Y., Jan. 12, 1816, educated at his native place; immigrated to Green Bay in 1836; came to Fond du Lac July 8, 1838, and located a farm at Taycheedah, where he built a house the same year, and in March, 1839, brought his family to reside in it; Mr. McCarty's residence has since been in Fond du Lac Co., though he has been traveling three years in the iron and steel trade; his first office was that of Constable and Collector; was elected Sheriff in 1850, and was Under Sheriff under George W. Mitchell and J. L. D. Eclesheimer; Deputy United States Marshal in 1860; member of the Legislature in 1858; one of the first Trustees of Fond du Lac Village; Alderman several terms; Justice of the Peace in Empire. Mr. McC. was married at Green Bay, March 18, 1838, to Eliza A. Vandresar; their children are Lovica L., Catherine R., Frances E., Darwin D. and Grace; all married. Mrs. McC. died Sept. 14, 1867.

GEORGE McCLUSKEY, Superintendent of the Luco lumber-mills; was born in Strathford County, Perth, Canada, May 23, 1845; came to Fond du Lac in about 1867. Married in Fond du Lac, in 1872, Miss B. McCabe; they have two children—Maggie and John; Mr. McCluskey has been Superintendent of the Luco Mill over four years; prior to that time he was foreman in the sawing department several years. He is a Republican in politics.

GEORGE H. McCUMBER, millwright for C. J. L. Meyer; is a son of Gordon De Wolf McCumber and Hannah Mosher; born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Jan. 11, 1828; when 16 years of age, he entered upon his apprenticeship with his uncle, John Mosher, of Toronto, Canada West, with whom he worked seven years; from 1851 to 1855, he was engaged in building several mills on the Little and Big Otto Rivers, of Canada West. An interesting event in Mr. McCumber's life at this place was when he with Mr. Free-love was traveling along the old military road, near the Little Otter; they saw by the roadside a bear's cub; Mr. McCumber proposed to pick it up, but Mr. Free-love protested; Mr. McCumber told Mr. F. to get across the log bridge with the horses and he would pick up the young bear; the plan was finally agreed to, and Mr. F. crossed the bridge, and stationed himself on the opposite side of the river to see the result of the project; McC. at once seized his innocent victim and started for his companion; but the young cub immediately gave the alarm and the mother instantly rushed to the rescue; in McCumber's haste to cross the bridge, he came upon it with such force that it went down with him, and he dropped the cub thinking the old bear would cease her chase; but she, not content with the rescue of her babe, hotly pursued the would-be kidnaper till he reached his horse and made good his escape. In 1857, Mr. McCumber, with his family, removed to Fond du Lac Co., coming through from Milwaukee to Oconomowoc on the first emigrant train that passed over that road, stopping at Oconomowoc for the night, where there were only three hotels of three rooms each to give lodging to the multitude of immigrants; forty of them were finally made comfortable in one of the hotels, by scattering them rather promiscuously upon the floors for the night; the next morning there was a rush for the stage which was to convey them to Beaver Dam; Mr. McCumber's family were fortunate enough to secure a passage, while his friend, Mr. Fisher, and family took the ox cart for Birds' Corners; arrived at Beaver Dam June 7, soon after which, Mr. McCumber joined them, and they removed to Mound Prairie, town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., for a short time; here an interesting event took place, which is given in another part of this work; they next removed to Fond du Lac in October, where he has since made his home, and devoted his time to his trade; in spring of 1856, he built a saw-mill for Mr. Alex. McDonald, and has since been interested in the building of several large mills, among them a grist-mill for the Indians on their reservation; a saw-mill for Merryman, at Marinette; one in city of Fond du Lac, for Mr. Meyers, also the Railroad Mill, the Hollister Mill, at Rochester, N. Y.; one for Mr. Coleman, at La Crosse, and has been constantly in Mr. Meyer's employ for the past two years (1879). Dec. 3, 1849, he was married to Miss Eliza, daughter of Henry and Sarah Braum, of Toronto; they have had six children—Sarah L., now Mrs. William Tostivin, of St. Paul, Minn.; H. Adel, now Mrs. Robert N. Woollett, of Minneapolis; William G., George (deceased), death caused by a fall; William H., Nettie A. Mr. McCumber and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church; Mr. McC. is a member of the I. O. O. F., also of the Temple of Honor.

WILLIAM McDERMOTT, insurance agent, was born in Ireland, in 1846, and came to Washington Co., Wis. the same year, with his father; to Fond du Lac, town of Byron, in 1855, where he lived with James McDermott—his father—until 1867, when he moved to Fond du Lac and began work for L. M. Wyatt, in the insurance business; began business for himself as insurance, loan and real-estate agent, April 1, 1872, and now has fourteen companies—all first-class. He was married, July 7, 1868, to Annie C. Duffie; they have two children—James P. and George L. All are members of St. Joseph's Church; Mr. McDermott has been a member of the Board of Education one year, but gives no attention to politics.

ALEXANDER McDONALD, manufacturer and lumberman, was born at Lancaster, Glengarry Co., Canada, Sept. 16, 1827, of Scotch parents; his education was acquired at the schools of his native place, after which he spent three years in a large grocery store in Montreal; he then returned to Lancaster and engaged with Archibald McBean, merchant and lumberman, for one and a half years, when he became a partner in the business, taking charge of a branch store; in 1848, the partnership, which had existed two and a half years, was terminated, and Mr. McD. became clerk in William Flower's railroad-contracting office, in which he remained one year, and was given charge of a gang of men, and at the end of another year was made Division Superintendent, owing to his wonderful energy and uniform good judgment; in 1856, after finishing with the railroad contractor, Mr. McD. came to Fond du Lac, and, in company with his brother and others, began the manufacture of lumber, which he has since continued without interruption; he now is the sole owner of a saw-mill and a large tract of pine lands; President of the Wheel and Seeder Co.; Vice President of the McDonald Manufacturing Co.; part owner of the McDonald & Stewart Sash, Door and Blind Factory; Director of the German-American Savings Bank; a member of the Log Harbor Co., and Director of the Gravel Road Co., giving attention to every branch of his business; Mr. McDonald is an astonishing, tremendous and tireless worker; he has rushed himself through the heaviest labors with only four hours per day of rest and sleep, not simply for a week, but during long periods; and at his mill, or in handling lumber, takes the place and the labors of two men; the same prodigious vigor characterizes all his mental operations; the most prolonged exposure and hardest tug at labor even yet appears to leave him as fresh and strong as when he began; his working trim is 6 feet 2 inches in height and 215 pounds in weight—all bone and sinew; the first seven years of Mr. McD.'s life after he left school were devoted to paying the debts contracted by his father, who died when he was only 5 years of age, thus saving the old homestead to his mother. Although giving no attention whatever to politics, he has been elected Alderman, member of the County Board and Mayor. He was married first, in 1859, to Annie Cameron, who died Dec. 12, 1863, leaving one daughter—Sarah; in February, 1868, he married Christiana McLennan, who died a year later; in 1872, Mr. McDonald married his present wife, Sarah E. Vaughan, who is the mother of his only son—Alexander Vaughan McDonald. Mr. McDonald uses no liquor or tobacco, gives his influence to temperance matters, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

JOHN S. McDONALD, manufacturer and lumberman, was born in Lancaster, Glengarry Co., near the Province line, between Upper and Lower Canada, Dec. 7, 1831—a locality noted for the large size of its men and women. When Col. Frasier's regiment was reviewed at Montreal, during the Revolution of 1837, the English General declared he had never seen so fine a regiment—not a man in it being less than six feet, and some of them were over seven feet in height; and the Colonel said he could furnish ten more regiments of such men, and as many as might be wanted of men six feet in height. Donald McDonald, lumberman and farmer, father of John S., was born at Glengarry a year after the grandparents settled on the old homestead. His mother, Marion Stewart, born on the Isle of Skye, Scotland, was, on her mother's side, a McLeod; her father's family consisted of six brothers and four sisters—none of the brothers being less than six feet—of whom three sisters and one brother are now living, the youngest being 70 years of age, and his mother, who resides in Fond du Lac, being in her 84th year. Mr. McD.'s father died Feb. 28, 1848, after a brief illness. His family consisted of twelve children—six boys and six girls, all now living but two.

The subject of this sketch attended the common schools from the farm on which he was born, beginning at the age of 4 years, and walking regularly every day, rain or shine, with his brothers and sisters, from one to three miles. At the time of his father's death, he had been clerking, for a period of two years, in a general store at $4 per month, which gave him a practical knowledge of general business. Liquors were retailed over the counters of this store, and, for five years, young McDonald sold intoxicating drinks as a beverage, without ever tasting them himself. His mother lived a mile distant from the store, and every Sunday, after he was ready to return from his visit to her, she would admonish him to "be a good boy for another week, and not touch the liquor;" and to his beloved mother Mr. McD. ascribes his strength to handle liquor five years without tasting a drop of it. All this time, he and his brother, Alexander, were earning money to pay for the old farm and educate the younger children. At the age of 16, he left Glengarry and engaged with William Flower, a prominent railroad contractor, as book-keeper and paymaster, with whom his brother Alexander had previously been engaged, and the two labored together for years with but one aim, that of paying their father's debts. After finishing the Grand Trunk Railroad, Mr. McD. left the employ of Mr. Flower, in January, 1856, and, after arranging his mother's affairs, went to Chicago; thence to Dixon, Ill.; out through Iowa and finally brought up at Fond du Lac the last of February, 1856, riding in a box-car behind the little Winnebago engine, over the strap-railed Rock River Valley Union Ry., then in operation from Fond du Lac to Minnesota Junction. On his arrival at Fond du Lac, he had only $190, but was introduced to R. and A. Merryman and H. Hunter, with whom he entered into business under the firm name of McDonald, Merryman & Co. His old employer, Mr. Flower, had promised that if McDonald could get into business, to draw on him for capital. This was done, and Mr. Flower responded by remitting $4,500, and the new firm erected a saw-mill on the corner of Johnson and Pollett streets, which burned years after. The same spring his brother Alexander came to Fond du Lac, and purchased a quarter-interest in the mill, which was continued until the panic of 1857, when lumber could hardly be sold at any price. About this time, Mr. Flower, his former employer, had taken the contract for building the Stanstead, Shefferd & Chambly Ry., in Lower Canada, and wanted Mr. McD. to organize and begin the work for him, which, with the consent of his partners, he did, and continued in the railroad business until the first division, from St. John's to Granby, was completed. By letter, he then arranged with his partners to carry on his lumber business at Fond du Lac for three years, and, in 1858, set sail from New York to California, with such letters in his possession as would enable him to get along in case his hands should fail him.

While on shipboard, Mr. McD. became acquainted with two Frenchmen, who were on their way to California to embark in the wine business, and who, as they did not understand the manner of doing business in this country, offered him a one-third interest without a dollar of cash. But McD. declined the offer solely on account of the nature of the business—his early experience leading him to make such a decision. He also met men going to the Frasier River gold mines, and made arrangements to accompany them, taking steerage passage from San Francisco to Victoria, Vancouver's Island, experiencing hardships never to be forgotten. After preparing boat and equipages for mining, he was enabled, through the kindness of Gov. Douglass, to whom McD. had letters of introduction, to get passage across the Gulf of Georgia, [an altogether dangerous undertaking in small boats], on the steamer Otter, the first steam vessel to navigate the Pacific Ocean. He landed at the mouth of the Frasier, near Ft. Langley, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of a rainy October day. After rowing up stream two miles, they camped with other miners for the night. The next day was Sunday, and most of the miners made ready to proceed on the journey. But McD. said he never worked a Sabbath in his life, and should not begin in British Columbia, suggesting that their luggage be divided, and he would remain behind with another, who was against Sabbath-breaking. The next Thursday the McD. party passed all the boats that started on Sunday, and when they reached the mines, was several weeks in advance of the Sabbath-breakers. The Frasier River was a dangerous stream to navigate, and McD. and his friends had many hair-breadth escapes while ascending it. It was winter in the mountains, and, on reaching Ft. Hope, he took a job of the government, with others, to build a jail of logs eight inches thick. When this was finished, he tried mining, which was good in some places. On the arrival of spring, the company parted. McD. and a man named Cornell, remained together and made shingles or shakes, and sawed lumber with a whip-saw for a living. After some unpleasant experiences with hostile Indians, exposure of the utmost severity, and tiresome mountain-climbing until the next summer, he determined to return down the river, and landed at New Westminster soon after the government established its headquarters at that point, making it the port of entry for British Columbia, although the place contained nothing but a restaurant, grocery and post office. In the post office, Mr. McD. found three letters, upon which 75 cents postage was due, but not having any money, he told the Postmaster he would call later, and not knowing what else to do, went out and started up an Indian trail. He had proceeded but a few rods, when he discovered a gold dollar shining near a small rivulet that crossed the trail. Believing it the work of Providence, McD. snatched the coin and hastened back for his letters. After paying the postage, he had 25 cents left, which, not having tasted food since the day before, he hastened to expend in the restaurant for buns. While eating them, and reading his letters, he saw an advertisement calling for choppers for the government. This directed him to Col. Moody, who said the government wanted fifty cords of eighteen inch wood, for which $3 per cord would be paid. Although without money, ax or provisions, he pluckily took the job, afterward getting trusted by Armstrong, who kept the grocery, for both, and began his work toward night the same day. After working about an hour or so, a tall man came up and wanted work. McD. hired him at $3 per day, which proved a good bargain, as the man was a good chopper. The next day the two put up four cords, thus making $9 per day for McDonald. He next went into a grocery, but left it very soon after to engage in the fish business—catching and packing salmon; but, after working night and day, making 1,000 fish barrels, getting boats, shovels, nets and other things ready, found the salmon did not run that year. This was a heavy blow, as McDonald had borrowed the money for his costly but disastrous fishing experiment. Hay then commanding a fabulous price, he determined to go into the hay business, and after searching out a marsh at the peril of his life, among hostile and ugly Indians, and, finding that the old chief would protect him, as he wanted the hay cut, he hired five men and put up eighty tons, working like a slave to do it. This was twenty miles from any settlement, and, as 2,000 Indians, enraged by whisky furnished by the coast-traders, constantly sought opportunity to take their lives, the task was a disagreeable as well as perilous one, in the extreme. But the hay was never moved, as opposition companies had put the price down far below even the cost of transportation. The experience with the Indians was a terrible one. Not a day has passed, from that day to this, which failed to recall the dangers then passed through, or the feeling of thankfulness at escaping with his life, as McD. was left alone with them by his less plucky companions. As soon as the disastrous hay business was dropped, he took a job from the government of cutting a trail fourteen miles through heavily timbered country, frequently encountering trees so large as to extend, while standing, across the entire trail, which was twenty feet wide. On finishing this job, he took for pay land scrip, and entered lands back of New Westminster, which he still owns. Rev. E. White, a Methodist minister, arrived at New Westminster, and McDonald helped to erect the first church in that country, a few bearing all the burdens. But as yet, he had made no money—had many a day gone without food, shelter, or proper clothing; had taken a salmon in either hand and gone about trying to sell them for bread. At last, he learned of a man who owned a saw-mill but could not run it. He, therefore, went to two men named Homer and Jackson, who put their money against his experience and labor, and the mill was put in motion. In this new enterprise, McDonald worked with the same tremendous energy, and made a success of it. So, after making enough to pay all his debts, and show the people he could make a success of something, he determined to leave the Pacific Coast. Before leaving, however, in July, 1859, he got up public meetings and circulated petitions, praying the English Government to grant a Colonial Legislature to British Columbia, which prayer was soon granted; and, on his departure, Mr. McD. was tendered a public dinner for the energy and enterprise with which he had helped to develop the colony. On arriving in Canada, he found great excitement over copper mining, and, after paying a hasty visit to Fond du Lac, buying out, with his brother Alexander, Hunter and the Merrymans, and forming the firm of A. & J. S. McDonald, which continued for many years, he entered into mining operations with his old employer, William Flower. The rebellion in the States caused a promiscuous fleeing of capitalists and cessation of mining operations, so McD. determined to return to Fond du Lac, and give his energy and attention to the lumber business. But he had no notion of returning alone, so proposed to, and was accepted by, Jane Elizabeth, his former employer's second daughter, whom he had known from childhood, and they were married at Montreal, Nov. 12, 1861, making the journey to Fond du Lac, their future home, their wedding tour. The issue of this marriage has been four girls and three boys—Williamina Elizabeth, born Aug. 8, 1862; Annie Stewart, May 3, 1864; Marion Maria, Aug. 26, 1867; John Flower, June 19, 1870; Edwin Corydon French, July 28, 1872; Alexander Dee, Dec. 5, 1874, and Jennie Louise Alberta, Sept. 2, 1878. Marion Maria died Oct. 31, 1871, at the age of 4 years. Since taking up his permanent residence in Fond du Lac, Mr. McDonald has most of his attention to lumbering, as a member of the firms of A. & J. S. McDonald; A. & J. S. McDonald & Co.; McDonald Flower & Co. and McDonald, Lynch & Co., carrying on the business at Fond du Lac, on the Wolf River and other Wisconsin waters. More recently, he began at Ford River, Mich., taking as partners Blanchard & Borland, of Chicago, under the name of McDonald, Borland & Co., which gave place to Ford River Lumber Co., of which he has been President and Manager from the start. In 1877, he formed, at Oconto, the lumber-manufacturing firm of McDonald & Billings' Lumber Co., of which he is President. The same year he purchased the thrashing machine works at Fond du Lac, after their failure, in which, as a stockholder he lost heavily, and, in company with John Spence, his brother Alexander, and C. H. Benton, formed the McDonald Manufacturing Co., J. S. McDonald, President—which is doing a large and increasing business. Mr. McD. also was heavily interested in the manufacture of peat fuel and paper. He is an earnest member of the Presbyterian Church, in which he is a Ruling Elder, and, while liberal in his views of other denominations, has no sympathy whatever with the so-called Liberal Christians. Mr. McD. was for several years President of the Fond du Lac Co. Bible Society; is Trustee of the First Presbyterian Church; Superintendent of the Home and Mission Schools of the Church; Trustee of Carroll College, and Lake Forest University; member of the Executive Committee of the State Sabbath School Association; one of the Vice Presidents of the American Sabbath School Union and is connected with other societies, manufactories and business interests in and around Fond du Lac, and other sections of the Northwest.

HON. CAMPBELL McLEAN, Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit; was born in Washington Co., N. Y., May 16, 1825, but raised in Clinton Co., where he received an academic education at Keyesville, and where he studied law with Hon. Geo. A. Simmons. Judge McLean was admitted to the bar in 1850, and practiced in Keyesville until 1856, when he removed to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided; he was a member of the Assembly in 1862; elected to the Fourth Judicial Circuit judgeship in 1868, and re-elected without opposition in 1874. He was married at Fond du Lac, in January, 1860, to Emogene S. Gillett, daughter of Rev. Dr. Erastus Gillett; she was born at Jamestown, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; they have one child—Kate M.

CHARLES M. McLEAN, of McLean & Haas; was born in Ireland in 1822; came to America in 1848; spent six years in Steuben Co., N. Y., after remaining a short time in Pennsylvania; came to Fond du Lac in May, 1855, from Steuben Co., N. Y.; learned the wagon-maker's trade in New York State, which he has followed since coming to Wisconsin; has been in business for himself since 1863. Mr. McLean was married in Fond du Lac, May 9, 1859, to Ann Rayburn, born in County Galway, Ireland. They have four children—Mary Jane, Teresa, Thomas John and Ann. He is a member of the Total Abstinence Society.

MADISON McLEAN, farmer; was born at Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 29, 1829; removed when a child to Chenango Co.; then five years in Onondaga Co.; came to Mt-tomen, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1854, where he engaged in farming until 1868, when he removed to Oshkosh; removed to Ripon in 1870; to Fond du Lac City and Town in 1873, where he now resides. Mr. McLean was married near Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 23, 1853, to Sarah C. Bull, born in Onondaga Hollow, June 29, 1832; they have three children—Alice E., now Mrs. Ed Ingram, of Northampton, Mass.; Elsie Beecher and Mary Elizabeth. During several years in Fond du Lac, Mr. McLean carried on the business of dairying; he is now farming two miles east of the city.

GEORGE McWILLIAMS: the subject of this sketch is a native of Mercer Co., Penn.; was born on the 11th of December, 1809, and is the son of George McWilliams (a farmer), and Naomi, nee Mitchell; he passed his early life in his native place, attending school during the winters and spending the summers at farm work, and at the age of 16 years, entered upon an apprenticeship of four and a half years to learn the carpenter's trade; at the expiration of this time, he began work as journeyman, and soon removed to Painesville, Ohio, and there spent eight years working at his trade; in 1830, going to Wisconsin, he settled at Green Bay; then in Michigan Territory, during the next thirteen years, he was actively engaged at his trade; during that time, he had the contract for many important buildings in his section of the country; he built the first Protestant Mission buildings of Green Bay for the education of the half-breed Indians; he was also superintendent or architect for rebuilding Ft. Howard, and was there engaged four years; having become largely interested in the Fond du Lac Company, he removed thither in 1843, and took charge of the business of the Company; he has been a large dealer in real estate, and, at one time owned a large part of the land where the city of Fond du Lac now stands, and by judicious investments and careful management has accumulated a large fortune: he has not, however, confined himself to his private affairs, but in all matters pertaining to the growth and welfare of his city and State, has taken an active part; he was a member of the first Territorial Legislature in 1836, and during a period of several years, served as Justice of the Peace, at Green Bay, under an appointment by Gov. Dodge; after removing to his present home, he was elected Mayor of his city two years after its incorporation; Mr. McWilliams has traveled extensively over the United States, and being a man of close observation, he has gained in this manner a most valuable experience and a practical knowledge of men and things. Politically, he has been identified with the Republican party since its organization. Mr. McWilliams has never been identified with any church organization, and has never married; he is, however, a worthy member of the Masonic Order. Such is a brief outline of the life-history of one, who beginning life without means, has worked his way up step by step, and stands now a worthy example of that success which may be attained by constant, persevering and honorable effort.

E. G. MAIN was born at Columbus, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 18, 1834; reared in Chenango and Madison Cos.; removed to Chilton, Calumet Co., Wis., in 1855, and to Fond du Lac in 1864, where he has since resided; Mr. Main began the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds when first coming to Fond du Lac, continuing it until 1876, when he began the manufacture of furniture and agricultural implements. He was married in Chicago, April 2, 1856, to Margaret Foley, born in Ireland; they have three children—Mary Lizzie, Margaret and Ella. Mr. M. is a member of the A., F. & A. M., and I. O. O. F. Lodges.

CAPT. MICHAEL MANGAN was born in Ireland Sept. 30, 1830; came to America in 1854, and to Fond du Lac in December, 1855, where he engaged in the lumber business until 1861. He enlisted as a private in Co. E, 6th W. V. L., leaving for the front in June, 1861, in which he served until mustered out as First Lieutenant, in April, 1864; he then entered the Veteran Reserve Corps, Army of the Potomac, remaining in New York City until the close of the war, when he went to Florida in connection with the Freedmen's Bureau; in September, 1866, he was mustered out, and returned to Fond du Lac, remaining until December, when he joined the Regular Army as Second Lieutenant of Co. A, 45th Regiment; in this he served until April, 1871, when he was retired as Second Lieutenant, on three-quarter pay; Capt. M. lost a leg at the battle of Gettysburg. He was Doorkeeper of the United States Senate one session, after the close of the war, and has been Alderman and Chairman of the Fourth Ward.

JONATHAN W. MANLEY, farmer, corner of Forest and Seymour streets; he is a son of Rev. Ira Manley, a Congregational minister, of Essex Co., N. Y.; though a native of Rutland Co., Vt., Jonathan was born in Essex Co., N. Y., in September, 1818; at the age of 22, he began teaching school in his native county, and continued it during the winter seasons for four years; he next began the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he continued there till 1845, when, in the fall of that year, he immigrated to Wisconsin; landing at Racine about the 25th of October, he started to Delavan; from Delavan went to Hustisford, Dodge Co., thence on foot to Milwaukee; stopping over night at an unfinished hotel, he was put up in the second story of the yet unfinished part to sleep; the landlord, taking him around the house and up an outside stairway, and pointing to an open window in the second part of the house, told him he could find a place in there somewhere, and bid him good-night; Mr. Manley crawled in, though not very manly, however, for he was never more frightened in his life; 'tis well to state, however, that he awoke the next morning much refreshed and less frightened; on his way to Milwaukee, he made application for a school and was accepted by the Directors, but, upon reaching his destination, he found business so good that he could make more at work on the water-power, so gave up the school; in the spring of 1846, he went to Sheboygan and continued his trade for four years, whence, in 1850, he removed his family to Fond du Lac, and, for two years, was employed by J. B. Macy, then by the North-Western Railway Co. for twenty-one years; leaving the road in 1875, he has since followed farming, and now owns ten acres in the city, eighty-seven acres on Secs. 16 and 17, also forty-five acres in Sec. 18, all in the town of Fond du Lac. He married Miss Frances A., daughter of Elijah and Harriet Rouse, of Litchfield, Conn., in January, 1855; they have had five children—Charles W. (deceased), Alice C. and Wallace J. (twins), Ira J. and Henry H. Mrs. Manley is a member of the Congregational Church.

FRANCIS MARCOE, Jr., dealer in wines, liquors, etc., corner of Third and Main streets; was born in Cohoes Falls, N. Y., April 29, 1841; in 1849, came to Wisconsin with his parents; they settled in Fond du Lac Co., where the subject of this biographical notice remained until the summer of 1862, when he enlisted in Co. A, 21st W. V. U., in which he served about one and a half years; at the end of that time, was transferred to the 1st U. S. Vet. Vol. Engineer Corps, in which he served until June 30, 1865, when he was honorably discharged; during the time he was in the service, Mr. Marcoc participated in a number of battles, the principal ones being Murfreesboro, Perryville, Lookout Mountain; during the battle of Murfreesboro, he acted as Orderly Sergeant, and was made Corporal for some time previous to his being discharged. Feb. 22, 1870, he married in Fond du Lac, Josephine Roy, a native of Cyprien, Canada, born Feb. 2, 1849; they have had five children—Melvina (born July 3, 1871), Amelia (born Jan. 4, 1873), Francis E. (born July 19, 1874), J. Henry (born Nov. 22, 1877), one child deceased, Josephine, who was born March 18, 1876, and died Jan. 28, 1879; Mr. Marcoc's parents, Francis Marcoc and Amelia Scur, were both natives of Canada, where they were married; they moved to Cohoes Falls, N. Y., thence to Wisconsin in about 1849; settled in the town of Fond du Lac, where they resided several years; then moved to Friendship, where she died Dec. 16, 1879, aged 52 years; he is still living and resides in the town of Friendship; their children are Theodore, who was a soldier in the 5th W. V. U., during the war, and was promoted to First Lieutenant, he married Mary Malthouse, they live in Taylor Co., Wis.; Francis, Jr., whose name heads this sketch; Mary, wife of John Baltzour, this county; Armina, wife of J. Baltzour, also of this county; Melinda, wife of Chas. Busan, Blewitt, Minn.; Jeremiah, of Taylor Co., Wis.; Julius, also of Taylor Co.; Alexander, who resides in the town of Friendship, married Lenora Young; Lavinia, wife of Oliver Greeney, Warsaw, Wis. Mrs. Marcoc's parents, Isaac and Julia Roy, nee Ebero, were natives of Canada; they came to Wisconsin in 1867, and settled in Fond du Lac, where they still reside; their children are Legorie, of this city, he married Mary Foucher; Amelia, wife of Louis Lebean, this city; Nelson, of Cyprien, Canada, married Marclien Perrin; Eliza, now Mrs. M. Smith; Josephine, wife of Francis Marcoc, Jr.; Melvina, wife of S. Marion, of Marinette, Wis.; Abela, wife of H. Labossier, a merchant of Dorchester, Wis.; Mrs. Marcoc's maternal grandparents were Jacob and Arange Ebert; they are nearly a century old, and live in Cyprien, Canada; he was a soldier in active service during the French and English war in Canada; was taken prisoner by the British, and exiled to Australia for 11 years.

M. W. MARSHALL, manufacturer of patent medicines, No. 14 Oak street; he was born in Havana, N. Y., in 1842; in 1849, his parents, S. and Mary J. Marshall, came to Wisconsin and settled near Green Bay; moved thence to Fond du Lac, where they resided until their deaths; Mr. Marshall engaged in the manufacture of patent medicines in about 1855, and since that time has been constantly increasing his facilities for the making of his medicines, to keep pace with an increasing trade. He married, in 1861, Mary Nicholson, of Maysville, N. Y.; they have three children—Alice M., Flora B. and Clara H.; Mr. Marshall owns several finely improved farms in Fond du Lac Co., and a farm in Marquette Co., Wis. In politics, he is a Republican.

FERDINAND J. MARTIN was born in Prague, Germany, June 21, 1842; came to America in 1848, with his parents, Henry A. and Caroline C. Martin; after residing in Milwaukee one year and a half, they came to Fond du Lac; the first employment which Ferdinand had was with J. C. Lowell, a druggist of this city; he remained with him eight years, then he was for six months with C. J. Pettibone & Co., six months in the store of G. W. Weikert, afterward worked at the trade of carpenter and joiner two years and a half; six months employed in Mihill's factory, three years in the employ of Gaertner & Fry, one year in partnership with R. Haentze, as booksellers and news-dealers; since June, 1872, he has been employed in the post office in this city. He was married here, July 27, 1865, to Anna W. Abel; she was born in Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Germany; they have two children—Emma C. A., born June 6, 1865; Nettie E. M., born April 4, 1874. Mr. Martin's father died here in 1859; mother is now residing in Chicago. Mr. M. is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge, Turner Society and Sons of Hermann; he served fourteen years in the Fire Department; was one of the charter members of No. 5.

JOHN H. MARTIN, farmer and stock-trader, Secs. 23, 15, 17; is a native of Williamsport, Lycoming Co., Penn.; born Dec. 31, 1806; spent the first twelve years of his life there on a farm with his parents; they removed to Susquehanna, Susquehanna Co., Penn., for a few years, whence he removed to Livingston Co., N. Y., where for six years he was engaged in superintending a large farm and dealing in stock for Gen. Wadsworth; here he acquired a taste and knowledge of stock-trading, which he afterward successfully made use of; in 1836, he went to Chicago, Ill., where he dealt in stock till 1841; thence to Racine, Wis., for about five years; thence, in 1846, to Fond du Lac; in spring of 1852, he purchased a farm of 100 acres in Sec. 23, Town 15, Range 17 of Fond du Lac, where he built a house and made other improvements for a comfortable home. In 1852, he was married to Miss Caroline P., daughter of Gordon and Ann Clark, of West Bloomfield, Ontario Co., N. Y.; they have three sons—Edward C., banker of Beloit; Mitchell C., Kan.; Charles H., who makes his home with parents.

JOHN L. MARTIN, insurance agent; was born in the town of Eden, Fond du Lac Co., March 13, 1849, where he lived until coming to the city of Fond du Lac; in 1871, he went to Kansas City; in 1872, to St. Louis, thence to Toledo; one year in the Government Works at White River, Arkansas; in insurance business in St. Louis from spring of 1875 to 1877, when he returned to Fond du Lac, and opened a fire and life insurance office, representing the Phoenix, Trader's, Star and other companies. Mr. M. was married to Maggie L. Fitzgerald Aug. 27, 1873.

EDWARD G. MASCREFT, artist; was born at Esperance, Schoharie Co., N. Y., Oct. 10, 1840; moved to New York City at the age of 10; resided there about five years, and came to Fond du Lac in 1855; he enlisted as a private, in the spring of 1862, in Co. A, 14th W. V. L. Col. David E. Wood's regiment; was wounded by a shell at Shiloh; disabled about a month; became chief bugler in Gen. Ransom's brigade; participated in nearly all the battles in which his regiment was engaged, and was mustered out at Mobile Ala., in the fall of 1865; he then began the study of art and painting with Mark R. Harrison, in whose studio he has ever since been engaged.

W. H. MASSON, machinist; was born at East Hill, Onondaga Co., N. Y., May 13, 1854; came to Fond du Lac in the spring of 1863, where he has since resided, working as a skilled machinist. Mr. M.'s father is dead, but his mother and grandmother are still living. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Royal Temple of Temperance.

T. F. MAYHAM, physician and surgeon; was born at Schoharie Co., N. Y., whence he came to Fond du Lac Nov. 22, 1854. Dr. M. graduated from Michigan University, and attended a full course at the Albany, N. Y., Medical College; after which he taught school three terms in Empire, and was engaged in introducing school-books until he began the practice of his profession in 1859; he was hospital surgeon at Cairo, Ill., three years from the fall of 1863. Dr. M. is a member of the State Medical Society, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, member of the Board of Supervisors; has been in the City Council four terms, in the Board of Education several years, and held other local offices. He was married, at Fond du Lac, Dec. 26, 1860, to Mary E., daughter of Col. Abner Baker, who settled in Empire in 1847; she was born in Washington Co., N. Y.; they have one child—Bessie.

CHARLES J. L. MEYER, manufacturer, was born at Minden, in West Prussia, May, 1831, where he attended the thorough schools for which that country is noted, until 14 years of age, being an apt scholar and an intense worker; during the last year of his attendance at school, the Governor of the province made a visit of inspection, calling up young Meyer as the first scholar of the school, and putting him under a most rigid examination; the ready and intelligent replies from the youthful student interested the Governor, who proposed to qualify him for the service of the State, with the assurance of his royal protection and favor; the youth had previously determined to follow his father's calling, that of a manufacturer of sash, doors and blinds, and therefore declined an offer which would have been gladly embraced by those whose worldly prospects were more hopeful than his; therefore, upon leaving school he spent three years in his father's shop, acquiring the practical knowledge which has been so beneficial since in successfully carrying on his immense business; at the expiration of this time Mr. Meyer determined to find a wider field for his labors and came to America; the city of New York, where he landed, not being suited to his tastes, he resolved to go West, and took passage on the Erie Canal; near Syracuse a break was encountered, and, not having means to defray the expense of a detention, Mr. Meyer sought employment in that city; failing to find any, he went into the country, and, although unskilled in the ways of farming, hired out to David Collins, near Payetteville, for $5 per month; his honesty aptitude and industry so pleased Mr. Collins, that at the end of the first month he voluntarily increased the wages agreed upon; during the succeeding winter he cut cordwood, split rails and performed general farm work; in the spring Mr. Collins, Sr., built a mill, in the erection of which Mr. Meyer aided the millwright, who was so well pleased with his skill in using tools that he was urged to learn the millwright's trade; he therefore spent a profitable year in that business, finally abandoning it on account of the severity of the weather; he then spent a year in Syracuse acquiring the wagon-maker's trade, after which, in 1855, he removed to Chicago, where he spent six months, working at the wheelwright business, then coming to Fond du Lac, which has since been his home and the seat of his wonderful success as a lumberman and manufacturer, a full account of which will be found elsewhere in this work. Although giving an astonishing amount of time and attention to his diversified business, Mr. Meyer has creditably filled the offices of Alderman, Supervisor and Mayor, was Delegate at large to the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia, and organized and was the means of building the Northwestern Union Railroad, of which he was President three years, and is still a Director. Mr. Meyer was married, in August, 1852, to Miss Elizabeth Hax; they have five children—Julius P., who is manager of the Chicago branch of his father's business; Herman P., who is engaged for his father at Hermansville, Mich., after whom the place was named and of which he is Postmaster; Minnie H., Emma and Louise.

CHARLES W. MIHILLS, manager of Fond du Lac Building Association; was born in Essex Co., N. Y. in 1849; in 1856, he with his parents moved to Medina Co., Ohio; two years after, his father died, leaving him without any means of support, save that of his own hands; when a boy, he worked on a farm during the summer, and attended school some in the winter; from Ohio in 1864, he came to Michigan, and worked on a farm most of the time till 1869, when he came to Fond du Lac and began work for Mr. F. D. Mihills, in a lumber-yard; he soon became foreman in the yard and retained that position for about five years, after which he ran a lumber-yard for P. Simple, for one year; in 1876, he became a stock-holder in and manager of the Fond du Lac Building Association; he is also a breeder of Mambrino horses and Jersey cattle. In 1875, he married Miss Ella E. Collins, of Plymouth, Sheboygan Co., Wis., she is a member of the Episcopal Church.

GUINDON N. MIHILLS, manufacturer; was born at Wilmington, Essex Co., N. Y., Jan. 13, 1847; came to Fond du Lac in 1865, and engaged in the manufacture and sale of lumber, which he has since followed; he is now Vice President, Secretary and Superintendent of the Mihills Manufacturing Co., which employs about one hundred and sixty men in the manufacture of sash, doors, blinds and moldings. Mr. M. was married in December, 1870, to Mary L. Peck, who died June 29, 1874, leaving one child, Grace L., born Aug. 9, 1873; he married a second time, April 27, 1876, to Mrs. Harriet Antoinette Denzer, daughter of John W. Carpenter, of Pine River, Wis., and grand-daughter of Edward Pier, deceased; she has one child by a former husband.

URIAH D. MIHILLS is a native of the town of Tukeley, Shefferd Co., Lower Canada, born May 7, 1818; received a common-school education; came to the State of Wisconsin in 1854, settled in Dodge Co., where he farmed one year, after which he moved to Hartford, Washington Co., Wis., and then was engaged in farming and lumbering till the spring of 1865; removing thence to Fond du Lac, where he engaged more extensively in the lumbering and manufacturing business; Mr. Mihills was a member of the County Board of Supervisors of Essex Co., N. Y., during the years 1854-52-53; was appointed County Supervisor by Gov. Fairchild in 1869; was elected Alderman and Supervisor from the Fifth Ward in the city of Fond du Lac in 1870; was chosen Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors in the same year; was elected a member of the State Legislative Assembly in 1869, and was appointed by the Governor a member of the Committee to visit the charitable and benevolent institutions of the State; in October, 1870, was appointed by Gov. Fairchild as a delegate to the Commercial Convention at Cincinnati; in 1870, was again elected a member of the State Legislature on the Republican ticket by 122 majority; in 1871, was elected for the third time with a majority of 169; was Chairman of the Committee on Lumber and Manufactures while in the Legislature; in November, 1873, was appointed Director of the State Prison, but declined to accept, and Wm. E. Smith was appointed in his stead. Sept. 12, 1839, he married Miss Caroline Partridge, daughter of Reuben Partridge, of Essex Co., N. Y.; they have had nine children—Persis A., now Mrs. Johnson, of Columbia Co., Wis.; Myra J., now Mrs.

Temby, of Dallas, Tex.; G. N., of Fond du Lac; Francis C., now Mrs. Bishop, of Kansas City, Mo.; Uriah D., Jr., Emma M., Norris D., H. William and H. Lillian.

WILLIAM B. MILLER was born in Delaware Co., N. Y., Nov. 24, 1832; resided there until 10 years old, then came to Waupun, Wis., with his parents; in 1850, he removed to Waupaca, and in 1866, came to Fond du Lac, engaged in wagon-making until 1868, and then engaged in the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds until 1877, when he began the manufacture of agricultural implements. He was married at Waupaca, April, 1859, to Mary Ann Dickinson, born in Scotland, March, 1842; they have one child—Oletta L.

JOSEPH MITCHELL, druggist, of the firm of Ditter & Mitchell; was born at Green Bay, Wis., May 20, 1851; lived twelve years in Oshkosh; came to Fond du Lac Sept. 12, 1871, where he has since resided; Mr. M. followed the business of a grocer the first three years after coming to Fond du Lac, and began the drug business in September, 1877.

BENJAMIN F. MOORE, manufacturer; was born at Clinton, Kennebec Co., Me., where he learned the printer's trade; he removed to Philadelphia in 1833, remaining there six years, after which he lived a short time in New York City, coming to Taycheedah in September, 1841, and to Fond du Lac in 1846; Mr. M. at first engaged in Indian trading; built the first mill on the Wolf River in 1843; sent the steamer Manchester up that stream the first time any craft ever ascended it, and brought down the first raft in the fall of 1843; in 1852, he began steamboating on Lake Winnebago, controlling seven steamboats and all the barges and other boats, until 1857; Mr. Moore was engaged in lumbering until 1856, and in real estate most of the time since 1846; he was interested in the old Bank of the Northwest, and also in the First National Bank until 1874; during that year, he purchased with A. G. Ruggles, the La Belle Wagon Works, and eight months later, became sole proprietor; in 1879, a stock company was formed, of which B. F. Moore is President; A. L. Moore, Vice President and Superintendent; James H. Farnsworth, Secretary, and C. H. Moore, Treasurer; the factory employs about two hundred men and turns out twenty wagons per day; Mr. Moore also owns a large hotel at London, Canada; he has held various county and city offices.

MARQUIS D. MOORE, lumber manufacturer; was born at Montgomery, Hampden Co., Mass., July 15, 1825; his mother died when he was 5 years of age, after which he was without a permanent home, although residing eight years with an aunt at Lowville, N. Y.; at the age of 16, he returned to Massachusetts and engaged in business for himself as farmer and dealer in lumber, which was abandoned at 21 for the carpenter's trade; this he followed several years, working two years at pipe organ building in Westfield, Mass., after which, in 1833, he began the business in that city of a fancy dry-goods merchant, following it uninterruptedly for ten years; in 1864, Mr. M. came to Fond du Lac, and arranged for the purchase of a half-interest in the Cran's saw-mill, which is still owned and run by him in company with C. A. Galloway; he then returned for his family, and has since resided in this city, carrying on the business of a lumberman in all its branches. Mr. Moore was first married at Southampton, Mass., Jan. 4, 1849, to Cordelia T., daughter of Theodore Biscom; she died Sept. 1, 1859, leaving one child who died April 7, 1858, aged 8 years; he married a second time at Keene, N. H., Nov. 26, 1853, to Elida Thatcher; they have four children—Minnie Elida, born Aug. 21, 1861; Henry Warren, born Sept. 21, 1863; Eddie M., born Sept. 26, 1868, and Freddie M., born Dec. 16, 1870. Mr. Moore never had the important advantages of a collegiate education, and has hewed his own way to his present high social and business position, unaided; he is in every sense of the term, a self-made man.

SAMUEL P. MORSE, foreman in the blacksmith department of the La Belle Wagon Works, is a native of New York State; was born in 1812; in 1843, came to Wisconsin, and settled at Waukesha for four years; then, with his parents, moved to Chester, Dodge Co., where he lived on a farm till about 1852; he then moved to Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., where he began and worked at his trade till 1864; he next went to Ripon, and followed his trade there until 1867, when he came to Fond du Lac, and worked in the blacksmith shops of the La Belle Wagon Works, till the spring of 1873; in the spring of 1878, he took a contract to build spring wagons for Fish Brothers & Co., of Racine, which gave him employ for about eighteen months; in October, 1874, he returned to Fond du Lac and was again employed in the blacksmith shop of the La Belle Wagon Works, and in 1875, he was appointed foreman of the shop. In 1865, he married Miss Cynthia J. Stockton, of Brandon, Wis.; they have four children—Jessie M., Ella C., Bessie and Mable. Mr. Morse has been a member of the I. O. O. F. since 1862; was a member of the City Council from the Third Ward in the city of Fond du Lac during the years 1877-78.

LOUIS MUENTER, cashier of the German-American Savings Bank; was born at Rostock, Mecklenburg, Germany, Feb. 7, 1840, whence he came to Beaver Dam, Wis., in August, 1864, where he resided four years, three years of which he was a clerk, and one year a member of the mercantile firm of Krueger & Co. in February, 1868, he came to Fond du Lac and engaged for nine months in the real-estate and loan business; after that, for two years he was in the dry-goods business with John Sewell & Co., until he entered the firm of Walliehs & Muentzer, in the grocery business, which continued until March 31, 1876, when he entered the German-American Savings Bank as assistant cashier, but is now cashier. He was married at Fond du Lac, in April, 1867, to Alwine Raeping, a native of Essen, Prussia; they have six children—Bertha, Louis, Meta, Otto, Johanna and Alma. Mr. M. is a member of Darling Chapter, Fond du Lac Commandery, and of the Masonic Lodge.

PATRICK NARY, contractor; was born in County Mayo, parish of Armagh, Ireland, April 7, 1838, and came to America, locating at Georgetown, Mass., Dec. 2, 1854; he lived there one year, at Lynn two years, and in Cambridgeport until coming to Fond du Lac Aug. 2, 1861, where he at once engaged as a contractor and builder of all descriptions of brick, stone and masonry work, which business he has since continuously followed; Mr. N. has spent some time in traveling in various parts of the world, living twelve years in London, Eng., before coming to America. He was married at Lynn, Mass., Nov. 29, 1856, to Elizabeth Maloy, who was born in County Donegal, Ireland; they have six children living—Catherine N., James H., Daniel, John P., Mary and Francis P.; they have lost three—Thomas, George and Matthew. Mr. N. is Alderman of the Second Ward, Vice-President of St. Patrick's Benevolent Society, and a member of St. Joseph's Temperance Society.

NEWELL NIGHTINGALE, accountant and cashier in the office of C. J. L. Meyer's sash, door and blind manufactory; is a native of Fond du Lac Co., Wis., born in 1853; received his early education in the public schools of Fond du Lac, after which he attended Douglas University, at Chicago, for nearly two years; returning to Fond du Lac, he graduated at De Lan's Commercial College in 1879; his first employment was in 1871 in D. C. Lamb's real-estate, abstract and insurance office; from 1872 to 1875, he was employed in Fond du Lac Paper Mill; in 1875, he became accountant and cashier for Mihills Manufacturing Company, which position he held till December, 1878; in January, 1879, he was employed by Mr. Meyer as accountant and cashier. Mr. Nightingale has been a Mason since 1876, Knight of Pythias since 1876, and is also a charter member of Royal Arcanum.

MATHIAS L. NORRAN, book-keeper in Hamilton's lumber office; was born in Norway in 1843; in 1863, he entered the Military School of Norway, graduating with the class of 1868, after which he served as sergeant in the army of that country for one year; in 1869, he came to La Crosse, Wis.; thence to Madison, where he studied civil engineering in the University of Wisconsin for four years; in 1876, he came to Fond du Lac and was engaged in surveying the E. A. & B. R. R. for one year; since October, 1877, he has been employed as book-keeper in the lumber office by Mr. A. K. Hamilton. Mr. N. is a charter member of the Royal Arcanum, of Fond du Lac; also a member of the Presbyterian Church.

STEPHEN OBERREICH, proprietor of Lewis House; was born in Germany in 1828; came to America in 1851, and settled at Sheboygan; from there he soon moved to Milwaukee, and followed the tinsmith's trade, which he had learned in Germany; in 1854, he returned to Sheboygan, and, in August of the same year, came to Fond du Lac, where he followed his trade till 1875, when he began keeping the Lewis House. In 1854, he married Miss Catharine Helmer, of Fond du Lac, she being a native of Germany also; the children are Herman, Osear, Lewis, Ernest and Julius. Mr. Oberreich was a member of the School Board in 1870 and 1871; has been a Mason since 1865.

WILLIAM H. A. OESTERREICH, miller; was born in Prussia July 5, 1844; came to America in 1866, to Watertown, Wis., and from there to Fond du Lac; he learned milling when 14 years of age; has been seven years in the Galloway Mills. He was married, Feb. 27, 1875, to Lizzie Kummer, born in Germantown, Milwaukee Co., Wis.; they have two children—Carrie May, born May 4, 1876, and Edward, born Sept. 2, 1878.

CHARLES OLM, machinist; is a son of Charles and Caroline Olm; born in Berlin, Prussia, in 1839; in 1856, in his native city, he entered upon a three-years' apprenticeship at his trade; after this, for the next three years, he carried on a machinist business for himself in Harrisburg, Prussia; then, faithful to his country, he joined the Prussian Army and served as a soldier for four and one-half years; in 1867, he came to Chicago, where for one year he was employed as machinist in McCormick's Reaper Manufactory; thence, in 1868, he removed to Fond du Lac, where he has since been in the employ of C. J. L. Meyer, as machinist, in his door, sash and blind factory; by his careful management, industry and economy, he has saved from his earnings money enough to purchase a house and lot on Main street, opposite the fair ground. In 1865, he was married to Miss Mary, daughter of Edward and Caroline Menze, of Posen, Prussia; they have four children—Lena, Max, Osear and Charles. Mr. and Mrs. Olm are members of the Lutheran Church.

WARREN P. OTTARSON, joiner and carpenter; is a native of Bradford Co., Penn.; born in 1838; came to Wisconsin and settled at Fond du Lac in 1856, where he followed farming till 1861, when he enlisted in Co. A, 3d W. V. I.; was in the battles of Winchester and Chancellorsville, losing in the latter a finger from his right hand; he was then sent to Carver Hospital, at Washington, D. C., whence he was transferred to the 2d Battalion, Invalid Corps, where he served the remainder of his term of enlistment, which expired in June, 1864, after which he returned to Fond du Lac, and, in November of the same year, re-enlisted in Co. B, 1st W. V. C., where he served till the close of the war; the last military act of his regiment being in a detachment to assist in the capture of Jeff Davis, which occurred at Irwinville, Ga., May 9, 1865; his regiment was mustered out of service at Edgeville, Tenn., in 1865, when he returned to Fond du Lac and began the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he has followed most of the time since. In September, 1865, he married Miss Catherine Abbs, daughter of William E. Abbs, of Fond du Lac; they have one daughter—Lizzie B., born in July, 1866. Mrs. Ottarson has an interest in a greenhouse, with her father, at No. 150 West Division street.

JOHN PAAS, farmer, Secs. 30, 15 and 17; P. O. Fond du Lac; a son of John and Mary Paas, of Prussia; his father being a native of France, and his mother of Prussia; John spent much of his boyhood at work in a small vineyard owned by his father; in 1844, he went to France, where he spent a short time at farming, then returned to his home and spent about eight months more in his father's vineyard; in 1847, he returned a second time to France, and continued his stay for about a year before he returned to Prussia; in 1850, he set sail for America, and landed in New York in August of that year; thence, in September, to Oshkosh, where he spent the winter; in the spring of 1857, he removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he soon began keeping hotel, which he continued for about four years; in 1854, he purchased a farm of fifty acres in the town of Lamartine, which he controlled in connection with his work at the Fond du Lac House in the city; in July, 1870, he bought the "Four Mile" House, of which he was proprietor for eight years; then changed it into a private residence, where he still makes his home. He was married to Miss Catharine, daughter of John and Anna C. Orleges, of Fond du Lac, in November, 1853, she being a native of Germany; they have three children—John H. (now a teacher of Fond du Lac Co.), Julia (deceased), Regina. They are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

CHRISTIAN F. PADE, foreman on the first floor in C. J. L. Meyer's sash, door and blind factory; is a native of Prussia, where he was born in 1832; he learned the cabinet-maker's trade, which he followed there till 1852, when he emigrated to America and settled at Fond du Lac in the same year; here he followed the carpenter and joiner's trade till 1862, when he was employed by Mr. Meyer, as foreman of the sawing and planing department of the sash, door and blind factory. In 1854 he married Miss Paulena Arns, of Fond du Lac, she being a native of Holstein, Germany, born in 1833; they have four children—Bertha, Herman, Henry and Minnie. The family are all members of the Lutheran Church.

SPENCER PALMER, printer; was born at Lodi, Wis., July 7, 1849; in 1850, went with his parents to Onartown, Sheboygan Co.; lived there five years, at Cascade three years, at Dundee, in this county, two years, and then settled at Waucousta; in 1870, Mr. P. began the printer's trade, and has followed it most of the time since, spending one year in Appleton before coming to Fond du Lac; he is now proprietor of a job printing office on First street. He was married at Huntington, Ind., Feb. 12, 1875, to Lillie E. Varney, born in Vermont; they have one child—Gracie E.

ARTHUR D. PARKER, superintendent of Sherry's saw-mill, also general agent for the counties of Fond du Lac, Winnebago and Sheboygan, for the sale of white bronze monuments, manufactured at Bridgeport, Conn., by Schuyler, Parsons, London & Co.; is a native of the East Province of Quebec, Canada, where he was born in 1836; came to Wisconsin in 1857, and settled in Washington Co., where he followed saw-milling for two years; thence he went to California in 1859; in 1867 he returned to Wisconsin and settled at Fond du Lac, where he has since been mostly engaged in lumbering and saw-milling. In 1867 he married Miss Caroline Kneeland, of Hartford, Wis.; they have three children—Charles A., Edna E. and Andrew A. Mr. Parker has been a member of the Royal Arcanum since Jan. 1, 1879.

FRANCIS F. PARSONS, market gardener and small-fruit grower, a son of John and Elizabeth Parsons, born in Bridgewater, England, March 25, 1830; in August, 1843, he, with parents, landed in New York, as immigrants to America—thence to Mackinaw, where they intended to take the boat for Racine, Wis.; the boat having left before they could reach it, they took passage on another for Green Bay, where his father purchased an Indian pony and took the trail for Fond du Lac; here he made the acquaintance of Dr. Darling, by whom he was induced to make this his home; he entered 120 acres in the town of Byron, where he with his two sons immediately began building a log house; having got the work fairly started, he left his boys to complete it while he returned to Green Bay for the rest of his family; returning with them before the house was finished, they improvised things as best they could; here Francis made his home for some time; his first business was that of a local agent at Fond du Lac, for the Wisconsin Stage Company; he next was in the employ of the American Express Company; in 1858, he bought a farm of 100 acres in the town of Byron, on which he made his home till 1863, when he removed to the city of Fond du Lac, and there kept a flour and feed store for three years; in 1865, he purchased a farm of fifteen acres in Sec. 10, town of Fond du Lac, joining the city limits, where he is now engaged in market gardening and small-fruit growing. Jan. 6, 1857, he married Miss Sarah, daughter of Riley and Mary Shepard, who died in January, 1863. He was married to Miss Hattie, daughter of Johnnie and Elizabeth Bevier, of Fond du Lac, in March, 1864, she being a native of Elmira, but immigrated to this State with parents in 1844; they have two sons, Harry and Frank. Mr. Parsons and wife are members of the Methodist Church. Mr. P. is a member of the I. O. O. F.

BENJAMIN STOCKTON PATTY, son of John Patty and Sarah Stockton, was born at Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1815; after completing his education at the best schools in that part of the State, he entered the employment of his father, who was the most extensive tanner in that section of the country. In that early day transportation was done by teams, and in this way he traveled through New York, Pennsylvania and Canada, selling goods and attending to collections; later, devoting a portion of his time to farming, but still attending to his father's collections. Oct. 23, 1839, he married Susannah Y. Blythe, daughter of George Blythe and Margaret Patty, of Ithaca, N. Y. After his marriage, Mr. Patty devoted his entire time, for a number of years, to farming at Little Sodus Bay, N. Y.; in 1850, he moved into the town, and, besides the charge of two large farms, took the contract for grading the Auburn & Sodus Bay R. R., at the same time entering into the hotel business at that place—this was his first experience as a "host." In 1855, he moved to Woodstock, McHenry Co., Ill., which was at that time the terminus of the Chicago & North-Western Ry.; there he took the Woodstock House and established its reputation as the leading hotel in Northern Illinois. In 1860, he moved still further north to Fond du Lac, Wis., at that time a place of about five thousand inhabitants, Oshkosh being then the northern terminus of the railroad; still pursuing the hotel business, to which he found himself particularly adapted, he leased the Lewis House, which then stood on the ground now occupied by the Patty House; in 1863, he purchased the property. Four years later, the Lewis House was destroyed by fire, but before it was fairly consumed Mr. Patty had planned the erection of the finest hotel in this part of the country, and, without waiting for the embers to cool, he commenced clearing away the debris and perfecting the plans of the present Patty House, which he opened to the public June 9, 1868. He lived to enjoy this result of his labors for three years dispensing the hospitalities of the house with that open hand and genial manner which won the friendship of whoever came within his doors. Mr. Patty felt a justifiable pride in the completion of this undertaking, the result of his own efforts and enterprise, placing him as it did in the front rank of the hotel men of the Northwest. But, beyond this, he felt he had done something for the credit and benefit of Fond du Lac. Strangers coming into a place are, to a very great extent, impressed favorably or otherwise by the appearance and treatment of the hotels. This was Mr. Patty's thought, and he felt that in building the Patty House he had added to the architectural attractions of the place, and had provided accommodations that would make the town attractive to every stranger who came hither; thus, in constructing the Patty House, he aided materially in bringing Fond du Lac into good repute, and, probably, no one enterprise was ever started and completed in this city that gave a greater impetus to the city's reputation than the erection of this mammoth and imposing hostelry. He was not long permitted to enjoy the fruits of his anxious care and indomitable labors, for, on the 25th of January, 1871, he was suddenly stricken down with dropsy of the heart, and expired on the 28th, after an illness of but three days. So, after an honorable, active and useful career, he departed this life at the early age of 55, leaving behind him a host of mourning friends, a wife and three children. The family now consists of Mrs. Susannah Y. Patty, Margaret H. (now Mrs. O. D. Siekler, of Redwood Falls, Minn.), George H. and John R. Patty—the former residing with her sons, who are still keeping the Patty House at Fond du Lac. As a man, Mr. Patty possessed, in a marked degree, those qualities which endear men to their fellows; no man in the community was more loved and respected by all than he; he was the friend of any one who stood in need; his doors were always wide open to the distressed, and he gave with a generous hand to any cause that appealed to his sympathies; liberal in his subscriptions and support of the various denominations of the church, he confined his generosity to no sect or creed. As a citizen, neighbor, friend, husband and father he richly won this proudest epitaph: "Take him for all in all, he was a man."

GEORGE H. PATTY, of the firm of Patty Bros., proprietors of the Patty House; was born at Sodus Bay, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Oct. 9, 1844; son of Benjamin S. Patty, who built the present Patty House; he came to Fond du Lac in 1860; was in the hotel business with his father for some years; proprietor of a livery stable three years prior to 1871; and in August, 1873, became one of the proprietors of the Patty House. He was married at Fond du Lac, March, 1872, to Kate Seaver, a native of Janesville, Wis.; they have one daughter, Alice.

ANDREW PAYNE, livery stable proprietor; was born in Warminster, England, Feb. 11, 1815; came to America, to Prescott, Canada, in 1828; he was engaged in sailing upon the lakes fourteen years; was master of a vessel two years; came to Sheboygan, Wis., in 1846, where he engaged in the grocery business; lived next at Sheboygan Falls two years, and then came to Fond du Lac in 1861, and engaged in the livery business; Mr. P. is the oldest man in that business in the city; he started a trunk factory in 1867, which he sold to D. C. Lang in 1871. He was married in Gibbssville, Sheboygan Co., Feb. 25, 1847, to Maria Johnson, a native of New York.

A. T. PERKINS, of the firm of Perkins & Clement, proprietors of the Fond du Lac Spring-Wagon Co.; was born at Delts' Mills, Jefferson Co., N. Y., in 1839; came to Fond du Lac in 1856, and clerked in a grocery store for two years; he then went into the bakery and confectionery business under the name of Perkins & Morrison, which continued for three years, when he bought out Mr. Morrison and continued the business alone till 1865; disposing of his bakery business, he next ran a transfer line in the city till 1874; he then became a member of the present firm. In 1862, he married Miss Lizzie Dewrose, daughter of Charles Dewrose, a farmer of Omro, Winnebago Co., Wis.; she died in 1864, leaving one son, Charles. Oct. 15, 1868, he married Miss Jemima Lewis, daughter of William Lewis, molder, of Oshkosh; they have one child, Hattie. Mr. P. has been a Mason since 1864. He and his wife are members of the M. E. Church.

HON. GEORGE PERKINS, County Judge; was born at Montrose, Susquehanna Co., Penn., May 8, 1820, whence he removed to Luzerne Co. in that State, and to Ripon, Wis., in 1855; the next year he entered the mercantile business at Brandon, Wis., but returned to Ripon in 1858, where he practiced law until he enlisted in Co. B, 41st W. V. I., in the spring of 1864, as Second Lieutenant; he was mustered out as such; he returned to Ripon, and in 1864 was elected District Attorney; he then removed to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided, holding the office of District Attorney six years; City Comptroller one year, and County Judge since 1877. He was married in Connecticut to Abby Perkins, a native of that State, by whom he had three children—Eleanor P., now Mrs. H. J. Gerphelde, and two who are deceased. He was married a second time, June, 1870, at Windham, Conn., to Emeline Larrabee, a native of that place; they have three children—George B., Fannie G. and Jed B. While at Ripon, Judge P. was City Clerk one term, and is now Trustee of the Fond du Lac Public Library.

JAMES B. PERRY, bank cashier; was born at Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 25, 1835, and came, with his parents, Nathaniel and Margaret Perry, to Taycheedah in 1812; at the age of 14, Mr. P. entered the Register's office, in which he remained six years, being deputy several years; in May, 1855, he became connected with the Bank of the Northwest, in which he was book-keeper, teller, assistant, cashier and cashier, continuing with the concern when it was re-organized into the present First National Bank, and in which he has been cashier since 1866 and Director since 1875. Mr. Perry is one of the most active members of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, in which he has been Senior Warden ten years, and is now the Treasurer of the Diocese of Fond du Lac. He was married, at Fond du Lac, Sept. 26, 1864, to Clara N., daughter of Wm. and P. N. Carey; they have two boys, aged, respectively, 13 and 7 years.

JOHN CLITZ PERRY was born at Green Bay, Wis., April 10, 1831; lived there with his father, Nathaniel Perry, until 1837, when the family moved to Winnebago Rapids, now Neenah; in 1842, Mr. Perry moved to Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., where he kept hotel and resided until his death in 1850. Mrs. Perry, J. C.'s mother, died two weeks after the burial of her husband. J. C. Perry began clerking in a store at Neenah in 1848, where he remained until 1860. In November, 1861, he enlisted in Co. K., 11th W. V. I., and served three and one-half years in that regiment, most of the time in detached service; from July, 1862, he was in the Brigade Quartermaster's department; after being mustered out in 1865, Mr. Perry returned to Neenah, but, soon after, returned to Louisville, Ky., and remained four months in the Quartermaster's department; in the fall of 1866, engaged in the banking business with Rudolph Elbert, at Fond du Lac, establishing the German American Savings Bank; in January, 1880, Mr. Perry severed his connection with this bank and entered the First National Bank of Fond du Lac, as correspondent. He was married, June 22, 1856, at Neenah, to Miss Susan A. Jones; they have three children—C. L., now Mrs. W. I. Way, of Topeka, Kan.; C. Frederick and Susie A., who live at home.

MARTIN PETRIE, proprietor freight line; was born in Prussia July 19, 1830; came to Calumet, this county, with his parents, in 1847; came from there to Fond du Lac in 1852, and, for four years, was engaged in freighting between this place and Milwaukee; now he is engaged in the local freight business. Mr. P. was married, at Fond du Lac, May 6, 1854, to Martha Trauthfetter, born in Saxony; they have four children—Emma F., William J., Edwin J. and Nettie. He is a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge, and, for several years, was connected with the German-English Academy.

C. J. PETTIBONE, dry-goods merchant.

WM. MICHAEL PHELAN, son of Michael Phelan and Martha Colclough, farmer; born April 27, 1819, at Gore's Grove, County Kilkenny, Ireland; received a liberal education at a select school, under Prof. Campion; at 16 years of age was apprenticed in a general mercantile house, in the city Kilkenny, for a term of five years; after three years returned to the farm; was enrolled for military conscription during the Papineau or Patriot War, in Canada, in the year 1838; was then apprenticed to a civil engineer and surveyor named Lehy, in Thurless, County Tipperary, where he studied the higher mathematics, Euclid, etc.; both parents dying, returned to the farm and made agriculture—both practical and theoretical—and agricultural chemistry, his study and occupation for eight years, with much success; in the years 1843–15, took an active part in the repeal agitation and O'Connell monster meetings; in August, 1846, joined Smith O'Brien, Meigher and the Young Ireland party; became a revolutionist and assisted in the formation of clubs; after the fiasco in 1848, left the country and came to the United States, via Dublin and Liverpool, arriving at Fond du Lac Village Aug. 8, 1850, where he permanently settled, buying some lots in the village and a farm in the town of Eldorado; the first house he built was in what is now the Fifth Ward, in 1851. Was married in the city of Buffalo, June 22, 1853, to Margaret, daughter of Michael and Honoria M. Norton, born in Forkhill, near Gores Grove, parish of Crane, County Kilkenny, Ireland, by whom he had seven children—five boys and two girls, all born in Fond du Lac. The subject of this sketch worked as a carpenter and joiner and general contractor until opening a grocery store in one of his buildings, No. 377 Main street; also built and opened a flour and feed store, No. 300 Main street, in the year 1877; also served the city in various capacities; was elected Street Commissioner in 1853; Alderman in 1854–56 and 1862; as City or Ward Assessor about eighteen years; served as member of the County Board, School Commissioner, etc.; was elected some twenty-five times to various offices in the city, and last year, 1879, as City Assessor and School Commissioner.

C. P. PHELPS, insurance agent; was born at Ira, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Nov. 23, 1812; moved in 1842, to Mt. Pleasant, Racine Co., Wis., and, in 1845, to Section 34, Byron, where he followed farming until the fall of 1868, when he moved to Fond du Lac and engaged in the insurance business, which he has since followed. At the organization of the town of Byron in 1846, Mr. P. was elected Assessor, and served without pay; he held other town offices during nearly his entire residence in Byron. He was married at Ira, N. Y., Aug. 31, 1836, to Polly Beach, a native of that place, born Aug. 25, 1820; the children are Amelia (now Mrs. John Hecker, of Iowa), born May 23, 1839; Fernando, July 29, 1841; Mary J. (now Mrs. A. D. Clark), Oct. 10, 1844; Martha (now Mrs. A. A. Shepard), July 25, 1846; in Byron; Sarah L., Aug. 4, 1848, died May 3, 1873, and Edward W., born in Byron Dec. 9, 1864.

COL. E. L. PHILLIPS, retired; was born at Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., Feb. 16, 1800; entered Gen. Amos P. Granger's store at Syracuse at the age of 16; returned to Manlius, and was three or four years (until 1831) in his brother's store, and then began the mercantile business for himself. In 1837, was elected Sheriff of Onondaga Co., and chosen Assemblyman in 1847. After leaving the Sheriff's office, he engaged in jobbing, and then took a contract with his brother and two others to build sixty miles of the Great Western Railway, from Niagara Falls to the head of Lake Ontario; in 1848, Col. P. was appointed Canal Appraiser, serving two years; then returned one year to the railroad contract, which he finally sold to his partners, Oswald & Zimmerman, and contracted to build twenty-five miles of the Ohio & Mississippi Railway in Ohio. Col. P. was married at Manlius, N. Y., in 1825, to Harriet, daughter of Judge Tousley, who died six months later; he was married again, in 1828, to Mrs. Eleanor Jones, grand-daughter of John Flemming, of Maryland; she died in 1838, leaving one daughter, who died in 1857. Col. P. came to Fond du Lac in August, 1852, locating in Empire on the farm now owned by Mr. Wells; and his brother, Lyman Phillips, came at the same time; he engaged in farming about fifteen years. He was elected State Senator in 1860; held a Colonel's position in the New York State Militia; was Provost Marshal of this district in 1863–64, and, in 1869 or 1870, having been interested in a savings bank in Syracuse, he went to Madison and secured a charter for the Fond du Lac Savings Bank, and was for two years its President. Col. Phillips, though past 80 years of age, still looks after his farms, which are tilled by tenants.

COL. COLWERT K. PIER. On the 7th day of June, 1841, nearly thirty-nine years ago, there was a sensation in sparsely inhabited Fond du Lac. On that day, there came to Fond du Lac Co.—then known as Brown Co.—the first white twins born within its borders, a boy and a girl. They were gladly welcomed in the family of Edward Pier, the first white man to locate in what is now the second city of a great State. At that time (1841), there were not to exceed twenty white families in what at present constitutes a county of at least fifty-five thousand inhabitants. These new-comers, these pioneer twins, were named, respectively, Colwert K. and Carrie S. The baby boy of thirty-eight years ago is the subject of this sketch. He has always made Fond du Lac his home and now lives on the same farm his father commenced in 1836, or forty-four years ago, and the record shows only one transaction in that time, namely, from Edward Pier to Colwert K. Pier. It is perhaps the only piece of property in the entire county whose record is similarly made up.

There are at this time four members of the late Hon. Edward Pier's family, as follows: Mrs. Anna P. Carpenter, wife of J. W. Carpenter, who resides at Pine River, Waushara Co., Wis.; Mrs. Ruth R. Harvey, wife of L. J. Harvey, who resides in Fond du Lac, and Mrs. Carrie S. Skinner, wife of H. R. Skinner, also a resident of Fond du Lac. Mrs. Carpenter taught the subject of this sketch his letters. He worked on a farm during the spring, summer and autumn, and attended district school winters, until he arrived at the age of 16 years. An apt scholar in all branches, he, however, excelled in mathematics, composition and elocution. He was generally accorded the leadership by his associates, who usually were his seniors in age. The speaking-schools and debating-clubs were places of great attraction to young Pier, and he seldom attended one in which he did not participate. As a financier, Mr. Pier's first experience dates back to his early boyhood, when, on election day, terms of court, circus occasions, and the Fourth of July, he industriously peddled apples and pop-corn. This branch of trade, during the occasions indicated, he successfully followed from the time he was 12 until he had reached the age of 16 years, at which time he was sent to Lombard University, Galesburg, Ill. Having a taste for the law, he soon commenced preparations to enter upon that honored profession. He studied first in the office of the late Judge Robert Flint, in this city. It was while in Judge Flint's office, industriously storing his mind with legal lore, that the nation was startled by the fall of Fort Sumter, and the surrender of Maj. Anderson. The news was made known in Fond du Lac through extras and from the various pulpits. On that memorable Sunday evening, young Pier and Christie Klock, a neighbor's son, spent an hour or more in discussing the all-absorbing topic. At the end of that time, both had come to the conclusion that it was their duty to enlist. Early Monday morning, when young Klock (since Capt. Klock, and now a successful sheep-raiser in Texas), came along, they went to the office of Col. S. E. Leferts and signed the muster-roll, Pier's name appearing first, and Klock's second. There is no record to show that he was not the first man in Fond du Lac Co. to enroll his name as a volunteer in the war of the rebellion. Indeed, it may be recorded that this young law-student, not yet 20 years of age, was the first in the county to offer his services. The company was not long in filling up, and was known as Co. I, 1st W. V. I., three-months men. It became a part of Maj. Gen. Patterson's army, and it was at Falling Waters that young Pier, a private soldier, listened to the songs of bullets and shell. At the end of the term for which the regiment was sworn in, Mr. Pier accompanied a sick comrade to New York, and very soon afterward entered Albany Law School; from there he returned to Fond du Lac, and entered the law office of the late James M. Gillet and Judge W. D. Conklin. While he made excellent progress in his studies, he nevertheless gave but little time to them, being full of the war spirit, participating in all of the demonstrations and taking a deep interest in the formation of every new company. While in this office, he organized a military company under the State law; the company elected him Captain. At that time the political cauldron was boiling hoisterously. Violent political opponents of the Captain joined in a written protest to Gov. Harvey, to withhold his commission. The contest became decidedly bitter, but the Governor sent him the commission. Capt. Pier afterward organized nine other companies into a regiment whose commissioned officers elected him Colonel, the Governor losing no time in forwarding him a commission as such. By a vote of the men in this regiment, it was tendered by the Colonel to the General Government, but, supposing the war nearly over and no additional troops would be required, Gen. Frey declined the offer. This was a sad disappointment to the boy-Colonel, for such he was, being only a little past 21 years of age, and in his disappointment he was joined by his officers and men, who had become great admirers of their young commander.

When General Grant assumed command of all the armies, Wisconsin was called upon for three new regiments, and Governor Lewis issued an order for the formation of the 36th, 37th and 38th. By this time Col. Pier had pretty much abandoned the idea of re-entering the service. Toward evening, one day, soon after the new regiments were ordered, and while he was busily engaged in his duties, a messenger handed him a telegram from Madison. It read: "Will you accept a commission as Lieutenant Colonel of the 35th Regiment? Answer immediately." It was a great surprise; ten minutes later he had found his father and shown him the dispatch. After reading it and reflecting a moment, the veteran ex-Senator said: "You had better hear what mother says about it; if she is willing, I will not object to your accepting it." The pioneer mother was sick in bed; the son approached her and read the dispatch; her eyes filled with tears; with a trembling voice she said: "Do as you think best, my boy; I will be satisfied with your decision." In less than half an hour from the receipt of the dispatch, these words were sent to the Governor: "I will accept." This incident was related to the writer by Col. Pier many years ago, and when he reads this sketch he will learn for the first time that it was not forgotten by his friend. In a few days the Lieutenant Colonel was busily engaged in organizing his new command; many of his old regiment re-joined him, and in a remarkably short space of time five full companies were ready to start for the scene of action, to join the Army of the Potomac, leaving the Colonel, Adjutant and Quartermaster to fill up the other companies and join them later, which they did in the fall. They joined Grant in the memorable Wilderness campaign at White House Landing; there three consolidated companies of the gallant Minnesota 1st were joined to his command, making it larger than almost any of the regiments in that army which had been so roughly handled in the bloody contests of that year; he was first engaged at Cold Harbor, where not a few of his men gave up their lives. From that time until the surrender of Gen. Lee, Col. Pier was a participant in all of Grant's battles. He fought his regiment most gallantly, soon winning a reputation for coolness and undaunted bravery in action. In the never-to-be-forgotten charges and countercharges at Petersburg, on the 18th of June, 1864, Col. Pier was grazed by a bullet on the forehead, was shot in the fleshy portion of the leg, and an ugly fragment of a shell hit him on the instep, the latter giving him much pain, but the three failed to drive him from the field, though the loss of blood greatly weakened him. In the early Petersburg engagements his regiment met with fearful losses. A sharpshooter made the Colonel his especial target one day, in front of Petersburg, but did him no more harm than to shoot away one of the silver leaves on his coat. During the Weldon Railroad fight, late in August, 1864, his regiment did splendid service, being at one time nearly surrounded and receiving a most galling fire. It was during this battle that he received a letter from home announcing his mother's death. In an engagement on the left of Petersburg, late in September, the regiment was flanked; it was a part of the force supporting a battery; the rebels came pouring down upon the infantry at a double-quick. The horses of the battery had fled to the rear with the caissons, leaving the guns at the mercy of the enemy. Seeing the danger, Col. Pier, without orders, commanded a small part of the 38th to save the guns, which it did by hauling them away by means of the drag-ropes, while the balance of the regiment faced the oncoming rebels and peppered them unmercifully. Beside saving the guns, the 38th captured several of the enemy, so close was the contest. Lieut. Col. Pier was division officer of the day, and answered the signal the 20th of January, on that part of the line in front of Petersburg, when Vice-President Alexander Stephens and Mr. Campbell, the Confederate Commissioners, made their appearance with a flag of truce, seeking entrance to our lines on the way to meet President Lincoln, Secretary Seward and other members of the Cabinet at City Point. Col. Bintliff arrived with the other five companies and assumed command of the regiment; Lieut. Col. Pier was assigned to the 109th N. Y. V. L., they having lost all field officers. This was a trying position; there never was the most cordial feeling between Wisconsin and New York troops, at best. The New Yorkers were indignant, and not at all backward in making the fact known. But for the fact that the new commander was soon called upon to lead his New Yorkers in a fight, where his coolness and bravery were conspicuous and won for him the respect and confidence of most of the officers and men, it is likely that he would have had serious trouble. As it was, he became very popular with the regiment, and, at the end of the war, the officers and men presented him with a handsome horse and saddle, and their pride in their Wisconsin commander was so great that they insisted on his returning to Glouira with them when mustered out. Col. Pier led this regiment in the charge on Fort Mahone, at Petersburg, April 2, 1865, and was in command during the active operations of that eventful day.

L. Heilmann M. L.

(NEW CASSEL.)

When not in active campaigns, while the army was in front of Petersburg, Col. Pier was usually on duty at division or corps headquarters, as President of a general court martial. After the regiment moved to Washington, he performed similar duties at Gen. Auzar's headquarters up to August, 1865. When Col. James Bintliff was mustered out of service, Pier was commissioned Colonel, but, owing to the lack of a sufficient number of men, and the fact that the struggle was over, he was not mustered as such. His army record is a proud one; entering the army a private in 1861, he returned to his home with honorable scars, a splendid fighting record, and with a Colonel's commission in his pocket. He and the balance of the regiment were mustered out on the 15th of August, 1865. That same year, he commenced the practice of his profession, the firm being Gillet, Conklin & Pier; afterward Gillet & Pier; then Gillet, Pier & Bass, and then alone until 1874, when he entered the Savings Bank; he soon took high rank as a lawyer, being very successful, and winning an enviable reputation. Col. Pier was married to Miss Kate Hamilton, of Fond du Lac, on the 25th of June, 1866; they have four children—Kate H., Carrie H., Harriet H., and Mary H. In July, 1873, in consequence of a serious injury to his father, who was President of the Savings Bank, and the failing health of Hon. E. H. Galloway, the Vice President, Col. Pier entered the bank. The call from his chosen profession to these new duties was sudden, and at a most trying time, for it will be remembered that that was the year in which the distressing financial panic came; the panic, and the death of both Mr. Galloway and his father, threw an immense responsibility upon his shoulders; the handling of a half-million deposits and equal discounts, at such a time, was by no means a trifling affair; but the Savings Bank went through the great panic without a quiver. The great depression in business was particularly severe on Fond du Lac; while many sought to draw their capital out of business channels, then so precarious, Col. Pier, on the contrary, tried to keep the wheels in motion and the laboring people employed, and, through the Business Men's Association, which he was a leader in establishing, to unite and solidify what business was left. The Mihills Manufacturing Company, the Fond du Lac Harrow Company and the Fond du Lac Building Association gave employment to over three hundred people. But for his business tact, confidence, courage and capital, it is quite safe to say that these several enterprises would not have been established nor maintained, and most of these people been obliged to seek employment out of the city; he and those who co-operated with him in continuing the business at so much risk, will never receive the meed of praise to which they are justly entitled; he and they could have used their capital at much less risk and care, and, doubtless, with more profit. Col. Pier has never been a politician, in the common acceptation of the term, but on several occasions has taken an active part, on the stump and in organizing for victory; he is an easy, pleasant and forcible speaker. He has never sought office, and it is not likely that he will; in politics he is a Republican. He has always taken a deep interest in everything that pertains to the welfare of the men who fought in the late war. He has been a Trustee of the Soldiers' Orphan's Home a longer term than any other one, having been appointed the second year it was founded and held the position ever since; he has been Secretary for many years, and is now Vice President. He is at present President of the Wisconsin Soldiers' Re-union Association, and to him, more than to any other man, should be given the credit of bringing about the great Re-union and the interest growing out of the subject. His pen has been tireless the past year in agitating the question that is of so much interest to the old soldiers. His "Soldier Chapters," printed in the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph and elsewhere, are by far the best that have ever been produced in Wisconsin. In this connection, it is proper to state that the Colonel is a good writer, as well as a thorough business man and eloquent speaker. While in the three-months service, he wrote highly interesting letters to the Saturday Reporter, of Fond du Lac. In 1870, he bought a two-thirds interest in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, and, for a year or more, frequently contributed to its editorial columns. He retained an interest in the paper, as a matter of accommodation, until 1874. Col. Pier is public spirited, contributes liberally to the poor, and is a warm friend of all benevolent enterprises. "Act right" is his religion, and "Charity" his precept; the balance he confidently leaves to Him who doeth all things well.

JOHN C. PIERRON, proprietor of the Fond du Lac Boiler Works; is a native of France; born in 1829; came to America in 1848, and lived at Syracuse, N. Y., till 1851, when he returned to France; remaining there about six months, he came again to Syracuse, N. Y., where he lived for nearly two years; in 1854, came to Milwaukee and made that his home till the spring of 1856, when he moved to Fond du Lac and began boiler manufacturing, which he continued till 1858; he then returned to Milwaukee and worked in the shops of the Milwaukee & La Crosse Railroad for eight months, when he came again to Fond du Lac and for a short time was employed in the shops of the C. & N.-W. Ry., but was soon transferred to the C. & N.-W. Ry. shops at Chicago, remaining there from 1859 to 1862, when, for the third time, he returned to Fond du Lac and again established the boiler works of which he has since been proprietor. In 1854, he married Miss Adeline Prudon, of Milwaukee; they have two children—Florence A. R., and John C. Mr. Pierron has been a member of the City Council from Fifth Ward; at various times member of the County Board, and was elected City Treasurer in the spring of 1873.

E. R. POWERS, farmer; is the son of Jonathan and R. Powers, natives of New York. E. R. was born in Erie Co., N. Y., in 1836, and, at the age of 10 years, came to Fond du Lac Co., traveling the whole distance, except crossing the Lake, with a team and wagon. His intention was to settle in Winnebago Co., but after reaching it, and not being pleased with the prospects, they returned to Fond du Lac July 5, 1847, and pre-empted eighty acres of land in Section 17, town of Fond du Lac, to which they afterward added 120 acres. His father dying in 1868, the land has been divided among his heirs, of which E. R. has seventy acres, valued at $75 per acre. In 1862, he married Miss Sarah, daughter of John and Harriet Silver, of Michigan, but a native of Canada; they have one daughter, Rose. Mrs. Powers is a member of the Baptist Church.

DE WITT CLINTON PRIEST, attorney; was born in Brownville, Jefferson Co., N. Y., where he lived until coming to Fond du Lac, Dec. 5, 1857; Mr. P. located on the site where his fine house now is, in 1858, and has since resided upon it, engaged continuously in the practice of law. He was married, in New York, to Susan T. Joy, a native of Orleans, Jefferson Co., in that State. They have two children—Charles H. and Edward B.

JAMES K. PUMPELLY, artist; was born at Owego, Toga Co., N. Y., April 25, 1831, where he resided until coming to Fond du Lac, first on a visit in 1857, and then to establish a home in 1859. In 1862, Mr. P. helped raise Co. H., 32d W. V. I., of which he served as First Lieutenant two years and a half, being mustered out in the fall of 1864. After leaving the army, he engaged in farming five years; then turned his attention to art, and is now engaged in painting, making portraits in India ink or colored crayon. Mr. P. was married in September, 1862, to Eliza W., daughter of the late Gov. Samuel W. Beall; she was born at Cooperstown, N. Y., and her mother, the late Elizabeth Fenimore Cooper Beall, was a near relative of James Fenimore Cooper; they have had one child, now deceased.

ALBERT G. PURDY, lumberman; is a native of Bennington Co., Vt.; born in 1837; when 3 years old, with parents, Graham and Hannah Purdy, he removed to Erie Co., Penn., where he spent the balance of his time till 18 years of age. In 1855, he came to Door Co., Wis., spent the summer, and then returned to Vermont. In 1856, he came a second time to Wisconsin, and settled in the city of Fond du Lac, where, for one year, he was engaged in the grocery business. He then began saw-milling and lumbering, which he continued most of the time till 1871. In 1862, he joined the U. S. Navy of the Mississippi, under Commodore Porter, and served one year. He returned, then, to Fond du Lac, and resumed his business. In 1871, he formed a copartnership with Edward Squires, and, for the next year, was engaged in the manufacture of carriages. He then resumed the lumber trade, and is now operating in Pierce Co., Wis. In 1858, he was married to Miss Euphemia, daughter of George H. and Mary Curtis, nee Thomas, then of Outagamie Co., Wis., but a native of New York; their children are John R. (now at Oshkosh), Albert H., Ella and Georgia.

HENRY RAHTE, Sr., wholesale liquor dealer; born in the Kingdom of Hanover in December, 1819, where his father owned a large estate; after attending college at Wunsen, he became entry clerk in a wholesale dry-goods house in the city of Hanover, where he remained four years, being afterward a salesman in Brunswick, Breslau and Leipzig; at the age of 23, he started a woolen and silk factory for ladies' dresses, in the Kingdom of Saxony, in which he was successful, employing as high as 500 men; when the Revolution of 1847 broke out, he was compelled to abandon his factory, and, in 1849, came to America, intending to engage in farming; after spending some time in New York and Milwaukee, he purchased the Edward Pier farm, a portion of which is now in the fair grounds south of Fond du Lac, and, after making some improvements, started a distillery the same year, 1849; he made whisky from wheat, which he purchased of the neighboring farmers at from 30 to 40 cents per bushel; two years later, finding the distillery did not pay, Mr. Rahte abandoned it and bought out Hugo Peters, next to R. A. Baker's bank, and began the wholesale liquor business; in 1856, he sold out to Rupp & Bro., and went to France and England for the purpose of forming business connections to open a wholesale liquor house in Chicago. The outlook being unsatisfactory on his return, he came to Fond du Lac and began the same business with his brother-in-law, Franz Lauenstein, having a branch house at Oshkosh for one year; at the end of two years, he sold out to Mr. Lauenstein, and made a trip to Italy and Sicily, after which the two again started a distillery on Ingram's place; since that time, he has carried on the wholesale liquor business in his own name. He was married in Germany, in 1844, to Maria Lauenstein; they have nine children, of whom the oldest is 33 and the youngest 14 years of age.

HENRY RAHTE, Jr., was born in Fond du Lac Feb. 15, 1851, which has always been his home. He enlisted in Battery K, 1st Light Artillery, regular army, in which he served from 1867 to 1870; in the fall of 1870, he opened a beer hall, which business he has since followed. He was married at Fond du Lac, July 29, 1873, to Henrietta Puße, born also in this city; they have two children—Norbert A. and Walter. Mr. Rahte is a member of the Concordia Society, Turner Society and Druids.

DON A. RAYMOND, M. D., son of Ebenezer and Rebecca Raymond; was born at Warren, Washington Co., Vt., Sept. 10, 1818; educated in his native town at the academy at Montpelier, Vt., and at the Randolph Academy; in 1845, he graduated from the Castleton Medical College; after two years' practice in his native town, while settling his father's estate, he removed to Canton, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., where he remained three years, when he was appointed Surgeon of the State Prison in Clinton Co., N. Y., and remained there three and a half years; in November, 1853, he removed to Wisconsin, and came to Fond du Lac in January, 1854, where he has since remained; in 1861, soon after the outbreak of the war, he entered the service of the United States as Surgeon of the 3d W. V. I., acting most of the time as Brigade Surgeon, however; after one and a half year's service, his health failed, and he was compelled to resign; he returned home, and, after recruiting his health, resumed practice. In his professional capacity he is one of the oldest and best exponents of the science of medicine in this part of the State, and is justly entitled to a prominent place among the best physicians; he has performed a prodigious amount of professional labor; his health has been considerably impaired by overwork, and he has been obliged to decline much business proffered to him. May 15, 1850, he was married to Miss Maria R. Foote, by whom he has two daughters—Ella J. (now Mrs. George Frank, of Madison, Wis.) and Emma (now Mrs. Frank Kuapp, of Fond du Lac). His wife was born at Canton, N. Y., in June, 1823, and died Sept. 28, 1874.

W. A. READER, undertaker; was born at Columbus, Ohio, March 11, 1838, and came with his father, A. W. Reader, to Fond du Lac Sept. 24, 1855. He enlisted May 5, 1861, in Co. E, 6th W. V. I. as Orderly Sergeant, but was promoted to First Lieutenant and transferred to Co. G same regiment, soon after; he was discharged on account of sickness in November, 1862. In January, 1863, he became associated with his father under the firm name of A. W. Reader & Son, continuing with him until June, 1864, since which time he has carried on the business alone. Mr. R. was married at Fond du Lac July 5, 1859, to Catherine R., who was born in Green Bay, Wis., daughter of F. D. McCarty, one of the earliest settlers of Fond du Lac, now a resident of Milwaukee; they have two children—Frank D., born Aug. 13, 1860, and George B., Oct. 20, 1865.

JOHN W. REYNOLDS, son of John Reynolds, a resident of the city, was born at Bowersville, Erie Co., N. Y., Dec. 14, 1852; came with his parents to Fond du Lac when 3 years of age; the family spent one winter in the city and then removed to a farm, spending twelve years in Oakfield, Alt. and Bron, returning then to the city. John W. spent most of his time in school until beginning the grocery business, which he followed seven years as a clerk and the last four years as a member of the firms of Reynolds & Lee and Reynolds & Olmsted. He was married in Fond du Lac, May 1, 1878, to Emma J., daughter of Jacob Ward, born in this city; they have one son—Wallace E., born May 3, 1879.

DANIEL G. RICHARDSON, farmer; is a son of Abijah and Elsie C. Richardson, of Pelham, Rockingham Co., N. H.; born May 18, 1822; Daniel spent the first seventeen years of his life on his father's farm, where he followed milk and gardening in the city of Lowell, Mass., which was only four miles distant; in 1840, he began engineering on the railroad from Lowell to Rouse's Point, which he followed for more than thirteen years; he also ran the first train over the White Mountains. He is the gentleman who first suggested the idea of putting the bell cord through the cars instead of having it pass over the top as is formerly did. In February, 1854, he came to Fond du Lac, Wis., and began engineering on the North Western Railroad, which he continued till 1855, at which time he began farming, and has since devoted his attention to agricultural pursuits; he now owns 122 acres, 88 acres of which are in Sec. 7, town of Fond du Lac, the rest being in Sec. 12 in the town of Lamartine, worth about $70 per acre. April 24, 1845, he married Miss Mary J., daughter of Moses and Deborah Holt, of Pembroke, N. H.; they have three children—Daniel H., of Fond du Lac; Harriet M., now Mrs. James Curran, of Fond du Lac; George A., who married Miss Elizabeth, daughter of John and Ann Searly, of Fond du Lac, April 25, 1878.

ALFRED ROBBINS, of the firm of Bullis & Robbins, livery-stable proprietors; was born in Fredonia, N. Y., whence, in 1850, he went to California, remaining there until 1859, when he came to Fond du Lac; in 1860, he began to deal in grain, which was continued until 1866, when he entered the livery business with N. L. Bullis, which he has since continued.

CHARLES W. ROBERTSON was born in the town of Edinburg, Saratoga Co., N. Y., May 11, 1839; resided there until he was 14 years of age, then went with his parents to Canada, where he resided until he came to Shoboygan, Wis., in 1858; lived there two years, then moved to Ontonagon, Mich., in the copper mining region, where he was engaged in dealing in groceries, provisions, etc., beside carrying on a butchering business there eight years; he then came to Fond du Lac, arriving here in October, 1868; for seven years since coming here, he was shipping stock and produce to the mining country in Northern Michigan; since then he has been pressing hay and shipping it to the same region. Mr. R. was married at Woodstock, Ont., in September, 1854, to Jane Beath, a native of Scotland; they have three children living—Eli M. O., Lulu C. and Jennie M.; they lost one son, who died at Ontonagon, aged 20 months.

J. F. ROBLEE, retired farmer, is a son of Thomas and Laura Roblee, of Washington Co., N. Y., born in December, 1819, his parents being descendants of the early immigrants to that county from France; Jay received his early education in the district schools of his native county, after which he attended the academy of North Granville, N. Y.; he followed farming in Washington Co. from the time he quit school until 1842, when he came to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm in Milwaukee Co. for about two years, whence, in 1845, he removed to Fond du Lac Co., and entered a farm of 160 acres in the township of Byron; here, with an ox team, he broke out a small part of this farm at first, and built a board shanty, which served as a home for three years; in 1848, he sold this farm, and bought another in the town of Lamartine, making the latter his home until 1854; he traded it for a farm of 435 acres in Secs. 19, 20 and 30 in Fond du Lac Township; here he continued his agricultural pursuits until 1871, when he retired from active life and moved to the city of Fond du Lac. He was married, April 11, 1846, in the town of Lamartine, to Miss Eliza, daughter of Wanton and Fannie Hall, of Hartford, Washington Co., N. Y.; they have had four children—E. Jane (now Mrs. David Downing, of Fond du Lac), Joseph E. (who married Miss Effie Crofoot, daughter of Alva Crofoot), Laura A. (deceased), and Ellen N. Mr. Roblee and family are members of the Methodist Church.

FELIX RODGERS, boot and shoe maker, was born in Ireland June 4, 1824; learned his trade in his native country, and came to America in 1850; settled at Dover, N. J., where he resided until 1852, when he moved to Fond du Lac; in 1861, he enlisted in Co. C, 17th W. V. I.; was discharged at Corinth, Miss., on account of disability, after which he returned to Fond du Lac, and for two years and six months did nothing, on account of ruined health caused by exposure while in the army. He married Miss Catharine Durkin, of Fond du Lac, Jan. 2, 1855, who died Feb. 27, 1867, leaving two children—Ann and Felix. Nov. 15, 1875, he married Mrs. Jane Galvin, by whom he has one daughter—Mary Ann. Mr. Rodgers is a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, also a member of the Total Abstinence Society connected with his church; he owns some property, and his wife owned some in the city before their marriage.

WILLIAM ROLOFF, proprietor of the Central market; was born in Prussia April 11, 1817; came to Mayville, Wis., in 1865; removed to Beaver Dam soon after, and came to Fond du Lac in 1869, where he has been engaged in his present business ever since. He was married at Fond du Lac Sept. 4, 1873, to Mary Albrecht, a native of Dantzic, Germany; they have one child—Nora. Mr. Roloff is a member of the Sons of Hermann.

FRANK HARVEY RONDO, was born at Rouse's Point, N. Y., April 10, 1844; came from there to Fond du Lac in 1862; worked for three years in a saw-mill; has followed blacksmithing ever since, and for six years has worked for the La Belle Wagon Works. Mr. Rondo was married at Fond du Lac Dec. 25, 1864, to Mary Louise De Mar, a native of Massachusetts; they have three children—Charles, William and Josephine. He has been Alderman three years; is an Odd Fellow and a member of the Red Ribbon Club.

ANDREW ROOK, farmer and dairyman, Sec. 24; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a son of Adam and Catharine Rook, and was born in Messen, Germany, in 1831; he was educated according to the school system of Germany, after which he devoted his time to his father's farming and fruit growing; in 1847, he with his parents emigrated to America and settled in Oneida Co., N. Y., where they followed market gardening for five years; thence, in 1868, removed to Fond du Lac, where he followed working farms on shares till 1878, when he purchased the John Sewell farm of 160 acres in Sec. 24—worth about $75 per acre. In 1853, he was married to Miss Rebecca R., daughter of L. P. Maxon, of Madison Co., N. Y.; they have four children, as follows—Arthur D., Rosetta V., Edgar B. and Franklin B. He and wife are members of the Congregational Church. Mr. Rook keeps quite an extensive dairy; has twenty-five cows, and sells about 150 quarts of milk per day.

REV. DONALD ROSS, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, is a native of Nova Scotia; born in April, 1833, and is the son of Kenneth and Catharine Ross; he spent the first sixteen years of his life with his parents on a farm in his native place, and there received the earlier part of his education in the common schools; at the age of 16 he began teaching, and devoted his attention to that profession for three successive years; in the fall of 1853, he entered Queens College, at Kingston, Canada, where he completed the collegiate course in 1856; he then entered the Theological Department of that institution, and graduated with his class in 1859; he was at once licensed, ordained and settled as Pastor of the church at Vaughn, Ontario, a charge requiring services in the English and Gaelic languages; here he had a successful pastorate for seven years, and was then called to the charge of Dundee, Province of Quebec, where he was even more successful in his labors for ten years; he next had a prominently successful pastorate for three years, at Lancaster, Province of Ontario, when failing health forced him to give up the charge; the General Assembly then appointed him to Prince Albert, an important missionary station in the North-west Territory of Canada, requiring teaching, preaching, and the supervision of a large district; on his way thither, failing health again forced him to turn aside from his purpose, and by the advice of physicians he gave up the appointment, and in the fall of 1879 was called to the charge of the First Presbyterian Church of Fond du Lac. In 1869, he was married to Catherine, eldest daughter of James George, D. D., then Principal of Queens College, but now deceased; their children are Kenneth J. L., now a promising student at Queens College, Margaret, Elizabeth and James G., who are now at home.

LESTER ROUNDS, was born in Dunham, Canada East, May 1, 1805; removed when an infant with his parents to Franklin Co., Vt., where he was educated; came to Southport (now Kenosha), Wis., in August, 1839, removed to Ceresco (now Ripon), in May, 1844, where he was the first school teacher, first Postmaster, and first Chairman of the town, also Secretary of the Wisconsin Phalanx; in 1850, removed to Eureka, Winnebago Co., Wis., where he has held various offices; was the first Postmaster, and is now in the mercantile business. Mr. R. married in Vermont, September 2, 1827, Aurilla Parker, born in that State; they have three children—Sterling Parker, dealer in printers' supplies, Chicago; Rhoda Ann, now Mrs. A. S. Bolster, Kane Co., Ill. and Horace Eaton, of Chicago.

FREDRICK RUEPING, of the firm of William Rueping & Sons, tanners, was born in Germany, in 1836; he learned the tanner's trade in his native country, and came with his parents to America, in 1854, and settled at Fond du Lac; here he, with his father and brother, established a tannery, of which they have since been proprietors. In 1866, he married Miss Margaret Thuerwaechter, of Fond du Lac; they have four children, as follows: Fredrick, Ida, Clara and William. Louis Rueping, brother and partner of Fredrick, is also a native of Germany, born in 1839; came with his father to America in 1854; learned the tanner's trade with his brother after reaching Fond du Lac, and since 1867, has been a partner with his father and brother in the business. In 1870, he married Miss Ida Haevernick, of Fond du Lac, she being a native of Hamburg, Germany; they have four children—Emma, Laura, Alwine and Lena.

AUGUSTUS GRAHAM RUGGLES, banker; was born in Orange Co., N. Y., Aug. 25, 1822. As clerk in the Bank of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., he learned the business of banking, which he has followed successfully during the last quarter of a century. July 26, 1846, Mr. R. came to Fond du Lac, making arrangements during the summer to enter into the manufacture of lumber, after which he returned East, stopping on the way at Cleveland and purchasing steam machinery for a saw-mill. He returned to Fond du Lac late in the fall, and early in the spring of 1847, had, in company with one Davis, erected and put into operation the first steam saw-mill built in Northern Wisconsin. After running this mill, which represented the first cash outlay for improvements or manufacturing in Fond du Lac, north of Forest street, for a year or so, Mr. Ruggles abandoned the lumbering business, and began operating in real estate. In 1850, he purchased the patent of the famous Woodworth planer, and erected and set in motion, in connection with a saw-mill, the first planer ever run in Fond du Lac. This enterprise he sold after a year or so, and, in 1852, went East and became cashier of the Huguenot Bank, in Ulster Co., N. Y. In the spring of 1854, he resigned his position in the bank and returned to Fond du Lac in August of that year, and organized and opened for business, in February, 1855, the old Bank of the Northwest. In this bank Mr. R. remained as cashier until the organization of the First National Bank in December, 1867, of which he has always been manager, and its President since Jan. 1, 1875. In 1862 Mr. Ruggles saw the need of greater facilities and competition in the business of carrying freight by railways from Fond du Lac, and, therefore, became a Director of the then partially completed Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railway, with the intention of using his efforts to secure its completion from Glenbeulah, in Sheboygan Co., to Fond du Lac. Finally, in 1865, he began to take a pecuniary interest in the enterprise; was instrumental in securing the vote of the county in favor of granting $150,000 aid for the construction of the road, and induced capitalists to aid in its completion to Fond du Lac, which was achieved in January, 1869. From adverse circumstances, the road then lay dormant until 1870, when James F. Joy and friends were induced by Mr. Ruggles to purchase a majority of the stock, and complete the road to Ripon and Princeton, which was done in 1871 and 1872. Thus it was mainly due to Mr. Ruggles' efforts that the road was pushed on to Fond du Lac and finally to the Wolf River. Mr. Ruggles was married at Fond du Lac, in November, 1865, to Julia P., daughter of Gov. Nathaniel P. Tallmadge; they have two children—Gertrude Colden and Augustus Graham Ruggles, Jr., the only survivors of seven children born to them.

HERMAN RUPP, engineer of the city Fire Engine No. 5; was born in Fond du Lac Oct. 1, 1856; after leaving school in 1872, he served an apprenticeship at the trade of machinist; worked for five years at his trade, then for nine months he served as stoker of Engine No. 5, and for the last four years he has been engineer of the same; for two years he was connected with the Volunteer Fire Department, and with the present department since its organization. He is a member of the Fireman's Mutual Aid Society. March, 1879, Mr. Rupp was married at Watertown, Wis., to Miss Sophia Schroeder; she was born at Watertown. Mr. Rupp's mother, Katharine Rupp, died in the fall of 1869; his father, Louis Rupp, died in May, 1873.

PETER RUPP was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, Aug. 31, 1824; came to Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., in 1842; went into the Southern States in 1846, and came to Fond du Lac, where he has since resided, in 1849; he began business for himself by building the "City of Mentz" Hotel, which he managed four years; then in the grocery business, and for twenty years in the wholesale liquor business. Mr. Rupp was once a candidate for State Treasurer on the Democratic ticket; served one term as Sheriff; three years as a member of the City Council, and is now one of the Trustees of the Northern Hospital for the Insane. He was married at Cincinnati, Ohio, October, 1848, to Kate Laux, who was born at Landau, Bavaria; they have six children—Eliza, Otto, Amelia, Rosa, Julius and Peter. Mr. Rupp is a member of the I. O. O. F., and A. F. & A. M. Lodges.

JAMES RUSSELL, present publisher of the Fond du Lac Journal, enjoys the distinction of being the editor and proprietor of the oldest newspaper in Wisconsin Territory or State, with but two exceptions; the Kenosha Telegraph outranks it a year or two, and the Green Bay Advocate a few weeks; but the pioneer publishers of the Journal have long since ceased connection with it, and it is now in younger and more progressively vigorous hands. James Russell is Wisconsin-born; he is a native of Hartford, Washington Co., and his father was a farmer in that town; such an education as the village school afforded the subject of this sketch, he obtained, until he was 14 years of age; at that period of his life, his parents removed to the then immature town of Mankato, Minn., and it was there that the boy's journalistic twig was inclined as the tree has become bent; as will be seen, he tried to evade the spell, but unsuccessfully. There was a Democratic paper published in Mankato, called the Record, and it must have been a progressive office, for Russ II learned his trade there in less than a year; Mr. J. C. Wise was the editor, and possibly the same had something to do with the influences surrounding the establishment. Mr. Russell, now passing from boyhood into manhood, was becoming to be recognized in newspaper circles; he was offered and accepted a position as foreman and local reporter upon the Herald, published at Garden City, in the same State. Mr. Russell counts several months of not particularly happy experience in that connection; although his inclinations had all been in that direction, his pecuniary success had been few, and Mr. Russell made up his mind to become a lawyer; with that object in view, he returned to his native State, and entered the University of Wisconsin for a course of study in the line of his ambition; this was in 1868; in the latter part of the second year of his college studies, his health became poor, and he was ordered by medical advice to retire from his class, temporarily; he did so, and sought rest at home again. In February, 1870, he was offered a position on the Fond du Lac Journal, a weekly newspaper, then conducted by Messrs. Beeson & Bohan; Mr. Bohan being an uncle of Mr. Russell. From this time on, the gentleman's career is well known in Wisconsin newspaper circles, and the details can be condensed. Connected indirectly with the Journal office at the date last mentioned, was the Star Job Printing Office, one of the largest and most completely equipped steam printing houses in the State; into this concern Mr. Russell purchased, and the business was conducted under the firm name of Leonard, Bohan & Russell. In September, 1873, he purchased a one-half interest in the Journal from Mr. Bohan, the other half being sold to Mr. T. F. Strong, Jr., and the firm of Strong & Russell became the proprietors of the publication. The job department was at the same time re-organized by transfer, and passed into the property of Leonard, Russell & Strong. In 1874, the stock organization known as the Star Printing Company was chartered, and on the following 1st of January the job and newspaper interests were consolidated, and the Company commenced business with Mr. Russell as a principal stockholder, and in the position of editor. Since then, the management has never passed from his hands, although the corporation has ceased to exist, and he is now sole editor and proprietor of the Morning Journal (daily), the Fond du Lac Journal (weekly), and proprietor of the Star Steam Book and Job Printing Office. Politically, Mr. Russell has always been a Democrat. In 1875, he accepted the nomination of his party for State Senator, as a leader of a forlorn hope, and polled a vote in excess of his party strength in the district; in the year following, he was elected Clerk of the Court for the county, after a desperate political fight; he is now practically out of politics, further than his journalistic duties lead him. Mr. Russell was married, on Christmas Day, 1878, to Miss Katie Riley, a society lady of Fond du Lac. Mr. and Mrs. Russell are already proud in the possession of one boy. It may not be out of place to say that Mr. Russell's rapid rise in journalistic prominence is due, undoubtedly, to his keen perception of human nature, as established in his selection of the men with whom he surrounds himself in the editorial and mechanical departments of his business; he does not allow anybody about his premises an hour longer than he thinks his presence is worth the territory he occupies.

HENRY H. RUSSELL was born at Windsor, Broome Co., N. Y., and came to Fond du Lac in 1857; in 1868, he purchased the Jones & Sage hollow-tooth harrow, the first one ever patented, and began its introduction and manufacture; he was the first to discover its merits and put the harrow, which has seventy-two teeth, upon the market; he established agencies and factories in nearly every State in the Union, and has transacted an immense amount of business.

MICHAEL RYAN, farmer, Secs. 35, 15 and 17; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a native of County Tipperary, Ireland; born in 1828, and was the son of a farmer in that county; immigrated to America in 1849; settled in Canada West for one year, thence to the State of New York, where he resided about four years; in 1851, he removed to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he has since resided; in 1864, he removed to his present home, having bought the farm (120 acres) three years previously. At Rochester, N. Y., in 1854, he was married to Miss Ellen McGuinness, daughter of Sylvester McGuinness, of County Meath, Ireland; they have had eleven children—Edmund, Sylvester, John, Peter (of Kansas), Francis (now pursuing his theological studies for the priesthood, under Archbishop Henni, of Milwaukee), Patrick, Mary A., Ellen and James (deceased), Margaret and George (deceased). The family are members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

FREDRICK SANDER, manufacturer of furniture and dealer in cabinet ware; was born in Germany in 1825; he came to America in 1853, and located in Boston, remaining two years; from there he came to Fond du Lac; he learned his trade in his native country, beginning at the age of 15, and has closely followed it since; he was in the employ of Mr. John Bishop, a furniture dealer, for the first two years after arriving at Fond du Lac, when, in 1857, he became the partner of A. A. Lange, where he continued till 1859, when, by mutual consent, the firm was dissolved; Mr. Sander has since continued the business alone, and to-day is one of the most extensive furniture dealers in the city. In 1853, he married Miss Babelle Felburger, of Boston, she being a native of Germany also; they have had six children, the first three of whom are deceased; those living are Emma, Bertha and Fredrick. Mr. Sander was one of the first Trustees of the Lutheran Church, and has always remained a member of that body.

J. R. SANFORD, proprietor of Patty House livery stable; was born in Albion, Kennebec Co., Me., Dec. 25, 1847, where he resided until he came to Fond du Lac in 1866; he was employed in the lumber business until he opened his livery stable. He was married at Fond du Lac, Nov. 24, 1868, to Jennie Marlow.

PETER V. SANG, retired, was born in the Grand Duchy of Baden, Germany, Nov. 10, 1809, and came to this country in 1832; he resided in Pennsylvania until May, 1834, when he enlisted in the United States Army in Albany, N. Y.; on the 15th of August, 1834, he came to Green Bay, and was assigned to Fort Winnebago, where he served eight years, seven years as Orderly Sergeant; in the month of June, 1840, Mr. Sang received a permanent injury in the line of his duties, for which he now receives a pension of $24 per month. After the expiration of his term of service, he moved to Seven Mile Creek, now Lamartine, in the month of August, 1842, where he owned 120 acres of land; Mr. Sang resided in Lamartine from August, 1842, until March 26, 1876; during which time he held many responsible offices, as follows: Notary since the fall of 1845; Postmaster over twenty years, from 1845; Town Clerk, seventeen years; Chairman of Town Supervisors, three years, two years of which service he was Chairman of the County Board; School District Clerk of District No. 1, eleven years; County Treasurer, three years; Deputy United States Marshal, three years under President Pierce's administration; in May, 1854, he was commissioned by the City Council of Fond du Lac as traveling emigrant agent between this city and New York City, and acted as Government Land Agent for emigrants, during which time he paid into the United States Receiver's office over $231,000; he is now serving his fourth year as Coroner of this county, and has been one of the election clerks of the First Ward since he moved into the city, which was in 1876; Mr. Sang, in 1870, took the census of Lamartine; he was also Justice of the Peace nine years in the same town. He was married, in June, 1843, to Mrs. Hooper, who died April 19, 1875, and married, a second time, in 1879, to Mrs. Warren, a daughter of Col. Titus V. Woodworth, of New Hampshire.

MARTIN SASSÉ, manufacturer of and dealer in boots and shoes; was born in Prussia Nov. 29, 1826, where he resided until coming to Buffalo, N. Y., in January, 1851, where he remained nine months; he then resided two years in Washington Co., Wis., after which he came to Fond du Lac, which has since been his place of residence; Mr. S. learned the shoemaker's trade when 14 years of age, and has carried on the business continuously since he came to Fond du Lac. He was married in Prussia, in November, 1850, to Frederika Blumenburg, a native of that country; they have twelve children living, all born in America—Ada, Emma, Amelia, Emil, Matilda, Bertha, Otto, Martin, Robert, Hermann, Frederick and Ella; an infant daughter was lost while on shipboard coming to America. He belongs to the Concordia Society and to the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

AUGUST F. SCHAAR, merchant tailor; was born in Schoenlanke, Prussia, Feb. 26, 1855; came to America with his parents in 1868; their first location was at Oshkosh in the fall of that year; Mr. S. has worked at the tailoring business thirteen years; came to Fond du Lac in the spring of 1871. He was married in this city, Oct. 9, 1878, to Amelia DeSombre, who was born on the Atlantic Ocean while her parents were on their way to America; they have an infant daughter, born Nov. 8, 1879. Mr. S. is a member of the German Evangelical Church, also of the Benevolent Society and Knights of Honor.

HENRY SCHERER, of Fond du Lac File Works, is a native of Germany, where he was born in 1836; came to America in 1855, and began work at his trade as a journeyman, at Albany, N. Y., in the fall of the same year; in the spring of 1866 he came to Milwaukee, and was partner of Mr. Victor Buxor for one year in the file works, after which he sold out and came to Fond du Lac and established a small shop, which, in 1870 he enlarged, employed five men, and cut from six to eight dozen per day; capital stock, $3,000. He married Miss Eliza M. Wills, of Troy, N. Y., in 1860; they have eight children, as follows: Nicholas, Mary, now Mrs. Giegegack, of Oakfield Township, Catherine, Henry, Charles, Millie, Lena and Louis. Mr. S. has been a Mason since 1869; member of I. O. O. F. since 1870. Mr. Scherer has residence in city valued at $1,200.

S. W. SCHERMERHORN, carriage painter for Perkins & Clement; was born in 1851 in Napanee, Ontario, Canada; he began the painter's trade with Grand Hamilton, of that place, in 1869, and continued there for about three years, whence he went to Dresden, Canada, where he continued his trade for about eighteen months; he next went to Jackson, Mich., for one year, thence to Grand Rapids, Mich., for two years; in 1873 he came to Fond du Lac; in 1878 he established a shop for himself, but disposed of that in about a year's time and became painter in the carriage-shops for Perkins & Clement. In 1876 he was married to Miss Hattie Kelley, daughter of John Kelley, a farmer of the Province of Ontario; they have one child, Zellah. Mr. S. and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

G. SCHERZINGER, watchmaker and jeweler, was born in Baden, Germany, Oct. 27, 1832, and came to New Orleans in 1851; he remained there but a few weeks, going thence for short periods to Louisville, Cincinnati and New York, whence he came to Fond du Lac in May, 1855, and engaged in his present business, which he has followed ever since. He was married at Fond du Lac, Nov. 18, 1857, to Katie Hess, a native of Prussia, who died Jan. 29, 1872; she was the mother of five children—Louis, Carl, Frances, Katie and Henry. Mr. S. was married a second time, July 17, 1877, to Gertrude Schummer, a native of Prussia, by whom he has had one child, Hermann. Mr. and Mrs. S. are members of the German Catholic Church.

JOHN J. SCHEFFER, M. D., is a native of Underwalden, Switzerland, where he was born in 1842; received his early education under the monks of Engleberg, Switzerland, being placed in their care at the age of 9, and remaining there six years, after which he spent two years in the study of natural philosophy and physics, at Feldkirch, Austria; in 1859, he began his medical studies at Zurich, where he pursued them for one year; in 1868 he moved to Berne, Switzerland, where he continued his studies for three years, graduating in 1863; in 1864, he began the practice of medicine with Dr. Weissen, of Wallis, Switzerland; he returned to Berne, and was assistant physician in the Wadden Insane Asylum for one year, whence in 1866, he came to America and settled at Chicago, Ill., where he practiced medicine for about three years; in 1869 he removed to Joliet, Ill., and continued his practice till 1876, whence he moved to Evanston, Ill., and thence in 1878, to Fond du Lac; has been appointed attending physician of St. Agnes Convent, by Father Haas, of the Capuchin Order. In 1871, he married Miss Mary Phylomena Blattner, daughter of Michael Blattner, of Joliet, Ill.; they have three children—Mary, Joseph and Theresa. They are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

SCHIFF BROTHERS & CO., clothiers. Henry Schiff was born in Milwaukee Feb. 10, 1857; Arthur Schiff was born at the same place Sept. 6, 1858; Mrs. Dorris Schiff, their mother, was born in Namburg, Saxony, Feb. 28, 1838; came to Milwaukee in 1855, and to Fond du Lac in 1859. She was married at Milwaukee May 15, 1856, to Louis Schiff, who came to that place in 1848, and died in Fond du Lac Aug. 20, 1874. The family has been in the clothing business twenty years.

REV. JACOB SCHNELLER, Pastor of the Evangelical Association; is a native of Canton Graubunden, Switzerland, where he was born in 1811; he came to America with his parents when quite young; received his early education in the public school at Troy, Wis., after which, in 1861, he entered the Freshman Class of the Northwestern College at Plainfield, Ill., where he pursued both his collegiate and theological studies till 1868; when leaving college in 1868, he was licensed to preach and immediately entered the ministry, traveling through Sheboygan Co. as minister for two years, after which he was ordained Deacon of the Evangelical Association at Milwaukee; he was sent to Marquette Co. for two years.

when, in May, 1874, at Menomonee Falls, Waukesha Co., he was ordained and became Elder in the Association, after which he again returned to Marquette Co. for one year, when he was called to the charge at Morrison, Brown Co., Wis., where he was Pastor for three years; from there, in May, 1878, he was called to the charge of the Evangelical Association at Fond du Lac, where he has since remained. April 17, 1870, he married Miss Anna C. Haas, of Honey Creek, Sauk Co., Wis., by whom he has four children—Anna L., Lydia M., John B. and Frank J.

JACOB SCHOLL, boot and shoe manufacturer and farmer, Secs. 16, 15 and 17; is a native of Prussia, where he was born Aug. 20, 1811; he is a son of John and Margaret Scholl, and was soon apprenticed to the shoemaker's trade with his father, which he has ever since followed; when about 22 years old he went to Belgium, where he followed his trade for four years; when his mother died he returned to Prussia, and stayed at home till 28 years of age, when he was married to Miss Gertrude, daughter of Anthony and Mary Handshumker, June 3, 1839. They set sail for America early in the spring of 1848, landed at New York April 18, and reached Fond du Lac the 18th of the following month, living in Fond du Lac for three years; he removed to Waupun for two years, thence to Sun Prairie for five years, after which he returned to Fond du Lac; bought a farm of thirty-one acres in Sec. 16, valued at about $75 per acre. They have eleven children—Mary (deceased), Agnes (now Mrs. Pucker, of Fond du Lac), Elizabeth (now Mrs. Simon Ferdinand), Peter, Anton (deceased), Margaret (now Mrs. F. Steady), Jacob, Jr., of Fond du Lac, Isabella (now Mrs. Teddele, deceased), Mathias, Simon and Michael. They are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

JOSEPH SCHUSSLER, proprietor of West Hill Brewery; was born in Baden June 24, 1819; when 15 years old, he began the cooper's and brewer's trades in his native country, and followed the same there till 1846, when he came to America; he settled first in Milwaukee, Wis., where he worked at the brewer's trade most of the time till 1850; he then removed to Oshkosh, Wis., where he devoted his attention to the cooper's trade till 1861; removing thence to Fond du Lac, he was employed in Frey's Brewery till 1865, when he began again the cooper business, and continued the same till 1872; he then established the West Hill Brewery, of which he has since been proprietor. At Milwaukee, in 1849, he was married to Fannie Newkirch, a native of Hesse-Darmstadt; their children are Emma (now the wife of Herman Zinke, and lives in this city), Charles (now married, and lives in this city, also), Arthur, Mary, Ida, William, Josephine, Albert and O. to.

JOHN C. H. SCHWARTZ, proprietor of meat-market; was born August 16, 1812, in Germany, is a son of Peter C. Schwartz, stone and brick mason, who came to America in 1819, and settled in Fond du Lac; at 12 years of age, John began clerking in a grocery store for Carpenter & Pier, continuing there for two years; thence to the dry-goods store of Carswell & Deo, till 1860; thence to Loughlin & Carey's dry-goods store for two years; in 1862, he became proprietor of a meat-market; he soon disposed of his market and began traveling for a dry-goods house; he was next with the dry-goods' house of C. J. Pettibone, where he had charge of the retail silk stock and the wholesale trade up-stairs for about three years; he was traveling agent for the Singer Sewing Machine Company for one year; then, for one year, with Carswell & Mason, dry-goods merchants; then, for three or four years, was proprietor of a meat-market again; sold out that and kept hotel at Horizon for a short time; then went into the livery business at Fond du Lac; after spending three years at this, he went into the real estate business for two and a half years; in June, 1879, he began keeping a meat-market again. He married Miss Ada Carpenter, daughter of Nunn Carpenter, carpenter and joiner, of Sheboygan, Wis., Dec. 16, 1863; they have two sons—Edwin H. and Frank D. E.

ANTONY SERVATIUS, butcher; was born in Prussia Oct. 1, 1838, and came to Michigan in 1840, where he lived until coming to Fond du Lac in the fall of 1849; he was engaged as a dry-goods clerk from 1855 to 1862, then two years in the boot and shoe business; then two years as a grocer, after which he contracted for laying stone and Nicolson pavement, paving Main street from Division to Fifth, in 1870; in 1872, he began the business of butchering and keeping a meat market, which he now follows. Mr. S. was married, in Racine, Oct. 29, 1861, to Mary Haas, by whom he has had six children—Celia, L. O., Helen, Johanna, Antoinette and Amelia. He is a member of St. Joseph's Benevolent Society; has been Alderman, President of the City Council, and Chairman of the Fourth Ward, in which he resides.

CHRISTIAN SERWE, proprietor of the Serwe House; is a native of Prussia, and was born in 1826, emigrated to America and settled at Fond du Lac in 1846, being now one of the oldest German settlers here; he followed laboring for about four years after his first settlement; in 1850, he secured a position as clerk in Sewell Bros.' dry-goods store, where he remained nearly two years, changing then to Mr. Loughlin's dry-goods store, with which he was connected till 1861, when he returned to Sewell Bros.; in December, 1863, he purchased the Serwe House, and has since been its proprietor. In 1853, he married Miss Mary E. Baurgeois, daughter of John Baurgeois, of Prussia; they have had eleven children, as follows: Mary (deceased), Mathias, Joseph, Rosa, Elizabeth, Albert, John, Isabella, Frank (deceased), Phillip L. and Julia P. Mr. S. and family are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Mr. S. has been, at various times, a member of the City Council; has also been Assessor and County Purchasing Agent.

JOSEPH SERWE, salesman in Mr. Whittelsey's dry-goods store; was born in Prussia in 1832; lived there on a farm till 1846, when, with parents, he came to America and settled in Fond du Lac Co., at Calumet, where he lived about five years; he then returned to Fond du Lac and was employed as clerk by Hall & Hoskins, dry-goods merchants, till 1855, at which time he became a partner of Mr. Hoskins, in the firm of Hoskins & Serwe; in 1860, they took in a brother of Mr. Serwe, and the firm continued as Hoskins, Serwe & Bro. till 1862, at which time he sold out his interest in the dry-goods business and became clerk for Messrs. Curswell & Dee, dry-goods merchants; in 1866, he went into the post office as clerk for Gen. Bragg; he next kept a grocery store on Main street for a short time, but soon sold that and became salesman for Messrs. Sharp & Whittelsey, dry-goods merchants. In 1859, he married Miss Crescentia Klotz, daughter of Ignatius Klotz, of the town of Eden, Fond du Lac, Wis.; they have eight children—Hannah, Katie, Elizabeth M., Josephine, Francis A., Theresa, I. J. and Rudolph. All the family are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

G. F. SEXMITH, of the firm of Sexmith & Sons, proprietors of saw-mill and lumber-yard; also partner with his brother, L. Sexmith, in a stock farm of 180½ acres, three miles southeast of the city, where they make a specialty of raising short-horn cattle and Norman horses. Mr. Sexmith was born in the city of Fond du Lac in 1849; received his early education at the public schools of this city; after which, he graduated at the Commercial College at Milwaukee in 1868; became a partner with his father and brother in the saw-mill in August 1879; in 1875, he bought a farm of 187 acres in Dodge Co.; soon after which, he sold a one-half interest in it to his brother Lamar, in June, 1878, they traded the farm in Dodge Co. for the one above described; they are now erecting a large stock barn, 80x56 feet, with an 11-foot basement, affording stable room for 125 head of stock. In 1872, he married Miss Georgia Hunter, daughter of George Hunter, of Fond du Lac; they have one daughter—Hattie C. Mr. Sexmith is a member of the Methodist Church; his wife is a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. S. has been a member of the Temple of Honor since 1876.

LAMAR SEXMITH, brother and partner of G. F. Sexmith, whose biography is above; was born in the city of Fond du Lac, was educated in the public schools of the city; became a partner in the saw-mill with his father and brother in August, 1879; became a partner in the farm with his brother in 1875 as stated in his brother's biography. Married Miss Eleanor Stowell, of Charles City, Iowa, Oct. 29, 1877; they have one daughter—Eleanor Stella. They are members of the Methodist Church.

G. W. SEXMITH, lumberman; was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., Aug. 11, 1813, and was married in Delaware Co., of that State, Dec. 31, 1835, to Elizabeth Davis; they have had six children, of whom three, George, Frederick, Lamar and Stella Maria (now Mrs. W. H. Crosby, of Oconto, Wis.), are living. Mr. Sexmith came to Alto, Fond du Lac Co., in 1845, and engaged in farming; in December, 1851, he moved to Fond du Lac and engaged in the lumber business, which he has followed ever since; while in Alto, he was elected the first Justice of the Peace, and the first town clerk; was Justice of the Peace in Fond du Lac in 1852 and 1853, and an Alderman two terms; in addition to the lumbering business, Mr. Sexmith has been in the grocery trade nearly half the time since coming to Fond du Lac; he has operated his present mill twenty five years, giving employment now to fifty men; he has been one of the Harbor Directors since the existence of that organization. Mr. Sexmith has been connected with the M. E. Church fifty years, and is now a member of the Division Street M. E. Church; he traveled several years on the circuit as a preacher. The firm name in the lumbering business now is G. W. Sexmith & Son.

LEMUEL SHANNON, carpenter and joiner; is a native of Hamilton, Canada, born in 1817; learned the cabinet-maker's trade, which he followed there till 1849; thence he came to Wisconsin, and settled in Fond du Lac; here he turned his attention to the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he has since followed. In 1843, he married Miss Euphemia Price, daughter of William Price, of Hamilton, Canada; they have had four children—Mary (now Mrs. M. S. Fay, of St. Paul, Minn., now deceased), Anna (now Mrs. H. J. Thompson, of Greenwood, Wis.), John, of Fond du Lac, and Frankie. The family attend the Congregational Church.

AUGUST E. SHAPE, manager of the North-Western Telegraph Office, at Fond du Lac; was born in Prussia Nov. 5, 1844; came to New York City in 1856, where he resided four years; moved to Milwaukee then, which was his home in 1874, when he removed to Fond du Lac; Mr. Shape has followed the telegraph business thirteen years. He was married, in Milwaukee, Dec. 26, 1870, to Elizabeth Spoorl, a native of that city; they have one child living—Louis A., born Feb. 6, 1873, and have lost two sons in infancy. He enlisted in the fall of 1862, in Co. B, 26th W. V. I.; served two years and ten months, in all the battles in which his regiment participated.

HENRY SHATTUCK, proprietor of the American House; was born Feb. 9, 1829, at Bakersfield, Vt.; his parents, Josiah and Susan Boutell Shattuck, were natives of Townsend, in that State; the former died in 1858, at the age of 78, and the latter in 1877, aged 86; Mr. Shattuck remained at home on the farm until reaching his majority; went then to Saxton's River, and worked three years in a woolen factory; then to the Island House at Bellows Falls, for one year; six months at Massasoit House, Springfield, Mass.; Boston for three and one-half years, in the hotel business, being the proprietor of the Lowell House the last six months; came to Fond du Lac in May, 1857, and opened the Exchange Hotel, which he ran until Jan. 1, 1861, when he rented the old Globe Hotel, changing the name and rebuilding the house, and purchasing the property three years later. [See Hotels, city of Fond du Lac.] Mr. Shattuck was married at Boston, May 4, 1857, to Anna S. Britt, born at Boston June 21, 1835; they have five children—William Henry, born March 22, 1858; Ida A., born July 30, 1860; Henrietta, born Feb. 28, 1863; Nellie M., born Sept. 1, 1866, and Jennie L. B., born April 4, 1868. The family are members of the Congregational Church; Mr. Shattuck is a member of the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and Knights of Honor lodges; was Alderman, Supervisor, and for one term President of the Plank Road Company.

ISAAC S. SHERWOOD was born in the town of Milo, Yates Co., N. Y., Sept. 7, 1816; educated at Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, of Lima, N. Y.; removed to Illinois in 1840; to Racine, Wis., in 1842; to Jefferson in 1848, and, in 1852, to Fond du Lac, where he resided eighteen years engaged in the hardware and iron trade. In Fond du Lac Mr. S. was Mayor, Alderman, member of the School Board and of the first fire company ever organized in the city; he is now a resident of Benton Harbor, Mich., engaged in fruit-raising. He was married at Fond du Lac, June 24, 1861, by Rev. George B. Eastman, to Cecelia Isabella Adamson; they have five children—Alfred C., born March 30, 1862; Lettie Belle, born Jan. 27, 1864; Mary Louise, born Nov. 15, 1865; Jessie, born Nov. 13, 1869, and Grace, born Dec. 11, 1874. Mr. S. first came to Fond du Lac through the "mud-blockade," and his account of it was highly entertaining. His first move was to buy the lot where Baker's bank stands for $400, selling next day for $600; "Soliloquize," he writes, "Eureka!" His letter to the Western Historical Co. is closed thus eloquently: "Let my residence be in any part of the United States, the Fountain City is my home; and when my pilgrimage on earth is done, I hope to rest side by side with those who have gone before, on the beautiful brow of Rhenzi."

ALONZO L. SIMMONS, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a son of Reuben and Louisa Simmons, early pioneers of Fond du Lac Co.; he was born in Oneida Co., N. Y., Oct. 8, 1819, and early learned the carpenter and joiner's trade with his father. In 1838, he (with his father) came to Green Bay, Wis., where they continued the trade for about eighteen months; his father then returned to New York for the family, and with them reached Green Bay late in the year 1839; in the following year (1840), they came to Fond du Lac Co., where they built the first and second frame dwellings erected in the county; they continued the trade a short time, and then devoted their time to farming. The subject of our sketch with his brother, Marcellus, soon owned what is now known as the James Wright farm, on the ledge, southeast of the city, but soon disposed of it, and bought another in the town of Byron, where they lived for a number of years; Alonzo then sold his interest in the town of Byron, and purchased a farm of 135 acres in the town of Friendship. In 1865, he disposed of his farm and engaged in the grocery trade in the city of Fond du Lac for a short time; he then bought a farm of eighty-two acres in Section 7, town of Fond du Lac, where he has since followed farming. May 22, 1854, he married Miss Mary, daughter of George and Mary Swinton, of the town of Byron, she being a native of Scotland; they have had four children, namely, Marcellus, Minnie (deceased), William (deceased), and George.

APHASA P. SIMMONS was born at Whitestown, Oneida Co., N. Y., Dec. 9, 1826, in which county he resided until July, 1837, when he came to Green Bay, Wis., with his parents, and, in 1838, to Fond du Lac Co., which has since been his home; Mr. S. was engaged in farming exclusively until 25 years of age, when he began traveling for a wholesale crockery house, continuing in that business until 1877, except from 1860 to 1863, when he was in the mercantile business with his brother E. M., and from 1872 to 1875, when he was in the same line with W. W. Clark. He has been Town Assessor two terms, a member of the School Board fourteen years in succession, and, Aug. 16, 1879, began his duties as Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, when a youth, Mr. S. went with his father on trips for provisions, and other excursions, and thus learned to speak the Indian language fluently, which was a great help to his father. He was married in the town of Fond du Lac, Oct. 18, 1848, to Elizabeth L. Sanderson, born in Oneida Co., N. Y.; they have had three children—Clara (who died when 9 years old), Willet James (who died when 5 years of age), their surviving daughter is Madgie May, was born Aug. 14, 1868, Louisa, mother of A. P. Simmons, who will be 85 Oct. 18, 1880, resides at his house, and is in remarkably good health. A. P.'s brother, Enos Marcellus, born in Oneida Co., N. Y., resided in Fond du Lac until 1879, when he removed to Marcellon, Columbia Co., Wis.; he has three sons. Alonzo Lee, another brother, born at the same place, resides on Sec. 7, town of Fond du Lac; he has three sons and has lost three. William Leroy, another brother, died in Fond du Lac about 1850, aged about 24 years. Eliza Ann, now Mrs. James B. Cloek, of Mankato, Minn., his only sister, born also in Oneida Co., resided in Fond du Lac Co. until three years ago; she has one son and two daughters, and has lost one daughter.

M. W. SIMMONS, capitalist; was born in Oneida Co., N. Y., Aug. 24, 1825; came from there to Fond du Lac Co. in 1846, locating in the town of Springvale, on Sec. 23, where he lived five years; moved then to the town of Waupun, where he lived three years; came to Fond du Lac Jan. 1, 1865, where he has since resided; Mr. M. was Clerk of the Circuit Court one term, from January, 1865; County Poor Commissioner from 1869 to 1873 inclusive; member of the Board of Supervisors; Treasurer of Springvale; Clerk of Waupun; Alderman of Third Ward, and Deputy United States Marshal since 1878. He was married at Hillsdale, Mich., to Lucy B. Sizer, a native of Oneida Co., N. Y., Sept. 30, 1851; they have four children—Milton T., cashier of Wells' Bank, Wilton B., chief clerk at J. C. Whittelsey's, Stella M. and Lucy B. His business is that of capitalist and settling bankrupt estates; he is a Mason—a member of the lodge at Fond du Lac. His mother-in-law, Lucy B. Sizer, aged 90, resides with Mr. Simmons.

JOHN L. SUTTLER, of the firm of Sittler & Wilke, cigar manufacturers; was born in New York City in 1852; moved to Sh-boygan Falls with his parents when 4 years old; clerked in drug store from his 13th to 18th year of age, when he began the cigar trade, which he has followed since that time; in January, 1873, he came to Fond du Lac and began to work for Bash Bros.; from 1874 to 1876, he was at Brandon and Waupun; in 1876, returned to Fond du Lac and began the cigar manufacture alone, which he continued till October, 1878, when Mr. Wilke became his partner. Oct. 15, 1878, he married Miss Emma M. Hoppe, of Fond du Lac; she is a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

CHARLES D. SMITH, attorney; was born in the town of Macomb, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., Nov. 16, 1849; in 1851, came with his parents to Taycheedah, and, in 1866, came to Fond du Lac; Mr. S. was educated in the public schools and at a private school; began studying law in November, 1869, with J. M. Gillet and C. K. Pier; was admitted to the bar Feb. 11, 1876, and has since been engaged in the practice of his profession; Mr. Smith left home early and acquired his legal and other knowledge without aid or encouragement, supporting himself as best he could while at his studies.

GEORGE H. SOUTHARD, painter; was born at Cudd backville, Orange Co., N. Y., June 3, 1849, came to Wisconsin Jan. 8, 1866, learned the painter's trade, which he has since followed; the same year, and during the past eight years, has been engaged with the Wheel and Soder Co., and McDonald Manufacturing Co. Mr. Southard is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and I. O. O. F. lodges.

JOHN SPENCE, manufacturer; was born at Tyrone, Ireland; came to Ohio in 1858, where he enlisted May, 1861, in Co. B, 26th Ohio V. I., called "Fullerton Rifles"—the first three years men offered in that State; he served three years as private, Sergeant, Major, Lieutenant and Adjutant, resigning on account of ill health in April, 1864. He then went to Europe two years to recuperate, returning and locating at Fond du Lac in 1866, where he engaged in the cracker business until 1874; after that he engaged in loaning money, but is now Secretary and Treasurer of the McDonald Manufacturing Co., builders of the "Pride of the West" thrashers. Mr. Spence has been City Treasurer, Alderman and Supervisor.

THOMAS WILSON SPENCE, attorney; was born at Dangannon, County Tyrone, Ireland, Sept. 2, 1846; came to Chillicothe, Ohio, in infancy, and to Fond du Lac in 1865. Mr. S. graduated from the classical course of Cornell University, at Ithaca, N. Y., in 1870; studied law and was soon after a member of the law firm of Coleman & Spence, which firm was recently changed to Spence & Hiner; he was a member of the Assembly in 1877 and 1879, and is now Postmaster of Fond du Lac, receiving his appointment in 1879. He was married at Fond du Lac, to Miss Tallmadge; they have one child.

JOSEPH D. W. SPENCER, glove manufacturer; was born in Barre, Worcester Co., Mass., March 13, 1847, and is the son of John H. and Ellen M. Spencer, nee Whitecomb. His grandfather, John Spencer, was the son of Simeon Spencer, who was born in Connecticut, but was the eleventh family to settle in Springfield, Vt.; his grandfather was born in 1782; was an extensive farmer of Springfield, Vt., for many years; came to Wisconsin in 1849, and settled in Rock Co., where he died Feb. 7, 1865. His father, John H., was born at Springfield, Vt., Nov. 12, 1808; spent his early life as a farmer in Vermont; removed to Amherst, Mass., and there followed the business of a foundryman and stove-manufacturer for three years; removed to Barre, Mass., in 1835, and continued the same business fifteen years; in 1850, he came to Wisconsin, stopped one year in Rock Co.; went thence to Green Bay, and was there interested in the tanning business for a year; came to Fond du Lac in 1852, where he was one of the most extensive leather-dealers for many years. He retired from business in 1870. In 1832, he was married to Sarah, daughter of Shubel and Ruth Whitecomb, of Springfield, Vt., and a descendant of the Whitecomb family who came from Dorchester, England, in 1633; she died about two years after marriage. He afterward married her sister, Ellen M.; they had a family of six children—four of whom are living—Sarah M. (died in 1855), Ellen S. (Mrs. Norman Brass, and lives in Spring Valley, Minn.), Joseph D. W., and John D. W., twins—the latter is dead—Ida M. (now the wife of F. W. Snyver, and lives in Milwaukee), Waldo H. (now in Buffalo, N. Y.); Joseph D. W. spent most of his time with his father till 1870, when he established the glove manufactory of which he has since been proprietor. He was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Michael and Margaret Roche, now of Dakota, but formerly of the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where she was born. Mrs. Spencer is a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

HENRY J. STEADY, foreman on the second floor in Steenberg's sash, door and blind factory; was born in Germany in 1843; came to America with his parents in 1848, and settled at Buffalo, N. Y., where he resided till 1853, when they moved to Chicago, Ill., whence, in 1856, they came to Fond du Lac; Henry worked on a farm for his brother from 1856 to 1862, attending school three winters during that time, that being all the schooling he ever had. In 1862, he enlisted in Co. K, of the 1st W. V. I.; was discharged in 1863, on account of disability for service; after remaining at home for about six months and regaining his health, he re-enlisted October, 1863, in Co. B, 35th W. V. I., with which he served till the close of the war. After being mustered out at Madison, Wis., he returned to Fond du Lac and began work in the door, sash and blind factory for C. J. L. Meyer, where he continued till 1873, when he began work for Mr. Steenberg. Oct. 16, 1863, he married Miss Annie Fox, of Fond du Lac; they have had four children—Henry B. (deceased), Nettie L., Jessie M. and Millard B.

O. C. STEENBERG, proprietor of sash, door and blind manufactory, is a native of Tompkins Co., N. Y., where he was born in 1836; in 1854, he moved with his parents to Saratoga Co., which he made his home until 1862; he graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., with the class of 1861, after which, in 1862, he came to Fond du Lac as Principal of the High School, serving in that capacity until 1864, when he was elected Superintendent of the city schools in addition to his position as Principal of the High School, where he remained until 1869; in 1871, he purchased an interest in the sash, door and blind factory, with Mr. H. H. Lewis; the copartnership existed until 1877, when Mr. Steenberg bought out Mr. Lewis, and became sole proprietor of the establishment. In 1862, he married Miss Harriet Greene, daughter of O. S. Greene, of Salisbury, Conn.; they have had three children—Sarah (deceased), Fredrick and Babbett.

PETER STEENBERGH, retired farmer, was born in Saratoga Co., N. Y., in 1797; at the age of 10, he went to Albany Co., N. Y., and followed farming for some time, whence he went to Washington Co., N. Y., and remained there seven years, after which he, with his brother, purchased a boat, and for two years followed boating on the Albany and Champlain Canal; he next came to Syracuse, thence to Onondaga Co., N. Y., where he was engaged in farming most of the time, until his immigration to Wisconsin in 1849; his first settlement was on a farm in the town of Byron; subsequently, he bought a farm of 160 acres in the town of Auburn, Fond du Lac Co., which he disposed of about 1857, and bought another in the town of Byron, on which he made his home until 1871, when he sold that and moved to the city of Fond du Lac. April 15, 1835, he married Miss Cynthia E. Mead, daughter of Elisha Mead, of Onondaga Co., N. Y., who died at Fond du Lac, March 2, 1879, in her 59th year, leaving three children—Caroline A., Harriet A. (now Mrs. Griffin Petton, of Byron), and Alson W., of Fond du Lac. His wife and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he owns a house and four lots in the city.

PETER STEPHANY, foreman in Millis's Manufacturing Co., is a native of Germany, born in 1817; came to Wisconsin with his parents in 1850, and settled on a farm near Fond du Lac, where he spent his boyhood; at the age of 15, he came to the city of Fond du Lac, and began work for C. J. L.

Meyer, in the blind department of his sash, door and blind factory; in 1865, he worked for Lewis & Boyd in their manufactory for about five months, after which he followed the carpenter and joiner's trade for one year; then he worked for Pakland in his factory one year; he next engaged in the furniture business, which he continued for about fourteen months; in 1876, he began work in Milhills' factory, where he has since remained. He married Miss Amelia Loher, of Calumet, in October, 1873; they have two children—Dora and Mary. They are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

ALEXANDER STEWART, of the firm of McDonald & Stewart, proprietors of a sash, door and blind factory, is a native of Glengarry Co., Canada, where he was born in 1835; spent his boyhood at work on a farm with his father, and attending the district school; when 15 years old, he moved to Montreal, whence, in 1854, he went to Petersboro, Canada, where he engaged in the grocery business until 1866; disposing of his interest in the grocery trade at that time, he came to Fond du Lac, and became interested in saw-milling in the firm of Hunter, Stewart & Co. until 1869, when he formed a copartnership with Mr. Alexander McDonald in the sash, door and blind factory, which they established at that time. In 1867, he married Miss Sarah C. Crawford, second daughter of the Rev. Elias Crawford, of Saratoga Springs; they have had two children—Annie (deceased), and Charles C. Mr. S. and family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

SILAS B. STILES, druggist, of the firm of Stiles & Givens, was born in Jay, Essex Co., N. Y., Sept. 24, 1828; lived seven years in Canada West; came to Byron, Fond du Lac Co., in July, 1843, and there engaged in farming during six years, after which he went into the Northern pinceries, where he worked at lumbering until 1852; he then went overland to California, and engaged in mining until 1857, when he returned to Fond du Lac and purchased a farm in Byron in 1858; Mr. S. followed agricultural pursuits until 1871, when he purchased a drug store at Jefferson, Wis., but returned to Fond du Lac in 1873, and opened a drug store opposite the American House. He was married in Byron, Feb. 16, 1859, to Caroline, daughter of George W. Lewis; they have three children—Clara A., Vesta L. and Guy L.

LYMAN F. STOWE, son of Joseph and Priscilla Stowe, very early settlers of Fond du Lac; was born at Haverhill, Grafton Co., N. H., Sept. 29, 1825; at the age of 18 years, after hard work upon the hills of his native State, he came with his parents to Milwaukee; remained there until 1848, working one and one-half years in a pail factory, manufacturing washtubs on his own account one year, and then engaged in barrel-making; Mr. S. then lived one year on his farm near Waupun; worked his father's farm one year; began carpenter work in 1851, and in 1861, began building elevators on the different railroads in this State and Michigan, which business he still follows. He was one of the organizers of the volunteer fire department in Fond du Lac, of which he was a member until its disorganization in 1878, and was Treasurer one term of the State Firemen's Benevolent Association. Mr. S. was married at Milwaukee, in October, 1847, to Martha Lee, born in the town of Shipley, Yorkshire, England; they have one child—Ella Josephine.

TIMOTHY F. STRONG, The subject of this sketch is a native of Brownington, Vt.; was born April 6, 1805, and is the son of Asahel Strong and Susan Follett; his father, a prominent merchant, although unfortunate, was much respected by all who knew him; Timothy resided in Bennington, whither his parents removed in 1806, till 12 years old, attending common school, and at that time accepted a clerkship in a general store at Glen Falls, N. Y., and at odd times while there gained a knowledge of the tinner's trade; at the expiration of five years, he went to Burlington, Vt., and there spent two years as a journeyman in a tinshop; he next formed a copartnership with a friend, and going to Keeseville, N. Y., established himself in the tin and stove business, and conducted a successful business for nearly two years; after closing out his interest here, he went to Danville, Vt., and there resumed the same line of business, continuing it during a period of six years; at the expiration of that time, he associated himself with his brother, William L. Strong, at Burlington, in a general hardware, iron and grocery trade, where he remained till 1848; during the year previous to this, he had contracted with others to build the Burlington & Rutland Railroad, and a portion of the road on to Bellows' Falls; he was at the same time largely interested in building the railroad from Ogdensburg to Rouse's Point, N. Y.; in July, 1851, he removed to the West and settled at Fond du Lac, Wis., and at once began building what is now known as the Chicago & North-Western Railway, whose owners form one of the largest railroad corporations in the world. In this enterprise Mr. Strong worked under most adverse circumstances, many of his associates giving up all hope of success; with that determination, however, which has ever characterized him, he held on persistently to the end, and, in one instance, built some miles of the road at his own expense and risk. Previous to his coming West, he had gained the reputation of being a successful railroad man, having carried to a successful completion large railroad enterprises in the East; and it was largely due to his untiring energy and influence that the Wisconsin division, being the northern portion of the Northwestern railroads, was constructed. Mr. Strong retired from active business in 1868, and, since that time, except as stated below, has been living in the enjoyment of the rewards of his active life. He was Assistant Superintendent of the North-Western Railway for several years; in 1870, was elected President and Superintendent of the Fond du Lac & Sheboygan Railroad resigning in 1872. In his political sentiments, he is independent, supporting for office the man whom he considers best fitted for the place, regardless of party prejudices or distinctions; in his religious belief, he is identified with the Episcopal Church. He was married on the 3d of May, 1827, to Miss Olivia Clark, daughter of Dr. Nathan S. Clark, of Chesterfield, N. Y., and by her has now living one son and two daughters. He married his present wife, Susanna Jones, on the 27th of March, 1873. Mr. Strong has traveled extensively over the United States and Europe, and is well informed on all questions of the day. Beginning life for himself at the age of 12, with his worldly possessions tied up in a handkerchief, he has risen, step by step, until he has accumulated an ample fortune, and, in all his business career, has never contracted a debt that he did not pay.

JOHN E. SULLIVAN, of the firm of John E. Sullivan & Co., merchant tailors; is a native of Ohio, where he was born in 1853; came to Meeme, Manitowoc Co., Wis., with parents in 1855, where he lived till 1873, when he went to Brown Co. for the winter, and came to Fond du Lac in the spring of 1874, and attended commercial college for four months, when he graduated; after which, from September, 1874, to November, 1878, he was clerk for J. N. Coleman & Co; he was in the employ of Butterfield & Eldridge till May, 1878, when he became a partner in the firm of John E. Sullivan & Co.

MICHAEL SULLIVAN, harness manufacturer; is a native of Ireland, where he was born in 1851; he came to Fond du Lac in 1868; in 1871 he became proprietor of the harness-shop, where he now manufactures about two hundred sets of harness per year. July 6, 1871, he married Miss Mary Ann Canada, of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., by whom he has three children—John, Nellie and Annie, who, with parents, are members of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

GEORGE EATON SUTHERLAND, whose history is now closely allied to that of Fond du Lac Co., is a native of New York State, having first seen light in a farmhouse at Burlington, Otsego Co., N. Y. His mother thanked God he was a boy, for a boy could better fight the battle of life. George is the youngest of six children, only three of whom, all boys, were alive at his birth. On his father's side he is of Scotch descent, his great-grandfather having come to America on account of political persecutions. This ancestor was noted for truthfulness and integrity, and these qualities and also certain physical traits have been transmitted. It was the proud boast of the father of the subject of this sketch, that, so far as he knew, there had never been an untruthful or dishonest Sutherland. His mother was a woman wise and good, and his earliest recollections are mainly of her love and guidance. When he was 6 years old, a great calamity befell him, in the death of his most excellent mother, and the breaking-up of the home, leaving George a little wanderer, without a settled home, or home influences. For four years he lived first with one relative, and then with another, some of the time attending district school, but left for the most part to his own devices. From his mother, he inherited energy, steadfastness of purpose, and a thoughtful habit, and from his father integrity of mind, an honest way of looking at things, and a love of books. He was very fond of oratory, and while a mere child would pore for hours over Congressional speeches and pleas in court, seeming to catch the spirit of their eloquence. He also early developed ability in planning, faithfulness in executing, a spirit of emulation, which prompted him to be first and best in whatever he undertook, and a personal magnetism, which made him a leader among the boys. He was not a very playful boy, and especially disliked hunting, fishing, or any sport which inflicted pain. He was, however, fond of wit or humor, a trait which he has not outgrown. In the winter after his tenth birthday, his mind and heart received a profound religious impression, through the preaching of the Rev. A. B. Earle, and at the close of a series of meetings held in Burlington, George, with some one hundred others, was received into the church. While from his natural fondness for reading the boy had acquired a desultory knowledge of many things of which children ordinarily know nothing, he possessed severely the rudiments of a systematic education. During these years, George's second brother, Andrew, had married, and become Principal of a school in Norwich-Town Conn., in which he was ably assisted by his wife, a woman of fine mind and large, warm heart. It was a happy day for George when this worthy couple invited him to make home with them. In June, 1854, having secured company as far as New York City, he started with glowing anticipations for a new home, and an education, which even then was his dearest wish. The journey to New York was brimful of interest, and his friend found his time fully occupied in answering questions, until he left George on the Norwich boat, upon which he was to complete the journey alone. It was a night trip, and the boy, to whom both steamer and ocean were new, sat long on deck. He watched the men untie from the pier, and reel in the heavy rope; watched the city until only dots of light were visible; saw the moon rise out of the water, and the long track of light which the boat left behind, until fatigue proved too much even for his wonder, and he went to bed on what seemed to him a funny little pantry shelf, and slept the sleep of tired childhood. When he awoke, the boat lay quietly at anchor at Norwich; the passengers had all gone, and so had his brother, who came to meet him. Evidently he had overslept, but do not think he was dismayed. Valise in hand, he steps ashore and inquires the way to Norwich Town. Let us glance at him as he enters upon this new era of life. Ten years old, rather slight, bright brown eyes that look straight at you, ample forehead and a sensitive mouth. The taste of his sister-in-law had dressed him in garments whose cut would better have become his father—black satin vest, long coat, prominent shirt front, standing collar and “dickey.” When he had come into Norwich Town, and was close by the town clock, a wag, thinking to get some sport out of the old-fashioned country boy, stopped him, and asked with mock deference, hat in hand, “Would you kindly tell me the time of day by your watch?” The unconscious simplicity of the child turned the joke back, when he answered, “I do not know, sir; can you tell me where Norwich Town is?” With his brother, discipline began in earnest. He was kept at hard study all day and until nine at night, with scarce an hour allowed for play. His system stood the strain, and his progress in books was quite astonishing, so that from being the poorest scholar, by the end of the year George stood at the head of the school. In 1855, his brother decided to go West, and chose the young but rapidly growing State of Wisconsin, as a future home. The party went by rail to Chicago, by boat to Sheboygan, thence by stage to Fond du Lac, which they reached Saturday night, and put up at a hotel near the landing at “Lower Town.” From Fond du Lac, the party went by lake and Fox River to Delhi, in Winnebago Co., and thence to Waukau, where Mr. Sutherland taught for several years, and eventually settled on a farm. George remained with him, working on the farm and attending school until he was nearly 16. These years, though no more than ordinarily eventful, were important as years of growth. In them he attained manhood’s size, and for his years, maturity of character; had escaped vices, and had acquired a very good common-school education. With such preparation, George left his brother in August, 1859, to make his own way in the world. Going once more to Norwich, Conn., he obtained a district school, which he taught acceptably. Spending the summer of 1860 with old Burlington friends, he closed his experience as pedagogue, by teaching a school at that place the following autumn and winter.

George D. Curtis
DECD.
ROSENDALE.

The very next day after his school closed, he started for West Winfield Academy, to carry out his long-cherished purpose of fitting for college. Here he boarded himself and earned his tuition by taking care of the recitation-rooms. His life now seemed the realization of the boy’s dreams, in the gratification of his intense desire for knowledge and improvement. The classes were pleasant and the school excellent, under the care of Prof. E. O. Hovey, an enthusiast in his profession, an earnest Christian and a man of great personal weight. This was the year of the breaking-out of the civil war. When President Lincoln’s first call came for volunteers, George greatly desired to enlist, but his father thought he was neither old nor strong enough for the hardships of camp and field, and so restrained the ardor of the boy. But it happens to many a man that at some time in life a circumstance, seemingly a mere accident, changes the whole of his life. Such accident, or Providence, came to George. One noon, it was Sept. 30, 1862, he went to town for the mail as usual, and found in the Exeter stage an old friend on his way to Utica to enlist, who urged George to go with him, and quickly gained his consent. There was no time for leave-taking. George got into the stage and before night had enlisted in Co. A, 1st N. Y. L. A., known as Bates’ Battery. He was immediately sent into Barracks at Albany, where the time was spent in drill and learning the art of war, against the call to the front. It happened that George had a chance of displaying readiness and tact before reaching Washington. When the battery was ordered to the front, Capt. Bates put George and a comrade in charge of his horses, which were to go in a freight car attached to the train bearing the rest of the battery. As the train was to leave Albany toward morning, the men went into the car at night and went to sleep. Imagine the surprise of George when morning dawned and found him still in Albany and the rest of the battery gone. By what accident their car was left no one could explain, but here the boys were, with the horses, no commander, no rations, no transportation; what little money they had they spent in vainly telegraphing for orders. With much persuasion the railroad company took them to New York, where a patriotic citizen fed horses and men. The eloquence and resources of the boys were fully taxed before the railroad company agreed to take them to Baltimore without the proper transportation papers, and even then they were assured the horses would be held in Baltimore until the company was satisfied. When they reached Philadelphia the train was laid up for the Sabbath, and here were the boys again without the wherewith to break their fast, but the door of a United States Hospital opened to them, and they were well cared for until Monday afternoon. The train reached Baltimore just before daybreak Tuesday morning. Should they wait here, with risk of starving, until the railroad company should be satisfied that it had already been paid for taking this car, or should they report to headquarters and leave their Captain to settle the matter? They decided on the latter course, and when there was a good chance they jumped their horses out of the car, mounted them and rode toward Washington. At evening they came upon a Union camp where they were kindly provided for, for one soldier never saw another in need, but his canteen and haversack flew open. Before another night they were receiving the compliments of Capt. Bates for their exploit. It was now February, and very inclement weather. The men had no barracks, and not even a good place to pitch their tents, and George often awoke and found himself lying in a pool of water. The drill and discipline was also long continued and severe. From the defenses of Washington the battery was sent to Philadelphia to quell riotous feeling, and keep order at the time of drafts, then to Pottsville, Penn., on a similar errand. Capt. Bates, it appears, had one aim in his military history—to keep out of action. So true was this that the boys were wont to call his battery the “Life Insurance Company.” George soon tired of this inaction, and determined on a change. He chanced at this time to be detailed as orderly at post headquarters, and soon acquired the respect and good will of Capt. Ramsey, Adjutant General. At George’s earnest request, Capt. Ramsey obtained a furlough and permission for him to attend the military school at Philadelphia, where officers for colored troops were then being instructed. Here he labored day and night for three months to acquire a knowledge of the book part of military art, and, it is said, with marked success. Great decision of character, and ready command of himself seem to have characterized him here. On one occasion, when acting as drill-master of the school battalion, he displayed such great readiness and firmness, that Col. Taggart, the Commandant of the school, publicly commended him and said he “he was fit to command any regiment.” George, still a boy of 20, appeared before Gen. Casey’s Examining Board in Washington, and passed an excellent examination, and all that prevented his recommendation for a field position seems to have been his youth, from Gen. Casey’s saying to him, “But you are too young for a field officer, Mr. Sutherland.” After his examination he went back to Bates’ Battery to wait for his commission, and while with it had one skirmish with the rebels near Chambersburg. George soon received his commission as Captain from President Lincoln, dated July 23, 1864, two months before his 21st birthday, and the boys gave him the sobriquet of “the Young Captain.” He was then sent to Kentucky to raise colored troops, and was soon placed in command of the 13th U. S. C. H. A. With his detachment he went to Eddyville, Ky., to take command of that post, and arrived about midnight of October 12. Inquiring of the officer he was to relieve if all was safe for the night, he was told that pickets were out and everything was secure. But he had hardly fallen asleep when he was startled by bullets shot into every window of the court house which was the headquarters. Of course there could be but one result. After a sharp contest the garrison surrendered, but not until Capt. Sutherland was wounded and taken prisoner. Capt. Sutherland was carried to a hotel and so-called surgeons sent to dress his wound. Either from malice or ignorance they put him through several hours of severest torture, cutting and slashing in a terrible way, and boasting, when they thought he was under the influence of chloroform that “there’d be one less Yankee Captain,” as no doubt there would have been if they had not been suddenly interrupted.

From a Yankee gunboat, lying down the river, the firing at Eddyville had been heard, and with what speed they could, they came to the rescue; too late to save a surrender, but with force to recapture the town, and it was the shells from this boat that interrupted the surgeons in their bloody and apparently delightful work, and put them to ignominious flight, leaving Capt. Sutherland half dead and wholly unable to help himself; and here he might have died, indeed, but for the friendly offices of an unknown woman. While the shells from the gunboat were pouring into the town, and were even crashing through the hotel, and all were fleeing for safety, this woman risked her life and the displeasure of her friends, who, she said, were Southern sympathizers, to help this unknown Captain to life. She bound up his wound and helped, almost carried, him down-stairs and through the street to the water’s edge, and with a wave of her handkerchief, as a flag of truce, to the boat, she left him, with strength only for feebly expressed gratitude, too weak, even, to ask her name. A boat was immediately sent for him, but there was no surgeon on board the gunboat, and three days passed before the bullet was taken from his arm, or his wound properly dressed, and when he reached the hospital at Clarksville, Tenn., he was delirious and already suffering, not only from his wound, but from an attack of typhoid fever, induced by exposure and lack of care. For three months he languished in the hospital, much of the time in extreme danger, and suffering so greatly that death would have been a welcome relief.

“He laid him down to sleep without a thought or care
Whether the waking find him here or there.”

After weary weeks of convalescence, he was again strong enough for active service, and was sent to command the recruiting posts at Caseyville, and afterward at Owensboro, Ky. In going from one place to the other, he narrowly escaped being shot by a guerrilla band. Afterward, he was sent to Smithland as Commissary of subsistence, which position he filled with care and precision for several months, when he was appointed a member of the military commission and court-martial, which sat at Camp Nelson, and subsequently at Lexington, Ky., and in this position he remained until honorably discharged in November, 1865. As a member of the court-martial, although by several years the youngest, he won special distinction. The deliberations of this body, before which military and civil offenses were tried, were secret, only their conclusions being made public, but it is said on good authority that more than one poor fellow owes his life to Capt. Sutherland's eloquent appeal for mercy, and an abatement of the strict letter of military law, and once he won when all were at first against him. The name of Capt. Sutherland had already been forwarded for promotion, which, it is said, he merited, and would no doubt have received, but the war ended, and, on Nov. 18, 1865, he was honorably discharged from the United States Service.

With the war, also, ended the splendid opportunities for displaying many noble and brilliant qualities, but it is doubtful if Capt. Sutherland ever did a more heroic thing than he did when leaving his high position as Judge and commander, he entered the preparatory school at Ripon College, and dug out Greek and Latin with the young boys and girls. One of his teachers has said that he displayed much greatness of character by his careful attention to rules which seemed to him trivial, by his modest, respectful attention in class, and his solicitude that the younger members should do well. Mr. Sutherland studied at Ripon until July, 1868, completing the sophomore year in college, and winning a good standing. For two years of the time he superintended the Baptist Sabbath School, and most of the time since he has been in some way engaged in Sabbath school work.

In September, 1868, he entered Amherst College as a junior, without conditions. There he passed two very pleasant and profitable years, and graduated as "honor man," with an excellent reputation, both as to character and ability. During the summer of 1870, Mr. Sutherland studied law with Judge Willard, of Utica, N. Y., and, in the fall of that year, entered Columbia Law School, in New York City, which was then presided over by Theo. W. Dwight, LL. D. Mr. Sutherland often speaks of the debt which he owes to him and to President Seelye, of Amherst, probably the two men of all in the world whose influence upon him has been most powerful. In New York, Mr. Sutherland worked very hard, taking two years' studies in one, and reciting six hours a day. The year in New York was the fullest and busiest Mr. Sutherland ever passed, and perhaps, on the whole, the most profitable. Shortly after completing his law course, Mr. Sutherland was married to Miss Adela Merrell, of Kirkland, N. Y., and in September of this year (1871), he formed a law partnership with Mr. A. B. Hamilton, of Ripon, Wis., a gentleman of legal knowledge and ability above the average, and with a good practice. Mr. Hamilton was past the prime of life and in poor health, so that, as soon as Mr. Sutherland was able to manage it, the burden of the business fell upon him. This was very fortunate for him, as he was compelled to acquire a knowledge of correctly transacting legal business much sooner than young attorneys ordinarily have opportunity for doing. In his first law-suit, in which he appeared for the defendant, his maiden plea certainly produced effect. He won the case.

Mr. Sutherland made his first appearance in the Supreme Court in Mundt vs. The Sheboygan & Fond du Lac R. R. Co., appearing for the plaintiff. Judge L. S. Dixon, then Chief Justice of Wisconsin, in his written and published opinion of the case, pays the young lawyer this high compliment: "In conclusion we may remark that it would be doing injustice to our own feelings not to acknowledge our obligation for the assistance rendered by the very clear and able argument made at the bar by the counsel for the plaintiff." For two years of his residence in Ripon Mr. Sutherland was City Attorney, and was, in 1873, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors in his ward, and was in this capacity very faithful to the interests of the county. In May, 1874, he came to Fond du Lac and formed a law partnership with Judge David Taylor, which continued with mutual satisfaction until Judge Taylor was elected to the Supreme Bench, since which time, Mr. Sutherland has conducted the business alone. In November, 1879, he was elected to the State Senate by an unusually large majority, having been nominated for that office, and enthusiastically supported by the very best citizens in the district, an honor of which any man might justly be proud. We have seen Mr. Sutherland deprived of a mother's care, left a homeless wanderer; receiving his first real discipline; starting in life for himself with no capital except his own talent and energy; a diligent student working his way along; a good soldier and a merciful Judge; an upright lawyer and an efficient officer, and we believe he will be a wise legislator.

We find him now ranking among the first in his profession in the State, having gained this position by no outside influence, but by honesty, hard work and careful attention to the details of his business. That the community has confidence both in his talent and integrity is shown by the class of cases put into his hands, which are among the most important tried in the county, and the fact that he is successful in a large majority of his cases, shows that he is a skillful manager, and also that he will not accept a case which he believes to be poor, merely for the fees. In working up his cases, Mr. Sutherland is industrious, accurate and careful. As a speaker he has good command of language, but is not an "off-hand speaker," and he never allows himself to speak on any occasion without preparation. With time to arrange his thought, he is logical and clear, and, when the subject inspires it, rises to eloquence. He is a capital hand to tell a story where it will be effective. By honesty, industry, and faith in God, Mr. Sutherland has reached his present place of honor, trust and influence in the community, and his life well exemplifies what may be wrought by the motto which he chose when a boy:

Do well that which before thee lies to-day.

PAUL SWENSON, machinist and foreman in McDonald's Thrashing-Machine Works; is a native of Denmark, born in 1839; learned his trade in his native country; came to America in 1869, and stopped a short time in Detroit; thence to Chicago for a few days, when he returned to Michigan; from there he came to Milwaukee, and finally settled at Racine in the same year, where he worked at his trade for four and a half years; after which he returned to Europe for eight months; he came again to Racine for a short time, from there he came to Fond du Lac and began work in McDonald's Thrashing-Machine Works, and, in the spring of 1879, was appointed Superintendent of the works.

M. W. TALLMADGE, son of Henry F. and Maria C. Tallmadge, of New York City, and brother of the well-known broker of that city, Benjamin H. Tallmadge. M. W. was born in the year 1818, and, after receiving his education, was engaged in the wholesale hardware trade in New York City till about 1840; in 1843, he immigrated to Wisconsin, entered a farm in the southern part of the town of Fond du Lac, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and, in August, 1844, was married to Miss Nancy A., daughter of Justin and Thirza Eastman, a native of Oswego County, N. Y., who immigrated with her parents to Kenosha Co., Wis., in 1835, and to Granville, Milwaukee Co., in 1837, where she was married. Soon after their marriage, they removed to the farm in Fond du Lac and made that their home till the spring of 1862; disposing of it at that time, he purchased another in the same town, on Sec. —, where he lived till September, 1876, when they removed to the city of Fond du Lac, though still retaining the farm. They have had nine children—Mary E. (the late wife of A. K. Hamilton, of Fond du Lac, deceased), Henry F. (of Fairmount, Neb.), Chester L. (deceased), Benjamin H., William E. (of Sheboygan), Maria C. (now Mrs. Thomas W. Spence, of Fond du Lac), Clarence D. (of Milwaukee), Edwin T. and Jennie, of Fond du Lac. The family is connected with the Presbyterian Church.

AZRO B. TAYLOR, a native of Vergennes, Addison Co., Vt.; came with his father, J. M. Taylor, who died in 1865, to Fond du Lac in 1839, and has been engaged ever since in the hardware business, except two years during which he had charge of the water supply on the C. & N.-W. Railway, between Fort Howard and Janesville, putting in all the pumps. Mr. T. has been an Alderman from the First and Third Wards several years, and was at the head of the Fond du Lac Fire Department sixteen years—as long as the volunteer department continued, of which he was one of the originators. He was married at Fond du Lac Aug. 3, 1849, to Angelia Hawes, a native of Shoreham, Vt.; she died Jan. 4, 1854, having two children—Lillie and Charley; the former is now Mrs. L. A. Emerson, and the latter died in April, 1878, aged 26 years. Mr. T. was married a second time to Jane E. Woodruff, a native of New York; they have eight children—Jared W., William W., Frank C., Jessie, Emma, Carrie, Mary and Janie. Jared W. and William W. are both engaged in the railroad business away from home. Mr. T. is a member of the Masonic Lodge and Chapter at Fond du Lac. Henry C. Taylor, brother to Azro B., enlisted in Co. A, 1st W. V. I., for three months, and at the end of that time re-enlisted in the 21st Regiment. He died in hospital prison at Charleston, where he had lain one year, Oct. 4, 1864.

JAMES LUTHER TIWING, editor and publisher; was born at Alto, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., July 4, 1847; worked upon a farm until 19 years of age, except when attending the district school; to complete his education, he entered Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis., graduating with honors from the classical course in 1871. While in school Mr. T. took the first prize for excellency in composition. He was editor of the Lawrence Collegian, and contributor to various other publications while in the University, thus developing his natural taste for journalism, a profession he then decided to follow, taking a position upon the Milwaukee Sentinel staff the next day after graduating. In November, 1873, Mr. T. resigned his position on the Sentinel, having contracted to purchase the Fond du Lac Saturday Reporter of John J. Beeson, issuing the first number, under his management, Nov. 22, 1873. Since that time, he has been either wholly or in part, editor, proprietor and publisher of the same paper, which has grown to three times its original size in his hands. He was married at Fond du Lac, Jan. 20, 1874, to Laura B., daughter of Rev. C. D. Pillsbury; she was a graduate in the same class with Mr. T., receiving the salutatory appointment of the class on graduating day. They have one child—Alfred L., born April 1, 1876.

CYRUS THOMPSON, retired; is a native of Hartford, Me., where he was born Dec. 24, 1805, and spent most of his time till 1855; when 18 years of age he began teaching school, and continued till he was 26; from 1831 to 1855 he was proprietor of marble works in his native town; disposing of his marble works, he removed to Dunkirk, N. Y., and purchased a two-thirds interest in a large flouring-mill; in 1864, he traded his interest in the mill for farm in the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., which he cultivated for two years; then disposed of it for $11,000, and moved to the city of Fond du Lac, where he has since led a quiet and retired life. When young he took quite an active part in politics, being a strong supporter of the Whig party. He held the office of Town Clerk in Hartford for ten successive years, and while at Dunkirk was a member and Secretary of the School Board for a number of years. He married Miss Marinda Pitts, of Livermore Me., May 10, 1831, by whom he has two sons—Hiram P. and J. R.

HIRAM P. THOMPSON, architect; is a native of Oxford Co., Me., born in 1833, and made that his home till about 1852; he learned the carpenter and joiner's trade, and, in 1852, he went to Boston, Mass., where he continued his trade for nearly two years, whence he went to Dunkirk, N. Y.; in 1856, he went to Buffalo, N. Y., and began architectural drawing with Sage, Wilcox & Bush; in 1857, he immigrated to St. Paul, Minn., where he remained for more than two years, when he went to St. Louis, Mo., where he, in 1860, enlisted in Co. B, of the 112th N. Y. V. I.; was elected Sergeant; in 1863, he was appointed First Lieutenant of Co. I of the 1st U. S. colored troops, and was soon promoted to the position of Captain—with which he served till the close of the war; was mustered out of service at Roanoke Island, October, 1865; returned to Fond du Lac, thence to St. Louis, and came back again to Fond du Lac in 1868, where he has since resided. Was employed as architect in the building of the American House, First Street School Building, First National Bank, Burnton's store, May's store, Bartlet's meat-market, et al. April 9, 1867, he married Miss Julia E. Blossom, daughter of Samuel Blossom, of Buffalo, N. Y., who died Dec. 30, 1867.

CHARLES M. TOMPKINS. The subject of this sketch was born Aug. 13, 1822, in the county of Westchester, N. Y.; after pursuing the usual academic course in his native town (Somers), he entered the university in the city of New York in 1840, and graduated in 1844; among his classmates who have since attained distinction, may be mentioned Dr. Howard Crosby and A. Oakley Hall, of New York City; Hon. Theodore Frelinghuysen was at this time Chancellor of the University, and ran for Vice President on the ticket with Henry Clay; educated in the same political faith, Judge Tompkins reverts with pride to the fact that his first vote was cast for "Clay and Frelinghuysen." Having prepared himself for the profession of law, he moved to Wisconsin in the summer of 1847, and settled in Fond du Lac (then a growing village), and formed a partnership with J. M. Gillett, Esq., at that time and always a leading lawyer of the place; the business of the firm grew with the growth of the country. In 1848, Mr. Tompkins was nominated for the office of District Attorney for the county on the Whig ticket, running much ahead of his ticket; in 1850, the firm of Gillett & Tompkins was dissolved by the election of Mr. Tompkins as Judge for the counties of Fond du Lac and Calumet, (then attached for judicial purposes), which office he held for the term of four years; shortly after his election, he was appointed Postmaster of the city, serving nearly the whole of President Fillmore's Administration. In 1849, Judge Tompkins was married to Miss Amelia Davis, of Fond du Lac, oldest daughter of Col. C. Davis, one of the pioneers and its vicinity; three children were the fruits of this union, but none survive; the loss of wife and children, along with health greatly impaired, induced Judge Tompkins to seek a new home in a Southern climate; in 1862, he accepted a position under President Lincoln's (first) Administration, in one of the departments at Washington (Pension Office), and he has been retained in the same position by successive administrations. Judge Tompkins was fortunate in his ancestral relations, being a lineal descendant of Gov. Daniel D. Tompkins, of New York, while his grandfather (Dr. Elias Cornelius), was an eminent surgeon in the Revolutionary army under Gen. Washington, whose friendship and confidence he enjoyed during life. While a resident of Fond du Lac, Judge Tompkins was justly esteemed for his integrity and uprightness; he was an active, energetic citizen, and largely identified with the grain, lumber and warehouse business. In politics, he was decidedly Whig. His many friends will be glad to know that he is yet living, with health improved, and home made happy by the smiles of a wife and two promising children, more precious to him than all the treasure in the Treasury.

E. C. TOMPKINS, grocer; was born at Somers-town, Westchester Co., N. Y., March 13, 1821. He lived six years in New York City; came to Fond du Lac in 1853; went to Watertown in 1854; to Pike's Peak in 1859, and returned to Fond du Lac in 1862, where, since 1864, he has been engaged in the grocery business. He was married, in New York, to Ann Eliza Green, who was born in his native place, and has one child—Anna M. Mr. T. is an Odd Fellow.

CHRISTIAN TOSTENSON, foreman in the woodwork department in McDonald's thrashing-machine works; was born in Norway in 1828; began his apprenticeship as carpenter and joiner in 1844; came to New York in 1853, and worked there at his trade for five years; thence he came to Racine, Wis. In 1873, he moved to Fond du Lac, and became foreman of the woodwork department in thrashing-machine works. In 1853, he married Miss Johanna Utgard, of Norway, who died at Racine, Wis., in 1871, leaving five children, as follows: Charles, Victoria, Sarah J., Frederick and Martha C. Married Miss Eliza Lawson, of Norway, in 1872; they have two children—Eddie C. and Oliver.

BYRON TOWN, manufacturer; was born at Georgia, Franklin Co., Vt., June 4, 1825; came to Wisconsin in 1860, locating at Omro, and engaged in the flouring-mill business for one year. After that, he kept the American House at Ripon five years; the American House at Fond du Lac four years, and the Patty House in the same place, a little over three years, since which time (1874) he has been connected with the Wheel & Seeder Co., manufacturers of grain drills and broad-cast seeders, having a very large and constantly increasing business. In Fond du Lac, Mr. T. has been City Treasurer, and a member of the City Council. He is now Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager of the Wheel & Seeder works. Mr. Town was married, Jan. 1, 1849, by Rev. Alvah Sabin, to Sarah Fargo, of Georgia, Vt.; they have three children—Carrie A., born Aug. 10, 1853; Edmund Carroll, born Oct. 2, 1855, and Minnie D., born June 13, 1858. The Town family is one of the oldest, in an unbroken line, in England or America, the Town coat-of-arms consisting of "argent, on a chevron, sable, three-cross crosslets, ermine," dating back to 1274 in England. The first ancestor, according to the "New England Historical and Genealogical Register," now positively known to belong to the family, was William de la-Towne, of Alvely, a village of Shropshire, near Shrewsbury, England. Thereafter the family contained in England many personages of note and high degree. The name "Edmund," given to Byron Town's second son, has been perpetuated over two hundred and fifty years in the family.

JOHN B. TRIPP, carpenter and joiner; is a native of Oneida Co., N. Y., where he was born in 1813; came to Wisconsin in 1854, and settled in Walworth Co., where he followed farming for eight years. In 1862, he enlisted in Co. A. of the 32d W. V. I.; was taken sick and transferred to the invalid corps at St. Louis, Mo., where he served the rest of his term of service, and was mustered out in July, 1865. He then returned to Fond du Lac, and has since followed the carpenter and joiner's trade. In 1878, he, with his partner, Mr. Seales, built the County Insane Asylum. He was married to Miss Mary Cooper, daughter of Charles Cooper, a farmer of Osecola, Fond du Lac Co., in 1867, she being a native of Scotland; they have three children—Charles H., Florence M. and Maud E. Mr. Tripp and wife are members of the Congregational Church.

JOHN J. TRIPP, farmer, Sec. 36; the son of John and Hannah Tripp, nee Robins, of Oneida Co., N. Y., born in 1826; he being a farmer's son, spent most of his boyhood at farm work, and attending school during the winter till he acquired a limited common-school education; in 1847, he immigrated to Wisconsin and settled in Fond du Lac Co., where, for the first three years, he tended what is known as the Milton farm on shares; having no seed wheat of his own at the first seeding time, he would flail out some for those who had preceded him long enough to raise a crop, taking for his labor every seventh bushel of wheat so thrashed till he had earned enough to sow on twenty acres; at the end of three years, he was able to buy his present farm of 142 acres, which he has since improved, and made a comfortable home for himself and family. He was married to Miss Francis A., daughter of Hiram and Lucinda Edgerton, of Fond du Lac Township, in 1848; they have three children—Emma J., Charles C. and Eva. Politically, Mr. Tripp is a Republican, and has been a member of the Town Board for one year.

C. A. TROWBRIDGE, watchmaker and jeweler, dealer in silver and plated ware, etc.; born in Ithaca, N. Y.; came to Sheboygan in 1847; resided there until he came here in April, 1869. Mr. Trowbridge has been engaged in his present business for the last twenty four years, and is one of the most reliable dealers in the State.

JOHN D. TURNER, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. Fond du Lac; is the son of John and Judith Turner, born in Cuyahoga Co., Ohio, Jan. 19, 1820; he spent his early life on a farm and in a grist-mill in Lorain Co., Ohio, whither his parents removed when he was about 10 years of age; his father being proprietor of the mill in Lorain Co., though he had practiced medicine in Cuyahoga Co. for twenty-five years. At the age of 25, John D., the subject of this sketch, returned to his native county, Ohio, and for four years at Rock River Falls was engaged in the manufacture of pearlsh; in May, 1847, he removed to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm in Sec. 21, then owned by W. B. Ransom; six months later, he removed to Mr. Hamilton's farm, in Sec. 30, and, in 1848, bought a farm of twenty acres in Sec. 20, where he now has sixty acres, and has since made his home. Jan. 15, 1841, he married Miss M.ilda, daughter of James and Catharine Harplam, of Center Co., Penn.; their children are as follows:

John (deceased), Benona (now of Colorado), Arthur (deceased—killed at Atlanta), Lelia (Mrs. Truman Hawkins, of Winterset, Madison Co., Iowa), Rollin J. (of Fond du Lac), Celia A., Rinaldo D. (of Colorado), Catharine M. (deceased), and Eddy A.

ISAAC UNDERWOOD, carpenter; was born near Rochester, Monroe Co., N. Y., Dec. 30, 1842; son of Joseph Underwood, who was an early settler of Waukesha, Wis., where he still resides. After residing eighteen years in Waukesha, Isaac lived one and a half years at Waterville; removed then to Lumira, Dodge Co., where he enlisted in August, 1862, in Co. A, 32d W. V. I.; was in detached service six months with the Pioneer Corps; was in nearly all the battles engaged in by his regiment; mustered out in June, 1865. He came to Fond du Lac the same year, where he has since resided, except two years spent in Wyoming Territory; Mr. U. began the carpenter's trade in 1865, and has followed it ever since. He was first married at Fond du Lac, Jan. 1, 1867, to Jane Woodward, born in New York State; she died June 4, 1873, leaving one child—Myrtle Jane, and lost one. He was married a second time, in November, 1878, to Minnie Straw, born in Brooklyn, N. Y.

RICHARD UNDERWOOD was born at Laudy's Lane, Canada, Feb. 10, 1824; his parents removed to Springfield, Penn., when he was 3 years old; resided in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Toronto, Buffalo (N. Y.), and removed to Toronto again in 1837, where he remained until coming to Milwaukee Oct. 2, 1846; removed to Beaver Dam, Dodge Co., in 1849, and, in June, 1868, to Fond du Lac. Mr. Underwood is a plasterer. He was married at Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1846, to Hannah Downing, who died in 1847, leaving one son—Henry, a resident of Fond du Lac. He was married, Feb. 10, 1850, to his present wife, Mary J. Hodgman, born at Mason, N. H., May 21, 1830; they have two children living—Frances A., born Jan. 20, 1859, and Willie E., born Nov. 30, 1873; have lost three—Francis Edwin, born June 19, 1851, died Sept. 6, 1854; Richard Lester, born Oct. 17, 1853, died Oct. 13, 1857, and J. Elmer, born Nov. 23, 1866, died Nov. 25, 1867.

PETER VANDERVOORT was born at Amsterdam, Montgomery Co., N. Y., May 10, 1796, of Holland-Dutch parents; came, Nov. 5, 1844, to Milwaukee, and the next year to the town of Eden, settling on Sec. 17; he was a Wesleyan Methodist preacher, and held the first services in the house in which he lived; his house, which was 25x32 feet, was called the "Big Shanty," and in it for several years all elections for that section were held. Mr. V., who went from Amsterdam to Plattsburg, N. Y., when 11 years of age, served all through the war of 1812, in Seth Sherry's company, Col. Miller's regiment. He was married at Plattsburg, Dec. 24, 1829, to Miss Maria Bartlett, who was born at Chazy, Clinton Co., N. Y., Oct. 16, 1808; they have had seven children—Elizabeth B., born Oct. 1, 1832, died as the wife of C. C. Lewis July 14, 1868; Julia Ann, born July 3, 1843, died in 1845 at Milwaukee; Peter V., Paul, Cornelius, Michael and Ann Maria, now Mrs. William Fisher, of Eau Claire, Wis.

D. R. VAN DUYN was born in the township of Pequawnoek, Morris Co., N. J., May 1, 1807; son of Richard Van Duyn, who was the son of Martin Van Duyn, whose father, James, came from Amsterdam, Holland, with his father and mother, when a boy, and lived with his parents on Long Island, now Brooklyn, N. Y., and afterward settled in New Jersey, and built the house in which Daniel R., Richard, his father, and Martin, his grandfather, were born. The subject of this sketch lived with his father and mother till he was 16 years of age, when he left his father's house and engaged in the trade of edge-tool making, and continued at that some six years; he then purchased a farm at Vine Brook, in his native township, and became a successful farmer, owning and occupying the farm for twenty years; having sold out, in September, 1849, he moved to Wisconsin, and purchased a section of land where the station called Van Duyn, on the North-Western Railway, in the town of Friendship, Fond du Lac Co., is situated, adjoining the line of Winnebago Co.; since then, he removed to the city of Fond du Lac, and, at this date, resides on East Division street. Mr. Van Duyn was married to Miss Phebe Crane, of Caldwell, Essex Co., N. J., March 10, 1827; to them were born three children—Marcus Eugene, Aug. 1, 1828, died in infancy; Richard Voorhies, born June 17, 1830, died Feb. 23, 1870, and Anna H., born April 7, 1839, now living in Union Township, Union Co., N. J., the wife of Henry J. Woodward; Mr. Van Duyn's wife died May 30, 1866. In August, 1869, he went to San Francisco, Cal.; spent three years traveling with horse and buggy between Los Angeles, Cal., and the line of British Columbia, near the Fraser River, visiting many of the islands in Puget Sound, opposite Vancouver's Island, using the same horse and buggy the whole time; in November, 1872, he returned to Fond du Lac, and having purchased a small drove of horses, drove them to New York, single handed, by way of Milwaukee, Chicago, Fort Wayne, Canton (Ohio), Sharon, Franklin, Phillipsburg, Mauch Chunk, Easton (Penn.), Morristown and Elizabeth City, N. J., thence via Newark to New York, sold them and returned to Fond du Lac. On the 6th day of June, 1874, he married Mrs. Jane Hadlock. Mr. Van Duyn built the house in which he now lives, did all the carpenter work without plan or bill of lumber from carpenter or architect; also all the cellar walls; also his barn and about forty rods of picket fence; was about two years in completing it, and now lives retired on the fruits of his labor, at the ripe old age of 73.

DANIEL VARNEY, speculator; is a native of Addison Co., Me.; born in January, 1802; spent most of his time there on a farm till 1852, when he was called upon to settle up the estate of a deceased brother, whose death occurred that year; in 1853, he came West for his health, and in the following year settled at Fond du Lac, Wis.; here, for the two years following, he was engaged in buying grain, and, in 1856, he became interested in real-estate speculations, which has been his principal business since that time; in 1859, he began loaning money on Kansas land, by which some of it fell into his hands, which caused him an annual visit to that State for the next ten years. In 1829, he married Miss Sarah C. Dow, daughter of Winthrop and Susan Dow, of Lincoln, Vt.; they had one child—deceased; Mrs. Varney died in 1832; he was married a second time, in 1836, to Mrs. Kezia Lawrence, widow of John Lawrence, of Monkton, Vt., she having two sons—George and John Lawrence, the latter deceased.

ANTON VOGT was born in Switzerland Oct. 26, 1828; came to New York Feb. 11, 1848; came soon after to Milwaukee; went to Oshkosh for seven months, two and one-half years later, and then came to Fond du Lac; he engaged in tailoring until the war, when he enlisted Aug. 15, 1862, in Co. E, 26th W. V. I.; served one and one-half years, participating in the battles of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. Returned to Fond du Lac and worked seven years for Paul Hauser, then began business for himself; Mr. V. is proprietor of a beer hall. He was first married at Fond du Lac, Jan. 6, 1853, to Gertrude Trautvetter, born in Saxony, who died in October, 1853; he married, May 5, 1856, Mary Gloeck, born in Germany; they have had two children, but none are now living. Mr. V. is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge.

GEN. LYMAN M. WARD was born Oct. 15, 1836, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.; came to Fond du Lac in 1850; engaged for some time in the public schools of the city. Enlisted in April, 1861, in the three-months service; was appointed Orderly Sergeant of Co. I, 1st W. V. I.; re-enlisted for three years at the end of first term, and was commissioned Captain; was successively promoted to Major, Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel of the 11th W. V. I.; was in command of a brigade two years, receiving the brevet rank of Brigadier General. Gen. Ward is now engaged in fruit-growing at Benton Harbor, Mich. He was a member of the Michigan Legislature for 1879–80.

JAMES FRANKLIN WARE, attorney; was born in Litchfield, Me., Feb. 11, 1849; came to Hortonville, Wis., in 1855; graduated from Lawrence University in 1871; from the Law Department of Michigan University in 1873, and then came to Fond du Lac and began the practice of law, being a member of the firm of Gilson & Ware. Mr. Ware was the Republican nominee for the Assembly in 1876, and was elected Assemblyman on that ticket in November, 1879. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias.

JOHN WALLER, mason; was born in Norfolk County, England, July 18, 1819; came to New York City, where he worked at his trade eight months, in 1848; removed to Milwaukee in 1849, and in January, 1850, came to Fond du Lac. Mr. Waller was married, in England, May 22, 1840, to Sarah Odham, a native of Lincolnshire, England; she died in Fond du Lac in 1853, leaving two children—John Robert, born in England, and Mary, born in Wisconsin. Mr. Waller was the builder of some of the best business blocks in Fond du Lac.

HENRY WALLICHS, grocer and druggist; was born in Germany Jan. 10, 1842; lived in New York City one year before coming to Fond du Lac, which he did in 1863, engaging as a clerk; in 1870, he began business for himself, which he has since continued. He was married, at Fond du Lac, in April, 1873, to Bertha Rueping, who was born at Essen, Germany, Oct. 11, 1851; they have two children—Henry and William. Mr. W. is an Odd Fellow.

COL. JEROME A. WATROUS. The subject of this sketch was born in the town of Conklin, Broome Co., N. Y., Sept. 6, 1840, and came with his parents to the Territory of Wisconsin in the fall of 1844, and located at Sheboygan Falls. In the spring of 1849, his parents moved to what is now Hayton, Calumet Co., where they remained until October, 1850, at which time his mother and her six children, in consequence of the death of husband and father, which occurred on the 10th of September of the same year, returned to New York. At the age of 10 years, young Watrous was obliged to earn his own living, which he did by working nine months of the year on a farm, the other three months being spent in district school. This was continued until he arrived at the age of 15 years, when he "worked and earned wages" for two summers, and attended school one winter, and taught school the winter following his 16th birthday in the village of Brookdale, Susquehanna Co., Penn. The following July, with one suit of clothes, $3 in money and a ticket to Sheboygan, in company with an older brother, he started for his old home in Wisconsin, and the second day after his arrival at Hayton, commenced work on a farm for $13 a month. For two winters he taught district school in Calumet Co., and, in the spring of 1859, walked to Appleton, carrying his worldly possessions in an oil-cloth grip-sack, and entered Lawrence University, intending to work his way through college and adopt the law as his profession. When his funds had nearly run out, he learned that an apprentice was wanted in the Appleton Crescent printing office. He withdrew from the school, with the consent of Prof. R. Z. Mason, who was Acting President, and entered upon the duties of printer's devil. That same year he commenced writing local items for the Crescent, which were each morning submitted to the editor, Judge Samuel Ryan, who at first would cut a foolscap page of carefully prepared manuscript down to six or eight lines, and indorse it, "Young man, you must learn to condense, if you expect to be an editor." At the end of six months, Mr. Ryan ceased the cutting-down process. For a couple of months during the winter of 1860, young Watrous was local editor of the Menasha Conservator, a paper founded by ex-Governor Harrison Reed, of Florida. He then returned to the Crescent office, and, in February, 1861, became one of the editors and publishers of the paper. In June of the same year, he enlisted as a private in the first company that left Appleton, and became a member of Co. E, 6th W. V. L., and remained a member of that regiment four years, lacking a few days. In March, 1862, he was made Ordnance Sergeant of King's Brigade, which afterward became the Iron Brigade of the West, and, after the battle of Antietam, was promoted to Ordnance Sergeant of the division. Returning to his regiment at his own request, he was at once made Sergeant Major, and very soon after that was commissioned First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the 6th. In a few months, he was made Adjutant General of the Iron Brigade, then commanded by Gen. John A. Kellogg. At the battle of Gravelly Run and White Oak Road, his horse was shot, three bullet-holes were made in his clothing, and he was taken prisoner. This occurred on the 31st of March. Reaching Libby Prison, Richmond, on Sunday, the 2d of April, 1865, he was soon gladdened by hearing that all the prisoners were to be paroled and sent to City Point, then in the Union lines. The prisoners were sent to Annapolis, Md., and the officers were granted a thirty-days leave of absence. He was brevetted Captain for "gallant and meritorious conduct in battle," the commission dating from March 31. Under a general order, issued May 15, all paroled prisoners were directed to be mustered out of the service. Adj. Watrous was reported killed in the battle of March 31, and had the pleasure of reading handsome obituary notices of himself in the State Journal, Appleton Crescent, Green Bay Advocate and several other Wisconsin papers. While in the army, he corresponded for the Appleton Crescent, State Journal, Washington Chronicle, Indianapolis Journal, Chippewa Falls Union, the Montrose (Penn.) Republican and the Binghamton (N. Y.) Democrat. Returning to Wisconsin in June, 1865, after taking four days to visit, he bought a half-interest in the Jackson County Banner, at Black River Falls, and resumed his profession. For a year he edited the paper, did the press work, set type, did job work, canvassed, collected and fought the wolf from the door. In 1866, he was made Superintendent of Schools for Jackson Co., and that fall received the Republican nomination for the Assembly from the district composed of Clark and Jackson Cos., and was elected by a large majority, and was the youngest member of the House, being 26 years of age. He served on two regular committees, and was a member of a special committee of three to investigate the affairs of the Insane Asylum at Madison. It was while a member of the Legislature that he became a temperance man. In 1868, Gov. Fairchild sent Capt. Watrous a commission as Colonel, and a member of his military family. A similar commission was sent him by the same Governor in 1872, and Gov. Smith has twice commissioned him Colonel. In August, 1869, Col. Watrous, in company with Hon. S. S. Field, who has since been Speaker of the Assembly, and a State Senator, and T. B. Reid, Consul to Funchai, bought the Fond du Lac Commonwealth. In 1870, he was the Republican candidate for Congress in his district. He remained one of the editors and proprietors of that paper until March, 1876, when he rented his interest to his partner, H. M. Kutchin, and a year later sold to the same gentleman. In 1873, Col. Watrous joined the Temple of Honor, a temperance and fraternal society. In 1875, he was chosen Grand Worthy Vice Templar, and September of that year he was made Grand Worthy Templar by the resignation of Dr. W. A. Gordon, of Oshkosh. He has been unanimously re-elected, by acclamation, every year since, having held the office nearly five years, during which time the Order has grown from ten Temples to 230. In May, 1876, Col. Watrous, seeing the need of a paper to assist him in introducing the Order, of which he was the head, started the Appeal, a six-column monthly. It was enlarged to seven columns the following year, and set in new type. During an experience of three years, the paper cost its proprietor $1,000 more than it returned, but is now on a paying basis. In February, 1870, the Appeal was moved to Milwaukee, given a new dress of smaller type, thus enlarging it to a considerable extent. It is the leading temperance newspaper in the West. In July, 1879, he bought an interest, in the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph, and, in October following, bought another interest, which gave him an undivided half of the paper, his partner being Col. E. A. Calkins. The two Colonels have the reputation of ranking among the best editors in the State. In 1872, Col. Watrous took an active part in organizing the Northern Wisconsin Press Association, and served two years as its President, being succeeded by A. T. Glaze, of the Ripon Commonwealth. Though engaged in business in Milwaukee, he still resides at Fond du Lac.

JOHN WEBER, merchant tailor; was born in Hesse in 1834; learned his trade in his native country, and came to America in 1854; remained in New York a short time, then moved to Baltimore, Md., whence, in 1858, he came to Fond du Lac, where he has since followed his trade. In 1869, he married Miss Agnes Carstenes, of Fond du Lac; she was a native of Germany; they have seven children, as follows—George W. H., Andrew H., Edward (deceased), Lydia T., Fredrick W., John E. (deceased), and Jacob S. Mr. Weber is a member of the Temple of Honor. His family are members of the Methodist Church.

W. F. WEBER, editor, publisher and bookbinder, was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, Oct. 3, 1851, where he learned his trade of bookbinder, after attending the public schools the usual period; he came to Chicago in September, 1871, where he resided three years; located at Marquette, Mich., six months, and came to Fond du Lac in July, 1874, where he has since carried on the business of a bookbinder. In March, 1878, Mr. Weber became the editor and proprietor of the Nordwestlicher Courier, a German newspaper, which he has since published. He was married at Ripon, Wis., May 15, 1877, to Matilda Weber, a native of Theresa, Wis.; they have one child—Amelia, living, and have lost one, Josephine. They are members of the German Catholic Church.

JESSE C. WEDGE, Vice President of the Wheel and Seeder Co., is a native of Lewis Co., N. Y., born in 1821; lived there on a farm with his father till about 23 years of age; in 1844, he immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm in what is now known as Wedge Prairie in Waupun Township, where he spent about twenty years at farming; from there he came to Fond du Lac, and was interested in various enterprises till 1874, when he with others formed the incorporation known as the Wheel and Seeder Co., with which he has since been connected. In 1854, he married Miss Lovina Bent, daughter of Albert Bent, a farmer of Lewis Co., N. Y. Mr. Wedge has been a Mason since 1859.

THOMAS S. WEEKS, gunsmith, was born near Highland Mills, Orange Co., N. Y., and removed to Goshen, when 16 years of age, where he lived until coming to Fond du Lac in 1849, with Samuel B. Amory. He learned the trade of a gunsmith before coming to Fond du Lac, and has followed it continuously ever since, going into business for himself in June, 1860. Mr. Weeks, who is a bachelor, was a member of the Assembly in 1874, and was elected Alderman of the Second Ward in 1877 for three years, but resigned in 1879.

W. H. WELLS, banker; was born in Orange Co., N. Y.; resided at Cold Spring and Newburg; was connected with the banking business twenty years before coming to Fond du Lac, where he opened a private bank for the transaction of a general banking and exchange business, in May, 1879.

FREDRICK WEYER, dealer in wines and liquors, etc., No. 17 Division street; was born in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, March 19, 1835; in 1852, he emigrated to America, and lived at Cambria, N. Y., about seven years, at the end of which time he came to Fond du Lac; October, 1861, he enlisted in Co. A, 2d W. V. C., returned in 1863, and served until the spring of 1866, when he was honorably discharged at Austin, Tex.; he participated in a number of severe engagements, the principal ones being at Helena, Ark., Vicksburg, and a series of battles around that place and Memphis. Mr. Weyer has been married twice, first wife was Annie Kramer, she died March 28, 1870; present wife was Eliza Dieuger; one child—Freddie. Mr. W. has been in business in Fond du Lac since 1867. In politics, he is a Republican.

JACOB WHEELER, foreman on third floor in Meyer's sash, door and blind factory, is a native of Vermont; born in 1830; learned his trade in his native county, and in 1854, emigrated to Berlin, Wis., where he followed the sash, door and blind manufactory till 1863, whence he went to Eureka, Wis., and continued it for one year; in October, 1864, came to Fond du Lac, and began work for Mr. Meyer in his factory; in 1865, he became foreman of sash, door and blind work and has remained in that position since that time. He married Miss Mary Smith, daughter of John F. Smith, boot and shoe manufacturer of Hubbardton, Rutland Co., Vt., April 26, 1854; they have had two sons—Frank B., deceased, and Freddie.

REV. L. N. WHEELER, Presiding Elder of the Fond du Lac District; was born at Waukesha, Wis., Feb. 28, 1839; came to Fond du Lac in 1845; three years later, his father, Truman Wheeler, was killed while scenering timber for the grist mill frame erected back of the Court House; his mother died here in 1857. Mr. Wheeler was educated at the Union School in this city; received the degree of A. M. from Lawrence University in 1878; learned the printer's trade with Royal Buck; was foreman of a printing office for some time; published the Omro Republican one year; was then licensed to preach in the M. E. Church, and appointed to the Two Rivers Circuit, which included most Manitowoc Co., and a part of Kewaunee, where he remained one year; at Byron two years; Empire two years; Sheboygan nearly a year, and in 1865, was appointed missionary to China; did there general mission work, and superintended the mission press of Foo-Chow; for some time, while at Foo-Chow, China, he edited an Anglo-Chinese magazine; his health failing, he removed to Peking, where, as the first M. E. missionary, he remained for four years; his health still failing, he returned home via Japan and California, thus completing the circuit of the world; after his return, Mr. W. was stationed two years at Manitowoc; two years at Lake Mills, Wis.; two years at Court Street Church, Janesville; appointed, in the fall of 1878, Presiding Elder of the Fond du Lac District; while at Manitowoc, Mr. W. was active during the war in raising recruits, making speeches, and was commissioned by the Governor, Captain of a militia company. He was married at Oshkosh, Nov. 20, 1857, to Mary E. Davis, born at Gouverneur, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1828; they have five children—Frances Irene, Carrie Ada, Aggie May, Lucy B. and Laura Maud; they lost four children in infancy.

HENRY T. WHINFIELD, salesman in Whittelsey's dry-goods store, was born in Wisbech, England in 1839, shortly after which his parents removed to London, thence to America in 1846, and settled at Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; thence to Fond du Lac in 1848, where he lived on a farm for a few years; in 1853, he entered Lawrence University, at Appleton, Wis., where he remained as a student till 1856; returning to Fond du Lac, he was clerk in T. B. Mason's tea store for the next three years; in 1859, he returned to Taycheedah and taught school for two winters; thence to Fond du Lac again for eight years, being clerk in a dry-goods store for Sewell Bros.; in 1869, by invitation he formed a copartnership with Carswell & Mason, dealers in dry goods, carpets, etc., which lasted one year; after its dissolution he clerked one year for C. J. Pettibone; then with John Sewell, afterward Carswell & Sewell, till the summer of 1878; when the firm was dissolved he became salesman in Whittelsey's dry-goods store. He was married to Miss Jemima Howe, daughter of J. E. Howe, farmer, of Geneva Lake, in 1868. They had two children—Fredrick and an infant, both of whom are deceased; Mrs. Whinfield died Nov. 21, 1876.

SAMUEL WHITMORE, farmer, Sec. 5; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a son of Thomas and Amy Whitmore, of Leicestershire, England, and was born in 1818. At the age of 13, he was put to work on a farm by his father, who was a carpenter and joiner in that country, but preferred to have his son to be a farmer; Samuel continued his agricultural vocation in his native country till 1847, when in January he with his wife and child set sail for America, and landed in New Orleans the 15th of March following, reaching Fond du Lac Co. one month later, with only sixpence in his pocket to support his little family; his resolution, stimulated by the necessities of his loved ones, soon found him something to do; removing his family to a small shanty on his brother's farm, he worked by the day till he was able to buy that pioneer necessity—the cow—from which his wife, by churning the milk with a spoon, made and sold one hundred pounds of butter within the year; by the year 1850 he had saved enough money to pay his brother $200 for 80 acres of land in Sec. 5, town of Fond du Lac, where he has since lived and continued as an honest farmer, who now enjoys the reward of his many years of toil. Oct. 12, 1845, he was married to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of James and Sarah Gamble, of Leicestershire, England, who has shared his toils and pleasures through life thus far; they had six children—Sarah A., Mrs. V. Pitcher, of Fond du Lac, deceased; Jay (deceased); Mary (now Mrs. Nelson Vandervoort, of Fond du Lac); George, William and Samuel. Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore are members of the Methodist Church.

P. J. WICKERT, proprietor meat market; was born in Prussia Jan. 17, 1843; came directly to Fond du Lac in October, 1865, and engaged in C. J. L. Meyer's factory; in the spring of 1879, he began his present business. He was married in Fond du Lac, Feb. 8, 1868, to Margaretta Terners, a native of Prussia; they have one child, Amelia, born Nov. 20, 1879. Mr. and Mrs. W. are members of the German Evangelical Church.

W. W. WILCOX, master mechanic in Mr. C. J. L. Meyer's machine-shop; is a native of Batavia, Genesee Co., N. Y.; born in 1833; he spent his early life, till he reached his 16th year, with his father on the farm; in 1849, he immigrated to Wisconsin and settled at Neenah; in 1863, he began steamboating on the Mississippi River, which was continued for four years, during which time he assisted in putting up the machinery on three steamboats for that river; in 1867, he moved to Fond du Lac, and for three years following was employed as machinist in the Union Iron Works, where he superintended the construction of fourteen steam engines, and one for a boat on lake Winnebago; in 1870, he was employed as engineer in Mr. Meyer's sash, door and blind factory for a short time, when he was assigned foreman of Mr. Meyer's machine shop; holding this position till 1873, he was appointed master mechanic and superintendent of all his engines; he has built nine steam engines for Mr. Meyer, among them one of 200-horse power for the Chicago factory, and one the same size for the Fond du Lac factory. In 1856, he married Miss Ellen S. Mack, daughter of Jonathan T. Mack, a farmer, of the town of Fond du Lac, but she a native of Connecticut; they have one daughter, Florence, now Mrs. R. C. Baker, of Fond du Lac. Mr. and Mrs. W. are members of the Presbyterian Church.

BENJAMIN WILD began the business of baking in Fond du Lac in 1860, which he has continued to the present time; in 1869, he built and established the large steam bakery on Second street, in which he employs nineteen men and works up fifteen barrels of flour per day; he also manufactures confectionery, the entire business amounting to $80,000 per annum; he employs three traveling salesmen, who sell principally in Michigan and Wisconsin. He has a family of six children. Mr. Wild was born at Staffordshire, England, in 1828, he was married in that country, in 1848, to Miss Eliza Bonell, and came to America, landing at Milwaukee in 1850.

WALTER WILD, book-keeper; was born at Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 19, 1853. He has been connected with his father in business since he was 18 years of age, and is now book-keeper for his father's steam bakery, on Second street, Fond du Lac. He was married at Fond du Lac, Oct. 17, 1878, to Miss Aggie L. Jones, who was born in this city. He is a member of the Fond du Lac Lodge, Royal Arcanum.

DR. WILLIAM WILEY, physician and surgeon; was born at Randolph, Orange Co., Vt.; came to Taycheedah in August, 1849, and to Fond du Lac in 1850, where he has since resided and practiced his profession. Dr. Wiley served as a volunteer surgeon in the rebellion; that is, served without pay.

CHARLES A. WILKE, of the firm of Sittler & Wilke, cigar manufacturers; is a native of Germany, where he was born in 1849; June, 1863, he, with parents, came to America, and located at Sheboygan; went to Michigan in 1870, and followed his trade there for one year, when he returned to Sheboygan Falls for a short time, whence, in 1872, he came to Fond du Lac, and was employed by Bush Bros. till 1874; from 1874 to 1876, by Jos. Wolfe, cigar manufacturer, after which he was in Milwaukee for about eight months; January, 1878, he returned to Fond du Lac; worked for Mr. Wilke till October, 1878, when he became a partner. Married Miss Lydia Griffin, of Fond du Lac, in 1874; they have two children—Charlie and Olga.

WASHINGTON WILKE, trustee for Hiner & White; is a native of Ohio, where he was born Dec. 18, 1830; at 9 years of age, he came, with parents, to Michigan, where he lived till 1848, when he came to Mayville, Dodge Co., Wis., and became engaged in a furniture manufactory. In 1862, he disposed of his interest in the furniture business at Mayville, and moved thence to Fond du Lac for three years; thence to Green Bay in 1865, where he engaged in saw-milling for about four years. In 1869, he returned to Fond du Lac, and became Superintendent of Union Iron Works, in which position he remained till the failure of the firm in February, 1878, when he was elected Trustee by the creditors of the firm. Mr. Wilke has been a member of the I. O. O. F. fraternity since 1857. In 1850, he married Miss Eliza White, daughter of James and Isabella White, of Dodge Co., Wis., she being a native of Scotland; born Feb. 2, 1832; they have two children—James A., druggist, and Mattie A. The family are connected with the Congregational Church.

JOHN WILLIAMS was born in Somerton, Somersetshire, England, Jan. 13, 1848; came to New York in September, 1867, whence, after a few weeks, he came to Fond du Lac for eighteen months; spent 18 months then at Wayland, Allegan Co., Mich.; returned to Fond du Lac; where he has since resided; engaged in painting and glazing, which he learned at the age of 15; he is now foreman of C. J. L. Meyer's painting and glazing department. Mr. W. was married at Fond du Lac June 19, 1868, to Elizabeth A. Moore, born in Draycott, Somersetshire, England; they have three children—John E., Albert George and Lulu Pearl.

O. T. WILLIAMS, attorney, of the firm of Giffin & Williams; was born at Homer, Cortland Co., N. Y., Oct. 19, 1845; removed, at 10 years of age, to Whitewater, Wis., where his father died; resided with Rev. Sheldon, a half brother; spent about nine years on a farm in Rock Co., and attended school winters; afterward spent seven terms in Milton College; took a classical course in Lawrence University, graduating in 1872; was one year Principal of the schools of Ft. Howard, Wis.; graduated in June, 1874, from the Law Department of Madison (Wis.) University, and, in August of that year, began practicing law with Coleman & Spence, Fond du Lac; in February, 1875, became a member of the present firm. Mr. W. was married at Pewaukee, Wis., June 30, 1876, to Anna E., daughter of Prof. Alexander North, of Carroll College; they have two children—Lynn A. and an infant son. Mr. Williams is a member of the Odd Fellows' Lodge and Congregational Church.

HENRY J. WOLF, wagon-maker; was born in Prussia Sept. 24, 1847; came to America with his father, Louis Wolf, in 1848, who located at Marshfield, in this county, and died in Fond du Lac Town April 2, 1870; at the age of 17, Henry left the farm and came to Fond du Lac, learned the blacksmith's trade, and has been engaged in business for himself during the past three years. Mr. W. was married in Fond du Lac, Feb. 14, 1870, to Amalia Gentz, a native of Wisconsin; they have two children living—Theodore, aged 10 years, and Willie, aged 8; they have lost three, all dying in infancy.

JOSEPH WOLFF, cigar-maker; was born in Luxemburg, Germany, March 19, 1831, and came to America, landing at Boston May 2, 1852; he worked at Williamsburg, N. Y., until the fall of 1853, when he removed to Chicago, residing there until March, 1854, at which time he came to Fond du Lac; after arriving in Fond du Lac, he worked for Mr. Martin, at cigar-making, until May, 1855, when the firm of Fromm & Wolff was formed; in June, 1865, Mr. Fromm retired from the firm and Mr. Wolff has carried on the business alone ever since. He was married at Fond du Lac, Aug. 6, 1856, to Barbara Hochrein, a native of Bavaria, whose father, John Hochrein, located in Marshfield in 1846; they have had thirteen children, of whom ten are living—Katie, Emma, John P., Ida, Julia, Anna, Sarah, Frank J., Carl Gustav and Josephina Barbara. Mr. Wolff is a member of the Odd Fellows, Concordia and German-English Academy.

JOHN WOODHULL was born in the town of Madison, Madison Co., N. Y., Dec. 14, 1818, where he was Lieutenant of an Independent Artillery Company, Captain of a Militia Rifle Company; engaged in farming, distilling and rectifying, and in the forwarding business; two years before coming to Fond du Lac, which he did in May, 1861, Mr. W. sold out his business in New York; at Fond du Lac, he at first engaged in the settlement of lumber interests, but, in the summer of 1861, went into the post office, in which he has been ever since, most of the time as Deputy Postmaster.

JAMES WRIGHT, farmer, Sec. 25; was born in Washington Co., N. Y., in 1819; he is the son of a farmer, hence he was brought up at farm work in his native county; in 1844, he immigrated to Wisconsin, and stopped at Milwaukee for the summer, and in the fall of 1844 came to Fond du Lac, where he settled on a farm of sixty acres, to which he soon added 140 acres of timber, and has gradually added to it till he now owns 320 acres, and by his own toil and honest industry has earned a comfortable home for himself and family, though when they first came to Fond du Lac there was a time when provisions were so scarce that for a few meals they had nothing to eat but potatoes, as was the case with many of the pioneers. Mr. Wright was married to Miss Martha Edgerton, daughter of Joshua and Lovice Edgerton, of Fair Haven, Vt., in 1842; they have four children—two sons and two daughters—Josephine E. (now Mrs. B. T. Hostetter, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa), Irving H., James E., of Fond du Lac, Martha L. (now Mrs. S. A. Smith, of Oakfield). Mr. and Mrs. Wright are the only two remaining of the original members of the Congregational Church. Mr. Wright has given many interesting incidents which will be included under the head of pioneer reminiscences.

JAMES WRIGHT, dairyman and farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Fond du Lac; was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1818, and is the son of a weaver, Peter Wright and Marietta Smith; when 16 years of age he was apprenticed to the stone-cutter's trade, at which he worked for twenty-six years; early in the spring of 1842, he set sail for America, landing in New York May 2 following; he came direct to Wisconsin and settled in Kenosha Co., where he followed farm-laboring till by his industry and economy he saved money enough to buy a farm of eighty acres in that county; in 1846, he sold that farm and bought another of 340 acres in the town of Empire, Fond du Lac Co., removing thither he made that his home till 1864, when he sold that and bought his present one of 168 acres in Sec. 13, town of Fond du Lac, where he now follows farming in connection with a large dairy business, keeping from thirty to forty cows, from which he furnishes to the citizens of Fond du Lac from 140 to 160 quarts of milk daily. Oct. 1, 1873, he married Mrs. Emma C., widow of Joseph Smith, daughter of John and Bettie Clapham, of Jacksonville, Ill., she being a native of Yorkshire, England; she had one son and one daughter at the time of her marriage to Mr. Wright—Henry Smith, now of England, and Laura, now of England.

WILLIAM G. WRIGHT, general ticket agent for the Fond du Lac, Amboy & Peoria R. R.; is a native of Sullivan, Ashland Co., Ohio, where he was born Nov. 26, 1851; when he was about 2 years of age his parents moved to Cedar Co., Iowa, and settled on a farm near Tipton; here William spent most of his time till 17 years old; in 1869, he attended school at Tipton, Iowa, after which, during 1870-71, he was a student in the High School at Clarence, Iowa, after which, in the fall of 1872, he attended a commercial school at Chicago; returning to Iowa in the spring of 1873, he entered Cornell College, where he continued his studies for nearly two years, when, his eyes failing him, he was compelled to leave off his studies and receive medical treatment for them; he was next in the employ of the Des Moines & Fort Dodge Railway Co. for a little more than a year, when his eyes again failed him and he was forced to quit the road; in the spring of 1876, he went to Hampton, Iowa, where he remained in the U. S. Express office till 1877, when he was employed by the contractor of the Fond du Lac, Amboy & Peoria R. R. till Jan. 1, 1878; May 1, 1879, he was again employed by the Fond du Lac, Amboy & Peoria R. R. Co., and appointed General Ticket Agent of the road.

DANIEL BAKER WYATT, physician and surgeon, was born in Johnson, Lamoille Co., Vt., Feb. 21, 1842; his parents removed to Fort Covington, Franklin Co., N. Y., when he was a youth; he read medicine there, and, after graduating from the New York Medical University in 1863, he returned to Fort Covington, and was engaged in practice in that place until he came to Fond du Lac in 1868; since coming here, he has given his whole attention to his profession. He was married at Fort Covington, Aug. 31, 1863, to Mary E. Lincoln, daughter of A. M. Lincoln; she was born in the town where they were married; they have one daughter—Gertrude Stella.

S. D. WYATT, insurance agent, came to Fond du Lac in 1866, from Bangor, Franklin Co., where he was born, and began the insurance business; he represents several of the leading fire and life insurance companies, and has one of the largest agencies in the State, the entire territory of the county belonging to his agency for most of the companies which he represents; he has fourteen companies, such as the Home, Etna and North American, representing the largest capital of any agency in the vicinity.

GEORGE W. YANCY, dealer in musical merchandise, was born at New Cassel, Fond du Lac Co., in February, 1854, where he lived until 1872, after which he taught school in various places; visited St. Louis and Indiana, and, July 14, 1876, came to Fond du Lac and engaged in his present business; in April, 1878, Henry E. Parratt was taken as a partner, under the firm name of Yancy & Parratt, who now carry on the business; they make a speciality of Chickering, Mathushek, Bradbury and Kimball pianos, and of the Western Cottage, Scheninger and Kimball organs.

CHARLES ZICKERICK, florist and market gardener, on Grove avenue, is a native of Berlin, Prussia, born Feb. 24, 1819; with his parents, he set sail for America, and landed in New York in June, 1848, whence he came to Dodge Co., and lived on a farm with his father until 1851, at which time he came to Fond du Lac and began gardening, which trade he had learned in his native country; in 1856, he established a greenhouse on Grove street, where he continued until the spring of 1874, when he built a large brick greenhouse, 24x75 feet, in the center of the school section on Grove street; here he has thirty acres of land, and houses valued at $5,500. In 1849, he married Miss Augusta Deisman, daughter of Christian Deisman, tailor, near Berlin, Prussia. They are members of the Evangelical Church. Mr. Z. has been a Mason for a number of years, belonging to the Royal Arch since 1873.

LOUIS ZINKE, Sr., retired grocer; was born in Germany in 1817; learned the cooper's trade at the age of 14; immigrated to America, in 1848; settled in Fond du Lac in 1849, and worked at his trade till 1854, when he began keeping a grocery store; in 1872, he added a flour and feed department; he turned over the business to his sons not a short time since, and has retired from active business life; his business house is regarded as one of the oldest in the city. In 1840, he married Miss Fredrika Andrew, of Germany; they have had five children—Amelia (now Mrs. Kenney), of Fond du Lac, Herman, Charles, Louis J. and Robert. Herman was born in Germany in 1842; came to America with his parents in 1848, and worked at the tanner's trade with L. Rueping, from 1859 to 1866, when he became connected with the grocery firm of L. Zinke & Sons, where he has since been in business. He married Miss Emma Schuster, daughter of Joseph Schuster, brewer, of Fond du Lac, in 1870; they have three children—Laura, Adala and Richard. Louis J. was born in Fond du Lac in 1854; was educated in public schools of this city; was clerk in dry-goods store for Sharp & Whittelsey from 1865 to 1872, whence to Loughlin & Carey, dry-goods store, from 1872 to 1878, when he became a partner with his brothers in the grocery business. Married Miss Laura Haas, of Fond du Lac, in 1877; they have one child.

RIPON TOWNSHIP.

CHESTER ADKINS, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Ripon; was born in Trumbull Co., Ohio, Jan. 24, 1822; his father died when he was 5 years of age; at the age of 20, his stepfather, William, and Elmira Dunham, came to the State of Wisconsin, and settled in Southport (near Kenosha Co.), for four years, and, in 1844, came to this county and settled in Ceresco, being members of the "Wisconsin Phalanx." His stepfather died there in March, 1863; his mother is still living with a niece near Eureka, Wis. The subject of this sketch, in 1850, purchased his present farm, upon which he has since resided of 105 acres. On Dec. 7, 1845, he married Miss Elizabeth Limbert, daughter of George and Margaret Limbert, of Yorkshire, England, who came to the United States in 1840, and settled in what is now Walworth Co., and, in 1844, came to Ceresco, members of "Wisconsin Phalanx," where her mother died in 1864, and her father Dec. 24, 1879. Mrs. Adkins was born in Yorkshire, England, Oct. 6, 1826; they had four children, three living—George (who married Miss Rosanna Bowen, of Auroraville, Wis., in April, 1875; they have two children—Ernest and an infant, and are living in Dakota Territory; he is working as a stonemason and farmer); Ida A. (now Mrs. George Brine, of Ripon Township, married Nov. 26, 1874; they have two children—Ina E. and Daisy N. and Vernon M., living at home, and one deceased); Melissa J., who died in 1850.

D. W. AKIN, druggist, was born at Richmond, Ontario Co., N. Y., Oct. 18, 1820; moved to Niagara with his mother at the age of 15; came to Fond du Lac in September, 1848; platted the village of Marquette in 1849, where he remained until 1864, engaged in the drug business; from 1866 to 1872 was engaged in the boot and shoe business; also engaged in buying wool for twenty years. Mr. Akin has been Assessor and City Treasurer of Ripon, and is a Vestryman in the Episcopal Church. He was married, August, 1848, at Bainbridge, Chenango Co., N. Y., to Mary J. Seeley, a native of that place; they have two children—Levina H., a graduate of the School of Music in Ripon College, and Henry S., a lawyer in New York City, who graduated from Ripon College in 1873, and afterward from Columbia Law School.

ORRA U. AKIN, druggist, bookseller and agent of the American Express Co.; was born in Richmond, Ontario Co., N. Y., March 26, 1831; lived in Lockport, N. Y., from 1836 until the spring of 1850, when he came to Marquette, Wis., where he remained until 1858; he then removed to Madison, where he was employed for three years in the School Land Department of the State; came to Ripon in the spring of 1862, and was one year in partnership with his brother-in-law, M. W. Seeley, in the drug business; from the spring of 1863 until December, 1864, he and his brother, D. W. Akin, carried on the same business as partners; from January, 1865, to September, 1866, he resided at Kingston, Green Lake Co., then returned to Ripon and was in the furniture business about a year; from 1869 to 1875, he was engaged in the drug trade with J. M. De Frees; in 1874 and 1875, he was Sergeant-at-Arms of the Wisconsin State Senate; during the war he served nearly a year with the Department of the Missouri, as Paymaster's Clerk; he was agent for the Merchants' Union Express during the time of its existence, and afterward agent of the American Express Co. until 1873; was nearly a year in Iowa in 1875 and 1876; returned to Ripon and has been in his present business ever since, his brother, Dennis W., having been associated with him since January, 1878. He has been Mayor of this city, and is serving now as Alderman. April 10, 1861, he was married, at Marquette, to Mary A. Curtis, a native of Syracuse, N. Y.; they have four children—Charles C., Alice M., Anna W. and Mary B.

LOUIS M. ALLEN, painter, son of Jonathan Allen, one of the first settlers in Oakfield, and who died in Ripon, was born at Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Oct. 19, 1845; when 9 years of age he moved to Iowa, and three years later came to Ripon, where he has since resided; he learned the painter's trade in 1867. Mr. Allen is the only charter member of Living Water Lodge, I. O. G. T., now in good standing. He was married, Oct. 9, 1877, to Antoinette Root, a native of New York State; they have one child—Leo Allen.

ROBERT ALLEN, retired; was born in Durham, England; came to the town of Brooklyn, Green Lake Co., Wis., in 1847, and located on a farm, which he still owns; in 1870, he retired from active life and came to Ripon, where his residence now is. Mr. Allen was married at Berlin, Wis., Nov. 27, 1860, to Josephine Walton, born at St. Andrews, Province of New Brunswick; her parents, George and Jane Walton, died in Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Allen have three children—George R., Maud M. and Frederick W.

GEORGE W. ANNIN was born at Le Roy, N. Y., Aug. 27, 1816; came to Wisconsin in 1853, where he has since resided. He was married, March 27, 1843, to Mrs. Harriet Pierson; they have six children—Harriet, George W., Grace, Bryant W., Flora B. and Jerome; Mrs. Annin has two children by her former marriage—Irving J. and Harlow W. Pierson.

WILLIAM H. APPLEBY was born in Allegany Co., N. Y., Jan. 29, 1824; moved with his parents to Onondaga Co.; then to Crystal Lake Prairie, McHenry Co., Ill., July 21, 1838, and the winter following moved to Cook Co., where his parents now live; in the spring of 1846, Mr. Appleby came to Wisconsin, and May 12 of that year, made a claim of 265 acres of land in Green Lake Co., on Secs. 11 and 14, Town 15, Range 12. Mr. A. was married Nov. 5, 1848, to Mary L. Loomer, born at Dayton, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Oct. 21, 1832; they have had ten children—Emma A., now Mrs. Asa E. Holmes, now of Ripon, born March 11, 1850; Gilbert A., born Feb. 15, 1852, died Sept. 17, 1852; Nettie E., now Mrs. Frank A. Flower, of Fond du Lac, born April 20, 1854; Flora E., born July 5, 1855; Edward P., born Nov. 3, 1857; Lewis H., born March 24, 1860, died Oct. 26, 1862; Kattie H., born June 3, 1862; Willie T., born Dec. 1, 1864; Clarence, born April 24, 1867, died Oct. 23, 1867; Jennie M., born Nov. 29, 1869. In the spring of 1863, Mr. Appleby with his family moved to Ripon, Fond du Lac Co., where he now resides.

DAVID C. ATKINSON, farmer, Sec. 18; P. O. Ripon; was born in Lincolnshire, England, Oct. 6, 1824; in 1846, came with his parents, David and Rebecca Atkinson, who settled in Waterford, Saratoga Co., N. Y., for two years, and in 1848, came to Wisconsin and settled in Ripon Township, where they still reside; the subject of this sketch, from that time up to 1856, teamed from Ripon to Fond du Lac, Milwaukee and Sheboygan, and assisted his parents upon the farm; in 1856, he came to his present farm of 180 acres. He has held the office of Supervisor of the town for five years. He married, Sept. 24, 1857, Miss Harriet Newell Hubbard, daughter of William and Salome Hubbard, of Leverett, Franklin Co., Mass.; both of her parents died there when she was quite young; Mrs. Atkinson was born in Leverett, Mass., Sept. 30, 1828; they have one child—William A., born May 2, 1859. They are members of the Presbyterian Church; Mr. Atkinson is a Republican.

D. C. ATKINSON, farmer, Sec. 18; P. O. Ripon; was born in Lincolnshire, England, in August, 1800; came to the United States in 1817, and settled in Saratoga Co., N. Y.; in 1849, came to Wisconsin and settled in the town of Ripon, about half a mile from the city of Ripon; the next year, moved into the city and built himself a residence on what is now called West street; remained there three years, and then moved to the farm on Sec. 18, upon which his son, D. C. Atkinson, now lives; in 1878, he moved to his present farm; he has always been engaged in farming pursuits. He married Miss Rebecca Cook Sept. 25, 1822, daughter of John and Mary Cook, of Lincolnshire, England; she was born in Lincolnshire, England, Oct. 10, 1798; they had five children, four living, viz.: D. C. Atkinson, whose record is given in this work; Mary A., born March 21, 1824, now Mrs. David Walford, of Kenyon, Minn.; Ruth, born August 6, 1826, married twice, now widow of Uriah Daft; she had four children by her first husband and one by the second; Susan W., born Dec. 21, 1828, now Mrs. W. A. West, of Waupaca, Wis., and one deceased; Rebecca, born March 28, 1830, married James Lathrop, of New York, and died in July, 1863.

B. BABCOCK, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Ripon; was born in Albany Co., N. Y., Aug. 22, 1828; his parents' names were Joseph and Phoebe Babcock; his father died in 1872, and his mother in 1878; the subject of this sketch was engaged in assisting his parents upon the farm up to the time of his coming West in the fall of 1854; he first took up his residence at Berlin, Green Lake Co., Wis., and remained there until the next fall (1852), when he moved to Fond du Lac Co. and purchased the farm in this town where he has ever since resided, containing 100 acres. He is at present a member of the Board of Supervisors of the county and Chairman of the Town Board. He married Miss Elvira Smith, daughter of David and Emeline Smith, of Schoharie Co., N. Y., on the 26th of October, 1853; they had three children—Blanche R., now deceased, Frank Larue and Fred Leroy, living.

HENRY DWIGHT BALDWIN, marble dealer; was born at Victory, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Oct. 6, 1837; moved to Michigan with his parents in 1838, where he lived until 1859, when he came to Wisconsin; he has worked at the marble business since 1861; began for himself with Cyrus Pedrick in 1864, and became a member of the firm of Stuart & Baldwin, which is still in business. In 1866, Mr. B. was married at Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 11, 1874, to Mary J. Pedrick, who was born on Lake Erie on the steamer "James Madison;" they have one child—Helen.

PROF. C. G. BALDWIN was born at Napoli, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Oct. 10, 1852; moved to Ohio when 6 years of age; graduated from Oberlin College in 1873, teaching Latin in that institution the last two years; graduated from Andover in 1875, and in that fall came to Ripon College, taking a position as a member of the Faculty, which he has since held. Prof. B. was married in Ripon, Aug. 5, 1876, to Ella V. Billings, born near Jamestown, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.

C. H. Upham
" " "
RIPON.

ASA NEWELL BARNEY, architect and builder; was born at Watertown, Jefferson Co., N. Y., Feb. 17, 1829; came directly to Ripon, April 3, 1855, where he has since re-sided. He was married at Ripon, April 17, 1861, to Abigail H. McCord, born in the town of North East, Erie Co., Penn.; they have two children—John Lynn and Lizzie Gertrude.

HENRY L. BARNES, M. D., was born in Mexico, Oswego Co., N. Y., April 16, 1835; with parents, Jehiel S. and Sarah Ann (Cole) Barnes, he immigrated to Wisconsin in 1846, and settled on a farm near Markesan, Green Lake Co., where he spent the next five years of his life at farming; he was educated in the High School of Ripon, and in September, 1854, began the study of medicine with Dr. A. W. Hewitt, then a practicing physician of that city; he attended lectures one term at Rush Medical College, of Chicago, and spent a year with Prof. Thayer and Webber, of Cleveland, Ohio, giving special attention to surgery; he graduated from the Cleveland Medical College in March, 1858, and thereupon settled in Dartford, Green Lake Co., Wis., in which place and in Ripon, his present home, he has since continued to practice with constantly growing success; in January, 1865, Dr. Barnes went into the United States Service as Assistant Surgeon of the 24th W. V. I. which had just joined in the march from Atlanta to the sea with Gen. Sherman's army through the Carolinas; he remained with his regiment until it was mustered out in the summer of that year; his studies while with Profs. Thayer and Webber were especially adapted to fitting him for an army surgeon, so that he filled the position with marked credit; at the close of the war, he resumed the practice at Ripon, and here he is now a successful physician; he is a member of the County and State Medical Societies; Dr. Barnes is a Knight Templar in the Masonic Order and was Master of the lodge for several years. Jan. 3, 1861, he was married to Miss Nellie Cady, of Dartford, Wis.; they have four children.

H. B. BATEMAN, proprietor of "Cereso Mills;" was born at Newport, R. I., Dec. 16, 1841; enlisted May, 1862, in the 9th R. I. V. I. for three months; re-enlisted as second Sergeant of the 5th R. I. Heavy Artillery, and was promoted to captaincy of Co. C; was color-bearer one year, Captain nine months; Adjutant of the post for a time; participated in all the battles engaged in by his regiment; was mustered out Aug. 2, 1865; came to Ripon the same year, and engaged in operating the Cereso Mills, of which he is still proprietor and operator. Mr. B. was married at Ripon May 2, 1856, to Jennie M. Mason, born at Hamburg, Erie Co., N. Y., Feb. 20, 1815; they have two children—Luther M., born April 14, 1837, and Henry W., born Aug. 15, 1839. Mr. B. is a member of the A., F. & A. M., Ripon Chapter and Berlin Commandery.

A. B. BISHOP, proprietor of grocery store; is a native of County Kent, England; son of George Bishop and Elizabeth Wells; born in 1838; he spent the first years of his life with his father on a farm and in the hotel of which he was proprietor; he began the grocery business in his native county at an early age, which he continued there till his immigration to America in 1865; he settled at Ripon, Wis., and for seven years clerked for Mr. Kingsbury; in the spring of 1877, he went into the grocery business with Mr. David Clough, and continued as a partner in the firm of Clough & Bishop till the spring of 1879. In England, in 1865 he married Miss Elizabeth, daughter of George and Margaret Wells, of County Kent, Eng., and, in one week after, sailed for America; they have one daughter—Nellie M. They are members of the Grace M. E. Church.

ERASTUS J. BLODGETT, son of Louis Frank Blodgett; was born at Beaver Dam, Wis., Oct. 22, 1846; was taken to Vermont when 18 months old, where, four years afterward, he was brought to Hartford, Wis., which was his home till 1865. In March, 1865, he enlisted in Co. B, 52d W. V. I., and was mustered out in August, 1865. The next year he removed to Ripon and learned the painter's trade; during the past two years, he has been a member of the firm of Tremore & Blodgett, wagon and carriage manufacturers. Mr. B. was married at Ripon, Nov. 26, 1867, to Miss Emma Lyon, born at St. Albans, Vt.; they have two children—Fanni Lyon and Harvey Charlie. Mr. Blodgett is a member of the Masonic Lodge.

I. F. BLODGETT, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Ripon; was born in Orleans Co., Vt., April 1, 1820; in the year 1843, he came to Wisconsin, first locating in Milwaukee, where for eighteen months he clerked for Drs. Weeks & Miller, in the old Hyde Block; from there he went to Beaver Dam, Dodge Co., Wis., and clerked for Waldron & Stimpson; having bought them out, the business was carried on under the firm name of Van Eps & Blodgett; in 1847, he went to Hartford, Washington Co., and engaged in mercantile business up to the year 1868, when he came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the city of Ripon; in 1870, he purchased his present farm of 169 acres. He has been married twice, his first wife being Miss Leinda Boutwell, of Washington Co., N. Y., to whom he was married Sept. 21, 1845; she died July 27, 1848, leaving two children, one living—E. J., and one deceased—Esther, who died Aug. 3, 1848; his second wife is Miss Elizabeth A. Higby, daughter of Oliver and Clarissa Higby, of Connecticut; they were married Sept 27, 1849; they had four sons, two deceased—Lewis F., who died Nov. 3, 1864, and Edson L., died May 8, 1878; two living—William F. and Arthur.

W. H. BONNELL, (deceased); was born in Erie Co., Penn., Jan. 1, 1818; he came West in 1856, and settled six miles north of Rosendale, Rosendale Township, in this county, having purchased there a farm the year before; he lived there nine years and then moved to Nekimi Township, Winnebago Co., Wis., Nov. 15, 1865, and remained there until the spring of 1867, when he came to this township and resided upon his farm until 1872, when he went back to Winnebago Co. and died there July 22, 1873, he always followed farming pursuits. He married Miss Margaret E. Goble in Erie Co., Penn., March 6, 1845; her parents were Timothy and Mary B. Goble, of Rochester, N. Y.; they had eight children, seven now living—James M., Austin W., Duane W., George C., Henry W., Wilsie I. and Wilson T. (twins), and one deceased—Eliza J. Mrs. Bonnell is still living.

ALVAN EARL BOVAY, A. M., of Ripon, was born July 12, 1818, in the town of Adams, Jefferson Co., N. Y.; graduated at Norwich University, Vt., in July, 1841, and was afterward Principal of the Glens Falls and Oswego Academies, in New York State; Professor of Languages in the Bristol Penn. Military College, and Professor of Mathematics in the New York City Commercial Institute. Mr. Bovay also had studied law and was admitted to the bar of the State of New York at Utica in July, 1846. He was married to Caroline Elizabeth, daughter of Ransom Smith, in St. Luke's Church, Hudson street, New York City, by the Rev. Dr. Forbes, Nov. 25, 1846, and settled with his family at Ripon Oct. 5, 1850, where in the November following, he laid out "Bovay's Addition to the City of Ripon." Mr. Bovay was the framer of the earliest Republican organization ever formed, on the 20th of March, 1854, at Ripon, during the pendency of the "Nebraska Bill" in the House of Representatives. He was a member of the Assembly for the First District of Fond du Lac Co., in 1859 and 1860, where he was the author of the famous, much-abused and finally much-revoked "resolutions of '59." Mr. Bovay took an active part in all abolition movements; served in the army, in which he was Major of the 19th W. V. I., and also Provost Marshal of the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth, in Virginia. He is now living in retirement at Ripon.

JEUDIAH BOWEN, banker and merchant; was born in Breckenshire, parish of Llanelly, South Wales, July 19, 1817; came to America and located in Luzerne Co., Penn., in 1830, where his father, John Bowen, died in 1867. Mr. B. came to Ripon—then a huddle of four buildings—June 17, 1850; July 29, returned to Pennsylvania, and Oct. 26, returned with his daughter to make a permanent residence. He erected a store where the Kingsbury Block now is, and began business in it Dec 15 of that same year, as a dealer in general merchandise, continuing eight years in that building, and in another store, until 1864. In 1863, he began the hardware business with O. J. Clark, which connection continued until March, 1877. In 1867, Mr. B. had an interest with J. D. Hamilton in the boot and shoe business, the entire control of which came into his hands in 1872. In 1855, he opened a branch store at Brandon, which continued about three years; in 1861, opened another at Waupun, which ran three years; in 1866, he conducted a store at Red Wing, Minn., for a time; in 1857, owned two farms, but disposed of them as soon as possible; in May, 1864, began the business of banking with Charles E. Wheeler, which has been continued ever since; in 1855, with others, built a mill at Brandon, which he ran one and a half years, in connection with partners, and, in Ripon, he has been engaged almost continually for thirty years in building residences and business blocks. Mr. Bowen has been connected with the Ripon College from its foundation; is connected with the Congregational Church; was Mayor in 1859 and 1868; a member of the Assembly in 1871; a member of the City Council; was appointed Postmaster in 1861, which office he resigned in May, 1866, and has always interested himself in all public moves and matters, being one of the organizers of the Milwaukee & Hudson Ry., with which he was several years connected, and a Director of the Ripon & Wolf River Ry. Mr. B. was first married to Harriet N., daughter of Judge William Root, of Lewis Co., N. Y.; she died in Pennsylvania April 19, 1843, leaving a daughter, Jane A., now Mrs. Alex. K. Shaw, of Chicago. He married a second time, in Pennsylvania, in August, 1853, to Emma C. Perkins, a native of Pennsylvania; they have two children—Carrie and Maggie L.

ISAAC BROWN, merchant tailor; was born in Dorsetshire, England, Jan. 10, 1834; came to Chicago, with his mother, in 1846; enlisted in Co. A, 2d I. V. C., August 9, 1861, and served three years, mostly on detached duty; was mustered out in the spring of 1865; came to Ripon in the spring of 1874, and engaged in merchant tailoring the next year. Mr. B. was married in Ripon, Sept. 13, 1877, to Miss Frances Miller. Mr. B., who was two years on detached service with Gens. Ord and Logan, helped to raise the first company of volunteers in Ogle Co., Ill.

J. E. BROWN, merchant tailor; was born at Batavia, Genesee Co., N. Y., July 16, 1839; came from there to Ripon in the spring of 1865, and engaged in the merchant tailoring business, which he has since followed, having at all times a large store in Ripon, and, during the last five years, a branch at Waupun. He was married at Ripon, July 16, 1867, to Grace Annin, a native of Darford, Green Lake Co., Wis.; they have two children—Bertie Howard, born May 2, 1870, and May Belle, born June 22, 1874.

LYSANDER MARTIN CARLISLE, grain-dealer, was born at Goshen, Addison Co., Vt., Oct. 15, 1818; removed to Buffalo, N. Y., in the fall of 1843; in 1844, came to Milwaukee; returned three months later to Buffalo; surveyed the Cattaraugus Indian Reservation, just south of that city, in 1843; resided in Western New York until coming to Ceresco, May 31, 1849, where he worked for the Phalanx until 1850; Sept. 1, 1850, Mr. C. bought a house of the Phalanx and opened a hotel called the Ceresco House, which he conducted until 1854, then selling out and erecting a brick house near the railroad crossing; in 1861, he went into the Mapes House with Gilbert Lane, now of Oshkosh, remaining two years; since then, Mr. C. has been dealing in grain. He was Justice of the Peace before the city was incorporated, Assessor of the Second Ward three years and of the First Ward two years; he once owned five shares of Phalanx stock for which, at Potter's Corners, N. Y., he traded to the value of $125. Mr. C. was married at Madison, Aug. 31, 1859, to Harriet Gorham, born in Wyoming Co., N. Y.

DR. WILLIAM E. CARNAHAN, homeopathic physician and surgeon; was born in Genesee Co., N. Y., Jan. 14, 1838; removed to Columbia Co., Penn., with his parents in 1840; removed from there to Michigan when 16 years old, where he attended school until 1860; taught school two years; returned then to Pennsylvania and began the study of medicine, graduated from the Western Homeopathic College of Cleveland, Ohio; attended lectures at Bellevue Hospital Medical College; began practice at Cambria City, Ind., in the spring of 1867; removed in 1873, on account of ill health, to Hamilton, Ohio, and from there came to Ripon in June, 1877. He was married at Lebanon, Ohio, in February, 1866, to Lucy Wood, who died in 1873, leaving one child—Ada W., born in June, 1870; he was married a second time, at Ripon, Oct. 11, 1877, to Sadie G. Barker, a native of Columbus, Ohio. Dr. C. is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F.

HORACE L. CHADBOURNE, of the firm of Fish & Chadbourne, sign, house and carriage painters; was born in Oxford Co., Me., in 1844; came to Wisconsin with his parents in 1856 and located in the city of Ripon. In January, 1865, he enlisted in Co. I of the 47th W. V. I., under Col. Ginty, and partook in all the movements of his regiment till it was mustered out at Madison in the following autumn (1865). He then returned to Ripon and soon after began the painter's trade, which he has since followed; in 1876, he formed a copartnership with Fish under the present firm name. He was married to Miss Evelyn Williams, of this city in 1868; they have two children—Charles and Amy.

O. H. CHAMBERLAIN, farmer, Sec. 12, P. O. Ripon; was born in the town of Sparta, Livingston Co., N. Y., July 5, 1822. His parents, Harlem G. and Anna, died in Union Corners, Livingston Co., N. Y., his father in 1869, his mother in 1874; they were pioneers of that part of the State, having come from Vermont at a very early day; they had six sons and five daughters, all of whom lived to be men and women. The subject of this sketch came to the State of Wisconsin in the fall of 1849, and first settled in Fond du Lac Co., one mile southeast of the city of Ripon, living in that neighborhood for seven years; in the fall of 1853, he moved to his present farm on Sec. 12, where he has ever since resided, containing 155 acres; for six winters he taught school in this county and one winter in Winnebago Co.; he also held the office of Town Superintendent of Schools several years; Magistrate several terms, and is at present Justice of the Peace, and has been two terms previously. He married Miss Harriet E. Weber (daughter of Daniel B. and Emily Weber) in Ceresco, Feb. 1, 1852; she was born in Liberty, McKean Co., Penn., Aug. 22, 1829; they have four children—Oscar H., living in Champion, Mich., Fremont C., Francis A. and Albert O. Mrs. Chamberlain's mother afterward married Caleb Kendall, of this county, who died in Winnebago Co., Minn., in 1865; she came West in 1844 and settled in Walworth Co., Wis., and, in 1847, came to this county, where she has ever since resided; she was born in Luzerne Co., Penn., in 1805. Mrs. Chamberlain's father was born in the year 1809 in Worcester Co., Mass. Her grandfather, William Weber, enlisted in the Revolutionary army in November, 1775 in Brimfield, then Hampshire Co., now Hampden Co., Mass., in the company of Capt. Joseph Thompson, and Massachusetts regiment of Col. John Nixon, and served one year; the official records show his death to have occurred on Feb. 26, 1831, in Columbia, Bradford Co., Penn., where he lived sixteen years, and previous thereto in Holden, Worcester Co., Mass.

DAVID CLOUGH, of the firm of Clough & Wellcome, is the son of Abram Clough and Dolly Norris, of Wyoming Co., N. Y., born in 1823; his father being a farmer, David spent most of his time with him at that business until 28 years of age; he then entered upon an apprenticeship at the miller's trade, and, after serving one year as an apprentice, he was placed in charge of the mill at Folsomdale, Wyoming Co., N. Y., where he continued three years; in 1844, he came to Wisconsin, made some investments in real estate, spent nearly a year there, and then returned to his native State; in 1858, he came the second time to Wisconsin, and began the milling business at Brandon, Fond du Lac Co.; two years later, he removed to Ripon, Wis., where for ten years he was connected with the Ripon Mills; in 1870, he became interested in the meat market (then the firm of Clough & Fenlon), where he continued the business for seven years; in 1877, he, with Mr. A. E. Bishop, began the grocery business; the firm was known as Clough & Bishop until the spring of 1879, when Mr. H. C. Wel come became partner in Bishop's stead, and the firm has since been known as Clough & Welle me. In 1844, he married Maria S., daughter of Oliver Hamden, of Folsomdale, Wyoming Co., N. Y., though a native of Genesee Co., who died at Folsomdale, N. Y., in February, 1866; they had five children, as follows: Clara (the late Mrs. George Norris, of Brandon, Wis., now deceased), George H. (deceased—died at the age of 4 months), Ella J. (Mrs. E. Cushman, of Cowlesville, Wyoming Co., N. Y.), Niles F. (of Kansas City, Mo.), and Frank F. (of Ripon, Wis.). Dec. 25, 1877, he married Mrs. Louis L., widow of the late L. Burnes—a daughter of Walter and Clementina Atwell, residents of Ripon's nee 1854; Mrs. Clough had, at the time of her second marriage, one daughter—Laura A., now Mrs. Toohy, of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Clough are members of the M. E. Church; Mr. C. is also a member of the L. O. O. F.

JAMES P. COOK was born at Greenfield, Huron Co., Ohio, May 24, 1837; came to Rosendale in 1853, with his parents, Alfred and Amanda Cook, now residents of Ripon; engaged in farming until coming to Ripon; Nov. 29, 1867, he purchased the livery barn and stock on the site which he now owns, and began the livery business; about eight years ago, his barn was burned, and he erected the present substantial stone structure. Mr. C. has been four years Deputy Sheriff, which position he still holds, and has held several city offices. He was married at Pine Grove, Wauwasha Co., Wis., June 24, 1863, to Alma L. Lee, born in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.; they have four children—Cora L., Edmund A., Frank L. and Frederick William.

JOSEPH COMBS, farmer; P. O. Ripon, was born in the town of Trenton, Oneida Co., N. Y., June 4, 1811; his parents, Oliver and Sarah Combs, lived upon a farm, and afterward moved into the village of Holland Patent, Oneida Co., N. Y., where they both died; the subject of this sketch remained upon his father's farm until the year 1850, when he came West and purchased his present farm of 100 acres, and, in the spring of 1851, returned to New York State and brought out his family, where they have since resided; his farm is now within the limits of the city of Ripon. He held the office of Assessor one year. He married twice; his first wife was Miss Lucy A. Wells, daughter of Daniel and Frances Wells, of Oneida Co., N. Y.; they are both dead; they were married in September, 1838, and Mrs. Combs died in September, 1855; they had six children (two living), viz.: Sarah F., born Dec. 1, 1847; Katie E., Aug. 8, 1851; four died—Stephen R., in 1847; Daniel W., December, 1855; James H., Oct. 4, 1864, and one died in infancy. He married his second wife, Miss Arietta Wetmore, Sept. 30, 1856; her parents were James and Elizabeth Wetmore, of Holland Patent, Oneida Co., N. Y., who died there; Mrs. Combs was born March 4, 1818; they had three children, one living—Charles J., born Nov. 18, 1864; the two deceased are Henry W., born Aug. 31, 1857, died April 11, 1872, and Laura E., born May 12, 1859, died May 29, 1872. Mrs. Combs is a member of the Episcopal Church.

JOHN CORBETT, merchant tailor; is a son of William and Anna Corbett; his father was a native of England, and was Paymaster of the 47th Regiment of the British Army in Canada; his mother was a native of Scotland; John was born in Canada July 8, 1810; was educated in private schools kept in his father's family; in 1836, he entered upon an apprenticeship at the tailor's trade in his native town, but soon went to Cleveland, Ohio, where he continued it for one year; thence to Columbus, Ohio, and Chicago, Ill., continuing at each place about six months, and lastly, in 1857, to Ripon, Wis., where, in 1859, he established himself as a merchant tailor. In 1854, he married Miss Marietta, daughter of Stillman and Catharine Bonnell, nee Dubois, of Ithaca, N. Y.; they have one son—William B. Mr. Corbett is a member of the Masonic Fraternity. He and wife are members of the Episcopal Church.

H. G. CORLISS (deceased), was born in Vermont, Nov. 22, 1822; he was the only son of Isaac and Abigail Corliss, who moved first to La Porte, Ind.; the subject of this sketch, in 1845, came to Wisconsin and settled on Sec. 6 of this township; he purchased one and one-half miles square of United States land, and improved the same. He died May 22, 1856. Five years after Mr. Corliss settled here, his parents moved to Winnebago Co., where they lived up to the time of the death of his mother, which occurred Jan. 28, 1853; after her death his father moved to Nepeskun Township, Winnebago Co., where he died about 1873. Mr. Corliss married, Dec. 5, 1848, Miss Emily Dorchester, daughter of Francis and Abigail Dorchester; her father was born in Farmington, Conn., in 1783, and died in 1858; her mother was born in Genoa, N. Y., in 1796, and died in 1857; they moved West in 1845, and settled in Green Lake Co. (then Marquette Co.), Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Corliss had two children—Frank, born October, 1851, and Henry, born May, 1854. Mrs. Corliss still lives on the homestead, Sec. 6; P. O. Ripon. She is a member of the Episcopal Church.

S. E. CRAWFORD, of the firm of J. N. Foster & Co., millers; Sec. 18; P. O. Ripon; was born in Wintham Co., Conn., March 30, 1841; he came to the State of Wisconsin in 1847 with his father, Samuel D., his mother having died in Connecticut, and first settled in Mayville, Dodge Co., where his father still resides. In 1867, the subject of this sketch came to Fond du Lac Co., and became a member of the firm of J. N. Foster & Co. in the milling business, known as the "Arcade Mills." He has held the office of Supervisor two terms. He married, June 27, 1878, Miss Zoe A. Hodge, daughter of N. W. and Mary Hodge, who settled in Janesville, Wis., and after residing there some twenty years came to this county in 1874; they have one child—Eva A. Mrs. Crawford was born June 9, 1849.

W. F. CRAWFORD, of the firm of J. N. Foster & Co., millers; Sec. 18; P. O. Ripon, was born in the town of Union, Tolland Co., Conn., Oct. 4, 1842. His mother having died when he was only three or four days old, he was taken to the home of his grandfather and grandmother, with whom he resided until their death, and afterward with an uncle and aunt in the same home. On Sept. 18, 1862, he enlisted in Co. G, 22d Conn. V. L., for nine months, and was discharged July 8, 1863, returning home to Connecticut; he came in the fall of the same year (1863) to the State of Wisconsin, and settled in Mayville, Dodge Co.; while there he went to Milwaukee and commenced a course of study in the Mercantile College of Bryant, Stratton & Spencer; before the completion of the course he again entered the army, enlisting in Co. I, 44th W. V. L., and served until the close of the war; having returned home, he finished his course of study in the Mercantile College; in 1867, he came to Fond du Lac Co., and became a member of the firm of J. N. Foster & Co., millers, and is so at the present time. He has been married twice; his first wife was Miss Alice A. Mason, daughter of William C. and Ellen Mason; her father is living, but her mother is dead; they were married in 1874; she died Feb. 4, 1876, leaving one child—Alice E. His second wife was Miss Ella J. Newell, daughter of T. V. and Esther B. Newell; her mother was a native of Greenfield, Franklin Co., Mass.; her father of Charlton, Mass. They were married March 25, 1877. Mrs. Crawford was born Dec. 4, 1849; they have one child—Byron A.

ISAAC M. DAKIN, City Clerk; was born in New York City April 25, 1842; came with his parents to Brooklyn, Green Lake Co., in 1849; moved to Neshkoro in 1852, and remained until 1862; removed thence to Brooklyn, thence to New York, and in 1864, came to Ripon, Mr. D. clerked for G. Beynon two years, Coe Bros. four years, and has since been Deputy Postmaster; in April, 1879, he was elected City Clerk on the Republican ticket. He was married at Hastings, Mich., May 4, 1875, to Ella Lathrop; they have one child, George W., born Nov. 6, 1877. Mr. Dakin's father, Ebenezer, died at Fort Scott in 1869; his mother resides in Ripon.

REV. C. DALLES, Pastor Evangelical Lutheran Church; was born in Brandenburg, Prussia, March 27, 1841; came to Brookfield, Waukesha Co., Wis., in February, 1868, where he remained but a short time, going next to Russell, Sheboygan Co., for one and a half years; Menomonee Falls, Waukesha Co., eight years; Racine one year, and then to Ripon, May 29, 1879; he was educated at Barmen, Prussia, Missionary Seminary, and was married at Russell, Wis., Nov. 8, 1868; to Meta Vici-stich, born in Bremen, Germany; they have five children—Elsa, A. C. K., Paul, B. J., and Karl, A. G., all born at Menomonee Falls; Johanna L. M., born at Racine, and Clara A. G., born at Ripon. Since Rev. D.'s connection with the church, a fine, new parsonage has been built; the church debt reduced; its membership increased, and many improvements been made.

RICHARD DART, apiarist; is a son of Anson and Eliza Dart, nee Catlin, born in New York City May 12, 1828; his father was a druggist in that city for a number of years, but when Richard was quite young, his father purchased a farm in Oneida Co., N. Y., and till 1838, was engaged in agricultural pursuits there; he was then appointed Commissioner of the main wing of the New York Insane Asylum, which position he held for two years; in 1840, he resigned that position and immigrated as a pioneer to Partford, Green Lake Co., Wis.; having been out in 1835 with a company of men from Rome, N. Y., and made some investments in the vicinity of Green Bay and other places; landing at Green Bay in May, 1840, he formed the acquaintance of Gays, Hooper and Beall, then land agents at that place; the Green Lake country was just then coming into notice, and he with Gay, Beall started on horse-back for a visit to the lake; passing through the Brothertown woods, across the county where the city of Fond du Lac now stands, they reached the shores of Green Lake the 1st day of June; here he selected eighty acres of land one-half mile south of the Lake shore, which should be his pioneer home; returning to Green Bay, he purchased a boat, and putting in their little all, which consisted of a barrel of flour, one-half barrel of pork, etc., with a few cooking utensils with which to begin pioneer life, he with two sons passed up the Fox River, portaging their boat around the rapids of Neenah, Menasha and Appleton, into Lake Winnebago, and after one and a half days' rowing up the lake, reached, as they supposed, the outlet of Green Lake, but upon following it for three days, they found themselves at Mud Lake, near Ripon; they returned to Lake Winnebago, and, after a two-days' sail, reached the outlet of Green Lake, which they at once recognized by the color of the water; two days more brought them to their new home in Wisconsin; they were the first settlers in what is now known as Dartford, in honor of whom the village was named; the family soon followed, and this was Richard's home for many years. His father was the first Justice of the Peace in Marquette Co.; the first Postmaster; was also a member of the Constitutional Convention of Wisconsin; he took quite an interest in President Taylor's election, and in 1851, was appointed Superintendent of Indian affairs in Oregon; in 1856, he paid a visit to his home in Wisconsin, but it had lost its charms; he spent two years traveling in Europe, and the rest of his life in Washington, D. C., where he died Aug. 12, 1879, at the age of 82 years; two sons survive him—Putnam, now in California, and Richard, now living at Ripon, Wis., and who in April, 1859, was married to Imogene, a daughter of Luther and Emma Hinkley, of Madison Co., N. Y.; they have one daughter, Arlie, now 7 years of age.

HECTOR DAWES, farmer, Sec. 30; P. O. Ripon; born in Morgan Co., Ohio, July 17, 1830; he came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1851, and settled in Ripon Township, Fond du Lac Co., on Sec. 29, where he remained for four years. His parents, George and Elizabeth Dawes, in the mean time, in 1854, came to the State of Wisconsin and settled on Sec. 30, in Ripon Township, where his father died Oct. 10, 1869, and his mother August 27, 1877. The subject of this sketch, in 1855, the next year after his parents came to this county, went to live with them, and continued to up to his marriage with Miss Jane A. Ruggles, which occurred March 12, 1857; her father, Gary Ruggles (her mother having died in New York State), came to Wisconsin and settled in Ripon Township, in the year 1855, went to Iowa and settled near Charles City, and died there in 1874; Mr. Dawes, after his marriage, went to reside on his farm on Sec. 29, and then moved to the city of Ripon and resided there up to 1863, when he moved to his present farm on Sec. 30, where he still resides, containing 240 acres; Mrs. Dawes was born in Broome Co., N. Y., Oct. 21, 1832; they have a family of six children, viz. Fred A., born Dec. 17, 1858; William R., Oct. 5, 1862; Maggie, April 28, 1864; Effie, May 26, 1866; Edward G., July 19, 1868, and Raymond, March 20, 1870. Edmund Dawes, the brother of Hector Dawes, enlisted as a private in Co. H, 20th W. V. I., Aug. 8, 1862, and was afterward promoted to Orderly Sergeant, and, while serving as such, was killed, Dec. 7, 1862, at the battle of Prairie Grove, Ark.; previous to his death, his commission as Second Lieutenant of Co. H had been made out, but did not reach him before his death. Mrs. Dawes is a member of the Congregational Church.

GEORGE W. DELLINGER, proprietor Ripon Mills, was born at Windsor, York Co., Penn., July 21, 1820; removed to Western Pennsylvania; resided one year at Lundy's Lane, Erie Co.; spent one year at Kingsville, Ohio; removed to Waterford, Racine Co., Wis., in May, 1845, where he remained eighteen months; removed to Oshkosh in the fall of 1847, and, in October, 1848, came to Ripon; with the exception of a few years after 1869, spent in California, Montana and other portions of the West, for his health, Mr. Dellinger has been actively engaged in milling since his arrival in Ripon; he has built several mills and water-powers (see full account elsewhere), and now owns and runs Ripon Mills, of which he was the builder. He was married at Lundy's Lane, Erie Co., Penn., July 21, 1842, to Margaret, daughter of Capt. John Spiers, an old lake Captain, who died in 1875, aged 89 years; Mrs. D. was born at Erie, Penn., May 22, 1825; they have had seven children—Perry N., born at Lundy's Lane, Penn., July 22, 1843, now a resident of Greene, Butler Co., Iowa; George Chester, born at Waterford, Wis., Dec. 9, 1845, now of Pearl Rock, Chickasaw Co., Iowa; Josephine (now Mrs. W. W. Davy, of Ripon), born near Oshkosh, March 23, 1848; Daniel Newton, now of Butte City, Montana, the first child born in Ripon City plat, born May 25, 1850; Margaret Jennie, born Jan. 5, 1859; Earl Bertine, Aug. 1, 1863; they lost one child—Elizabeth Ella, an infant, in 1853. Mr. D. was for seven years a member of the City Council. He began milling on his own account in 1840.

HON. JEREMIAH DOBBS, son of Jeremiah and Mary Dobbs; was born at Saugerties, Ulster Co., N. Y., in March, 1832; after receiving his education, he was employed as a clerk in a general store at Rochester, N. Y.; remained there two years; later, began the study of law, and, in 1851, was admitted to the bar at Jefferson, Wis., having removed to this State in 1849, and located at Lake Mills; engaged in the practice of his profession there until 1854, when he came to Ripon; in 1850, he was appointed District Attorney of Jefferson Co., Wis.; since he came to Ripon, he has filled several offices of honor and trust; in 1869, he was elected a member of the State Legislature, and for many years he was Chairman of the County Board; he was once a Director of the Oshkosh & Mississippi Railroad Co.; as a successful and skillful attorney, he is extensively known; everything he undertakes bears the unmistakable impress of his energy; he is of a most affable disposition, and no person, either man or child, ever approached him with a fear of a want of a cordial welcome; no local enterprise of any consideration fails to receive his assistance; he is emphatically a man of the people, friendly, sympathetic and generous. Feb. 21, 1854, he was married to Miss Mary A. Lempson, and by her has one son and two daughters.

CYRENUS F. DODGE was born at Pembroke, Genesee Co., N. Y., Nov. 24, 1833; resided there until coming to Ripon, in September, 1853; on arriving at Ripon, he began the manufacture of wagons and carriages, which he continued until February, 1878; the firm was H. Dodge & Son five years. Dodge & Manville seventeen and one-half years. Dodge & Mitchell two years. C. F. Dodge from September, 1877, to February, 1878, when he sold out to Tremore & Blodgett; Harvey Dodge, senior member of the first firm, was C. F.'s father; after retiring from the carriage-making business, Mr. Dodge erected Como Bay House, a summer resort at Green Lake, in the spring of 1878, of which he has since been the successful proprietor and manager. He was married at Ripon, March 28, 1856, to Phoebe A. Thatcher, a native of Pembroke, N. Y.; they have six children—Erastus Eugene, Addie May, Edward S., Nettie B., Wm. C. and Harvey. Mr. D. was Alderman several years.

GEORGE C. DUFFIE, Principal of the English Academy in Ripon College; was born at Orwell, Rutland Co., Vt., Jan. 1, 1845; son of James H. Duffie, who came to Rosendale in 1853, and died there three years later; he came to Ripon in 1860; served in the army; graduated from Ripon College in 1868; was appointed instructor in Latin one year; conducted the Free Press, at Ripon, from 1869 to 1872, and was then appointed to his present position. He married Emma, daughter of A. P. Harwood, of Ripon.

H. C. EYERSZ, of the firm of Eversz & Weller, dry-goods merchants; is a son of Louis and Louisa Eversz; born in Prussia in 1846, and, with his parents, immigrated to Wisconsin in 1848; his parents settled on a farm near Ripon, where H. C. spent most of his time, attending district school and at farm work, till about 1860; he then entered Ripon College and was a student there for two years. In 1862, he enlisted in Co. H, of the 20th W. V. I., under Col. Pinkney, of Ripon; was with the Army of the West for about one year; was mustered out at Galveston, Tex.; he then returned to Ripon; was clerk in the dry-goods store for A. W. Pettibone till 1871; he then formed a copartnership with J. C. Weller, and has since been dealing quite extensively in dry goods, etc. In 1872, he married Miss Bertha, daughter of the Rev. N. and Esther M. McLeod, then of Ripon; they have one daughter—Gertrude, his wife is a member of the Congregational Church.

GEORGE L. FIELD, bank cashier, was born at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., whence he moved to Albany in 1852; after remaining there five years he came to Watertown, Wis., and became book-keeper and teller of the Bank of Watertown, where he remained over five years; in the spring of 1863, he moved to Ripon, which has since been his home, and became cashier of the Bank of Ripon, which position he held until the organization of the First National Bank, of which he has since been cashier. Mr. Field has been Mayor of Ripon, and always takes an active interest in all improvements and matters of a public nature. He is now, and has been during seventeen years an officer and member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

CHESTER B. FISH, of the firm of Fish & Chadbourne, sign, house and carriage painters; was born in Rockland, Knox Co., Me., in 1854; he is the son of S. M. and Adell Fish, with whom he came to Ripon, Wis., when he was about 2 years old; in 1858, they removed to Milwaukee, where he was educated in the public schools and lived till 1868; returning then to Ripon, in 1872 he began the painter's trade with Mr. Craw, of this city, and, in 1876, formed copartnership with Mr. Chadbourne, of the present firm. His father died at Minneapolis, Minn., in April, 1879; his mother now resides in Ripon.

J. J. FOOTE, District Attorney; was born at Coventry, Chenango Co., N. Y., Jan. 23, 1830; came to Watertown, Wis., in the fall of 1852, and to Ripon, which has since been his residence, in 1856; he studied law with Charles O'Connor, Benedict and Boardman, in New York City, where he was admitted to the bar Feb. 5, 1853; his father, Alanson L. Foote, is now a resident of Ripon. Mr. Foote has been Alderman, City Clerk eight years, District Attorney since January, 1879, and was tendered the nomination unanimously for Attorney General on the Democratic ticket of 1875. He was married at Watertown, Jan. 9, 1854, to Kate T. Bement, a native of Belleville, Ontario; they have eight children—Lillie T., now Mrs. J. Mallanby, of Ishpeming, Mich., Anna Louise, Blanche B., Mary E., Edward P., Laura, Kate L. and Genevieve G.

J. N. FOSTER, of the firm of J. N. Foster & Co., millers, Arcade Mills, Sec. 18; P. O. Ripon, was born in Tolland Co., Conn., July 26, 1816; he came to the State of Wisconsin in May, 1846, and settled in Mayville, Dodge Co.; in 1856, he became engaged in the milling business, having bought out Francis Hammond, and carried on the same until 1865, when he sold out his business and came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the city of Ripon and carried on a feed store until 1867, when he formed the firm of J. N. Foster & Co., millers, and purchased what are known as the "Arcade Mills," on Sec. 18, Ripon Township, from David Babcock; this mill was built in 1856, by Tomb, Paddock & Co.; it is run mostly as a custom mill. Mr. Foster was a member of the City Council of Ripon for one year. He married Miss Ellen Duncan July 15, 1858; her parents were John and Elizabeth Duncan, of Hamilton, Scotland; her father came to the United States and settled in Marquette Co., Wis., where he died; her mother died in Scotland. Mr. Foster's family consisted of four children, three of whom are living—Mary E., William B. and John D. Mr. Foster is a Republican in politics. He resides in the city of Ripon.

WILLIAM GAYLORD, retired; was born in Litchfield Co., Conn., in 1805; he removed to Trumbull Co., Ohio, in 1836, where he was a boot and shoe dealer for twenty five years; in 1864, he came to Wisconsin and located in the town of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co.; two years later, he removed to Oshkosh, and for one year was a dry-goods merchant; he next came to Ripon in 1868, where he continued the dry-goods trade till September of 1878. He was married to Martha M., daughter of Isaac and Betsey Beebe of New York; they have two sons—Isaac W. and Lewis B., both of whom are merchants at Beloit, Kan. Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord are members of the Congregational Church.

JOSEPH M. GEERY, Professor of English Literature, Rhetoric and Political Philosophy in Ripon College, was born in New York City June 2, 1840; took a preparatory and college course at Oberlin College; began teaching at Paris, Kenosha Co., Wis.; taught there three winters, 1858, 1859 and 1860; was two years in the Medina, Ohio, High School; one year Principal of the High School at Brooklyn, near Cleveland; taught in all seventeen terms before coming to Ripon in 1858. Prof. Geery has been College Librarian seven years; was elected Alderman and Supervisor in 1879, and takes active part in the matters pertaining to public weal in Ripon.

HENRY J. GODDALL, carriage manufacturer; son of Henry and Caroline Goodall, was born at Adams, Jefferson Co., N. Y., July 24, 1836; came to Livartine, Fond du Lac Co., in 1847, where his father, who died in Springdale in 1869, kept a blacksmith-shop, and in which he began learning the trade at the age of 11 years; in 1874, Mr. G. came to Ripon, and has since carried on the business of manufacturing carriages, phaetons and cutters. He has been City Marshal and Chief Fire Marshal, which position he has held five years, and is an Odd Fellow. He was married in Springvale, Feb. 26, 1859, to Harriet M., daughter of Aaron Horton, an early settler of that town; she was born in Michigan; they have three children—Charles C., Harry C. and Edna H.

G. C. GODDFELLOW, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Ripon; was born in Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., April 13, 1819; his parents, Tobias and Polly, both died there; in September, 1845, he came to Wisconsin, and for one year resided in Racine Co., and the fall of 1846, came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled at Ruffs Corners, Metomen Township, for three years, and, in 1849, came to his present farm of 143 acres in Ripon Township; while residing in New York State, he was employed on the canal as steersman of a canal-boat; since he has lived in Wisconsin he has been engaged in farming pursuits. He has held the offices of Supervisor of the town and Justice of the Peace. He married Miss Abigail M. Seeley, daughter of James and Sarah Seeley, of New York State, April 29, 1841; she was born in town of Pompey, near Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., April 14, 1823; they have twelve children, all living and all but two grown to manhood and womanhood, viz.: Polly E., born March 9, 1842, now Mrs. L. Dick, living in Spencer, Marathon Co., Wis.; Sarah E., born May 19, 1844, now Mrs. Chester Cook, of Westline, Minn.; Marion, born July 14, 1846, now Mrs. Wm. Lounr, of Vernon Center, Blue Earth Co., Minn.; Jane A., born May 13, 1848, now Mrs. George H. Luke, of Spencer, Minn.; Arthur D., born Dec. 27, 1849, married Miss Sarah L. Jones, of Waupaca Co., Wis.; Evelyn H., born Aug. 25, 1852, now Mrs. G. W. Pond, of Metomen Township, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Almon O., born July 4, 1854; Frank, born July 20, 1856, married Miss Capitola E. Brine, of Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Fred, born Aug. 11, 1858; Maude A., June 5, 1860; George H., May 27, 1862, and Erwin T., April 30, 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Goddfellow are members of the Second Congregational Church of Metomen Township.

LOUIS GRAF, butcher, of the firm of Graf & Jussen; was born in Prussia May 5, 1832; came to Baltimore May 3, 1849, where he lived two and one half years; removed to Milwaukee for one year; removed then to Watertown, Wis., where he remained until 1865, when he came to Ripon and engaged as a meat-market proprietor with his present partner. He was married, at Watertown, Wis., May 12, 1860, to Caroline Bohmert, a native of Baden, Germany; they have three children—P. L. George, T. C. Ida and Helen. Mr. Graf is a member of the I. O. O. F.

JOHN GRANT, grain-dealer; was born in Norfolk, Litchfield Co., Conn., March 23, 1832; moved with his parents, at the age of 2 years, to Lorain Co., Ohio; moved to Green Lake Co., Wis., in the spring of 1848, and to Ripon in 1855; his father, Harvey Grant, died in Ripon in 1863, and his mother, Experience Grant, resides with his family, aged 83. Mr. G. was married, in Ripon, July 10, 1861, to Ellen Morris, a native of Wales, but for twenty-four years a resident of Ripon; they have one child—Florence N. Mr. and Mrs. G. are members of the Congregational Church. He has been Street Commissioner three or four years.

DAVID GREENWAY was born in Warwickshire, England, March 14, 1824; came with his parents to Syracuse, N. Y., in 1834; resided there and at Palmyra, N. Y., until coming to Ripon Aug. 1, 1850, with his wife and three children; Mr. G. engaged in farming about three years and then opened a grocery store on the site of the present Greenway Block; soon after added drugs and medicines, which business he carried on until about 1862; he built Greenway Block in 1861; began the express business in Ripon; was the first express agent, and continued as agent until he sold out his business; in 1867, Mr. G. built the "Oakwood House," a large and popular summer resort on Green Lake, which he has since owned and managed; in 1878, he opened a grocery and crockery store, but closed out the stock the next spring. He was married, at Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 19, 1849, to Caroline Chadbourne, born in Lancashire, England, and died at Ripon in January, 1880; she had three children by a former husband, two deceased and one living—Nellie, now Mrs. David Pollard, of Ripon. William D. and George M. Greenway, his sons, are associated with him in the Oakwood House. Mr. G. has resided upon the same spot or nearly so, ever since coming to Ripon.

SILAS A. GROESBECK, carpenter, contractor and builder; was born at Russia, Oneida Co., N. Y., May 13, 1832; at the age of 10 years, moved to the town of Pinekney, Lewis Co., N. Y., and in 1855, came to Wisconsin to Ripon, working at his trade ever since. His father, Silas Groesbeck, first settled in Springvale in 1854; in the fall of 1855, he went to Calumet Village and kept hotel two and one-half years; removed for three years back to Springvale, and then to Brothertown, where he engaged in farming and hotel-keeping. S. A. Groesbeck was married, at Neenah, Wis., June 15, 1858, to Emma L. Shepard; they have three children—Alice M., Fred M. and Albert H., and lost one daughter—Jessie, who died at the age of 6 months.

JOHN HAAS, proprietor of Ripon Brewery; was born in Hessen, Germany in 1841, and is the son of Henry and Catharine Haas; when he was 13 years old, he with his parents came to America, and settled on a farm in Dodge Co., Wis., where he lived for four years; in 1855, he began work in the brewery at Theresa, Dodge Co., Wis., for Benedict Weber; two years later he came to the city of Fond du Lac, Wis., where he was employed by J. & C. Frey, brewers, for two years; he afterward spent a few months in the pineries, and then began work in a brewery for Paul Hauser, in Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he continued for about two years; in 1865, he established the Ripon Brewery, of which he has since been proprietor. In 1868, he was married to Miss Theresa, daughter of William and Annie M. Quest, of Ripon; they have had three children, as follows: Matilda, deceased; Albert, deceased; C. John. Politically, Mr. Haas is a Democrat.

THOMAS HARRIS was born in Ireland April 27, 1820, of English parents; his father was twenty-three years in the English Army, and passed through the French Revolution; Mr. H. first settled in Canada after coming to America; came to Ceresco and settled on S. c. 12, in June, 1847; in 1855, went to Minnesota; enlisted September, 1862, as Second Lieutenant in Co. D, 8th Minn. V. I., served with his regiment in all its engagements until the spring of 1865; returned then to Ripon, and in the spring of 1866, was elected Justice of the Peace, which office he held for ten years; Mr. H. has practiced law during the last seven years; has been Assessor two years; is Secretary of the A. F. & A. M., and a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge. He was married at Inverness, Canada, by Rev. Norman McLeod in the spring of 1848, to Elizabeth N. Hargrave, a native of Canada; they have five children living—Mary E., Eva E., Caroline A., Bertha E. and Benjamin J., and have lost one—Thomas Fremont, who died at the age of 44 months.

A. P. HARWOOD, capitalist; was born at Ticonderoga, Essex Co., N. Y., Oct. 25, 1818; entered into the iron manufacturing business at Crown Point, N. Y., where he remained until coming to Ripon, in March, 1874. Mr. H. is one of the Trustees of Ripon College, and a member of the Congregational Church. He was married at Crown Point, Oct. 11, 1843, to Anna Penfield, born at Pittsford, Vt.; they have four children—Daniel V. N., Charles L., Mary Emma and Frank J.

D. V. N. HARWOOD, Secretary and Treasurer of the Ripon Pickle Company; was born in Crown Point, N. Y., in June, 1844. In 1865, he married in his native town, Katie Murphy, a native of Clintonville, N. Y.; in 1874, they came to Ripon, and he became a shareholder in the Ripon pickle factory; was made Secretary and Treasurer, a position he has filled since that time; they have two children—Mary A. and Elizabeth K. In politics, Mr. Harwood is a Republican. He is an energetic and active business man, and has been more than ordinarily successful in life.

SANFORD HAZEN, was born at Copenhagen, Lewis Co., N. Y., April 6, 1821; came to Oakfield in 1844; lived in Copenhagen again, from 1845 until the spring of 1858; removed then to Green Lake Prairie, near Ripon, where he carried on farming until 1874, although he built a plow factory at Ripon in 1859, which he ran two years; in 1874, Mr. H. began the manufacture of the Hazen windmill, and now manufactures also the patent reversible-tooth harrow; he made the first steel plow made in New York, and also carried on the manufacture of stoves in that State. He was married at Copenhagen, N. Y., in February, 1844, to Susan B. Wright, a native of that place; they have two children—Wayne S. and Ella J. In the winter of 1844, Mr. Hazen helped to organize the Washingtonian Temperance Society, at Oakfield, Wis.

WAYNE S. HAZEN, of S. Hazen & Son, manufacturers of windmills, and reversible-tooth harrows, was born at Copenhagen, N. Y., June 30, 1845. Was married, Sept. 18, 1872, to Ursula Gray, born in England; they have one son—Sanford Lee.

H. S. HOLLENBECK, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Ripon; was born in Franklin Co., Vt., Jan. 5, 1826, and is the eldest of five brothers; he came West with his parents, Benjamin F. and Minerva Hollenbeck, in the year 1843, and first located in Green Lake, Green Lake Co., Wis; after remaining there about sixteen years they moved to the city of Ripon, (1865), where his parents still reside. The subject of this sketch engaged in the agricultural business from 1865 to 1875, in Ripon; he then purchased his present farm of 140 acres, where he now resides; he has held the office of Street Commissioner of Ripon. He married Miss Betsey Wood, daughter of Abnson and Mary Wood, of Orleans Co., N. Y., Dec. 5, 1849; her father is now deceased, her mother still living in Ripon; Mr. Hollenbeck has been blessed with five children, four of whom are still living—Albert, Mary, Bertha and Homer; one died—Maggie.

HON. JOHN S. HORNER was born at Warrenton, Fauquier Co., Va., Dec. 5, 1802; he was the third son of Dr. Gustavus Brown Horner, Assistant Surgeon, and nephew of Dr. Gustavus Brown, Surgeon General of the Revolutionary army; his ancestors were English and resided in Yorkshire, near Ripon; his paternal grandfather emigrated to the State of Maryland at an early day, and went into business as a wholesale importing merchant; he was a near relative of Sir Francis Horner; the subject of this sketch graduated from Washington College, Pennsylvania, in 1819, and practiced law in Virginia until September, 1835; on the 20th day of that month he was appointed, by President Jackson, Secretary and acting Governor of the Territory of Michigan; as Chief Executive of the Territory, Gov. Horner did much to allay the hostile feeling then existing between the people of the Territory and of the State of Ohio, in reference to the boundary question; the following extract from the Wheeling Gazette of Feb. 27, 1836, is worthy of reproduction in this relation: "On arriving within the Territory, in the prosecution of his duties, Gov. Horner's address, as we learn from eye-witnesses, was consummate; it was a combination of personal fearlessness, tact, wisdom and prudence;" in the same article—after alluding to the troubles which existed in the Territory at the time Gov. Horner assumed his duties as Executive, mention being made of the gallant bearing of the pacificator, throwing himself among the turbulent and lawless spirits along the frontier of the disputed Territory, at the hazard of his life, and by his fearless bravery restoring perfect order—the editor, who was opposed to the Jackson Administration, says: "We question whether, when his appointment shall have expired by the recognition of Michigan as a State, the National Executive can, by any office he may confer upon him, more than compensate him." When the Territory of Wisconsin was created, he was appointed its Secretary, and received orders from President Jackson to take up his quarters near the Mississippi River, in order to meet the apprehended difficulty between the Winnebago Indians and the settlers in the mineral regions of Wisconsin; on arriving, he learned that that tribe were besieging Fort Winnebago; taking with him a single guide, he made a perilous journey of eighty miles to Fort Crawford, called upon Gen. Taylor for a force of 120 men, and with them proceeded to the relief of Fort Winnebago; arriving there, he demanded a council with the Indians, and received a reply that they were "falling to pieces" from starvation, owing to the nonpayment of the annuities due from the United States; upon learning this, Gov. Horner promptly took the responsibility of issuing an order to deliver to the starving Indians one-half the pork and flour in the military stores at the fort; this action prevented an Indian war, and was highly approved by Gen. Jackson, and Congress passed an act granting $1,000 to Gov. Horner, as a recognition of his services; as Secretary of the Territory of Wisconsin, his career was distinguished by ability and integrity; after his retirement from this office, he was appointed by Gen. Jackson Register of the Green Bay Land Office, and by successive appointments by Presidents Van Buren and Tyler, held the position for thirteen years; although he never sought office, he was continued in Government positions of importance during the administrations of five successive Presidents; he afterward served for four years as Probate Judge of Green Lake and Marquette Counties. Oct. 30, 1831, he was married, in Washington, D. C., by the Rev. Mr. Smith, the then Chaplain to Congress, to Miss Harriet Love Watson, the accomplished daughter of James Watson, at that time in the Treasury Department of the United States; Mrs. Horner was born in Buckland, Prince William Co., Va.; Mrs. Horner wrote the first executive act, and it was entered upon the journal of the Territory, at Belmont, in her own handwriting, which is now in the State archives at Madison; had six children—the eldest, James Watson, died in 1812, at the age of 7 years; Andrew Watson, at present a resident of Albert Lea, Minn.; Gustavus Francis, a resident of Ripon, Wis.; William Henry, an attorney of St. Louis, Mo.; Elizabeth Love, and Mary Watson, the wife of William Lucas, formerly of St. Louis, now residing at Green Lake.

NATHAN HUNTER, farmer; was born at Plattsburg, Clinton Co., N. Y., Feb. 26, 1820; came to Southport (now Kenosha), in the spring of 1844; joined the "Wisconsin Phalanx" and arrived at Ripon (then Ceresco), at 10 o'clock in the morning of May 27, 1844; Mr. Hunter was in California from February, 1856 to the fall of 1859, when he returned home; in 1861, he went to Idaho, and engaged in mining, which he had followed in California, returning to Ripon in 1864. He was married July 15, 1845, at Ceresco, to Mrs. Isabella E. Town, born Dec. 25, 1814, at Charlottenburg, Glengarry Co., Canada, the daughter of a British soldier; she had two children—Hiram S., Postmaster of Ripon, and Edward D.; by the last marriage they have had three children—Arabella L., now Mrs. J. H. Maxwell, of Utica, Wis.; Mary H., a teacher in the Delavan Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, and George, who died Feb. 23, 1875, aged 20 years. Mr. H. has been Alderman of the First Ward several years.

DAVID INSON, farmer, was born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., May 26, 1829; came to Ripon in the fall of 1854, and engaged in the livery business, which he followed uninterruptedly for twelve years, afterward leaving it twice for a year or two on account of ill health. Since 1855, Mr. Inson has carried on his farm in Ripon Town, except two years, when it was rented; in 1873, he erected the stone building, which he sold to J. P. Stone in 1876; he also sold flour and feed one year in Ripon; learned the blacksmith trade in New York, which he followed for a year; removed to Napierville, Ill., in 1844, for one year; to Rochester, Wis., three years; to Oak Grove, Dodge Co., six years; to Portage with a livery one year, and then to Ripon. Mr. Inson was married in Waushara Co., in February, 1854, to Cornelia Robinson, a native of Ohio, who died in July, 1868; they had four children—Albert P. and Alice Mabel, living, and two died in infancy. He was married a second time to Cornelia Hake, Jan. 26, 1870; they have one child—Maud.

J. M. JENKINSON, hardware merchant, also dealer in tinware, Main street, Ripon; his father, Robert Jenkinson, was a native of County Wicklow, Ireland, born in 1799; at an early age he emigrated to Montreal, Canada, where he married Miss G. Pommerville, a native of that place; after their marriage they removed to Kalamazoo, Mich., thence to Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in about 1845, during his residence in Metomen he was elected to various offices of honor and trust, and was elected Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co. and County Treasurer, the duties of which he discharged with credit to himself and general satisfaction to all; he died in the city of Fond du Lac in about 1855, his wife died in Metomen in 1867. J. M. Jenkinson, whose name appears at the head of this sketch, was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., in 1814, and therefore was only 4 years old when his parents came to this county. Fond du Lac; during the war of the rebellion he enlisted in Co. C, 34 W. V. C., in the town of Metomen, and was mustered in at Camp Burston, Jamesville, Wis., in December, 1861; returned in 1863; reenlisted and served until October, 1865, when he was honorably discharged; he was in active service, and participated in every engagement his command was in. Sept. 30, 1869, he married, in Omro, Winnebago Co., Wis., Susan R. Taylor, a native of Concord, Jefferson Co., Wis., and daughter of Robert Taylor and Lydia A., nee Olin, who settled in Jefferson Co., in 1845, and moved thence to Omro, Winnebago Co., in 1847. Mr. Jenkinson and wife attend the Congregational Church; their children are Robert and Ella L. Mr. Jenkinson is a Republican. He was engaged in business in the town of Brandon several years, and has been in business in Ripon since 1875; has a large and constantly increasing trade.

EDWARD JUSSEN, butcher; was born in Prussia, Aug. 22, 1839, came to Philadelphia in July, 1854; to Watertown, Wis., in 1855, and to Ripon in December, 1865; he has followed his present business, that of market proprietor, ever since he came to Ripon. He was married in Theresa, Dodge Co., Wis., Jan. 17, 1871, to Theresa Weber, born in Prussia; they have five children—Josie, George, Albert, Willie and Eddie.

JOSEPH KINGSBURY, an early settler of the city of Ripon, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., was born in County Kent, England, May 22, 1818. Aug. 31, 1839, he married in his native county, Mary A. Graves, a native of the same county, born July 23, 1820; in 1850, they emigrated to America, and settled in Ripon the same year, and it has been their home since that time; their children are James, now of Yankton, Dakota; he married in Ripon, Wis., Frances E. Bacon, Frank, now at Appleton, Wis.; Charles (at home with his parents), Sarah A. (wife of Richard Porter, of New Lisbon, Wis.), Harriet (wife of Edward Stallard, of Ripon), Jennie (wife of John Evarts, of Omro, Wis.). Mr. Kingsbury and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church; in politics, he has always acted with the Republican party. Owns several thousand dollars' worth of city property in Ripon, and has done much toward building up and improving that city since his coming.

W. B. KINGSBURY, farmer; was born at Fairfax, Franklin Co., Vt., Oct. 12, 1826; came from there to Ripon in 1854, where he has since resided, engaged in farming, dealing in land and stock-raising. Mr. Kingsbury has been a member of the County Board, City Council, Chairman of his ward, and an officer of the Ripon Agricultural Association for several years. Feb. 27, 1850, he was married at Fairfax, Vt., to Charlotte S. England, who was born in Georgia in that State; they have two children living—George O. and Frank W. Kingsbury.

JACOB KUFFENKAM, manufacturer of cigars, and dealer in cigars, tobacco and smokers' materials; was born in Prussia March 13, 1845; came to America in September, 1856, locating in Milwaukee; lived there eleven years, and then removed to Fort Atkinson for seven years; returned to Milwaukee, whence, in November, 1878, he came to Ripon. Mr. Kuffenkam has been a cigar-maker since he became 15 years of age, and has carried on business for himself thirteen years.

THOMAS LAMBERT, boot and shoe manufacturer; was born in England in 1837, and is the son of Henry and Hannah Lambert; his mother dying when he was 18 months old, he was brought up by his grandparents on a farm in his native country; in 1855, he came to his father at Ripon, Wis., where he had settled a short time before; here he began the shoemaker's trade with him, he having worked at it in America since 1838. After serving a three-years apprenticeship, in 1861, he enlisted in the 3d Wisconsin Battery, under Capt. Drury, of Berlin; was in the battles of Stone River, Chickamauga and others; was mustered out of service at Madison July 3, 1865. He then returned to Ripon and has since continued his trade. In November, 1866, he was married to Miss Caroline Miller, a native of Germany; they have five children—Richard H., Hannah H., Walter J., Emily, Theressa and Edwin. Mrs. L. is a member of the Lutheran Church.

A. LANNING was born in Smithfield, Jefferson Co., Ohio, March 13, 1819; removed to Burnett, Dodge Co., Wis., in 1847, where for ten years he was on a farm and in the machine business; in 1857, he came to Ripon and engaged in the lumber and planing-mill business, as well as contracting, building and architectural work. Mr. L. has held various city offices. He was first married, in Belmont Co., Ohio, to Margaret McCune, who died in Dodge Co.; he was married a second time, in Dodge Co., to Jane McConnell; they had four children—Hannah Maria (now Mrs. Charles Bennett, of Ripon), Le Roy W., Alpheus M. and Elizabeth J. Mr. and Mrs. Lanning are members of the Congregational Church.

ALPHIUS M. LANNING, of the firm of A. Lanning & Son; was born in the town of Burnett, Dodge Co., March 21, 1852; he has been for several years engaged in the planing-mill and lumber business with his father. He was married at Ripon, in September, 1876, to Maria Horton, who was born in Springvale, Fond du Lac Co.; they have two children—George Le Roy and Charles.

HERBERT LEACH. This gentleman, one of the first to engage in the manufacturing business in the city of Ripon, was born July 6, 1805, in Chenango, Broome Co., N. Y.; in 1829, he removed to Susquehanna Co., Penn., and there was engaged in milling several years; in about 1846, he returned to his native town, Chenango, N. Y., (now Corbetsville), where he remained until 1851, which year he came to the city of Ripon, which has been his home since; immediately after his coming to Ripon, he engaged in the manufacture of carriages, wagons, etc., and did an extensive business for a number of years. Mr. Leach has been twice married; first in 1829, in Susquehanna Co., Penn., to Charlotte D. Wilson, a native of Washington Co., N. Y.; she died in February, 1861; their children are Agnes M., wife of Stephen Fuller, South America; John A., now of Indianola, Iowa; Frank, also of Indianola, Iowa; Mary L., wife of E. L. Town, Washington, D. C.; Julia, wife of A. S. Hall, South America; Daniel H. Name of Mr. Leach's present wife was Betsy Featherby; she was born in Franklin Co., Penn., came to Wisconsin in 1860, married Mr. Leach in 1863. Politically, Mr. L. acts with the Republican party; he has recently retired from active life, and is now passing his time in ease and competence, in a pleasant home, located on the Berlin road, in the suburbs of the city, where he owns about fifty acres of land; he is an enterprising citizen, and has always taken an active part in religious, educational and other interests of the city of Ripon.

MATTHEW LIMBERT, mason; was born in Yorkshire, England, Nov. 21, 1821; came to Kollogg's Corners, Racine Co., Wis., in 1842, where he remained one summer and one winter; removed to Racine, where he resided, except three months in Chicago, until he came to Ripon, Aug. 8, 1846, where he began the stonemason's trade; in January, 1852, he started for California, via New York and the Isthmus of Panama, being three months on the journey; about six months later he sailed for Australia, landing at Sydney July 12, 1852, spending nearly five years in Victoria Colony; in April, 1857, he started for home, via London, arriving at Ripon July 3, 1857, where he has since resided. He was married, Oct. 13, 1858, to Nancy Brown, whose brothers, James and William, are in Minnesota, and George in the San Francisco mint; she was born in Dalhousie, Lower Canada; they have two children living—George B. and Maggie; and have lost two. Mr. L. has been Alderman of the First Ward, and six years Director of District No. 5.

GEORGE LIMBERT (deceased); was born Jan. 13, 1795, in Yorkshire, England; his wife, Margaret, and two daughters, came with him to America in 1842, and to Ceresco in 1844; Mrs. L. died in April, 1863; the children are Elizabeth, now Mrs. Chester Adkins; Ellen, now Mrs. Samuel Hayes, of Dakota, Waushara Co., Wis., and Margaret, now Mrs. Thomas Clay, of Wantoum, Wis.

K. LINDSEY, an early settler of Ripon; was born in Wells, Rutland Co., Vt., June 10, 1809; in 1829, he went to Harmony, Chautauque Co., N. Y., where he married, in 1840, Alvira Button; she was also a native of Rutland Co., Vt., born June 16, 1811; in 1841, they came West and settled near Jamesville, Rock Co., Wis., where they remained until their coming to the town of Ripon in 1845; at that time, he entered 320 acres of land, of which he afterward sold 200 acres to a mill company, buying an interest in the mill, which he retained several years; they moved into the city of Ripon in about 1862, where they have since lived. Their children are Joseph B. and Drusus P., leading farmers and stock-raisers of Dale Co., Mo.; Mary, the eldest of those children; Joseph married, in Ripon, Miss Mary Miller. Until recently, Mr. Lindsey has been engaged in active life, but now has retired on a competence which he has secured by industry and untiring business energy.

JOSEPH M. LITTLE, retired; was born at Benson, Rutland Co., Vt., Dec. 4, 1819; removed with his parents to the town of Randolph (since Richmond), Crawford Co., Penn., when 7 years of age; at the age of 15, removed to Rochester, N. Y.; three years later, returned to Randolph; came to Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis., in May, 1846; to Rosendale three years; then back to Utica, and to Ripon in the fall of 1875. Mr. L. was the first Town Clerk of Utica; afterward was Town School Superintendent and Supervisor of Utica and Supervisor of Rosendale. He was the principal man in securing soldiers' bounties during the war in Utica, and, as a test case, sued to compel the payment of all bounties. He was married, at Randolph, Penn., Sept. 8, 1845, to Cornelia A. Thrall, born at Gouverneur, N. Y., May 20, 1825; they have four children living—Fred Eugene, residing at Ripon; Cyrene America, now Mrs. C. H. Hamilton; Beach Wilbur, residing at Ripon, and Albert Grant, residing at Ripon—all born in the town of Utica; they have lost one—Caroline, who died Sept. 15, 1848, aged 7 months.

WILLIAM M. LOCKWOOD, photographer; was born in Jorlen, N. Y., April 13, 1835; removed with his parents in 1839, to Plainfield, Will Co., Ill.; came with his mother to the town of Chester, Dodge Co., in the spring of 1848, where they resided four years; resided in Waupun until 1856; spent one year in Oshkosh, and came to Ripon in 1857; Mr. L. has been engaged in the photographer's business since 1853; he traveled one year as collector for a Jamestown, N. Y., manufacturing firm; taught music nine years; was Secretary of the State Musical Society thirteen years; Vice President of the National Photographers' Association; member of the National Society of Art, and interested in various local art and musical societies. Mr. L. invented a screen to harmonize the chemical variations of different colors; discovered the photometry of colors; took the gold medal, the highest award offered by the National Photographers' Association at Philadelphia, for the best "retouched" photographic production; also owns and runs the pleasure steam Camera on Green Lake. He is now preparing a lecture on "Electricity and Physical Science." Mr. L. was married, in the town of Elo, Winnebago Co., Wis., Sept. 29, 1857, to Eunice N., daughter of David Snyder, of that town; she was born near Dunkirk, N. Y. He has been burned out three times—once at Oshkosh and twice at Ripon.

HON. ALONZO A. LOPER, farmer; was born at Blehheim, Schoharie Co., N. Y., March 23, 1829; came with his parents, A. and Caroline Ryder Loper, to Sec. 3, town of Ripon, in 1847; his father, who was for some time Justice of the Peace, followed farming and the practice of law until his death, April 3, 1862; his mother died in August, 1863. Mr. Loper has followed farming and lumbering on the Wisconsin River, residing on Sec. 3, town of Ripon; he was Town Treasurer two years, Supervisor seven or eight years, Chairman of the Town Board five or six years, member of the Assembly one term, member of the Senate one term, and was appointed Superintendent of the Census, by President Hayes, in February, 1880. He was married, first, at Ripon, in October, 1858, to Adelia Dunham, a native of Ripon, who died in December, 1859; he was married to his present wife, Phoebe Elizabeth Palmer, a native of Blenheim, N. Y., at Ripon, in March, 1864; they have five children—Herbert W., Adelia, Alonzo, Edgar and Mabel.

HENRY LUM, proprietor Lum's Hotel; was born at Oxford, Conn., May 4, 1831; was in the Mexican war in 1846, 1847 and 1848; came to Ripon in 1870; removed to Negaunee, Mich., a year later and engaged in the hotel business two years; returned to Ripon, where he has since resided, opening Lum's Hotel March 1, 1879. Mr. L. was married at Wolcott, Conn., Dec. 25, 1859, to Caroline Byington, a native of that place; they have two children—Fannie E. and Lois E. Mr. L. was a charter member of the Knights of Honor Lodge in Ripon.

FRED W. LUTKE, of the firm of Lutke & Herzke, dry-goods merchants; is a son of F. W. Lutke, Sr., and Rosa Eckhorst; born in Prussia in 1858; his father immigrated to America in 1858, leaving Fred with his mother in Prussia; he was educated in the schools of Germany, and, in 1872 (his mother having died), he came to his father in Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he had a special course of study in the English branches, under a private teacher; in the spring of 1875, he began clerking in the dry-goods store of Eversz & Weller, of Ripon, where he remained till August, 1879; in September, 1879, he formed a copartnership with Mr. Herzke, and has since been a member of the dry-goods firm of Lutke & Herzke; he is a member of the Lutheran Church.

DAVID P. MAPES was born in Coxsackie, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1798; he was the pioneer settler and founder of Ripon; before coming to Wisconsin, he was a prominent merchant, steamboat owner and influential citizen of his native State, holding various offices of public trust, representing his district in the State Legislature with credit; he was one of the founders of Ripon College, and to his indomitable energy and perseverance are largely due the growth and institutions of the city; in the history of Ripon, it will be seen that he has been prominently identified with its material interests and improvements; to his exertions are owing, to a great extent, the public improvements of the place.

E. MAPES, merchant, Dexter, Minn.; residence, Ripon; was born in Sullivan Co., Penn.; has been a resident of Ripon for a number of years; he is extensively engaged in business in Minnesota, which requires his attention the greater part of the time. Sept. 13, 1858, he married in Ripon Susie C., daughter of Tyler and Susan Shepard, who settled in the city of Ripon in 1856; she was born in Columbus, Chenango Co., N. Y., and came to this county with her parents; her first husband, Henry Wright, was born in Whitehall, Penn.; came to Wisconsin in 1848; settled in the town of Rosendale, where he held various important offices of honor and trust until his death, Jan. 12, 1869; children by this marriage are George E. Wright, born in Rosendale Nov. 24, 1862; Minnie A., July 14, 1864; Hattie, Oct. 14, 1868. Mr. Mapes and wife are members of the Congregational Church. They own a large amount of property in Minnesota and city property in Ripon; they own an improved farm in Rosendale of 320 acres of land and 1800 acres in Stephen and Grant Cos., Minn.

ROBERT D. MASON, farmer; was born in Goshen, Addison Co., Vt., March 29, 1821; moved to Perrysburg, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., in 1835; three years later, moved to Chautauqua Co., N. Y., and, in May, 1845, joined the Wisconsin Phalanx at Ceresco, now Ripon; Mr. M. has been Justice of the Peace, Town Collector, Town Treasurer, Alderman of First Ward two terms and a member of the School Board several terms. He was married at Great Bend, Penn., May 15, 1850, to Eugenie Wilson, born at that place Feb. 2, 1826; they have three children—Ida, now Mrs. Dr. Charles E. Phelps, of Ripon; Waldo R., now of Minnesota; and Spencer E. (living at home).

NORMAN A. MILLER, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Ripon; was born in Columbia Co., N. Y., June 19, 1820; his parents, Benjamin T. and Mariah Miller, when he was 22 years of age, moved to Luzerne Co., Penn., where his father died in the fall of 1842 and his mother in the spring of 1853. The subject of this sketch, while living there, worked on the Pennsylvania Railroad as an overseer in getting supplies and as an engineer of stationary engine at Incline No. 9, also worked at Inclines No. 3 and 4, on the Delaware and Hudson Railroad; in the fall of 1853, came to the State of Wisconsin and settled where he now resides, on a farm of ninety acres; he has been Supervisor of the town of Ripon for two years. He married Miss Olive Van Camp March 12, 1853; she was born in Wayne Co., Penn., Aug. 1, 1830; her parents, John and Mary, natives of Sussex Co., N. J., settled in Wayne Co., Penn., in 1823, and, in the fall of 1854, came West and made their home with Mr. Miller; her father returned to Pennsylvania on a visit and died there in 1860; her mother remained and died at the home of Mrs. Miller in March, 1874.

MATHEW MILLER, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Ripon; was born in Allegany Co., N. Y., Sept. 15, 1829; he came to the State of Wisconsin in the fall of 1849, and first settled in what is now Waushara Co.; his parents, John and Sarah, afterward joined him and remained there six years. In 1855, Mr. Miller came to this county and settled upon his present farm of fifty-five acres. His parents afterward came from Waushara Co. to this township, where his father died in 1862, his mother now living with him. Mr. Miller married, Oct. 18, 1857, Miss Roseville Wightman, daughter of Ezra and Ruby Wightman, of Rutland Co., Vt.; her father came to the State of Wisconsin in 1855 and settled in Ripon Township, and, after the death of her mother, which occurred in February, 1868, came to live with Mr. Miller; he is now 81 years of age. Mrs. Miller was born in Chautauque Co., N. Y., May 8, 1837; they had four children, three living—George, born May 17, 1864; Ezra, Aug. 31, 1871, and Ruby, Oct. 29, 1876, and one deceased—Ella, born Nov. 14, 1858, died Oct. 29, 1865. They are members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Miller is a Republican in politics.

G. W. MITCHELL, born in St. Albans, Vt.; came to McHenry Co., Ill., in September, 1841, and to Portage Co., Wisconsin Territory, in March, 1843. Held the office of Sheriff of said county during 1847 and 1848, and immediately thereafter the office of Clerk of Circuit Court, Register of Deeds, and Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of same county. Was engaged in merchandising until 1854, in connection with the lumber business; moved to Ripon in the summer of 1855. Was Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co. during 1857 and 1858, and was Senator from the 20th Senatorial District (then composed of Fond du Lac Co. during 1862 and 1863). Retained more or less of his lumber interest in the pinery during his residence in Ripon, and moved to Dubuque, Iowa, in 1865; engaged in lumber business in connection with his pinery interest; moved to Milwaukee in the fall of 1875, where he now resides and is still engaged in lumbering, under firm name of G. W. Mitchell & Son, at Stevens Point, Wis. Was married to Lucy Pearson, at Beloit, Oct. 24, 1848; Mrs. M. was a native of Shelburne, Vt.; have two children, a son and daughter—George S., now of Stevens Point, and Alice M., now the wife of C. E. Lyman, for a long time a resident of Ripon, and at present time of this city.

J. B. MOREY, Metomen street, is a native of Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; was born in the town of Nassau Feb. 28, 1827. He married in his native county, Nov. 16, 1848, Mary C. Coon, also a native of Rensselaer Co. In 1854, they came to Wisconsin; located on a farm in the town of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., where they remained about two years, at the expiration of which time they moved to the town of Ripon, residing on a farm until 1865, when they moved to the city of Ripon, where they have resided since. They have one daughter—Miss Lena A.; Mr. Morey and family attend the M. E. Church; he is a Republican in politics. Owns 188 acres of land adjoining the city of Ripon, 160 acres in Green Lake Co., Wis., and forty acres in Wood Co.; he was for a number of years dealer in agricultural implements in Ripon, and did an extensive business in that line; has lately retired from active life and now is engaged in no business except in overseeing the management of his farms, which requires most of his time.

EZRA LATIROP NORTHRUP, capitalist, was born at Sherburne, Chenango Co., N. Y., March 30, 1818; when a child was removed to Geneseo, N. Y.; at his majority began the clothing business for himself and running a woolen-mill in Orleans Co., N. Y., which he continued five years; removed to a farm near Logansport, Ind., in 1844; came from there to Ripon in November, 1849, purchasing a stock of goods at Milwaukee, with which he opened the first store in Ripon Jan. 1, 1850; was the first Postmaster of Ripon, receiving his commission March 30, 1850; with Brockway & Dellinger, ran Ceresco Mills one year from the fall of 1850; in the spring of 1854, began trading produce for logs near Wausau, mostly on Trap River, purchased a saw-mill the next year and ran it until about 1855; purchased 320 acres of land within the city limits in 1854, one eighty at government price, one at $2 50 per acre, one at $5, and one at $20 per acre, and, in 1864, sold it for $50 per acre; Mr. N. was one of the incorporators of Ripon College, with which he was connected until 1858; was a member of the county Board in 1876 and 1878. He was married first at Ripon to Emily B. Brockway, who died, leaving one child—Leland Lewis, and to his present wife, Catherine L. Brockway, in June, 1868; she was born in Monroe Co., N. Y.

WILLIAM PALMITER, eclectic and clairvoyant physician, Sec. 24; P. O. Ripon; was born in the town of Verona, Oneida Co., N. Y., Jan. 29, 1823; he came to Wisconsin in 1843, and first settled at Pipersville, near Watertown, Jefferson Co.; engaged in his trade of carpenter for six years, then moved into the village of Watertown, where he built and was proprietor of the Boston Hotel for two years; in 1851, he went to California, engaged in mining for nineteen months, then returned to Watertown, and, having exchanged his hotel for a farm in the town of Omro, Winnebago Co., Wis., moved his family on it and resided there for two years; in 1855, he came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in Ripon Township, on his present farm of 240 acres; since his coming here he studied medicine, and for twenty years has practiced in this county. He married Miss Harriet M. Piper, Dec. 31, 1818; she was born in Erie Co., N. Y., Dec. 13, 1831; her parents, Benjamin and Sarah Piper, came from Erie Co., N. Y., to Milwaukee in the year 1836, there being at that time only six white families in that place; in 1837, they went to Jefferson Co., Wis., Pipersville in that county being named after her father; in 1853, they moved to Dane Co., Wis., and purchased a section of land within two and one-half miles of Madison; there her father died April 4, 1876, at the age of 90 years 4 days; Mr. and Mrs. Palmer were blessed with four children; only one survives, viz., Ida M., born April 29, 1859, and married to Lewis Kellogg, of Ripon Township, Jan. 28, 1889; of the three children deceased, only one was named, viz., Leo W.

DANIEL B. PARKHURST was born at Stockbridge, Windsor Co., Vt., in 1823; came from Rutland Co., Vt., to Berlin, Wis., in 1854; Mr. P. was a bookkeeper eight years in Berlin; agent of the Star Union Line four years at St. Paul; clerk of the Wisconsin State's Prison at Waupun eighteen months, and has been agent for the C. M. & St. P. R. R. Co. for four and one-half years; while a resident of Berlin, he was City Treasurer four years; served three years as one of the first School Commissioners under the existing school system of that city, and was Alderman one term; in 1878, he was elected Alderman of the Second Ward of the city of Ripon. Mr. Parkhurst was married at Leicester, Vt., in 1851, to Cynthia Capron, a native of that place; they have three children—Alice, now Mrs. A. J. Farr, of Columbus, Wis., George A. and Harry E.; they have lost two children—Lottie C., died at the age of 5 1/2 years, and Charles R., was three years old at the time of his death.

S. R. PATTEN, dentist; was born at Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 8, 1847; lived three and one-half years in Massachusetts; came to Shields, Marquette Co., Wis., in 1859, where he resided until 21 years of age, and came to Ripon in 1875; Dr. Patten has practiced dentistry eight years. He was married at Marquette, Green Lake Co., Wis., Nov. 11, 1868, to Estelle E. Halleck, born in Marquette; they have three children—Elmer Eugene, Alvin Edward and Fola A. Mr. and Mrs. P. are members of the Congregational Church, and Mr. Patten is also a member of the Knights of Honor.

JOHN PEARSON, farmer; P. O. Ripon; was born in Yorkshire, England Dec. 19, 1839; when he was 4 years of age, his parents, Lealions and Harriet Pearson, moved to the State of Wisconsin, and settled in Fountain Prairie Township, Columbia Co., where his father died September, 1876; after his death, his mother moved to Kansas City, where she now resides. The subject of this sketch, in 1860, went to Colorado, and engaged in mining for three years, then to Montana Territory, where he was engaged in the business of freighting, merchandising and stock for six years; from 1869, he was associated with his brother, Mitchell Pearson, in driving stock from Texas and Nevada and disposing of the same up to the year 1877, when he returned to Kansas City; in 1878, he came to his present farm in the limits of the city of Ripon. He married Miss Eiza Field, Aug. 11, 1872; she was born in Columbia Co., Wis., Jan. 17, 1851; her parents, William E. and Josephine M., moved to Fountain Prairie, Columbia Co., Wis., where they still reside; her father was a native of New York State; her mother of Michigan. Mr. Pearson is blessed with three children—John M., born May 18, 1874; Mary J., born June 29, 1876 and George C., born May 19, 1879.

CYRUS PEDRICK, marble cutter; was born at North Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., Dec. 31, 1831; came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1848, and to Ripon in the early spring of 1849; he began the marble business in the fall of 1860, and sold out Oct. 8, 1866; during fifteen years before and after this, Mr. P. was engaged in building, and during ten years, from the fall of 1867 to Nov., 1878, was in Milwaukee and Michigan. He was Alderman in Ripon one term; he now represents Flint Bros., marble manufacturers of Rutland, Vt.

MARCELLUS PEDRICK was born in North Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., Dec. 23, 1829; came to Taycheedah, Wis., in 1848; to Ripon early in 1849; built a home and dated it, moving in April 9, 1849; this house was for the Pedrick family, was 12x24 feet, and the first one built in Ripon; Mr. P.'s father, Samuel Pedrick, died in September, 1859, the second death in Ripon; Marcellus Pedrick began mason work as soon as he arrived in Ripon, putting the foundation under Capt. Mapes' mill, Taggards Bros. store and the Ripon House; he continued mason work fifteen years, putting up most of the buildings in Ripon during that time; then engaged in the lumber, wheat, wool and produce business; built an elevator, which he still owns; built Opera Hall in 1869; began lumbering on a larger scale in 1870, building a mill at Fairchild, Eau Claire Co., Wis. Mr. P.'s mother lives in Ripon with her daughter, Mrs. Baldwin. He was married at Fall River, Columbia Co., Wis., Feb. 10, 1857, to Mary A. Smith, born in Yates Co., N. Y., whose parents were early settlers in Columbia Co., Wis.; they have two children—Edward S. and Samuel M.

JOHN PERRINE, residence corner of Fond du Lac and Huston streets; was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., in 1804; has been twice married, first wife was Sarah Degoff, second wife, Deborah

S. Sumner

RIPON

Puntup, both are deceased; his children now living are Enoch, now of Ottawa Co., Mich.; Sarah J., wife of John Martin, this city; Mary A., wife of David Beebe, Neb., he served in a New York regiment during the war of the rebellion; Harriet wife of W. R. Beebe, he was also a soldier in a New York regiment during the war of the rebellion; Margaret and Henrietta; one son, Joseph, in the 111th N. Y. V. I., was captured in battle by the rebels and died in Libby prison; Mr. Perrine came to Ripon in 1866, and has made it his home; he owns eighty acres of land and city property. Is a Republican in politics.

JOHN F. PETERSON, cutter to J. E. Brown, merchant tailor; was born at Flahult, Breared, Sweden, Aug. 1, 1838; came to Moline, Ill., in 1863; six months later moved to Galesburg; one year later to Alton; two years later to Chicago; one year afterward to Galesburg, Ill.; six months afterward to New Boston, Ill.; one year later, to Keithsburg, Ill.; another year later to Ripon, where he worked one year for J. E. Brown; then moved to Appleton, whence in February, 1879, he removed to Ripon. Mr. P. was married at Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 14, 1879, to Charlotte U. Pearsand, born in Elghult, Sweden, in 1849; they have three children—John Albert, born March 18, 1872; Helena, born March 28, 1874, and Lottie, born March 27, 1878.

A. W. PETTIBONE was born at Fremont, Erie Co., Ohio, March 14, 1835; removed to Portage, Wis., in 1850; spent two years in California and British America; returned to Lodi, Wis.; came from there to Ripon in 1865, and built the Pettibone Block, in which he carried on the dry-goods business; in 1872, he erected a block of two stores; in 1880 he removed his business to Leadville, Colo. Mr. P. was first married to Lucy B. Peabody, at Cambria, Wis., who died May 22, 1873, leaving four children—Fred C., Wm. R., Alice E. and Louis A.; he married again, July 1, 1876, to Flora J., daughter of H. W. Wolcott, who was born in Rosevale, this county; they have one child—Jessie; Mr. P. is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and I. O. O. F.

DR. CHARLES E. PHELPS was born at Bergen, Genesee Co., N. Y., April 28, 1827; at the age of 19, came with his parents to Oak Grove, Dodge Co., Wis.; two years later, went to Berlin, Wis.; in 1851, went to California; two years later, removed to Genesee Co., N. Y., whence, the next year, he returned to Wisconsin, which has since been his home, except during three years spent in Minnesota. Since 1875, Dr. Phelps has resided at Ripon. He was married at Ripon in May, 1878, to Ida, daughter of R. D. Mason, born at Genesee. Dr. Phelps' father, Abner Phelps, a Major of artillery and a veteran of the war of 1812, now resides at Waupun, and is in his 90th year.

M. M. PINKERTON, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Ripon; was born in Ludlow, N. H., Dec. 9, 1815; when he was 2 years of age, his parents, David and Susanna Pinkerton, moved to Boscawen, N. H., where they both died. The subject of this sketch came to the West when he was 21 years of age, and settled at La Porte, Ind., for three years; then returned to New Hampshire, and, in 1856, came to Wisconsin and settled in Waupun Township, Fond du Lac Co., on a farm of 280 acres; in 1876, he came to Ripon Township, where he now resides on a farm of 160 acres. He has been married twice; his first wife was Miss Jane Clarke (daughter of Samuel W. and L. Clarke, of Portland, Me.); they were married Feb. 15, 1842; she died Sept. 15, 1846, leaving two sons—Merrin W., born July 18, 1843, and Samuel C., born Jan. 2, 1846. His second wife was Miss Sarah Noyes (daughter of Jeremiah and Martha Noyes, of Boscawen, N. H., both of whom are dead); they were married Nov. 20, 1847; she was born in Boscawen Sept. 1, 1815; they had four children, three living—Charles W., born Sept. 12, 1848, and married Miss Emma Riley, now living in Gilman, Iowa; Ella M., born May 27, 1852, and George L., born Sept. 13, 1856, and one deceased; Enoch, born Dec. 19, 1859, and died June 17, 1854. Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton are members of the Congregational Church.

B. P. POTTER, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Ripon; was born in Schenarie Co., N. Y., March 7, 1824; his mother died when he was an infant and his father in 1834; he learned the trade of shoemaking with his uncle in Schoharie Co., but worked very little at his trade, having turned his attention to farming pursuits; he came to the State of Wisconsin in 1854, and first located in the town of Summit, then Milwaukee Co., engaged in farming; in 1856, he moved to this county, and settled upon his present farm of 100 acres. He married Miss Deborah Batcheller (daughter of David and Deborah Batcheller, of Schenarie Co., N. Y.), Oct. 4, 1857; they have two children—Mary L., born Sept. 5, 1860, and Frank J., born Jan. 2, 1863. Mr. Potter is a Republican.

A. B. PRATT was born at Skowhegan, Somerset Co., Me., March 27, 1817; came to Ripon June 8, 1856, where he has since resided and carried on business; the first year after coming to Ripon Mr. Pratt engaged in farming, but has ever since been engaged in the lumber business, dealing in produce, and more lately in coal and Iowa and Minnesota lands also; he has been Alderman and Supervisor of the First Ward two years; Clerk of District No. 2, fifteen years, and was Deputy U. S. Marshal four years during the war. He was married Aug. 19, 1852, in the town of Gray, Me.—his wife's native place—to Lydia Ann King; they have lost three children, and have four living—Gardner C., Lyman A., Charles L. and Meda F. Mr. Potter, who was never ill a day in his life, is a Mason, a member of all the temperance organizations, and helped to enforce the Maine liquor law.

GARDNER C. PRATT, lumber dealer; was born at Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 28, 1853; came to Ripon with his parents in 1856; he spent 1875-76 in the lumber business in California, and then became his father's successor in the lumber business at Ripon, which he now carries on.

LYMAN A. PRATT, proprietor of lumber-yard; is a native of Maine, born 1855; when 9 months old, with parents, he removed to Ripon, Wis.; they settled first on a farm near the city, but, two years later, his father disposed of that, moved to the city and became engaged in the lumber trade. L. A. was educated in the public schools and college of Ripon; in 1870, he began with his father in the lumber trade, and, in 1876, he went into partnership with his brother, and with him continued the business till June, 1879; he then bought out the firm of Hillman & Yorty, lumber dealers, and has since continued the business alone. In 1875, he was married to Miss Fannie, daughter of J. A. and Mary Thomas, of Ripon; their children are Mattie and Laura. Mrs. Pratt is a member of the Congregational Church.

HON. LEWIS E. REED, attorney; was born at Stockbridge, Madison Co., N. Y.; came with his parents to Green Lake Prairie, near Ripon, in 1858; came to Ripon, his home since then, in 1866. Judge Reed taught school before studying law, the practice of which he began in Ripon. He served in Co. B, 1st W. V. C., from August, 1861, to August, 1863. He has been Municipal Judge since 1869. His wife was Angeline J. Wolcott, daughter of Henry W. Wolcott; they have two children, a son and daughter.

FERDINAND REICHMUTH, baker, confectioner and proprietor of ice-cream parlors on Main st.; was born in Saxony in 1832; came to America with his parents in 1846, and located near Watertown, Jefferson Co., Wis., where his father followed farming; at the age of 14 he entered upon an apprenticeship at the baker's trade in Watertown, Wis., and continued the trade there two years; he spent the next five years in travel, and, in 1853, established himself in the bakery and confectionery business in Belvidere, Ill., continuing the business there eleven years; he came to Ripon in 1865, and has since successfully carried on the business of a baker, confectioner and is proprietor of a splendid suit of ice-cream parlors on the east side of Main st. In 1853, at Watertown, Wis., he was married to Clotilde Graf; they have three sons—Edward, Herman and Charles; their first child was Caroline, who died in infancy. Mr. R. and family attend the Lutheran Church.

EDMUND L. RUNALS, attorney; was born at Arcade, N. Y.; studied law but did not practice in that State; came to Sec. 36, Ripon, in September, 1846; afterward lived on Sec. 2, Metomen, until 1852; May 1, 1852, came to Ripon and was elected Justice of the Peace; in winter of 1853 and spring of 1854, was engaged in surveying and taking subscriptions for the Milwaukee & Horion Railway; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and began practicing law, which he has continued since, residing in Ripon; Mr. Runals has carried on farming, tax certificates and other business in connection with his law practice. He has been Superintendent of Public Schools in Ripon and Metomen; Assessor of Ripon Township three years; Member of the Assembly in 1857 and 1858—two terms; Municipal Judge, four years; City Attorney, five years; Alderman and Supervisor two terms—the last time in 1879. Before coming West Mr. Runals spent four years at Bethany and Strykersville in school. He was married at Livonia, Mich., July, 1847, to Dosliska Avery, born near Java Lake, N. Y.; they have one child—Willie T.

JASEN C. RUSSELL, Metomen street, Ripon; is a native of Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y.; was born Jan. 4, 1816. He married, in his native county, Julia Balsley, also a native of Manlius, Onondaga Co.; in 1855, they came to Wisconsin, located in the town of Ripon, Fond du Lac Co., on a farm where they resided until 1864, in which year they moved to the city of Ripon, where they have resided since; their children are Marian S., wife of Dr. J. H. Callender, Harper Co., Kan.; Dora C., wife of C. A. Peek, Berlin, Wis.; Louise H., wife of Rev. W. F. Randolph, Munster, Monmouth Co., N. J.; Miss Carrie P. Mr. Russell and wife are leading members of the M. E. Church, in which he has been Trustee and Steward a number of years. In politics, Mr. R. is a Republican. He takes a deep interest in public affairs, and was always active in the advancement of the religious, educational and other public interests in the city of Ripon.

PETER SCHEIDT, teacher; was born at Kappeln, Prussia, June 28, 1855; came to America in June, 1873, and, after remaining a short time in Chicago, entered the Amherst Seminary in 1874, from which he graduated April 4, 1877. He then began teaching in Columbia, Monroe Co., Ill., where he remained until coming to Ripon in October, 1879. He is the first teacher employed in the German Evangelical Lutheran School.

LOUIS SCHNEIDER (deceased) was born in Prussia, Germany, Sept. 22, 1827; he learned the trade of a mason, and carried it on in Germany; in 1853, he came to the United States, and came direct to Wisconsin and settled in the city of Ripon, where he was engaged in his trade of mason up to 1861, when he moved upon his farm, on Sec. 25, of Ripon Township, containing 106 acres, where he resided up to the day of his death, which occurred Aug. 14, 1879; up to a week before his death, he worked in the masonry of his present residence. He married Miss Wilhemina Shaver April 20, 1850; her parents, Martin and Elizabeth Shaver, came to the United States, and settled in the city of Ripon in 1858; her father afterward went to Iowa, and died there. Mr. and Mrs. Schneider had ten children, nine living—Amelia A., born May 8, 1852, now Mrs. Hugo Snyder, of Fond du Lac Township; Lewis, May 8, 1858; William, born March 12, 1860; Edward, May 8, 1862; Helen E., March 12, 1864; Bertha J., May 20, 1866; Julius, April 20, 1868; Emma, Sept. 18, 1870; and Hattie, Oct. 14, 1872, and one deceased—August, born August 18, 1857, died July 3, 1858.

HUGO SCHULTZ, of the firm of Schultz & Bro., dealers in groceries and harness manufacturers, is a native of Prussia, born in 1847; he, with his brother, came to America in 1865, and landed in Baltimore, Md., in September; thence he came direct to Ripon, Wis., where for two years he followed clerking in a grocery store; in 1867, he went to Chicago, Ill., where for four years he clerked in a meat market; in 1871, he returned to Ripon, and with his brother, F. C., established a grocery and liquor store, of which they have since been proprietors. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and Sons of Hermann.

F. CARL SCHULTZ, brother and partner of Hugo Schultz, above named, was born in Prussia in 1840, immigrated to America and settled in Ripon in 1865, where he has since worked at the harness trade most of the time. In 1871, with his brother, he formed a copartnership in grocery, liquor and harness business.

E. L. SCOFIELD, editor and proprietor of the Ripon Commonwealth, was born in the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Nov. 13, 1851; he lived with his parents until he was 20 years old, helping to "run the farm" in the summer and attending school during the winter, when he determined to learn the printer's trade, and to that end engaged himself to Oliver Bros., of the Waupun Leader, where he remained for three and one-half years, during which time he gave good satisfaction, and mastered the profession; in the spring of 1875, he came to Ripon and purchased a half-interest in the Ripon Commonwealth, and shortly after became sole proprietor. He has greatly improved the paper since becoming the owner.

GEORGE SEATH, farmer, Sec. 18, P. O. Ripon; was born in Fifeshire, Scotland, Dec. 25, 1807; he came to the United States in 1835, and first settled in the city of New York, where he lived for five years, when he moved to Delaware Co., N. Y.; in 1855, he came from there to Wisconsin, and settled in Ripon Township, Fond du Lac Co., on the farm upon which he now resides; he has always been a farmer; his parents, George and Margaret A. Seath, both died in Scotland. He married, Dec. 20, 1833, Miss Jennie Owen, daughter of William and Allison Owen, of Scotland, both of whom died there; she was born in Fifeshire, Scotland, Feb. 20, 1812. They had six children, five living, viz.: George, born Oct. 14, 1834—he was twice married, his first wife being Miss Phoebe Larrabee, who died, leaving five children, Ira, William, George, Ella A. and Oscar—his second wife was Miss Anna Harris on, and they have two children, Jennie and Pardon T., and are living in Minnesota; Allison L., born Feb. 22, 1840, married to Miss Mary Sever, and living in Minnesota—they have one child, Clinton, born July 12, 1875; Margaret, born May 24, 1843, married to Pardon Tucker, of Fairwater, Wis.—they have two children, Clayton W., born July 1, 1872, and Ardie, Sept. 2, 1875; Elizabeth, born May 8, 1845; James, Sept. 6, 1849, and married to Miss Abbie Welcome, of the city of Ripon; and one deceased, John T., born April 25, 1837, died March 16, 1841.

ROBERT SHELDON, farmer, Sec. 10, P. O. Ripon; born in Franklin Co., N. Y., Dec. 17, 1825; at the age of 11, he came with his father, Rodney Sheldon, to the State of Michigan, his mother having died when he was 9 years of age; after remaining in Michigan three years, they came to Wisconsin, and first settled in the town of Pleasant Prairie (then in Racine Co., but now known as Kenosha Co.), where the subject of this sketch was engaged in teaming and thrashing; in 1851, he crossed the Plains to California, mining and prospecting while there; at the end of four months, he shipped for Australia, landing in Sydney after a voyage of seventy-seven days, where he still engaged in mining; he then "packed" seven hundred miles to Victoria colony, and from there, four months afterward, "packed" to Melbourne, and from there shipped to Liverpool and thence to New York; in January, 1853, came to Wisconsin, and first located at Ripon, in this county, and shortly afterward purchased the farm of 150 acres upon which he now resides, and engaged in farming pursuits; since his residence here, he has made another trip to California, and returned upon the first through train on the Union Pacific Railroad in 1869. He married Miss Abbie P. Finkham (daughter of Orrin and Joanna Finkham, of Woodstock, Vt.), on the 30th of June, 1853; they were married in Green Lake Co., Wis., her parents having moved West and settled there, being among the pioneers of that county; both are now dead; Mr. Sheldon's father died in 1863.

DR. GEORGE R. SHAW, homœopathic physician and surgeon, was born at West Troupsburg, Steuben Co., N. Y., Aug. 24, 1827, where he resided until 17 years of age; then entered Alred Academy; then engaged in teaching, and studying medicine for a time; graduated from the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons; attended the Western Reserve College, at Cleveland, Ohio, and began practicing in New York State; in the fall of 1855, Dr. S. came to Dartford, Green Lake Co., Wis.; two years later, he moved to Appleton and in 1862, to Ripon, confining himself to the practice of medicine ever since coming to Wisconsin. He was married in Steuben Co., N. Y., in 1852, to May G. Goodell, a native of Oneida Co.; they have two children—William B. and Eva J. Dr. S. is a member of the Wisconsin Homœopathic Society and of the American Institute of Homœopathy.

SOMERS SHERWOOD, dairyman; P. O. Ripon; was born in Onondaga Co., N. Y., Jan. 11, 1825; his parents were Daniel and Diantha Sherwood; he came to Wisconsin in 1845, and settled in the town of McOmnen, Fond du Lac Co., engaged in farming; in 1864, he came to the city of Ripon, and, after living there three years, moved to his present farm; he is engaged entirely and largely in the dairy business, supplying the city of Ripon, now milking fifty cows, and steadily increasing the number; his farm adjoins the city limits. He married Miss Theodisia Kollogg, March 31, 1863; she was born in Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 3, 1838; her parents were Charles and Tancy Kollogg, her father a native of Norwalk, her mother of Somers own, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood are blessed with two children—Ellen, born Dec. 30, 1863, and Ralph M., Jan. 16, 1866. Members of Congregational Church.

C. F. SHUTE, blacksmith; P. O. Ripon; was born in Champlain, Clinton Co., N. Y., July 26, 1816; at the age of 16, he went to Keesville, Essex Co., N. Y., where he learned the trade of blacksmithing, remaining there until 1856, when he came to Wisconsin and first settled in Oshkosh, remaining there one year, and from there to Ripon Township until 1859, when he went to Oregon for one year and from there to the Chippewa Reservation, Minn., engaged in his trade of blacksmithing; in 1853, he returned to Ripon Township to his shop on Sec. 18, which he at present carries on, having connected with him his son, P. C. Shute, as a wheelwright; he has held the office of Justice of the Peace one term. He married twice; his first wife was Miss Margaret Algate, daughter of Luther Adgate; they were married Dec. 31, 1839; she died in 1852, leaving three children, one living—Frederick C.; two deceased, viz., George Henry, and Dexter B., who enlisted in Co. H, 20th W. V. I., and was killed at the battle of Prairie Grove, Ark., Dec. 7, 1862. His second wife was Miss Mary T. Butler, daughter of Norris and Mary A. Butler of this township; they were married Oct. 11, 1853; they have four children—Palmes C., Margaret L., George D. and Herbert M. Mr. and Mrs. Shute are members of the Methodist Church. His politics are Republican.

HENRY C. SMITH, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Ripon; was born in Orleans Co., N. Y., Sept. 24, 1838, when he was 19 years of age, his parents, Elisha and Mary Smith, came West and settled in Iowa Co., Wis., remaining there three years; in 1851, came to Green Lake Co., and in 1862 came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the city of Ripon; his mother died there in the fall of 1867; the next spring his father moved to the farm on Sec. 19, where he died in June, 1872; the farm contains eighty acres; he subject of this sketch remained with them, and now resides upon the homestead. Mr. Smith married, July 4, 1859, Miss Helen Clarke; she was born in Madison Co., N. Y., June 16, 1843; her parents, Stephen and Susan Clarke, came West in 1856, and settled in the town of Brooklyn, Green Lake Co., where they now reside; Mrs. Smith had three children, two living—Jennie E., born July 7, 1863, and Fred, April 5, 1866; one dead—Frank, born Feb. 4, 1861, died March 10, 1868.

J. S. SIBLEY, farmer, Sec. 17, P. O. Ripon; was born in Franklin Co., Vt., Aug. 6, 1817; up to the age of 23 years, assisted his parents in farming; his father died in Fairfax, Vt., in the year of 1847; the subject of this sketch came to the State of Wisconsin in 1839; after remaining until the next year, returned to Vermont for three years; he then engaged in the business of a tanner, in the town of Fairfax, Franklin Co., Vt., for six years, up to 1850; he then went to Fairfax Falls, and carried on the lumbering business for two years, after which he engaged in farming, up to 1863, when he came again to the State of Wisconsin, and settled in Ripon Township, in this county, on Sec. 17, where he has ever since resided. He married Miss Mariah P. Kingsbury, daughter of John and Sarah Kingsbury, of Fairfax, Vt., on the 14th day of March, 1847; she was born in Fairfax, Vt., May 15, 1829; they had ten children, viz.: Sarah

MRS. CLORISSA T. TRACY. Instructor in Algebra and Botany, Ripon College; is a native of Susquehanna Co., Penn.; her parents, Stephen and Lucy Tucker, were natives of Vermont; she received her early education in the academies of Susquehanna and Wayne Cos., Penn., but completed her studies at the Troy Female Seminary, at Troy, N. Y.; she began teaching when only 14 years of age, continuing her studies, however, until she left Troy in 1843 and went to Honesdale, where she accepted the position of Principal and teacher in the Young Ladies' Seminary at that place, where she had previously taught. In 1844, she was married, and only devoted a portion of the time to teaching until the time of Mr. Tracy's death, which occurred in 1848; then she resumed her position as Principal in the Seminary and remained there until 1856; she then came to Neenah, Wis., and conducted a private school for three years; in 1859, she came to Ripon and has held successively the positions of General Superintendent of the Ladies' Department, Principal of same department and Matron of Ripon College, and has always, since coming here, taught algebra and botany in the College. At the time of her husband's death, she was left with two children, a daughter and son; the daughter died three years later; her son, James H. Tracy, graduated from Ripon College in 1868; he then entered upon the study of medicine in Chicago, and, a year later, entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in New York City, from which institution he graduated; during the Franco-Prussian war he was Assistant Hospital Surgeon, at Berlin, Prussia; he is now settled in the practice of his profession at Escondido, Mich.

WILLIAM M. TREANORE, wagon and carriage-maker; was born in Scotland Jan. 3, 1830; came to New York City, where he resided two years, in 1852; removed from there to Springfield, Mass., where he remained five years; then came to Wisconsin; came to Ripon in 1863. Mr. T. began carriage-trimming in 1845; he is now a member of the firm of Tremore & Bodgett, wagon and carriage makers. He was married at Pittsfield, Mass., in August, 1854, to Martha Bennett, a native of the town of Bolton, N. Y.; they have three children—Helen E., Vincent O., and Water P.; William E. died when 18 months old. Mr. T. has been Alderman of the First Ward two terms.

WILLIAM W. D. TURNER, attorney; was born at Quincy, Ill., June 1, 1836, whence he moved with his parents to Edina, Knox Co., Mo., in 1837; this was his residence until 1859, when he moved to Lebanon, Mo., being admitted to the bar the same year. Mr. T. was elected to the convention called to determine whether Missouri should remain in the Union; was the youngest member of that body and an "unconditional Union man." He entered the army in June, 1861, and was three months in the Home Guard; raised the 20th Mo. V. I., which was mustered out in the fall of 1864. After leaving the army, he went to New Orleans, where he was Judge Advocate of the Provost Court until May 11, 1865, when he went to Mobile, Ala.; in 1873-74, he was City Attorney of Mobile; in September, 1877, Col. T. came to Ripon, where he has since practiced his profession, being a member of the law firm of DeBols & Turner; in 1876, he was the Republican candidate for Congress in Alabama, and, in 1878, the Republican candidate for District Attorney of Fond du Lac Co.

COL. C. H. UPHAM, retired; was born at Westminster, Worcester Co., Mass., Feb. 18, 1828; came to Niles, Mich., in 1848; came to Racine, Wis., where he engaged in the forwarding and commission business, in 1853; at Racine he was City Clerk and Comptroller, and in the army was Captain of the Commissary and Subsistence, Department of the Gulf. In 1866, Col. U. went to Shawano, Wis., and engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1877, when he came to Ripon. He was married at Westminster, Mass., in November, 1851, to Amanda E. Gibbs, a native of that State; they have two children—Fred W. and Kittie J.

JACOB VERMILYE, retired; is a native of Fishkill, Dutchess Co., N. Y.; born in 1804, and is the son of William and Cynthia Vermilye; he devoted much of his earlier life to lumbering; in 1831, he located in Troy, N. Y., and was employed in the construction of the railroad from Albany to Schenectady, N. Y., and afterward followed various kinds of business in New York till 1853; in April of that year, he came to Wisconsin and settled on a farm of 160 acres in the town of Metomon, Fond du Lac Co., and made farming his vocation till October, 1875, when he removed to the city of Ripon, and he has lived a more retired life. Oct. 6, 1835, he was married to Miss Lydia, daughter of William and Mary Miles, of Dutchess Co., N. Y.; their children are Nellie, now the wife of Truman Blossom, and lives in Winona, Minn.; Caroline, now Mrs. David Meorley, and lives at Minneapolis, Minn.; Mary, now the wife of George Lour, of Blue Earth Co., Minn.; Gibbie, now Mrs. Wallace Bolsley, and lives at Nashua, Iowa; Amanda, now the wife of Dyer Bell, of Minnesota; Cynthia, now Mrs. James Walker, of Kasson, Minn.; Eliza, the late Mrs. Wm. Whitman, of Minnesota, deceased; Harrison, now a merchant in this city, and who married Miss Anna, daughter of Patrick and Katie Phelps, Hebron, of Omro, Wis., in 1865; they have one son—Frank. Members of the Congregational Church.

REV. J. W. WALCOTT was born at Pawtucket, R. I., Nov. 29, 1812; son of James D. and Hannah Jenks Wolcott; moved with his father, a cotton manufacturer, to Newport, N. H., the same year; he received a preparatory education at Kimball Union Academy at Meriden, and entered Dartmouth College in 1835, graduating from it in 1839, in the fall of which year he entered Auburn Theological Seminary, graduating from that institution in 1843; Mr. W. first preached two years at Virgil, Cortland Co., N. Y.; next was Principal of Monroe Academy in Cayuga Co., N. Y., two years, and then was Principal of Auburn Female Seminary until it was burned, when he came to Wisconsin and began preaching at Menasha; in the fall of 1853, he came to Ripon, living in the city twenty years, removing in March, 1873, out on Green Lake Prairie, occasionally preaching since that time. He was married, at Bristol, R. I., in May, 1841, to Hannah B. Church, a native of Rhode Island, who died in July, 1849, leaving two children, who have since died; he was married a second time, at Auburn, N. Y., in May, 1853, to Caroline, daughter of Isaac Cooper; she was born at Croydon, N. H.; they have two children—Dexter Cooper and Frank B.

HENRY C. WELLCOME, of the firm of Clough & Wellcome, grocers; is a son of the Rev. Mark D. Wellcome; born in Franklin Co., Me., Sept. 1, 1833; he spent much of his early life attending common and high schools of his native county, and in 1873, came West, hoping to improve his then failing health; he settled first in Washington Co., Wis., where he tried farming for a short time, but not finding that business very recuperative, he again resorted to travel, which he continued through much of Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri; in 1869, he began the hotel business in Savannah, Mo., which he continued a short time, and then came to Green Lake Co., Wis. In 1861, he enlisted as a private in Co. J., of the 11th W. V. I., but was soon elected First Lieutenant of his company; he was with the Army of the Tennessee, and took part in the battles of Port Gibson, siege of Vicksburg, Grand Gulf, Champion Hills, Black River and others; in 1863, Gen. Banks appointed him on the Provost Marshal's staff at New Orleans, where he served till the close of the war; was mustered out of service at Madison, Wis., and at once returned to Fond du Lac, thence to Milwaukee, where for eight years he was engaged in the hotel business; disposing of this in 1874, he removed to Ripon, and in 1879, became interested in the grocery trade. In 1872, he was married to Miss Jennie, daughter of Christopher and Abigail Newbert, of Walldoboro, Me., who died at Ripon in 1873; he afterward married Miss Esther M., daughter of Isaac and Esther Herrick, of Ripon, Wis., in 1874; they have one son—Harry C.

JOHN WELLER, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Ripon; was born in Prince Edward Co., Upper Canada, in the fall of 1825; his father, William, died before he was born; his mother, Dillie Weller, died in 1846; Mr. Weller came to Wisconsin Oct. 20, 1852, and first settled in Green Lake Co. for seventeen years; in 1869, he came to his present farm of 140 acres. He married, Aug. 30, 1848, Miss Mary Ann Bedal, daughter of Isaac and Nancy Bedal, of Prince Edward Co., Upper Canada, who came to Wisconsin in 1852, and settled in Green Lake Co.; her father died there Jan. 11, 1864; her mother then came to live with her, and died Sept. 11, 1878; Mrs. Weller was born in Bloomfield, Prince Edward Co., Upper Canada, Oct. 20, 1825; they have three sons—Sydney, born Nov. 18, 1849; James R., Nov. 19, 1851, both born in Brighton, Canada, and Benjamin F., born in Fond du Lac Co., Aug. 30, 1854. Mrs. Weller is a member of the Presbyterian Church; Mr. Weller is a Republican in politics.

JOHN WEISGERBER, proprietor of the Mapes House; was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1817, and is the son of John and Mary Weisgerber; was educated in the schools of his native country, and followed farming there till about 26 years old; July 5, 1843, he landed in New York, as an emigrant to America; he continued farm work in New York for two years, then was employed in the salt works of Syracuse, N. Y., for ten years; in 1855, he came to Wisconsin and, for the next two years, was proprietor of a saloon in Sheboygan; thence he removed to Sheboygan Falls and continued the same business for two years longer; in 1859, he went to Berlin, Wis., where he opened a billiard room, but was burned out in January, 1860, and lost all he had; he then kept the Arcade House for two years; in 1862, he purchased the Dartford House, at Dartford, Green Lake Co., Wis., of which he was proprietor till 1873; disposing of his property at Dartford at that time, he purchased the Mapes House, in Ripon, Wis., of which he has since been proprietor. March 15, 1845, he was married to Miss Ann M. Resell, a native of Bavaria; they had three children—Caroline, now the wife of C. F. Schultz, of Fall Creek, Eau Claire Co., Wis.; Herman, who, with his mother, died with the cholera, in 1849; Katie (deceased). In 1849 he was married to Miss Barbara, daughter of Fredrick and Barbara Seybold, a native of Germany; the children are as follows: Mary, Katie (now the wife of P. H. Jewson, and lives in Nebraska), Lizzie, Meni. Mrs. Weisgerber died at Dartford, June 3, 1866.

REV. JOSEPH WESTENBERGER was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, Nov. 10, 1845, where he received a classical education; came to New York City in 1866, where he remained nine months; spent one summer at Bath, Mason Co., Ill.; then entered Wartburg Seminary, in Iowa, where he received a theological education; began preaching in February, 1869, at Madison, Wis.; in February, 1870, was ordained to the holy ministry at Maxfield, Bremer Co., Iowa; preached two years at Pocahontas, Mo.; Waterloo, Iowa, two years; Prairie du Chien over two years; Milwaukee, three years and one month; then, in November, 1878, came to Ripon, where he is Pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, and teacher of the parish school, preaching also at Rosendale and Brandon. Mr. W. was married in Iowa, Aug. 2, 1870, to Eliza Wegman, born in Germany, and who came to Iowa with her parents, when 2 years old; they have four children—Joseph, Lorenz, John and Gustav, and have lost one—Tillie, who died in Milwaukee, aged 3 years and 8 months.

CHARLES F. WHEELER, banker; was born at Stockbridge, Berkshire Co., Mass., Aug. 25, 1837; resided ten years at Penn Yan, N. Y., spending one year in the banking business; removed to Chicago in 1856; to Ripon in February, 1857; employed as book-keeper and teller in the Bank of Ripon until May, 1864, when the firm of Bowen & Wheeler, bankers, was formed, which still continues in business. He was married at Wethersfield, Henry Co., Ill., Nov. 8, 1860, to Maria S., eldest daughter of Rev. B. B. Parsons, now of Philadelphia; she was born in Connecticut; they have had one child, now deceased. Mr. Wheeler has been Treasurer of the Ripon Agricultural and Mechanical Association many years, and the family are members of the Congregational Church.

SPENCER WHITING was born in Schoharie Co., N. Y., Nov. 18, 1835; his parents, Charles and Catherine Whiting, were natives of New York, but now live in Ripon. Mr. Whiting came to Ripon, Wis., in 1854, and has since followed farming and various other kinds of business. In October, 1858, he was married to Miss Louisa, daughter of George W. and Lorinda Parker, a native of Wyoming Co., N. Y., but immigrants to Ripon in 1845; they have two sons—Emmett A. and Frank A., and one adopted daughter—Elna C. They are members of the First Baptist Church.

DANIEL WILCOX. This gentleman has resided in Wisconsin for over thirty-three years; is a native of Lewis Co., N. Y.; was born in the town of Lowville Oct. 3, 1803. Jan. 13, 1834, he married, in his native town, Huldah Williams; she was also a native of Lewis Co., N. Y.; born March 1, 1804; soon after their marriage, they moved to Jefferson Co.; thence to Fowler, St. Lawrence Co., where they remained until their coming to Wisconsin in 1847; lived in Walworth Co. until the spring of the following year (1848), when they purchased a tract of 320 acres of land from the Government, in the town of Alto, Fond du Lac Co.; removed on it, and immediately commenced improving it; they resided in the town of Alto (with the exception of the year 1854, during which they lived in the town of Waupun) until 1864, when they removed to the city of Ripon, which has been their home since; they have had seven children, four of whom are living—Mary E., who married, in 1857, H. Harwood (he was a soldier in Co. G, 29th W. V. I.; participated in numerous battles; was wounded at Jackson, Miss., and died in the service at New Orleans Sept. 27, 1864; Mrs. Harwood and child, Esther Irene, reside in Ripon); Miss I. Irene, teacher in the Art Department, Ripon College; Cornelia, wife of H. G. Clough, Rochester, Minn.; Herman M., a leading attorney, St. Louis, Mo.; names of the deceased children were Eldbridge, Harriet and Daniel Monroe. Mr. Wilcox and family are members of the Congregational Church; he believes that Christianity is an essential means of inward moral growth and progress in society and government, and that all political action should be prompted and controlled by the same broad, generous and unselfish purpose. During the time he resided in the town of Alto, he was Chairman and a member of the State Board of Supervisors twelve years, and Justice of the Peace about an equal length of time, and, in 1854, was Chairman of Board of Supervisors in Waupun; he has always taken a deep and active interest in the religious and educational matters of the county.

EDWIN WILSON, insurance agent; was born at Philadelphia, Penn., Jan. 1, 1833; resided there nine years; then removed to Luzerne Co.; whence he came to Ripon, May 1, 1855, and engaged as clerk for Jehdeiah Bowen, with whom he remained three years; engaged four or five years in the mercantile business; in 1865, began the fire and life insurance business, being also connected with Bowen & Wheeler's bank prior to 1878. Mr. W. was City Assessor in 1877 and 1878. He was married at Factoryville, Wyoming Co., Penn., April 28, 1857, to Elizabeth S. Mills, born in Long Island; they have one son—Edward H. They are members of the Congregational Church.

FRANK S. WILSON, druggist; was born at Ypsilanti, Mich., in March, 1849; came to Markesan, Green Lake Co., Wis., in 1866, and to Ripon in 1876, where he engaged in the drug business. Mr. W. attended the State Normal School at Ypsilanti, and learned the drug business in Michigan, which he has followed exclusively since coming to Ripon.

GILBERT F. WILSON, grain-dealer; was born in Orange Co., N. Y., in June, 1843; he came to Wisconsin, with parents, John and Mary J. Wilson, and located in the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., in 1851, where he afterward lived on a farm most of the time till 1868. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Co. H, of 20th W. V. I., and partook in all its battles and movements till it was mustered out of service at Galveston, Tex., in August, 1865. In April, 1868, he was married to Miss Hattie, daughter of Samuel L. and Sarah Whitney, of the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., and in that year removed to the town of Ripon, where he continued for two years; in 1871, they came to this city, where he has since been dealing in grain most of the time; their children are Herbert E., Frank A. and Harry M.

HENRY W. WOLCOTT, retired; was born at Trenton, Oneida Co., N. Y., June 18, 1819, came to Rosendale, settling on Sec. 27, Aug. 17, 1845, his wife joining him October 13, of the same year; Mr. W. made the second entry of land in Rosendale. Was the first School Superintendent and Inspector, and held the offices of Justice of the Peace, Chairman, Assessor, etc., several years. After leaving his farm and settling in Ripon, he ran, as a member of the firm of Wolcott & Bateman, the Ceresco Mill about five years; bought wool two or three seasons, and now is engaged in loaning money and the settlement of estates. He is Vice President of the Northern State Fair Association; was President one year of the Ripon Agricultural and Mechanical Society, and Secretary two years. He was married at Trenton, N. Y., to Emeline Lyman, a native of that place; they have five children—Angeline J., now Mrs. L. E. Reed; Flora J., now Mrs. A. W. Pettibone; Julia E., now Mrs. Fayette L. Taft, of Burlington, Vt.; Carrie B., at home, and Henry A., studying law with L. E. Reed.

ALANSON WOOD, proprietor Wood's Hotel; son of Alanson and Mary Wood; settled in Green Lake Co. in 1849, where his father died in 1852; his mother is now Mrs. Alson Norton, of Ripon; Mr. Wood came to Ripon in 1856. Enlisted as a private in Co. B, 32d W. V. I., Aug. 6, 1862; served until June, 1865, participating with his regiment in all battles, skirmishes and marches, without receiving a scratch. In the spring of 1866, he went into the old American House with his brother William; two years later, bought him out; April, 18, 1872, began the mason work for Wood's Hotel; had the grand opening Oct. 12 of the same year. Mr. Wood has served as Alderman of the Second Ward. He was married at Ripon April 3, 1867, to Hannah A., daughter of Daniel W. and Avis Fisk; they have two children living—Gracie Louise and Lucy Jenks; lost one—Avis Marble, died Dec. 13, 1871, aged 3 years and 3 months. Mr. Wood was born at Yates, Orleans Co., N. Y., June 29, 1842, and his wife in Adams, Mass.; prior to entering the army, Mr. Wood attended Ripon College three years.

JACOB WOODRUFF, nurseryman; was born at Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 17, 1813; after three and one-half years spent in whaling, went in 1838, to Great Bend, Penn.; in 1844, left that place and moved to Green Lake, Wis., where he remained from September until January or February of 1845, when he came to Ceresco and joined the Wisconsin Phalanx; before coming to Wisconsin, Mr. W. was engaged in blacksmithing, and also for about six years in Ripon, after the Phalanx broke up; since 1856, he has been engaged in the nursery business; during two or three years, he was largely interested with two or three others in raising willow for baskets. He has been City Treasurer one year, Assessor of First Ward one year, Treasurer and member of School Board six years. Mr. W. was married at Great Bend, Penn., Aug. 4, 1840, to Penila Wilson, born at that place Nov. 23, 1813; they have one child—Ensign, and have lost three—Frank, Charlotte and Walter, all at the age of about 2 years.

GEORGE WREN, architect and builder; was born in the county of Sussex, England, in 1833; his parents, Thomas and Ann Wren both died in England; when 14 years old, he entered upon an apprenticeship at the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he continued there for five years; in July, 1856, he sailed from Liverpool, and landed in New York in August; thence to Ripon, Wis., where he arrived Sept. 1 of that year; since Mr. Wren's settlement in this city, he has followed the business of an architect and builder, and has been connected with the erection of some of the most prominent buildings of the city. In 1859, he was married to Miss Harriet, daughter of James and Lydia Kingsbury, a native of England but immigrated to Wisconsin in 1856; their children are Lizzie R., Anna E. and Fred B. Mrs. Wren is a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

ROSENDALE TOWNSHIP.

CHAUNCEY M. BALCOM, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Warren Co., N. Y., June 14, 1818, and is the son of Isaac and Sally Balcom, nee Greene, natives of Massachusetts; he was a farmer in New York till 1845, when, in August of that year, he immigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 34, town of Rosendale, where he has since continued farming. In Warren Co., N. Y., July 13, 1845, he was married to Mary A., daughter of William and Sophia Cook, nee Morse; their children are as follows: Daphne, now the wife of Lyman S. Curtis, and lives in Lewis Co., N. Y.; Elmira, now the wife of George Wheeler, of the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Walden, who now lives in Dakota, and Chauncey, who resides at home with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Balcom were the sixth family to settle in the town of Rosendale.

JOHN R. BLACKBURN, proprietor of the Blackburn House, is a native of Yorkshire, England; his father, Samuel Blackburn, a wool-stapler, was born also in Yorkshire, Oct. 28, 1798; his mother, Elizabeth Durant, was born in the county of Sussex, Sept. 22, 1795; they were married May 22, 1823, and had a family of seven children, four of whom are now living, as follows: Amelia, now the wife of Thomas Parkin, and lives in Toronto, Canada; John R., the subject of this sketch; William R., who now lives in Clear Water, Minn., and Maria E., now Mrs. Leonard Brown, of Fond du Lac. John R., the oldest son, was born May 7, 1830, and with his father's family immigrated to America in 1842, and settled at Toronto, Canada, where for the following four years his father was engaged in the mercantile business. In August, 1846, the family, consisting of parents and four children, landed in Milwaukee as immigrants to Wisconsin, and came thence to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., where they settled on a farm on Sec. 34, which was their home till the fall of 1875, when they removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where they now live; John R. made his home with his parents on the farm till 1854, when, May 29, of that year, he was married to Miss Abigail P., daughter of Daniel W. and Sarah (Bradford) Potter (natives, her father of Connecticut, born Dec. 19, 1787, her mother of Vermont, born Sept. 9, 1798, who were afterward married and settled in the town of North Chili, Monroe Co., N. Y., where Abigail was born Oct. 27, 1834; and was afterward married to Mr. Blackburn; they came at once to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he continued farming for five years, in 1860, he began merchandising at Lamartine, and continued there till 1873; he then removed his business to the city of Fond du Lac, where he devoted his attention more especially to the grocery trade for four years; in the spring of 1877, he removed to the village of Rosendale, and continued merchandising till June, 1879; in the fall of 1877, he purchased the old Rosendale Hotel property, a year later rebuilt it, named it the Blackburn House and has since been its proprietor. Their children are Frank W., who married Miss Matilda, daughter of Robert and Mary J. Blair, of Fond du Lac, May 29, 1878, and is now the merchant of this village (Rosendale); H. Elmer, now a printer in Chicago; Charles R., Daniel Bert, S. Elizabeth, H. Louie and Minnie M., now deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

HENRY C. BOTTM, farmer, Sec. 30; P. O. West Rosendale; was born in Addison Co., Vt., in January, 1826; he is one of a family of seven children, whose parents were Roswell and Blue Bottum, and were also natives of Addison Co., Vt.; at the age of 18, he began clerking in a store, which he continued until 22 years old; for the next six years, he was engaged in the mercantile business on his own resources, at Benson, Rutland Co., Vt. At Lowell, Mass., July 21, 1852, he was married to Miss Helen M., daughter of Dr. Z. P. and Fannie Burnham, of that city; in November, 1854, with his wife and one son, he emigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm in Sec. 30, town of Rosendale, which has since been their home. Mr. Bottum was Town Clerk of Rosendale fifteen successive terms, beginning with the year 1856; he was Chairman of the town for three terms; in 1868, he was elected a member of the Wisconsin Assembly from the first Assembly District; was re-elected in 1869 and 1878. They have six children—Joe H., Roswell, Perkins B., George R., Sheldon G., and Helen N.

ANSON H. BOWE, M. D., the first physician of Rosendale; is a native of Hampden Co., Mass., born April 5, 1813; his grandfather, Isaac Bowe, was a descendant of Alexander and Sarah Bowe, who came from England and settled at Middletown, Conn., as early as 1678; he was the son of Peleg and Mary (Woodward) Bowe, born Feb. 6, 1755. Was married to Elizabeth Lee May 18, 1775; they had six children, of whom Isaac, the father of Anson H., was the oldest, and was married to Eunice Cooley, and raised a family of six; when Anson H., their youngest, was about 5 years old, they removed to Bradford Co., Penn., where he received the earlier part of his education in the common schools, and afterward attended an academy for a short time; in 1837, he began the study of medicine with a prominent physician of Springfield, Bradford Co., Penn., but attended lectures at the medical college of Baltimore, Md.; he returned to Springfield, and practiced his profession there till 1846; he came thence to the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., made some investments in real estate, selected the village for his future home, and returned to Pennsylvania for his family, with whom he arrived in June, 1847. He was the first physician to locate here, and has since successfully practiced his profession in this vicinity. March 12, 1855, he was married to Julia A., daughter of Reuben and Lydia Smead, nee Rowley, of Springfield, Penn.; their children are Isaac, who now lives in Connecticut; Frank, of this village (Rosendale); Ethie, now the wife of Dr. J. C. La Fivre, of Rosendale. Mr. and Mrs. Bowe are members of the M. E. Church.

HENRY CHURCHYARD, farmer, Sec. 30, P. O. Ripon; is a native of Suffolk County, England, born in May, 1830, and is the son of Isaac and Lucy Churchyard, who were also natives of Suffolk County, England; when 14 years old, he entered upon a five years' apprenticeship to the auctioneer's and land surveyor's trade in his native county, which business he followed for two years after his apprenticeship; April 1, 1859, he sailed from London for America and landed in Quebec in May following; he came thence to the city of Fond du Lac, where he arrived in June of that year; he first settled on the "Indian land," at Pysippi, Waukesha Co., Wis., and two years later (1852), came to the town of Rosendale, where he followed working for the farmers for the month for one and a half years; he then bought a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 30, this town (Rosendale), which has since been his home, where he now has 140 acres. In September, 1856, he was married to Adaline, daughter of Benoni and Margaret Mountt, then residents of this town, but emigrants from New York in 1854; their children are Ellen, Lina E., Henry, Lucy, Laura M., George, Fred, Mabel and Bonnie.

GEORGE D. CURTIS (deceased) was born in the town of Martinsburg, Lewis Co., N. Y., Aug. 1, 1821, and was the third son of Henry and Hannah Curtis, natives of Massachusetts but early immigrants to New York; he spent much of his early life on a farm; was educated in the common schools and academies of that county, and afterward followed teaching for five or six years. March 18, 1845, he was married to Rozella, daughter of Samuel and Lydia (Talmadge) Lyman, then a resident of Oneida County, N. Y.; in April following, they immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled with the first half-dozen families on "Sanborn's Prairie;" the farm he then selected on Sec. 31, was ever after his home; here he afterward erected a fine mansion, which has become a landmark to this region, and which is, perhaps, the finest rural residence in Fond du Lac Co. Upon the organization of the town it was, at his suggestion, named Rosendale, and he continued to be one of the most active in the management of its affairs throughout its subsequent history, down to the day of his death, being many times elected Chairman of the Town Board, besides filling other offices, for which his superior intellectual and business qualifications eminently fitted him; he was the first to oppose the granting of license to sell liquors in the town, and through such opposition and influence the right to traffic in such has never been granted within the limits of Rosendale; he was most prominent in securing the location of the Sheboygan railroad through the town, and, in connection with his brother, Lyman Curtis, built the elevator at the depot, which has been a vast public benefit and greatly enhanced the business interests of the community; he was also quite active in most of the movements for promoting the interests of agriculture, for which the town has for several years been characterized. Mr. Curtis was a man of much sympathy, generosity and of strong domestic tastes; from his early boyhood up, he found his greatest pleasure at home with some interesting book, or in joining in the conversation of the family circle; as a husband and father, he was strongly attached to his family and by them highly esteemed and greatly beloved; he died Oct. 21, 1878, leaving a wife and four children, as follows: Mathia C. (now the wife of George Curtis), Rosendale; Elon C., now of this town (Rosendale); Cora M., now a student at the Oshkosh Normal School; George H., of Rosendale.

BUSINAL DODD, farmer, Sec. 12; P. O. Rosendale; is a native of the town of Cornwall, Addison Co., Vt., born Sept. 23, 1822, and is the son of Jonathan and Betsey (Kenney) Dodd, natives of Massachusetts; he spent his early life at farming in his native county, and, in 1844, came to Wisconsin and landed at Milwaukee April 12 of that year, and settled a short time in the town of Pewaukee, Waukesha Co., where his parents afterward joined him; in September, 1845, he, with his brother, W. H. Dodd, and C. Balcorn, came to Fond du Lac, stopped one night with Dr. Darling, and, on the following day, selected their farms in the town of Rosendale; he, with his brother, entered a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 26, built a rude home and kept back there for a while; eighteen months later, his father arrived with the family and made that their home for ten years; then removed to Sec. 12, where they afterward lived; they afterward died in the village, his father at the age of 92, and mother at the age of 74. June 11, 1849, he was married to Miss Jane Rogers, who died Aug. 1, 1858, leaving four children—Charles P. (now deceased), Henrietta (now the wife of Charles A. Henry, of Janartine), John B. (now a farmer in the town of Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis.), and Bion H. In February, 1860, he was married to Margaret, daughter of George P. and Margaret Murray, natives of Prince Edward's Island, who came to Illinois in 1854; their children are Oscar, Alice, Maggie and Carrie. Mr. D. owns 227 acres in Secs. 12 and 13 and 105, in the town of Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis.

WILLIAM DORNBRACK, farmer; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Germany in 1838; came to America in 1865 and settled in the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; then to this town—Rosendale—in the fall of 1879. Was married to Miss Holt, of Mecklenburg, before emigrating to America; her parents, Charles and Reka Holt, came with them to America in 1865.

HUGH EDWARDS, deceased; was a native of Denbighshire, North Wales; was the son of John and Ann Edwards; born April 6, 1796; he spent much of his life on a farm in his native country; received the earlier part of his education in the schools of Denbighshire, but completed his English studies at Chester, England, in 1813; returning then to Wales, he continued the vocation of a farmer there till 1859. April 28, 1826, he was married to Mary Fudks, with whom and his family (in 1859) he immigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm of 260 acres in Secs. 22 and 27, town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., which his son John had bought of Mr. Crossman in 1851 and occupied till the arrival of his parents; this has since been the home of the family; here Mr. Edwards died in October, 1879, leaving a family of five children—Margaret S. (now a teacher in Virginia, John (now at home), Anna C. (also at home), P. Wynn (who enlisted in Co. F., of the 21st W. V. I., Feb. 29, 1864; was with his regiment in all its principal movements till mustered out at Madison, Wis., in June, 1865; was married to Mary Lloyd, of Winnebago Co.; they have one daughter—Emily A., Anna M. (now the wife of Peter Roberts, and lives in the town of Nekoma, Winnebago Co., Wis.).

WILLIAM FREDRICK, farmer, Sec. 36; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Prussia Jan. 8, 1831; is the son of Daniel and Charlotte Fredrick; at the age of 17, he began the wagon-maker's trade in his native country, which he continued there until 1855. In the fall of that year (1855), he was married to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Christian and Anna Boeks, of Prussia, and with her, in 1856, he immigrated to America; they settled on a farm in the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where they lived until 1876; in the spring of that year he bought a farm of 160 acres on Sec. 36, town of Rosendale, where he has since lived and followed farming; in 1879, he purchased eighty acres in Sec. 20, making him now a farm of 240 acres; they have one daughter, Emma. They are members of the Lutheran Church.

WICKLIFF GODDRICH, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Ripon; was born in Somerset Co., Me., in July, 1820, and is the son of Joshua and Betsey Robins Godrich, natives, also of Maine, and who afterward died there; he spent his early life on a farm in his native county; June 1, 1844, started for the West; he stopped a short time in Walworth Co., Wis., and then went to Illinois, where he spent the winter; in the spring of 1845, he returned to Wisconsin, and in June, 1846, procured a farm in Sec. 8, town of Rosendale, which has since been his home; he now has a farm of 280 acres in Secs. 8 and 17, of this town—Rosendale. In June, 1856, he married Miss Julia, daughter of Luther and Lucinda Pierce, then of the town of Rosendale, but natives of Somerset Co., Me.; their children are Rudolph O. and Ora W.

STORRS HALL, M. D., physician and surgeon; is a native of Washington Co., N. Y.; his father, Dr. Ira Hall, was the son of Nathaniel Hall and Mehitabel Stors, born in Lebanon, N. H., Dec. 20, 1772; graduated at Dartmouth College, in 1793; he studied medicine in Granville, N. Y., where he settled in his profession, in which he was very successful and highly esteemed. Dec. 17, 1795, he married Rebecca, the oldest daughter of Peter and Esther (Clark) Parker, of Granville, N. Y.; they had ten sons, three of whom died in infancy, two in early manhood, and three others at the average age of 73 years; he died Sept. 16, 1816, the two older sons were farmers in New York; the third, Edwin Hall, D. D., was a Presbyterian minister, graduated at Middlebury College, Vt., in 1826; taught for five years, and was then settled as Pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Norwalk, Conn., for twenty-three years; was Professor of Christian Theology in the Auburn Theological Seminary, of Auburn, N. Y., for 21 years, and Professor Emeritus of the same for one year he died Sept. 8, 1877; Sidney, the oldest now living, is a farmer in the town of Granville, Washington Co., N. Y., and is unmarried; Dr. Stors, the tenth son, was born in Granville, N. Y., May 11, 1814; graduated at Middlebury College in 1838; taught in various schools and academies in Connecticut for twelve years; during his teaching, it was through his influence that the first Fairfield County Teachers' Association was established, of which he was President, and through his influence in connection with others, at first unknown, but who afterward became acquainted, that the first State Teachers' Association was established, and through their united influence the State Normal of Connecticut was established, of which he was the first Vice President; in consequence of failing health, he gave up teaching, studied medicine, attended lectures at Yale University, came to the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1851, and has since been a successful physician of this village; since his immigration to Wisconsin, he has been connected with the Fond du Lac County Medical Society, which is now merged into the Rock River Medical Society; he has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Ripon College for about twenty years; has been Secretary of the Board and member of the Executive Committee for fifteen years; has been Deacon in the Congregational Church since 1856. September 30, 1840, he was married to Elizabeth, the oldest daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Kellogg) Scribner, of Norwalk, Conn; they have had five children, as follows: Sidney S., who is now a physician at Morrison, Whiteside Co., Ill.; William S., now a farmer in Johnson Co., Tex.; Charles E., now connected with the Reliance Flouring-Mills, of Neenah, Wis.; Elizabeth, who died in infancy; Ira, now in the office of the Reliance Flouring-Mills, of Neenah also. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are members of the Congregational Church.

GIDEON HINKLEY, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Pickett's Station; is the son of Jesse and Eliza Hinkley, with whom he spent his early life on a farm in Androscoggin Co., Maine, where he was born Nov. 2, 1827; when 21 years old, he went to the village of Lisbon, where he lived till 1855; in August, 1851, he was married to Miss Adeline B., daughter of Reuben and Neomi Loring, of Piscataquis Co., Me., with whom and one child he immigrated to Wisconsin in the fall of 1855, and settled on a farm on Sec. 10, town of Rosendale, where he has since lived and followed farming; he now owns a farm of 100 acres; his wife died here in February, 1859, leaving one daughter, Delia E., now the wife of Milton Montgomery, and lives in Dakota. In 1861, he was married to Miss Margaret, daughter of John and Mary Wilson, of Rosendale, who died May 4, 1878, leaving the following children: Mary A., Jesse F., Wilson, Mildred A., Lina B., Chauncey B., Gabriel B.; Feb. 11, 1879, he was married to Ella E., daughter of Asa and Julia West, of Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis.; they have one child, an infant son. Mr. Hinkley's second wife was a member of the Free-Will Baptist Church. His brother, Jesse Hinkley, was in the 20th W. V. I., was killed at Prairie Grove, Ark., Dec. 6, 1862.

THOMAS HUGHES, farmer, Sec. 12; P. O. Nekama; was born in Cardiganshire, South Wales, in November, 1820, and is the son of Hugh and Jane (Owens) Hughes; when 12 years old, he began the tailor's trade, which he continued in his native country till 1848. In 1810, he was married to Miss Hannah, daughter of David and Mary Williams, natives also of Cardiganshire, and in May, 1848, they sailed from Aberystwyth, South Wales, for America, and landing in Quebec in August following, they came thence to Milwaukee, Wis., where he continued his trade one year; in 1849, they removed to the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of forty acres on Sec. 12; built his pioneer shanty, and has since made it his home; his shanty has since been exchanged for a more commodious building, with the improvements of a modern farm residence; his farm of 40 acres has increased to one of 200 acres; here his wife died, April 4, 1872, leaving seven children, having had nine as follows: David (deceased), Hugh (deceased), Mary, now the wife of Richard Robert, and lives in the town of Nekama, Winnebago Co., Wis.; Jane, now at home with father; Annie, now the wife of Rees Davis, and lives in Dodge Co.; Catharine, now the wife of George Montimore, who lives in Calumet Co.; Hugh (deceased), Maggie, now at home; Owen, married and lives on the farm. Mr. Hughes and family are connected with the M. E. Church.

WILLIAM T. INNIS, farmer, Secs. 21 and 22; P. O. West Rosendale; was born in Orange Co., N. Y., in January, 1826. He is the son of William and Elizabeth Innis, natives also of Orange Co., N. Y., with whom he spent his early life on a farm in his native county; in May, 1849, with an older brother, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 22, which his brother entered the previous year; he at once began to improve his farm, and made it his home for two and a half years; he then returned to Orange Co., N. Y., and in March, 1852, was married to Miss Catharine, daughter of Silas and Mary A. Jessup, nee Traphagen, then residents of that county; in the fall of 1852, they came to their home in the town of Rosendale, where he has since followed farming, and where he now owns 110 acres in Secs. 21 and 22; was elected Chairman of the Town Board in 1864, re-elected in 1866; was elected a member of the Wisconsin Assembly from the First Assembly District in 1867; their children are Albert C., now a resident of this town, Rosendale; Florine, now the wife of Fredrick Scofield, Jr., and lives in the town of Springvale; Ida, who is now at home. Mr. and Mrs. Innis are members of the Congregational Church.

RICHARD M. JONES, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Ring; was born in North Wales in April, 1812; came to America in 1847, stopped for a short time in Utica, N. Y.; in 1849, came to Wisconsin and entered a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 2, town of Rosendale, which has since been his home. In July, 1853, he was married to Jemima, daughter of John and Mary Williams, a native of Wales, but then a resident of the town of Utica, Winnebago Co.; their children are Richard M. Jr., and Mary E.

WILLIAM J. JONES, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. Ring; was born in Angleshire, North Wales, June 21, 1815, and spent his early life on a farm in his native county with his parents, Owen and Catharine Jones; when 16 years old, he began the blacksmith's trade, which he continued there till 1849. In December, 1842, he was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Roland and Mary Hughes, and Aug. 16, 1849, they sailed for America, landing at New York; they came thence to the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., which has since been their home; he now owns a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 11, and forty in Sec. 2, and sixty acres in Sec. 1 of this town; their children are Owen, who now lives on the farm on Sec. 11; Henry and Roland, both at home. They are members of the Congregational Church.

CHARLES F. KIMBALL, farmer, Secs. 16 and 17; P. O. Ripon; was born in Newburyport, Mass., May 19, 1811. His father, Ezra Kimball, was a seaman, and at the time of the birth of his son, was in the marine service in the war of 1812, and afterward was taken prisoner by the British sloop Snake; upon the exchange of prisoners, he was employed in a merchant service sent to Norfolk, Va., where he died with yellow fever; his mother, Isabel (Southerland) Kimball, removed with him to York Co., Me., in about six months after his birth; here they lived on a farm till he was about 12 years old, and then moved to Lincoln Co., Me., where he made his home till 1850. In Dec. 31, 1835, he was married to Miss Mercy, daughter of Samuel L. and Lydia (Curate) Whitney, and a native of Lincoln Co.; in October, 1850, they, with a family of two little girls, Christiana, now deceased, and an adopted daughter, Mary J. Durgen, now also deceased, settled at the village of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., as immigrants from Maine; two years later, he bought a farm of 120 acres in Secs. 16 and 17 (of this town), which has since been his home, and where he now enjoys the fruits of his years of toil.

CHARLES LAWSON, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. West Rosendale; is the oldest son of Stephen and Keziah Lawson; was born in Schenectady Co., N. Y., in 1819; in 1836, he went to New York City, and was there engaged in various kinds of business till the fall of 1843; in the following spring he came to Walworth Co., Wis., where he followed farming for nearly four years; in 1846, he bought a farm of 160 acres in the southwest quarter of Sec. 29, town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and in the spring of 1848, settled thereon; he now owns that and thirty acres on the southwest quarter of Sec. 22. Since his residence in Rosendale he has held the office of Town Clerk and Assessor for several terms. Nov. 26, 1848, he was married to Miss Laura, daughter of William Morton, of Walworth Co., Wis., but a native of New York; she died May 18, 1872, leaving one son—Frank, now a resident of this town (Rosendale). Nov. 25, 1873, he was married to Miss Melissa, daughter of John and Calista Adams, then of Ripon, Wis., but emigrants from New York about 1856; they have one daughter—L. Labelle. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson are members of the M. E. Church.

JOHN C. LE FEVRE, M. D. is the son of Rev. J. W. and S. A. Le Fevre, nee Baldwin; was born in New York City in August, 1840; in the fall of 1854, with his parents, he immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm in the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co. His father was a Methodist minister, but after his removal to Wisconsin he devoted some of his time to farming, in connection with his ministerial work. The Doctor received his earlier education in the common schools of the State of New York, but pursued the higher branches of his literary studies at Lockwood Seminary, in Westchester Co., N. Y.; he followed farming for ten years after their settlement in Springvale, Fond du Lac Co. In the fall of 1867, he began the study of medicine with Dr. Bowe, of the village of Rosendale, with whom he continued his studies for four years; he attended one course of lectures at Rush Medical College of Chicago, but graduated at Hughes Medical College of Keokuk, Iowa, in 1876; he then returned to Rosendale and resumed his practice, and is now a successful physician of this vicinity. In June, 1864, he was married to Miss Ethie J., daughter of Dr. Bowe, of Rosendale; they have one son—P. Edward. Mrs. Le Fevre is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Le Fevre is a member of the Masonic Fraternity.

THOMAS B. LOVELL, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Isles of Ely, Cambridgeshire, England, Aug. 28, 1822. His father, John Lovell, died when he was quite young, and without a will, consequently, according to the laws of that country, the oldest son inherited the estate, and he was forced to earn his own living from early boyhood. In 1847, he was married to Miss Sarah A., daughter of John and Alice Edgeley, of Cambridgeshire, and, in 1868, they came to America, and settled on a farm in the town of Fond du Lac, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where they lived till 1871, when he bought a farm of eighty-nine acres in Sec. 13, town of Rosendale, which has since been his home. Their children are John T., now living in the town of Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Caroline, now the wife of William Wells, and lives in England; William, Hannah, Fred and Alice, at home with their parents.

JOSEPH LUCIA, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Ripon; was born in Lower Canada Jan. 12, 1811, and is the son of Paul and Josette Lucia, nee Vereno, natives of Canada, but of French parentage; when 16 years of age, he went to Brilport, Vt., where he followed farm work in that vicinity for twelve years. There, in 1839, he was married to Miss Anna, daughter of Amab and Angette Brayman; they came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm in Sec. 17, town of Rosendale, where he now owns 100 acres. Their children are Lucia, now the wife of Zeb Rambold, of Ripon; Jane, now Mrs. Moses Trembley, of the town of Friendship, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Charissa, now the wife of William Lambert, and lives in Ripon; Olive, now Mrs. J. Clinch, of the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Caroline, now the wife of Joseph Branchand, of Marinett, Wis.; Oved, now Mrs. George Trembley, of Minnesota; Joseph A., who lives in Minnesota, and Della, now in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Lucia are members of the Catholic Church.

CHARLES LYMAN, retired farmer, Rosendale; is a native of Lewis Co., N. Y., born in February, 1820; when 2 years old, with parents, Samuel and Lucy (Talmadge) Lyman, he removed to Oneida Co., N. Y., where they afterward died; he spent most of his early life on a farm in Oneida Co., and, in the spring of 1846, immigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm in Sec. 34, town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., where he followed farming till the fall of 1877; he then retired to the village of Rosendale, and has since lived a more retired life and enjoys the fruits of his years of toil. Sept. 23, 1850, he was married to Miss A. W., daughter of W. and B. A. White, then residents of Rosendale, but immigrants from Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1848; their children are Emma (deceased), Clarence J., now a resident of this town (Rosendale); Minnie (deceased), Bertha M. Mr. and Mrs. Lyman are members of the M. E. Church.

CLINTON MATTESON was born in Shaftsbury, Bennington Co., Vt., Sept. 18, 1820, and died in Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., July 20, 1876; his father, Isaiah Matteson, was a native of Vermont; his mother, Charlotte Harpenling, was born in New Jersey, being an immediate descendant of one of the families who came with Stuyvesant and settled New York City; the Harpending coat-of-arms could be seen in the old Dutch Reformed church of St. John's a few years ago, and, even now, if the church still stands; they owned the site, and a large portion of land surrounding it; Clinton Matteson was the youngest of eight children; his education was obtained at the public school, with a few winters' terms at an academy in the vicinity; his father following his profession (that of a Baptist minister), left the work of a farm, and the responsibility of its management, entirely to him; upon the death of his mother, he sold the farm, and gathering the things together useful to a farmer, as early as 1845, turned his face westward; he came to Milwaukee, Wis., by boat; there, purchasing a horse, he started on horseback for a place called Sanborn's Prairie, in Fond du Lac Co., Wis., hearing of it through a friend who had preceded him; it proved to be a most desirable place to locate; finding wood, water, and tillable land, he preempted and purchased until he had a farm of fine dimensions, as well as a beautiful location, because lying evenly and solidly together, with splendid variety of soil; this farm, with very little change as to boundary lines, comprises the estate of 600 acres left to his children; he built the first frame house in the town of Rosendale; then returned East, and, at Marey, Oneida Co., N. Y., married, in 1847, Caroline E. Potter. Being permanently settled in a place destined to rank first in agricultural industries, Mr. Matteson became identified with all matters of public interest, and gave himself heartily to the work of organizing and developing its interests; thus, in the year 1847, he took an important part in organizing the town and laying out the State road; he was also an active member of the Cemetery Association, locating the grounds and marking out the plots; the laying-out of the State road, owing to the probability of its being an important thoroughfare and laid out under the laws of a new State, developed two parties, who fought hard and bitterly as to what points it should pass; through some illegality, one party lost ground, and the matter ended in laying a very direct route from Waupun to Oshkosh, running the entire front of Mr. Matteson's farm; he was very instrumental in inducing people to settle in that part of the county; indeed, persons would be directed to Clinton Matteson if they were in search of land or location; for the first ten years, he gave his attention quite exclusively to wheat raising, from 1850 to 1856 raising from 3,500 to 4,000 bushels a year; he introduced the best varieties of seed; his first market for this product was Shboygan, fifty-five miles distant, where he was obliged to carry it in loads, taking two or more days for a trip; when the soil began to yield less bountifully of wheat, he turned his attention to sheep-raising; in 1856, Mr. Matteson sent to Vermont for fine and valuable animals,

Geo. A. Russell

BRANDON.

constantly importing finer and better ones to improve his flock. About 1858-59, he became Chairman of the Board of Supervisors; in 1858, he joined the order of Free Masons; from the years 1861 to 1865, he was President of the Agricultural and Mechanical Society of Fond du Lac Co. In 1861, he married the second time, his wife being Eliza Frisbie, a native of Trenton Falls, Oneida Co., N. Y., but at this time a resident of Rosendale. In the spring of 1871, an extension of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac Railroad was contemplated; Mr. M. worked hard and heroically to secure the cooperation of a majority of the voters of Rosendale, riding weeks over almost impassable roads; he met with what at times seemed insurmountable obstacles, and would have proved so to a less determined man; the object was at last gained through his personal exertions, and the road was built in the fall of 1871; the winter was severe, and the subject of this sketch furnished food and shelter to many a man who worked upon a snow-bound train; Mr. Matteson, with his usual foresight, saw the necessity of having a better class of stock, and early set to work purchasing the best breeds, selecting a kind which in his judgment would be received universally as combining the largest number of desirable qualities; he introduced "short-horns," purchasing his first animal in 1865, then adding every year, until, in 1873, he published his first catalogue, and fully established the "Rosendale Herd of Short-Horns;" the study of this branch of industry was followed closely and systematically from the outset to the close of his life—indeed, he gave it the study necessary to a profession; he purchased the American Herd-Books, containing pedigrees, as fast as they were published, also a condensed work of reference to English Herd-Books, thus possessing the encyclopedia of "short-horn literature;" Mr. Matteson was in constant communication with every organization tending to promote the interests of stock-growers, and took several journals devoted to such subjects; his experience as a breeder was acquired by conscientious and careful attention to details, together with extensive knowledge of the business, which rightfully made him one of the most prominent and successful stock-growers in the State; he thus became widely known throughout the Northwest, as a leader in some of the great agricultural and stock-growing interests; he was writing, at the time of his death, a history of some of the most important and fashionable lines of pedigree; he was, undisputably, the first to bring "short-horns" into this part of the State, as there was not a herd in Central or Northern Wisconsin until some years later; he found ready sale for all he had to sell, many of his patrons being strangers from distant localities—from the plains of Kansas and the hills of Colorado; this became the crowning industry and work of his life; he often remarked, "If I could live ten years, what infinitely more satisfactory results might be accomplished," showing that he felt it to be one of the established industries of the world. He was a man of singular decision and energy of character, which made his virtues and foibles appear the more prominent; he was open and honest, both in his enmities and his friendships; after a declaration of hostilities, he would deal his opponents, as long as they could stand or crawl, the heaviest blows without the smallest ceremony—indeed, when he was upon the war-path, his valor was almost romantic, for he regarded not the number of his foes, but was ready to attack, with equal courage and resolution, a whole church or a whole town; but his resentment was not lasting or rancorous, and, for very small concessions, he was always willing to bury the hatchet of war and smoke the calumet of peace; to his friends, he was steadfastly attached, and was ready, with chivalrous promptness, to defend their honor or promote their interest; to his neighbors who understood him, he was uncommonly kind and obliging; one having been his neighbor for twenty-five years, can bear willing testimony to his uniform courteousness during that long period, which makes him feel that in the death of Clinton Matteson, he has lost both a neighbor and a friend. For his family, he provided a pleasant and tasteful home, adding whatever he could to increase their comfort and promote their happiness; he gave to his children a liberal education in the best schools; they were four in number—Malora G. Matteson (now the wife of John R. Patty, of Fond du Lac, Wis.), and Bela C. (his only son, now carrying on the business), children of his first wife; Minnie and Mabel Matteson, children of his second wife; but three are living now, Minnie, a lovely girl of 15, having died in less than two years after her father. Mr. Matteson possessed a mind of unusual vigor and activity, the predominant traits being a clear comprehension and superior judgment, united to wonderful energy and excellent management; the course of his mental operations were sometimes extraordinary, being almost an actual sight of future developments that seemed to present themselves first to his internal vision long before they came to external view; he was a close reader and observer of character, also possessing a faithful and logical memory, with ability for fine comparison, thus making him an interesting and highly entertaining conversationalist; he had fine taste in discriminating the appropriateness of act or speech, and was keenly alive to what is termed the "fitness of things;" he enjoyed a sentiment exceedingly, if it abounded in force and effect; it was eminently characteristic of him in whatever he undertook, whether in large enterprises or trifling home decorations, to do the best, to get the best—no medium ground satisfied him. Mr. Matteson was no politician; no one ever visited his home but felt gratified with his open-heartedness and genial hospitality, and thought a man of ability and refinement, his delight was in his fields and among his herds, rather than in public life; he was wholly free from hypocrisy and deceit, and would often own to his friends his failures and shortcomings, both as a man and a Christian; he was a man with the weaknesses derived from humanity, with the strength that we inherit from the soul. Never in the annals of this portion of our State has a private citizen received so marked a token of respect, for a thousand people were present to show their esteem for the dead; it was a most befitting tribute, that nearly three hundred carriages followed the remains to the grave, where the world closed forever upon the mortal part of one whom his friends loved and his bitterest enemies respected—a man who never let pass unimproved an opportunity to do a generous and charitable act, and whose faults even "leaned to virtue's side."

NATHAN W. MOON, farmer, Sec. 25; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Essex Co., N. Y., in August, 1827; his father, Jesse Moon, was a native of New England; followed milling, blacksmithing and millwright's trade, and also practiced medicine in Essex Co., N. Y.; his mother, Rebecca Castle, was also born in New England. Nathan W. spent most of his time on a farm in his native county, and, in 1850, came to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm on Sec. 25, town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., in the spring of 1857; he now owns 200 acres. March 5, 1855, he was married to Miss Ann, daughter of Michael and Ann Leonard, then living in the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., but a native of Ireland; their children are Emma (now the wife of William T. Reed, and lives in the town of Lamartine), Jesse N., William H., John L. and Carrie M. Mr. Moon was Town Treasurer for two terms and member of the Town Board for two or three terms.

GEORGE MURRAY (deceased) was born on Prince Edward's Island in June, 1791, and was the son of William and Margaret Murray; he spent most of his early life at farming and lumbering, and when quite a young man learned the ship-builder's trade, at which he worked during the winters. In 1830, he was married to Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, nee Ramsey, a daughter of Malcolm Ramsey, of Prince Edward's Island; in 1844, they removed to McHenry Co., Ill., where he devoted his time to farming for the next ten years; in November, 1854, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and, in the following spring, settled on a farm on Sec. 23, town of Rosendale, where he died in December, 1855, leaving a widow, who died in March, 1875, and eight children—John, now in New Brunswick; Catharine, now the wife of N. McFarland, and lives on Prince Edward's Island; Elizabeth, now Mrs. Joseph Spraug, and lives in Minnesota; Mary A., now the wife of O. T. Lewis, of Fond du Lac; Jane, now the wife of H. Scofield, and lives in Minnesota; Margaret, now Mrs. Bushnell Dodd, of this town (Rosendale); Ann, who died in the spring of 1857; Theophanus, who married Miss Surrelda, daughter of Benjamin and Caroline Bonnett, and lives on the homestead farm of 150 acres. They are members of the M. E. Church; his post office is Rosendale.

JOSHUA PHILLIPS (deceased) was born in Cardiganshire, South Wales, in 1799, and was the son of John and Ann Phillips; he followed farming in his native county, and was married to Margaret Evans about 1820; he left his family in Wales, and came to seek a home in America about 1843, stopped first in the State of New York, and, about 1850, came to Wisconsin and settled on a farm of 156 acres, on Sec. 12, town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; here his family joined him in 1856; his wife died on the farm in the summer of 1866, and he in the town of Nekania, Winnebago Co., Wis., in September, 1878; their children are Ellen, now the wife of David Price, and lives in the town of Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis.; Ann, now Mrs. Oriel, and lives in Wales; Sarah, deceased; Eliza, now Mrs. John Thomas, of Utica, Winnebago Co.; John, who was married to Sarah, daughter of William and Martha Thomas, July 1, 1861; they have six children; Julia G., now the wife of Samuel R. James; Etta, deceased; Hattie, deceased; Josephine Elmer, deceased; Sidney. Mr. Phillips owns a farm of 200 acres in Secs. 11 and 15, and 156 acres in Sec. 12; his brother David now lives in the town of Utica, Winnebago Co.; his sister Martha, now Mrs. William Price, lives in Utica also. They are connected with the Baptist Church.

HIRAM QUMBY, farmer, Secs. 8 and 9; P. O. Pickett's Station; is a native of Hillsboro Co., N. H.; son of David and Elizabeth (Kittredge) Quimby, born May 29, 1806; his mother was a descendant of the Kittredge family of New Hampshire, among whom were many eminent surgeons; his father was a miller, and with him he worked at the trade much of the time in his native State; he was, however, connected with a lumbering company there for a time; in 1850, he left his home in New Hampshire, and came to Wisconsin and settled on a farm on Secs. 8 and 9, town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., where he now has 130 acres. In 1836, he was married to Miss Louisa, daughter of Benjamin Winslow, of Goffstown, Hillsboro Co., N. H.; their children are Louisa, now the wife of Patrick Rock, and lives in this town (Rosendale); Hiram M. and Byron B.

WILLIAM B. RASEY, retired farmer, Rosendale; was born in the town of Peru, Clinton Co., N. Y., Dec. 15, 1801; he is the son of John and Rachel Rasey; his father was a native of Rhode Island, but his mother of New York; he was brought up as a farmer in his native State, and Feb. 26, 1826, was married to Nancy, a daughter of Samuel and Olive Hale, of Washington Co., N. Y.; in the fall of 1847, they, with a family of four children, immigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm in the town of Lamartine, where he followed farming till July, 1875; disposing of his farm at that time, he removed to the village of Rosendale, where he has since lived a more retired life. Their children are Samuel, who now lives in the town of Rosendale; Sarah J., now the wife of Leander Knapp, and lives at Island Lake, Lyon Co., Minn.; Olive H., now the wife of L. W. Bowen, and lives in St. James, Watonwan Co., Minn.; Ed Z., lives also in Watonwan Co., Minn. Mr. and Mrs. Rasey are members of the M. E. Church.

THOMAS ROBERTS (deceased) was born in South Wales Dec. 15, 1815, and was the son of James and Mary Roberts; he was employed in the iron mines till 1842, and then came to America, and was employed in the coal mines at Tallmadge, Ohio, for eight years; in 1850, he came to the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; settled on a farm in Sec. 2, where he followed farming and owned a farm of 200 acres at the time of his death, Feb. 29, 1876. In November, 1839, he was married to Elizabeth, daughter of James and Elizabeth Stone, also of South Wales; their children are Rachel, now the wife of Joel Morgan, and lives in Nekama; Elizabeth, now Mrs. Wm. Jones, of Dakota; Daniel, now in Utica, Winnebago Co.; James, of this town (Rosendale); Mary and Maggie, at home, and an adopted son, William. Mr. Roberts and family belong to the Congregational Church.

JAMES W. SANDERS, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Ripon; is the oldest son of James Sanders, a native of Connecticut, and Anna (Willey) Sanders, a native of New York; he was born in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Sept. 8, 1824, and spent his early life there on a farm; at the age of 17, he entered upon an apprenticeship at the blacksmith's trade in his native county, and afterward followed the trade there till 1845, immigrating thence to McHenry Co., Ill., where he continued the trade for one year; in April, 1846, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and pre-empted a farm of 160 acres on Sec. 6, town of Rosendale, built his pioneer shanty thereon, and has since devoted most of his time to agriculture; his shanty has since been exchanged for a commodious home with the improvements of a modern farm residence, and he now has 120 acres of land in that section. His parents removed to Wisconsin in 1850, and settled in Waushara Co., where his mother died June 21, 1862, at the age of 61 years; his father afterward died in Winnebago Co., Wis., Nov. 10, 1876, at the age of 78 years. Mr. Sanders has been Chairman of the Town Board of Rosendale for three terms. In October, 1847, he was married to Miss Nancy, daughter of Christopher and Joannah (Lambert) Grant, and a native of Virginia, but then a resident of this town (Rosendale); their children are James C., now living at Brown's Grove, Pawnee Co., Kan.; Edwin A., who also lives at Brown's Grove, Kan.; Amelia H., now at home; Charles H., of Oshkosh, Wis.; Dennis E., now at home. Mrs. Sanders is a member of the Seventh Day Advent Church.

JOSEPH SCRIBNER, Sr., (deceased), was born in Norwalk, Fairfield Co., Conn., Oct. 30, 1796; his father, Enoch Scribner, was also a native of Norwalk; born Aug. 29, 1750, and belonged to the long line of Scribners, beginning with Mathew, who settled there as early as 1710; his mother, Betsey Benedict, was also born in that county. Joseph, the subject of this sketch, spent much of his early life on a farm in his native county, as many of his ancestors had done. In 1815, he was married to Sarah, daughter of Jarvis and Mercy Kellogg, nee Sellack, also farmers of Fairfield Co.; four sons and three daughters composed their family, as follows: William, born in Connecticut, in December, 1815; married Mary E., daughter of Nathaniel L. and Maria Hill, nee Wakeman, of Fairfield Co., Sept. 25, 1839; immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in the fall of 1849, and settled in the town of Rosendale, where his wife died Jan. 28, 1876, leaving the following children—Mary E., now the wife of T. Cooper Hill, of this village (Rosendale); Julia, now Mrs. Joseph Mabee, and lives in Tarrytown, N. Y.; William H., who now lives at Russell, Russell Co., Kan.; John W., of the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; Ellen M.; Charles H. and Eliza R., who are now at home. Feb. 20, 1877, he was married to Miss Maria E., daughter of Adam and Eliza Vandenberg, a native of New York City, but immigrated to this county, with her mother, in June, 1857. The other members of Mr. Joseph Scribner's family are Martha, now the wife of Dr. Storrs Hall, of this village (Rosendale); Enoch, of Eldorado Mills, Fond du Lac Co.; Joseph, of the town of Springvale; James K., also of Eldorado Mills; Harriet, now the wife of John Cooley, and lives in the village of Rosendale. Mr. Scribner removed to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1858, and settled on a farm on Sec. 34, town of Rosendale, where he died in October, 1868. His wife now lives with her daughter, Mrs. Cooley.

ELISHA C. STEWART, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Ripon; was born in Oswego Co., N. Y., in November, 1827; when quite young, he with parents, John and Martha Stewart, removed to Madison, Co., N. Y., and, at the age of 14, to McHenry Co., Ill.; four years later (1846), with them, immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on Sec. 17, town of Rosendale, where they afterward died, and where he has since reside. In November, 1851, he was married to Lucy J., daughter of Loren A., and Phebe Rice, early settlers of this town (Rosendale), she died April 29, 1859, leaving three children, as follows—Charles L., now of Ida Co., Iowa; Edward C., also of Ida Co., Iowa; Alice I., who is now at home. In 1861, he was married to Miss M. C., daughter of Fredrick and Charlotte Klampee; they have two children—Mary J. and Willington. Mr. Stewart has been Chairman of the Town Board for three terms. Himself and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

JAMES H. SWANEY, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. West Rosendale; was born in Belknap Co., N. H., Feb. 4, 1829; his parents, John and Nancy Swaney, were also natives of New Hampshire; he spent the first seventeen years of his life on a farm in his native county, and then became employed in the spinning department of the cotton works at Lowell, Mass., where he remained twelve years. Nov. 17, 1853, he was married to Georgiana, daughter of Mark and Eliza L. Bailey, of Lowell, but a native of Greenfield, N. H.; in the fall of 1857, they came to the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he at once began the carpenter's trade, and has continued the same much of the time since; in the fall of 1863, he bought a farm of eighty acres, on Sec. 9, and removed to it in 1864, where he has also carried on farming; they have four children—Georgia E., Mornetta, Katie E. and Willie. Mr. Swaney has been Justice of the Peace for five or six terms.

JAMES THOMPSON, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Rosendale; was born in County Armagh, Ireland, in June, 1818, and is the son of Joseph and Margaret Thompson. At the age of 16, he was apprenticed to the weaver's trade in his native town (Kilealm) which he continued there three years; in the spring of 1838, he sailed for America, and landed at Quebec; in June, he settled in Dexter, Jefferson Co., N. Y., where his parents afterward joined him and made that their home till their deaths; he soon became employed in the woolen mills of Dexter, and for nine years was overseer of the coloring-room; in 1848, he bought a small farm near Dexter, and afterward followed farming there till 1856; disposing of his interests there at that time, he immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm on Sec. 13, town of Rosendale, where he now owns 120 acres. In October, 1845, he was married to Miss Jane, daughter of James and Bettie E. (Taylor) McMullin, natives of County Longford, Ireland, but an immigrant to America in 1839, and settled in Watertown, N. Y.; their children are Jennie, now deceased; Joseph, deceased; Edmund J., deceased; Elva L. and George A., now at home with his parents. They are members of the Episcopal Church.

HENRY C. WARD, retired, Rosendale; was born in Rutland Co., Vt., May 3, 1820. His parents, Lorenzo and Abigail Ward, were also natives of Vermont. He passed his early life on a farm in his native State, and in the spring of 1845, came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and early in May of that year, he entered the first land in the town of Rosendale, on Sec. 36, it being the day after Mr. Sanborn, the first settler of Rosendale, had made his claim; living on Sec. 36 one and a half years, he then moved to West Rosendale, where he continued farming until 1874; at that time he moved to the city of Ripon, where he has since lived a more retired life. Jan. 17, 1858, he was married to Minerva, daughter of Lyman and Sally Bradley, a native of Oswego Co., N. Y.; their children are Lottie, Lucy, Myra and Carrie. They attend the Congregational Church.

SAMUEL L. WHITNEY, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. West Rosendale, is a native of Androscoggin Co., Me.; born Nov. 29, 1820, and is the son of Samuel and Lydia (Curate) Whitney. His grandfather, Benjamin Whitney, was a native of England, and with six brothers immigrated to America, and landed at Cape Cod before the French and Indian war, the others afterward were scattered over Massachusetts, New York and other States, but he settled as a pioneer at Lisbon Falls, Me.; two of his brothers, Abram and Isaac, were soldiers in the Revolution. At New Meadows, Me., before the close of the French and Indian war, he was married to Meroy Hinkley, and they had a family of twelve children, the eldest two of whom were also soldiers in the Revolution; the youngest, Samuel, and the father of Samuel L., was born at Lisbon in 1774; followed lumbering and farming for a livelihood, and was married to Lydia Curate in 1801, the second daughter of Stephen Curate, who came from France to Boston, Mass., as early as 1771, and married Martha Herr in 1774; they had three children—of whom Lydia, the second, was born in 1776; Samuel, with his wife, settled at Lisbon, Me., where they raised a family of seven children, and afterward died there; Samuel L., the youngest of the family and subject of this sketch, was brought up at farming and lumbering. Was married to Sarah, daughter of Daniel and Eunice (Tarr) Clark, of Lewiston, Me., Jan. 6, 1846; they came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1849, and in 1851 settled on a farm on Sec. 16, town of Rosendale, which has since been his home; from 1849 to 1856 he was interested with M. S. Sanborn in lumbering in Outagamie Co.; since that time, he has been farming, and he now has a farm of 300 acres in Sec. 16, and forty acres in Sec. 9. Mr. Whitney has been a member of the Town Board two terms, and was Assessor of the town one term; their children are Harriet, wife of Gilbert F. Wilson, of Ripon; Samuel, who owns a farm of 120 acres in this town (Rosendale) on Sec. 16; Ellen J., now home with her parents; Meroy, now Mrs. Frank Burgess, of Sedgwick Co., Kan.; John, at home; Florence, who died at the age of 3 years and 6 months.

FRED ZINZOW, farmer, Sec. 18; P. O. Ripon; was born in Mecklenburg, Germany, Nov. 2, 1834, and is the son of Charles Zinzow; he came to America in July, 1866; he lived for the first five years in the town of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and then removed to the town of Trenton, Dodge Co., Wis., for three years; he then returned to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the town of Alto; in the fall of 1875, he bought his present farm of 80 acres, in Sec. 18, town of Rosendale. In the fall of 1866, he was married to Miss Fredreka, daughter of Adolph and Ernestina Dornbrack, then residents of the town of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; their children are Fred, Augusta, Frank and Ida. Mr. and Mrs. Zinzow are members of the Lutheran Church.

SPRINGVALE TOWNSHIP.

ADAM ACKER, farmer, Sec. 27; P. O. Ladoga; is a native of Athens Co., Ohio, where he was born January 12, 1821; he is the son of John and Elizabeth Acker; in 1847, he immigrated to Michigan, where he followed farm laboring for fourteen years; thence to Clark Co., Ill., for five years; in 1866, he came to the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he has since lived. July 7, 1867, he married Miss Sarah, daughter of Elder William and Mary West, nee Smith, immigrants from Broome Co., N. Y., in the fall of 1847 to this town (Springvale), where her father was the first Close-Communion Baptist minister; her father died here in 1872; her mother, in 1869. They have three children—Charles, Rosa and Rubie M. They are members of the Congregational Church.

WILLIAM J. BARNES, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Steuben Co., N. Y., in March, 1837; his parents, Samuel K. Barnes and Salome Torrence, were natives of Yates Co., N. Y., but later settled in Steuben Co., where they lived on a farm till 1853; then with their family they immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm in the town of Forest, where Mr. Barnes died in 1858. William J., the subject of this sketch, enlisted in Co. H, 14th W. V. I., in 1865; was with his regiment in all its battles and movements till mustered out at Mobile, Oct. 8, 1865; his brother, Milton K., enlisted in the same company in 1861, was with the regiment till the battle of Chico, there was taken sick, brought home and died in July, 1862; Austin T., another brother, was in Co. I, 5th W. V. I., and was killed at Fredericksburg, in April, 1863. After being mustered out of service, William returned to Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and continued farming there till 1868, when he bought a farm of 85 acres, 65 of which are in Sec. 1, town of Springvale, and 20 in Sec. 36, town of Rosendale, which has since been his home. In June, 1864, he was married to Miss Fidelia M., daughter of George and Sarah Chase, then of Forest, but a native of the State of New York; they have three children—Anna M., Minnie B. and Percy L. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Barnes was Town Superintendent of Schools in Forest two years; Clerk three years, and Chairman of the Town Board one year.

HERMAN C. BRINKERHOFF, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Brandon; was born in Seneca Co., N. Y., May 16, 1815, and is the eighth son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Stout) Brinkerhoff; in June, 1847, he came to Wisconsin; entered a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 29, town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., which has since been his home; he was School Superintendent of the town one term, and was member of the Town Board for two or three terms. In June, 1848, he was married to Miss Clarissa, a daughter of Samuel and Chloe Cheney, a native of Vermont. They have one son—Francis, who, in the spring of 1874, married Miss Jane, daughter of Hinkley and Mary Grennell, then living in the town of Waupun; they have two children—Francis H. and Edith E.

WILLIAM A. CHENEY, retired farmer, Sec. 33; P. O. Brandon; was born in Rutland Co., Vt., Dec. 31, 1806; son of Samuel Cheney and Chloe Mauley, natives of Connecticut; his grandfather, Benjamin Cheney, was also a native of Connecticut. William A. spent much of his early life on a farm, and, at the age of 18, began teaching music, which he continued in his native county for ten years. Feb. 14, 1834, he was married to Miss Sophrona, daughter of Abram and Louisa Resseque, nee Robinson, and a native of Hubbardton, Rutland Co., Vt. May 26, 1836, Mr. and Mrs. Cheney started for Wisconsin and reached Chicago in June following; they settled in the town of Waterford, Racine Co., Wis.; in March, 1845, Mr. Cheney, with his brother, came to Fond du Lac Co. and selected their homes; he entered 150 acres in Sec. 33, town of Springvale, and built his pioneer house, which is yet standing; Nov. 3, 1845, his family arrived, and was the first to settle in the town, and have since made their home on the first selected farm. Their children are Jerome B., married and lives at Berlin, Wis.; Mary E., now the wife of Austin Taylor, and lives in this town (Springvale); S. Elizabeth, now Mrs. Cyrenus Hall, and lives in Walworth Co., Wis.; John R., married and lives on the homestead; Sarah J., now the wife of A. P. Fowler, and lives in Iowa; Charles B., married and lives in Berlin, and Chloe L., who lives at home with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Cheney are members of the M. E. Church.

EDWARD CURTIS (deceased) was born in the State of New York March 18, 1808, and spent the first twenty-five years of his life with his parents on a farm. In 1837, he was married to Miss Eveline, daughter of John Eaton, who was born in New York in 1811. In 1848, they, with a family of five children, immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 13, town of Springvale, where he followed farming till his death Feb. 5, 1877; his widow now lives in the village of Rosendale. Their children are Cynthia M., now the wife of John Gilchrist, of Madison, Lake Co., Dak.; John K., who now lives in Steele Co., Minn.; George, deceased; David, of Steele Co., Minn.; Vincent, who, Dec. 17, 1872, married Miss Mattie A., daughter of Stephen and Harriet Crossman, of this town, Springvale (they have two children—Frank and Mary H., and now live on the homestead); he now owns a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 24, town of Springvale; Mary E., who is now the wife of N. Nickerson, of Seward Co., Kan.; Phoebe A., now Mrs. Horatio Elliott, of the town of Rosendale.

JOHN DUFFY, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Brandon; born in Canada East July 29, 1844; son of Martin and Ann (McDonough) Duffy, natives of Ireland, but who immigrated to Canada in 1838, and came to Watertown, Wis., in 1846, where they now reside; John made his home there until 1862; he then came to the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co.; in 1866, he purchased his present farm of 120 acres; he has since bought eighty acres in Sec. 20. Feb. 18, 1868, he married Ellen, daughter of Patriek and Margaret Moran, then residing in the town of Clyman, Dodge Co., Wis.; they have six children living—James P., Margaret J., Ellen, Thomas H., Ann M., John F. and Martin J.; they lost one son, Mr. Duffy and wife are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

DANIEL FENELON (deceased) was born in the County Carlow, Ireland, March 5, 1841, and was the fourth son of John and Margaret (Byrne) Fenelon, with whom he came to America in 1850, and settled in the town of Springvale, Wis., where he resided with his parents until 1863. Married, Jan. 4, 1863, to Mary, daughter of John and Ann (Burns) Gough, of the city of Fond du Lac; she was born in County Wicklow, Ireland; he settled on a farm in Sec. 16, after his marriage, and resided there until his death, Sept. 8, 1871; his widow and three sons now reside on the farm; the sons are John H., William J. and Daniel. They are members of the Catholic Church.

GEORGE GEE, farmer, Secs. 32 and 33; P. O. Brandon; son of Jonathan Gee and Lorany Blue; born in the town of Virgil, Cortland Co., N. Y., July 19, 1816; his grandparents, Daniel and Mary Blue, were natives of Mercer Co., N. J., but removed to the town of Dryden, Tompkins Co., N. Y., in 1802; his grandfather was apprenticed to the cabinet-maker's trade in Princeton, N. J., at the age of 14, at which he served seven years' apprenticeship; he followed his trade much of the time in New York, though for the first few years after his settlement there, he worked at the millwright trade, and built the second mill in Tompkins Co., at Fall Creek; later, he removed to Ohio, where he continued the cabinet-maker's trade for nearly twenty years, and in 1853, he returned to Tompkins Co., where he died the following year. Jonathan, the father of our present subject, was the son of John Gee, who, at the age of 14, was apprenticed to the weaver's trade in the Mohawk Valley, N. Y., during the Revolutionary war; the Tories of that vicinity often met at the weaver's shop, and laid plans for the capture of Washington and his army; this lad's patriotism prompted him to carry the news to the General's camp; he did so, and was kept as an aid-boy by Washington until one day, when the officers were mustering some recruits in service, he formed in the ranks, stood on tiptoe, and was mustered in with them; he served seven years as a soldier, his last siege being at the surrender of Cornwallis; after the close of the war, he was married to Mary Hutchings, and settled in the Wyoming Valley, N. Y., where Jonathan was born, Feb. 15, 1792; in 1797, they removed to Tompkins Co., N. Y., and settled in the town of Virgil; here they raised a family of fifteen children, whose descendants are now scattered over many States; Jonathan was married to Miss Lorany Blue in 1812 or 1813, and was the father of thirteen children, nine of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. George was the second son, and early learned the stonecutter's trade in his native county; in May, 1847, he came to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Springvale, where he now has a farm of eighty-seven acres in Secs. 32 and 33; he also owns 120 acres in the town of Belmont, Portage Co., Wis., and has a house and marble-shop at Stevens Point; he, with his cousin, started the first marble-works at Waupun, Fond du Lac Co. March 1, 1836, he was married to Miss Lydia, a daughter of Rev. Caleb and Phebe Whiting, of Cortland Co., N. Y., who died at her home in Springvale, Nov. 5, 1866. Their children were Thaddeus Adelbert, who was killed in South Carolina, Feb. 3, 1865; Hiram E., who died when 6 months old; Emma E., now the wife of J. H. Ward, and lives in Fillmore Co., Neb.; Geo. E., who died in Springvale when 6 months old; Ella R., deceased; Billington W., married Ella, daughter of Wm. and Mary Huff, dying April 6, 1877—he was again married, to Minnie, daughter of Elijah and Albina P. Hersey, of Dayton, Waupaca Co., Wis., July 20, 1879, and they now live in Springvale; Florence R., now the wife of Oliver N. Lewis, of Dayton, Waupaca Co., Wis.

T. K. GILLETT, farmer, Sec. 14; P. O. Rosendale; is a son of E. J. Gillett, D. D., and Amanda Smith; his father was a native of New York, his mother of Massachusetts; his father was a Presbyterian minister in New York, but is now a Professor in Parsons College, in Iowa. T. K. was born in Chautauqua Co., N. Y., in October, 1835; is the youngest of five children, all of whom came to Wisconsin; he, with one sister, Mrs. Judge McLean, of the city of Fond du Lac, resides in this county; he was educated in the common schools of New York, and, in 1849, he made his first visit to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., but returned to his home in York State after a six months' stay; in February, 1854, he came a second time to Fond du Lac Co., and settled on his father's farm in Sec. 35, town of Fond du Lac, where he followed farming for thirteen years; in 1867, he purchased a farm in Sec. 14, town of Springvale, which has since been his home; he was elected Chairman of the Town Board in 1873, was re-elected in 1874, 1877 and 1879; was nominated for the State Senate in the fall of 1879. Dec. 25, 1859, he was married to Miss Lydia, daughter of Jeremiah and Sylva Cowden, of Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; her mother dying when she was 2 days old, she was raised by her grandmother, till she died, and then by distant relatives; they have had two sons—Alfred E. (deceased), and Willis J.

DANIEL GREENE, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Brandon; was born in Ireland in 1817; son of John and Bridget Greene. About the year 1840, he was married to Eliza, daughter of Thomas and Mary Carey; she was born in Ireland; came to America in 1850, and settled on a farm in Sec. 8; afterward removed to his present location, owning his original farm of 80 acres and also 80 acres in Sec. 9, where he now resides; they have had eight children, the living are—Maria (now Mrs. Wm. Culbertson, of Wine-coune, Wis.); Thomas, Elizabeth, Susan and Daniel; the last four reside at home with their parents; lost one son and a daughter—Bridget and John. Mr. Greene and his family are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church, in this town.

WILLIAM HARNER, farmer, Sec. 24; P. O. Rosendale; was born in the county of Sussex, England, in June, 1811, and is the son of Samuel Harner and Phebe Carey, both of whom died in England; he learned and followed the business of a Thatcher, in his native county. June, 1836, he married Miss Hannah, daughter of Richard and Sarah Mitchell, nee Upton, of Sussex, England; with a family of eight children, in 1848, he immigrated to America, and settled in Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., which has since been his home, where he now has 40 acres in Sec. 24, having sold off much of his land; the children are as follows: William, of Springvale; Charles, of Jackson Co., Wis.; Joseph (deceased); Mary (now Mrs. James Dooley, of Dole's Corners); Harriet (now Mrs. Dewell, of Jackson Co., Wis.); Sarah (now Mrs. Charles Perry, of Minnesota); Peter, of Jackson Co., Wis.; Mrs. Harner died at her home in 1858. In 1861, he married Mrs. Frances Davis, of Fond du Lac, a native of England, who died just ten years after her marriage.

JAMES T. HART, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. Eldorado Mills; is a native of Westchester Co., N. Y.; born Nov. 15, 1811; is the son of Elijah and Mariah Hart, who were also natives of Westchester Co.; he devoted his time to farming in his native county until 1858. In 1833, he was married to Elizabeth P., daughter of Henry and Rachel Storms, also native of Westchester Co., but of Holland descent; in the spring of 1858, with his family—a wife and six children, he emigrated to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm on Sec. 1, town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co.; he now owns a farm of 200 acres, 120 of which is on Sec. 1, Springvale; 40, in Sec. 8, town of Lamartine, and also a timber lot of 40 acres in West Town; their children are Emma, now wife of Isaac B. Lovett, of Westchester Co., N. Y.; Elijah, on farm with his father; Almyra, now wife of William S. Ball, of Springvale; Norman T., of this town; Fannie, wife of Richard Grove, of Springvale; Anna, at home. His oldest daughter is a member of the Dutch Reform Church; the other members of the family are Tom Paineites.

THE HAZEN FAMILY. Among the first settlers of Springvale, were the nine Hazen brothers; sons of John and Polly (Blodgett) Hazen, who were natives of Massachusetts, but early immigrants to Lewis Co., N. Y., where these sons were born; their father dying in 1838, eight of the brothers with their mother came to Wisconsin in July, 1844, and settled in the town of Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., and later in the town of Springvale; they were Sewell V., now living at Winona, Minn., to which place he removed in 1861; Calvin, now a citizen of this town—Springvale; Alonzo, now a resident of Eau Claire Co., Wis.; James, who was perhaps the first physician in the town of Springvale, and who soon after settled in Milwaukee, but was forced on account of ill health to give up his professional work (he died in the city of Fond du Lac, Aug. 13, 1853, leaving a daughter, Nettie, who afterward, with her mother and stepfather, removed to Wyoming, and there was drawn as one of the first twelve lady jurists in the United States); Lorenzo, who preceded the rest of the family in the town of Oakfield a year (he was a member of the Wisconsin Constitutional Convention; he afterward removed to the city of Fond du Lac, thence to the city of Ripon and, finally, to Owatonna, Steele Co., Minn., where he is now County Judge); John, now a citizen of Springvale; Sanford, now a resident of Ripon, Wis.; Chester, who was the second settler of this town—Springvale; Loren E., who returned to New York, and is now a resident of the town of Copenhagen, Lewis Co. Their mother died at her son Calvin's home in Springvale in June, 1856.

CHESTER HAZEN, resides on the southeast quarter of Sec. 34; P. O. Ladoga, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; proprietor of Ladoga, Brandon & Grand Prairie cheese factories, and breeder of pure-blooded Ayrshires; he was born on the 31st of January, 1824, in Copenhagen, Lewis Co., N. Y.; his ancestry are of English origin, and came from England about the middle of the seventeenth century, and settled in Massachusetts, where his great-great-grandfather, Edward Hazen, was born Sept. 10, 1660; his son Benjamin was born in Rowley, Mass., on the 19th day of February, 1694; and his son Edward was born at Groton, Mass., May 2, 1737; and his son, John Hazen, was the father of the subject of this sketch, and was born at Swanzev, N. H., on the 17th of March, 1786, and died Nov. 22, 1838; his wife's maiden name—the mother of Chester—was Polly Blodgett. Eight brothers, including Chester, came West, and landed at Milwaukee on the 2d of July, 1844, and immediately thereafter settled in Fond du Lac Co.; another brother, Lorenzo, had preceded the family, and settled in Oakfield in the fall of 1843; Chester settled first in the township of Oakfield, but sold his claim in the spring of 1845, and bought the farm where he now resides; has a home farm of 240 acres, 80 of which is meadow; he has also a farm of 200 acres in the township of Green Lake, county of Green Lake, where his Grand Prairie Cheese Factory is located; he also owns an improved farm of 320 acres in Cerro Gordo Co., Iowa. He was married, June 8, 1854, to Miss Jennie Atwood, formerly of Vermont; he has had two children—Della M., who was born Oct. 12, 1855, and Bertie, born Oct. 24, 1859, died Aug. 25, 1862. Della was married on the 2d of September, 1879, to William Griffith, of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., Wis. Of the nine Hazen brothers who began Western life in this county, four still live in Fond du Lac Co., namely: Chester, Sewell, John and Sanford; one, a physician, James, died in August, 1853; Calvin lives in Winona, Minn., and Lorenzo is County Judge of Steele Co., Minn., and Alonzo is in Eau Claire Co., Wis., and Loren E. is a physician in his native place, Copenhagen, N. Y. The nine brothers have an aggregate of twenty-six children, and forty-five grandchildren. In early life, Chester learned the trade of molder, and worked at the same for ten years, but his life-work has been farming; he commenced dairying on his Springvale farm in 1859, and that, together with stock-raising, continues to be his business or profession. In 1864, he built and ran the first cheese factory in Wisconsin, and it for eight years was the largest factory in the State. In 1870, he shipped the first carload of cheese that was ever sent to the New York market, by the manufacturer, from Wisconsin. The "Fond du Lac County Dairymen's Association" was organized in 1869, and was the first association of the kind in the State. Mr. Hazen was its first President. The "Wisconsin State Dairymen's Association" was organized in 1871, with Chester Hazen as President, and he was twice re-elected to the same position. He has been actively interested in agricultural enterprises, having been an official ten years in the Fond du Lac County Agricultural Society, and also for six years in the "Northern Wisconsin Agricultural and Mechanical Association, and also four years in the Wisconsin State Agricultural Society. He is President of an association which is running a "co-operative store" at Brandon, Fond du Lac Co. Mr. Hazen is emphatically the pioneer dairyman of Wisconsin; he milks eighty cows this season—1880. He has been practically interested for fully thirty years in securing the best dairy stock, and finally decided to try the Ayrshire, and, in March, 1873, he bought ten pure-blood Ayrshires, and, since that date, he has made a specialty of breeding that stock. He has now sixty head of Ayrshires, and, everything considered, he believes them to combine more good qualities for general purposes than any other breed on the continent. He has been a reliable Republican ever since the organization of the party. He is liberal in his religious views, and is a member of the First Universalist Society of Fond du Lac Co. The social qualities and personal characteristics of this enthusiastic dairyman are too well known to need description in Wisconsin history.

CALVIN HAZEN, farmer, Secs. 35 and 36; P. O. Ladoga; is the son of John and Polly Hazen, nee Blodgett, born in Lewis Co., N. Y., in October, 1811; he spent much of his early life on a farm in his native county. In June, 1838, he was married to Miss Pauline, daughter of Isaac and Persus Brewer, natives of Lewis Co., also; they with a daughter, Irene, and his mother's family, immigrated to Wisconsin in 1844, and arrived in Milwaukee July 2 of that year. Their first settlement was in the town of Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., near the place where the village is now located; two years later he pre-empted 160 acres in Sec. 36, town of Springvale, but through a mistake could only hold eighty acres of it; he removed to Springvale at that time and has since made it his home; he now has a farm of 191 acres, forty acres of which is in Sec. 12, town of Waupun, the rest in Secs. 35 and 36, Springvale. Here his wife died in December, 1851, leaving three children—Irene (now the wife of H. Finch, of Steele Co., Minn.), Jane (now Mrs. George Ballard, of Dodge Co., Minn.), and Edgar, of Cottonwood Co., Minn. In December, 1855, he was married to Miss Meribah, daughter of Russell and Nancy Brown, a native of New York, but an immigrant to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1848; their children are Jason (deceased), Fred C., Hattie L. and Spencer R.

JOHN HAZEN, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Ladoga; is the sixth of the nine sons of John and Polly Hazen; he was born in the town of Denmark, Lewis Co., N. Y., Feb. 19, 1819; he spent his early life with his parents on a farm in his native county, and early acquired the habits of industry and economy which have characterized his life; in the summer of 1844, he, with his wife, mother and seven brothers, immigrants to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Oakfield; in March, 1846, he removed to a farm in Sec. 34, town of Springvale, where he has since lived, and now has 191 acres. In Jefferson Co., N. Y., Oct. 4, 1843, he was married to Miss Melissa, daughter of John W. and Anna Moore, nee Townsend, who came to Wisconsin in 1846, and settled in the town of Springvale, where her mother died June 22, 1860, and her father Aug. 2, 1878, leaving eight children, four of whom now live in Fond du Lac Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Hazen have two children—Anna A. (now Mrs. E. C. Sherwin, of Springvale), and H. Sidney, who was the first child born in this town, Sept. 7, 1847.

CHARLES C. LINDSLEY, farmer, Sec. 12; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Madison Co., N. Y., in March, 1823, and son of Eben and Thankful (Parker) Lindsley, natives of Connecticut, but immigrants to New York in 1810, where our present subject was born; he spent his early life on a farm in his native county; in 1846, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; spent a few weeks in the town of Byron; then returned to Madison Co., New York, where, Jan. 19, 1847, he was married to Miss Olive M., daughter of Solomon and Olive (Thair) Taylor, and in May following came again to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on Sec. 27; built, perhaps, the fourth frame house in that town; five years later, he removed to Sec. 10 of that town; in 1870, they removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he was dealing in real estate for four years; in 1874, he bought a farm of 120 acres in Sec. 12, town of Springvale, and ten acres in the town of Lamartine, and has since followed farming; their children are Addison S., of Fond du Lac; Newton E., Louis M., Vina O. (now the wife of J. H. Scribner, of this town), Flora A., Charles W. and Lillie B. Mr. and Mrs. Lindsley are members of the Baptist Church.

ALFRED MARCHANT, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Rosendale; was born in the county of Kent, England, March 2, 1830; his father, James Marchant, and his mother, Mary A. Skinner, were also natives of that county; in 1834, with his parents he immigrated to America and settled in the town of Rome, Oneida Co., N. Y.; four years later, they removed to the town of Annsville, Oneida Co.; in 1847, with his father and sister, he came to Wisconsin and settled in the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., where his mother and other members of the family afterward joined them; in 1861, he bought a farm of eighty acres on Sec. 4, town of Springvale, which has since been his home. In August, 1858, he was married to Miss Fannie, daughter of Michael and Mary A. Mouran, natives of Ireland, but immigrants to Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1854; they had two children—George and Otis G., both of whom are deceased.

SAMUEL W. MARSH, retired, Sec. 2; P. O. Rosendale; was born in the town of Rochester-Windsor Co., Vt., Sept. 7, 1801; when 3 years old, with his parents, Joseph C. and Susanna Marsh, he removed to Clinton Co., N. Y., where he spent his life on a farm till 1838. In 1825, he was married to Temperance, a daughter of Byron and Temperance Havans, of Clinton Co., N. Y., with whom, in 1838, he removed to La Salle Co., Ill.; three years later, they removed to Racine Co., Wis., and, in 1846, to the town of Metomen, where they settled on a farm and made that their home till 1868; he then bought a farm of 120 acres in Sec. 2, in the town of Springvale, where he has since lived; they have four children—Isaac H., now a practicing physician of Neillsville, Clark Co., Wis., Gurdon (now a carpenter and joiner of the city of Fond du Lac), Canfield (who now owns the farm on which he and his father lives), Caroline (now the wife of M. D. Buell, and lives in Humboldt, Clark Co., Wis.). He was Assessor of the town of Metomen one year. Mr. and Mrs. Marsh are members of the M. E. Church.

JOHN W. MOORE (deceased) was born in New Hampshire, March 24, 1797, and was the son of Theodosius and Hannah Wilson Moore, with whom he removed to Lewis Co., N. Y., when about 16 years old. In 1818, he was married to Miss Anna, daughter of Jonathan and Orange (Fox) Townsend, of Watertown, Jefferson Co., N. Y., with whom he immigrated to Fond du Lac Co. in 1845; their children are Malissa (now the wife of John Hazen, of this town), Mary (now Mrs. Lorenzo Hazen, and lives in Ripon), Martha (now the wife of David Lawrence, and lives in the town of Utica, Winnebago Co., Wis.), Maria (the late Mrs. Abijah Hubbard, now deceased), Marion H. (now Mrs. Bush, and lives on a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 30, in this town; she has two sons—William E. and John C.), John M. (now of Beloit, Kan.), Theodocia (now Mrs. Oscar Willard, of the town of Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co.), Augusta (now Mrs. Alouzo Lockwood, and lives in the town of Metomen), George (now in Fond du Lac City).

GEORGE MONTGOMERY, farmer, Secs. 23 and 24; P. O. Rosendale; is the only son of George Montgomery, Sr., and Margaret Ramsey; was born on Prince Edward's Island Feb. 24, 1826; his father died before he was born, but his mother afterward married again, and with her and his step-father in 1845, he immigrated to De Kalb County, and later, to McHenry Co., Ill.; in November, 1847, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on Sec. 14, town of Springvale, where he lived till 1871; he then traded for 200 acres in Secs. 23 and 24, in the town of Springvale, which has since been his home. In July, 1852, he was married to Miss Mary A., daughter of George and Ann Gould, natives of Staffordshire, England, but immigrants to Wisconsin in 1850; their children are as follows: Eliza A.; Susannah, now Mrs. Elijah Griffith, of Rosendale, Wis.; James D., George D., William D., Fred D., Ida M., Sophia A., Abbie, Mabel D. and Martha M. Mrs. Montgomery is a member of the Congregational Church.

JOHN NEST, farmer, Sec. 28; P. O. Brandon, was born in Mecklenburg, Germany, in January, 1845; his father died when he was only 3 years old, but his mother was long spared him; in 1857, they immigrated to America and settled on a farm of eighty acres, in Sec. 28, town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where his mother afterward died. In 1860, he was married to Fredreka Springbaurn, of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; their children are Ellen, Charles, Martha, Emma, Bertha, Eddie and Alvina. Mr. and Mrs. Nest are members of the Lutheran Church.

THEODORE O'CONNOR, deceased; was a native of Herkimer Co., N. Y.; born in 1810, and was the son of Timothy and Lucy O'Connor; when quite young, with his parents, he removed to Jefferson Co., N. Y., where his father and mother died. In 1832, he was married in Jefferson Co., to Eunice, daughter of Joseph and Milly Dickey; she was born in that county; in June, 1854, with a family of six children, they came to Wisconsin and located on a farm in the town of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co.; seven years later he removed to the town of Rosendale, where he continued farming until 1868; he then purchased a farm on Sec. 10, in Springvale, where he resided until the time of his death, which occurred in November, 1874; the surviving children are as follows: William L., who came to Wisconsin in 1857 (he was elected County Superintendent of schools in 1871, re-elected in 1873 and 1875; has taught in the schools of the county since 1864; he married Alice Bishop, of Rock Co., Wis., April 26, 1879); Lucy, now Mrs. Robert Jenkinson, of Brandon, Wis.; Timothy, a farmer residing in Dodge Co., Minn.; Benjamin F., a farmer of Springvale, Wis.; George B., residing with his mother in this town; Ettie, now Mrs. Wallace Porter, also residing with her mother; the second son, Joseph, died in September, 1874.

EDWARD B. PARSONS, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Rosendale; is the son of Samuel B. and Mary Parsons, natives of Connecticut, but immigrants to Jefferson Co., N. Y., where Edward B. was born July 6, 1831; in 1834, his parents removed to Buffalo, N. Y., where his father was engaged in the grocery business for four years; in July, 1838, they removed to Chicago, Ill., where his father was proprietor of a hotel for three years; in 1841, they removed to Milwaukee and continued the hotel business for about nine months; thence to Belleville, Wis., for one year; from there they went to Summit, Waukesha Co., and continued the same business for a while, and then devoted his time to farming in that county till the spring of 1845, whence, with ox teams, they came as immigrants to the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., and settled on Sec. 2, where they afterward died—father, July 21, 1864, mother, in June, 1871, leaving one daughter and four sons—Mary E., the widow of the late T. G. Burgess, deceased; Samuel H., who now lives in Phillips Co., Kan.; Henry F., now in Sacramento, Cal.; Edward B., who now lives on the homestead, and owns 330 acres of land in Secs. 1 and 2 of Springvale, and Sec. 14, Rosendale, and in Sec. 10, Lamartine, also has 80 acres in St. Croix Co., Wis. He has been a member of the Town Board, and has also been Town Treasurer. June 8, 1862, he was married to Caroline, daughter of Benjamin and Arabella Paddock, early settlers of Neenah, Wis.; their children are Guy S., Elva M., Georgie. His wife is a member of the Congregational Church.

CHARLES R. PENNEY, farmer, Sec. 15; P. O. Rosendale; was born March 10, 1820, in Jefferson Co., N. Y.; son of Eli and Polly Minor Penney; came to Wisconsin in the spring of 1861, and settled on his present farm of 120 acres. Has been Town Assessor for five years. Oct. 15, 1855, he was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Phillip and Catharine (Drummond) Blanchard; she was born in Jefferson Co., N. Y.; they had two children—Clement M. and George E., both deceased.

WILLIAM PINCH, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. West Rosendale; is a native of the county of Cornwall, England; born in December, 1815; he is the son of John and Mary Pinch, who were also natives of County Cornwall; when 12 years old, he began the malting business, which he followed in England till 24 years of age. In 1810, he was married to Miss Jane, daughter of William and Elizabeth Hamley, and afterward superintended a farm for a minister of the Church of England for one and one-half years; after the death of the minister, in 1842, he took charge of a farm for Capt. Collins, R. N., for four years, after which he followed the butcher's trade in England till 1852; they came thence to America, and arrived at the village of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., June 28, 1852; he lived in the town of Rosendale till the spring of 1854, when he bought a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 4, town of Springvale, which has since been his home; he now also owns eighty acres in Sec. 8 of this town. Their children are Alfred, who lives in this town; George W., of Springvale; Naomi E., now at home; John W., now a Congregational minister at Escanaba, Mich.; Pearce, now in Massachusetts; Mary J., at home. Mr. and Mrs. Pinch are members of the Congregational Church. He has been a member of the Town Board for one term.

FOSDIC C. PROUTY, farmer, Secs. 10 and 15; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Windham Co., Vt., April 8, 1828; son of Amos and Bathsheba (Wallace) Prouty; came to the town of Springvale, Wis., in April, 1847, with his parents; they settled on the farm where he now resides. Married, Jan. 7, 1857, Catharine M., daughter of Philip and Catharine Blanchard; she is a native of Jefferson Co., N. Y., residing in Springvale at the time of her marriage; they have had ten children; the living are Louis K., Arthur D., Dee A., Levi B., Marian A. and an infant not named; they have lost four children—Clark F., Clarence, Willie F. and Nellie S. Mr. Prouty owns a farm of 120 acres on Sec. 10, and eighty acres on Sec. 15; was Town Treasurer one term.

JOHN S. PYGALL, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Rosendale; was born in the county of Norfolk, Eng., Dec. 12, 1834; came with his parents, Thomas and Sarah Pygall, to America in 1838, and settled in Oneida Co., N. Y., where his father worked at the tailor's trade, till 1844; they then removed to Detroit, Mich., where, in November, 1848, his father enlisted in the 1st Mich. V. L., as a soldier in the war with Mexico, and died at Vera Cruz in June, 1849. John S. went as a Captain's waiter in his father's regiment, but when they reached Mexico he enlisted as a soldier and served with his regiment till the close of the war. He then returned to Michigan and made that his home till 1853, and then came to the town of Springvale, which has since been his home. In 1862, he enlisted in Co. H, 32d W. V. I., under Col. J. Howe; was with his regiment from Atlanta to Washington; was then appointed Hospital Steward; was mustered out of service at Milwaukee in June, 1865; returned to his home and, in the same year, bought a farm in Sec. 4, where he now has 120 acres. In 1854, he was married to Harriet, daughter of James and Mary Marchant, of Springvale, but a native of England; she died in the fall of 1868, leaving one son—William H. In 1875, he was married to Anna, daughter of Conrad and Regula Butcher, of this town, Springvale; they have two daughters—Carrie and Hattie.

GEORGE W. ROGERS, farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Ladoga; is a native of Essex Co., N. Y., born in December, 1837, and is the son of Daniel Rogers and Olive Nichols, early immigrants to Essex Co., N. Y., where his father died in 1845; in 1847, with his mother and family, he removed to Wisconsin and settled on Sec. 38, town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., where his mother died in the winter of 1858. At Sioux City, Iowa, in 1861, he enlisted in Co. I, 7th Iowa V. C., and was engaged mostly in frontier service during his term of enlistment; he was mustered out of service at Sioux City, Iowa, in 1863. He soon returned to his home in Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and, in the fall of 1865, bought a farm of ninety acres, in Sec. 35, town of Springvale, where he has since followed farming. In February, 1868, he was married to Miss Mary E., daughter of James J. and Charlotte Davis, then a resident of the town of Wau-pun, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., but a native of Pennsylvania; their children are Alice O., Mary C. and George E. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are members of the Methodist Church.

FREDRICK SCOFIELD, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Rosendale; was born in the town of Hadley, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Nov. 21, 1821; he is the son of Miner and Lydia (Sherman) Scofield, natives of Connecticut, but both immigrants to New York when young; they were married in March, 1821, and raised a family of ten children, one of whom died in New York in 1844; the others afterward came to Wisconsin; two now live in the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co. Fredrick, the oldest son, came to Wisconsin and settled in the town of Johnstown, Rock Co., in May, 1845; Nov. 24 following, he came to the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., and settled on Sec. 3, where he now owns a farm of eighty acres. Dec. 20, 1846, he was married to Miss Calista, a daughter of Abel and Laura (Cushman) Bemis; her mother dying when she was only 8 years old, she was adopted by Reuben and Lucy Tarr, and made her home with them till April, 1846, when she came to Wisconsin; they have had eight children, as follows: Katie, the late wife of Rufus Oliver, of Waupun (deceased); Fredrick, Jr., now of this town—Springvale; Edward L., now in Ripon; Ellie M., now at home with her parents; William F., deceased; Miner, deceased; Ida E., deceased; Benjamin F., deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Scofield are members of the Congregational Church.

JOSEPH SCRIBNER, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Rosendale; was born in Fairfield Co., Conn., Dec. 13, 1824, and is the son of Joseph Scribner and Sarah Kellogg, a descendant of the well-known Kellogg family of that State; his parents were both natives of Fairfield Co., Conn.; Joseph is the fourth of seven children, six of whom live in Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; one, with his father, is deceased; he spent his life on a farm in his native county until 23 years of age; Dec. 16, 1847, he, in company with B. Pinkney, started for Wisconsin, and reached the town of Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., in February, 1848; he entered 160 acres of land in Secs. 31 and 32 of that town, but devoted his attention to merchandising in the village of Rosendale, and afterward disposed of his real estate in that town; in January, 1852, he devoted and exchanged his stock of goods for a farm of 85 acres, in Sec. 3, town of Springvale, where he has since his time to farming, though he has been closely connected with everything pertaining to interests of the village of Rosendale. In February, 1851, he was married to Miss Olive, daughter of Worthy and Bulah A. White, then residents of the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., but emigrants from Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1849; their children are Josephine (now the wife of William W. Stuart, of Montana, lately of Ripon, Wis.); Fred H., Angelletta (now the wife of John W. Scribner, of Rosendale), and Adelbert E. Mr. and Mrs. Scribner are members of the Congregational Church of Rosendale.

CHARLES H. SEYMOUR, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Rosendale; was born Nov. 13, 1829; in the town of Weston, Fairfield Co., Conn.; son of Charles and Ann Foote Seymour; when 8 years of age, he removed to Westport, Conn., where he was educated, and remained most of the time until 1852, when he removed to Norwalk, Conn., where he had previously been employed as a clerk for about three years, and also taught school for about eighteen months; resided in Norwalk until 1854, when he came to Wisconsin and located in the village of Rosendale, where he lived until August, 1855, when he purchased the farm where he now resides; his parents joined him here in September of the same year. In September, 1857, he married Cornelia S., daughter of Anson M. and Cornelia Miller; she was born in Bedford, Westchester Co., N. Y.; they have had one daughter—Cornelia A., who died at the age of 7 years. Mr. S. has served as Town Clerk — years; has been Secretary of the Rosendale Insurance Co., since its organization. Mr. and Mrs. S. are members of the Congregational Church.

HEMAN C. SHERWIN, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Ladoga; the subject of our present sketch is a native of Genesee Co., N. Y., and is the third son of Bildad and Philinda Sherwin, natives of Vermont, but early immigrants to Genesee Co., N. Y., where H. C. was born Sept. 4, 1820; in 1836, he, with parents, removed to Steuben Co., Ind., where his father and mother afterward died; in 1840, he returned to his native county, and followed the carpenter and joiner's trade for ten years. Here, Jan. 1, 1845, he was married to Sarah D., daughter of James and Maria B. Coddington, natives of New York, but of Holland descent; in 1850, they, with a family of three children, immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled in Appleton, where he continued his trade for five years; he then removed to Stevens Point, Portage Co., Wis., where he began the life of a farmer, which he has followed most of the time since. In 1863, he was elected Treasurer of Portage Co., in which capacity he served for two years; in 1865, he disposed of his interests in that county, and removed to the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he now has a farm of 170 acres, in Secs. 22, 26 and 27; in 1877, he was elected Master of the State Grange, to fill a vacancy of a year, and, at the expiration of this term, he was again elected to the position which he had so worthily filled; his second term expired Jan. 25, 1880. During his official term, he visited all the counties in the State, giving lectures both before the Grangers and in public. Their children are as follows—Edwin C., Frank, Addie E.—now Mrs. M. H. Pinkerton of this town; they attend the M. E. Church.

GEORGE W. SIZER, P. O. Rosendale; is a native of Oneida Co., N. Y., where he was born Oct. 14, 1820; his parents, Jabez and Lucy B. Sizer, were natives of Connecticut, but immigrated to Oneida Co., N. Y., in 1805, where his father enlisted as a soldier in the war of 1812. George spent most of his time on his father's farm till the panic of 1837 swept it from them; he then rented a farm for three years, after which he tried hotel-keeping for a year, then blacksmithing for one year; in May 1846, he came to the Territory of Wisconsin, with the determination to make farming his vocation, unless it forced him to buy his bread. Habits of industry acquired in early life, stimulated by a determination to regain in the West what adverse circumstances had swept from him in the East, urged him at once to secure a home; he entered eighty acres of land in Sec. 23, town of Springvale, but having little or no means, he could make no improvements till he could earn some money with which to improve; carefully guarding his little nucleus of eighty acres, it has now grown to a farm of 280 acres, in Sec. 23 and 26, and he also has fifty-seven acres in Sec. 1, town of Laramie. In April, 1848, he married Miss Fannie A., daughter of John A. and Fannie Newman, of Oneida Co., N. Y., but natives of Massachusetts; her mother now resides with them; their children are Georgiana, Jabez W.; Helen, now Mrs. George A. Rogers, of Hudson, St. Croix Co., Wis.; George W., Jr., Charles H., Ada D., Mary L., Frank S., Elmer M. A., Lucy B. and Louis J.

MARTIN SKEELS, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. West Rosendale; is the son of William and Ann Skeels; born in the town of Whitehall, Washington Co., N. Y., Aug. 21, 1814; his father was a native of Connecticut, and his mother of Londonderry, N. H., but of Scotch descent. Mr. Skeels has devoted his life to farming. In 1838, he was married to Mrs. Sophia, widow of Grove Wright, and a daughter of Thomas Richardson, then of Washington Co., N. Y.; in June, 1849, they came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm on Sec. 4, town of Springvale, which he had purchased the previous year. He now owns a farm of 240 acres in that section; they had two children—James W., who enlisted in Co. B, 1st W. V. C. (was taken prisoner; was in Andersonville Prison; was paroled and sent North, and is supposed to have died on board the steamer during the trip); Lucia S., the late Mrs. Henry Porter, who died April, 1865. Mrs. Skeels died at her residence Feb. 28, 1877, aged 74 years. Mr. S. is a member of the Congregational Church.

LEVI F. SKINNER, farmer, Sec. 33; P. O. Brandon; is the only son of Aaron W. Skinner and Sally S. Farnworth, natives of Massachusetts, but immigrants to Erie Co., N. Y., in 1818, where he was born in December, 1830; he was brought up as a farmer boy in his native county, and, in December, 1855, was married to Miss Phelinda, daughter of Amos and Aley (Chace) Whiting, of Erie Co., N. Y., she being the youngest child and only daughter of a family of seven children; they soon immigrated to Wisconsin and settled first on Sec. 3, in the town of Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., which was their home till 1861; he then bought a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 33, town of Springvale, which has since been their home; he also has eighty acres in Sec. 28, and forty-eight acres in Sec. 32 of this town—Springvale. Their children are an infant son (deceased), Minnie L. (now a student at Oshkosh), Mary A., Frank (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. S. are members of the Free-Will Baptist Church. Mr. S. has been a member of the Town Board for two terms.

NATHAN A. TINKHAM, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Lidoga; is a son of Orin and Joanna Tinkham, natives of Vermont, but immigrants to Genesee Co., N. Y., in 1812, where his father enlisted as a soldier in the second war with England. Nathan A., our present subject, was born in Genesee Co., N. Y., in 1824, and spent his life there on a farm till 1846; he then with parents came to Kenosha, Wis., thence to Green Lake Co., where he lived till 1866, and where his father died in 1861, and mother in 1868. In 1863, he married Miss Maria, daughter of John and Mary Hogbin, emigrants from England to Fond du Lac Co. in 1855; in 1866, he purchased a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 22, town of Springvale, where he has since followed farming; they have had four children, namely, Effie J., Alfred C. (deceased), Frank E. and Edith M. They are members of the Congregational Church.

JOHN WATSON, farmer, Sec. 27; 85 acres; P. O. Brandon; is a native of Roxburghshire, Scotland, and is the son of James Watson and Isabel Douglas, born in September, 1820. In August, 1859, he was married to Agnes, daughter of John McDonald and Margaret Turnbull, of Roxburghshire, Scotland, who unfortunately lost her mother when quite young; in May, 1862, he left his family in Scotland and sailed for America; landing in Quebec, he came direct to village of Brandon, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where his brother then lived; he worked for the farmers in that vicinity till 1865, when his wife and son, James W., who is now a teacher in this town, joined him in his Western home; they rented a place for one year, and, in 1866, he bought a farm of 85 acres in Sec. 27, town of Springvale, which has since been his home. Mr. and Mrs. Watson are members of the Congregational Church.

HENRY WHEELER, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Rosendale; is a native of Gloucestershire, England, born Nov. 9, 1820; he is the son of Richard and Mary Wheeler, with whom he emigrated to America in 1832, and settled in Oneida Co., N. Y.; in 1844, he left his father's home in New York and came to Waukesha Co., Wis., and in the following year his parents settled there also; in the spring of 1846, they removed to the town of Springvale, then Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he and his father entered 160 acres of land, 80 acres each, in Sec. 2, which has since been his home, and where his parents afterward died. In May, 1843, he married Miss Matilda, daughter of James and Mary Merchant, emigrants from England to the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where they have since died; they have five children—Harriet, now the wife of Charles Clark, of the city of Fond du Lac; George T., who now lives in this town—Springvale; Sallie, now Mrs. Willie Dood, of Dakota; Charles H., William S. They attend the Episcopal Church.

F. M. WHEELER, farmer, and senior member of firm of F. M. Wheeler & Co., lumber dealers; P. O. Brandon; is a native of Vermont; came West in 1855, and settled in township of Springvale, on the farm he now occupies, which comprises 216 acres of first-class land, all under good state of cultivation; common report styles his the premium farm; he has a fine flock of Merino sheep; raised from the Hammond stock, which he brought from Vermont; has also raised several fine Morgan horses; he still superintends his farm, but since 1873, has carried on an extensive business in the sale of lumber, sash, doors, etc. He has been a member of General Assembly once, and Supervisor four times. In 1849, he was married to Miss Susan Pray, of Saalsbury, Vt.; they have two children now living—Edward M. and George F.; their only daughter, Louisa E., died at the age of 21. He is a stalwart Republican, and is a public-spirited citizen. Although not a church member, he is a liberal promoter of the best elements of society.

A. CHAPIN WHITING, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Ladoga. This pioneer of Fond du Lac Co. was born in the town of Boston, Erie Co., N. Y., May 20, 1825; his parents, Amos Whiting and Alsey Chace, were natives of Massachusetts, but early settlers of Erie Co., N. Y.; he received his early education in the district schools of his native county, after which he attended an academy for a short time; in 1844 he came to the then new Territory of Wisconsin, to try his fortune as a farmer within its boundaries; his first location was at Johnstown, Rock Co., whither his father had immigrated two years before; passing through Fond du Lac Co., on his way to Canada in 1846, he made some investments in the town of Springvale, to which, after spending the winter at teaching in Canada West, he returned and settled on his farm of 80 acres in Sec. 22, which has since been his home and where he now has 320 acres. Oct. 9, 1850, he married Miss Valucia V., daughter of Joseph and Lucinda B. Williams, nee Blockmar, and a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, her father being his great-grandson; she was born in Erie Co., N. Y., May 20, 1826, where they were married in 1850, as above stated; they at once came to their Western home in Fond du Lac Co., and afterward her father joined them and made his home till his death in 1870, at the age of 82 years, leaving her as the only one of the family living—her mother and others having died in the East. Mr. and Mrs. Whiting have had eight children, all of whom except the youngest have been teachers; their names are as follows: D'Everado, of Springvale; Lucinda B., Mrs. George A. O'Neil, of Mason City, Cerro Gordo Co., Iowa; Martin, deceased; Morgiana, Mrs. E. C. Curtis, of Rosendale; Philinda, now a teacher of Rutherford Park, N. J.; Elmina R., a teacher of Ripon; Robert A., now a teacher of this town, and Joseph W. Mr. Whiting was the second Clerk of the town of Springvale—held the office from 1848 to 1850; in 1852 he was elected Chairman of the Town Board; was re-elected in 1853; in 1864 he was appointed United States Deputy Revenue Collector for Fond du Lac Co., which office he held till the fall of 1865; in the fall of 1866 he was elected a member of the Wisconsin Assembly from the Second Assembly District; he is now President of the Fond du Lac County Agricultural and Mechanical Association. Such is a brief life-history of one of Springvale's oldest and most respected citizens.

GEORGE D. WOODS, farmer, Sec. 36; P. O. Ladoga; was born in Edwards Co., Ill., in February, 1846, and in 1864, with parents, George and Ann Woods, removed to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on Sec. 2, in the town of Waupun; eighteen months later, his father purchased a farm of 100 acres in Sec. 36, town of Springvale, which was their home till November, 1878; his parents then removed to a small place on Sec. 2, town of Waupun, and left the farm in their son's care. In October, 1871, he was married to Miss Emily, daughter of J. M. and Abaline Hawkins, of the town of Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; their children are Bernice A., Ralph L. and Solomon D., an adopted son.

FRIENDSHIP TOWNSHIP.

THEODORE HERRLING, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Germany, near Leipsic, Jan. 3, 1810; came to this county with his parents in June, 1854; worked at farming and his trade (that of engineering), until the breaking-out of the rebellion. Enlisted in Fond du Lac Sept. 14, 1861, as a private in Co. K., 1st W. V. I., under Capt. Thomas H. Green; was at the battle of Perryville, Ky., Oct. 8, 1862; at Jefferson's Crossing, Dec. 29, 1862, and at the six days' fight at Stone River, lasting from Dec. 30, 1862, to January 6, 1863; went to the hospital at New Albany, Ind., and remained there until mustered out, Oct. 15, 1863; was a member of the Union League at Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis. Married, Nov. 9, 1868, to Antoinette Kinsman [see Kinsman]; they have no children living. He attends the German Lutheran Church, and is a Republican in politics; is now, and has been for two years, Chairman of the Town; is Treasurer of School District No. 1, and Secretary of Friendship and Fond du Lac Protection Association; he is now a pensioner, by reason of injuries received at Stone River.

JOSEPH KINSMAN, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Genesee Co., N. Y., Dec. 23, 1818; his parents, Aaron and Diana (Croft) Kinsman, were formerly residents of Framingham, Mass.; when the subject of this sketch was 15 years of age, they emigrated to Huron Co., Ohio; settled near East Norwalk, where Joseph remained on the farm with his father about six years; he then learned the painter's trade, which he followed six years; he then kept the hotel known as the Stewart House about three years. Married, Feb. 17, 1843, Julia Ann Beckwith, daughter of Richard and Anna (Champion) Beckwith, she being then 18 years of age; they were married by Elder Phillips, Baptist minister at East Norwalk; the parents of Mrs. Kinsman were from Hartford, Conn.; Mr. K. came to this State in April, 1848; was on the road twenty-seven days with a horse team, and settled on Sec. 5; removed to present location on Sec. 4, three years later; has 770 acres of land in Secs. 3, 4, 5, 9 and 21, of which about 250 are under cultivation, and the balance in pasture and timber; has four dwellings and eleven barns, with sheds and other buildings to accommodate his stock, which consists in part of 6 horses, 52 head of cattle, 250 sheep, etc., the stock being watered by means of reservoirs, pipes, and a windmill pump; has also a fine herd of deer in a park of 15 acres; has a daughter, Antoinette, born Oct. 28, 1846, who married Theodore Herrling [See T. Herrling, Sec. 4], and one son, Fitch R., born June 28, 1849, who is unmarried and works the land with his parents. The subject of this sketch is a Republican in politics, liberal in his religious views a hearty, jovial, well-preserved gentleman, surrounded by all that tends to make life pleasant; and that he enjoys, to the fullest extent, the respect and esteem of his townsmen, is evident from the fact that, in a town giving one-third Democratic majority, he has been a Supervisor several years, being Chairman of the Town during the war six or eight years, also an Assessor fifteen years (one year acting in both capacities), and for twenty years a Justice of the Peace.

ROBERT MCGOWAN, farmer, Secs. 16 and 21; P. O. Fond du Lac; was born near Calais, Me., Dec. 25, 1823; his parents, John McGowan and Bridget, nee Murray, came to this country fifty-eight years ago from the northern part of Ireland, and settled in New Brunswick, where they both died at the respective ages of 84 and 50 years. He came to this county twenty-nine years ago, and lived in the city of Fond du Lac about eight years, engaged in lumbering, "jobbing" in shingles, etc. About twenty-three years ago, he married Margaret Coughlin, whose parents (Patrick and Mary, nee Connel) were from County Cork, Ireland; her mother, Mrs. Mary Coughlin, is still living in the city of Fond du Lac, aged 73 years, her father having died in New York shortly after his arrival. His wife is now 43 years of age (June, 1879); they have ten children living, one having died very young—Mary Ann, born Aug. 30, 1858; John, born June 1, 1860; Bridget, born March 2, 1862; Margaret, born March 29, 1864; Robert, born April 11, 1866; William, born Nov. 29, 1869; Edward and Erwin (twins), born Dec. 17, 1872; Ellen, born Nov. 29, 1874, and Catharine, born Feb. 1, 1878. All attend St. Patrick's Church, in this city. He has 85 acres of cultivated land and 5 acres of timber land; keeps four working horses, twenty head of cattle, ten of sheep, and ten hogs; makes a specialty of feathers, and has a large number of geese, ducks, turkeys and hens. Mr. McGowan began life with no capital, and has by honest industry acquired a competency and the reputation of a man whose word is as good as his bond. He stands six feet two inches in his stockings, and weighs 200 pounds.

DANIEL N. MORGAN, Postmaster and station agent, Van Dyne; born in the town of Trenton, Oneida Co., N. Y., April 30, 1824. His father, Nathaniel Morgan, and his mother (maiden name Deming), Lydia, are dead. He was thirteen years a teacher in the public schools of New York, and is now Justice of the Peace. Married Susan M. Greenman, who was born in Brookfield, Madison Co., N. Y., May 15, 1830; daughter of Samuel Greenman, of Stephentown, Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; mother's name Abigail Bliss (daughter of Capt. Jeremiah Bliss, of Newport, R. I.); have one son—Herbert Greenman Morgau, born in Russia, Herkimer Co., N. Y., May 7, 1854; married, Nov. 16, 1877, to Lucy Colman, of Waukesha, Wis., and is now station agent, express agent, Postmaster and telegraph operator at Pensaukee, Wis. Jeremiah Greenman, Jr., a brother of Mrs. Morgan, left Janesville, Wis., about twenty-six years ago, visited California and Western Territories, then went to Lima, Peru, went into the country with a Mr. Brown, of New York, on a prospecting tour, carrying a considerable sum of money, and has not been heard from since that time.

JACOB THEWALT, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Fond du Lac; born Oct. 15, 1819, at Nau-
Art (or New Earth), Prussia. Married in 1846 to Catharine Dhild, at Gen-Ters-Blom; one son died at 11 months of age in Chicago, twenty-eight or twenty-nine years ago; soon after his arrival in this country, his wife was drowned in a well, into which she accidentally fell. Lived in Chicago about three years. Married to Sophia Steady in December, twenty-six years ago; had by second wife five children, of whom two died; Sophia, aged 22 Dec. 27, 1879; William B., aged 19 April 8, 1880; Annie M., aged 12 May 2, 1880, are living with parents. Settled two miles south of the city eight or ten years, then three miles south; owned a brewery at Mayville, Wis.; rents eighty acres on Sec. 17 at $300 per year, cash in advance, in company with C. W. Fnn, of the city of Fond du Lac, he has been engaged in pressing hay, threshing and lumbering for several years, and also Assistant Deputy Revenue Collector for this district under W. C. Ogden.

E. M. Beach

WAUPUN.

WAUPUN.

JOHN N. ACKERMAN, retired farmer, Waupun; born in New York State April 22, 1812; son of Jonathan A. Ackerman, who was born and brought up in Saratoga Co., N. Y.; John N. came to Green Bay, Wis., in 1836, and came to Waupun in 1841; entered eighty acres in what is now the city of Waupun; there were none but Indians here when he came; he was a carpenter by trade, and put up the first frame building in Fond du Lac; there were only four families there then, and about the same number in Oshkosh; Mr. Ackerman is the oldest of the old settlers in this part of the country, and his stories of ye old times are amusing, and should be preserved. Mr. Ackerman married, October, 1843, Hannah A. Ford, daughter of Chester Ford, one of the earliest and most respected citizens of Wisconsin; children are George V. (living in Appleton), Marion (married S. J. Sumner, living in Waupun), Chas. H. (living at home), Alice (living in Green Lake Co.), Fred (living at home), Edna (living in Dodge Co.), Frank (living in Dodge Co.). Mr. Ackerman has a fine farm of 170 acres, 130 acres in the city of Waupun; he was for twenty years Justice of the Peace, and twice President of the village, and was the first Mayor of the city of Waupun.

H. J. ALTHOUSE, of Althouse, Wheeler & Co., Waupun; born in Pennsylvania Aug. 10, 1828; was most of his early days in Tompkins Co., N. Y., where he used to work out part of the day, and run a saw-mill all night; in this way he earned enough money to start for the Great West, and came to Waupun in the fall of 1849; had 50 cents in his pocket when he reached here; he worked at 50 cents per day at any work he could get hold of; took land on shares; sat up nights making baskets, and turned the baskets over for labor on his farm; the first winter he lived here, he walked miles every morning to chop wood for three shillings a cord; used to work into the night sometimes, and pile the wood by moon-light; he was "pegging away" while other men slept. Mr. Althouse owes his success in a large degree to his own hard exertions; he always was busy, no time was wasted; in 1852, he went to drilling wells and running thrashing machines, and, in 1855, made his first pump; went out into the woods and cut his own timber, and worked away and improved it, till now he has the finest wood pump manufactured in the United States; in 1873, he commenced making windmills; this branch of the business has grown to an enormous extent; these windmills are superior to any manufactured, and are shipped to all parts of the United States, and to foreign countries; 300 were annually sent to India, and were transported to different places on mules' backs; they have also made large shipments to New Zealand. As business increased, Mr. Althouse had to look around for suitable men for partners, to assume a share of the cares and responsibilities, and the business is now eminently successfully carried on under the firm name of Althouse, Wheeler & Co. Mr. Althouse's success is a brilliant example of the fruits of persistent effort, strict attention to one line of business, and sturdy integrity. There was no loafing in his younger days, and there is nothing in the nature of the gentleman to indicate that he will ever depart from his first and well-fixed principles. Thus true merit gains its own reward.

DANIEL P. BABCOCK (deceased), was born Feb. 1, 1818, in Riga, Monroe Co., N. Y.; his father died when he was 3 years old, and he was bound out to Elisha Burr, of Castile, in what was then Genesee Co., now Wyoming Co., N. Y. When 19 years of age, he went to Illinois, and lived three years in De Kalb Co.; then returned to Castile and was married, by Elder Joseph Weeks, April 23, 1843, to Adelia Sturtevant, who was born, Oct. 30, 1822, in Castile, N. Y., daughter of Noah and Cynthia Sturtevant, natives of Vermont, who came to Castile before they were married, and lived there till 1867; then went to Livingstone Co., where Mrs. Sturtevant died Aug. 3, 1875, in the 70th year of her age; Mr. Sturtevant came to Wisconsin in October, 1877, and is now living with his daughter, Mrs. Babcock, in the 70th year of his age. Mr. and Mrs. Sturtevant were among the first settlers of Genesee Co., N. Y., and had their share of the privations and Indian scares incident to the early settlement of that county; Mrs. Babcock well remembers sitting, when a little girl, in the lap of Mary Jemison, the famous "white woman" of Western New York. Mr. Babcock was a miller by trade, but being in poor health when he returned to Castile from Illinois, he went into the boot and shoe business which he followed till October, 1855; then came West, and settled in Fond du Lac Co., Wis., living in the town of Alto one and a half years; then, in Springvale, seven years, and, in March, 1863, bought the farm now occupied by his widow on Sec. 12, in the town of Waupun, where he resided until his death, which occurred Dec. 12, 1877, in the 59th year of his age, having been nearly blind for the last eighteen years of his life. Left two sons—Harlow N., born Oct. 11, 1850; married Lydia Fisher, of Waushara Co., Wis., Feb. 22, 1873, and now lives in Stoughton, Dane Co., Wis., where he is foreman in a large flouring-mill; Charles E., born April 29, 1857, in Springvale; is living with his mother on the homestead, which consists of 85 acres of land, valued at about $40 per acre; P. O. Ladoga.

FRANK L. BACON, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Waupun; born Sept. 16, 1841, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.; son of Leander and Sarah Ann Bacon, natives of Eastern New York; he went to Pennsylvania in February, 1863, and lived about two years in Rothsville, Pithole City, Oil City and Titusville, prospecting for oil, and working a part of the time in a refinery. April 4, 1865, he was married in Titusville to Anna C. Hamlin, who was born July 2, 1844, daughter of Henry C. and Abby Hamlin. Mr. Hamlin was from Augusta, Me., and Mrs. Hamlin from Hingham, Mass. Mr. Bacon came to Wisconsin in January, 1866, and settled in the town of Waupun; he bought a flouring-mill on Section 26, and ran it five years, then sold out and engaged in buying and shipping live stock, which business he continued till 1873, when he purchased the farm he now owns, which consists of 160 acres, valued at about $50 per acre. Has been Assessor and Justice of the Peace, and is the present Chairman of the town; has also taken an active part in the Granger movement, having been Master of the Grange at Waupun, and delegate to the State Grange. Is Republican in politics, and himself and wife both members of the Congregational Church. Has two children—Bertha H., born Oct. 24, 1867, and Henry L., born June 18, 1869.

EDGAR M. BEACH, Waupun; born Aug. 3, 1839, in Medina Co., Ohio; parents of the old Puritan stock from New England; at the age of 5 years, lost his father, who was instantly killed by the fall of a tree; in 1854, came to Wisconsin; attended school at Lawrence University at the city of Appleton four years, when, his health almost entirely giving away, he spent several years traveling in most of the Western and some of the Southern States; in the fall of 1860, cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln. The war of the rebellion found him teaching in Missouri in a district composed entirely of slaveholders; making his way North, he enlisted in the Federal army, but on account of ill health was rejected; still desiring to take some part in the national struggle, spent the spring and summer of 1863 at Nashville, Tenn., where he belonged to the Ordnance Department, under Gen. E. D. Towsend of the regular army. On the 10th day of November, 1864, was married to Miss Cecelia E. Tichenor, daughter of Charles O. Tichenor, Esq., of Appleton. Studied law with Judge N. C. Giffin, of Fond du Lac, at which place he was admitted to the bar in July, 1866; came to Waupun in December, 1866, where he has spent an active business life in the practice of his profession, which has been crowned with more than ordinary success; coming to Waupun without means or friends, he has found many friends and abundant means. His fellow-citizens elected him Justice of the Peace for eight years in succession; at one time a Postmaster under Abraham Lincoln, "a high private in the Kekoskee war," Village Clerk; Supervisor; in politics a Republican; an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which he has belonged since 1864; many years a Sunday-school Superintendent; thirteen years a Class Leader, Trustee and Steward. Always a liberal contributor to all good objects.

LEROY E. BEARDSLEY, farmer, Sec. 15; P. O. Waupun; born April 30, 1844, in Chemung Co., N. Y., now Schuyler Co.; came West with his parents in the fall of 1854, and settled in the town of Waupun. Was married, Jan. 1, 1867, to Wealthy M. Holden, who was born Oct. 31, 1848, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., daughter of Chauncey and Almira Holden, who came to Wisconsin in the spring of 1851, and settled in the town of Waupun, on Section 15, where Mrs. Holden died Oct. 27, 1858, and Mr. Holden, July 20, 1877, aged 56. Mr. Beardsley enlisted Aug. 13, 1862, in the 32d W. V. I., Co. A, for three years, and was mustered out of the service at Washington June 12, 1865; was in all the battles and skirmishes in which his regiment participated during that time. Mrs. Beardsley has lived on the farm, now occupied by herself and husband, ever since her parents came to Wisconsin—when she was a little over 2 years old; have one child—Gertrude Welcome May, born Oct. 30, 1878; has 120 acres of land, valued at about $50 per acre. Republican.

B. H. BETTIS, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Ladoga; born March 29, 1821, in the town of Westmoreland, Oneida Co., N. Y.; son of Benjamin and Huldah Bettis. At the age of 17, he went to work in a woolen factory in Oswego Co., where his parents had removed when he was 13 years old, and continued at that business nine years. Feb. 25, 1845, he was married to Charity Savage, who was born Jan. 24, 1825, in the town of Mexico, Oswego Co., N. Y. Mr. Bettis came to Wisconsin in the spring of 1847, and settled in the town of Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., where he has since resided. He held the office of County Supervisor two years; Chairman of the Town five years; Town Clerk one year, and member of the Legislature three terms, in 1860, 1861 and 1869; was also Deputy Warden of the prison at Waupun, from October, 1871, till April, 1874, during the time that George F. Wheeler was Warden; also took the census of 1870, in the towns of Alto, Waupun, Springvale, Oakfield, and the North Ward of the village of Waupun. Has two children living—Adaline (born Aug. 27, 1848, now Mrs. Solon Halsey, of the town of Waupun), and Benjamin E. (born Oct. 15, 1851, now living at home). Hattie was born Sept.

23, 1853, and died April 30, 1868. Has 120 acres of land, valued at about $7,000. In politics is Republican, dyed in the wool. Mrs. Bettis is a member of the Congregational Church.

J. H. BRINKERHOFF, Postmaster, Waupun; born in Seneca Co., Ohio, April 14, 1835; 1835; son of Hezekiah Brinkerhoff, who was a son of Henry Brinkerhoff, of Adams Co., Penn.; the family came to America when Peter Stuyvesant was Governor of New York; were of that good old Dutch stock that settled along the Hudson and Mohawk; Hezekiah moved from Pennsylvania to Ohio and settled in Seneca Co., and died in 1846 at the age of 54; John, in 1853, went to work in a printing office in Milan, Ohio; then went to Watertown, Wis., and afterward to Jefferson and Beaver Dam, and came to Waupun in 1857 and established the Waupun Times; carried that on nine years and was appointed Postmaster in 1861; was elected to the Legislature in the fall of 1864 by 700 majority; Mr. Brinkerhoff is the present Postmaster and has been since 1861. He married Lucy T. Stoddard, daughter of Thomas Stoddard, who was from Laona, N. Y.; had two children—James Edwin is with Althouse, Wheeler & Co., of Waupun; Van S. is employed in the post office; wife died in the fall of 1863. Married, in 1867, Jennie H. Gillette, daughter of M. S. Gillette, of Fond du Lac; have two children by second marriage—Mary L. and Lola J.

HENRY D. BOOHER, farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Waupun; born Sept. 24, 1824, in Guernsey Co., Ohio; came to Wisconsin, in 1848; lived on Rolling Prairie, Dodge Co. most of the time till 1858; then returned to Ohio and stayed till the fall of 1864, when he again came to Wisconsin and lived in Chester, Dodge Co., till January, 1879. His first wife, to whom he was married Sept. 30, 1852, in Waupun, was Mrs. Lydia Brower, whose maiden name was Simpson; she died May 7, 1856, leaving three sons—Charles, Theodore and George; Jan. 14, 1879, was married to Mrs. Lenora C. Clark, who was born April 18, 1838, in Franklin Co., Mass., daughter of Dexter and Saloma Parter, who came to Wisconsin about 1856; she was first married in February, 1862, to L. W. Clark, who was born March 6, 1834, and died Oct. 25, 1876, leaving two children—Carrie Adell and Nellie Jane. Farm consists of seventy acres of land, worth $40 per acre.

SVEN BRONSON, farmer, Sec. 36; P. O. Waupun; was born April 2, 1828, in Norway, where his name was known as Gul Bronson. Was married in April, 1851, to Olena Oleson, who was born March 14, 1830, and died in the town of Waupun Feb. 9, 1857. Mr. Bronson came to America in the summer of 1854, and settled in the village of Waupun; living there three years; then removed to the farm he now owns; has 231 acres worth about $40 per acre. Has held the office of Treasurer in the school district, and is now the District Clerk, and also Supervisor of the town of Waupun. Has children living, as follows—Gustave, Ole, Bennie, Julius, Matilda, Charles and Theodore; has lost three—Carl and Emma, and one died in infancy, June 10, 1858. He married for his second wife, Ann Larson, who was born June 25, 1824. Republican in politics, and belongs to the Lutheran Church. Mr. Bronson is a man of sterling worth, who has amassed a fair fortune by honest industry.

WOLCOTT T. BROOKS, farmer; Sec. 13; P. O. Waupun; was born at New Haven, Vt., Oct. 6, 1826; his father, Daniel Brooks, moved to Middlebury, where the family resided until 1846, when he came to Wisconsin and settled on Sec. 1, in Byron, where he carried on the business of farming and worked at his trade—that of a carpenter. He married in Byron, May 31, 1853, Miss Gertrude, daughter of Ebenezer Sanderson, one of the earliest settlers of Waukesha Co.; she was born in Delta, Oneida Co., N. Y. Mr. Brooks has been a member of the Legislature, representing the Fifth Assembly District in 1860, and the Second District in 1877; he removed to Waupun in 1864, where he has resided on Sec. 13, and has been a member of the County Board and held various local offices. He has two children—Myron N. and Mary G.

CLINTON M. BROOKS, merchant, Waupun; born in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., May 1, 1837; son of Sheldon Brooks, who was from Highgate, Vt.; his father was Calvin Brooks, who was also a Vermont man; Sheldon Brooks and family moved to New York State, and to Waupun about 1855; he is now living at the age of 75 and is blind; Mr. Clinton M. Brooks has been many years engaged in manufacturing organs; he was eleven years in Milwaukee learning and working at this trade and is a thorough and competent workman; he was with the Marshall Bros. Church Organ Co. many years, and put up some of the finest organs in the Western States; in 1875, he went into the organ business on his own account, and, in March, 1877, came to Waupun and became associated with Amos Nudd in the furniture and organ business, which they have been carrying on successfully since. Married, Oct. 12, 1863, Imogene Keyes, who was from New York State and originally from Vermont; have one child—William E., born Sept. 25, 1866. The firm of Brooks & Nudd are justly known for the good management of their business and fair dealing.

JOHN BRYCE, hardware merchant, Waupun; born in Edinburgh, Scotland; son of David Bryce, who died in 1856 at the age of 70; John traveled through different parts of England and was engaged in teaching school at different times; he was a graduate of Bathgate Academy; he came to New York City in May, 1849, and came to Waupun in the fall of the same year; was employed as a clerk by Drummond & Smith for a time; in the fall of 1852, went to Australia and Melbourne; went into the mines for a while and afterward engaged in business there, and made and saved money; in 1858, he returned to Waupun and became interested in the hardware trade and has been thus employed ever since, having, through his honorable dealing and good business talent, built a successful and remunerative traffic. Mr. Bryce has never aspired to office, but has held several important town and city offices; espoused the just cause of national sovereignty during the war, and gave liberally to its aid and support; a brother, Hugh Bryce, was a soldier in the 100th N. Y. V. I.; was wounded twice, at Cold Harbor and Petersburg, and afterward died from the effects of his wounds. Mr. Bryce and family are respected members of the Congregational Church, and he is Superintendent of the Sabbath school, and one of Waupun's most esteemed citizens.

LUTHER BUTTS, capitalist, Waupun; born in Delaware Co., N. Y., June 24, 1825; son of Jacob S. Butts; his father was William Butts, who was a native of Connecticut, and was a soldier in the war of 1812; Mr. Butts' grandfather on his mother's side was Col. William Johnson, of Revolutionary fame; Jacob died in 1859, at the age of 57. Mr. Luther Butts, in October, 1846, settled on a farm of 200 acres, which was bought at Government price, in Fond du Lac County; he carried on farming successfully twenty-seven years; during this time, he speculated in land, buying and selling farms, and came to Waupun in fall of 1873; Mr. Butts is the owner of the opera house, the finest building in the city of Waupun. He married, July 19, 1845, Hannah Mann, daughter of Reuben Mann, a well-to-do farmer in Connecticut; she died Nov. 26, 1876; he married his second wife July 19, 1877; her maiden name was McDaniel; they have one boy—Luther J. Butts, born March 26, 1878. In 1878, Mr. Butts built a fine residence in the central part of the city of Waupun, where he now lives, enjoying the solid comforts of life. In the town of Alto, he was a member of the School Board for many years, and was largely and liberally connected with the interests of that town; he has obtained a well-deserved competence through his shrewd business tact and good management, and is a man of liberal and hospitable spirit.

SAMUEL CHAMBERLIN, hardware merchant, Waupun; was born in Arnsburg, Canada, Sept. 15, 1820; son of Dr. Olmstead Chamberlin; he was born in Chittenden Co., Vt., near Burlington, in 1787; his father was Joshua Chamberlin, and was a native of Massachusetts; Dr. Chamberlin studied medicine in his native State, and, in 1820, moved West with his family; in 1821, he settled in Pontiac, Mich., where he practiced medicine until 1840; he was one of the earliest settlers in that county; he had a large and successful practice, and was a much respected and honored citizen. He married Mary Beech, of Massachusetts; the children were Stewart, Mary, Samuel, Sarah, Elsie, Charles, Almira and Augustus B. Samuel Chamberlain, in 1840, went to Boston and bought a stock of goods, and started in general merchandise business in Pontiac; was successfully engaged till 1855, when he was appointed, by President Pierce, first mail-agent on the Detroit & Milwaukee R. R.; he resigned and went into the custom-house at Detroit; received this appointment from President Buchanan; held that position till the election of Lincoln; in 1861, he came to Fox Lake, Wis., and engaged in buying wheat and cattle; in February, 1863, he came to Waupun, where he became interested in the hardware business, and has been successfully engaged in that line ever since. He married Sarah Elliott, daughter of Charles Elliott, who was from Connecticut; his ancestors were among the oldest and most esteemed settlers in that State; Charles Elliott the famous portrait painter, was one of this family. Mr. Chamberlin and wife are members of the Episcopal Church.

A. S. CLARK, merchant, Waupun; born in Madison Co., N. Y., June 4, 1847; son of Stephen Clark, who was a native of New York State, and a well-to-do farmer; his father was Samuel Clark, and was from good old New England stock; he lived to be 88 years old; the family came to Green Lake Co., Wis., in 1854, and engaged in farming. Stephen married a Miss Popple, who was a native of Rhode Island; there were five children—Mary (married George Thompson, and is now living in Green Lake Co.), Helen (married Henry Smith, and now living in Fond du Lac Co.); Mr. A. S. Clark is the next in order, then George Clark (who is living at home), Wallace (living at home). Mr. A. S. Clark enlisted in February, 1864, in the 1st W. V. C.; served his time faithfully till the close of the war, when he was honorably discharged; he was second musician in the regimental band at the close of the war, when he returned home, and remained till 1867, when he went on the road for a Boston house, selling boots and shoes; was afterward connected with a Chicago concern in the same business; in September, 1876, he became associated with Mr. H. H. Hoard under the firm name of Clark & Hoard; they have been carrying on a very successful business ever since; they carry a large and well-assorted stock of groceries, boots and shoes and crockery, and, through their good business habits and gentlemanly demeanor, have made a host of friends and built up a large and growing trade. Mr. Clark married, in November, 1872, Lizzie Stanton, daughter of George W. Stanton; have had two children—Edith, born September 25, 1876; George, born July 27, 1878. Mr. Clark held different offices of trust in the town of Brooklyn, and is a Mason of prominence.

M. K. DAHL, manufacturer of plows and agricultural implements, Waupun; was born in Norway, Europe, Feb. 3, 1824; his father died when he was 7 years old; he left his home when 8 years old, and served as a shepherd boy on a farm until he was 16 years old; he then went to the city of Christiania to learn the blacksmith trade, mainly lock-making; he left his birthplace without a cent and without any more clothing than what he had on his body; he walked 140 miles, sleeping out of doors until he reached the city, on the 23d of June, 1840, and, after serving as apprentice five years, without any compensation except his board—to earn his clothes, he had to work nights and Sundays—he left the city of Christiania in 1847, and went to Eidlos Iron Works, forty-nine miles from the city; worked on forgings and finishings for heavy machinery and navy work; he left the iron works on the 5th of June, 1849, for the city of Drammen, for the purpose of emigrating to America, that being a seaport; he started in a sailing vessel from Drammen on the 9th of June, 1849, and arrived at New York on the 28th of September, being eighty days on his journey from Norway to New York; during that time, he occupied a good share of it in studying and practicing writing, as he never went to school a day in his life; being unable to find employment in the city of New York, and, being without money, he lodged with a family which came across in the same vessel, and who was going West to Milwaukee, Wis. The family stayed in New York three days, and then started for Milwaukee, and he, getting help from them, with the promise of paying them with the first money he earned. They arrived at Milwaukee on the 26th of October, being twenty-six days on their journey; they went from New York to Troy by steamer, then taking canal-boat to Buffalo, then by steamers across the lakes to Milwaukee; when he arrived in that city, he sold his bed-clothes for $1; he stopped in Milwaukee four days, trying to find work, without succeeding; he then took a bundle of clothing on his back and walked all the way to Rochester, Racine Co., where he met a Mr. Seymour Johnson, a friend from Norway, and who had been in this country three years, and working there for a Mr. Belden, who carried on a small foundry, wagon-shop and general blacksmithing; by the assistance of his friend Johnson, he got a chance to work for Belden nine weeks for his board; then he hired out to Bly & Ely, who were starting a blacksmith-shop in Waupun; he had not had a chance as yet to earn any money, so he borrowed $2 of his friend Johnson, and started for Waupun, walking eighty miles, arriving in that village on the 1st of December, 1849; commenced work for a term of six months at $13 a month; the first money earned he paid the family that bore his expenses from New York to Milwaukee, and the next went to a friend Johnson; the leading work here at Bly & Ely's was making plows and fanning-mills, and, after their plow season was over in the spring, they took the blacksmith-shop in which to paint fanning-mills; he then went to work for S. H. Hill, in the village, at $20 per month, shoeing horses and doing general blacksmith work; at the end of two months, he received a letter from Mr. Jones at Watertown, who carried on a machine-shop, offering $1 per day for turning and fitting out work for two flouring-mills; he accepted the offer, and worked for him two months; he then returned to Waupun; hired out to Bly & Ely for one year to take charge of their blacksmith-shop at $1 per day; at the end of that year, he made a bargain with Bly & Ely to do all the iron work to a plow by the piece, and this he continued to do until 1855, having an increase in their work so that he employed five and six hands; in 1854, he also took the job of making all the locks to be used in the Wisconsin State Prison; the 18th of June, 1856, he bought the shops of Geo. W. Bly, Ely having dissolved partnership with Ely previous to this, taking in D. P. Norton as partner in September, 1856, and continuing the business of making plows and fanning-mills until 1861, when the partnership was dissolved, and M. K. Dahl continued the business; outside of this business, he had a farm, and in which he succeeded in making money on; also investing in land in Minnesota and Dakota. On Nov. 24, 1854, he was married to Hannah O. Hansen, of his own nationality, who was born in Norway Oct. 25, 1835; the first child was born, and died in infancy; the second was born Jan. 30, 1857, it being a girl, Henrietta C. Dahl; the third, being a boy, Albert M. Dahl, born Jan. 7, 1859; the fourth a girl, Emma P. Dahl, born Feb. 11, 1861; the fifth a boy, Henry O. Dahl, born July 27, 1865, and died Sept. 25, 1865. His wife died Aug. 22, 1865. He then married a Miss Hannah Haldorsen Nov. 11, 1866; she was born in Norway Sept. 22, 1829. His oldest daughter, Henrietta, was married to Mr. Oscar N. Olberg, of Taopi, Minn. July 14, 1875. Albert M. Dahl is following his father's trade, and has now one-half interest in the business. Emma P. Dahl, his youngest daughter, was married to C. A. Olberg, of La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 26, 1879. M. K. Dahl is a member of the Lutheran Church. He was honored with being President of the Village Board two years, and being an Alderman four or five years, and Treasurer of School District eleven years, and Clerk of same four years. Mr. Dahl is building one of the finest residences in the county. He deserves especial credit for the remarkable manner in which he has worked his way to prosperity and success.

DANIEL S. DEAN, farmer, Sec. 27; P. O. Waupun; born in Warren Co., N. Y., Sept. 25, 1821, son of Aaron and Elizabeth Dean, natives of New York State; his mother died when he was 4½ years of age, and his father when he was 9; he then went to live with an uncle of his father, Caleb Dean, in Kingsbury, Washington Co., N. Y.; at 17 he was apprenticed to a cabinet-maker, and worked for three and one-half years to learn the trade; then carried on the business himself for five years; he then worked at joiner work about five years, after which he worked at pattern-making about the same length of time in Poultney, Vt., Fort Edward and Troy, N. Y. Sept. 17, 1848, he was married in Fort Edward to Martha Griffin, who died Oct. 22, 1850, at Ballston, Saratoga Co., N. Y., in the 21st year of her age, leaving an infant daughter; he was again married, Nov. 5, 1851, to Adelia M. Goodrich, of Benson, Vt., who was born Aug. 9, 1824. In the summer of 1855, Mr. Dean came to Wisconsin and settled on the farm he now owns; has eighty acres, which is assessed at $50 per acre; from April 1, 1867, till the fall of 1874, he was engaged in selling machinery and collecting for M. J. Althouse, of Waupun; has had two children born in Wisconsin—Carrie M., born Jan. 28, 1860, is now the wife of Beecher H. Amadon, of Mackford Township, Green Lake Co., Wis.; Kate Winnefred was born Sept. 27, 1861, and died Aug. 20, 1874. Mr. Dean is a Republican, and himself and wife both members of the Wesleyan Methodist Church.

JOHN DUER (deceased) was born in Bucks Co., Penn., in May, 1802, son of William and Charlotte Duer; he went to Ohio about 1828 and settled in Miami Co., and married Mary Moore, who was born in 1805, also in Bucks Co., Penn.; he followed farming in Ohio till 1847; then came to Wisconsin and settled on Sec. 23, in the town of Waupun, where he owned 220 acres, which is now worth about $40 per acre; Mrs. Duer died Sept. 16, 1865, and Mr. Duer Jan. 24, 1879, leaving nine children—William and Eliza (living on the homestead), James (living in Trempealeau Co., Wis.), Isaac (on the homestead), Ephraim (on Sec. 24, Waupun), Enoch and John L. (in the hardware business in Pawnee Co., Neb.), Mary Jane (who died March 5, 1879), and Sarah Martha (now Mrs. W. P. Day, also living on the homestead). P. O. Waupun.

THOMAS L. DUNHAM, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Waupun; born Aug. 27, 1817, in Mansfield, Conn., son of Abel and Sarah Dunham; when about 17 years of age he went to learn the carpenter's trade with Freeman Crocker, of Hartford, Conn., remained with him two years; then worked for Edwin Eaton, of Windham Co., Conn., two and one-half years, and, after that, as journeyman two or three months, and then commenced business for himself, which he followed about two years in his native State; he then came to Wisconsin, and lived in Racine Co. two years, and in Walworth Co. two years; then back to Racine Co. one year; then went to Waukesha Co., where he resided about twenty years; then to Walworth Co. again, and stayed two years; in the fall of 1868 he came to Fond du Lac Co., and bought the farm he now owns—took possession in March, 1869; has 162½ acres, valued at $50 per acre. Sept. 8, 1844, he was married in Burlington, Wis., to Clarissa Atkins, who was born Dec. 26, 1828, in the town of Campton, Canada; has six children—Sarah M., now Mrs. John Foster, of Chester, Dodge Co., Wis.; Albert C.; Mary Emaline, now Mrs. Hiram Beche, of Dodge Co., Minn.; Lucinda Susan, now Mrs. John Van Ness, living on the homestead; Arthur Thomas and Edwin Abel, both living at home with their parents.

WILLIAM DURAND, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Waupun; born Oct. 31, 1832, in Westfield, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., son of Nehemiah and Phileas Durand, who removed to Wisconsin about twenty-five years ago, and settled in the town of Waupun. William came a few months afterward and remained here two years; then returned to New York, and lived in Addison, Steuben Co., about six years, working at carpenter work; he then went to East Saginaw, Mich., in 1865, and, July 24, 1866, was married to Jennie L. Wheeler, who was born March 18, 1844, in Jefferson Co., N. Y., in the town of Lyme; she was the daughter of Chesley and Eliza Wheeler, natives of Jefferson Co., who came to East Saginaw in January, 1866; Mr. Durand remained there till the spring of 1873, and settled on the farm he now owns; has eighty acres, worth about $4,000. In 1861, he enlisted in the 34th N. Y. V. I. Co. E, for two years, and was mustered in at Albany; he remained with his regiment till the expiration of his term of enlistment, most of the time at the front; he was in the battles of Fair Oaks, Savage Station, Malvern Hill, Fredericksburg, Antietam and several others, and was with McClellan in his seven days' retreat from in front of Richmond,

Mr. and Mrs. Durand are members of the Wesleyan Church. Have three children—Hervey M., born April 18, 1868; Lena A., Nov. 3, 1870, and May E., born Nov. 24, 1879. Mr. Durand is a Republican in politics.

GEORGE FIELDSTAD, farmer, Sec. 21, in town of Chester, county of Dodge; P. O. Waupun; born Oct. 3, 1846, in Norway, near Christiania, the capital; came to America with his parents in 1854, and settled on the farm he now owns, and which his father, Englebret Fieldstad, owned and occupied till his death, which occurred May 8, 1879, in the 69th year of his age. George was married Jan. 1, 1875, to Jonetta Petterson, who was born Oct. 6, 1846, in Norway, near Thronhjem, daughter of Arntpeter Larson. Has two children—Elida Josephine, born March 4, 1876, and Anna Matilda, born Sept. 15, 1878; lost one, Anna Matilda, who was born Aug. 1, 1877, and died when she was one month old. Lutherans and Republican.

W. H. FERRIS, State Prison official, Waupun. Mr. Ferris was brought up in Connecticut till he was 8 years old; his father, James H. Ferris, was a Connecticut man and was born in 1800, and was a drummer boy in the war of 1812, also enlisted in 131st N. Y. V.; was promoted to Major, and while bravely leading his regiment at the battle of Fredericksburg, was killed; thus died an old soldier, at the age of 63, in defense of his country; his father was Capt. John Ferris, who was a Captain in the same war; he was of English descent, and was a member of the Queen's Guard, in the old country. Mr. W. H. Ferris, when 8 years old, moved to Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; was there fourteen years; was in the mercantile business and attended school, and came West, to Fox Lake, in 1857; was clerk for H. Germain about a year; was then with G. W. Leonard and afterward engaged in the business under the firm name of Leonard & Ferris; sold out and went to work for A. Rich. At the time of the war, enlisted in Co. H, 29th W. V. I.; served his time faithfully and was honorably discharged in April, 1863. While in Trenton, Mr. Ferris was elected Justice of the Peace; also served as Constable several times. Mr. Ferris was appointed to fill a position in Waupun Prison in 1876, and has been an officer in that institution ever since. He married, in March, 1858, Caroline E. Hemingway, daughter of Ezra Hemingway, who was a well-to-do farmer in Washington Co., N. Y.; children are Julia C., born Dec. 12, 1859; Cora E., Dec. 21, 1864; Will Chester, Dec. 16, 1874. Mr. Ferris' brother, George D. Ferris, was in the 77th N. Y. V. I.; served five years, and was in thirty-two hard-fought battles; was in Castle Thunder six months. James K. Ferris was in the 77th N. Y. V. I., and was wounded at the battle of the Wilderness and crippled for life. Walter M. Ferris was in the same regiment, and lost his leg in the battle of the Wilderness. A brother-in-law, Leroy Babeock, was starved to death at Andersonville. An uncle, Capt. Peck, was killed at the battle of Fredericksburg. There are not many families who have such a war record. Mr. W. H. Ferris has a fine little farm in the town of Trenton, and is in comfortable circumstances through his industry and frugality.

H. W. FROST, counselor at law and City Attorney, Waupun; born in Windsor, N. Y., March 27, 1842; son of Sheldon Frost, who was from Watertown, Litchfield Co., Conn.; his father was Solomon Frost, and had a good record as a Revolutionary soldier; Sheldon Frost died in February, 1872, at about the age of 77; Hubert's early days were spent on a farm; in 1867, went into the office of Mr. Barrett, Binghamton, N. Y., a prominent lawyer in that part of the country; in April, 1870, he went to Greene, Chenango Co., N. Y., and studied law with his uncle, Lester Chase, who had practiced law successfully for forty years in that county; came to Waupun, Wis., Oct. 12, 1874, and engaged in law practice with J. W. Seely; in 1878, they dissolved partnership, and he is doing a good and constantly increasing business. Married, Sept. 22, 1874, Cornelia E. Peck, daughter of Philo Peck, who was a well-to-do farmer in Chenango Co., N. Y.; have two children—Nellie, born Sept. 19, 1875; Fannie, born May 12, 1877. Mr. Frost is attorney for the city of Waupun; is a prominent member of the Society of Old Fellows, and was charter member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen; he is also a member of the Temple of Honor.

J. S. GEE, monumental works, Waupun; born in Cortland Co., N. Y., town of Virgil, Jan. 17, 1816; son of Samuel Gee, who was a farmer and a carpenter by trade; his father, John Gee, served seven years in the Revolutionary war and in most of the hard-fought battles; he received from the Government, for his services, 640 acres of land in Cortland Co., N. Y.; the family are of French descent; Samuel Gee died in 1875, at the age of 80. John S. Gee shifted for himself after he was 12 years old; learned the mason and stonecutter's trade in Ithaca, N. Y.; he started in business in Elmira, N. Y., and, in 1837, went to Frenchtown; in 1838, moved to Troy, Penn., and in 1840, to Danville, N. Y., in 1841, to Fredonia; then to Penn Line, Penn.; and, 1846, came to Waupun, Wis.; in 1853, went to California, and went into the mines; in the fall of 1855, returned to Waupun, and has been here ever since, and is to-day the oldest mason and stonecutter in the State. Mr. Gee married, in 1835, Lucy A. Whiting, daughter of Caleb Whiting, a Presiding Elder in the Methodist Church, and a man of prominence. Children—Oscar F., enlisted in Co. D, 3d W. V. I.; was in Banks' retreat, and died from exposure; T. W. Gee enlisted in Daniell's Cav.; was in the West and Southwest; served his time faithfully four years; John W. enlisted in the 3d W. V. I., and received his death-wound at battle of Antietam; was shot through the left arm, thigh and lungs, and died in about six weeks; James E. enlisted in Co. D, 3d W. V. I., and served his time faithfully till the close of the war; he is now a physician living at Brandon; has an extensive practice; he married a daughter of Gen. W. H. Taylor; Vestalina married a Robins, who died; she is now the wife of F. E. Sykes; Ella married Rufus H. Oliver. Mr. Gee has held offices of trust many times. Mr. Gee had only $2.50 when he arrived in Waupun, and owes his success to his industry and good management.

ANDREW GLENDENNING, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O., Waupun; born July 18, 1815, in Roxburgh Co., Scotland; came to America in 1845, and settled in Fond du Lac Co., town of Alto; came to the town of Waupun in 1869. Was married, in 1844, to Ann Davison, who was born in 1806, in Newcastle upon Tyne, in England. Has two children living—Amelia, now Mrs. James Brisbane, of Alto, and Jane, now the wife of James Clark, living on the homestead, which consists of twenty acres of land with good buildings. Has lost two children—Jane, died in 1850, aged 2 years and 9 months, and William, who died the same year, aged 13 months. Republican.

R. L. GRAHAM, merchant tailor, Waupun; born in Liverpool, Eng., Feb. 3, 1829; came to New York City in the fall of 1848; came over on the vessel Blackbird, Capt. Peabody, commander; went to Milwaukee, and worked for his board, from November till April, 1848; May 3, 1848, came to Waupun; while on the way out West, Mr. Graham tried to enlist in the U. S. Army, but he wouldn't pass; he wasn't big enough. When he came to Waupun, went to work for Howard & Tanner, tailors; was with them till 1853, when he engaged in business on his own account, and has been very successful ever since. Mr. Graham and wife returned to England May 3, 1870, on a trip of recreation and pleasure, and returned in August of the same year. Jan. 27, 1853, Mr. Graham married Selina W. Vial, who was born in Somersetshire, England; the children were Mary Jane, died in infancy; Amelia, died when 2 years old; Henrietta, died when 14 months old; Martha, died in infancy; Harriet, died in infancy; Frankie Lee, lived to be 6 months old; Della M., lived to be 18 months old. Mr. Graham is eminently a self-made man, and is to be commended for his pluck and energy in pushing to the front; he gives eminent satisfaction in his business, his trade extending throughout the surrounding country. He and his wife attend the Episcopal Church; Mr. Graham is liberal and public spirited in all charitable objects; he has been the help and mainstay of his mother in the old country. Mr. Graham has one of the prettiest residences, inside and out, in the city of Waupun.

W. W. HARRIS, flouring-mill, Waupun; born in Camden Co., N. Y., April 30, 1843; son of Stephen H. Harris, who was born and brought up in Camden Co.; he is now an old and respected citizen of Waupun. W. W. Harris learned the miller's trade in Waupun in 1861; in 1871, became associated with T. W. Markle; before this, it was Harris & Son for ten years. Mr. Harris has been in the milling business for many years, and is a master of the profession; the firm is now doing a large and prosperous business. Mr. Harris married, Nov. 26, 1868, Anorette Newton, daughter of N. J. Newton, a respected citizen, and one of the earliest settlers in this part of the country; the children by this marriage are Fred L., born Oct. 6, 1869; William M., born Oct. 21, 1870; Herbert J., Feb. 29, 1872; Eda M., July 25, 1874; Clyde, Jan. 1, 1877. Mr. Harris is Director of School District No. 1; is Fire Marshal and Alderman of North Ward.

EMIL HAUSEISEN, furniture business, Waupun; born in Germany April 20, 1836; he landed in New York May 10, 1855; went to Milwaukee, and, Aug. 15, 1860, came to Waupun; was a porcelain painter in the old country, and, when he came to this country, engaged in carriage painting; Jan. 1, 1862, became associated with M. Meyer, in furniture business, and, Dec. 16, 1872, Mr. Hauseisen took the entire business, and has been engaged very successfully in the same line ever since; through his industry and prudence, has accumulated a competency. He married, Dec. 16, 1862, Barlett Korder; children are Emely, born Feb. 18, 1864; Nora, Oct. 8, 1866; Hattie, Aug. 30, 1869; Edwin C., in January, 1871. Mr. Hauseisen is Clerk of School District No. 1. He has taken all the degrees in Odd Fellowship; he is also agent for the Hamburg American Packet Co. Himself and family attend the Episcopal Church. Mr. Hauseisen is to be much commended for the way in which he has come to the front; it was through his own exertions only.

JAMES M. HAWKINS, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. Ladoga; born July 14, 1814, in Grafton Co., N. H., came to Wisconsin in July, 1844, and lived in the town of Burlington, Racine Co., till December, 1845, then came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled on the farm he now occupies in the town of Waupun, where he has since resided; he was the first settler in this part of the town, and it took all the lumber and shingles in Fond du Lac at the time (which was only one small load, however) to build his first house. He was married, Jan. 18, 1836, to Lucy Burrett, who was a native of Windsor Co., Vt., and died April 23, 1850, in the 10th year of her age, leaving five children—James D., lives in Blue Earth Co., Minn.; Truman R., in Madison Co., Iowa; Lucy Y., now the wife of Charles R. Dudley, of the town of Lamartine; Frances Evaline, now Mrs. Alexander Cook, of Wadena, Wadena Co., Minn., and Emma, now Mrs. Alfred A. Shaw, of the town of Fond du Lac. Was married the second time, May 1, 1852, to Abilene Tourtellotte, who was born July 29, 1831, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.; by this wife he has six children—Ida E., now Mrs. Wilber Chase, of Cottonwood Co., Minn.; Emily C., now Mrs. George Woods, of the town of Springvale; Nellie J., now Mrs. Chester Fairbanks, of the town of Waupun; Myron H., Ahua May, and Milan E. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins are both member of the M. E. Church, and he is Republican in politics; was appointed by Gov. Dewey, in 1851, to survey a State road from Oshkosh to Mayville, also to survey and appraise the school lands in Fond du Lac Co.; has 121 acres of land, valued at $60 per acre.

ELEAZAR J. HILLEBERT, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Waupun; born Sept. 17, 1807, in Genesee Co., N. Y.; parents removed to Onondaga Co., when he was a child, and from there to Cattaraugus Co., N. Y. Mr. Hillebert was married, Sept. 12, 1831, to Laura Comstock, who was born Aug. 6, 1815, in Canada; her parents were natives of Washington Co., N. Y., and came from Canada to Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., when she was an infant. In the fall of 1848, he came to Wisconsin, and worked at blacksmithing in the village of Waupun one winter, then bought a farm on Sec. 17, in the town of Waupun; had 160 acres and lived there till the fall of 1867, then sold out and bought the farm he now owns; has eighty acres, worth $4,000; held the office of Constable in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., five years, Justice of the Peace four years, and Collector two terms. Has five children—Nelson, lives in the town of Empire; Jane, Mrs. Luther E. Sweet, of Pennsylvania; Allen L., living in Kansas; Frances, now Mrs. Emerson Fairbanks, of Fond du Lac, and Frank, living on the homestead, with his parents; has lost three children—John, went into the army from Jackson Co., Wis.; served about four months, and was shot at the battle of Petersburg; Harriet J., died in New York, at the age of 4 years and 5 months, and Harriet A., wife of Lewis Johnson, of Jackson Co., Wis., died in July, 1862, leaving three children. Allen L. was in the 32d W. V. I., first in Co. B, as drummer, afterward in Co. C; was with Sherman in his famous "march to the sea;" served three years, and was mustered out of service at the close of the war. In politics, Mr. Hillebert votes for the best man, regardless of party. Mr. Hillebert learned the blacksmith's trade of his father, and worked at it most of the time till he came West.

LUCIEN H. HILLS, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Ladoga; born Nov. 13, 1818, in Mexico, Oswego Co., N. Y.; came to Wisconsin in the summer of 1846, and settled in the town of Clinton, Rock Co., where his first house was built, of one load of lumber, hauled sixty-five miles on a wagon; was considered quite forehanded by his neighbors, as he had $15 in cash in his pocket when he came into the State; he remained in Rock Co., till November, 1848, then came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the town of Waupun, where he now resides; has 388 acres of land, worth about $17,000; pays a good deal of attention to stock-raising; has now 550 head of sheep of a choice grade; has been a member of the County Board several years, and Chairman of the town three years. The first vote he ever cast in the State of Wisconsin was against the first Constitution, and himself and neighbors went to the election with a team of seventeen yoke of oxen. May 1, 1844, was married to Anna A. Savage, of Mexico, Oswego Co., N. Y.; has four children—Mary Ida, now Mrs. F. L. Goutermont, of Blue Earth Co., Minn.; Maria Adell, now Mrs. Alfred P. Morehouse, living in the town of Waupun; Henry L. and Callie L., both living at home. In politics, Republican.

EDWIN HILLYER, insurance, Waupun; born in Portage Co., Ohio; son of Col. David Hillyer, one of the pioneers of that county, and a man of prominence; he surveyed the counties of Portage and Stark, Ohio; the family came to Ohio from Granby, Mass.; Edwin commenced his business career selling goods in Ohio; in July, 1847, he came to Waupun, Wis., and engaged in business, and, in 1849, went to California; ran the first express ever run on the Sacramento River; there was not a frame house in Sacramento at that time; he finally sold out his steamboat and went into the mines, and dug gold at Syracuse Bar, in which claim he had an interest; returned to Waupun in 1852, and engaged in business with his brother in a general merchandise store; sold out his interest and built the railroad from Horicon to Waupun, and was afterward General Agent of the road; then engaged in the insurance business; established the Dodge County Insurance Company; was elected to the Legislature in 1852; was Chairman of Committee on Privileges of Election, and was also connected with several committees. In 1861, he raised part of a company for the 3d W. V. I., and, the same year, raised a company for the 10th W. V. I., and was appointed Captain; served his time faithfully, and was honorably discharged on account of sickness, and returned to Waupun and engaged in the insurance business, which he has been very successful in ever since. Mr. Hillyer was Deputy Warden at the Waupun Prison at one time, and it was he that laid out the beautiful grounds in front of that structure; he founded the library of the city of Waupun Feb. 18, 1858, and has been librarian ever since; Mr. Hillyer has a fine farm of 1,100 acres in Grundy Co., Iowa, mostly under good cultivation, and he owns one of the finest residences in the city of Waupun. Mr. Hillyer married in 1848; the children were Edna C. (married C. H. Ford, General Agent of the North German Insurance Company, and is living in New York City), Martha J., H. L. Palmer Hillyer, Homer W. and Frank; Martha and Frank are deceased. Mrs. Hillyer is President of the State Temperance Alliance, and a prominent and efficient worker in the good cause.

J. T. HILLYER, retired farmer, Waupun; born in Portage Co., Ohio, March 19, 1819; son of Daniel Hillyer, who was from Connecticut; he was a prosperous farmer, and also for many years a popular hotel keeper; he was among the first settlers in Portage Co., Ohio, and kept tavern nearly thirty years in that county, and held numerous offices of trust; he died in 1875 at the age of 80. Joseph, at the age of 21, went to Cincinnati and to New Orleans, taught school at different times, also became a skillful trader, and made large sums of money at times; after something of a roaming life, came to Waupun, Wis., in 1845; helped build the first frame house built in East Village; used to work for $10 per month in those days; his next move was to engage in the mercantile business with his brother, Edward Hillyer, which they carried on successfully about ten years; he then purchased a farm in Columbia Co., Wis., and engaged in agricultural pursuits; was there nine years, and returned to Waupun and purchased ten acres, and now has one of the finest residences and homes in the city, and has retired from active service. He married Hepsie S. Bly; she was a sister of George W. Bly; the family was from Huron Co., Ohio; the children by this union were Mary B., born Feb. 18, 1851, and married and living at Rock Falls, Iowa; one child, died in infancy, Oct. 23, 1857; Josephine, born March 19, 1862, and living at home. Mr. Hillyer was on the Town Board most of the time while in Columbia Co.

L. D. HINKLEY, of the firm of Althouse, Wheeler & Co., Waupun; born in Rockville, Conn., Nov. 8, 1835; son of Lucius Hinkley, a woolen manufacturer; his father was Scottaway Hinkley, and was also a cloth manufacturer; he made the first blue cloth for the United States Army; he was a descendant of the Hinkleys who came from Trenterden Kent, England, in 1635, and settled in the vicinity of Boston, at Cape Cod and Barnstable; the original purchase was in the possession of the family for 200 years; one of the family was Thomas Hinkley, Governor of Plymouth Colony, a man of sterling integrity, of the good old Puritan stock of that day; Lucius Hinkley married Laura Waterman, whose ancestors were among the first settlers in Norwich, Conn.; she was a descendant, on the mother's side, of the celebrated Hyde family, whose descendants now lay claim to many millions of dollars that have been stored away in the Bank of England for years; Laura Waterman was, from her father's side, a descendant of the Breusters, who came over in the Mayflower; Mr. Hinkley takes a laudable pleasure in tracing back the genealogy of the family, and few can be as successful as he has been, for he follows the line back to Egbert, the earliest Saxon King of England, and has the papers to show for it. Lucius Hinkley and his family came to Waupun, Wis., in the fall of 1848, and followed agricultural pursuits. Lucius D. Hinkley, at the age of 17, went into a carriage-shop and served an apprenticeship. In the fall of 1861, enlisted in the 10th W. V. L. Co. K; was Orderly Sergeant; was in all the hard-fought battles that the regiment engaged in; was taken prisoner and sent to Libby Prison, then to Macon and afterward to Charleston, he made his escape and got to within a few miles of the Federal lines, but was recaptured, and, while trying to escape the second time, in the fall of 1864, at Columbia, was shot while near the dead line, and lost his arm; the same year, was exchanged, and came back to Waupun, and shortly after went into the office of Secretary of State at Madison, and afterward engaged in the insurance business in Waupun; in 1870, went to Chicago, and was with the Republic Insurance Co. of that city; in 1871, accepted the position of Clerk of the State Prison; in 1874, became partner in the large manufacturing concern of Althouse, Wheeler & Co. Mr. Hinkley married, Dec. 28, 1870, Lola T. Gillett, daughter of M. S. Gillett; had one child, which died in infancy; his wife died Jan. 22, 1878.

HORATIO H. HOARD, merchant, Waupun; born in Wyoming Co., N. Y., Jan. 26, 1855; son of Harry Hoard; he was the son of Henry Hoard; the family were among the first settlers on the Holland Purchase and were of English descent; they took up a claim at the foot of Buffalo Hill; Henry Hoard lived and died on the old homestead; he delivered a Fourth of July oration when 86 years old; Mr. Harry Hoard was a Captain in the militia when he was but 18 years old; he was Postmaster sixteen years and Justice of the Peace till the time of his death, which occurred in 1862; he was engaged in the mercantile business at Sheldon Center, Wyoming Co., N. Y., which he carried on successfully many years.

Mr. Horatio Hoard graduated at the Oshkosh High School, and came to Waupun in August, 1872; was with John Roberts four years, and in September, 1876, formed a copartnership with A. S. Clark, under the firm name of Clark & Hoard; they have been very successfully engaged ever since; they carry one of the best assorted general stocks in this part of the country. Mr. Hoard married, Oct. 9, 1877, Elvie Wilcox, grand-daughter of the first settler of Waupun.

NELSON HOLLENDYKE, lumber merchant, Waupun; born in Holland Jan. 16, 1821; son of William Hollendyke, who was a farmer in the old country; he died in 1852, at the age of 72; Nelson worked at the carpenter's trade at home three years for his board, and came to New York Aug. 1, 1844; went to Westfield, Chautauqua Co., Aug. 12, 1844, and did his first day's work in this country; in the spring of 1845, he went to Milwaukee, and, in the spring of 1846, went to Fond du Lac Co. and settled on 160 acres and engaged in farming; moved, in 1848, to Waupun and worked at his trade; in 1851, went to Portage City, and, in 1862, returned to Fond du Lac Co. and kept a lumber-yard in the town of Brandon; June 9, 1868, came to Waupun and has been successfully engaged in the lumber business here ever since. Married, April 12, 1845, Eliza B. Loomaus, daughter of John William Loomaus, a well-to-do farmer, who is now living in the town of Alto, at the age of 86. Mr. Hollendyke was a Trustee of the city of Waupun in 1869-70, and again in 1876-77. Mr. Hollendyke came to this country a poor boy, and now has a competence through his untiring industry and good management. Himself and family are members of the Dutch Church in the town of Alto.

ELI HOOKER, attorney at law, Waupun; born in Tompkins Co., N. Y., Sept. 17, 1820; son of Hezekiah Hooker. The family were among the earliest settlers in New England; Eli's great-grandfather was born in Medbury, Conn., about 1720; he married Louisa Roe, who belonged to a numerous New England family. Eli's younger years were largely devoted to educational pursuits; he attended Ithaca Academy in all about four years, teaching school winters; he prepared for college at Ithaca, but, having an offer to remove to the West and start a newspaper, went directly to Fond du Lac Co. in September, 1846, and, with J. O. Henning, started the Journal, which was the first paper in Fond du Lac Co.; six months later, he sold out and bought a half-interest in the Whig; he wrote for that paper until January, 1848, when he removed to Waupun and read law with J. J. Brown; April 17, 1854, was admitted to the bar of the Circuit Court of Fond du Lac, and was afterward admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the State, and in all the courts of Wisconsin; for twenty years or more, he has had a large and remunerative business; he is a first-class court and jury lawyer, excelling in both departments of the profession, and has all the avidity for study of his younger years. Law, the chosen pursuit of his later years, has completely absorbed his time, with the exception of fourteen months, from August, 1866, to October, 1867, when he purchased the Waupun Times, a Republican newspaper, for which he is still acting as corresponding editor, as a means of recreation; he is a vigorous and strong writer, as well as an able advocate. With the exception of a membership in a local School Board, which he held many years, has kept clear of politics; he owes his success to having stuck to one thing. Mr. Hooker is a member of the Temple of Honor, a strong advocate of temperance, and has lectured more or less on the subject, being an expert speaker. He has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for twenty-five years, and Steward and Trustee of the same; all his influence is on the side of good morals, and a pure type of Christianity; in early days, was a strong antislavery man, his sympathies always being on the side of the oppressed. All of his wealth is the honest proceeds of his energies and talents well expended. He never advised persons to go to law who had not, in his opinion, a good case, invariably declining to be an advocate of a bad cause; never made a proposition of law to a jury that he did not believe to be correct. The course which he has followed has given the people the greatest confidence in him, and to it he attributes his success in legal practice and in life. The wife of Mr. Hooker was a Miss Catharine R. Sharp, daughter of Rev. John Sharp, who was for sixty years a Baptist preacher, now living in Waupun at the age of 86. Mrs. Sharp was a descendent of the Townly family, whose property was largely confiscated at the time of the Restoration—when Charles II. came to the throne of England. Mr. and Mrs. Hooker were married Feb. 19, 1851; they have had four children, three of whom are living—Viola A. Hooker (the eldest child, was educated at Lawrence University, Appleton), Culver E. Hooker (the only son, graduated at the State University, in June, 1878), and Lillie Kate (the youngest, is being educated at the graded school of Waupun). Mrs. Hooker is one of the leaders in the humane and benevolent enterprises conducted by the women of Waupun, and is President of the Ladies' Temperance League of the place, and Treasurer of the State Alliance.

O. R. HOPKINS, mechanic, Waupun; was born in the town of Potsdam, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., March 1, 1818; son of Truman and Laura Hopkins, natives of Vermont; when he was about 16 years of age, his father died, leaving a family of six children, who, with their mother, removed to Ohio in the fall of 1835, and settled in what was then Williams Co.; O. R. Hopkins was one of the four men who built the first log house in the town of Farmer, in that county. On the 23d of July, 1840, Mr. Hopkins married Artemissa Sawyer, who was born March 8, 1823, in Rushville, Yates Co., N. Y., daughter of Prescott and Zernia Sawyer. In July, 1845, he came to Wisconsin and settled in Green Co., where he remained till the fall of 1847, then to Mukwonago, Waukesha Co.; in April, 1851, he went to Madison, Dane Co., Wis., and, in November, 1853, went to Milwaukee and took charge of the woodwork department of the Milwaukee Thrashing Machine Company, where he remained about fourteen years in the same business; in the spring of 1865, he removed to Chicago, Ill., and went into the manufacture of zinc washboards, in company with his sons, A. R. and S. R. Hopkins (firm name, O. R. Hopkins & Sons); in the spring of 1866, he bought a farm in the town of Vernon, Waukesha Co., Wis., and followed farming four years, then rented his farm and returned to Chicago, where he again went into manufacturing, and continued in that till the great "Chicago Fire," in October, 1871, when he lost his house and shop by fire, losing about $8,000; after the fire, he rebuilt his shop and continued the same business, with the addition of sash, doors and blinds; in August, 1872, he went to Rossville, Shawnee Co., Kan., but only remained till fall, when he returned to Chicago and stayed until the next spring, then built a residence in Jefferson, one of the suburbs of Chicago, and occupied it one year, then broke up housekeeping and spent some time in Ohio and Indiana; in May, 1875, he removed with his family to Denver, Colo., but remained only three months, then returned to Chicago for the third time; stayed about three months, then went to Ohio, locating in Edgerton, Williams Co., and engaged in selling agricultural implements, which he followed till May, 1876, then removed to Waupun, Wis., where he still lives; owns a brick residence on Mill street, north of Main. Mr. Hopkins has lost five boys—Oney R., Etlebert R., Mason H., Ozro B. and Charles F., and has three living—Arba R., Seldon R. and Truman P.

GEORGE JESS, banker and capitalist, and Mayor of the city of Waupun; born Oct. 15, 1819, in Kinz Co., Nova Scotia; son of John L. P. Jess, who was a respected citizen of that county, and lived to be 90 years old; Mr. Jess came to Walworth Co., Wis., in the spring of 1842, and, in 1845, came to Dodge Co.; he soon purchased a tract of land in Columbia Co., and, in the fall of 1845, went to Fox Lake, Dodge Co.; he purchased the American House, which was but partially completed, finished it and kept tavern till the spring of 1846; he had been, all this time, improving his property in Columbia Co.; he became engaged in loaning money and trading, and, in 1850, went across the Plains to California and carried on an extensive drover's business; handled cattle from Southern California to San Francisco; also shipped from Mexico in large droves; through his energy, made a success, and returned to Fox Lake in the fall of 1853, and engaged in loaning money and speculating in land and live stock; in 1876, went to Waupun and erected one of the finest buildings in the city, and engaged in the banking and exchange business, under the firm name of Geo. Jess & Co.; the concern is on a sound basis and enjoys a prosperous traffic. Mr. Jess married Maria T. Judd, daughter of Stoddard Judd, who was one of the earliest and most prominent settlers in this part of the State; he was one of the framers of the State Constitution, and was in the Assembly and Senate at different times; was largely interested in railroads, and was esteemed one of the leading men of those times. Mr. Jess is the father of one child—Stoddard Jess, born Dec. 3, 1856. He married a daughter of B. Chenoweth, one of the first settlers of Monroe, Wis., who is now a prominent merchant of that place. Stoddard Jess is cashier of the bank of Geo. Jess & Co., and has almost the entire charge of the business. Mr. Geo. Jess has been a member of the County Board and held other minor offices. He is now Mayor of the city of Waupun, and is a prominent Mason.

CHARLES JONES, merchant, Waupun; born on Long Island, N. Y., April 30, 1831; son of Gen. David W. Jones, who was a soldier in the war of 1812; Mr. Jones, together with his brother, E. W. Jones, under the firm name of C. & E. W. Jones, are extensively engaged in business in Waupun; they carry the largest stock of dry goods, fancy goods and notions in that part of the country; also deal largely in groceries, hats and caps, in fact, carry a very full and complete line of all goods that are to be found in a first-class establishment of that kind; the firm is favorably known for its fair dealing and earnest endeavors to please its customers, and the fact that they have met with such abundant success is strictly owing to their untiring industry, good management and discretion in purchasing such salable goods as always find a ready market and quick sale.

B. F. JONES, farmer, Sec. 18; P. O. Waupun; born Jan. 1, 1817, in Berkshire Co., Mass. His father was a farmer and collier; when of age, B. F. worked at farming one year, then peddled dry goods, silverware, jewelry and Yankee notions for a year and a half, doing a wholesale business in farming tools at the same time, afterward went into coal burning for a while, then went into the iron business, helping to build three furnaces, and having a general superintendence of the mining, furnishing wood, etc..

for two of them. Came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1850, lived a few months on Wedge's Prairie in the town of Waupun, and Jan. 6, 1851, removed to Sec. 18, where he has since resided. Has followed farming ever since he came to Wisconsin; was married April 26, 1847, to Elizabeth S. Andrews, who was born Nov. 27, 1831, in Saratoga Co., N. Y., town of Athol; she was daughter of Geo. Seymour Andrews; her mother's maiden name was Margaret McEwen; have six children—Margaret, now Mrs. Robert Bogie, Waupun; Helen Josephine, now Mrs. David Stoddart, of Alto; Benj. F., lives in Brandon; Isodene, Geo. W. and Bertha, still living with their parents; has 260 acres of land in Fond du Lac Co., worth $10 per acre. In politics, Greenbacker.

WILLIAM M. JONES, foundryman, Waupun; born in Cortland, Westchester Co., N. Y., June 12, 1822; son of Samuel Jones, who was a brave soldier in the war of 1812; his father was Smith Jones a New York State man, and his father was from Wales; Samuel Jones was a farmer and mechanic; he died in 1843, at the age of 64; William, when 15 years old, commenced to learn the iron-molder's trade in Peekskill; worked at that trade three and a half years; then went to Lawrenceville, Penn. Married, in 1842, Angelina Herrick, daughter of Job Herrick, who was a native of Vermont; children are Mary E., now Mrs. Walker, early developed a fine voice for music, and is now considered one of the fine singers in the country; she is now in Chicago; William A., died in 1878; Frances, married A. Freeman, and is living in Minnesota; Emma A., married J. H. Robbins, and is living in Michigan; William M., died in infancy; Evia D., is living at home; Edgar H., married Emma Baldwin; he is a molder by trade; Delia, living at home; Jeff, married a Gamble. Mr. William Jones, after marriage, went to Peekskill and to Port Chester, and then to Troy, N. Y., and to Painted Post, where he engaged in the stove and tinware business; then went to Knoxville, Penn., and to Waukesha, Wis., in 1854, and, in 1856, to Horicon, and, in August, 1873, came to Waupun and has been engaged in the foundry business ever since. Mr. Jones was elected Constable when in Knoxville, and, in Horicon, was Supervisor and on the Village Board. Mr. Jones is a Royal Arch Mason; has been connected with Masonry thirty-five years. Mr. Jones is a man of earnest convictions; if he believes he is right, he "sticks to it;" he has a competence through his hard work and attention to business.

ELI JOHNSON (deceased), was born May 5, 1827, in Erie Co., N. Y., first came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1848; bought a farm; then returned to New York, and was married, April 24, 1850, to Angeline E. Nichols, who was born Aug. 6, 1828, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.; daughter of Almon and Jerusha Nichols, who are still living in Erie Co., N. Y. In the fall of 1850, he again came to Wisconsin, and settled on the farm he already owned in the town of Waupun, Sec. 17, where he resided at the time of his death, which occurred April 24, 1879 (on his wedding anniversary), of dropsy, after an illness of about six months. His father, Elisha Johnson, is still living in Erie Co., N. Y., aged about 80. His mother's maiden name was Anna Chaffee; she died in June, 1861; his grandfather was a Captain in the war of 1812, and, when a child 2 years old, was carried by his mother, on her back, from Wyoming to Buffalo, through the wilderness, to escape from the Indians at the Wyoming massacre. Mr. Johnson was a thorough-going Republican, from the time the party was organized, and took an active part in rousing men and means to carry on the war during the rebellion; also took a great deal of interest in educational matters. Left a family of six children, three of whom, viz., George, Helen (now Mrs. Le Grand Tillotson) and Horace Greeley, are living in Lake Co., D. T., and Morrimer Bodwell, Fred W. and Emery R., living on the homestead with their mother. The estate consists of a 200-acre farm, with good buildings, which, with the stock, is valued at almost $12,000. Both members of the Free-Will Baptist Church.

JOHN M. LOOP, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Ladoga; born Feb. 25, 1827, in the town of Solon, Cortland Co., N. Y.; came to Wisconsin in the summer of 1843, and settled in the town of Wheatland, in what was then Racine Co. (now Kenosha Co.); engaged in farming there for three years; then came to Iron Ridge, Dodge Co., and lived there till December, 1865; then went to Le Roy, six miles north of Mayville, and in October, 1875, came to the town of Waupun and bought the farm he now owns; 320 acres in Waupun and 40 acres opposite in Springvale; paid $10,000 for the 160 acres. Was married first, in January 1842, to Catharine Niver, of Iron Ridge, Wis., who died July 21, 1862, leaving three children—Addie, now Mrs. John Hungerford, of Le Roy; Seymour A., and Sarah, now Mrs. Matt Slade, of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co. May 11, 1864, married, for his second wife, Emma Niver (a sister of his first wife), by whom he has six children—Della, John, Artie, Frank Everett, Allen and Mirta L. Was Assessor of Waupun in 1877.

WILLIS LANG, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Waupun; born Jan. 30, 1832, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.; came to Wisconsin in June, 1848, and worked at blacksmithing in the village of Waupun two years; then went to Waushara Co., Wis., and followed farming in the town of Leon till September, 1855, and worked at blacksmithing again until June, 1865; then bought the farm he now owns in the town of Waupun, and has resided there since. Has 240 acres, worth $40 per acre; in the spring of 1876, he built a cheese factory 24x44, two stories, and has run it four seasons, using the milk of over five hundred cows in the summer of 1878; the last summer about two hundred and fifty. Was married Jan. 1, 1856, to Mary Splain, who died Dec. 13, 1867, aged 33, leaving six children; Milan died Aug. 1, 1868, aged 18 months, leaving five living at the present time, viz., Henry, Alice, Mary, Maggie and Lottie; was married a second time, June 13, 1868, to Mrs. Mary E. Place, whose maiden name was Hughes; her first husband, E. F. Place, was a native of St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.; enlisted, in February, 1863, in Co. D, 3d W. V. I., and died in Harney Hospital, Madison, Wis., March 4, 1865, leaving four children—Emma (now Mrs. T. B. Dailey, of Great Bend, Kan.), Theresa, Mary and Nellie. Mr. Lang, by his second marriage, has three children—Willis, David and Guy.

THOMAS McCARTY, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Ladoga; born July 12, 1829, in County Roscommon, Ireland, parish of Crogham; son of Michael McCarty; he came to America in 1855, and lived in Wayne Co., N. Y., one year; then came to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Black Wolf, Winnebago Co.; in 1862, he removed to Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co.; lived there one year, and then went to Lamartine (same county), and resided there until 1878; then sold out, and bought seventy acres for $3,150, in the town of Waupun, where he now resides. He was married, Feb. 4, 1856, to Mrs. Mary Power, whose maiden name was Mary McGraw; she was born in the County Waterford, parish of Cestran, Ireland, March 17, 1820; they have two children, John and Martin; Mrs. McCarty had seven children by her first husband—Richard, Thomas, James, Mary, Neddie, Patrick and Margaret. In politics, Mr. McCarty is a Democrat, and both himself and wife are members of the Catholic Church.

JAMES McELROY, retired farmer, Waupun; born in County Armagh, North of Ireland, Oct. 17, 1809; son of William McElroy; his father was John McElroy, and the family originally came from Scotland; William McElroy and family came to Canada in the fall of 1821, and engaged in farming; William died Oct. 8, 1871, at the good old age of 93; James was brought up to work, and, at an early age, earned his own living; he used to chop wood, and cleared land for from $2.50 to $6 per acre; by dint of industry, he accumulated enough of money to buy fifty acres of wild land in Canada, which he cleared and sold; he then bought 100 acres of Church reserve land, worked that until 1836, when he sold out and went to Michigan to settle on ninety-three acres—paid $10 per acre, and afterward sold for $30 per acre, and came to Wisconsin in 1848 (he had been here in 1845, prospecting), and settled on 160 acres in the towns of Alto, Waupun and Trenton, then added eighty acres more, and afterward forty more; he now owns one of the finest farms in this part of the country; in May, 1872, he moved into the city of Waupun; through his industry and untiring energy, he now has a competence; Mr. McElroy, in the town of Alto, was Supervisor two years, and County Commissioner two years, and was ten years Chairman of Board of Supervisors; in 1863, was elected to the Assembly, and served on several committees. Married, Jan. 16, 1834, Harriet E. Taylor, daughter of Capt. John Taylor, who was a soldier in the war of 1812; their children are Eliza (married A. Roney), John W. (is farming in the town of Trenton), R. B. McElroy (is in Milwaukee in the commission business—he married a Miss Burnham), Allen T. (married a Miss Ackerman); two children died in infancy; Mr. McElroy and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and have been for about forty years; he has been Class-Leader, Trustee and Steward, most of this time; he has been President of the Old Settlers' Club ever since its organization, and has been President of the Waupun Mutual Insurance Company ever since it started; he has been an Odd Fellow many years, and has taken all the degrees, and attended the Grand Lodge, and Mrs. McElroy is a member of the Rebecca Lodge, and she has held all the offices; Mr. McElroy has also been a Mason many years, and belongs to the Temple of Honor and Good Templars also. He owes his success in life to his unceasing hard work, indomitable perseverance and untiring industry.

PARLEY MERRIAM, retired farmer, Sec. 33; P. O. Waupun; born Feb. 14, 1795, in Oxford, Worcester Co., Mass. He was married, Jan. 14, 1822, to Lucy Brown, who was born Feb. 16, 1795, in the town of Thompson, Windham Co., Conn.; after marriage, he lived in Massachusetts and Connecticut until 1831; then removed with his family to Otsego Co., N. Y., and followed farming in the town of Butternuts until 1844, when he came to Wisconsin, and lived two years in the town of Genesee (then Milwaukee Co., now Waukesha); in the spring of 1846, he came to Fond du Lac Co., and located on Sec. 33, in the town of Waupun, where he still resides; he was Supervisor of the town of Waupun several years, and Captain of a militia company in Massachusetts, where he is still known among his old acquaintances as Capt. Merriam; Mrs. Merriam died in Waupun, Sept. 24, 1878, of old age, being in her 84th year; there are three children living, as follows: Sarah (now Mrs. D. L. Bancroft, of Waupun), Ira and Nelson, both living in the town of Waupun; Mr. Merriam was among the first settlers of the town of Waupun, and with them stood his share of the hardships and privations incident to settling up a new country. He cast his first vote in a Presidential election for James Monroe, and has never missed an election since, except two Presidential elections when Wisconsin was a Territory; he was an Old Time Whig, and has voted the Republican ticket ever since the party was organized; now, at the age of 85, he takes a lively interest in politics, and feels anxious to live long enough to cast one more Republican vote for President. Nelson Merriam was born May 4, 1832, in Otsego Co., N. Y., and came West with his parents; was married, Nov. 20, 1872, to Ellen Boardman, who was born April 23, 1849; they have two children—Hugh N. and Ray C.; he has 240 acres of land, valued at almost $10,000; Mrs. Merriam is a member of the M. E. Church; Mr. Merriam pays a good deal of attention to stock-raising, especially sheep; he sold over 6,000 pounds of wool in the fall of 1879.

L. W. MILES, farmer, Sec. 10, P. O. Waupun; born Feb. 6, 1841, in Coos Co., N. H., came to Wisconsin in the spring of 1864, and was employed at carpenter work in the city of Fond du Lac for about four years. May 6, 1867, he was married to Arabella Kendall, who was born Nov. 26, 1850, in the town of Fond du Lac, two miles south of the city, in what is known as the "Two Mile House," kept at that time by her father, — Kendall; April 1, 1868, Mr. Miles left the city of Fond du Lac, living two miles south about a year and a half; then at Seven Mile Creek (Lamartine), about four months, when, on Jan. 24, 1870, he removed to the farm he now owns and occupies, where he has followed farming since, except three years that he worked for the railroad company, from Nov. 1, 1872, to Nov. 1, 1875; he has an eighty-acre farm, valued at about $55 per acre; has five children—Lillie May, born May 1, 1865; Clarence A., Aug. 1, 1869; Carrie Bell and Charles L. (twins), Sept. 3, 1875, and George Franklin, Jan. 3, 1879.

PHELPS MOORE, livery stable; born in Genesee Co., N. Y., Dec. 11, 1827; son of S. F. Moore, who was from Vermont, and was a soldier in the war of 1812; he enlisted when at the age of 18, and was engaged in several battles; he emigrated to Erie Co., N. Y., and died when about 56 years old. Phelps Moore came to Waupun in the fall of 1849; he went to La Crosse and entered 180 acres of land; he lived in Minnesota three years; in 1851, engaged in the grocery business in Waupun and afterward went into the livery business, which he has been successfully engaged in since; he has the best livery stock in this part of the country. Mr. Moore married Anna M. Hewitt, daughter of George A. Hewitt; the children were Edith M., died when 2 years old; Ellis T., is attending college; Bay, is attending school in Waupun. Mr. Moore is a man of liberal spirit, and a prominent member of the society of Odd Fellows.

AMOS NUDD, merchant; born in Rockingham Co., N. H., Sept. 6, 1820; son of John Nudd, who was born and brought up in the same county, and his father, Wear Nudd, was also "raised" in New Hampshire, and was enrolled as a minute-man in the Revolution; these ancestors came from England; it is not positively known if they "came over in the Mayflower," or that three brothers came to this country," etc., etc., but the family has a good record, and belonged to that good old Puritan stock whose blood has coursed the veins of the noblest men and women America has produced. Mr. John Nudd was a well-to-do farmer; when the war of 1812 came he joined the ranks and helped whip the British again; he lived, and died on the old homestead Jan. 8, 1867, at the age of 78. He was a member of the Legislature at one time, and was every way a citizen honored and respected. His wife was Mary Worthington, who died years ago. Amos lived at home till 1851, then went to Exeter, N. H., and engaged in business there five years; then emigrated to Richland, Wis., taught school at times, and in August, 1862, came to Waupun and became engaged with M. J. Althouse in the manufacture of pumps; Mr. Nudd was the inventor of a lateral waste valve, which was applied to these pumps; he accepted a position in the counting-room of the concern, and was there till 1874, and was also with Althouse, Wheeler & Co.; May, 1877, formed copartnership with C. M. Brooks, and engaged in the furniture business, under the firm name of Brooks & Nudd; they have been carrying on a very successful business. Mr. Nudd married, Dec. 22, 1840, Lucy A. James, daughter of E. M. James, who was a good old Yankee from Deerfield, Rockingham Co., N. H. The old homestead is in possession of Fred P. James, who is one of the Directors of the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad; the children were George, who died when 5 years old; Georgina L., married C. D. Nichols, and living in Columbus, Cherokee Co. Kan.; Mary L., married George Foster, and is living in Oshkosh, Wis.; Nellie F., married Albert Raymond, and is living in Chester; one child died in 1858, and another in 1854. Mr. Nudd's brother, William Nudd, was a brave soldier in the 15th N. H. V. I., was in many battles, and died from exposure, in August, 1864. Mr. Nudd has held offices of trust, and is a member of the society of Odd Fellows; he is also a strong advocate of temperance and a member of the Temple of Honor. It doesn't require the aid of stimulants or narcotics to make Mr. N. a jovial companion, a wit, or a poet—these acquirements are inherent.

J. N. O'BRIEN, M. D., physician and surgeon; born in West Chester, Penn., Sept. 15, 1838; Dr. O'Brien entered Notre Dame College in 1856 and graduated in 1859; commenced the study of medicine at the Rush Medical College in 1861; eminent among the profession there at that time Prof. Brainard, James Adams Allen, Prof. J. W. Freer, Prof. Ray; Dr. O'Brien, after a thorough course of study, commenced the practice of medicine in Plymouth, Sheboygan Co., Wis., and, in 1878, came to Waupun; he is a member of the State Medical Society and a prominent member of the American Medical Association; also a member of the County Medical Society; he has a large and constantly increasing practice. Dr. O'Brien married, in May, 1866, Anna J. Smith, daughter of Col. H. N. Smith, late Warden of the Wisconsin State Prison and who for many years was a prominent Democratic politician of the State; the children are Daisy, born July 4, 1869; Sarah, born Oct. 24, 1872; Harold N., born in April, 1877. The Doctor is a man of genial temperament, and, although his valuable time is mostly occupied with his studies and practice, he occasionally finds an opportunity to follow the sports of the field, and game from mud hens to deer have to suffer.

R. L. OLIVER, attorney; born in Scotland, May 4, 1834; son of Thos. Oliver, a hardware merchant; he came to the town of Alto, Wis., in 1848; came to Waupun and engaged in the manufacture of plows; was successfully engaged till 1858, when he went into the hardware business and carried it on till the time of his death, Dec. 29, 1868. Robert enlisted in Co. D, 3d W. V. I.; was in all the battles that that regiment engaged in; was appointed Sergeant Major after the battle of Antietam on account of bravery; returned to Waupun in 1864; commenced the study of law in 1865 and now has a successful practice. Married Grace Sampey, daughter of Thos. Sampey; have had three children—Ada Belle, Gertie and Grace.

ANDREW OLSON, farmer; Sec. 34; P. O. Waupun; born January 27, 1831, in Norway, near the city of Christiania; came to America in 1855, and settled in the village of Waupun, lived there three years, then bought a sixty-acre farm on Sec. 29, in the town of Waupun, where he resided until the fall of 1870, when he bought the farm he now occupies and has lived there since. Has 251 acres, valued at about $12,000. Was married August 25, 1859, to Charity Higginson, who was born January 24, 1835, also in Norway, and came to America in 1854; has five children—Olive H., Clara G., Nellie Harriet, Jennie Augusta and Alfred Clarence. He is Republican, and both Lutherans.

E. A. PADGHAM, merchant; born in Madison Co., N. Y., Sept. 6, 1840; son of John Padgham, who was born in Sussex, Eng., Feb. 21, 1799; he was a miller by trade, and was also a local Methodist preacher of celebrity; he married, Oct. 11, 1824, Miss Charlotte Hobbs, of St. Peter's Isle, Thanite, Eng.; she was born May 6, 1798; the family came to America in 1830, and Mr. John Padgham engaged in farming, which he carried on successfully till the time of his death; his wife is now living in Randolph, Wis., at the good old age of 81; she has in her possession some of a celebrated brand of flour that her husband made, the week they were married, in the old Northwood Windmill at St. Lawrence, Eng. Edward A. Padgham came to Waupun in 1861 to take charge of Euen's Prison City Item office; he shortly after entered Co. K, 10th W. V. I.; was in all the engagements with his regiment; served his time faithfully, and was mustered out Nov. 3, 1864, after having served three years and three months; returned to Waupun, and married, Jan. 3, 1865, Miss Addie Moore, daughter of Mills Moore; have had one child—Jessie A., born Dec. 29, 1872. In 1865, Mr. Padgham was engaged with Phelps Moore, and then with Sikes & Nichols; then accepted a position with Mr. Van Valkenburg, and, shortly after, went to work for L. V. Preston, druggist; in 1867, Mr. Padgham loaded all his worldly possessions on a wagon, and, with ox-teams, took his march with his family for the great West; they traveled many hundred miles, and suffered some hardships; after getting into Iowa, and not finding the prospect pleasing, they retraced their way to Waupun; Mr. Padgham is now successfully engaged in business in Waupun; has one of the neatest and handsomest stores in the city, and carries a very complete and well-assorted stock of groceries, crockery, etc. Himself and wife are members of the Congregational Church.

CHARLES RANK, retired merchant; born June 14, 1824, in Ruegen, Germany, an island in the Baltic Sea and a place of summer resort; he was the son of Carl Louis Rank. Charles was a soldier in the old country in the 28th Regiment Prussian Infantry; was honorably discharged at Aix La Chapelle June 22, 1848; this was one of the regiments sent to Rastad-Baden to quell a rebellion in which Carl Schurz, Gen. Sigel and others, since citizens of fame in this country, were prominent leaders. Carl Louis Rank and family came to Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6, 1848; Carl shortly after to Washington Co., and died there in 1854; he was born Jan. 9, 1793. Charles was a journeyman tailor in Milwaukee several years; was employed with H. Friend & Bro. five years; in the fall of 1854, engaged in business for himself near the Kirby House; in May, 1855, came to Waupun and started a general store in company with

Jacob Carter

METOMEN.

John Manz, under the firm name of Rank & Manz; in 1863, he bought Manz out and carried on the business very successfully till 1876; he has now a competence through his good business management and square dealing, owning one of the finest business blocks of the city, which he erected in 1868. Married, Dec. 25, 1854, Christiana Luick, born in Nittingen, Wurtemberg; have had five children—Louisa, born Sept. 15, 1855, died May 7, 1858; Ella G., born Sept. 25, 1858; Lucy E., born Feb. 9, 1862, living at home; Charles A., born Sept. 5, 1864, living at home; William Edward, born Aug. 26, 1866, at home. Ella is teaching school at Oak Center, Fond du Lac Co. Mr. Rank was liberal during the war, giving his aid and support freely to the great cause of national sovereignty.

JOHN J. ROBERTS, merchant; born Feb. 5, 1843, in Wales; son of O. R. Roberts. The family came to Columbia Co., Wis., in the spring of 1847. Mr. O. R. Roberts was a prominent and respected citizen in the old country and held positions of trust; he was a man of more than ordinary culture; he died about 1867 at the age of 75. John, when 17 years old, went to work for Gov. Smith, and, in August, 1862, enlisted in Co. E, 29th W. V. I.; served about ten months, and returned and raised a company for the 48th W. V. I., and entered the service again as First Lieutenant of Co. B, and was afterward promoted to captaincy; served his time faithfully and was honorably discharged. On his return, worked for William E. Smith for awhile, then went in partnership with R. P. Smith in general merchandise store; came to Waupun in the fall of 1870, and engaged in trade with Lewis Smith, and, about ten months after, took the entire business himself, which he has been carrying on very successfully ever since; he is agent for the American Express Co.; he keeps one of the largest and best-assorted stocks of groceries, boots and shoes, crockery, etc., in the city, and deserves a big "credit mark" for his industry and good business management; Mr. Roberts does not let a chance for shrewd speculation pass without getting his hand in. He married, in September, 1868, Miss Jennie Smith, daughter of Alexander Smith and sister of Gov. Smith; the children by this marriage are Malevlin J., born in August, 1869, and died when 6 months old; Jessie May, born in November, 1871; Almira Chamberlain, in March, 1874; Ira Smith, born Aug. 23, 1878. Mr. Roberts is a Mason and member of the Commandery.

ROBERT K. SATTERFIELD, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Ladoga; born July 4, 1834, in Berkeley Co., W. Va.; his parents removed to Champion, Ohio, when he was about 15 years of age; he came to Wisconsin in 1855, and settled in the town and county of Fond du Lac, and lived there till May, 1873, then bought his present farm in the town of Waupun. Has eighty acres, worth $4,000. November 14, 1860, he was married to Mrs. Jane Roblee, whose maiden name was Jane Bigford; has two children—Lillian M. and Keyes L. Republican.

J. W. SEELY, capitalist and attorney at law, Waupun; born in Bainbridge, Chenango Co., N. Y., Dec. 10, 1819; son of Henry Seely, who was from Bedford, Westchester Co., N. Y.; the family came from England as early as 1690 and settled near Stamford, Conn.; a grandfather, Eli Seely, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and his brother Thaddeus was taken prisoner and wounded and was never after heard of; Henry Seely died in Bainbridge, in 1848, at the age of 61; Josiah W. Seely taught school in New York State when 16 years old, and in 1835 commenced reading law and finished his course at Ithaca, N. Y.; was admitted to practice at the Supreme Court in Albany, N. Y., and has practiced law successfully to the present time; in 1858, he came to Marquette Co., Wis.; was there five years, and then came to Waupun, Dodge Co. Married Miss M. S. Humphrey, daughter of Col. Austin N. Humphrey, of Connecticut, who was a descendant of Lea Humphrey, of Revolutionary fame; the children are Henry A., who has attended school at Ripon College and Madison University; Clara M., who has attended Ripon College, and Minnie D. Mr. Seely owns 140 acres of land, mostly within the city limits; also owns a fine brick block on Main street, and one of the finest residences in the city; also owns a farm of 210 acres in the town of Alto; he is a man of wealth, which he has accumulated through his shrewd management and good business tact; he is quite extensively engaged in handling cattle, sheep and hogs, and is an active, sterling business man. Himself and family are members of the Episcopal Church.

F. E. SIKES, merchant, Waupun; born in Granby, Mass., May 1, 1812; son of Edward Sikes, who was born in Lowell, Mass. The family came to Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in spring of 1844, and Edward engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a successful farmer for twenty-one years, and moved to Waupun in 1865, and Jan. 19, 1866, Mr. F. E. Sikes engaged in general merchandise business, which he has carried on in a business-like and successful way ever since; his father, Mr. Edward Sikes, is living in Waupun at the age of 72. While living in Oakfield, he held many offices of trust. Francis E. married in March, 1877, the Widow Robins, daughter of J. S. Gee; there is one child by this union—Frank Trewman. Mr. Sikes enlisted Aug. 15, 1862, in the 21st W. V. I.; was in many engagements, among which were Perryville, Champion Hills and Stone River; at Perryville, had four balls shot through his clothing; he was honorably discharged after serving his time faithfully. Mr. Sikes carries a large and well-assorted stock of groceries, boots and shoes and notions, and, through his strict attention to business and good management, is building up a prosperous trade.

PETER SEIFERT, brewer, Waupun; born in Germany, 1834; came to Milwaukee June 1, 1850, and engaged in the brewery business, was there a year; he then went to Iowa, and was there three years, when he returned to Milwaukee and engaged in the same business, and came to Waupun in July, 1870, and bought a brewery, made many important improvements, and now carries on a large and constantly growing business; he supplies nearly all the trade in the surrounding country, his beer is generally noted for its good qualities. Mr. Seifert married, Nov. 21, 1857, Catherine Bratzie; children—Mary (died in infancy), Peter (lived to be 21 years 6 months and 9 days old, and died in September, 1879, he was a youth of much promise), Otto (died when 6 years old), Barteon (died when young), Anna E. is living at home, as is also Eddie Seifert. Mr. Seifert is a respected member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and himself and family members of the Catholic Church.

GEORGE W. STANTON, elevator and grain business, Waupun; born in Strafford Co., N. H., Jan. 2, 1821; son of John Stanton, who was in the war of 1812, and was a well-to-do farmer in that county; his father was John Stanton, who was in the war of the Revolution; John Stanton, Jr., died in 1864, at the age of 74. Mr. George Stanton worked in the lumber business, in the neighborhood of Moosehead Lake, Me., and at the head-waters of the St. John's and Kennebeck Rivers fifteen winters; the family came West in 1856, to the town of Trenton, Dodge Co., and settled on 320 acres; also owned 800 acres of fine land in the northern part of the State; rented his farm in 1865, and moved to Waupun, and engaged in buying grain; has been thus employed ever since. Mr. Stanton married, in 1842, Hannah C. Lord, daughter of Joseph L. Lord, who was extensively engaged in the lumber business in the State of Maine; the children by this union were Charles M., who died when 22 years old; Joseph, died when 5 years old; another, died in infancy; Joseph E., married a Shipman, and is living in Waupun; Elizabeth E., married A. L. Clark; George W., Jr., is in the grain business with his father. Mr. Stanton has held different offices of trust, and, through his industry and good judgment, has built up the largest grain business in this part of the country.

DR. MARCUS SWAIN, physician, Waupun; born in Windsor Co., Vt., town of Reading, June 10, 1808; son of Nathaniel Swain; his father was also Nathaniel Swain, of Scotch descent. Dr. Marcus Swain was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1833, and located in Westford, Vt.; practiced medicine there ten years; then went to Essex, and, in 1857, went to Oshkosh, Wis.; was burned out, and, in 1861, came to Waupun; removed to Englewood, near Chicago, and returned to Waupun in the fall of 1878. Dr. Swain has a large and successful practice; held the position of physician in the State's Prison from 1861 to 1865. He married, in May, 1835, Charlotte M. Woodbury, daughter of Hubbard Woodbury, of Barry, Mass.; had seven children—Edgar D., who raised a company and enlisted as Captain in the 42d Ill. V. I., at Batavia, Ill. (he fought bravely in the many battles that his regiment engaged in, and was promoted to be Colonel of the regiment for his valor; returning from the war, he resumed his profession as dentist, and located in Chicago, where he now has an extensive and lucrative practice; he is Colonel of the 1st Ill. V. I.); Alice M. Swain, is living with her father; Marcus W., was killed on the railroad at Freeport, Ill.; George A., died in Tennessee during the war; Ida, died in infancy; Charlotte L., married A. Klepser, now of Milwaukee; Oliver D., engaged in dentistry with his brother in Chicago. Col. Edgar married Clara Smith, daughter of Benjamin Smith; Oliver D. married Annie Cromwell, who traces her ancestry back to the great Oliver Cromwell. Mr. Swain and wife are members of the Congregational Church.

W. H. TAYLOR, insurance agent and conveyancer, Waupun; was born in Warsaw, Wyoming Co., N. Y., March 3, 1821; his opportunities for an early education were very limited; the common or district school at that time was very ordinary, when compared with the high standard to which it has now attained; losing his mother at an early age, and with no one upon whom he could depend for help, he was compelled to rely upon himself, and was, therefore, deprived of those advantages so necessary for the proper training of the young; in 1843, he left his native State, and resided three and one-half years at Willoughby, Ohio; not being contented there, he left Ohio in 1846, to find a home at the West; landing at Chicago, and traveling over some part of Northern Illinois, he was not pleased with the country, especially that between Chicago and Lockport; he resolved to make a trip from Lockport north, through the eastern part of Wisconsin, toward Sheboygan, so that, in case he did not find any country that pleased him, he could take passage back to Ohio; at that time, the land in the counties of Dodge and Fond du Lac was open to entry, and was rapidly being settled; the fame of the natural resources of these counties was widespread and had its influence in attracting him toward Waupun, which place he reached on the 6th of October, 1846; at that time, Waupun was but a mere hamlet; there were but four buildings there, any part of which is now standing; being of an active temperament, he could not remain idle; he possessed the happy faculty of being able to turn his attention to such business as presented itself; he found employment at fair wages, and resolved to make Waupun his future home. In 1849, he married Miss Mary E. Fairbank, daughter of F. G. Fairbank, who migrated from Western New York, about 1844; in his marital relations, Mr. Taylor was very fortunate, the wife of his choice proving to be a good Christian lady, loved by all with whom she associated, for her goodness of heart and gentle disposition, and, as Mr. Taylor himself says, she had a strong influence over him, and had much to do in shaping his character for life. He has been engaged in many pursuits—merchandising, real estate, insurance; in all of which he has been successful; he has held various offices of trust, and has ever been characterized as prompt and faithful. The result of his married life was two children, one died in infancy, the other, a daughter, now the wife of Dr. J. E. Gee, of Brandon, Wis. Mr. Taylor has always taken much interest in the welfare of Waupun and the surrounding country; he has always been active in building up and sustaining the interests of Waupun; his hands have always been open to those in need; in the spring of 1870, he lost his wife, since which time he has seemingly lived for the benefit of his daughter and friends.

AARON G. THOMAS, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Ladoga; born Jan. 27, 1835, in Warren Co., N. Y.; parents came to Wisconsin when he was 15 years old, and settled in Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co.; he remained with them till Nov. 6, 1862, when he married Miss Sally Fancher, who was born Sept. 12, 1843, in Genesee Co., N. Y.; her parents came to Wisconsin when she was only 3 years of age, and settled in Lamartine, where they now reside. In the fall of 1865, Mr. Thomas bought a farm in Eden, Fond du Lac Co., and lived there till the spring of 1879, then exchanged for the farm he now owns in Waupun, where he has since resided; has 166 acres, valued at $6,000. Has four children—Anna, Joseph, Mary and Henry, all at home. Mrs. Thomas is a member of the United Brethren Church. In politics, Mr. Thomas is Republican.

ISAAC THOMPSON, machinist, Waupun; born in Sedber, England, Nov. 14, 1846; lived in several different places in England, among them, Rugby, Cherry Burton, Preston and Kendall; came to America in 1861 and settled in Fond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 14, of that year; worked on a farm for about a year, then worked for O. Hornby, of Chester Station, Dodge Co., two years at the same business (farming); Dec. 21, 1864, he enlisted in the 51st W. V. L. Co. K, to serve one year or during the war, and was discharged May 1, 1865, at Madison, Wis.; in 1865, went to work in the wagon-shop of Wells & Grammis, in Waupun, to learn blacksmithing; worked there about two and one-half years, and from there went to Brandon, then to Chester, and from there to Fond du Lac, where he worked at horseshoeing about a year and a half in the shop of T. S. Nowell, then worked at blacksmithing in Oakfield, Wis., two years. Dec. 28, 1870, was married to Eleanor A. Wood, of Waupun, daughter of Oliver H. and Almira Wood, who came to Wisconsin from Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., in 1847, and settled in Waupun; moved to Oakfield, and lived about nine months after his marriage, then back to Waupun, and commenced work for M. J. Althouse, Nov. 1, 1871, the first year at blacksmithing and since that as machinist, still in the same shop; owns an eighty-acre farm in Greene Co., Iowa; has belonged to the Masonic Fraternity since 1875; has two children—Oliver Henry, born Sept. 30, 1874, and Mary Elizabeth, born Jan. 20, 1877; Lucy Adell was born May 12, 1874, and died the next day after she was born.

GEORGE B. TRADEWELL, farmer; Sec. 24; P. O. Waupun; born May 1, 1826, in Delaware Co., N. Y. Was married, Jan. 1, 1850, to Maria Paine, who was born Sept. 18, 1826, also in Delaware Co., town of Meredith, daughter of Thompson Paine; soon after his marriage, Mr. Tradewell went to Sullivan Co., Penn., and lived there almost two years, working a part of the time in a match factory, and part of the time peddling tobacco, cigars and matches; he then went to Smithboro, Tioga Co., N. Y., where he worked at blacksmithing and wagon-making till the fall of 1854, then came to Wisconsin, and has lived in the town of Waupun ever since, except about six months in the town of Lomira, Dodge Co.; for the first few years after he came to Wisconsin he worked at painting and carpenter work, and for the last fourteen years has been selling agricultural implements for M. K. Dahl, of Waupun; has eighty acres of land, worth about $4,000. Held the office of Constable six years, and was elected Justice of the Peace, but never qualified. Has six children—Annette, Thompson J., Cassius De Ville, Charles, Aaron and Lydia; has lost two—Emma, died April 23, 1877, aged 13 years, and Byron, died May 5, 1877, aged 10 years 7 months and 16 days. In politics, Republican.

JOHN S. VAN EPS, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Ladoga; born Jan. 14, 1820, in the town of Homer, Cortland Co., N. Y.; son of Jeremiah and Isabell Van Eps; he came to Wisconsin in October, 1845, and settled in the town of North Bend (now Barton), Washington Co., where he followed farming and teaching for about thirty-two years; held the office of Town Clerk and Assessor of the town. June 3, 1847, was married to Helen Fraser, who was born Jan. 21, 1821, in Livingston Co., N. Y., and died July 31, 1868, in Washington Co., Wis.; had five children—Nettie, born March 9, 1848 (is now the wife of Dwight Isbell, of the town of Waupun); Libbie, born Aug. 14, 1853; Emma, April 17, 1857; John J., Feb. 23, 1859, and Helen, born Sept. 2, 1861. In the spring of 1874 he removed to the town of Waupun, Fond du Lac Co., where he has resided since; own 100 acres of land for which he paid $5,500. Republican in politics.

WALKER BROS., merchants, Waupun. Charles H. Walker, born in Newburg, Ohio, Aug. 8, 1846; son of Levi Walker, who died Jan. 16, 1852, at the age of 44. His brother, Hiram Walker, came to Waupun in 1844, at the same time Wileox and Aekerman did; was one of the first white men here; he settled on 107 acres in what is now the city of Waupun; he died in Charles City, Minn., in 1872, at the age of 60. The family came to Waupun in 1848. Levi Walker married Jane A. Powers, of Ferrisburg, Vt.; they had six children—Hattie A. married Johnson Soper, and they are living in Canada; George Walker is in Washington Territory; Gid. T. Walker married M. P. Allen; Nathan S. is in New Mexico; Levi J. married Sarah Woodard, and is living in California; Chas. H. is the next one in order. Mr. G. T. Walker is the father of Jessie M. (born Feb. 29, 1872), Levi (born Feb. 16, 1879). Mr. Charles H. Walker, together with his brother, Mr. G. T. Walker, engaged in the mercantile business Nov. 6, 1878, under the firm name of Walker Bros.; they have a complete and well-assorted stock of groceries, boots and shoes, crockery, etc., and, by close attention to business and general good management, have built up a flourishing and increasing business. Mr. G. T. Walker was elected Alderman of the city of Waupun in 1878; their mother, who was born Aug. 31, 1810, is living in Waupun.

R. W. WELLS, druggist, Waupun; born in Waterbury, Vt., Nov. 17, 1833; son of William W. Wells, who was a mill owner and largely engaged in the tannery business; he was a prominent and respected citizen; was at one time a member of the Legislature; his father was Roswell Wells, and came from Massachusetts; his wife was Parmelia White, of one of the oldest Puritan families. Wm. W. Wells married Eliza Carpenter; they had eight children—R. W. Wells; Edward, who is engaged in the wholesale drug business in Burlington, Vt.; Gen. William Wells, who is Collector of Customs at Burlington, Vt., and was with the 1st Vt. V. C., was with Sherman and Kilpatrick, and attained the position of General through his bravery and soldierly talent; Curtis Wells, is cashier in Waterbury National Bank, Waterbury, Vt.; Charles and Sarah Wells (twins)—Charles is connected with the Custom House, Burlington, Sarah married J. W. Brock, of Montpelier, Vt.; Henry and Fred are in the drug business in Burlington, Vt. Mr. R. W. Wells came to Beloit, Wis., Nov. 17, 1855; then went to Fond du Lac and to Racine, and finally, April 24, 1856, engaged in the drug business in Waupun; he has built up a first-class and prosperous traffic through close attention to business, keeping the finest assortment of drugs and druggist's sundries in the city. Married, Oct. 27, 1856, Tryphosa A. Wright, of Shoreham, Vt., daughter of M. W. Wright, who has been County Judge and member of the Legislature; the children are Ella M., William, Fred, and Kate, who died in infancy. Mr. Wells has been Treasurer of the village and city of Waupun for many years. Himself and wife are members of the Episcopal Church.

GEORGE WELLS, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Waupun; born Feb. 11, 1819, in Wayne Co., N. Y. He was married, in November, 1842, to Veleria Ann Farrand, who died eleven months after marriage, leaving one child, which survived its mother only one month; May 11, 1845, he married Nancy Edmunds, of Wayne Co., N. Y., who died Sept. 3, 1870, at the age of 50. Mr. Wells first came to Wisconsin in May, 1846; lived in the town of Waupun, on Sec. 24, two and one-half years; then returned to New York and followed farming in Wayne Co. seven years; in March, 1854, he again came to Wisconsin and located on the farm he now owns, in Waupun; has 429½ acres, worth $40 per acre. Sept. 7, 1871, he married, for his third wife, Betsy Jenkins, whose maiden name was Palmer; has one child—Hattie, born Oct. 15, 1872. Republican, and both members of the Wesleyan Methodist Church.

FRANK WHALEY, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Waupun; born April 10, 1845, in Wyoming Co., N. Y.; son of Wm. and Sally A. Whaley, who came to Wisconsin when he was only 11 years of age, and settled in the town of Waupun. His father died April 5, 1878, aged 62 years, and his mother is now living in Wyoming Co., N. Y. Frank was married, Oct. 11, 1865, to Emily Holden, who was born Sept. 30, 1845, in Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.; daughter of Chauncey and Almira Holden, who came to Wisconsin in the spring of 1851, and settled in the town of Waupun, on Sec. 15, where they both died—Mrs. Holden Oct. 27, 1858, and Mr. Holden July 20, 1877, aged 56—leaving three children—Mrs. Frank Whaley, Mrs. L. E. Beardsley, and Florence E. Holden, who died Jan. 22, 1860. Mr. and Mrs. Whaley have three children—Florence M., born Aug. 7, 1866; Leila F., Feb. 18, 1872, and George H., Nov. 9, 1875.

Immediately after his marriage, Mr. Whaley went to Wyoming Co., N. Y., where Florence M. was born, and lived there three years; then returned to Wisconsin, and has resided in the town of Waupun ever since; bought his present farm in October, 1872; has 160 acres, worth $8,000. Republican.

WARREN WHITING, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Waupun; born Oct. 12, 1816, in Worcester Co., Mass., son of Amos and Aley Whiting, who removed to Erie Co., N. Y., when he was 3 years old, and remained there till the death of Mr. Whiting, which occurred in December, 1842. Warren Whiting was married, Sept. 5, 1839, to Lorinda Keith, who was born Dec. 19, 1816, in Madison Co., N. Y., daughter of Lincoln and Submit Keith; Mr. Keith is a native of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Keith of New York; he came to Wisconsin in February, 1846, and settled in the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., on Sec. 22; resided there nineteen years; in January, 1865, he came to the town of Waupun, and has resided on Sec. 9 since that time; has now 280 acres of land, valued at $15,000, having divided up among his children 356 acres, worth about $18,000. He has been a member of the Free-Will Baptist Church for forty years, and in the ministry about thirty-eight years; was Chairman of the Board of Supervisors for three years in Springvale, and a number of years in Waupun; was a member of the Assembly in the Legislature of 1859; Elder Whiting was elected by the citizens of Waupun, Springvale, Alto and Metomen, who were opposed to granting aid to the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac R. R. Co., to represent them in the various law suits which grew out of their opposition, and which lasted altogether about three years. Has three children living—Lydia Sophia, now the widow of Arthur H. Sikes, who died May 6, 1878; Ethan E., living on Sec. 10, Waupun, and Alice Emroy, now the wife of Hiram Chandler, living on the homestead. In politics, a Republican.

GEORGE F. WHEELER, member of the firm of Althouse, Wheeler & Co., manufacturers of windmills, pumps, etc., was born in New Haven, Vt., Dec. 23, 1821; son of Moses F. and Mary Ann Wheeler; came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1853, and in the spring of 1854, located on a farm in the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., where he followed farming till Jan. 1, 1861, when he removed to the city of Fond du Lac and assumed the duties of Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co., to which office he had been elected the previous November; in the winter of 1853, after his term of office expired, he returned to his farm in Springvale and remained there till Jan. 1, 1870, when he removed to the then village of Waupun, where he has since resided. In the fall of 1863, he was elected to the State Senate and re-elected in 1865, being four years in the Senate, and was President pro tem. the last two years of the time; in the fall of 1869, he was elected State Prison Commissioner, holding that office till Jan. 1, 1871, when the office was abolished and a Board of Directors appointed instead; in the spring of 1874, he engaged in business with M. J. Althouse and Capt. L. D. Hinkleby, at Waupun, these three composing the firm of Althouse, Wheeler & Co., which business connection continues to the present time. Was married, Dec. 26, 1849, at Leicester, Vt., to Sarah C., daughter of Parley and Sally Enos; has one daughter—Josephine L. Mrs. Wheeler is a member of the Congregational Church.

IRA J. WILCOX, retired, Waupun; born in Waupun, Wis., April 17, 1843; son of Seymour Wilcox, who was from Vermont; he came to Green Bay about 1849, and to Waupun about 1841, and was one with two others to make the first settlement here; he kept a tavern in the early days, and built the Exchange Hotel, and was the landlord there for about three years; he was a man of liberal spirit; he gave to the State the fine tract of land that the State Prison is erected upon; he died in January, 1879, at the age of 74. Ira J. Wilcox was the first white boy born in Waupun. Ira married, Oct. 9, 1864, Angelina C. Middaugh, daughter of Dr. Middaugh, who was a prominent physician in Ithaca, N. Y., practiced medicine in that vicinity for twenty-five years; he is now living in Minnesota at the age of 74.

OLIVER H. WOOD, retired farmer, Waupun; born March 25, 1806, in Essex Co., N. Y., town of Ticonderoga; removed to Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., in 1831, and lived there till the fall of 1849, then came to Wisconsin and settled on Section 6, in the town of Waupun; lived there six years, then sold out and bought sixty acres in Section 27, where he lived another six years, then sold out again and bought three acres in the village of Waupun, where he has since resided. Was married, Nov. 18, 1826, to Almira Day, who was born Oct. 4, 1805, also in Ticonderoga, N. Y.; she died in Waupun April 9, 1879, leaving eight children—Henry F., in the mercantile business in Waupun, Orpha Malinda (now Mrs. David Wing, of Waupun), Mary Jane (now Mrs. M. J. Althouse, of the firm of Althouse, Wheeler & Co., Waupun), Roena Elizabeth (wife of M. P. Althouse, of Freeborn Co., Minn.), George Wellington, lives in Waupun, married Louisa Simpson, of the town of Le Roy, Dodge Co.; enlisted in August, 1861, in the 2d W. V. C., and served one year, Lorenzo D., lives in Nebraska; he enlisted in Co. D, 3d W. V. C.; was wounded at the battle of Antietam, and discharged for disability; afterward enlisted in the 32d W. V. C., Co. —, and served till the close of the war; was married to Eleanor Chandler, of Waupun, who died about a year after marriage, Rufus A. lives in Waupun, and also Eleanor, now Mrs. Isaac Thompson; lost one daughter, Victoria, who was born Oct. 8, 1839, and died in the 19th year of her age. Mr. Wood was married the second time, Sept. 9, 1879, to Mrs. Melissa L. Shattuck, whose maiden name was Farasworth, and who was born Jan. 12, 1820, in Hardwick, Vt. In politics, Republican.

H. F. WOOD, merchant; born in Essex Co., N. Y., July 2, 1829; son of O. H. Wood, who is a retired farmer and capitalist, living in the town of Waupun, and is 76 years of age; his wife, who was Almira Day, died in April, 1879, at the age of 76. Henry was engaged with M. J. Althouse seventeen years; was in partnership with Althouse at one time; in 1877, he retired from business on account of ill health; he had been engaged to this time very successfully running and having entire charge of the general store of M. J. Althouse, situated near the railroad track; the sales one year were over $30,000; in 1879, he entered into copartnership with C. H. Meddins, and carried on an extensive business at the same old stand nearly a year, when this partnership was dissolved. Mr. Wood married, in 1856, Eliza A. Wood, of New York State; they have had three children—Ella, Della and Harry. He has been two terms Trustee of Waupun, and also Constable and Town Treasurer. He is a prominent member of the M. E. Church. Janesville is troubled with cows in her streets; if Mr. Wood had lived in Janesville, the cows would have taken a back seat.

F. FERDINAND ZIMMERMANN, carriage manufacturer, Waupun; born in Saxony, Germany, Oct. 13, 1838; son of Ludwig Zimmermann, who was a soldier seven years in the old country; he was born June 19, 1800, and died May 24, 1878; the family came to New York City in September, 1841, and came to Milwaukee the same year; then went to Mequon, Ozaukee Co., Wis., and engaged in farming; Mr. Frederick F. Zimmermann learned his trade in Milwaukee when 17 years old, then went to Mequon, then to Chicago, and afterward to Burlington, Wis., and in the spring of 1859, came to Waupun, worked seven years at his trade, and in 1866, commenced business on his own account, and has carried on a successful and constantly increasing business; his work is well known, and justly celebrated throughout the surrounding country; his wagons are noted for their durability and workmanlike finish; his sales are not confined to the immediate neighborhood, but he ships largely to other States; he also manufactures buggies, sleighs and cutters, of all kinds. Mr. Zimmermann married, in 1862, Ernestine Seigel; they are the parents of seven children—Ira V., born March 29, 1863; Emma M., born July 13, 1865; Flora A., born May 16, 1868; Louis E., born April 3, 1871; Alfred A., born March 12, 1874; Clara A., born April 27, 1876; Oscar E., born Sept. 16, 1878. Mr. Zimmermann has been on the School Board, and also School Clerk many times, and also a member of the Village Board; is a member of the Society of Odd Fellows, has taken all the degrees; is also a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen; his mother is living with him, at the good old age of 74. Mr. Zimmermann is eminently a self-made man.

AUBURN TOWNSHIP.

OWEN BANNON, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. New Cassel; born in County Louth, Ireland, in 1806; came to America in 1831, and worked sixteen years as a laborer in Dutchess Co., N. Y. Married, in 1849, Miss Rose Hoy, of his native county, who came to America in 1847. In May, 1850, Mr. B. came to Auburn and bought 160 acres of his present farm; of this only ten acres were poorly cleared, on which was a floorless and doorless log house; holes were cut for doors and windows, and blankets hung therein, which seemed a slight protection against the bears that used to be neighborly, so much so as to occasionally "borrow" a pig of him; Mr. B. has seen much of pioneer life, and, as a result of his chopping, breaking and planning, he has 440 acres, mostly improved, and a cozy brick farmhouse in place of the early settlers' log house. Michael, his elder son, was born Jan. 28, 1850; he grew to manhood on the farm; was a student at Milton College, and a graduate of Notre Dame College; a young man of more than ordinary abilities; his death on the 10th of January, 1880, was a severe blow to a large circle of admiring friends. James, the younger son, was born May 28, 1852, and was educated in the High School in Fond du Lac, and the Northwestern College, Evanston, Ill.; he married, Sept. 10, 1878, Miss Bertha Husting, of New Cassel, by whom he has one son—Arnold J. The young couple are on the homestead, and the entire family members of the Roman Catholic Church; politics, Democratic.

ANDREW DIERINGER, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Campbellsport; born in Germany Nov. 20, 1823; spent his early life, was educated and learned blacksmithing, in the Fatherland; came to America July 4, 1844, and spent about ten years at blacksmithing and on the canals in Ohio; in 1854, he settled on a heavily timbered farm in Ashford, on Sec. 30; after seven years, he bought the Griffith saw-mill and eighty acres of land with it; in 1868, he settled on his present farm of 240 acres, which is well improved, he having built a 40x84-foot basement barn; the public and private life of Mr. D. is beyond reproach; he first served two years as a Supervisor of Ashford, and was then its Chairman for ten years, never flinching from duty through the dark and bloody war times, though his devotion to public interests cost him a personal loss of at least $2,000; in 1865, and again 1869, he was chosen a member of the Wisconsin Legislature, and has been twice Chairman of Auburn; was the first President of the Ashford Insurance Company, and in 1875, besides superintending his large farm, he had charge of the material used in building an addition to the St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee. Married, in Ohio, Miss Crecentia Strobel, by whom he has eight children—Valentine, Frank N., Joseph, Mary, Andrew, Catherine, Philipp and Thomas. Mr. D. is a Democrat, and, with his family, a Roman Catholic.

LOUIS EIDEMILLER, M. D., New Cassel; born March 3, 1851, in the city of New York; is of Prussian descent; son of Nicholas and Elizabeth E., who left New York for Wisconsin in 1856, locating at Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co.; the subject of this sketch attained an excellent common-school education, left the farm at fourteen, entered the Commonwealth office, Fond du Lac, learned the trade of printer and remained six years; a partial failure of his health induced him to leave this and enter the office of Drs. Gray & Wyatt, then, as now, considered among the leading Wisconsin physicians; after a course of study under them, he entered the Medical College of Ohio, one of the oldest and best in America, graduating as physician and surgeon; in 1874 began, and has since continued, an active practice in New Cassel. Married Miss Emma Mailhoeber, April, 1874; they have one son—Edwin L., born Nov. 10, 1876. The Doctor is a Democrat; is a member of Fond du Lac Lodge No. 112, I. O. O. F. of the Rock River Medical Society; was the organizer, and is now President of the New Cassel and Campbellsport Literary Society, and is the founder and President of the New Cassel Turnverein. Dr. Eidemiller makes a specialty of surgery, and stands deservedly high in his profession, his practice extending through Fond du Lac and into Dodge, Washington and Sheboygan Cos; he is now building a large residence on the modern plan to replace the one lost by fire a year ago, entailing upon him a loss of all his books, pictures, instruments, furniture, etc.

F. M. FINDEISEN, merchant, New Cassel; born in Prussia Oct. 12, 1837; was educated in the Fatherland and began mercantile life as clerk in the sugar refinery of J. Henze, one of the largest in Germany; came to America in 1862; clerked six months in Fond du Lac, then began business in New Cassel. Married, in 1862, Mrs. Ernestina Brayman, who is a daughter of Ernest Schulten, who came from Prussia to America in 1855, with his family; in 1858, Ernestina married Emil Brayman, who died in 1860, leaving two children—Ernest and Emelio; and a daughter, Helen, by a former marriage—Mr. and Mrs. Findeisen have one daughter—Ernestina. Mr. F. began business in the old store of Mr. Brayman, which still stands beside the large and handsome store built by Mr. F. in 1874, at which time he built the only elevator in Campbellsport; making a small beginning in New Cassel, Mr. F. has constantly increased his business; carries a general stock of all goods required to meet his trade, besides buying largely of farm produce; has bought on the average, during the past six years, 80,000 bushels of grain, and 100,000 pounds of pork, besides 10,000 pounds of poultry; he also owns eight village lots. Mrs. M. Krembs, widow of Louis Krembs, with Miss Charlotte Schulten, both sisters of Mrs. Findeisen, have for ten years past kept the only stock of millinery in the village, in a large room adjoining the store. Mr. Findeisen and family are members of the Lutheran Church.

W. R. FOLTS, veterinary surgeon, New Cassel; born June 14, 1833, in Onondaga Co., N. Y., where he spent his early life, and learned blacksmithing of his father. Married, in 1852, Miss Margaret Taffney, of that county. Came to Wisconsin and to New Cassel in 1855; it was Crouchville then, and there were only two horse teams in the vicinity, but he opened a shop and grew up with the country, increasing his business, and sold out in six years; has since devoted himself to his profession, which he began studying when 18 years of age; as an evidence of his success, we may state that he has built a large and tasteful residence, a barn 38x46, with an L addition 100 feet in length; here, he for three years kept a livery stable; about fifteen years ago, Dr. Folts opened a drug-store, where he has also a pleasant office; he is the manufacturer of Dr. Folts' Domestic Liniment, Blood and Condition Powders, which have won testimonials from the entire Northwest, and are considered standard remedies. Dr. F. enlisted, Sept. 1, 1864, in the 14th W. V. C., and after three months was commissioned Regimental Farrier; was with his regiment in various States, and at the capture of Mobile and the forts. Mr. and Mrs. Folts have two sons—Dempster and Eugene. Politics Republican.

C. D. GAGE, farmer, Sec. 28; P. O. Kewaskam; born in Onondaga Co., N. Y., Feb. 11, 1825; spent his early life and was educated in his native county, and, in 1843, made a brief visit to Milwaukee, visiting both Milwaukee and Waukesha Cos. in 1845; lived in Waukesha Co. from May, 1847, until March, 1848, when he bought and settled upon forty acres of his present farm; the whole country was a wilderness, his nearest neighbor, A. Wheeler, living two and one-half miles distant; he had footed it from Waukesha Co. in February previous, and built a log shanty, which was without a window for six months, and provided with a puncheon floor and trough roof; one course of troughs were laid with the hollow side up, and the spaces between them covered with others laid with the rounding side uppermost; this must have offered a striking contrast to the spacious and elegant residence built in its stead; Mr. Gage saw more than his share of frontier hardships, as he had contracted the ague in Waukesha, and shook with it for eleven long weeks, his family not seeing a neighbor during that time, and living one week on potatoes and salt alone; he relates that when they made their first visit to Mr. Wheeler, he carried his wife across the Middle Branch on his back; Mr. Gage was the first Town Treasurer after the division of Ashford and Auburn; served three years, and, in 1852, was elected Chairman, and that fall to the Legislature; re-elected Chairman in 1853, he served many successive years, and was again elected to the Legislature in 1867; took an active part as a member of the "Third House," in the great "Dells" controversy in 1871. Is a Democrat, and a member of the West End Lodge A., F. & A. M., and the Kewaskum Lodge, I. O. O. F. Married, Dec. 31, 1846, Miss Mercy Rosier, of Onondaga Co., N. Y., who died in April, 1871, leaving six children—Fanny L., Rosier N., Floyd B., Florence M., Carrie A., and Russel G.; on the 28th of June, 1874, he married Miss Mary O. Hale, of Onondaga Co., N. Y. Mr. G. owns 280 acres, with the best of buildings.

IRA LUCE, farmer, Sec. 27; P. O. Kewaskum; born in Onondaga Co., N. Y., Aug. 21, 1829; was educated in his native State and lived on his father's farm until 1847, when he spent the summer in Racine Co., Wis.; reaching Auburn in the fall of 1847, bought his farm of eighty acres of a Mr. Fields, at $1.25 per acre, it then being a part of the surrounding wilderness crossed by Indian trails; the road past his farm was not cut through till the next year. He married in February, 1849, Miss Frances Wheeler, daughter of Alanson W., one of the pioneers of 1846; after the wedding, Mr. Luce built a log shanty, roofed with basswood troughs which he dug out; the furniture was made by him of trees cut on his own land; he earned his first team by chopping fourteen acres for C. D. Gage, and his first cow by working out during the harvest of 1849; as a reward for the discomforts then endured, he has an improved farm and good buildings. Mr. Luce is a Republican, and is now serving his fifth term as Supervisor.

REV. FATHER A. MICHELS, Pastor of St. Mathew's Catholic Church, New Cassel, the Dundee Mission and Spiritual Director of the St. Joseph's Convent, New Cassel; born in 1840, in Prussia; was educated in the Fatherland as teacher; came to America in 1857, and resided for a time in Ozaukee Co., Wis.; entering St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee, in 1860, he pursued his studies there until 1868, when he was ordained by Archbishop Henni; was then for a few months Assistant Priest in St. Joseph's, Milwaukee, then had charge of three congregations in succession, up to the year 1871; was then called to teach in the Normal School, St. Francis, where he remained about a year and a half, taking his present charge in 1873.

WILLIAM POOL, of Pool & Harter, merchant and Postmaster, New Cassel; born in the town of Spring Prairie, Walworth Co., Wis., April 10, 1846; is a son of William and Mary Pool, who came to Auburn in September, 1846, Mr. Pool buying Government land, which is still his homestead; his eldest son, the subject of this sketch, was educated in the county and was on the farm until 1867, when he entered the store of O. L. Helmer, and clerked until 1869, when he bought an interest in the firm of W. Pool & Co., doing business one year; Messrs. Pool & Weiss then bought the stock and store, continuing the business until June, 1875, when Mr. J. B. Harter bought the interest of Mr. W.; the firm are doing and have done a good and satisfactory business, carrying a complete stock to meet a general trade, besides dealing in farm implements. Mr. Pool married Sept. 3, 1877, Miss Mattie L. Angell, a native and resident of Atlanta, Logan Co., Ill., they have had an infant daughter. Mr. Pool is an outspoken Republican and a member of the New Cassel Lodge, G. T.

B. D. ROMAINE, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. New Prospect; born in Bergen Co., N. J., March 23, 1843; came to Fond du Lac in 1849 with his parents, Benjamin and Charity Romain, who had eight children—Gernet, Rachel A., Ralph, Elizabeth J., Mary E., Edward W., Barney D. and Benjamin D.; after the settlement of the family in Auburn, 1850, Barney attended school in the old log schoolhouse, since replaced by the two-story structure where his children attend; he settled on his present farm of ninety-five acres in 1866, when all but ten acres were a forest, living, working and prospering in a shake-roofed log shanty for years; this is superseded by a tasteful farmhouse, and the farm is under cultivation, a record which needs no eulogy. Married, in 1864, Miss Elizabeth Roberts, a native of London, England, she coming with her parents to America and to Auburn when a child; Mr. and Mrs. R. have five children—George M., Clara E., Laura A., Edward R. and Mary E. Politics, Republican; and a member of Wickes Lodge, I. O. O. F.

RALPH ROMAIN, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. New Prospect; born in Bergen Co., N. J., Dec. 6, 1833; son of Benjamin and Charity R., who came to Auburn in the spring of 1850, and settled on the farm now owned by the father, "Uncle Ben" Romain; is a native of Bergen Co., N. J., and served with Gen. Scott through the campaign, from Vera Cruz to the Aztec capital; after his settlement in Wisconsin, he made his house a home for all the "Jersey" settlers who came afterward; a carpenter by trade, he built nearly all the houses and barns in the vicinity besides the schoolhouse and saw-mill. His wife was Miss Charity Hopper, of New York City, they spending the winter of 1849-50 in Fond du Lac, where Ralph attended school. He married Miss Mary A., daughter of Norman Cisco, of Niagara Co., N. Y., and settled on his present farm of eighty acres in 1857. At this time a few acres had been cleared and a small frame house built, which he now uses as a shop, he having improved his farm and built a pleasant residence. Mr. Romain is a Republican, and is now serving his second term as Supervisor; none of the substantial farmers of Auburn have made a better record; besides his farming operations, he has followed thrashing almost constantly since 1857, when he and his eldest brother, Gerret, bought their first machine; Mr. and Mrs. Romain have eight children—Walter G., Charles E., Benjamin G., Lydia A., Ralph, Charity A., Anna E. and Gerret A. Mr. R. was a charter member of Wickes Lodge, I. O. O. F.

CHARLES J. SUCKOW, miller and Postmaster, New Prospect; born in Ozaukee Co., Wis., 1848; his parents removing to Sheboygan Co., he learned the miller's trade and lived there until he was 17, then went to Crawford Co., Wis., then went to Missouri and remained three and one-half years, then made an extended trip through Kansas, the Indian Territory, Texas, Mexico and Colorado; returning from Denver to Wisconsin, he spent about a year in the Plymouth mill, and in January, 1875, in company with William Eeke, he bought the farm and mills of Gerret Romain; Mr. Eberhardt bought out Mr. Eeke, in 1877, constituting the present firm of Suckow & Eberhardt, Mr. S. being in sole control as Mr. E. is a Sheboygan Co. farmer; Mr. Suckow rebuilt his saw-mill several years ago, and has added two large basement barns to his buildings. Is a Republican, and was made Postmaster in 1879, and was a Supervisor in 1877. Married Miss Lillie Eberhardt, a daughter of his partner; they have three children—Otto, Gustie and a babe; the family are Lutherans.

J. S. THOMPSON, farm and saw-mill, New Cassel; born in the town of Peru, Berkshire Co., Mass., Oct. 3, 1823; was educated in his native county, and, at 21, left for Wilmington, Del., where he learned daguerrotyping. In October, 1847, he landed at Milwaukee, Wis., and, the next November, entered a half-section of land on Secs. 14 and 21, using the first Mexican land warrants in the town of Auburn; during his residence here he taught several terms of school; after four or five years, he began and continued for eight years a mercantile business in Kewaskum; then building a saw-mill in the village; selling this in 1867, he bought his present farm of 160 acres, of which twenty-five were cleared, and on which were only log buildings; has added fifty-five acres to the clearing, and, in 1870, built a tasty and substantial brick residence; has operated the only saw-mill in New Cassel since he built it in 1867. His first wife, Miss Rebecca Smith, whom he married in Washington Co., July 3, 1851, died April 4, 1855, leaving him one daughter—Ellen, who will soon graduate from the State Normal School of Minnesota; in 1856, he married Miss Lenora F. Williams; they have had eight children—A. Bell, Edna L., Harlan J., Loren D. (deceased), Eudora, Leslie A., Lillie M. and Merrill W. In politics, a stalwart Republican; Mr. T. was Town Clerk in the Democratic town of Auburn two years and has served many years as Justice of the Peace. Is an able and influential temperance worker and a man who enjoys the esteem of all.

RALPH TICE, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. New Prospect; born in Passaic Co., N. J., March 17, 1825. Married Miss Mary McGee, who was also born and bred in that county, they coming to Auburn in August, 1855, and buying eighty acres, which was as the hand of nature left it. While Mr. Tice was building a log house, they made their home with Uncle Ben Romain; clearing five acres that year, Mr. Tice sowed fall wheat, and, though the roads were Indian trails, and Cascade the nearest mill, he prospered, and now owns 105 acres, and has exchanged his pioneer quarters for a pleasant farmhouse, built in 1869; has a large basement barn and all needed stock and implements. Is in politics Democratic. Mr. and Mrs. Tice have ten children—Sarah, John, Nelson, Louisa, Ralph, Leah N., George W., Benjamin, Maria and Francis E.; Sarah is the widow of J. P. Van Blareom; John married Amelia Bell, of Eldorado, and has a farm near the homestead.

LEWIS VAN BLARCOM, farmer, Secs. 2 and 11; P. O. New Prospect; born in Bergen Co., N. J., on Christmas, 1829; son of Peter and Hannah Van B., who were farmers of that State; at 20, Lewis went to New York City, remaining until 1855. Married, Dec. 27, 1849, Miss Leah Ann, only child of John P. and Maria Post, of Bergen Co., N. J., where she was born on St. Valentine's Day, 1830. Mr. and Mrs. Post removed to New York City in 1836, and here Mrs. Van Blareom was educated. In May, 1855, both families settled on eighty acres of the homestead, of which eight had been cleared and a log house built; as a result of the labors of Messrs. Post and Van Blarcom, the farm contains 340 acres and all needed barns, implements and stock, the log house having been superseded by a substantial and tasteful residence in 1858; Mr. Post died May 8, 1871, followed by his wife Sept. 14, 1872. Mr. and Mrs. Van Blarcom have had seven children—John P. (deceased), Avery R., Hanna M., Peter G., Anna L., Lewis B. and Celia E.; John P. married Miss Sarah C. Tice, of Auburn, and died in less than a year, leaving his bride and widow a pleasant home. Mr. Post was Chairman of Town Board of Auburn many years, and was, like Mr. Van Blarcom, a Democrat.

ASHFORD TOWNSHIP.

ROBERT FRANKLIN ADAMS, deceased, farmer; born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., July 13, 1820; was educated in the Monroe Academy; coming to Wisconsin, he taught school in the winter of 1843, in Racine, Wis., and used to hear wolves howling in the outskirts of the then village; in 1844, he bought a farm in Lynn, Walworth Co.; returning, he married, in Cayuga Co., N. Y., Miss Helen, daughter of Stephen Dwinelle; she was a native of Cayuga Co., and was educated in Hamilton Academy; they at once settled on the Walworth Co. farm, which they sold in January, 1847, coming with team and sleigh to Ashford, then not named; Mr. Adams bought 320 acres of high, dry, heavily timbered Government land, the family living that summer in a slab shanty, at the same time building the first frame house in the town; this was sided with poplar, and finished inside with butternut, as pine lumber and saw-mills were inaccessible; it is still a good home; Mr. Adams cleared 120 acres, burning the timber and selling hundreds of bushels of ashes in Crouchville, now New Cassel. He was a Whig and Republican, filling with credit to himself the offices of Town Clerk, Assessor and Town Superintendent of Schools, he organizing the school districts of Ashford, and was the unanimous nominee of the defeated "No License" party for the State Legislature. In all respects a Christian gentleman, his death, on the 16th of February, 1861, made a vacancy in the ranks of the pioneers that was keenly felt; he was one of the founders of the New Cassel Baptist Church, and was Deacon, Clerk and Sunday-School Superintendent; Mr. Adams left six children—Judson F., born in Lynn; Helen J., Joseph W., John E., Hester E. and Robert F., all except J. F. born and now residing on the homestead. Judson married Miss Jennie Ingraham July 21, 1872; has had three children—Myrtie M., F. W. (deceased) and Robert N.

JAMES ABLARD, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Campbellport; born June 2, 1830, in Lincolnshire, England, where he obtained his schooling, and lived until June, 1853, when he came to America; began as a farm hand at Pittsford, N. Y., and, after his marriage to Miss Mary Caffrey, settled on a farm; they came to Ashford in 1863, he buying his farm of seventy acres; of this sixteen were cleared, the remainder heavy timber. Beginning in a log house, the labor and management of Mr. Ablard have resulted in a well-improved farm, with all needed buildings, stock, tools, etc., and a large and handsome residence, built in 1879. Mrs. Ablard died in March, 1864, leaving three children—Mary A., William J. and George, who died Dec. 2, 1864. The present wife is a daughter of Chauncy Thomas, and was born in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., marrying in Madison Co., N. Y., H. Haddock, who died in 1862 or 1863, she coming to Wisconsin in 1864. Mr. and Mrs. Ablard are members of the Byron M. E. Church. In politics, Republican.

HENRY BARNETT, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Campbellport; son of John H. Barnett, who was born in Switzerland, and pressed into Napoleon's army when 18; taken prisoner at Waterloo, he, after his release, emigrated to America and settled in Albany, N. Y., where he married Miss Lana, daughter of William Scott; his eldest son, our subject, was born in Jefferson Co., N. Y., March 27, 1819, and came from Lewis Co., N. Y., to Milwaukee, in 1846, with his family; leaving his family in Fox Lake, Mr. Barnett cut the first track from the Byron openings to the unfinished shanty of Mr. L. Crouch; returning, he and his family, accompanied by J. L. Perry and family, arrived in June, 1846, at Crouch's, where they lived until the next October, when Mr. Barnett pre-empted 160 acres of his present farm; this was the first claim made in Ashford Township, and his was the first family to settle here; assisted by Crouch and Perry, he cut the first road to West Bend, then with an ox team he went to Milwaukee for provisions and mill irons. On the 1th of July, 1845, Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Everett (wife of the millwright) raised a flag and held the first celebration, Crouchville receiving its name the same evening. Mr. Barnett made the first assessment in Ashford, and, as a member of the first Board of Supervisors, laid out most of its present roads, also those of Auburn; he is now the oldest resident of either town, and was the second settler in Auburn; in his house the first religious service was held by Rev. Mr. Sears. Mr. Barnett married Miss Lana, daughter of Isaac Scott, in 1839; they have had eleven children—Eli (deceased), Jennie, William H., John G., Elizabeth, Matilda C., Seth G., Leah H., La Fayette (deceased), Julia M. and Francis; Jennie is now Mrs. J. F. Stevens, of Chicago; William H. and John are in Iowa; Elizabeth is the wife of John Hendricks, of Ashford; Matilda, now Mrs. F. Ribble, resides in Orleans, Neb.; Seth is in Portland, Ore.; Leah M. is now Mrs. Wallace Goodsell, of Howard Lake, Minn.; Julia M. is now Mrs. James Yancy, of Lewis Co., N. Y., and Francis is with her parents. The family are Baptists. Mr. Barnett has 240 acres, a large basement barn, and a handsome modern farm residence, built in 1863, and has 160 acres in Iowa. In politics, Republican.

WOLCOTT BIXBY, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Campbellsport; born in Palatine, N. Y., Feb. 5, 1822; when 14 years old, he accompanied his parents to Ashtabula Co., Ohio, where he received his schooling; in September, 1846, he settled in Crouchville; a carpenter by trade, he built the first frame-house in the town of Ashford for R. F. Adams; he found only one house between West Bend and L. Crouch's shanty; the roads at this time were merely tracks through the woods; the settlers at this time were Messrs. Crouch, Barnett, Crownhast, Perry, Hill and Helmer. Mr. Bixby built the first frame barn in Auburn in 1849, afterward building for the same man, Mr. Hill, a house and blacksmith-shop; about all the settlers in both towns were required to raise these; he bought forty acres in Section 15, in 1847. Married, in the spring of 1848, Miss Cornelia Glines, a native of Jericho, Chittenden Co., Vt., who, after living in various parts of Vermont and New York, came to Kenosha, Wis., in 1845; they began life on the forty acres of land, where they lived until 1861, when he settled on his present improved farm of eighty-five acres. Mr. Bixby bought the first-named forty of the Government—cleared and added to it. The young couple saw much of early hardships, as all provisions for a time came from Milwaukee; lived in a "shake" roofed shanty; went with ox teams, and sometimes on foot, to Fond du Lac for goods; lived on bread and meat, and still maintain that they were good old times. Mr. Bixby is independent in politics, a temperance man, a do-right in religion, and a good type of the early York State settlers. Four sons have blessed the union—Edgar, William, John and Daniel.

STUART CAMPBELL, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Campbellsport; born in County Londonderry, Ireland, Sept. 4, 1817; in the spring of 1841, he came to America, and located in Orange Co., N. Y., worked on Delaware & Hudson Canal; removed with his wife to Ashford, in 1850, and bought an eighty-acre pre-emption claim; four acres had been cleared and a log house built; beginning with little, Mr. C. did sturdy pioneer work, cleared and added to the eighty, and now has as a homestead, 200 acres improved, several good barns, with stock, implements, etc.; he replaced the log house with a roomy and tasteful residence in 1860; he also owns sixty-three acres on Sec. 13 (see history of Campbellsport). He married, Sept. 30, 1848, Miss Julia M. Southard, who had lived and was married in Orange Co., N. Y., but was born in Sullivan Co., N. Y.; they have eleven children—Sarah J., Nancy M., Charles C., Belle A., James S., Robert J., Willie F., Lillie M., Eddie T., Libbie J. and Frank D.; of these Nancy, Belle and James are in Fayette Co., Iowa. Mr. Campbell was a Whig and War Democrat; was several years Supervisor, then Assessor. He was a generous giver in building the Campbellsport M. E. Church, of which Mrs. C. is a member; their eldest daughter married R. E. Forsythe June 1, 1879; after a brief honeymoon, the young couple started for a new home in Nebraska; while on the way, Mr. Forsythe fell from the train at Burlington, Wis., June 18, and was instantly killed.

SYLVESTER CISCO, farmer, Sec. 12; born Sept. 21, 1823, in Rockland Co., N. J.; he lived there until he was 19, then settled in Deer Park, Orange Co., N. Y.; during the next twelve years, he was engaged on the Hudson and Delaware Rivers and the Delaware & Hudson Canal. Married in Orange Co. in 1848, Miss Sarah L. Southard, who was born in Sullivan Co., N. Y., but had lived in Orange since she was an infant; in 1850, they came to Wisconsin in company with S. Campbell and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Cisco spent the first year in Oakfield, the second in Ashford, then bought forty acres in Auburn, about two acres of this were cleared, on which was a tumble-down log house; having paid his last shilling to the man who brought them into the county, he now did real pioneer work with his ax, without a team or means to get one; he, with the aid of his true-hearted wife, rolled the logs together and burned them, then in the unbroken soil planted corn with only a hoe—a hard beginning for the young couple whose only capital was health and pluck; Mr. C. says he did not receive a cent until he had been in the State eighteen months; keeping at it, he set out the best orchard in the county, added to his farm, built as good a house as was then in Auburn, and in 1868, sold 160 acres here; he then bought his homestead of 141 acres, then rough, stony, stumpy land, which he has brought to a state of cultivation not excelled by any farm in the county; has six acres devoted to fruit and ornamental trees, shrubs, flowers, etc.; has added to the buildings, now having a most elegant residence on the outskirts of the village; he also owns 40 acres in Anburn, 80 in Osceola, and 144 in Clay Co., Neb. Mr. and Mrs. Cisco have five children—Mahlon J., Susan A., Stella, Willie E. and Leon; M. J. and W. E. are in Nebraska, as is Stella, now Mrs. Aug. Kissinger; Susan A. is the wife of Elon Flint, of Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. C. is a Democrat, and a man who has made a record second to none as a man and citizen. Mrs. Cisco belongs to the New Cassel Baptist Church.

JACOB DEGENHARDT, proprietor of the Railroad House, Campbellsport; born in Kreis-Mullhausen, Kallstadt, Prussia, Sept. 6, 1832; was educated in the Fatherland, where he traveled nine years for a firm, selling woolen goods; came to America in 1857, locating in Grant Co., Wis., and attending the Platteville school two winters; was two years in the European Hotel, Milwaukee, then traveled a year, selling dry goods, notions, etc. He then married and settled on a farm in Ashford, also acting as an insurance agent; has owned and kept the Railroad House since May, 1874, having in connection a bar and livery. Married Mrs. Regina Maue, by whom he has three children—Regina, Michael and Henry; Mrs. D. was born in Rhenish Prussia, in 1826, her former husband, Bernhardt Maue, leaving her at his death with a sixty-acre farm and four children—Anna, John, Frank and Margaret. The family are Roman Catholics, and Mr. Degenhardt is a Democrat, having been Supervisor three years, and Assessor the same length of time.

CHARLES C. HANSON, proprietor lumber-yard, Campbellsport; born in New Orleans, La., May 16, 1832; his father, Christian H., was first mate of a Danish ship, and was accompanied by his wife; after the birth of Charles, they returned to Denmark, where he was educated; after a six-months service in the Danish Navy, he left in the spring of 1848, and followed the sea eight years on German, English, Spanish and American merchantmen, visiting both East and West Indies, and nearly all the African and South American ports. In 1856, he married Miss Julia O'Keeffe in New Haven, Conn., and settled in Fond du Lac; was in various kinds of business here until 1876, when he and Mr. P. J. Sausen started the second lumber-yard in Campbellsport, they doing business until December 1879, when Mr. Hanson bought out Mr. S.; he now deals in in pine lumber, lath, shingles, moldings, pickets, doors, sash, and cord-wood; he also takes contracts for buildings. As a member, with his wife, of the Catholic Church, and a Democrat; is now serving his second term as Justice of the Peace.

WILLIAM HAUSMAN, M. D., Elmore; born in Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 9, 1854; he was educated in the public schools of St. Louis; began the study of medicine, 1869, with Dr. N. Senn, of Ashford; entering the Chicago Medical College, he graduated as physician and surgeon March 10, 1874, and has since been in active practice in Elmore, where he has a most pleasant home, earned by his most successful practice during this time; though young, the Doctor is now President of the Rock River Medical Society, which he joined in March, 1874, and has been an active member of the Wisconsin State Medical Society since June, 1878; the Doctor is also a member of Kewaskum Lodge, No. 101, I. O. O. F., and, with his wife, of the Reformed Church of Elmore; married Miss Charlotte Fleischman, of Ashford, in August, 1874; they have three children—Edward N., Elizabeth A. and Wm. P. Republican.

W. S. HENDRICKS, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. Campbellsport; born in Juniata Co., Penn., May 3, 1835. His parents, Andrew and Margaret Hendricks, removed to Milwaukee Co., Wis., 1847, residing there four years, then settling on a farm on Sec. 3, town of Ashford, where they spent the remainder of their days; they had nine children—Jemima, Wm. S., Sarah, John A., Amelia, Mary and Oliver are living; Isaac enlisted in Co. A, 14th W. V. I. and was shot and instantly killed before Vicksburg; Benjamin enlisted in Co. B, 35th W. V. I. and died in the service at Port Hudson, Miss. W. S. Hendricks settled on his farm of 100 acres in 1856; of this about seven acres were improved, on which was a log house; as a result of sturdy work with his ax, he has cleared the remainder of heavy timber, and made of it a good farm; in 1873, he built a modern brick farm residence, the farm and buildings appearing but little as they did in 1856; it is devoted to grain and stock. He married Miss Carrie A., daughter of Wm. Peck, a pioneer of 1816, in Eden; she was born in Woodbury, Conn., and is the mother of four children—Flora M., Clarence W., Elmer E. and Frank G. Mr. Hendricks is an Independent Republican.

FREDERICK HUEBNER, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Ashford; born 1826, in Prussia, where he was educated, was born and bred a farmer; came to America 1853, settled in Dodge Co., where he married Othilie Busslaff, and bought a farm in 1854; this was covered with small timber, and without a house. Mr. H. built a log house, 18x26, and a log barn, 18x24; began the labor of clearing and breaking the land, and, having built a large stone house, sold the farm and bought his present improved farm of 100 acres; on this is a large and tasty house, basement, barn, etc. Mr. and Mrs. H. have four children—Frederick Wm., August Carl, Samuel and Louisa. Religion, Lutheran; politics, Democratic. Mr. Huebner came to Wisconsin without money enough to buy an ax, but bought one with borrowed money, cleared timber at $5 per acre, worked on farms and in a saw-mill. Few men have done better than he.

FRANK M. JOHNSON, agent and operator C. & N.-W. R. R., New Cassel; born Nov. 1, 1853, in Kewaskum, Washington Co., Wis., his mother dying when he was a child, his father placed him in the family of Saml. Riblet, Litchfield, Mich., where he was educated; when about 16 he entered a store at Newaygo, Mich., and after two years returned to Wisconsin, working over two years as a carriage painter in West Bend; began railroad life by learning operating at Rushfield, Wis., and after obtaining a thorough knowledge of the details of railroad business here, was appointed to his present position Sept. 15, 1873; is also agent for the American Express Co.; when he first left the train here with his supplies, there was not a railroad building of any kind in sight; establishing an office for a day or so in the house of Jacob Senft, he found some fencing belonging to the company, and with this built a rude shed, with two compartments, using a dry-goods box for his desk; here he did business until winter, when a depot building was built, which was struck by lightning and burned July 15, 1875, with all contents except the cash-book, which Mr. Johnson had in his house; during the next six months, he did the business in the lumber office of C. D. L. Moyers; the present depot was built in December, 1875. He married, Oct. 20, 1874, Miss Ella, daughter of Frank and Abigail Everly, by whom he has two children—Gracie N., and Willie R. Mr. Johnson is a Republican, and is now W. C. T. of New Cassel Lodge, I. O. of G. T. He has a pleasant home in the village, and about two acres adjoining the village plat known as the Lepper place.

FRANK KLECKER, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Ashford; born in Austria in 1819; the family came to America in 1854; his father, Frank Klecker, Sr., bought wild land on Sec. 8, in Ashford; five acres of this was cleared, on which was a log house; this family did good work at clearing the heavy timber and building; sold this farm in 1865, and settled on their present farm of eighty acres; on this Mr. K. has built a tasteful home, and other substantial buildings. His mother died in June, 1878, his aged father is still living with him. Married Miss Johanna Veith, a daughter of Joseph Veith, in September, 1877; they have two children—Andrew Albert and Mary A. Mr. Klecker is independent in politics, and votes for men that he trusts; the family came to America with nothing, and their farm and home is the reward of industry and good management.

L. C. KOHLER, shoemaker and dealer, Campbellsport; born in the town of Ashford, Aug. 27, 1856, his parents having settled on a farm here in 1854; after his schooling in this town, Lorenz, at 14, began learning his trade in Theresa; spent two years there, and eight months in St. Killian; was then on the farm awhile, afterward in the town of Wayne, and some months in Chicago; returning to Campbellsport, he worked in the shops here nearly three years, and, in February, 1877, began business for himself; has the only boot and shoe store in the village, and is doing a good business, as all goods sold are of his own make, and warranted. Married Miss Mary Mischler Feb. 12, 1877, by whom he has a son—John. Mr. and Mrs. Kohler are Roman Catholics, he being independent in politics.

WILLIAM LENING, merchant, Elmore; born in Prussia in 1844; was educated there, and came to America in 1857; after two years spent in Wayne, Washington Co., he settled on a farm in Ashford, where he lived until 1869, when he bought a farm in Lomira, which he sold in 1874, and opened a saloon in Elmore; has added a good stock of dry goods, groceries, hardware, tin and glassware, crockery, notions, etc.; is doing well, as he has the only complete stock in the village. Married, in 1874, Miss Wilhelmina Gooty, and has four children—Adelina, Albert, Bertha and Wilhelmina. Politics, Republican, and a Lutheran in religion.

MORRIS F. LOOMIS, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. New Cassel; born in the town of Vienna, Oneida Co., N. Y., April 19, 1824; his parents settling on an Onondaga Co. farm when he was a child; he resided there until the spring of 1847, when he bought eighty acres of Government land in Eden, having spent the winter in Racine Co., Wis., where he and another man cut 500 cords of wood; made his home with A. and P. Olekirk, while he built a log house and did his clearing. In 1849, he married Miss Caroline Raymond, of Auburn, and, in two or three years, settled on eighty acres, Sec. 7 of that town, which he still owns; this was as Mother Nature left it, they living in a log-house while he made his strong arm and sharp ax tell. Mrs. Loomis died March 11, 1864, leaving six children—Amelia M., Inez C., Florian A., Frank, Irving W., and Edwin P. In 1865, Mr. L. settled on his homestead of eighty acres; has cleared both eighties and brought them to an excellent state of cultivation, built a pleasant house and several large barns, and is, beside, the owner of an improved eighty in Osceola, and a section of prairie land in Barton Co., Kan., eighty of which is sown to wheat. In May, 1865, he married Emily J. Helmer, of Lowville, Lewis Co., N. Y., by whom he has two children—C. Harvey, and George H.; Mr. L. is an old-time Whig Republican, and was one of the first three Justices elected in Eden, and is a good type of the energetic pioneers of this county.

MATHEW McEVROY, farmer, Sec. 5; P. O. Campbellsport; born in Queens Co., Ireland, in 1817; came to America in 1840, locating in Dutchess Co., N. Y., where he married in 1844, Miss Catherine Welch; they came to Ashford in November, 1849, and bought forty acres of heavily timbered land of which five had been cleared; up to this time all travel had been over a track from the openings to Crouchville, and the road past the McEvoy farm was not opened for two years; the family lived for a time in a rude shanty; then bought more land on which was a better habitation, but this was burned with nearly their all—a hard blow—but the battle was begun again; at Mayville, sixteen miles distant, was the nearest mill, and goods were all brought from Fond du Lac; as the family were poor they underwent many privations, and the result is Mr. McEvoy's good farm of 150 acres, several roomy barns, with a large and tasteful farmhouse, which was built to replace the pioneer's log house—a good showing for a man who began with forty acres of woods, and a few dollars; Mr. and Mrs. McEvoy have three children—James, Mary A. and Richard H. James is a carpenter in Northern Wisconsin; Mary is married, and a resident of Chilton; and Richard, who is on the homestead, was married Nov. 28, 1877, to Miss Ann Mulvey, of Byron; they have one son, Mathew F. In politics, they are Democrats; in religion, Roman Catholics.

THOMAS McCARTY, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Campbellsport; born in County Leitrim, Ireland, in 1837, son of Michael and Ann McCarty, who emigrated to America in 1847, and lived at Providence, R. I., until 1853, when they came to Ashford, and settled on heavily timbered land, now the homestead; few families did better or more successful work, the old couple peacefully ending their lives here. Mr. McCarty owns 120 acres, well improved, has built a large, handsome residence in place of the log house of early days, besides a large and convenient basement barn; as a farmer and citizen none have done better. He married, June 17, 1869, Miss Mary, daughter of George and Ann Lloyd, who emigrated from Ireland to America in 1840; she was born in Dutchess Co., N. Y., the family settling in Byron in 1849; five children have blessed this union—Ann E., John A., George H., Thomas W. and Francis A. Mr. McCarty is independent in politics, and, with his wife, a Roman Catholic.

NICHOLAS REISENWEBER, farmer, Secs. 5 and 8; P. O. Ashford; born in Saxe Coburg in 1819; was educated in the Fatherland, and with his wife came to America in 1850, they settling on a small farm near Germantown, Wis.; after ten years he sold out and settled on forty acres on Sec. 10 in Ashford; in 1867, he bought his present farm of 140 acres, this about half cleared and on it a log house and a roofless log barn; Mr. Reisenweber and his sons did good work, cleared the land of stumps, etc., built a granary and barns, and an elegant brick farmhouse in 1876; this is a good showing for a man who began $68 in debt on a twenty-acre farm, besides not knowing a word of English; Mr. and Mrs. Reisenweber have had eight children—William, Lizzie, wife of J. Jaeger, of Byron; Caroline, wife of W. Specht, of Santa Clara, Cal.; Kate, Frederick, Jacob (deceased), Louis and John. The family are Lutherans; father and sons are Independent Republicans, voting for men, not party.

JOEL N. McSCHOOLER, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Campbellsport; born in Peterboro, Madison Co., N. Y., April 19, 1822, son of J. W. and Abigail McSchooler; he spent his early life and was educated in his native town, going at 19 to Rome, N. Y.; he was engaged in the manufacture of brick until October, 1846, when he came to Ashford and bought 120 acres of Government land; what is now New Cassel was then a log shanty with a bark roof; he cut the first trail from here to his farm; finding the whole vicinity a wilderness crossed by only Indian trails, he went back to his wife, who stopped at Southport, Wis., they going to Michigan and remaining until the fall of 1847; during this time, Harvey Cartes had settled near by; Mr. McSchooler and wife were two days driving a horse team from West Bend, they riding the horses across deep streams, and leaving the wagon and goods till after the stream subsided; they lived for some time in a shanty, then built a log house, he doing pioneer work with his ax, burning timber and selling ashes at 5 cents per bushel, trade, and hauling them three miles; to add to their comfort he was sick with ague the first summer, but they were young, strong, resolute and successful; Mr. McSchooler now has an excellent farm of 280 acres, a large and tasty residence, and a basement barn, 36x94 feet and 33 feet from sills to plates; the bays filled from three floors; as he began with almost nothing his record is certainly good. He married Miss Celestia, daughter of Melancton and Sarah Brigham, April 16, 1845; she was a native of Smithfield, N. Y.; they have five children—Sarah A., Myron M., Ida I., Justus N. and Elwyn B. Mr. McSchooler and wife are Methodists; he is an original Republican, and was in early days Treasurer of Ashford and Auburn.

FREDERICK W. TANNER, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. New Cassel; born Jan. 4, 1823, in the town of Brutus, Cayuga Co., N. Y.; here he spent his early life and was educated; in 1844, he settled in Lynn, Walworth Co., Wis., where he bought and soon sold a farm. He married, July 5, 1848, Miss Helen M., daughter of James Duncan; she was born and educated in New York City. After a few years residence in Montgomery Co., N. Y., the family, in 1842, settled on a farm in Lynn. The old couple—both well-known and respected pioneers—ended their lives here. In the fall of 1852, Mr. T. and wife settled on a timbered farm in the north part of Ashford; Mr. T. cleared forty acres, building and living pioneer-fashion in a log house; after three or four years, he settled on his present farm of eighty acres, then partly cleared; as a result of twenty-five years of care, labor and management, Mr. T. has an improved farm, excellent orchard, barns, etc., replacing the log house of early days with a tasty brick residence in 1866. Mr. and Mrs. Tanner have two children—Warren B. and Mary A., having lost a daughter. Mr. T. and family are members of the Baptist Church; politics, Republican.

JOHN WENZEL, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Campbellsport; born in Hesse-Darmstadt, in 1832; in 1848, he accompanied his parents to Algeria, Africa, where he spent two years; returning, he remained in the Fatherland until he was 25, when, accompanied by his future wife, Miss Margaret Bader, he came to America and to Wisconsin; they reached Ashford with nothing but health and resolution to make a home; both hired out, he for a year at $100. The next year they married and began housekeeping in a granary. Mr. Wenzel getting $12 per month the second year, then renting his present farm for three years; beginning $20 in debt, he has, in twenty-two years, earned a splendid 162-acre farm, on which he has built a large and tasty residence, and a basement barn, 82x34 feet in size, and has all tools, etc., besides grade short-horn cattle and Leicester grade sheep. He can now speak and read English, and is educating his children, having seven living—John, Bena, Mary, Charlotte, Henry, William F. and George D. Politics, Independent Republican; has been Supervisor two years, and Assessor four years.

OSCEOLA TOWNSHIP.

JOHN and E. C. AIRHART, farmers, Sec. 17; P. O. Osceola; John Airhart was born in Alsace, France, July 24, 1790; when 16 years old, he joined Napoleon's army, served through the German and Spanish campaigns, was captured by the English and held prisoner in Malaga six months; then enlisted with the English and served over three years with the garrison on the Island of Malta which was then sent into Canada, and fought during the war of 1812; deserting the British at Plattsburg, he settled in Albany Co., N. Y., where he married, Dec. 15, 1816, Miss Mary Killmer, who was born June 19, 1794, in Greenbush, Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; about 1833, they left Albany Co. and settled in Rensselaer Co., remaining until June, 1848, when the family settled on the Airhart homestead in Osceola; bought 320 acres, part of which has been given to the heirs, the farm now containing 200 acres. For some time the family lived in a rude shanty built by a Mr. Cole; there are five children living—Evoline, Mary M., Edward C., William B. and Martha; they have lost four—Sarah, Dinah, Helen and John H. (who died in the Union service at Duvall's Bluff, Ark., in 1864); Edward C., William B., John H., Helen and Martha, and Mary M. (now Mrs. Nathan Carey), all came to Wisconsin with the old folks, who are now doubtless the oldest married couple in the county. Edward C. was born in Albany Co., N. Y., March 16, 1828, and married, Dec. 25, 1851, Miss Sarah J., eldest daughter of Aaron Walters, of Eden, she leaving at her death, June 11, 1867, one daughter—Helen E. (now Mrs. A. R. Pasenger, of Watson, Lewis Co., N. Y.). On the 30th of April, 1868, he married Miss Mary E., daughter of E. R. Tripp, who came from Oneida Co., N. Y., to Walworth Co., Wis., in 1854, and settled in Fond du Lac Co. in 1862; his wife was Sarah E. Bartlett, and both are dead. Mr. and Mrs. Airhart have two daughters—Edith M. and Mary E. Father and son are Republicans, E. C. having served as Supervisor and Chairman.

CALVIN H. ALLEN, farmer, Sec. 30; P. O. Wauconda; was born in Ashland Co., Ohio, Oct. 19, 1835; son of Capt. Silas Allen, who led a restless life, sailing for many years on Lake Michigan and the other great lakes; in 1847, he bought 400 acres of Government land in Osceola, on which he settled with his family in May, 1848; having but little means, the family saw much of pioneer privation and hardships; after making a good farm and home of this wild land, Capt. A. sold it and removed to St. Joseph, Mich., where he died Jan. 12, 1872; a strong, earnest and true man, he was missed by scores of warm friends. C. H. Allen settled on his farm of eighty acres in 1857; of his first forty only eight had been cleared and broken; beginning with almost nothing, he built a shanty and kept "bachelor's hall" about three years; Mr. Allen has reclaimed his land and made a most pleasant home. He married, March 22, 1860, Miss Sarah, daughter of James Yapp; she was born in Worcestershire, England, coming to America in 1851, and residing in Fond du Lac until her marriage; they have one son—Leonard J., born May 31, 1868. Both Mr. and Mrs. A. are supporters of Christianity, she being an Episcopalian. Mr. A. is, like his father, a Democrat.

JACOB ARIMOND, merchant, Dundee; born Oct. 12, 1840, in Germany; his mother died the next July, and, in 1844, his father came to America; Jacob came with his grandfather in 1851, and joined his father in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., and learned the mason's trade of him; after three years, he went to Tychcedah, and, when he left there, entered the paint store of James Edwards, Fond du Lac, going from there to a hardware store; in August, 1863, he went to California via the isthmus, and the second year opened a store in San Francisco, returning to Wisconsin, via the Nicaragua route, in February, 1866; in May, 1866, he bought the store and stock of A. Larsdt, Dundee; did business in the old stand three years; then built his large two-story store, which is 24x66 feet in size, and well fitted up; here he has the post office, as deputy, and carries a large and complete stock, the only one in Dundee; keeps any and every thing to meet a country trade, including drugs, medicines, notions, etc., besides farming implements. Married, in 1866, Miss Mary Deweis, of Fond du Lac, and has two children—Gudula C. and Edward J. Mr. Arimond is a Democrat, and a Roman Catholic, with his wife, who was born in Germany, and settled in Fond du Lac in 1855.

ASHER ARMSTRONG, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Armstrong's Corners; born in Hoosic, Rensselaer Co. N. Y., June 17, 1821; was educated there, and married Miss Adelia Harris; made a visit to Wisconsin in 1847, and, in 1849, settled on a farm near the McCullough Schoolhouse, in Auburn; in 1851, he exchanged with Mr. Bates, and settled on his present farm of 200 acres; of this, perhaps six were cleared, on which was a log shanty; since his settlement, the crossing of the road south of his house has been called Armstrong's Corners, and the post office was established here in his house in 1854 or 1855; it was soon transferred to the house of S. P. Armstrong, where it was kept until 1872, when the brothers left their farms, and Mr. Stannard, who still serves, was appointed; he rented Mr. Asher A.'s farm, and began keeping the office in his house, where it is still kept. Asher A. took a position under Mr. Wheeler in the State Prison, where he served until 1874; was then a year in business in Fond du Lac, returning to his farm in 1875; in 1878, he built a cheese factory and store, which burned New Year's Day, 1880; Mr. A. has nearly completed a large two-story building, which he will fit up in the best manner for a cheese factory, and one large room for a store; the upper story will be a public hall, 34x20½ feet in size; his factory was and will be a complete success in spite of rival factories. In the fall of 1851, his vote, with three others, were the only ones cast for the Free Soil ticket in a town which afterward gave a Republican majority of forty; his first vote, in 1844, was for Mr. Bisney. Mr. A. has been Town Treasurer, Supervisor and Superintendent of Schools, and received a vote of thanks from his town for his able settlement of a dispute between Osceola and Eden in 1851, he settling with Messrs. William Stuart and Carr, of Eden; he has also served with credit as Clerk of the County Board, Deputy United States Assessor, Sergeant-at-Arms in the Wisconsin Assembly in 1860-61, and took the United States census of 1870 in his district, as Deputy Marshal. Mrs. Armstrong died in 1867, leaving six children—Harper (deceased), Mary, Sarah, Van H., Jay P. and Ida. In 1870, he married Mrs. Sarah Odekir, by whom he has two daughters—Hattie and Lucy Hayes. As a religionist, Mr. A. believes in doing his whole duty.

O. F. BROKMEYER, proprietor of the Dundee Hotel, Osceola; born March 25, 1845, in Prussia; came to America in 1861, and worked a year in a pail factory at Two Rivers, Wis.; was two years in Fond du Lac and eighteen months in the iron region of Lake Superior; he then made a year's visit to the Fatherland; returned, and opened a store in Elmore, where he was the first Postmaster; after two years here, he sold out, and bought the Dundee Hotel April 4, 1870; it is the only public house in the village, and he has more than doubled it in size, added good stabling, ice-house, etc.; has also the only livery and bar in the place. Married at West Bend, Wis., July 4, 1866, Miss Catherine Lenn, a native of Switzerland, by whom he has four children—William, Caroline, Anna and Kate. Mr. Brokmeyer is a public-spirited and genial landlord, and a liberal giver to the local churches; was also the originator of the Dundee Stock Fair of June, 1870. Politics, a Democrat.

DANIEL CAVANAGH, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Osceola; born in Dingle, County Kerry, Ireland, Feb. 2, 1831; is a son of James and Ellen Cavanagh, who emigrated to America in 1834, stopping a short time in Bangor, Me., then settling in Waltham, Mass., where Daniel received his schooling; the family settled on a farm in Washington Co., Wis., in 1842, remaining until April, 1849, when they settled on Government land on Sec. 3, Osceola, being the second Irish family to locate here. The subject of this sketch continued his studies in Wisconsin, living on the homestead until 1869, when he bought his farm of 220 acres; his mother died in September, 1853, and his father in January, 1868; Mr. Cavanagh has proved himself a capable farmer, having built a basement barn 46x71 feet, with twenty-two foot posts, and a handsome square, two-story residence; has also brought 135 acres of his farm to a good state of improvement. In politics, a Democrat; Mr. Cavanagh was elected in 1861 Town Treasurer; then followed his election as Chairman of Osceola from 1864 to 1877, with the exception of three years; in 1869, he was elected to the Wisconsin Assembly, and to the State Senate in 1875. He married Miss Margaret, daughter of Henry Hardgrove, one of the Irish pioneers of Forest, on the 20th of February, 1854, they having seven children—Ella, Mary, James T., Daniel, Anna, Henry and Jennie; Mary is the wife of E. H. Lyons, of Osceola. Mr. Cavanagh and family are Roman Catholics.

Wm. Pool Jr

NEW CASSEL.

CHARLES COOPER, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Osceola; born Oct. 17, 1808, in Lanarkshire, Scotland, where he married, in 1838, Miss Mary Inglis, a native of that shire; they came with three children—Elizabeth, Charles and Mary—to America, reaching the Cooper homestead in October, 1840, with a team hired in Milwaukee. Fond du Lac then had but two stores. Mr. Cooper bought the farm of W. Nobles, and was the second Scotchman to settle in the town of Osceola. The lumber for the floor of his log house was hauled from Sheboygan, and it was roofed with poplar troughs. Roads were poor and without bridges—Mr. Cooper going often to Plymouth to mill when there was only flour enough for a single baking in the house; all his teaming and breaking was with oxen, and he did good work as a pioneer; died Sept. 22, 1876. Elizabeth is Mrs. Horace Eels, of Waupun Township; Mary is Mrs. J. B. Tripp, of Fond du Lac; Charles was born June 3, 1843, and did his share in improving the farm, which he now owns, with its excellent barns and spacious house, which has replaced the log house of old times; the farm is 160 acres; on the 17th of July, 1879, he married Miss Sophia Yokeum, of Auburn. The family are Presbyterians, and Mr. Cooper a Republican.

JOHN GRAHAM, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Osceola; born in the city of Carlisle, Cumberland, England, March 28, 1821; came to America with his parents in 1836, both he and his father taking an active part in the patriots' outbreak in 1837, narrowly escaping the vengeance of the British, and settling in Albany, N. Y.; then going to New York City, where John Graham resided three years, then locating in Geneva, N. Y., where he worked three years for T. B. Burrell; in September, 1844, he reached Milwaukee, and, during the next two years, was engaged in chopping in the woods south of the then village; was joined here the second year by his wife, he having married Miss Louisa Legare, they then settling among the openings of Dodge Co., living in a bark-roofed shanty floored with basswood slabs; on the 10th of January, 1848, they settled on Government land on Sec. 17, town of Osceola, building the first house in the town, all other buildings being shanties; for doors and windows they used blankets, and, when Mrs. Graham was alone at night, with a pack of ravenous wolves howling on either side of the house, we may well excuse her fright. The oldest son, Byron, was born here on the 14th of March, 1849, and theirs was the first white child born in the town; the other living children are Caroline, Agnes, Josephine and Garrie; Caroline is the wife of Allen Pilling, of Greenbush, Wis.; Agnes is Mrs. Noble Adams, of Fayette Co., Iowa; Josephine resides in Menominee Falls, Wis., and Garrie is a teacher in Rosendale; Byron married Miss Catherine Roltzen, and is now on the homestead. John Graham began in this town with 18 cents in his pocket, his family doing without a floor or a stove the first fall, and living on corn-meal ground in a coffee-mill, destitute of butter, pork or milk, and using an old chest for a table, sleeping on a pile of logs, and doing without chairs. As a reward for the privations so patiently endured, then, he has a well-improved farm of 120 acres, a pleasant home and all needed barns, etc. Is a Catholic and a Republican. He also served about a year with Grant in the 5th W. V. I. Co. H., during the assault on Petersburg, his brother was shot dead, the honorable discharge of Mr. Graham was June 14, 1865.

WILLIAM KEYS, farmer, Secs. 17 and 18; P. O. Osceola; born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, July 17, 1810; came to America with his family in 1850, settled in the town of Englewood, after four years, on his present farm. To reach this, he cut a track through the densest brush, which track is now the highway passing his house. Building a log shanty, he did sturdy work with his ax, having little to do with and much to contend with; in payment, he has a well-improved farm of 160 acres, several barns, sheds, etc., and has supplanted the shanty with a tasteful residence. In 1857, he married Miss Margaret Wiley, of County Tyrone, Ireland; they have six children—Thomas W., William C., Sarah L., Hannah J., Eliza A. and Etta M.; the eldest is a physician in Le Roy, Ill.; William C. is a substantial farmer in Eden; Sarah L. is Mrs. Charles Montgomery, of Calumet Co., Wis., and Hannah is Mrs. C. E. Tripp, of Eden. The family are members of the M. E. Church; Mr. Keys is a Democrat, and has been Supervisor and Chairman of Osceola.

THOMAS McGRATH, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Armstrong's Corners; born in County Tipperary, Ireland, Aug. 3, 1824; came to America in 1841, followed, in 1842, by his mother and brothers, his father having died in Ireland. The brothers worked on the railways of the different New England States for several years; the family settled in Osceola in 1849, Thomas buying his 160-acre farm of the Government. He and his wife saw much of pioneering, he chopping and burning the heavy timber which covered his farm, and living in a shake roofed log shanty. Beginning with little or nothing, the result of his care and labor is an improved farm, a basement barn, 30x80 feet, with other buildings, and a tasteful residence in place of the shanty of early days. He married Miss Mary Donaher, of Chester Co., Penn., by whom he has seven children—Hugh, Maria, Anna, Martha, Emily, Thomas and Alice. The parents of Mrs. McGrath settled in Pennsylvania in 1827, and in Sheboygan Co. in 1847. Mr. McGrath is a Democrat and was for many years a Supervisor; the family are Roman Catholics.

WALTER STANTON, farmer, Secs. 7 and 8; P. O. Osceola; born in March, 1820, in County Mayo, Ireland; came to America with his wife in 1851, she staying in Onondaga Co., N. Y., while he pushed out for Wisconsin, bought his farm and planted corn and potatoes that spring. His wife joined him, and they began their struggle with the privations of frontier life; their capital was good health and pluck. Mr. S. did without a team at first, planting his corn in the rooty, unbroken soil with a grub hoe. They saw many hardships, but persevered, and, as a result, have a well-improved farm of 120 acres, good barns and a pleasant home; a striking contrast to their surroundings when deer could be shot from the door of their slab-roofed shanty. Mrs. Stanton was Miss Hannah Durkin, born and wedded in County Mayo, Ireland. They have one son—James H., born Dec. 10, 1860, who was educated in the State Normal School, Oshkosh. Mr. S. is a Democrat, and the family are Catholics.

JOHN B. TRENTLAGE, merchant, Waucousta; born Feb. 18, 1833, in Hanover; came to America in August, 1848; was a year in a New York grocery store; then clerked ten years in Milwaukee; came to New Cassel in 1859, and with J. D. Iding, began business in Waucousta the next year, they building the large two-story store of Mr. T. The partnership was dissolved by mutual consent in 1865; Mr. Trentlage served as Postmaster of Waucousta from 1864 to 1879; is a Republican of Greenback tendencies. He carries a large and complete stock of dry goods, groceries, drugs and medicines, boots and shoes, hats, caps, glassware, notions, etc., etc.; he has a saloon in connection, and also deals in agricultural implements. He married Laura Jane Lake, of Milwaukee Co., by whom he has eight children—Eliza, Marion, Laura, Cora, John, Annie, Willie, Ernest and George. Mrs. T. was born in 1844, in Ohio.

DAVID TWHIG, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. Armstrong's Corners; born Feb. 14, 1837, in County Cork, Ireland; is a son of Bartholomew and Hanorah T., who emigrated to America in 1848, and remained in Chicopee, Mass., until 1852, when the family made a brief visit to Wisconsin and bought the farm. After the return to Massachusetts, Mr. Twohig, Sr., died, and, in 1855, the family settled on the farm of eighty acres, now owned by David Twohig, he having built good barns and a handsome modern residence. He married, Feb. 6, 1857, Miss Bridget Hardgrove, a native of County Clare, Ireland, her people having reached America in 1846, and settled, in 1852, in Forest. Mr. and Mrs. T. have five children—Bartholomew, Norah E., Henry F., David J. and George R. The family are Roman Catholics. Mr. Twohig is officially identified with his town, as he was elected Supervisor at 22 years of age, and has been elected Assessor four years.

FOREST TOWNSHIP.

A. ADAMS (deceased) was born in Rutland Co., Vt., Dec. 18, 1808. April 28, 1838, he married, in his native county, Merinda Bartlett. She was born in Rutland Co. Sept. 14, 1816. In about 1845, they came to Wisconsin, and lived in Walworth Co. one year, at the end of which time they moved to the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., where he died Oct. 8, 1868. He was a leading member of the M. E. Church, and took a deep and active interest in religious and educational matters, and during his lifetime was elected to various offices. His wife, Mrs. Adams, is still living, and resides on the homestead, on Sec. 13, town of Forest. She is a member of the M. E. Church; owns 80 acres of land. Their children are Samuel A.—he married, in this county, Melissa Heath, they live in Clark Co., Wis.; Emily E., wife of David Rogers, Clark Co., Wis. (he served in the 14 W. V. I. during the war of the rebellion, and was wounded in the service); Mortimer, who enlisted, at the age of 19, in Co. A, 10th W. V. I., and died in the service May 27, 1862; Emery C., wife of Henry Rancier, Dunn Co., Wis. (he served in a New York regiment during the late war, and was severely wounded); Helen S., deceased; Noble, who married, in this county, Agnes Carter—they now live in Iowa; David, now in Dunn Co., Wis.; Frankie, wife of Charles George, Dunn Co., Wis.; Eugene Ernest and Dohyle, of this town (Forest). Mrs. Adams' father, Hooker Bartlett, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and his father, J. Bartlett, was in the Colonial army during the war of the Revolution.

DAVID M. CARSON, Jr., farmer, Sec. 24; P. O. St. Cloud; was a soldier during the late war of the rebellion in Co. H, 14th W. V. I., and participated in numerous battles, sieges and skirmishes; was enrolled in September, 1861, at Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., and was honorably discharged in December, 1865. He was born in Augusta, Me., Feb. 16, 1837; removed with his parents, David M. and Mary J. Carson, to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co. He married, in Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., on May 31, 1868, Miss A. C. Barnes. She was the daughter of Samuel K. and Salome Barnes, who settled in this town, Forest, in 1853. She was born in Steuben Co., N. Y. They have three children—William D., Ella A. and Austin J. Mr. Carson owns 120 acres of land; is a Republican in politics. His parents moved to Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis. (where they now live), in 1868. Their children are David M., Jr., James H., now of Shell Rock, Iowa; Frederick D., who served in 5th W. V. I. during the war; Ellen, wife of L. W. Casey, Forest; Otis M. Mrs. David M. Carson's father, Samuel K. Barnes, died in 1858. His wife is still living. Their children are Uphasia L., wife of S. W. Van Doran, of Oshkosh, Wis. (he was a soldier in the war of the rebellion; served in Co. H, 14th W. V. I.); William J., of Springvale, this county, he was also a soldier in the 14th W. V. I., during the war; Milton K., also served in the 14th W. V. I., and died in the service; Austin T., was in Co. I, 5th W. V. I., and was killed at Fredericksburg, Va.; Antoinette, wife of James McConaughty (he served in Co. H, 14th W. V. I. during the war; Alvina C., wife of David M. Carson, Jr.; Salome L., wife of George W. Brown, and Miss Viola.

E. C. COON, farmer, Sec. 36; P. O. Armstrong's Corners; was born in Onondaga Co., N. Y., in 1832. Dec. 23, 1855, he married, in his native county, Angelica Crosier; she was also a native of Onondaga Co. In 1859, they came to Wisconsin, located in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., which has been their home since; they have three children—Ida, Willard and Charlie. Mr. Coon owns 240 acres of land. In politics, he is a Republican; he takes an active interest in religious and educational matters, and is, in every respect, a public-spirited citizen.

JAMES CORBETT, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. St. Cloud; was born in Benson, Rutland Co., Vt., April 11, 1826. He received a liberal education in his native county, and followed teaching there until 1849, in which year he came to Green Bay, Wis., and there and in vicinity, followed teaching and farming until about 1855. Nov. 1, 1854, he married in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Cinderilla Barragar, daughter of Hiram and Catherine Barragar, who settled in Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., in an early day; she was born near Belleville, Canada West, Sept. 3, 1836. During the war of the rebellion, Mr. Corbett enlisted in Co. G, 36th W. V. I., and was honorably discharged at the close of the war. He owns 80 acres of land. In politics, is a Republican; himself and wife are leading members of the M. E. Church. Their children are James F. (a graduate of the Cleveland Medical Institute, Ohio), Charles B., Ella and George W. Mr. C. is Secretary of the Dotyville M. E. Church, a position he has filled since its organization. His parents were Peter and Melinda Corbett, who came from Vermont to Fond du Lac Co., afterward moved to Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., where his mother died March 18, 1879. His father is still living in Greenbush, a prominent citizen; their children were Sylvester (now of Waterloo, Iowa); James (whose name appears at the head of this sketch); William H. (now in Minnesota, who was a soldier in Co. B, 8th W. V. I., two years); Sarah (wife of C. R. Barragar, of Crete, Neb., he was Captain of a company in 3d W. V. I., during the war of the rebellion); Charles (now in the mercantile business in Greenbush, served in the 8th W. V. I., during the war, and was severely wounded); Lester (also of Greenbush, served in the 14th W. V. I., in the late war), Alexander (of Greenbush). Mrs. J. Corbett's parents, Hiram and Cathrine Barragar, came from Canada to Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., where they lived two years; then moved to Forest, Fond du Lac Co., where her mother died in 1857; her father now resides in Sheboygan Falls, Wis.; their children are Henry (of Kearney, Neb.), Charles R. (who was Captain of a company in 3d W. V. I., lives in Crete, Neb.), Bidwell, (of Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., was a soldier in the 14th W. V. I.) George W. (now in Iowa), Walter M. (now in Sibley, Iowa), Alfred J. (in Crete, Neb.), Wendell H., Sheboygan Falls, Wis.

SEYMOUR ELLICSON, farmer, Secs. 23 and 24; P. O. St. Cloud. During the war of the rebellion, Mr. Ellicson served in Co. B, 8 W. V. I.; he was enrolled in the autumn of 1861, and participated in nearly all the sieges, battles and skirmishes his command was in, the principal ones being Frederickstown, Corinth, New Madrid, Ft. Pillow, Vicksburg, and a series of engagements around that place; at Iuka, he was taken prisoner and retained a short time; was honorably discharged in the autumn of 1864. He is a native of Norway; was born May 7, 1831, and in 1846, emigrated with his parents, Leaman and Ann Ellicson, to Erie Co., N. Y.; his mother died at Lockport, N. Y., and his father married again and moved to Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis.; they afterward moved to Winnebago Co., where they died. In 1853, S. Ellicson, the subject of this sketch, married in Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., Salome Snell, a native of Cortland Co., N. Y., born in 1835; she was the daughter of John and Phoebe Snell, who came to Wisconsin in 1847, and settled in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where they resided until their death. Mr. Ellieson and wife, after their marriage, lived in Greenbush until 1859, in which year they moved to their present home; their children are John A., Florence C. (the wife of Eugene Chase, Dunn Co., Wis.), Dora M. (wife of Silas Carpenter), Delbert, Esther E., Truman W., Annie S., and Lillian B. Mr. Ellieson owns 120 acres of land. Himself and family are members of the M. E. Church, in which he is a leading member; he takes an active part in the religious and educational interests, giving them his support on every possible occasion; in politics, he is a Republican.

HENRY ENGELS, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Dotyville, Wis.; born in town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Feb. 9, 1858. His father, Matthias Engels, was born in the village of Arbuick, Kreis Adana, Germany, on 6th of July, 1819, and emigrated to Canada in 1843, thence to this town (Forest) in 1847. In 1851, he married Annie Balzar; he died in Forest June 11, 1879; his wife is still living, and resides on the homestead; their children are Henry, John, Michael Martin, Frank, Katie, Lizzie, Mary and Rosa. The estate consists of 160 acres of land, well improved. During his life in the town of Forest, Mr. Matthias Engels was elected to various local offices, and took an active part in the advancement of the educational interests in the district wherein he lived.

MARY C. GIBSON, farming; P. O. Banner; owns 160 acres of well-improved land. She was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., in 1826; while she was a child, her parents, Christopher and Henrietta Carpenter, moved to St. Lawrence Co., N. Y. She was twice married, first in Onondaga Co., N. Y., to Chauncey A. Greenman, now deceased; by the above marriage there was one child—William J. Greenman, now of Bremer Co., Iowa. In 1854, she came to Wisconsin, and, in 1861, married her second husband, Russel D. Gibson, a native of Vermont, who had settled in Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in about 1852; he died Nov. 2, 1866. By this marriage, there is one child—Ella M. Mrs. Gibson oversees all work done on her farm, and is very successful in her management of it, and is a most exemplary woman.

HON. JOHN W. HALL; P. O. St. Cloud; was born in the town of Herkimer, Herkimer Co., N. Y., Jan. 9, 1819; he received a liberal education in his native county; in 1841, he went to Onondaga Co., N. Y., where he remained until 1853, in which year he came to Wisconsin; located in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac County, which has been his home since. Mr. Hall was Chairman of Town Supervisors in Forest eleven years; County Treasurer one term, and a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1861. In February, 1863, he enlisted in Co. B, 35th W. V. I., and served until June, 1865, when he was honorably discharged. Politically, Mr. Hall is independent, voting for and giving his influence to the candidates whom he believes will serve the interests of the whole people best. He has been twice married—first wife was Margaret Elliott; she died in 1869; his present wife was Hannah C. Burns. Mr. Hall takes an active interest in public affairs, and has filled every position he has been elected to, with credit to himself and constituents.

SPENCER A. HAMBLIN, farmer, Sec. 12; P. O. St. Cloud. Mr. Hamblin enlisted in Co. H, 14th W. V. I., Sept. 11, 1861; he was severely wounded at Shiloh April 7, 1862, and discharged on account of said wound on Nov. 13, 1862; after he had fully recovered he again enlisted, and was enrolled in Co. C, 4th W. V. I., in December, 1863, and served until Oct. 26, 1865, when he was honorably discharged. He was born in Van Buren, Onondaga Co., N. Y., Aug. 8, 1837, and came to Wisconsin in 1852, and has made the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., his home the greater part of the time since. March 3, 1866, he married, in Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., Elizabeth Ghoslin; they have two children—Lavina N. and William S. Politically, Mr. H. acts with the Republican party. He owns 80 acres of well-improved land. His father, A. H. Hamblin, was born Aug. 2, 1794, and was a soldier in active service during the war of 1812; he married, in Onondaga Co., N. Y., Susan Woodward; they came to Wisconsin in 1852; he died April 9, 1874; she is still living. Their children are Samantha, wife of F. Spaulding, St. Cloud; Martha, wife of L. A. Griswold, Ida Co., Iowa; Hartwell C., who served in Co. H, 14th W. V. I. during the war of the rebellion, he died in 1872; Berlin; Candace, wife of C. Alloy; Spencer A., Holland, who served in Co. H, 14th W. V. I. during the war; Lucilla A., wife of E. Miller, Osceola Co., Iowa; he was a soldier in the 8th W. V. I. during the war; Miles A., who served first in Co. H, 14th W. V. I., and afterward in Co. C, 4th W. V. I., was all through the war, he now lives in Osceola Co., Iowa; Louisa K., deceased; Owen H. N., deceased; Theresa, deceased.

JOHN HARDGROVE, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Armstrong's Corners; was born in County Clare, Ireland, in 1836; he emigrated with his parents, Henry and Mary Hardgrove, to near Toronto, Canada, where they lived about three years; moved thence to Milwaukee, where they remained two years, at the end of which time they came to Fond du Lac County and settled in the town of Forest, of which they were residents several years; in 1873, they moved to Eden, this county, where they now reside. John Hardgrove, the subject of this sketch, received a liberal education at the common schools; he has taught district schools for several terms; prior to 1861, when the system was changed, he was Town School Superintendent; he is at present Town Clerk of Forest, a position he has been the incumbent of four years. He owns 100 acres of land. In 1862, Mr. Hardgrove married, in the town of Byron, Cathrine Heragarty (daughter of James and Bridget Heragarty, who settled in the town of Mitchell, Sheboygan Co., Wis., in about 1850); they have seven children—Emily, Julia, Katie, Agnes, James, Mary, and Frances. In politics, Mr. Hardgrove is independent.

THEODORE LORHANG, dealer in agricultural implements, machinery and a full line of repairs, also proprietor of general blacksmith-shop, where he attends to general repairing and horseshoeing, Dotyville. Was born in Edensdorf, Kries Trier, Prussia, Oct. 18, 1850; in 1853, his parents emigrated to this country, and settled in the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where Theodore lived until 1872, when he learned the blacksmith trade. He married at Mt. Calvary, on Oct. 12, 1874, Annie Gesellehen, she was born in Mt. Calvary; they moved to Dotyville in 1876; their children are Theodore, Vincent and J. Joseph; Mr. Lorhang engaged in his present business in Dotyville in 1876; he is a first-class mechanic, and his work gives general satisfaction, therefore he has a large custom. His parents were Bernard and Angelica Lorhang; he a native of Paris, France, she of Kries Trier, Germany; he died in Calumet in 1866; she is still living. Mrs. T. Lorhang's parents were Peter and Gertrude Gesellehen, natives of Germany, who settled in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., in 1850.

C. C. LYON, a leading farmer, Sec. 14; P. O. Banner; is a native of Strongsville, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio; was born Sept. 12, 1823, where he remained until 21 years of age; he then went to Cleveland, Ohio, and there learned the machinist and engineer trades; worked at the machinist trade in various places in Ohio and New York in the winters, and in the summer seasons, following the vocation of engineer on the lakes; in 1857, he came to Wisconsin, and Fond du Lac Co. has been his home the greater part of the time since; he owns 177 acres of land, and in connection with John A. Smith, of Sheboygan Co., carries on a cheese factory; their factory is located on Sec. 29, and the cheese they make is widely known for its superior quality. In politics, Mr. Lyon is a Democrat; he has been elected to various local offices. Has been twice married, first in Buffalo, N. Y., to Matilda Curtis, she died in Forest in June, 1872; children by the above marriage are Frank M. (now in Denver, Colo.), Charles C. (who married Bertie A. Nutting and resides in Forest), Mary M., Emma, Fred and May; present wife was Caroline Nutting, widow of E. D. Nutting; her maiden name was Parmalee; she was born in Pittsfield, Rutland Co., Vt., where she married her first husband, and came with him to Wisconsin in 1856; he died in Fond du Lac; she married Mr. Lyon Feb. 22, 1872; they have one child, Samuel S.; by her first marriage, there are five children, viz.: Charlotte (wife of Lewis Langstaff, of Milwaukee); Sarah R. (wife of A. D. Lytle, Wood Co., Wis.), Ella J., wife of D. E. Hadlock, Kearney Co., Neb.), Bertie, wife of Charles C. Lyon; Frankie, (wife of William Zan, of this town, Forest).

JOHN REIS, merchant, Dotyville. Was born in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1851; was educated at Mount Calvary; engaged in the mercantile business at Dotyville in 1877, and has a large and constantly increasing trade. His father, Theodore Reis, was born in Mehring, Kries Trier, Germany, in 1817; emigrated to America in 1846; settled in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he married Gertrude Hoffman; they are still living in Marshfield, old and honored citizens; their children are John, Mary (wife of Matt. Lauser, of Dotyville), Peter (proprietor harness-shop, Dotyville), Gertrude, Theodore, Helen, Annie, Philip, Clara and Apponia.

HENRY STANNARD, farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Armstrong's Corners. At the breaking-out of the war of the rebellion, Mr. Stannard enlisted in Co. B, 8th W. V. I.; served until October, 1862, when he was honorably discharged. He was born in the town of Gates, Monroe Co., N. Y., Jan. 20, 1843; when he was 3 years old, his parents moved to Rochester, N. Y., thence to Wisconsin in 1851, and settled in the town of Greenbush, Sheboygan Co. He married in Madison, Wis., Nov. 9, 1866, Unice N. Bryant, a native of Cheshire Co., N. H. On his return from the army, Mr. Stannard engaged as clerk in a mercantile house at Madison, Wis., two years; in about 1865, he engaged in the mercantile business on his own account until 1870; in 1871, he moved to Forest, where he has resided since. Himself and wife are members of the Union Church; their children are George E., Allen W., Gilbert H., and Laura Z., one deceased, James B. (born March 26, 1871, died July 30, 1874). Mr. Stannard owns eighty acres of land. In politics, he is a Republican. His father, Hon. E. W. Stannard, was born in Portland Co., N. Y., Nov. 22, 1817; he married in Sullivan, N. Y., in 1819, Zeviah Knowles; she was born in Madison Co., N. Y., in 1820; in 1848, he went to California, returned in May, 1851, and immediately moved to Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., where he lived until the breaking-out of the war of the rebellion, when he was made Captain of Co. B, of the 27th W. V. I., and was killed in the service, near Satarica, Miss., June 7, 1863. He was, for a number of years, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors in Greenbush, and several terms a member of the Wisconsin Assembly; she is still living, and resides in Greenbush; their children are Allie L. (wife of H. C. Wade, of Greenbush) and Henry, whose name appears at the head of this sketch.

GEORGE QUACKENBOSS, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. St. Cloud; was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., Nov. 18, 1817. In 1835, he removed, with his parents, to Clay, Onondaga Co., N. Y., where he married, in 1816, Miss C. M. Marshall, a native of Onondaga Co., born Nov. 11, 1823; in 1849, they moved to the town of Cato, N. Y., thence to Wisconsin in 1853; settled in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., where they have resided since; their children are Chester A. (now of Clark Co., Wis.), David S., John R., and George N. (of Forest), Sarah C. (deceased). Mr. Quackenboss owns eighty acres of land; in politics, he acts with the Greenback party. His father, Richard Quackenboss, was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., where his ancestors had settled prior to the war of the Revolution. He married Catharine Garland; both are deceased. Mrs. G. Quackenboss' father was Nodiah Marshall, a native of Saratoga Co., N. Y.; was a soldier in active service during the war of 1812, and his father, Joel Marshall, served in the Colonial army, under Washington, during the war of the Revolution. Mr. Quackenboss has been engaged in farming since his coming to Fond du Lac Co., in 1853, and is among the most successful in the town of Forest.

C. F. G. WERNICKE, farmer, Sec. 12; P. O. St. Cloud; was born in Vaethen, Kries Stendal, Regierungsbezirk, Magdeburg, Prussia, Nov. 7, 1831; in 1843, he entered the College of Halle, and pursued his studies there until 1846, when he entered the Agricultural College at Bedersleben, where he graduated in 1848; he then was appointed to oversee and manage several large estates until 1850, when he volunteered in the 31st Regiment, Prussian Army, serving until the 27th of September, 1851, when he was honorably discharged; in July, 1858, he received a full discharge from the Prussian Government as a citizen and as a Lieutenant of militia, and he emigrated to this country, arriving in New York Oct. 20, 1858; went thence to Calhoun Co., Mich., where he lived until February, 1859, when he came to Wisconsin, and purchased land in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co. On July 3, 1859, he married Sophia Fricke; they lived in Marshfield until October, then moved to Charlestown, Calumet Co., Wis., where he rented a farm, having lost his farm in Marshfield; in 1864, he purchased a farm in Charlestown of 120 acres. In March, 1865, he was drafted; reported at Green Bay; was assigned to the 14th W. V. I. at Madison; was discharged May 7, 1865. After being discharged, he returned to Charlestown, sold his farm, and, in the autumn of 1865, returned to his native country on a visit, remaining until March, 1866, when he returned to Charlestown, remaining there until May, when he moved to Forest and bought the farm he now resides on; he owns 121 acres of land, well improved. His first wife died in Forest, April 29, 1872; she was born Aug. 31, 1839; she was the mother of five children—Antoine, born April 1, 1860, is now teaching school; Otto, June 18, 1862, is now attending Commercial College at Fond du Lac; Charlie, July 16, 1865; Anna, Feb. 26, 1867; Clara, May 17, 1869. June 6, 1872, Mr. Wernicke married his present wife; her maiden name was Louise Knabe; by this marriage there are four children—Alfred, born April 21, 1873; Ida, Dec. 4, 1874; Fredrick, May 18, 1876; Agnes, Nov. 7, 1879. In politics, Mr. Wernicke is a Democrat; he has been Justice of the Peace about six years. He represents three fire insurance companies—Northwestern National, of Milwaukee; the Milwaukee Merchants' Insurance Company, and the German, of Freeport, Ill. His father, the Rev. Wernicke, a Lutheran minister at Vaethen, Kries Stendal, Prussia, was born in the city of Ellerich, Prussia, July 3, 1795; was a soldier in active service in the Prussian Army from 1812 to 1815, and participated in the battles of Leipsic, Waterloo and Paris. His wife was Caroline M. W. Breust; she was born in 1797, and died Sept. 24, 1861.

EDEN TOWNSHIP.

V. G. AVERILL, farmer and shoemaker, Eden; born in Plattsburg, N. Y., June 7, 1829; spent his early life, was educated and learned his trade in his native county; is a son of Stephen and Susan (Moore) Averill; Stephen Averill was born in Connecticut, his parents removing to Plattsburg when he was 2 years of age; he grew to be a man of unusual energy and business talent; carried on an extensive boot, shoe and leather business in Plattsburg for sixty years; at one time owned two tanneries; was despoiled of over $1,000 worth of leather by the British in 1814; died at 91, outliving his wife by many years. In 1850, V. G. Averill removed to Cleveland Ohio, with his family; in 1849, opened a shop on St. Clair street, where he did business until 1855, when he removed to Wisconsin and to Eden; bought his farm of 61 acres, on which he resided until August, 1876, when he removed and began business in Eden Village. Married Miss Margaret Dupys, of Clinton Co., N. Y., 1847; they have seven children—Rosanna C., Sarah J., Veranus, Alfred, Leonard C., Jasper S. and Maybell M. Mr. Averill manufactures and sells everything in the line of boots and shoes for both sexes, having a combined shop and store. He is a Democrat, and favors the greenback.

GEORGE C. BAGLEY, of D. S. Bagley & Sons, grain and produce dealers; P. O. Eden; born in Coos Co., N. H., March 1, 1851; son of D. S. Bagley, who located with his family in Milwaukee, 1856; he engaged first in farming, then in milling; during 1872, Mr. Bagley, Sr., located five warehouses at as many different points on the Wisconsin Central Railroad, making his home in Plymouth; George C. went into the mines of Colorado at this time, remaining four years; on his return he joined his father and brother, H. F., thus constituting the present firm, which owns seven warehouses and elevators, viz., Eden, New Cassel, Plymouth, Random Lake, Chilton, New Holstein, and Saukville; they buy from 300,000 to 500,000 bushels of grain per annum, and deal extensively in wool, seeds, etc.; amount of business done preceding year, $500,000; George C. located at Eden in 1877; he has the best-equipped steam elevator on his road, built with a capacity of 12,000 bushels; he also controls the New Cassel warehouse, and is a live young business man, and is a hard-money Democrat. He married Miss Cornelia Dudley in 1876; they have one son, Dudley S., born Oct. 11, 1876.

LUCIUS A. BATTERSON, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Eden; born in Medina Co., Ohio, Aug. 12, 1830, son of Lewis and Nancy B., who came from Ohio to Waukesha Co., Wis., in 1847, settling on wild land in Eden, 1848; bought 320 acres on Secs. 33 and 29 heavily timbered with white and red oak, maple, ash, basswood, etc.; Lewis Batterson died soon after, but his family did the work of pioneers, and saw all the experiences of the new settlers; Lucius Batterson lived on the homestead until August, 1862, when he enlisted in the 32d W. V. I.; was with his regiment in pursuit of Forrest in Mississippi and Tennessee; he was also in Alabama and Georgia; was stricken with chills and fever in Memphis, and came home on a six-months furlough; he rejoined the regiment at Atlanta, September, 1864, going with Gen. Sherman on the famous march to the sea; at Buford, S. C., he was again attacked with his old malady, and was for a time in a New York City hospital; then transferred to Prairie du Chien and honorably discharged in May, 1865. He spent the summer with his mother; then bought his present farm of 80 acres; built an elegant residence in 1868, where he lives with his aged mother, who retains her faculties at 84; she is a daughter of A. Derthick; was born in Chatham, Conn., and married Mr. Batterson in 1813, in his native State, going from there to Ohio. Her son's farm was a part of the Vandevort homestead, and about 15 acres is in the village plat of Eden. Mr. Batterson is an Independent Republican.

JACOB BAUMHART, farmer, Sec. 28; P. O. Eden; born in Rhenish Prussia in 1828; was educated in his native land, and served three years in the Prussian Infantry Guards; came to America in 1854; spent a year in Ohio; then came to Fond du Lac Co.; worked about three years for S. Silvester. Married Miss Elizabeth Brem, a native of Switzerland, in 1858, and settled the same year on 40 acres, now owned by his brother; after selling this he bought 80 acres of his present farm, on which was a good barn and a log house. Mr. Baumhart now owns 155 acres, well improved, and has built a pleasant home. This is a good record for a man who reached Fond du Lac Co. with $3 in money, and who worked out the first summer at $10 per month, having only good health and good pluck to begin with. Mr. and Mrs. Baumhart have six children—Charles, Samuel, Frederick, Matilda, Carolina and Amelia. The family are Evangelical Lutherans; Mr. Baumhart is a good farmer and citizen, voting for men instead of party.

MONMOUTH BRIGGS, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Eden; born in Scranton, Penn., Feb. 20, 1827; spent his early life and was educated in his native town; coming to Wisconsin, 1850; locating for a time in Empire; in 1851, he bought his farm of a Mr. Cogswell; about thirty acres of this was broken and the remaining fifty timbered openings. Mrs. Briggs was Miss Charlotte Berry, a native of Putnam Co., N. Y.; she was educated in Peekskill and came to Wisconsin and Empire in 1849; they were married April 5, 1851, and at once began farm life, living in what was then called the "Old Abbey," a most picturesque log house, well built and partitioned, and ornamented with rustic porches, seats, lattice-work, etc., to complete the picture it was overrun with ivy, honeysuckle and bittersweet; this cozy home burned 1857 or 1858, and was replaced by the present substantial and elegant farmhouse. Mr. Briggs and wife worked hard, added forty acres to the farm, and have all necessary barns, stock, implements, etc.; the farm and vicinity lie higher than the surrounding country, yet it has near the farm a never-failing and never-freezing spring; Mr. B. also has two wells, each about twenty feet in depth, though many almost adjoining farmers have to dig at least fifty feet for water; having a pleasant home, they now recall the toilsome days of yore with pleasure; they have three children—Albert L., Eugene T. and Frank, having lost a daughter, Lottie. Mr. Briggs is a Republican and has been Supervisor; his wife is a member of the M. E. Church. As a stock-raiser Mr. Briggs has shorthorn cattle, Merino sheep and other stock.

WILLIAM BEIRNE, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Eden; born in the town of Underhill, Chittenden Co., Vt., June 7, 1848; son of Joseph and Mary Beirne; William was educated in the Underhill Academy, living on the farm of his parents, and, in 1864, coming with them to Eden; his father bought his farm of L. J. Harvey, an early settler, who built a most pleasant residence, inclosing it with a double row of different kinds of evergreens, he at the time owning a nursery in New Jersey; this makes the home of Mr. Beirne among the most attractive in the county; Joseph Beirne died June 29, 1865, his only son has since owned the homestead of 160 acres. He married Miss Alice, a daughter of John O'Brien, who came from Massachusetts to Osceola in 1858; Mrs. Beirne was born, educated and married in Osceola; they have two children—Joseph and John. Mr. Beirne is a Greenback Democrat, and a member, with his wife, of the Roman Catholic Church.

THOMAS CALE, farmer, Secs. 10 and 11; P. O. Eden; born in the town of Underhill, Chittenden Co., Vt., Sept. 17, 1848; he was a farmer's son and was educated in Underhill Academy; began teaching in his native State, and has taught twelve terms in Wisconsin; he spent three years in Eastern New York, and came to Wisconsin in 1869, buying his farm of 118 acres. He married Miss Margaret Rooney in April, 1872; she was born in County Clare, Ireland, and came to America and to Eden, 1866; they have four children—James M., Rosanna, M. Agnes and Thomas P. Mr. and Mrs. Cale are Roman Catholics. He is an enterprising young farmer, devoting his farm to both grain and stock. Politics, Greenbacker.

HARVEY J. CARTER, farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Campbellport; born in Crawford Co., Penn., March 8, 1817. Arriving at the age of 20, he married and removed to Illinois; in October, 1839, he drove an ox team to Milwaukee, and at once made a "squatter's claim" in that county; here the young couple saw all they wished of frontier life, living on a scant supply of milk and corn-meal, the corn pounded fine in a log hollowed out for the purpose; knowing that he must have an ox to clear a piece for his first wheat, he tramped to the then village and applied to Hal Ludington, then a hardware merchant, afterward Governor of Wisconsin; he told Mr. C. that he was penniless, but that he would pay with the first money the ox earned; Mr. L. refused this, though Mr. Carter found a friend and got an ox, and Mr. Ludington lost a customer; Mr. Carter cleared the land and sowed the wheat, and though his nearest mill was Watertown, and his wife and child were often on a starvation diet, his first wheat crop marked the beginning of a brighter era; on June, 1847, settled on his present farm, and was the first settler in the south half of Eden; the farm and country around him was a wilderness; he built a good log house and resumed his pioneer work, also helping to lay out all the roads in his vicinity. Mr. C. improved a large farm, has sold 120 acres, and now has eighty and a good home; his wife, a most faithful helpmeet, was Miss Sarah Cole; she died in 1851, leaving three children—Miles, Mary J. and Emma. He married again Miss Margaret Mullen; they have six children—Helen E., Clara S., Delilah N., Sarah L., George H. and Harriet R. Mr. Carter is a Democratic Greenbacker; was Supervisor several years, also Assessor; is a member, with his family, of the Roman Catholic Church.

THOMAS COLEMAN, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Eden; born in County Louth, Ireland, March 10, 1832; his parents were farmers, he being educated in his native county; came to America, locating at Vienna, N. Y., where he worked at malting; in February, 1853, he came to Milwaukee and remained until May, then located at Oshkosh; here he was in the lumber traffic; settled on his farm in May, 1862, and has improved it in many ways—built an elegant farm residence, other farm buildings, and has all necessary stock, implements, etc. He married, Nov. 23, 1857, in Oshkosh, Miss Ann Murphy, who was born in his native county, coming to America in 1848, and to Wisconsin in 1854; they have two children—Thomas A. and Mary A. Mr. Coleman is a Democrat, and, with his family, a Roman Catholic. He has been President of the Ashford Town Insurance Company for five years, and is now serving his fifth term of Town Clerk.

GEORGE W. DENNISTON, carpenter and wheelwright, Sec. 10; P. O. Eden; born in Reading, Penn., Sept. 15, 1824; spent his early life in Orange Co., N. Y., where he learned his trades of his father, Joseph Denniston, who came with his family to Eden in 1848; G. W. Denniston settled on his present location in 1865; was made Postmaster of Foster in 1874, resigning in 1879, when the office was removed to Eden. Married, in Eden in 1857, Miss Margaret McIntyre; they have four living children—Alice L., Emma L., Anna M. and Florence K.; have lost two children. Mr. D. is a Republican, and has been Justice of the Peace; the family are Methodists. He bought a farm on Sec. 11 of the Government, cleared it and exchanged it for one on Sec. 15; his services as carpenter were in such request that, in 1865, he sold his farm and bought his location of twelve acres, where he has a pleasant home. Mr. D. is the inventor of a double, adjustable land-roller, which gives the best of satisfaction to those using them; he has applied for a patent, and will manufacture about thirty the coming season.

J. H. DENNISTON, farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Campbellport; born in Orange Co., N. Y., Oct. 14, 1826; he spent his early life and was educated in his native county; in 1849, he accompanied his parents, Joseph and Mary D., to the town of Eden; Joseph Denniston was a mechanic, though he at once bought Government land on Secs. 1 and 11; this he soon exchanged for a partly improved farm on Secs. 14 and 15; J. H. Denniston lived here until 1863, when he bought eighty acres on Sec. 10; in 1873, he sold this and bought property in New Cassel, where he lived over two years, at the time owning a farm north of the village; in April, 1876, he settled on his present farm of sixty acres; this is well improved, and on it is a large and handsome farm residence, built by Edmund L. Peck. Mr. Denniston married, Feb. 25, 1857, Miss Anna J., daughter of Joshua and Ellen Morehouse; she was born in Canada, her parents removing to Clayton, Jefferson Co., N. Y., when she was a babe; the family settled on a farm in Byron in 1849; Mr. and Mrs. D. have five children—Ella M., Warren C., Carrie E., Harry J. and Mabel A. Mr. Denniston is a staunch Republican, and a successful farmer, having all needed buildings, implements, stock, etc.

WILLIAM DUSENBERY, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in the town of Harrison (Harrison's Purchase), Westchester Co., N. Y., Oct. 6, 1817; was educated in his native town, living on the farm until he was 18, when he went to New York City, remaining one and one-half years; after his marriage, he was made overseer of a large farm in Pelham for nine years; in 1852, he removed with his family to Eden and bought 160 acres (sold 80 in 1869); the land was almost as the hand of nature left it, though a log house had been built; Mr. Dusenbery has improved the farm, built a large, handsome residence, good barn, etc., and has all the belongings to a first-class farm. He married Miss Harriet Bouton June 27, 1839, who died Dec. 31, 1866, leaving seven children—Phebe A. (deceased), William A., George E., Electa, Matilda, Harriet and Rebecca; Feb. 1, 1870, he married Mrs. Clarissa Shays, daughter of Gains Alexander; she was born in Lewis Co., N. Y., where she married Elisha Shays; they lost two children, and he died in the same county. Mr. Dusenbery was the founder and is a leading member of the Empire M. E. Church; was its Sunday-school Superintendent fourteen years; he was also one of the original Stewards and Trustees, still holding both positions; he is a Democrat, and is serving his sixth term as Supervisor.

CHRISTOPHER FLOOD, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Eden; born in County Meath, Ireland, on the historic "Hill of Tara;" he came with his parents to America in 1843, remaining in Hoosie, N. J., until March, 1848, when he came to Eden and bought his farm; Messrs. Ward, McGinty and Odekirk were his neighbors; no road in the town, but a track ran north of the side of his house; he was joined by his parents, brothers and sisters the next summer, they living first in a shanty, then in a log house; with a yoke of cattle they used to go twenty-one miles to Mayville to mill, and did good pioneer work chopping, logging and burning the timber. Feb. 22, 1857, he married Miss Catherine, a daughter of James Lynch, who came from County Cavan to America with a family, settling in Dutchess Co., N. Y., where Mrs. F. was born; the family settled in Wisconsin in 1848; Mr. and Mrs. Flood have ten children—James T., Peter F., Thomas, Mary A., Catherine J., Christopher J., John N., Amelia R., Mathias P. and Michael H. The old couple died on the homestead, now containing 130 acres; on this is an excellent living spring, several good barns, and the largest frame house in Eden, built in 1878; the upright is 18x26, wing 18x24, woodhouse and kitchen 16x26 feet; this is a well-built and handsome residence; Mr. F. has all needed tools and stock, and is one of the successful pioneers of Eden. With his family, he is a Roman Catholic, and an Independent Democrat in politics. He is a good citizen and was public spirited enough to give the land on which the district schoolhouse was built.

PETER FLOOD, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Eden; born in County Meath, Ireland, Nov. 19, 1838; son of James and Rose Flood, who emigrated to America in 1841, locating in Hoosic, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., where they lived until 1848, when they came to Wisconsin and bought Government land, now owned by C. Flood; Peter Flood attended the local schools, and, at the age of 17, began teaching; taught nine winter terms in Eden, two in Ashford and two in Sheboygan Co.; in 1861, he settled on his farm of ninety acres, then heavily timbered land, destitute of buildings; as a result of sturdy work with his ax, it is now cleared and improved; he has also built a large and tasty residence and basement barn, having all needed implements and stock. Married Miss Ann, daughter of George Lloyd; she was a native of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and settled with her parents in Byron in 1850, marrying Mr. F. in 1864; they have five children—George H., James E., Annie, Rose and Peter A. The Floods bought a heavily timbered slice of Uncle Sam's domain, when they had but three neighbors; built a trough-covered "wigwam," and began pioneer life; the milling was done at Mayville with ox teams; the old couple ended their lives in a pleasant home, won by pluck and enterprise. James Flood was a carpenter, and did the inside work on the first Roman Catholic church ever built in Eden; it was built of logs, on the south line of Sec. 29, and served well up to the time of the building of St. James' Church in 1865. Peter F. is a Greenbacker, and was twice Supervisor of Eden; is, with his wife, a Roman Catholic.

PETER HERATY, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Eden; born in County Mayo, Ireland, Nov. 18, 1839; son of James and Bridget H., who emigrated to America in 1847, living two years in Oswego Co., N. Y., then settling on Sec. 5, town of Mitchell, Sheboygan Co., Wis.; they bought eighty acres of heavy timber, crossed by Indian trails and Indians also; built a log shanty, roofed with log shakes; having paid their all for the land, they, for three long years, dug the land with a grub hoe; all meat was obtained of the Indians, the family faring hard and working harder; in 1851 or 1852, they raised a crop of potatoes, and, as the market was good, sold enough to get a yoke of cattle. Peter, the eldest son, did his share of this work, the result of which is the well-improved homestead of 240 acres, a large basement barn, etc. On the 7th of January, 1874, he married in Osceola Miss Ellen, daughter of Daniel and Mary Sullivan; for their wedding trip, they came to their present farm the next day; this contains 200 acres, and, with the large and pleasantly located residence upon it, was earned on the Sheboygan Co. farm by men who were not afraid to dig the new, rooty soil of Wisconsin with a grub hoe. Mr. Heraty received a common-school education and has taught eight terms, his wife having beaten him by one; they have one son—James, born Oct. 20, 1874. Religion, Roman Catholic. Mr. H. has served as Town Treasurer and three times as Town Clerk of Mitchell, and was Town Clerk of Eden in 1875-76; his politics are Democratic.

N. P. KELLOGG, farmer, Sec. 18; P. O. Eden; born in Madison Co., N. Y., in 1825; spent his early life in his native county, and, in 1845, came to Wisconsin; during the first winter, he was in Kenosha Co., Wis.; the next spring, in company with his brother A. G., he made a cart, the wheels of which were sawed off the end of a large log; with two yoke of oxen on this, they reached Ceresco, Fond du Lac Co.; they bought 160 acres two and a half miles east of what is now Ripon, then open prairie; built a shanty of green lumber, which dried and left wide cracks, through which the snow would often sift to a depth of several inches; here they lived a bachelor's life, getting out fencing and shingles the first winter, and baking bread every day, which froze in their barnlike shanty, in which was an old-fashioned "Jewsharp" stove; the next spring, they alone built, raised and shingled a good log house; they had much trouble to get milling done, and once, Mr. K. going forty five miles to Columbus with a grist, by bribing the miller got his in good time; he had been long enough on a diet of beans, potatoes and milk; the brothers bought 160 acres more in 1847, and did good work with their breaking team. N. P. Kellogg exchanged his share of the farm for a hotel near Watertown, where he spent the winter of 1851; removed the next June to Forest, where he built the well-known old Kellogg Tavern, on the plank road; this he kept four years, then farmed it on Sec. 18, same town, until 1868, when he bought his present farm of 147 acres; this was well improved; he has a large and most pleasant farmhouse, and all needful stock and implements. Married, in January, 1854, Miss Anna Owen, of the city of Dublin; her parents came to America when she was eight years old, locating in New York State, she coming to Wisconsin in 1847; Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg have three sons—Walter N., Charles H. and John F. Mr. K. is a Republican of Greenback tendencies. He is a hardy Wisconsin pioneer, who has earned a good home and enjoys it.

WILLIAM C. KEYS, farmer, Sec. 24; P. O. Waucousta; born in County Tyrone, Ireland, May 25, 1841; came to America in 1849 with his parents, William and Margeret Keys, who came direct to the then village of Fond du Lac; Mr. K., though then a lad, well remembers the building of Dr. Darling's block; the family located one and a half miles east of the town, William attending district school, as the schools were then organized; in 1853, they settled in Osceola, where his father bought heavily timbered Government land, crossed by Indian trails, and Indians as well, during the first two years; this was a genuine pioneer family, and saw much of pioneer life. In 1865, W. C. Keys settled on his farm of eighty acres, marrying, the same year, Miss Ellen Adams, who was born, educated and married in the town of Forest; they have one son—Willie A., born August 14, 1869. Mr. K. is a Greenbacker, and is both a farmer and dairyman.

DANIEL McCARTHY, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Eden; born in County Cork, Ireland, in 1814; came to America in 1814, and lived in Ontario Co., N. Y., until 1819, when he and his brother Florence came to Wisconsin and bought 160 acres in Eden; this took all his money, and he returned to New York, worked to earn more, married, and, on his return, took his share of the quarter-section and built a log shanty, where the young couple lived frontier fashion two years; he then bought forty acres in Byron, on which was a small house, which he moved, and is now part of his residence; from this hard beginning, he has prospered; has a good farm of 226 acres, a well-built modern house, and a basement barn 110 feet in length; also has over two hundred Merino and Cotswold sheep, besides breeding cattle, horses, hogs, etc. Married Miss Mary Kingston, a native of County Cork, who came to America in 1817, in Ontario Co., N. Y.; they have three children—Honora, Charles and Daniel. Mr. McCarthy is a Democrat and, with his family, a Catholic; he is a successful and self-made man.

FLORENCE McCARTHY, farmer, Sec. 18; P. O. Eden; born in County Cork, Ireland, in 1811; came to America in 1842, and was six years in the service of Thomas Beals, Esq., of Canandaigua, N. Y.; in 1849, came with his brother Daniel to Wisconsin and to Eden, where they spent their all for 160 acres of land; his wife died in July, 1849, it being the first interment in the Byron cemetery; this was a hard blow to the lonely settler; but he worked hard, cleared the farm, and then bought a farm of his own. In 1856, he married Miss Honora Butler, who died in 1858. Mr. McCarthy has seventy-four acres and a most pleasant home; was, in old times, an extensive wheat-grower, and sold the first load ever drawn to the Eden market. He is a Democrat and a Catholic, and has held school office. His third wife was Mrs. Mary McGraw, who died in July, 1872, leaving one daughter—Hannah, now the wife of John Stannell, who was born and raised in Osceola Township.

JEREMIAH McCARTHY, farmer, Sec. 7; P. O. Eden; born in County Cork, Ireland, in 1819; came to America in 1845, residing in Ontario Co., N. Y., until 1850, when he joined his brothers in Eden and worked in partnership with them several years; like his brothers, he began poor and is a self-made man. After his marriage to Miss Nancy Kingston, he settled and built on his present location. Mr. McCarthy has worked hard, managed well and been successful; has a good farm of 166 acres, part of which is the old homestead of 1849; has a large and pleasant farmhouse, good barns, etc. His worthy wife died Feb. 26, 1871, leaving two children—Florence and Mary A.; the second wife was Miss Mary Mullen, by whom he has three children—Catherine T., Ellen M. and Jeremiah J. Mr. McCarthy lost two children by the first wife and one by the second. He is a Democrat and, with his family, a Roman Catholic; has on the farm 100 good Cotswold sheep, cattle, one Durham, horses, etc.

GEORGE McFARLAND (deceased); born in Glasgow, Scotland; came to America about 1832, and worked as a quarryman in Ulster Co., N. Y. Here, in 1839, he married Miss Esther L. Somes, a native of Greene Co., N. Y., to which they removed. In May, 1844, Mr. McFarland bought a farm in Southern Wisconsin, which he sold, and was joined by his wife in 1846, they living in the town of Milwaukee three years; in May, 1849, they bought the McFarland homestead of the Government, built a house of peeled poplar logs, roofed with basswood troughs, and which was the best in the vicinity; Mr. McFarland at once began clearing and breaking; sowed eight acres of wheat the first fall, some of which he hauled with his ox team to Mayville, twenty miles, to have it ground; the young couple saw enough of pioneering, but still prospered. Mr. McFarland died Feb. 9, 1865, leaving ten children—Emeline, Phebe A., George E., Charles, Lucy S., William, John, Lorenzo D., Wiler (deceased) and Elmer E. Mrs. McFarland has proved a most capable mother, as the house has been rebuilt and made a most pleasant home, several good barns, etc., erected and the farm stocked and made valuable; it is now the home of Mrs. McF., William, Lucy and E. E., and is controlled by William. Mr. McFarland was an Independent Democrat. Emeline is married and is in Mower Co., Minn.; Phebe A. is also married and lives in Fond du Lac, as is also George E.; Charles is married and a resident of Arizona; John and Lorenzo are in Minnesota, the latter owning a farm in Pearlham. Mrs. McFarland is a Baptist in religious belief.

JAMES MAHONEY, farmer, Secs. 7 and 8; P. O. Eden; born in County Cork, Ireland, June 20, 1830; came to America in 1844, locating in Ontario Co., N. Y., where he remained until May, 1847, when he came to Eden and bought Government land for his brother, which he began clearing; after two years, he received eighty acres of this in payment; he reached this by an Indian trail, and was peniless, of course seeing many hardships; used to carry a tomahawk and blaze the trees in getting about the country, going to Watertown and Sheboygan Falls to mill; he stayed the first few nights on the soft side of Mr. Bishop's cabin floor; the best of feeling existed among the pioneers who used to go eight and ten miles to a raising; he says it took half the men in the county to raise Col. Conklin's mill, since burned. Paul Cayce, Cass, Vandervoort and Bailey were his neighbors; Mr. M. is now the oldest actual settler, except Q. Hayes and Dr. Vandervoort. He married, in 1856, Miss Mary J., daughter of P. Kelly, one of the first settlers in Byron; she died May 7, 1871, leaving eight children—Patrick, Ann M., Margeret, James, Michael, Mary, Daniel and Eliza. On the 7th of November, 1871, he married Miss Catherine, daughter of B. Twolig; Mrs. M. was also of County Cork, coming to America in 1848, and to Osceola in 1853 or 1854; she was educated and began teaching in this town, and has taught thirteen terms; they have three children—Nora A., Bartholomew S. and Katie. Mr. Mahoney was a most successful pioneer, now owning 204 acres, with good buildings.

THOMAS F. MEADE, farmer, Secs. 21 and 29; P. O. Eden; born in Washington Co., Wis., June 28, 1851, son of Patrick and Catherine M., who came to Washington Co., Wis., in 1850, and to Eden, 1856; they bought the present Meade homestead of W. Odekirk, the Meades adding to both the farm and the buildings; in 1874, Patrick M. removed to a farm in the northwest part of Byron, he and his wife coming from Ireland to America in 1848; they have five children—Thos. F., Mary A., Charles L., Andrew and Wm. H. Thomas F. Meade now owns 100 acres of the farm, and has control of the remaining 100. He married Miss Mary P., daughter of A. Dolan, of Byron, Nov. 27, 1877, she dying June 6, 1879. Mr. M. is a Democrat of Greenback tendencies, and a Roman Catholic. He is a good type of the stirring, progressive young Wisconsin farmer, devoting his farm to the usual grains and all kinds of stock.

CHARLES MITCHELL, farmer, Secs. 6 and 7; P. O. Eden; born in Middletown, Conn., March 1, 1819; when about 16, he went to New York City where he learned the carpenter's trade; then locating in Onondaga Co., N. Y. where he married Miss Caroline Austin. Mr. M. spent the winter of 1843 in Kenosha, Wis.; then lived in McHenry Co., Ill., until May, 1846, when he bought United States land on Sec. 7, town of Eden, on which he settled; on the arrival of his wife, they lived for a time in their wagon, he building a rude shanty, roofed with hollow basswood logs split in half, the door hewed from a log, and in one end, a rude fire-place; he plowed a furrow for his first potato crop, turning back the tough sod on the seed, and says he did raise the "murphys," but that they were flat as pancakes; Indians, bears, deers and wild-cats were his neighbors, the latter sometimes "borrowing" his poultry. Mr. Mitchell helped to lay out the road past his farm, and many others; drew his first grist to Fisher's mill, waited two weeks, returned, and could find neither bags or grist; after a period of semi-starvation on rice, etc., he went with his ox team to Watertown to mill; then, owing to the rush of grists, was obliged to bribe the miller in order to get his ground; he used to carry an ax in his wagon to repair the primitive bridges of the times, and was often out of both money and food; his wife, a most worthy helpmeet, died June 20, 1879, leaving nine children—James, now an Iowa farmer; Helen, now Mrs. Chas. Hanson; Austin, a New London (Wis.) M. D.; Esther, wife of F. Anderson, of Clinton, Iowa; and Oscar, Charles, Carrie, Lula and Lenora, all on the farm. Mr. M. is a Republican, and a member of the U. B. Church in Christ; has 120 acres, on which is a valuable ledge of limestone, and a lime kiln, now managed by his sons.

JAMES J. ODEKIRK, farmer, Sec. 22, P. O. Eden; born in Rensselaer Co., N. Y., Feb. 17, 1822; spent his early life and was educated in his native town of Hoosick; came to Wisconsin and to Eden in 1847, buying heavily timbered land of the Government; he built a shanty, 12x20, with a flat roof of basswood troughs; among the first trees he cut was an immense "bee tree," from which he and his wife took four pails of honey, which was a most welcome feast; during the first years, Mr. O., in order to live, used to seek and find work by the day, sometimes many miles from home, his plucky wife remaining for days alone in the forest cabin, with Indians and wild animals for neighbors; the present Fond du Lac road was then an Indian trail; one dark night, in coming from the house of a neighbor with a lantern, they lost their way in the dense woods, and actually "camped out" that February night, building a fire by the aid of the lantern; most of their household furniture was home-made—a pork barrel and soap barrel dug from logs, and a butter-bowl and ladle made of maple, the latter still in active use, and kept as a token of old times; they made large quantities of maple sugar, and exchanged it for coarse flour; as a result of this toilsome and needy beginning, Mr. Odekirk has 135 acres well improved, several large barns, (one new one), and a pleasant residence, besides property in Fond du Lac—a good showing for a man who used to make his summer shoes of old boot-legs. He married, Feb. 12, 1846, Miss Almira Kelyer, a native of Grafton, N. Y., who was then 16, and began frontier life at 17; they have two children—Émilia

(now Mrs. S. M. Kuter), and Alice A. (the wife of Charles Youmans). Mr. Odekirk is a Republican, and has been Supervisor and Justice of the Peace. Three of the children are not living—Harriet A., James F. and Julia.

WILLIAM E. ODEKIRK, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Eden; born in Peninsula, Ohio, May 16, 1853; his parents, Josiah P. and Harriet L. Odekirk, removed from Ohio to Eden, Wis., in 1857; his father bought the homestead, which was then an oak and maple forest, and built a rude trough-covered shanty, where the family lived a number of years; he did good work on the farm, built the farmhouse, and made improvements which are a monument to his memory. Enlisting September, 1864, in Co. F, 43d W. V. I., he died in the service at Clarksville, Tenn., in February, 1865; his only son attended school in the district, and after the marriage of his mother to Mr. B. Williams, his home was sometimes with him, and at other times with his grandfather, Isaac O., in Ashford. April 9, 1874, he married Miss Mary A., daughter of J. Kenney, who removed with his family from New Haven, Conn., to Fond du Lac in 1855; Mrs. O. was educated in Fond du Lac, and came to Eden in 1865; they have three children—Mary J., Jirah F. and Edward J.; Mr. Odekirk has owned the homestead of 109 acres since 1874, has built a large basement barn, has a good flock of fine-wool sheep, etc., with all needful implements. He is a progressive young farmer, and, like his honored father, is a Democrat, and, with his wife, a Roman Catholic.

MARTIN RYAN, farmer, Sec. 27; P. O. Eden; born in County Tipperary, Ireland, 1820; came to America in 1847, settling on forty acres of Government land in Eden, April, 1850; built a small shanty by splitting logs and carrying them on his shoulders, as he had no team, or money to buy one, and then dug up an acre with a spade to raise corn and potatoes; the furniture was made with an ax out of logs. Mr. R. use to thrash oats from dawn till dark for every ninth bushel; then shoulder a bag of flour and carry it ten miles to his home; his young wife, alone in the shanty day after day, used to take her child on her back and tramp off at night to find their cow in the woods; they fared for weeks on potatoes and salt, Mr. R. being glad to hoe corn at 50 cents per day. The wife was Miss Ellen McMahon, who was married at 18; they have nine children—James, Thomas, John, Michael, Margaret, Anna, Laura, Ellen and Mary. In recompense for the hardships of pioneer times, Mr. R. now owns 330 acres of good land, with a large house and several barns. The first fifteen years were spent in the shanty, which was only four logs high, with a trough roof. Mr. Ryan is an independent Democrat, and, with his family, a Roman Catholic.

THOMAS SEAMAN, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Eden; born in Norfolk, England, Feb. 16, 1837; when 18 years of age, he resolved to seek his fortunes in the New World; locating at Syracuse, N. Y., he began as a laborer, educating himself; came to Fond du Lac Co., in 1859. Enlisted Oct. 5, 1861, in Co. B, 10th W. V. I., operating against the Tennessee railroads for some time; participating in the bloody battles of Stone River, Chattanooga and Chickamauga; was on special recruiting service in Madison, Wis., six months, as acting Quartermaster Sergeant; rejoined his regiment at Atlanta in May, 1864; at the expiration of his time, he came back to Wisconsin, and was commissioned Second Lieutenant by Gov. James T. Lewis Jan. 28, 1865. He married, in 1867, Mrs. Hannah Carr, born in Norfolk, England, who came to America when a babe, with her parents, settling in Wisconsin in 1849; she married, in 1853, John Carr, who bought Government land in Eden in 1848, the patent being signed by James K. Polk. Mr. C. enlisted, in 1861, in the 4th W. V. C., and died at Memphis, Tenn., April 25, 1865, leaving seven children—Joseph, Calvin, Ann M., John H., James W., William W. and Hannah. Mr. and Mrs. Seaman have one child—Hattie G. Joseph Carr, the father of John, was the first actual settler in Eden; his old homestead, now the Seaman farm of 156 acres, is one of the very best in the town, well watered and cultivated. Mr. Seaman was among the first to introduce the Lost Nation wheat, and sold his crop for three years for seed; he is now testing other varieties, which he will, in time, offer for sale; his wheat crop for 1872 averaged forty eight bushels per acre. Mr. S. is a stirring farmer, and a Republican in politics.

GEORGE V. THOMAS, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Eden; born on the homestead in Eden, Feb. 14, 1852; son of Edward T., who emigrated from Shropshire, England, to America, locating in an early day in Waukesha Co., Wis., removing in 1849 to Eden, with his family, and buying 131 acres of the homestead, and has since bought forty acres; the farm was wild and as nature's hand left it; Mr. Thomas built a log house and sowed wheat the first fall; his wife was Ann Robinson; they have nine children—Mary, Sarah, Richard, John, George V., William, Charles, Jennie and Anna. George V. Thomas was educated in the district and in the Fond du Lac High School; at 21 he went to Kansas, remaining two years, and was one summer in the Northwest, part on the United States survey, helping to lay out fifty-seven townships; has since resided on the homestead. Married, Nov. 11, 1875, Miss Belle, daughter of Isaac and Mary Nightingale, who came from England to America and Wisconsin nearly together; married and settled on Government land in Byron; Mrs. Thomas was born in Byron, and educated in the High School in Fond du Lac, and has taught two terms; they have two children—Geneva and Ethel. Mr. Thomas, like all his and also his wife's relations, is a staunch Republican. Mr. Thomas, Sr., has been Justice of the Peace and Supervisor, and is now a resident of Fond du Lac; Mr. Nightingale has also held various town offices. Mrs. Thomas is a member of the Byron Methodist Episcopal Church.

GEORGE TITUS, farmer, Sec. 5; P. O. Eden; born in Orange Co., N. Y., March 1, 1835; son of Albert and Margaret Titus, with whom he came to Eden in 1857, locating on a farm on Sec. 10; Mr. Titus enlisted in Co. A, 14th W. V. I., Feb. 23, 1863; at Rome, Ga., Mr. Thomas was in the hospital three and one-half months, but was under Thomas in the bloody battle of Nashville, and did good service at Spanish Fort and Mobile, his regiment there being under fire thirteen days and nights; at the end of the war Mr. Titus again took hold of the plow. On the 24th of March, 1866, he married Miss Lydia, daughter of Martin and Mary Beas, who came from Erie Co., N. Y., to Eden in October, 1852; she is a native of Erie Co., and was married in Fond du Lac; they have one son—Willie A., born Aug. 30, 1868; Mr. Titus is an enterprising farmer; has an excellent farm of forty-eight acres and a good home. In politics a Republican. His father died in August, 1873; his mother is still living with him.

C. E. TRIPP, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Eden; born in the town of Floyd, Oneida Co., N. Y., Feb. 15, 1847; in 1853, his parents, E. R. and S. P. Tripp, removed to Walworth Co., Wis., remaining several years, Chester attending school; about 1863, the family came to the town of Fond du Lac, he then attending a select school in the city; the family, after three years, located on a farm in Eden; Mrs. Tripp died in Fond du Lac Township in 1863, followed by Mr. Tripp in 1876. C. E. Tripp married, Dec. 8, 1870, Miss Hannah J., daughter of William and Margaret Keyes, who left County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1851, when Mrs. Tripp was a babe, coming at once to Fond du Lac Co., Mr. Keyes buying land in Osceola in 1853, when the forest was so dense that he cut a road to his farm; then cut more for a building spot; Mr. and Mrs. Tripp have two children—Herbert E. and Rose B., Mr. Tripp, a progressive young farmer, has a most pleasant home and a good farm of sixty acres; he is a practical butcher and stock-dealer, selling beef and stock in Chicago and Fond du Lac; he is also a contractor for the Northern Wisconsin markets. In politics a Democrat, and a member in good standing of the Fond du Lac Lodge, No. 30, I. O. O. F. Mr. Tripp, in company with J. J. and E. J. Tripp, is owner of a steam-thrasher.

H. W. VAN TASSEL, agent of the Chicago & North-Western Railway Co., and American Express Co., Eden; born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., Nov. 5, 1844. In 1852, his parents removed to Kenosha, Wis., where H. W. attended the public schools; in 1861, he enlisted in the grand old 1st W. V. I.; was under Rosecranz and Sherman in the battles of Perryville, Stone River, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, Lookout Mountain, Rocky Face Ridge, Snake Creek Gap, Resaca, Kingston, Marietta, Chattanooga River and three desperate battles before Atlanta, also at Jonesboro, where the regiment made an unusually brilliant record, doing what several veteran regiments failed to do, and holding the rebel position; this was not only the first Wisconsin regiment to go forward, but is the first on the pages of Wisconsin's glorious war record; going into the service 1,204 strong, it came out in October, 1865, with 131 men all told; Mr. Van Tassel lost but eight days in three years, and came out safely with a sergeant's commission. During the next six years he sailed on Lake Michigan; kept a restaurant in Muskegon two years; then began his railroad life, helping to grade and fence both the M. & N. and the N. W. Union roads; in October, 1873, he was appointed to his present position, which he has since held; did the business for three years in what is now the well-house, as the depot was not built. Married Miss Sarah Guyou, of Kenosha, in 1870; they have one son—Louie, born in Ashford June 23, 1873. Mr. Van Tassel is a staunch Republican.

M. VANDERVOORT, M. D., Eden; born in Clinton Co., N. Y., Aug. 24, 1840; son of Rev. Peter Vandervoort, who came to Eden with his family in March, 1846, buying a large tract of Government land; he built a log shanty which served in those days as a hotel, and for town meetings; roads were trails, and bridges very primitive in those days; Rev. Peter Vandervoort, preached the first sermon in the town, and the only ones for years; he is thought to have preached the first funeral sermon in the county, in the spring of 1816; the Elder now resides in Fond du Lac; has identified himself with the U. B. Church for many years. In the fall of 1849, the district schoolhouse was built, and of A. Briggs, the first teacher, Michael Vandervoort learned the rudiments of his education; when about 16 he attended a private school in Fond du Lac; was then in the city High School one year; during the winter of 1858, he taught school, and in 1859, went overland to Pike's Peak, spending six years in Colorado, Mexico, the Northwest Territories and British Possessions; he had made a study of medicine during his travels, and on his return to Eden devoted his whole energy to the study of his chosen profession; in the spring of 1866, he entered Hahnemann College, Chicago, graduating from the full course as physician and surgeon in the fall of 1867; has since practiced in Eden, with the exception of the year 1875, when he practiced in Walla Walla, Washington Territory; the Doctor has always, when in the county, lived on the original homestead which he owns; his residence is most pleasantly located, about eighty rods from Eden Station. In 1877, he married Miss Lois, daughter of Sumner Sweet, Esq., one of the pioneers of Byron. Dr. Vandervoort is a Greenback Republican, a most successful practitioner; he has, by his unremitting attention to his professional duties caused a partial failure of his health; he has been for three years a member of the Wisconsin State Homoeopathic Society.

AARON WALTERS, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Eden; born in Plattsburg, Clinton Co., N. Y., Aug. 7, 1809; was educated in Plattsburg Academy; was by trade a blacksmith; was in business five years at Rouse's Point; in 1846, he visited Wisconsin, and bought his farm of Uncle Sam; returning to his native State, he remained until August, 1849, then settled on his claim in the oak openings; he soon cleared and broke forty acres of this, also worked for many years at his trade; as an early settler, he saw and can relate many interesting incidents of pioneer life. Mr. Walters is closely identified with the early history, as he was Chairman of Eden sixteen years, and as a staunch War Democrat, did his town good service in war times; was a County Superintendent of the Poor twelve years, and a County Supervisor six years; was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1857 and in 1872; Mr. Walters is well known in his county, as a successful farmer and public-spirited citizen; his official record is above reproach; with his only son, he owns and manages 200 acres, with the necessary barns, stock, implements, etc.; he built the second frame house in Eden, has remodeled it, added to it and made it one of the best. Married his first wife in 1831; she was Orpha B. Griswold, died 1839, leaving three children—Roswell W., Sarah J. and Mary (deceased). In 1840, he married Rosanna Averill, who died in 1858, leaving two children—Mary E. and Aaron (deceased). In 1859, he married Mrs. Mary Norman, born in 1818 in Bennington, Vt., and a daughter of Daniel and Rebecca Welch, she married Chester Norman, and settled in Waukesha Co., Wis., in 1843; he died in 1855, leaving three children—James C., Frances and Mary J.; the mother of Mrs. W. was a native of Dutchess Co., N. Y., and a near relative of ex-Governor Enos T. Throop (deceased), of Auburn, N. Y.

BEMSLEY WILLIAMS, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Eden; was born in Onondaga Co., N. Y., Nov. 10, 1820; was educated there and resided there until November, 1855, when he came to Wisconsin, and settled on his present farm in Eden; began with forty acres of heavy timber, on which a shanty had been put up and left unfinished; Mr. W. was something of a carpenter, and at once finished the house, then began the hard labor of chopping and logging; burned the timber at first in order to clear a wheat-field; he has done "full tasks" as a woodsman, as his present farm of 234 acres was then a forest, has sold wood in Fond du Lac, and also burned large quantities for charcoal. Married Miss Lucy North, who died July 23, 1860, leaving five children—Emma E., Emerette M., Susan E., John B. and Mary H. In 1866, he married Mrs. Harriet L. Odekirk, a daughter of Justice Da Lee, of Washington Co., N. Y.; she married, in 1851, J. P. Odekirk, who died in 1865, leaving one son, William E.; Mr. and Mrs. W. have one daughter, Minnie E. Mr. Williams is independent in politics and religion; he has devoted considerable attention to the improvement of his stock of cattle, sheep, etc.

MARSHFIELD TOWNSHIP.

FRANK BEAU, Postmaster, also dealer in general merchandise, Calvary Station, was born in Champagne, France, Sept. 29, 1830; when he was 8 years of age, his parents emigrated to Aarau, Switzerland, where he was educated; after leaving school, he shipped on a mercantile vessel, and followed the sea for about seven years, during which time he visited many of the principal ports of the world. In 1853, he came to Sheboygan, Wis., where he married, in 1854, Katie Snitzbauer, a native of Bavaria, Germany, born in 1833, and who came to Sheboygan a few months prior to their marriage; in 1869, they came to Calvary Station; their children are Maggie (now wife of George Brown), Mary, Frank, John, Joseph, George, Otto, Frances, Rosa and Henry; Mr. B. was foreman of the construction of the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac R. R., and held various positions on that road; after its completion, in 1872, he engaged in the grain business at Calvary Station, and in the fall of 1877, he established a general store, and has successfully carried on both of the enterprises, and by his liberality and fair dealing, has secured a large trade; he has been Postmaster since 1873. He is a Republican in politics. His father, Alois Beau, was a native of Switzerland, he married, in Champagne, France, Theresa Tressler; she died in Aarau, Switzerland; the elder Beau was a follower of Napoleon, went through all of his campaigns, and was with him a short time at St. Helena Island; he came to Sheboygan, Wis., in 1853, and died there in 1862.

MATTHIAS BOURGEOIS, Mt. Calvary; this gentleman, who has been for a number of years a leading business man at Mt. Calvary, was born in Zaubauh, Kries Cochem, Germany; he received a thorough education in his native village, and was book-keeper and general manager for a large mining company in Mullenbach, prior to his coming to America; in 1817, he emigrated to Green Bay, Wis., and clerked in a mercantile store at that place until 1848, in which year he came to Marshfield and engaged in farming; during the years 1851-52, he had charge of the mercantile store of Aaron Leopold; this was the first store in Mt. Calvary; in 1856, he removed to Marytown, and took charge of a store at that place for the firm of Brownson & Laughlin, which firm he bought out about 1858, and engaged in the mercantile business on his own account until July, 1859, when he returned to Mt. Calvary and engaged in farming until 1875; he then bought a large brewery, located in the vicinity of Mt. Calvary, which he has operated since; his residence, which is one of the finest in the northwestern part of the county, he erected in 1869, at a cost of several thousand dollars; he is engaged in grain dealing at Calvary Station, with Wagner & Co., and does a large business; he owns valuable city property in Fond du Lac, also property in Calvary Station and Mt. Calvary to the amount of several thousand dollars. June 27, 1858, he married, at Sheboygan, Wis., Rosa Schrage; she was born in Schwelm, Germany, and was the daughter of Peter C. and Julia Schrage; their children are Mary, Julia, Barbara, Henry, Caspar, Matthias, Amelia, Edmund and Rodolph. Mr. Bourgeois is a man of the sternest integrity, and executes all his plans with great promptness and uncommon energy; the fruits of his labors will long survive him in the business enterprises which he carried to completion; he was always an active and public-spirited citizen, ever ready to render assistance to every enterprise that gave promise of general good; in religious and educational matters, he has always taken a deep and active interest, and he is a citizen that the town of Marshfield could ill afford to be without.

JOHN P. BUTZ, farmer, Sec. 21; P. O. Calvary; was born in the village of Vossenaek, Kries Montgoi, Germany, Jan. 1, 1835. In 1847, he emigrated with his parents to America, and settled in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he has since resided; Jan. 30, 1865, he married at Mt. Calvary, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Katie Kommers, daughter of Adolph and Katrina Kommers, old and honored residents of Marshfield; she was born in Neumagen, Germany, Jan. 2, 1847; they have six children—Annie K., May, Marguerite, Clara, Regina and Gertrude. Mr. Butz owns 105 acres of land located on Secs. 21 and 22, and well improved. In politics, he is a Democrat. His father, John Butz, was born in Vossenaek, Kries Montgoi, Germany, in 1800; he married in his native village, Annie G. Wirtz, they emigrated to this country in 1847, and settled in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where she died in 1850; he died in Hennepin Co., Minn., while on a visit to some of his children in 1870. Their children are Adolph (now of Hennepin Co., Minn., he served in a Minnesota battalion during the war of the rebellion), Magdalene (wife of J. Linzen, Hennepin Co., Minn.), John P. (whose name appears at the head of this sketch), John J. (now of Hennepin Co., Minn., he was a soldier in a Minnesota regiment during the war of the rebellion), Frank P. (also of Hennepin Co., Minn.), Virginia, (now deceased), Katie (wife of Peter Kommers, Hennepin Co., Minn., he was a soldier in the Union army during the war of the rebellion, and was severely wounded).

J. H. COOLIDGE, merchant, St. Cloud; was born in Hillsborough, N. H., in 1833, where he received a preliminary education which fitted him to enter the Union Academy, at Washington, N. H., where he completed his education; in 1851, he went to Boston, Mass., and was in the mercantile business there until 1856, in which year he went to Milwaukee, Wis., where he remained but a short time, in the autumn of 1856, he came to Fond du Lac, and was clerk in Register's Office about one year, afterward was express agent; in 1859, he went to the town of Forest, and there engaged in teaching school and farming; in 1869 he moved to St. Cloud and engaged in the mercantile business, which he has successfully continued in since. The first two years he carried on in connection with the mercantile business a flouring-mill and wood manufactory; in 1872, he was elected Clerk of Fond du Lac County, for a term of two years; he was appointed Postmaster at St. Cloud when the post office was established in 1869, a position he has since filled; he has also held the office of Notary Public for several years. March 18, 1860, he married, in the town of Forest, this (Fond du Lac) county, Elizabeth Davidson, nee Coleman; they have had three children—Marshall H., Alton G., and Dana C.; Alton G. died at the age of four years. Mrs. Coolidge had two children by her first husband (Thos. R. Davidson, who was a former settler of Forest, and died there in October, 1854), viz.: Henry L., who died in 1876, was County Clerk at the time of his death; and Charles C., now mail agent on the Sheboygan & Fond du Lac R. R. In politics, Mr. Coolidge is a consistent, intelligent, and active Republican. He owns 400 acres of land in the town of Forest, and large tracts of land in Lincoln and Chippewa Cos. Wis. He has led a very active and industrious life, and by his good management, his efforts in every walk of life have met with success. He takes an active interest in all public enterprises that promise in any way to develop the interests of his town and county, and the people in general.

J. H. Coolidge
ST. CLOUD.

ISAAC B. CLARK, farmer, and proprietor of a saw-mill, St. Cloud; was born in Gloucester, Providence Co., R. I., in 1835; in 1851, he moved with his parents to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Greenbush, Sheboygan Co., where he married, in 1857, Harriet Thachray; she was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1839; in 1868, Mr. Clark erected a saw-mill in St. Cloud, which was the first saw-mill in the town of Marshfield; in 1860, he moved his family to St. Cloud; thus Mr. Clark and family became the first residents of that village. His children are Clarence, Otis, William, Joseph and John. He owns 160 acres of land besides his mill property. In politics, Mr. Clark was in early life a Whig; he has acted with the Republican party since its organization; he has been elected to various local offices. His father, Hazel P. Clark, was a merchant in Gloucester, R. I., for a number of years, also a large manufacturer of cloths, and was elected to many positions of power and trust in his native county, Providence Co., R. I. He was twice married: his first wife was Elmira Darling, she died shortly after their marriage; second wife and the mother of the children below given was Thelma Ballard; they moved the Sheboygan Co., Wis., in 1851; settled in Greenbush, erected mills, and the place was known as Clark's Mills until recently, when the name was changed to Glenbeulah; he died in 1856; she died in 1877; their children are Isaac B., at Glenbeulah; Isabel, now wife of R. A. Vanostine, Glenbeulah, Wis.; Elisha; William, who died in 1875; Abbie, wife of J. Donohue, Asst. Supt. of Lake Shore R. R.

HUBBARD GUELIG, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Heinsburg; was born in Kries Adnau, Germany, in 1835; in 1846, he emigrated to this country, with his parents, and settled in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., which has been his home since. He has been twice married; his first wife was Annie Wegestein; she is now deceased; by this marriage, the children are Matthias, Joseph, Frances and Annie. His present wife was Gertrude Konz, daughter of Matthias and Helena Konz, pioneer settlers of Marshfield; she was born in this town (Marshfield) in 1848; their children are Fred, Louis and Mary. Mr. Guelig owns 152 acres of land; he is a Democrat in politics. His father, John Guelig, was born in Kries Adnau, Germany, in 1801. He married, in his native country, Maggie Nett; she was born in 1804; they settled in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1846, and are now the oldest couple living in the town of Marshfield; their surviving children are Mary, wife of N. Hubertz; Hubbard, whose name appears at the head of this sketch; Matthias, of the town of Calumet, Wis.; Katie, wife of N. Schmittlecoffer, of this town (Marshfield); Andrew, now living in Brazil.

JOSEPH HELZ, proprietor of harness-shop, Mt. Calvary; was born in Richfield, Washington Co., Wis., Feb. 14, 1854; when he was 13 years of age, he went to Milwaukee, and there learned the harness-making trade; in 1874, he came to Mt. Calvary and engaged in business, and has met with almost unprecedented success. He married, in Mt. Calvary, in 1875, Anna Platz; she was born in Milwaukee; they have three children—Charlie J., John B. and Philip J. Mr. Helz keeps a full line of everything to be found in a harness-shop, and, by his strict attention to his business and good workmanship, he has secured a large and an increasing trade. His father, Charles Helz, was a native of Germany; he settled in Washington Co., Wis., in about 1843, thus becoming a pioneer settler of that county. He married, in his adopted county, Elizabeth Rosar; he was one of the most extensive farmers in Washington Co., and a public-spirited citizen; he died Jan. 1, 1879; his children are Charles (now of New Hampton, Iowa), Katrina (wife of M. Fisher, Milwaukee), Elizabeth (wife of Wm. Fogler, Milwaukee), Joseph, Henry, Anna, Frank and Jacob.

JOHN HENNEN, farmer, Sec. 24; P. O. Calvary; was born in Gellbauren, Kries Cochem, Germany, April 18, 1808; in 1852, he emigrated, with his parents, Peter J. and Marguerite Hennen, to America, and located in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he remained about two years, at the end of which time he went to the Lake Superior region, Michigan, and there lived until about 1856, when he returned to Marshfield, remaining until 1859, when he went to Stearns Co., Minn. In 1860, he went to Houghton, Mich., where he married, on the 18th of August, 1864, Katie Lafontaine; she was born in Bartoncourt, Luxemburg, Germany, May 31, 1842; after their marriage, they remained in Michigan until 1866, in which year they moved to where they now reside. Mr. Hennen is a Democrat in politics; he has been Town Clerk of Marshfield since 1876; he owns a well-improved farm, finely located. His father, Peter J. Hennen, was born in Bauren, Kries Cochem, Germany, in 1804. He married, in his native country, in 1837, Marguerite Maas; she was born in Gellbauren, Kries Cochem, Germany, in 1810; they settled in this (Fond du Lac) county in 1852; their children are: John, whose name heads this sketch; Matthias J., of Forest; Nicholas, of Marshfield; John N., now of Stearns Co., Minn. (he was a soldier in the 4th Mich. V. I., during the war of the rebellion); Joseph, of Morrison Co., Minn.; Matthias, of Stearns Co., Minn. Mrs. J. Hennen's parents, Nicholas and Elizabeth Lafontaine, settled at Belgium, Wis., in 1856, where they reside; they have five children—Joseph, Mary (now wife of J. Burkel), Annie, wife of M. Briat, Katie, wife of John Hennen.

ADOLPH KOMMERS, Mount Calvary; was born in Neumagen, Prussia, in 1803. He married, in his native country, Katrina Rohr. They emigrated to America in 1847; settled in Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., where they remained until the following year, when they removed to Marshfield, which has been their home since; their children are four—Mary (wife of M. J. Miesen) Matthias (a merchant in Mount Calvary), Peter (lives in Minnesota), Katrina (wife of John P. Butz, Mount Calvary.)

MATTHIAS KOMMERS, dealer in general merchandise, Mt. Calvary; was born in Germany July 4, 1841; in 1847, he emigrated to America with his parents, Adolph and Katarine Kommers; they settled in the town of Calumet, this (Fond du Lac) county, and lived there until 1848, when they moved to Marshfield, where the subject of this sketch received a preliminary education; he afterward attended school at Milwaukee, where he received a thorough business education; he was in Nevada and California from 1861 until 1868; while he was in Nevada, he became proprietor of a valuable silver mine at Austin, which he afterward sold at a high figure. Jan. 7, 1869, he married at Mt. Calvary, Margaret Wolf; she was born Jan. 23, 1851, near Wolf's Lake, town of Marshfield (the lake indicated was named for her parents, Ludwig and Anna K. Wolf, who settled in the vicinity of the lake in 1847); their children are Adolph, William, Ludwig, Joseph, Mary and Dana. Mr. Kommers engaged in the mercantile business in Mt. Calvary in 1877; he has a large and constantly increasing trade; his business averages about $30,000 a year; in politics, Mr. K. is a Democrat.

FRED KONZ, farmer and manufacturer, Sec. 15; P. O. Calvary Station; was born in Prussia, Aug. 5, 1841. In 1846, his parents, Mathias and Helena Konz, came to this (Fond du Lac) county, and settled in the town of Marshfield, where the subject of this sketch attended school until 1855, when he went to Green Bay, Wis., and engaged to learn the blacksmith trade; he remained in Green Bay until 1860, then returned to Marshfield and has since resided there. Mr. Konz was one of the organizers and first Board of Directors of the Marshfield Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and was elected President of the company in 1876, a position he still fills with credit; he is Chairman of the Town Board of Supervisors since 1876, and has been District School Clerk three years. In politics, he is a Democrat. Nov. 25, 1869, Mr. Konz married, at Mt. Calvary, Mary Wolf, daughter of Ludwig and Anna K. Wolf; they have nine children—Louis, John, William, Joseph, Henry, Frank, Mary, Julia and Peter. Mr. Konz owns a finely located farm; he and his brother, John Konz, have established a wagon and general repair shop, on Sec. 15, where they do a good business in repairing and manufacturing buggies, wagons, etc.

JOHN KONZ, of the firm of Konz Bros., proprietors of wagon and general repair shops; Calvary; was born in Kries Cochem, Germany, Sept. 16, 1839. In 1847, he emigrated to America, with his parents, Mathias and Helena Konz, and settled in the town of Marshfield, this (Fond du Lac) county, where he remained until 1857, when he went to Green Bay, there he learned the wagon-making trade. He married, at Mt. Calvary, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1864, Gertrude Wolf (daughter of Ludwig and Anna K. Wolf, who settled in the vicinity of the lake that now perpetuates their name in Marshfield, this—Fond du Lac—county); their children are Joseph, Julia, Amelia, Mary, Mathew, Clara, Paulina and Josephine. In politics, Mr. K. is a Democrat; he has been elected to various local offices. The Konz Bros. established their present place of business in 1862; they have a large trade, and their work is noted for durability and neatness.

ANTOINE KRAEMER, farmer, Sec. 21; P. O. Mt. Calvary; was born in Mullenbach, Kries Cochem, Germany, Jan. 28, 1819. He emigrated to America in 1842, came to Wisconsin the same year, and settled in Fond du Lac Co., thus becoming a pioneer settler. Dec. 13, 1843, he married Mary Ann Brost, daughter of John and Anna K. Brost, who settled in the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1842; she was born in Elmen, Kries Cochem, Germany, Oct. 8, 1826, died on the 4th of January, 1879, in Marshfield; she was a sincere and Christian woman, and one that will be long remembered for her many acts of kindness; they had fourteen children, eight of whom are living—Matthias, who married in Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Mary Munich, they are now living in Mitchell Co., Iowa; Mary, the wife of Joseph Pauly, Taycheedah; Katie, wife of John Classen, Mitchell Co., Iowa; Barbara, wife of C. Ammen, Marshfield; Francisco, wife of George Berenz, Sheboygan Co., Wis.; Marguerite, Sister of Mercy, Fond du Lac; John and Magdalene. Mr. Kraemer owns 245 acres of land, well improved; he has now resided in Marshfield for more than thirty-seven years, and therefore is the oldest settler now living in that town. Himself and wife were the first couple married that resided in Marshfield. In politics, Mr. K. is a Democrat.

MATTHIAS LITZEN, farmer and stock-raiser, Sec. 9; P. O. Calvary; was born in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., June 7, 1848. Sept. 5, 1878, he married, in Marytown Church, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Annie Wolf; she was born in the city of Fond du Lac in 1862; they have one child—Louis. Mr. Litzén owns 217 acres of land, most desirably located and finely improved; he is a Democrat in politics. His father, Matthias Litzén, was born in Germany in 1818. He married, in his native country, Anna Stören; they emigrated to America in 1846; settled in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., the same year; he died in 1870; she is still living; their children are Clara, now the wife of Joseph Schmitz, of Marshfield; Elizabeth, wife of Theodore Wolf, of Manitowoc Co., Wis.; Matthias, whose name heads this sketch; Jacob, deceased; Katie, wife of Fred Remiger, St. Cloud, Wis.; Maggie, wife of Jacob Schiller, Wood Co., Wis.; Mary. Mrs. M. Litzén's parents were Peter and Annie K. Wolf; they settled in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1847, afterward came to Fond du Lac City, where they lived several years; both are now deceased; their children are Gertrude, wife of John Blunes, Milwaukee; John H., of St. Cloud, Wis.; Mary, wife of John Fuchs, Calumet; Louis, now a resident of Milwaukee; Annie, wife of Matthias Litzén.

JOHN J. MICHELS, farmer, Sec. 15; P. O. Calvary; was born in Kries Cochem, Germany, Nov. 11, 1820. He married Anna M. Winken; they emigrated to America in 1852; settled in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., where they have since resided; their children are Maggie (now wife of Antoine Mullenbach, of Calumet), Mary (wife of Peter Mullenbach, also of Calumet), Paul, Lambert, Peter and Gertrude; Mr. Michels owns 155 acres of land. In politics, he is a Democrat. He was a soldier in the German Army two years.

M. J. MIESEN, farmer, and Secretary of the Marshfield Fire Insurance Co., Mt. Calvary, was born in Eppenberg, Kries Cochem, Germany, Dec. 24, 1829; he attended the schools in his native village, and acquired a liberal education; in 1847, he emigrated with his parents, Peter and Elizabeth Miesen; they settled in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where the subject of this sketch remained but a short time before he went to Du Page Co., Ill., where he lived about three years, working on a farm during the summer and attending school in the winter months; from Du Page Co. he went to Morgan Co., and thence to Sangamon Co., Ill., where he also attended school; he lived in the three counties indicated between four and five years. He then returned to this town (Marshfield), and August 9, 1854, married, at Mt. Calvary, Mary Kommers, daughter of Adolph and Katarina Kommers, who are still living, and were pioneers of the town of Marshfield; they have twelve children—Katarina, now wife of A. Hardwork, Decatur Co., Kan.; M. J., Jr.; Margaret (wife of P. Bernard, Decatur Co., Kan.); Peter, Adolph, Marian, Paulina, Francisco L., Veronica J., Anna K., Clara K., and Juliana Marguerite; Mr. Miesen was one of the organizers of the Marshfield Insurance Co., was elected Secretary at its organization in 1874, and has filled that position since, to the satisfaction of all interested; he was Town Clerk of Marshfield twenty years, and Justice of the Peace an equal length of time; was County Superintendent of the Poor twelve years, also Town Treasurer and Assessor several years; he has been Notary Public over six years—a position he still holds; he owns 120 acres of land. He is a Democrat in politics.

PETER MIESEN (deceased), was born June 1, 1793, in Eppenberg, Kries Cochem, Prussia. He married, in his native country, Elizabeth Lamperich; she died in Eppenberg, Prussia, and he emigrated to this country in 1847, and settled in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he resided until his death, March 17, 1869.

ANTHONY ROTHGERY, Postmaster and merchant tailor, Mt. Calvary; was born in Sheffield, Lorain Co., Ohio, Dec. 4, 1842; when he was about 1 year old, his parents moved to Cleveland, Ohio, where he was educated, and afterward learned the tailor's trade; in 1864, he came to Wisconsin, and worked in the city of Fond du Lac until 1868, in which year he came to Mt. Calvary and engaged in merchant tailoring; he was appointed Postmaster in 1877. He married, at Mt. Calvary, Mary V. Enders; she was born in the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; they have four children—Christine W., Theodore B., Amelia and Ida K. His father, John Rothgery, lives in Cleveland, Ohio; he was twice married, his first wife being Anna G. Olig; she died in Cleveland; the children by this marriage are Anthony, Joseph, Christine (who is now the wife of Joseph Enders, of Marshfield); Joseph, the second oldest of the above named, served in an Ohio regiment during the war of the rebellion. Mr. Rothgery's second wife was Katie Dean, by whom there are three children.

PETER SCHRAGE, dealer in wines, liquors and cigars, Calvary Station, was born in Schwelm, Prussia, Sept. 13, 1846; when he was 5 years old, he emigrated with his parents (Peter C. and Julia Schrage), to Sheboygan, Wis., where he remained until 1862, when he came to the town of Marshfield; he established the first general store in Calvary Station in 1868, and was engaged in the mercantile business from that time until 1877, when his store was burned; he shortly afterward erected the house he now occupies. Feb. 12, 1862, he married Mary Wagner, daughter of Hon. Joseph Wagner; they have four children—Roselin, Alida, Mary and Herman. In politics, Mr. Schrage acts with the Democratic party.

RICHARD SCHRAGE, dealer in general merchandise, Mt. Calvary; was born in Schwelm, Germany, Oct. 7, 1847; he is the son of Peter C. and Julia Schrage, and emigrated with them to Sheboygan, Wis., in 1855; thence to Marshfield in 1862; in 1863, he went to Fond du Lac and learned the tinners' trade, and afterward went to Chicago, Ill., and worked at his trade there about four years; in 1867, he established a tinshop in Mt. Calvary, which he still runs in connection with his general store; in 1868, he bought of his father, who had been engaged in the mercantile business at Mt. Calvary several years, the mercantile store he now does business in. Nov. 26, 1868, he married, at Mt. Calvary, Julia Bohm; she was born April 19, 1848; they have six children—Charlie P., born Oct. 11, 1869; Bertha M., born April 23, 1871; Adelaide J., born Jan. 26, 1873; Petronelia A., born Feb. 20, 1875; Bertha M., born Oct. 17, 1876; Gustave L., born Jan. 1, 1879. Mr. Schrage is a Democrat in politics.

STEPHEN SIMON, farmer, Sec. 5; P. O. Heinsburg; was born in Kries Mien, Germany, March 29, 1846; while he was yet a child, his parents emigrated to America, and settled in the town of Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where Stephen received a liberal education. In 1868 he married, in Fond du Lac, Anna Schneider, daughter of Stephen and Mary K. Schneider, who were natives of Germany, and emigrated to this country, and settled in Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in about 1846, where Anna, the wife of the subject of this sketch, was born. Immediately after their marriage, Mr. Simon and wife moved to Marshfield, and it has been their home since; their children are John, Peter, Joseph, Annie and Gertrude. Mr. Simon owns 120 acres of land; he has been Justice of the Peace several years, and has filled various other local offices. In politics, he acts with the Democratic party. His father, John Simon, married in his native country (Germany), Gertrude Koenigs, they came to this country as before stated, in 1846, settling in Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., the same year, where they still reside.

CHRISTIAN STEPHANY, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Heinsburg; was born in Germany Jan. 12, 1829; was a soldier in the German Army three years; emigrated to America in 1855, settled in Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Feb. 9, 1859; he married at St. John's Church, Taycheedah, Marguerite Hoffman, daughter of Gerhart and Annie K. Hoffman, who settled in Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1846; she was born in Brookhausen, Kries Adana, Germany, Feb. 12, 1830. Immediately after their marriage, they moved to this town (Marshfield), where they have since resided; their children are Peter, Elizabeth, Katie, Mary (deceased), Gertrude, Magdalene (deceased), Annie (deceased), Anna M. T. Mr. Stephany owns 140 acres of land; it is well improved. In politics, he is a Democrat. His parents were Frederick and Anna M. Stephany; they died in Germany; they had eleven children, three of whom came to America, viz.: John, a resident of this town (Marshfield); Elizabeth, (wife of Peter Krebsch, Taycheedah); and Christian, whose name heads this sketch. Mrs. C. Stephany's parents were Gerhart and Annie K. Hoffman; they settled in Taycheedah, this (Fond du Lac) county, in 1846; he died in Taycheedah, May 29, 1877; she is still living; their children are Marguerite, wife of Christian Stephany; Christian, who is now married, and lives at Stacyville, Mitchell Co., Iowa; John, also married, and lives in the town of Taycheedah, this (Fond du Lac) county.

HON. JOSEPH WAGNER, Sec. 34; P. O. Mt. Calvary. This distinguished citizen of Marshfield was born in Meckenbueren, Wurtemberg, Germany, Oct. 19, 1809. He received an academic education at Stuttgart, the capital of Wurtemberg, and when he was in his seventeenth year, was employed by the government in the capacity of government surveyor, which position he held for seven years. In 1832, he emigrated to the United States, and taught school in Troy, N. Y., and vicinity, several terms. In 1846, he came to Wisconsin and settled in Marshfield, where he has continued to reside since; he has been a member of the Town and County Boards of Supervisors from 1848 until 1873—25 years; from 1848 until 1861, when the system was changed, was Town Superintendent of Schools; was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1856-58, 1867-68 and 1871; he was elected to the Senate in 1871, and re-elected in 1873, receiving 1,073 votes, against 935 for Andrew Bieringer (Independent); during all the time Mr. Wagner was in office, he was the most efficient guardian of the interests of the tax-payers to whom the management of the public affairs of the county were ever intrusted; in all the relations of life, public or private, Mr. Wagner has few if any superiors; he is a public-spirited, enterprising citizen, and one whose honesty and fidelity to public and private trusts is unimpeachable; he is an excellent scholar, a close reader and deep thinker, is eminently qualified by nature and education to be a leader in public affairs. Mr. Wagner has been twice married; his first wife was Mary Dubois, she died in Marshfield in 1854; by this marriage there are two children—Mary, wife of Peter Schrage, and Joseph, grain merchant at Calvary. His present wife was Katie Dieterich, their children are Rosa, Charlotte, Lillian and Albert. In politics, Mr. Wagner is identified with the Democratic party, and is indissolubly connected with the history and progress of that party in Fond du Lac and surrounding counties. He has displayed at all times great independence, never yielding his own deliberate judgment to popular applause, or sacrificing his own convictions to the prevailing sentiments of the day.

JOSEPH WAGNER, Jr., grain merchant, and station agent at Calvary station; was born in what is now the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Oct. 9, 1841. He is the son of Hon. Joseph Wagner, of Marshfield, who was for a number of years a member of the Wisconsin Assembly, and a member of the Senate in 1871 and 1873. Joseph was educated at the Troy Academy, Troy, N. Y. He was married in Albany, N. Y., to Miss A. Updyke; they have four children—Joseph, Marion, George and Addie. Mr. Wagner has been station agent at Calvary station about seven years. He is extensively engaged in the grain business. Is a Democrat in politics.

PETER WEBER, proprietor of general repair and blacksmith shop, Mt. Calvary, was born in the town of Cadumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Nov. 3, 1842; in 1863, he went to San Francisco, Cal., and lived in California and Nevada until 1868, in which year he returned to this (Fond du Lac) county, and established his present business at Mt. Calvary. Nov. 3, 1868, he married, in Mt. Calvary, Pauline Flatz, daughter of John and Mary A. Flatz, natives of Germany, who emigrated to the city of New York in 1851, thence to Milwaukee, Wis., in 1852, where they resided until their coming to Marshfield, in 1856, where he died; she is still living. They have seven children—Clara M., Mary A., Josephine M., Joseph P., Martina M., John A., and Albertina M. Mr. Weber is a Democrat; he has been Justice of the Peace three years; has also been a member of the Town Board of Supervisors. He manufactures, in connection with A. Schuiddlecoffer, the Davis Stump and Rock Extractor, one of the most effective machines made for that purpose; it was awarded the Centennial Medal, and was also awarded the first premium at the Michigan State Fair, in 1876, and the Ohio State Fair in 1878; it possesses a combination of advantages which commends it to general use, being light, simple and durable; it is so constructed that it can be easily operated in any position by one man, and with equal facility on level or uneven ground; the height to which a weight may be raised by this machine is only limited by the length of the chain; twelve pounds, applied to its nine-foot lever, will raise one ton. Peter Weber's parents were Antoine and Katie Weber, natives of Germany, who emigrated to this country in 1842, settling in Wisconsin the same year, thus becoming pioneer settlers; they now reside in Taycheedah, where they have lived over a quarter of a century. Their surviving children are Mary, now the wife of N. Stoffes, of Taycheedah; Anna M., wife of N. Gilles, of the town of Forest; Peter, whose name appears at the head of this sketch.

TAYCHEEDAH TOWNSHIP.

WILLIAM BERRY, farmer and stock-raiser, Sec. 6; P. O. Fond du Lac; was born in Lewis Co., N. Y., Nov. 10, 1828; he served in Co. A, 10th N. J. V. I., during the Mexican war; was promoted First Sergeant of his company; he was honorably discharged, at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., at the close of the war, in 1848; in the following year, he came West, and located in this (Fond du Lac) county. In 1852, he returned to Lewis Co., N. Y., and there married Miss Sophia Alexander, a native of the town of Martinsburg, N. Y.; immediately after they were married, they came to Taycheedah, which has been their home since; they have four children—William, Emily, Henry, and Edward C. Mr. Berry may well be proud of his record during the war of the rebellion, of the efficiency with which he raised and drilled companies, and the active part they took in defending their country's honor. He was Captain of Co. I, 5th W. V. I., was afterward appointed Drill Master of 18th W. V. I.; was with that regiment in the battle of Shiloh, in which he took an active part. Politically, Mr. Berry is a Republican, and a firm supporter of its principles; he owns 205 acres of land, well located and improved, and is extensively engaged in stock-raising; he takes an active interest in public affairs, and does all in his power to advance the common interests of the county.

LEMUEL BISHOP (deceased), was born in Martinsburg, Lewis Co., N. Y. He married, in his native town, Lucinda Bowen; she was born in Martinsburg, Sept. 15, 1815; in 1845, they emigrated to Wisconsin, and settled at Taycheedah, where he died in 1857; in the early history of Taycheedah, he was elected to many local offices, and took a prominent part in the advancement of its educational and other public interests. She is still living in Taycheedah, and is one of the oldest residents now living there; she owns 115 acres of land; their children are Levi T., who was a soldier in Co. I, 5th W. V. I., during the war of the rebellion, he now lives in Utah Territory; Lewis H., a farmer, Taycheedah, he married Virginia Smith; Lorinda C., wife of J. H. Gibson, Taycheedah; Lucretia E.; Leverett G., who died in 1879; he was soldier in a Wisconsin regiment during the war; Luke W., Lois and Lafayette. Mrs. L. Bishop's father, Asa Bowen, was a native of Guilford, Conn., and was a soldier in active service during the war of 1812. He married Mehitabel Boyden; both died in Lewis Co., N. Y.; they had nine children, five of whom are now living—Sally, who married Sanford Peebles; he was in the war of 1812, and is now deceased; Daniel, now a resident of Eaton Co., Mich; Levi, now a resident of Plymouth Co., Iowa, and Mrs. Bishop; Henry, who lives in Eaton Co., Mich.

WILLIAM BRUSH, farmer, Secs. 29 and 30; P. O. Peebles; was born in Delaware Co., N. Y., May 6, 1836; his father, Alexander Brush, was married twice; his first wife, Jane Story, was the mother of the subject of this sketch; she died in Delaware Co., N. Y.; he married again—Jeanette Murray; in 1849, they emigrated to this (Fond du Lac) county, William coming with them; they settled in the city of Fond du Lac, and he attended the common schools, receiving a liberal education. In 1868, he married, in Fond du Lac, Miss Sophia Johnson; after their marriage they moved to Marinette, Wis., where they lived until the autumn of 1879, when he purchased the farm he now resides on. They have one child—Mary J. Mr. Brush's farm is finely improved, and contains 153 acres, and possesses all of the natural advantages native to Fond du Lac Co. In politics and religion, liberal.

H. R. CHARLES, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Peebles; was born in Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Nov. 6, 1848. He married, in Fond du Lac City, Miss Ellen Esterbrook; they have two children—George and May. Mr. Charles is extensively engaged in farming. In politics, he is a Republican. His father, Richard B. Charles, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1818; came to America in 1840; lived three years in New York City, at the end of which time he came to Wisconsin; located in this (Fond du Lac) county; moved to Lima Township, Rock Co., in 1851. He married Miss Lydia J. Rockwell, of Allegany Co., N. Y., in 1848; they had two children, viz., Henry R., whose name heads this sketch, and Cornelia, who died in 1862, aged 10 years. They own about 1,000 acres of land in various parts of Wisconsin.

ROBERT CONKLIN, Postmaster, Peebles; was born in Poughkeepsie, Dutchess Co., N. Y., in 1825, where he received a liberal education; in 1841, he came to Fond du Lac Co., there being at that time not over twenty-five families in the county. In May, 1852, he married, at Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Miss Sarah Tallmadge, daughter of Wm. R. Tallmadge; they have three children—Lora, now the wife of B. Spencer, Fond du Lac City; Robert J. and Miss Julia. Mr. Conklin is Postmaster of Peebles Post Office; he is also Superintendent of the Taycheedah and Green Bay plank road. In politics, he is a Republican. His father, Col. Henry Conklin, was a native of Dutchess Co., N. Y.; was a Colonel of New York regiment of State militia. He married, in New York City, Miss Mary Ann Hewitt; in 1841, they came to this (Fond du Lac) county, thus becoming pioneer settlers; they are both deceased. Their children are Henry H., Deputy Sheriff, Fond du Lac; Robert, whose name appears at the head of this sketch; William D., attorney at law, Fond du Lac; Theodore, James, Edgar (deceased), Mary, wife of B. F. Moore, Fond du Lac; Miss Fannie M. Mrs. Robert Conklin's father, Maj. William R. Tallmadge, was born in Schenectady, N. Y.; came to Fond du Lac Co. in 1842; he was twice married; he died in 1879. He was a man of indomitable energy, and of progressive mind. His children are R. G. Tallmadge, Fond du Lac; Sarah, wife of Robert Conklin; Mrs. N. W. Northam, of Calumet, Mary and William Tallmadge.

JAMES A. FISHER, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Peebles; was born in Salem, Washington Co., N. Y., Dec. 11, 1822; in 1842, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., remaining until May, 1844, when he returned to his native State and there remained until 1849, when he again came to this county and located in the town of Empire. He married on the 29th of April, 1852, in the town of Taycheedah, Elizabeth Langdon; she was born in Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., Nov. 9, 1833. They lived in the town of Empire until 1857, when they moved to Taycheedah Village, where they lived until 1860, in which year they returned to Empire, and lived there until 1862, when they removed to the vicinity of where they now live. Their children are Edward, who married Sophia Peters; Henry, Mary, George, Lottie and Bessie. Mr. Fisher owns 140 acres of land. During the war of the rebellion, he enlisted in Co. F, 5th W. V. I.; participated in several battles, and was honorably discharged at Hall's Mills, W. Va., June 18, 1865. In early life, Mr. Fisher acted with the "Old Whig" party; he has acted with the Republican party since its organization. His father, William Fisher, was a soldier in the war of 1812, he married, in Salem, N. Y., Betsey Burnett; their children are John E., who was a number of years a resident of Fond du Lac Co.; he is now living in Glen Arbor, Mich., in the vicinity of which place he owns over nine hundred acres of land; Margaret, now wife of William Coggs-hall, Frankfort, Mich.; James A., whose name appears at the head of this sketch; Elizabeth, wife of Bishop Tucker, Glen Arbor, Mich.; they were several years residents of Empire, Fond du Lac Co. Mrs. James A. Fisher's father, Joseph Langdon, married Ann E. Burdick; they came to Taycheedah, this Fond du Lac county, in about 1850; their children are Nathan B., now of Marshall, Minn.; Joseph, who now lives in St. Joseph, Mo., he was a soldier in the 1st W. V. C., during the war of the rebellion; Sarah, now the wife of Joseph Parks, Calumet Co., Wis. (he served in Co. A, 18th W. V. I., during the late war); Elizabeth, wife of James A. Fisher, Taycheedah; Allie, now the wife of Robert Spornitz, Eyota, Minn. (he was a soldier in a Minnesota regiment during the late war); Lottie, wife of Andrew Hood, Chatfield, Minn.; Charles, lives at Stockbridge, Calumet Co., Wis.

MICHAEL FITZGERALD, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Taycheedah; was born in County Cork, Ireland, Sept. 10, 1815; in 1845, he emigrated to America; lived in Middletown, Conn., one year, at the end of which time he went to Stockbridge, Mass., where he resided until 1855. In 1853, he married in Pittsfield, Mass., Abbie Shay; she was born in County Cork, Ireland; came to America in 1845; in 1855, they came West, and settled in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; they lived in Forest one year, then removed to where they now reside; their children are Annie, who was educated at the high schools in Fond du Lac, and has taught school for about eight years, she was born in Stockbridge, Mass.; Michael, born in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., is proprietor of general repair and blacksmith shop, Taycheedah; Richard, born in the town of Forest; Mary, born in the town of Taycheedah; William and Abbie, also born in Taycheedah; the deceased children are Maggie and Johnnie; Mr. Fitzgerald owns eighty acres of land, finely improved, and desirably located; he is a public-spirited man, possessed of much energy and enterprise. In politics, Democrat.

WILLIAM E. GOUTERMONT, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. Peobles; is a native of New York, was born in Lewis Co., Dec. 13, 1827; in early life, he received a liberal education at the common schools in his native county; in 1866, he came to Wisconsin, located where he now lives; he owns 160 acres of land, finely improved, and possessing many natural advantages. In politics, he is a consistent and active Republican. He was a member of the Taycheedah Town Board of Trustees, also Town Treasurer. His wife was Louisa Dart, nee Hoagland; he has one son (Charles), by a former marriage; his wife had two children by her marriage with her first husband (J. M. Dart), viz.: Ida and Alma. Mr. Goutermont is a representative man of Taycheedah, and one who identifies himself closely with the progress of her public interests; he has been very successful in life, and is possessed of great physical vigor.

JOHN C. HOAGLAND, farmer, Sec. 32; P. O. Peobles; is a native of Pennsylvania, and came to Wisconsin about 1848, and has lived in the town of Taycheedah the most of the time since. He has been twice married; his children are Mrs. E. Lyons, of La Crosse, Wis.; Mrs. Goutermont, of Taycheedah, and Edward. Mr. Hoagland is a leading farmer and an enterprising citizen.

JOHN LEE MAN, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a pioneer settler of Fond du Lac; is a native of England, was born in Yorkshire Feb. 1, 1816. June 21, 1838, he married in the town of Beniton, Yorkshire, Miss Ann Edmund, a native of that town, born May 8, 1819; in 1848, they emigrated to Milwaukee, Wis., and in the spring of 1849 moved to the city of Fond du Lac, where they resided until 1854, when they removed to Sec. 4, town of Taycheedah, where he has since lived; she died Oct. 12, 1869; she was an earnest Christian woman, a most estimable lady, and her death was deeply deplored; their children were Elizabeth, now the wife of John S. Burroughs, Fond du Lac City; Edmund, born Sept. 6, 1840, died Oct. 25, 1841; Edward, born Oct. 25, 1841, enlisted in Co. E, 6th W. V. I., during the war of the rebellion, was killed at the battle of Gettysburg in July, 1863—he was a brave soldier, and a true comrade; Thomas, born March 3, 1844, and fell in defense of the cause of the Union, at the battle of Pittsburg Landing in April, 1862 (he was a soldier of the 18th W. V. I., and the records of that regiment show that he was a gallant soldier, that he was killed in the heat of action, while pressing forward nobly doing his duty); Jane, now the wife of Samuel Smith, Fond du Lac City (he was also a soldier in a Wisconsin regiment during the war of the rebellion); Wilson, who now lives near San Francisco, Cal., is an engineer; George E., born March 4, 1849, died April, 1859; William E., married Vivian A. Holt; Mary C.; Emma A. and John, Jr. Mr. Leeman owns 140 acres of land, finely improved, and well located on Sec. 4, town of Taycheedah, where he lives in the enjoyment of a happy home. Politically, he is a firm supporter of the Republican party.

HON. QURIAN LOEHR, merchant, Sec. 12; P. O. Heinsburg; is a native of Prussia, was born in the village of Adenen, June 8, 1823; he received a liberal education in the schools of his native country; in 1843, he emigrated to the United States, located in Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; he was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1852, and has been frequently elected by his fellow-citizens to other offices of honor and trust; he has been engaged in the mercantile business for a period of over twenty-seven years, and by his strict integrity, honesty, and fair dealing, has secured and retains the confidence of all who know him; by close attention to business, and good management, he has accumulated a large property, owning over 600 acres of land, besides his residence and village property. He married in Green Bay, Miss D. Straubel; they have ten children—Louis, Fredrick, Edward, Amelia, now wife of P. Stephany, Louisa, wife of M. Kelt, Arnold, Mary, Anna, Mathias and Henry. Mr. Lochr is a public-spirited, enterprising citizen, and one whose fidelity to public and private trusts is unimpeachable.

J. E. MACK, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Fond du Lac; was born in East Lyme, New London Co., Conn., June 24, 1832; in 1855, he came to Wisconsin, and located in the town of Empire, Fond du Lac Co. March 8, 1863; he married, in Fond du Lac, Mary E. Morehouse, a native of Lockport, N. Y., born July 6, 1838; they have one child—Clarence E.; Mr. Mack has resided in Taycheedah since 1860; he owns 107 acres of land, well located and finely improved. In politics, he is a Republican. His father, J. T. Mack, was born in East Lyme, New London Co., Conn., in 1801; he married, in his native county, Jane D. Ransom; they came to Wisconsin in 1855, and settled in Fond du Lac Co.; they now reside in Taycheedah; their children are J. E. (whose name heads this sketch), Leander H. (now of Morris, Lincoln Co., Minn.), Ellen C. (wife of William Wilcox, Fond du Lac), William N. (who was a soldier in the —th W. V. I., and died in the service at Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 11, 1862), Mary J. (wife of O. F. Brand, of Minnesota, who was a soldier in a Wisconsin regiment during the war of the rebellion), Theron R. (who served in the 18th W. V. I. during the war), Rachel E. (deceased), Sylvester S. (now of Lincoln Co., Minn.), Prudence M. (wife of Robert Lusk, Minn.), and Bainbridge A., of Taycheedah.

E. PEBBLES, farmer, and proprietor of cheese factory, Sec. 32; P. O. Pebbles; is a native of Martinsburg, Lewis Co., N. Y.; was born Aug. 22, 1822; in November, 1845, he came to Wisconsin and located in Taycheedah. In 1847, he married Miss Margaret Van Valkenburg; they have six children living—Sanford S., Sarah J., John E., Oscar, Emma and Sherman; one child deceased, Ella, died in 1878; in 1875, Mr. Pebbles erected a cheese factory on his farm, where he makes about an average of 100,000 cheese per annum, which is widely known for its superior quality; he owns a finely improved farm of 170 acres. Politically, he acts with the Republicans, being an active worker in that party since its organization; he is an active, energetic, go-ahead citizen, and one who takes an active part in all public enterprises that give promise of advancing the interests of the public; his father, Sanford Pebbles, was a soldier in active service during the war of 1812; he married, in his native State (New York), Miss Sarah Bowen; he is now deceased; she is living at Martinsburg, N. Y.

SANFORD S. PEBBLES, farmer, Sec. 30; P. O. Pebbles; was born in Taycheedah, June 1, 1851, and is therefore a "native to the manor born." He is the son of E. and Margaret Pebbles, pioneer settlers of Fond du Lac Co., and now honored citizens of Taycheedah. Sept. 27, 1877, he married Miss Amanda S., daughter of John and Lorinda Charles, early settlers and still residents of Taycheedah; they have one child—Ethan C. In politics, Mr. Pebbles is a Republican; he is a member of Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F., of Fond du Lac; is extensively engaged in farming, and is a man of much energy and push.

HON. O. HUGO PETTERS, Sec. 16, P. O. Pebbles; was born in Saxon Weimar, Germany, Jan. 21, 1823; he was educated at the Universities of Jena and Leipzig, and was admitted to the practice of law in the courts; he was clerk of the Preliminary Court at Weimar, and afterward was appointed Clerk of the Civil Court, which position he filled until his coming to this country in 1848. In 1849, he married, in Milwaukee, Dorothea P. E. Sander, a native of Lohlotz, Los Weimar, Germany; in the latter part of 1849, they moved to the city of Fond du Lac, and he engaged in the grocery business until the spring of 1852, when they moved to the town of Taycheedah, where they have since resided. He has been frequently selected by his fellow-citizens to fill various offices; he was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1858-59, Town Clerk two terms, Justice of the Peace eight years, and was appointed Notary Public in 1878—a position he still fills; he owns a good farm, well located. Himself and wife attend the Lutheran Church. Their children are Sophia (now the wife of Edward Fisher), Louis, Charlie and Willie. In politics, Mr. Petters is a Republican.

BENJAMIN F. SMITH (deceased), a native of Vermont, born June 26, 1812. He married in La Pointe, Wis., Miss Hannah Wood; she was born in Lowell, Mass.; they were married June 7, 1849, and removed to Taycheedah the same year; in 1862, he enlisted in Co. A, 18th W. V. I.; was taken prisoner at the battle of Shiloh, and died in rebel prison at Montgomery; the records of his regiment show that he was a brave soldier, ever ready to follow where duty led; though he never was an aspirant for office, he was at various times elected by his fellow-citizens to offices of honor and trust; he took an active interest in educational interests, and was ever ready to aid any enterprise that gave promise of general good; he was a kind husband and an indulgent father; his children were Ellen, now the wife of A. Mackay, Oshkosh P. rank (deceased), Virginia, now the wife of L. H. Bishop, Taycheedah; Harriett, Mrs

B. F. Smith; married second husband, J. C. Hoagland, a native of Pennsylvania; he came to Fond du Lac Co., in 1848; they at present reside on their farm on Sec. 32, Taycheedah Township.

J. J. TALLMADGE, grain dealer; P. O. Peebles; was born in Poughkeepsie, Dutchess Co., N. Y., April 14, 1834; in 1844, he removed with his parents, N. P. and Abbie Tallmadge, to this (Fond du Lac) county; in early life he received a liberal education. In October, 1863, he married, in the city of Fond du Lac, Miss Sarah Brown; they have one child, Miss Julia; Mr. Tallmadge has been engaged in the grain trade several years; is an energetic business man, owns 146 acres of land in the town of Calumet. In politics and religion, he is liberal; his father, N. P. Tallmadge (deceased), was a prominent member of the New York Legislature a number of years; he was appointed Territorial Governor of Wisconsin June 21, 1841; after his appointment, he delivered his message to both houses of the Legislature in person, an account of which will be found on page 51. He was twice married; his children are Isaac S., a prominent attorney, New York; William D., deceased; Grier, who was a graduate of West Point, died in the service at Fortress Monroe, was Captain of a company at the time of his death, was acting as Quartermaster General; Mary L., wife of William A. Baldwin; Laura, wife of William H. Galloway; M. D., Eau Claire, Wis.; Julia B., wife of A. G. Ruggles, Fond du Lac City; Emily B., wife of James D. Tallmadge, Chicago; J. J., whose name appears at the head of this sketch.

JOHN W. TIFFANY, deceased, was a native of Lewis Co., N. Y. He married, in his native county, Sophia Hill; they came to Wisconsin in about 1819; settled in Taycheedah. During the war of the rebellion, he enlisted in the 18th W. V. I.; was a good soldier; died in the service. She is still living and resides at Taycheedah; their children are Morton R.; Emma, wife of Dr. Chase, of Vernon Co., Wis.; John, who served in the 5th W. V. I. during the war, and died in the service; P. R., also a soldier in the 5th W. V. I.; Levi F., who served in the 18th W. V. I. and died in the cause; James M. and Loyd R.

MORTON R. TIFFANY, contractor and builder, Taycheedah; was born in the town of Martinsburg, Lewis Co., N. Y., March 26, 1838; emigrated to Taycheedah, with his parents, John W. and Sophia Tiffany, in about 1849. He married, in Taycheedah, Nov. 3, 1858, Mariette Sullivan, a native of Otsego Co., N. Y., who was born in 1812; her mother, Mrs. Sullivan, is one of the pioneer settlers of Taycheedah. They have three children—Edward C., Florence G. and Lulu B. Besides building, Mr. Tiffany takes contracts in painting and plastering. He is a Republican in politics. Has filled various local offices.

P. R. TIFFANY. This gentleman, a soldier, during the war of the rebellion, in the 5th W. V. I., enrolled as a private, was promoted to Second Lieutenant and acted a portion of the time as Sergeant Major; participated in nearly every battle, siege and skirmish his command was in, and was honorably discharged at the close of the war. He was born in Lewis Co., N. Y., July 13, 1843. His parents were John W. and Sophia Tiffany, who settled in Taycheedah in 1849. He married, in Taycheedah, in 1866, Frances Spink, a native of Canada; they have three children—Maud E., Claude H. and Grace E. In early life, Mr. Tiffany learned the carpenter and joiner's trade, which, in connection with painting, constitutes his present business. Politically, he acts with the Republican party.

OAKFIELD TOWNSHIP.

A. J. ASH, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Oakfield; is a native of the town of Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and is the son of William D. and Almira Ash, nee Putnam, immigrants from Montgomery Co., N. Y., and early settlers in this town; A. J. was born in March, 1857, and lived with his parents on a farm in Sec. 6, Oakfield, till 1869, when, with them, removed to the village of Brandon, Fond du Lac Co., and made that his home for seven or eight years; he was educated in the public schools of Oakfield, Brandon and the College of Oshkosh. In July, 1876, he married Miss Hattie, daughter of Dr. S. and Mary Shepard, nee Liddle, of Brandon; they have one daughter, Mate; he now lives on his father's farm of 360 acres in Sec. 6, town of Oakfield.

BARDEN BENNETT, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Lamartine; born in the town of Dana, Mass., in the year 1814; is the son of Submit and Jacob Bennett, a farmer; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his time; in 1827, he commenced working for a Mr. Patten, a farmer of Greenwich; in 1831, he left farming and went to work in the cotton-mills of Jenksville; he commenced as picker and lapwinder, and during his stay in the mills, he served in all its branches:

the last three years of his stay he was overseer of the weaving-room; Mr. Bennett left the mills in 1847 and came West, pre-empting 160 acres of land in the town of Oakfield; after living on that farm for twenty years, he sold out and bought the farm on which he now resides; in 1878, he bought the Lamartine cheese factory of his son Oscar, and has been engaged in running it in connection with farming; in 1878, he manufactured at the factory 158,171 pounds of cheese; in 1879, 115,000 pounds. Mr. B. married his first wife Oct. 4, 1837, in Springfield, Mass., Lucy J., daughter of Caleb Howe, a farmer; had five children by this wife—Albert, Leroy, Oscar, Sophia, Lettie; this wife died in May, 1854. Married the second time, Nov. 20, 1855, in Palmer, Mass., to Charlotte A., daughter of Esther and William Denison, a farmer of Stafford, Conn.; have had two children—Maurice D. (deceased), Homer W. Family attend the M. E. Church; he is, politically, a Republican; he is the present owner of 160 acres of land in Sec. 4, Oakfield, also of 17½ acres in Lamartine adjoining his factory property.

— ABEL BRISTOL, farmer; P. O. Oakfield; born in Addison Co., near Lake Champlain, Vt.; in 1829; is the son of Anna and Noah Bristol, a farmer of that county; the subject of this sketch received a common school and academic education in that county, also in Bakersfield and St. Albans; at the age of 18 he left school and occupied himself—with the exception of one year that he worked at the carpenter's trade—at teaching school winters and farming during the summer season, until November, 1853, when he came to Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., teaching school the winter he came, and in February bought a farm of 180 acres of William Beebe, paying $12.50 per acre, where he now resides; in 1868, he bought an interest in the firm of Wilcox, Cornell & Co., doing a general business in the village of Oakfield; in 1875, with Mr. Aaron Worthing, bought out Mr. Cornell, and the firm name being Bristol & Worthing; they are doing a very extensive business in general merchandise, also handling wool very largely. Mr. Bristol married, in Brandon, Vt., in 1851, Abigail, daughter of Abigail and James Thompson, a farmer of Addison Co., Vt.; have had six children—Clarence A., Jennie J., Nettie A., Fremont J., Flora A., Watson E. He is the present owner of 215 acres of land in Oakfield—probable value, $69 per acre. He has held offices of member of Board of Supervisors, School Superintendent and Assessor, for a number of years, and is politically a Republican.

J. W. BURNS, M. D., Oakfield; born in Oakfield in 1845; is the son of Elizabeth and Thomas Burns, a farmer of Oakfield; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of Oakfield, and, in 1867, commenced the study of medicine; in 1870, he graduated from the Rush Medical College of Chicago; he then located in Mayville and practiced his profession there until the fall of 1870, when he went to Lomira, Dodge Co.; in the spring of 1872, he came to Oakfield and entered into partnership with Dr. William Moore, remaining with him until Jan. 1, 1876; he then removed to Lake Crystal, Minn.; remaining there until January 1878, when he again returned to Oakfield, and in connection with his brother Thomas, bought the drug-store of J. A. Steen, in which he is still interested, but is practicing his profession as physician. He was married, in Lomira, in June, 1872, to Hattie, daughter of Mary and Henry S. Beeson, a physician of that place; they have had three children born to them—William H., Edward H., Leslie R. Is a member of the Masonic Order, Oakfield Lodge, also of the Oakfield Lodge of I. O. O. F. Family attend the Episcopal Church.

PHILANDER H. COLE, station agent and operator, Oakfield; born in Chester Township, Dodge Co., Wis., in 1847; son of Philander and Nancy Cole; a farmer. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; at the age of 20, he took up telegraphing, taking his first office at Burnett; after working there for about eighteen months, he went to Lodi; was there for two years and a half; then went to Caledonia, Ill., remaining a little over four years; from there he came to Oakfield, in 1875, where he is now the station agent and operator, having been in the employ of the C. & N.-W. R. R. Co. all this time. He married in July, 1872, in Burnett, Ada G., daughter of Sophronia and Willis Cole, a hotel keeper of that place; they have had three children—Jessie R., Ernest G., and Edna G. Family attend the Congregational Church; he is a member of the Masonic Order; is politically, a Republican.

HENRY CORNELL, Postmaster, Oakfield; born in Morris Co., N. J., in 1827; son of Ann and Jesse Cornell, a farmer; in 1832, went to Upper Canada with his people. The subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of Canada, and was brought up on a farm; also engaged in lumbering; in 1849, came West and settled in Oakfield, working at transient work until 1851, when he bought a farm of eighty acres of his brother James; continued on the farm for two years, then sold out and bought a farm in Byron known as the Bannister farm, and lived there for one year; after selling that, he, in connection with his brother, bought the farm his brother now occupies in Byron; in 1856, sold out his interest to his brother and went back to Canada, and engaged in the mercantile business in connection with his brother William; in 1858, they met with heavy losses and sold out their business; in 1861, came West again, to Byron, and rented a farm; worked it until 1861, when he came to Oakfield, renting a farm for one year; in 1866, entered into the grocery business in the village of Oakfield; in 1867, went into a general store in connection with Messrs. Worthing & Bristol; in 1874, severed his connection with that firm, and bought out N. Filby; in October, 1875, sold out to W. S. Russell & Co., and then purchased a store owned by Dr. Wm. Moore, and put in a general stock of goods, where he is now engaged in business. He was married, in 1853, to Esther K., daughter of Kezia and Chas. Susan, farmers of Oakfield; have had four children born to them—John H. (deceased), Chas. J., Frank (deceased), and Mary. Mr. Cornell has held the offices of Assessor and Justice of the Peace in the town of Byron, and is at present Postmaster of Oakfield Village. He is a member of the Masonic Order, Oakfield Lodge, and a member of the Congregational Church; his politics are Republican.

HARMON J. FRENCH, farmer, P. O. Oak Center; born in New York State in 1819; is the son of Mahala and Ely French, a shoemaker and farmer. The subject of this sketch moved with his parents at an early age, to Westfield, Mass., where he received a common-school education; he was brought up a farmer, and has made that his principal business all his life; in 1848, he came to Wisconsin and settled on the farm where he now resides, buying at that time eighty acres, paying $325 for it; he is the present owner of 180 acres in Fond du Lac Co., and twenty acres in Dodge Co., probable value, $60 per acre. He married in Lamartine, Jan. 27, 1853, Ann Eliza, daughter of Clarissa and Thomas Stoddard, a mason by trade; they had five children—Harmon H. (deceased), George F., Ann E. (deceased), Willie and Eddie; this wife died, July 31, 1873; married a second wife July 8, 1874, to Maria C., daughter of Chrissa and Palmer Perry, a farmer of New York State. Mr. French is a member of the Oakfield Grange; is politically a Republican.

VALENTINE E. GALLOWAY, farmer, Sec. 3, P. O. Lamartine, born in Harrisburg, Lewis Co., N. Y., in 1822; son of Ann and Chas. Galloway, a farmer of that county. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of that time, and was engaged in farming with his father until the age of 25; he then bought a farm in the same town and settled on it with his wife; he remained there until 1850; he then sold that property and bought another farm in the same town, of 136 acres, and continued on that place until 1863; in the spring of 1865, he came West, to Wisconsin, and bought the farm, on which he now resides, of R. E. Tallmadge. Mr. Galloway married in Oswego Co., Sept. 22, 1846, Nancy A., daughter of Henry W. and Laura Chafa, a Baptist clergyman, of Jefferson Co., N. Y.; they have had four children—an infant (deceased), Chas. Wm. (deceased), Chas. Wm., and Willie E. The family attend the M. E. Church. He has held the office of Chairman of the town for several terms, and is politically a Republican. Is the present owner of 184½ acres of land in Sec. 3, town of Oakfield, probable value, $50 per acre.

CARTER Z. GORDON, farmer; P. O. Oakfield, born in Lewis Co., N. Y., in 1828; is the son of Emily and David Gordon, a millwright of that county; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of his native place; at the age of 15, went to work at the carpenter and joiner's trade; in 1850, he came West and located in Fond du Lac, working at his trade for two years; he then went into the lumber business, working for J. C. Littlefield; then, in connection with John Bonnell, entered into the manufacture of sash, doors and blinds; continued with him until April, 1864, when he commenced working for C. J. L. Meyer, superintending the building of what is called the old factory, at the completion of that, he commenced the superintending of the large factory, and was general manager of the work until its completion; in 1869, he was engaged in superintending the running of McDonald & Stewart's factory; in 1870, he again went into the employ of Mr. Meyer; in 1874-75, he managed the building and putting-in of the machinery of the Chicago factory; in February, 1876, he moved to his farm in the town of Oakfield, where he now resides, and is the present owner of 100 acres of land, part of it being in the village of Oakfield; probable value, $75 per acre. Mr. Gordon was married in Lewis Co., N. Y., in 1849, to Mary, daughter of Elijah Thompson, a hotel-keeper of the county seat of that county; they have had eight children born to them—Libby, Ida, Alice, Jennie, Louie, Jessie, Carrie and Kent (deceased). His politics are Republican.

HENRY F. HANSEN, miller and proprietor of Oakfield Mills, Oakfield; born in Sternburg, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, in 1846; is the son of Sophia and John Hansen, a shoemaker; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of that place; in 1857, came with his people to the United States, and located in Calumet until 1865; from that time until 1872, he traveled in most of the Southern States; at the age of 17, Henry learned the trade of carriage and wagon maker, and, at the age of 19, commenced to learn the carpenter, joiner and millwright's trade; he followed that until 1874, when he commenced business in Oakfield, as miller, which he has followed ever since, and now is the proprietor of the Oakfield Mills, with two run of stone, doing custom work principally. His father is still living in the town of Friendship, engaged in farming. Henry attends the Episcopal Church.

LUCIUS E. HALL, farmer and proprietor of Hatch farm, Secs. 20; P. O. Oak Center; born in Chili, Monroe Co., N. Y., in 1837, son of Susannah and John M. Hall, a farmer; at the age of 8 years he came with his parents to Rock Co., Wis., near Janesville; Lucius received his education in the common schools of that place, and, at the age of 22, went to railroading for the Chicago & North-Western Railway Company, being in their employ for seventeen years—acting as conductor; on leaving the road in 1876, he bought the farm on which he now resides, of 236 acres in Secs. 20 and 27, known as the Hatch farm. He married in Concord, Wis., in 1863, Maria S., daughter of Cyrus and Sophia Holmes, a farmer of Jefferson Co.; they have one child—Claude. Mr. Hall is a member of the Masonic Order and belongs to the Western Star Lodge, Janesville. He is politically independent.

SOLOMON B. HOWARD (deceased) was born on the 8th of May, 1803, in West Springfield, Mass., son of Clarissa and Andrew Howard; his father was a soldier of the Revolution, and, in his 16th year, was in that winter march under Washington through New England, on our northern frontier soon after, and during the winter at Valley Forge. The subject of this sketch, at the age of 9 years, went with his parents to Belchertown, Mass.; he received his education in this place, and was brought up on a farm; in the spring of 1845, he visited Wisconsin, and entered his land—removing his family in July, 1847; he then owned 340 acres lying in Secs. 29 and 32; Mr. Howard lived and died very much respected by his neighbors and greatly beloved by his family; he was a man of thought, earnest and active in business, devoted and affectionate as a husband and father, deeply reverent and sympathetic in the service of God; when a young man he made public profession of faith in Christ, and united with the Congregational Church, in the communion of which he remained till his death, Jan. 8, 1880. He married in Westfield, Mass., Oct. 14, 1834, Betsy, daughter of Pricilla and Elijah Carrier, a farmer; had eight children born to them—Elisabeth J., Clarissa, Solomon H. (died in the war), Harriet P., Spencer A., Myron C., Ann Eliza, Harper A. P. O. Oak Center.

HENRY D. HITT, farmer, Secs. 14 and 15; P. O. Oakfield; was born in Danby, Rutland Co., Vt., in 1823; is the son of Lydia and William Hitt, a farmer of that county; 1830, moved with his people to Orville, same county; in 1835, they moved to the town of Addison, Addison Co., Vt.; the subject of this sketch received a common-school and academic education in Vermont; he remained in Addison Co. until 1848, occupied in teaching school in the winter and engaged in farming in the summer seasons; he then came to Wisconsin—directly to Oakfield—and located on the spot where he now resides, purchasing 120 acres of land, at about $3 per acre. He was married, in Addison Co., Vt., to Lydia A., daughter of Mary and Moses Bristol, a farmer of that county; they have had six children born to them—Charles J., S. Arthur (deceased), Eugene T., Jessie R., Lilly E., Carrie P. Mr. Hitt has held the offices of Town Clerk, School Superintendent, Chairman of Board of Supervisors, Justice of the Peace, and Representative of his Assembly District; is now President of the Fond du Lac Agricultural Society; he is the owner of 420 acres of land in Secs. 14, 15, 23, in the town of Oakfield, and 160 acres joining the city of Russell, Kan.; in 1873, he put up a handsome brick residence, commanding a fine view of the village, and also of Fond du Lac and Lake Winnebago, ten miles distant. His family attend the Congregational Church; he is politically a Republican.

E. A. HUBBARD, farmer; P. O. Oakfield; born in the town of Batavia, N. Y. State, in 1824; son of Serepta and Hugh Hubbard, a farmer; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place, and was brought up on a farm; in 1844, he came West with his people, and, for one summer, he lived in Walworth Co.; they then removed to Oakfield; in the winter of 1847-78, he purchased a half of Sec. 23, in same town, and lived there until the spring of 1852, when he went overland to California, remaining there for thirteen months engaged in prospecting, working on a farm, etc., he also bought a thrashing machine and thrashed for one season; he then returned by water and land to Oakfield, where he has remained ever since engaged in farming. He married, in Byron, in April, 1853, Julia A., daughter of David Percy, a farmer of Le Roy, Dodge Co., formerly from Chautauque Co., N. Y.; have had six children—Earl E., Elida (dead), Myrta (married), Lil, Mattie, Cora. Mr. Hubbard is a member of the I. O. O. F., Oakfield Lodge No. 174, and he has held the office of Chairman of his town; he is the present owner of 540 acres of land in the town of Oakfield, also five lots of village property. He is politically a Republican.

MARTIN R. HUBBARD, Oakfield; born in Genesee Co., N. Y., in 1833; son of Serepta and Hugh Hubbard, a farmer; at the age of 8 years he came with his parents to Walworth Co., Wis., and in 1845, they came to Oakfield, and settled on a farm his father had previously purchased; Martin was educated in the common schools of Oakfield, and was brought up on the farm; when he was 22 years of age he bought forty acres of land known as the Beeson place; he afterward bought 120 acres more; he has lived in this town ever since; has been engaged in farming and dealing quite largely in stock; about the 1st of January, 1880, in connection with Mr. George W. King, he entered into the hay-pressing business, building a large hay barn and putting in a Dederick press, running by steam power. He married, in 1858, in Mayville, Louisa, daughter of David Percy, of Le Roy, Dodge Co.; they have had six children—Roderia, Serepta, Julia, Hugh (deceased), Joseph, Nona (dead); he is the present owner of 380 acres of land in the town of Oakfield. Politically a Republican.

HAYWARD JONES. Oakfield; born in the town of Vershire, Vt., in 1810, is the son of Esther and Samuel Jones, a farmer of that place; Hayward was educated in the common schools of his native place; in 1825, he moved with his people to Venango Co., town of Allegheny, Penn., and at the age of 17 he learned the carding and cloth dressing business, and worked at it until 1834; he then took up farming and continued at that until 1844; he then came to Wisconsin and bought a farm on Mound Prairie, town of Byron, of forty acres, paying $300 for it; he lived on that farm until 1874, when he came to Oakfield, buying and locating on village property, where he has made his home ever since. He married in Pennsylvania in 1835, Maria, daughter of Hannah and Perrin Ross, a farmer of that State; the children are as follows—Esther (deceased), Lyman B., Irene E., Saphronia M., Perrin C., Holsey B., Lucinda M., Eliza (deceased), Delilah M. Mr. Jones has been a member of the School Board of Byron, and is politically a Republican; his family attend the Methodist Episcopal Church.

GEORGE W. KING. proprietor of elevator, Oakfield; born in Lowville, Lewis Co., N. Y., in 1825, son of Sophia and Solomon King, who, in his younger days, was a sailor, and during his voyages wrote a very interesting journal of his observations from all parts of the world; after leaving his sailor life he went to work at his trade as millwright, and afterward built and ran the largest mill in New York State at that time, and died just as the first run of stone was completed. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of that time, and, at the age of 14, went to work in the woolen mills, learning the trade of the manufacturing of woolen goods; continued at that for ten years, working for the same man, J. A. Willard, and the two last years acted as manager for him; in August, 1849, he came to Fond du Lac, Wis., and engaged in farming, hotel-keeping, etc., until August, 1862, when he enlisted in Co. H, 32d W. V. I., under Capt. William S. Burrows, and served through the entire war, when he was mustered out—he served for about a year as private, then as non-commissioned officer for about ten months, the balance of his service as Second and First Lieutenant; he was laid up for about sixty days with rheumatism, from which he has never fully recovered; after he was mustered out he opened a sample room and billiard parlor in the American House; in 1866 closed out his business, and until 1869 was laid up with sickness; on recovery, he opened the Astor hall billiard rooms; after about one year's business there he sold out to H. Hickey, and came to Oakfield, built the first elevator in Oakfield, which he continued running until July, 1879, when he was burned completely out; he rebuilt, and in sixty days had his new one, with all the modern improvements, running, where he has continued ever since. Mr. King was married in Lowville, N. Y., in 1847, to Emily A., daughter of Hannah and James Green; have had four children born to them—Emma E., Edgar H., Frank E., and Altabel. The family attend the Methodist Episcopal Church; his politics is Republican.

LEVI LARGE. farmer, Sec. 1, P. O. Oakfield; born in the year 1821, in Allegheny Co., Penn., is the son of Esther and Jonathan Large, a farmer of that county; the subject of this sketch was educated in the subscription schools of that time and place, and was brought up a farmer; he also followed milling part of his life; he came West in the spring of 1854, directly to Fond du Lac Co., and, during the first five years of his residence here, was engaged in milling in Oakfield; in 1859, bought the farm where he now resides, and has made it his home ever since; at the time of his purchase, there being but three houses in sight. He was married in 1845, in Allegheny Co., Penn., to Nancy, daughter of Nancy and Hugh Kennedy, her father being a farmer of that county; they have had children born to them—Cyrus W., Samuel L., Nancy J., Martha J., Sarah E., Florence E. (deceased), Emma M., Charles S. He is the owner of 170 acres of land, lying in Sec. 6, Byron, and Sec. 1, Oakfield, probable value $55 per acre; he has held the office of School Director, and is at present Clerk of the School Board, No. 10, Oakfield. Attends the Congregational Church, and is politically a Republican.

THOMAS LEMON. farmer, Secs. 8 and 17, P. O. Oak Center; born in Albany Co., N. Y., in 1823; son of Esther and Robert Lemon, a farmer of that place. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place, and was brought up a farmer, which he has always followed with the exception of one year that he worked at the blacksmith trade when he was 19 years of age; in 1854, he came West, and located in Oakfield, buying eighty acres of land, paying $600 for it. He afterward bought an adjoining thirty acres, paying the same price for that; he is the present owner of 348 acres of land, probable value $60 per acre, all in Oakfield in Secs. 8 and 17, with the exception of thirty acres lying in Dodge Co.; he is also the owner of some city property. He married in Albany Co., N. Y., on Dec. 26, 1850, Finetta, daughter of Submit and John Boomhower, a farmer of Schoharie Co. N. Y.; have had six children—Helen, Elmira, Hayes (infant, deceased), Emma, A. J. (deceased). Mr. Leemon has held the office of Treasurer and Director of the School Board; he is politically a Democrat.

WILLIAM MOORE, M. D., Oakfield; born in Oxford Co., Canada, in the year 1825; is the son of Sarah and Daniel Moore, farmers, and both living at this date; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of Canada and the Medical University of Buffalo; he graduated in 1850; in 1852 he commenced practice in Lancaster, Schuyler Co., Mo., and in 1861 came to Oakfield, and has made it his home ever since. He was married in 1852 to Caroline, daughter of Charlotte and Truman Parkhill, a farmer of Empire; had three children by this wife, all deceased; wife died in 1863; married to second wife in 1865, Olive A., daughter of Moses Webster, a saddler and farmer of Oakfield; had two children by this wife—William W. and Charles H.; this wife died of consumption in 1875; he was married to present wife in 1877, she being Louisa G., daughter of Mary and John Hobbs, farmers of Byron. Dr. Moore is a member of the Masonic Order, Oakfield Lodge, Chapter of Fond du Lac; he is the present owner of 290 acres of land in the town of Oakfield, divided into three farms; probable value $65 per acre; he is living in the village of Oakfield.

MYRON T. MORGAN, Oakfield; born in Steuben Co., Ind., in 1847; he is the son of Emeline and Theodore Morgan, a carpenter and builder, formerly from New York State; in 1848 he came with his people to Lomira, Dodge Co., Wis., and after living there for three years they all went to New York State; when he was 8 years old his folks moved back to Dodge Co.; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his time, and at the age of 18 he commenced work at the carpenter and builder's trade; in 1874 he came to Oakfield, carrying on the business of carpenter and builder until 1878, when he started a lumber-yard on the west side of the railroad track, near the depot, and has been carrying on that business, steadily increasing ever since; he is now, in connection with Mr. O. W. Willard, engaged in putting up a mill for the manufacture of wagon material, expecting to be ready to start about April 1. He married in Chester, Dodge Co., Dec. 3, 1879, Emma F., daughter of Philander H. and Nancy H. Cole, farmers. The family attend the Episcopal Church; he is politically a Republican.

ISAAC ORVIS; P. O. Oakfield; born in Addison Co., Vt., in 1809; son of Lillis and Loren Orvis, a farmer and dairyman of that county. The subject of this sketch received his education in the schools of his native place, and lived there until 1834, when he removed with his wife and one child to the township of Whitley, then the county of York, Upper Canada; he remained there until 1846, when he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and moved his family here in the fall of the same year. He has made Oakfield his home ever since; during his residence in this town, he has been engaged in farming, milling and wheat-buying. He married, Sept. 8, 1831, Gulielma, daughter of Elizabeth and Aaron Dean, a farmer of Warren Co., N. Y.; they have had nine children—Henry D.; Loyd M., deceased; George; Charles, deceased; John J.; Albert, deceased; Emily, deceased; Francis T.; James, deceased. Mr. Orvis first purchased 219 acres of land for $1,800; he is now residing on village property, owned by him in the village of Oakfield; he is at present holding the office of Justice of the Peace, and in 1864 was acting Sheriff of Fond du Lac County; in 1847, assisted by Alvin Foster, of Mayville, Mr. Van Order, of Neosho, and Lucius Hurlburt, of Lomira, he procured by petition and diagram the first mail route from Oconomowoc to Fond du Lac, and Mr. O. was appointed the first Postmaster of Oakfield. His politics, Greenbacker.

CHARLES B. PARRATT, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Oakfield; born in Somersetshire, England, in 1821; son of Jane and James Parratt, a carpenter by trade. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; after leaving school, he worked with his father at the carpenter's trade, and also did gardening and general work; in 1842, he came to the United States and stopped in New York State for about eight months; he then moved to Huron Co., Ohio, and engaged in farming for eight years; then he came to Wisconsin and lived in Greenbush for about four months; he then came to Oakfield, buying the southeast quarter of Sec. 33, where he has made his home ever since; he is the present owner of 240 acres of land lying in Secs. 33 and 34. He married in England, in 1842, Ann, daughter of Doratha and John Billings, a machinist; had six children by this wife, two now living—Alvin J.; Evalyn M.; this wife died Feb. 4, 1860; he married his second wife Nov. 21, 1862, in Oakfield, Sophronia M., daughter of Haywood and Maria Jones; had one child by this wife, now dead; family are members of the Oakfield Grange; he has been a member of the Board of Supervisors. Is politically a Republican.

EDSON A. PUTNAM, Oakfield; born in Washington Co., Vt., in 1832; is the son of Cynthia and Leander Putnam, a farmer. The subject of this sketch received an academic and common-school education in Vermont, and, at the age of 19, learned the trade of carpenter and joiner and millwright; in 1855, came West with his people and located on a farm in Lamartine, and, for about eighteen months, Mr. Putnam lived in that town, working at his trade; from there he came to Oakfield and bought some village property, and built a sash, door and blind factory in partnership with J. T. White; in 1868, Mr. White sold out to William O'Bryan, and the firm was Putnam & O'Bryan until 1871, when William Blair bought out Mr. O'Bryan's interest, and the firm was Putnam & Blair until Jan. 1, 1879, when they closed out the business completely. He married in Oakfield, Jan. 8, 1859, Adelia D., daughter of Clyminie and Moses Webster, a farmer of Oakfield; they have had five children born to them—William, Carrie and Bertie, all deceased, and Effie and Elizabeth, living. Mr. Putnam has held the office of Supervisor and Superintendent of Schools, and, in 1875-76, was a member of the Legislature from his district; he is the owner of village property.

CHAUNCY A. RECTOR, carpenter and joiner, Oakfield; born in Erie Co., N. Y., in 1824, is the son of Parthenia and Nicholas D. Rector, a Baptist clergyman of that county. Chauncey was educated in the common schools of that time, and worked on until the age of 23, when he learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, working at his trade in Erie Co. until 1860, when he came west to Le Roy, Dodge Co., Wis., and lived there until 1863; he then came to the town of Oakfield, bought a farm, making it his home, but still working at his trade, until 1876, when he built a fine brick residence at the head of Mill street, on a hill, commanding a full view of Oakfield Village, where he is now living. He married in Erie Co., Dec. 24, 1846, Ann E., daughter of Margariti and Thomas Burnett, a farmer of that county; they have had four children born to them—Elon A., Margariti P., Fremont C. and Helen F. Is the present owner of sixteen and a half acres of village property, and are members of the Congregational Church; politics, Republican. Probable value of his property, $4,000.

WILLIAM I. RIPLEY, farmer, Sec. 24; P. O. Oakfield; born in Clarendon, Vt., in 1812; son of Laura Torrence and Isaac Ripley, a molder in a furnace; from there moved to Bennington, Vt.; the subject of this sketch received a common-school education in the schools of that place; at the age of 14 he commenced working in a cotton-manufacturing establishment, and, in 1830, moved to Troy, N. Y., living in the Fifth Ward of that city, then called the village of Albia, and still following the same occupation; after leaving Albia, he traveled to several different cities of New York and Vermont, and, in 1835, was made the agent for Arnold, Robinson & Co., of Sand Lake, proprietors of the Sand Lake Cotton Warp Co., and continued as their manager until 1841; he then engaged in the mercantile business with his brother-in-law, Col. J. M. Lawrence, in Bellevue, Ohio, remaining there until 1842, when he sold out to him, and with a stock of goods came to Fond du Lac, Wis., and located in what was called at that time the old Block House, at the forks of the river; in the fall of the same year he came to Oakfield, settling on land that he had previously bought—160 acres of Government land; he opened a general store, and continued in trade until 1854, when he sold out and gave his attention to farming, and continued on the farm until 1869; he then moved into the village where he has resided ever since. He married, in Dutchess Co., N. Y., in 1835, Hannah, daughter of Hannah Hall and Luther Lombard, a farmer, of Ludlow, Mass. They have had eight children—William H. (deceased), Henry A. (dead), Charles E., Henry A., Laura A. (dead), Louisa A. (dead), Alice A. (dead), Emma (dead). Mr. Ripley held the office of Postmaster under Fillmore for four years; has been Justice of the Peace, also, Chairman of the Board. Family are members of the Congregational Church, and he is now serving as one of its deacons. He is the present owner of 200 acres of land in Oakfield, part being village property in Secs. 14, 21 and 27. His son, Charles E., is an extensive farmer in Oakfield, and his other son, Henry A., is doing a fine business—running a large lumber yard in the village.

W. S. RUSSELL, dealer in butter, eggs and poultry, Oakfield; born in Broome Co., near Binghamton, N. Y., in 1840; he is the son of Helen and Lucius P. Russell, a farmer and lumberman of that place. The subject of this sketch received an academic education in New York State; in 1855, removed with his people to the city of Fond du Lac, and clerked for his father in the grocery business, on the corner of Third and Main streets; he remained there until 1857, when they came to Oakfield and settled on a farm formerly owned by Charles Willard; worked on the farm until the war broke out, and, in September, 1861, he enlisted under Capt. Ward, and served through the entire war, going in as a musician, and coming out as Fife Major; while in the army, he was twice taken to the hospital with fevers, and was laid up six months, and has never fully recovered, physically; in 1866, he commenced traveling on the road for wholesale grocery firms, and continued in that business until 1876, when he bought out Henry Cornell and entered into partnership with Allen Filby, under the firm name of W. S. Russell & Co.; in September, 1879, he bought out Mr. Filby, continuing the business alone. Mr. Russell is one of the largest handlers of choice butter and produce in Wisconsin; he ships of poultry alone from eight to ten tons per season, and of butter, from seventy-five to eighty-five tons; his trade is steadily increasing every year, and he now receives a great many orders more than he can possibly fill; he ships to all portions of the United States, and his average sales per year are $40,000. He is the present owner of city property in Fond du Lac, also of village property in Oakfield. Aug. 26, 1867, he married Phebe, daughter of Ladoiska and Nathaniel Gage, a farmer and old settler of the town of Lomira, Dodge Co.; have had four children born to them—Edna E. (deceased), Willis L., Julius S. (deceased) and May E. He is a member of the Masonic Order, Oakfield Lodge, and Royal Arch Mason of the Darling Chapter of Fond du Lac; are members of the Episcopal Church of Oakfield; politically, he is a Republican.

✠ JACOB M. SIMMONS, Postmaster, Oak Center; born in Berlin, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., in 1839, is the son of Silasia and Peter Simmons, a farmer; in 1846, came West with his people and located in Oakfield, his father pre-empting 160 acres of Government land. The subject of this sketch received a common-school education in the schools of Fond du Lac Co.; at the age of 19 he went to work on a farm with his father, working for him until 1866; he then bought a farm in Le Roy, Dodge Co., and lived on it one summer; after selling that, he moved to Kekoskee, and bought an interest in a grist and flouring mill; Mr. Simmons was engaged in milling for ten years; in 1876, he sold out to H. T. Hubbard, and bought a place of half an acre at Oak Center Station, and buying out the business of J. W. Messer, is now keeping a general stock of merchandise and dealing in farm produce; he is also connected with his brother in running an elevator at the station. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Oakfield Lodge; his political views are Democratic. He married in Oakfield, in 1865, Fidelity S., daughter of Esther D. and A. A. Swan, a farmer.

✠ PETER K. SIMMONS, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Oak Center; born in Rensselaer Co., N. Y., in 1805, son of Peter and Sophronia Simmons Kilmer; at the age of 4 years he was adopted by his uncle, Peter Simmons, he taking his uncle's name, Simmons; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; he was brought up on a farm; at the age of 22 he went to work for himself, working farms on shares, etc.; in 1846, he came West to Oakfield, taking up 160 acres of Government land in Sec. 29; he has lived on the same farm ever since. He married in 1828, at New Lebanon, Selucia, daughter of Oliver E. Manning and Marcia Blanchard Manning, a sailor, farmer and shoemaker; they have had seven children—Emily S., Elizabeth, Nancy J. (dead), Luraney C., Catherine H., Jacob M. and Henry P. Mr. Simmons has held the office of Assistant Supervisor and member of the School Board a number of terms. He is the present owner of 246 acres of land in Secs. 28, 29 and 32 in Oakfield. He is a Democrat.

✠ WILLIAM A. SMITH, farmer, Secs. 12 and 20; P. O. Oakfield; born in Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y., in the year 1817; is the son of Marion and Grant Smith, a farmer of that county; William was educated in the common schools of his native place, and at the age of 16 learned the trade of wheelwright; in the fall of 1845, he came West and located in Galena, Ill., working there at his trade for a few months; he then came to Fond du Lac Co., and engaged in farming on the place where he now resides, buying his land of William R. Tallmudge, paying $2.50 per acre for 160 acres; he has made this his home ever since; at the present time he is the owner of 189 acres, being in Sec. 18 in Byron, and Secs. 12 and 20 in Oakfield. Mr. Smith was married in Orange Co., N. Y., on Nov. 26, 1846, to Martha, daughter of Elizabeth and Hezekiah Watkins, a farmer of that county; they have had six children born to them—John M., Harriet E. (deceased), Soloma A., James A., Marian and W. Watkins. He has held the office of Supervisor; Mr. S. and family are members of the Congregational Church of Fond du Lac; he is politically a Republican.

✠ ARTHUR H. STEEN, farmer, Sec. 12; P. O. Oakfield; born in the extreme North of Ireland in 1816, son of Frances and John L. Steen, a gardener on the Man-field estate; Arthur received his education in the private schools of that time and place; at the age of 17 he entered the business of gardening; in 1837, he came to the United States, and located on Long Island, N. Y., where he engaged in the nursery and gardening business; in 1841, he went to Western New York, to Livingstone Co., remaining there until 1846; he then came to Wisconsin and located on the farm where he now resides; Mr. Steen is the present owner of 144 acres of very fine farming land in Sec. 7 in Byron, and Sec. 12 in Oakfield; probable value, $60 per acre. He married, in 1841, Frances, daughter of Ann and Joseph Filby, a clothier and tailor, of Queen's Co., N. Y.; she died in Oakfield; they had five children—Frances A., Mary S., Joseph E., John A. (deceased), and Arthur H., a physician in Minnesota. The family are members of the Episcopal Church; he is politically a Republican.

✠ JAMES C. WELLS, Oakfield; born in Goffstown, N. H., in 1809; is son of Hannah and Robert Wells, a carpenter and joiner by trade, and, for a great many years, keeper of a public house and also proprietor of a large orchard and cider-mill, manufacturing over one hundred barrels of cider per year; in 1811, James moved with his parents to Corinth, Orange Co., Vt.; in 1814, he moved to Lewis,

H. C. Sherwin
SPRINGVALE.

Essex Co., N. Y.; he received his education in the common schools of that place, and was brought up a farmer: at the age of 17 he went to work for the celebrated Joe Call, in the saw-mill business, working for him as boss sawyer most of the time until the age of 20; the next year he bought a farm in the town of Lawrence, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., of seventy-two acres, and went to farming, and continued there until 1834, having one of the best-stocked farms of that section; he then sold out and went back to Lewis, Essex Co., and lived with his wife's people for three years; he then bought a farm of 200 acres—built a house and stocked up the farm; in 1854, he sold out and came to Wisconsin, locating on a farm of 190 acres in the town of Oakfield, including also a large stone quarry; he built a fine stone house and barn; also built and ran three lime-kilns, doing a very extensive business in lime, also building and flagging stone, still carried on the farm and lived there until 1877, when he bought village property and built a residence, where he has resided ever since; he sold his farm and quarries for $8,000 to Charles Town. Mr. Wells was married in Essex Co., N. Y., in 1831, to Caroline A., daughter of Lydia and Joel H. Johnson, a farmer of that county; have had ten children—Mary E., Milo J., Oscar J., Augusta J. (deceased), Martha J., Lucinda C., Helen R. (deceased), Leroy R., Fred W. and Alembert G. They are members of the Christian Advent Church. He has held the offices of member of the School Board and Treasurer. In politics, a Republican.

LEE WHITE, Oakfield; born in East Montpelier, Vt., in 1849; is the son of John and Mary J. White, the former a clergyman and farmer of that place; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; at the age of 18, he came to Wisconsin, stopping for one year; he then returned to Vermont, and went to work on the farm; after working for two years, he went to Springfield, Mass., and went to work for the Wasson Car Manufacturing Co.; after working for them for a short time, he returned to the farm, and for several years was engaged in doing general work, farming, etc.; in 1877, he again came West to Wisconsin, and located in Oakfield; he has been engaged in the meat-market business, and is at present working for the Chicago & North-Western Railway Co. He married, in 1871, in the town of Waterbury, Vt., Eva J., daughter of Porter W. and Mary J. Thomas, the former a merchant; they have had one child—Ivan W., deceased; the family attend the Congregational Church. Mr. White is a Republican.

OSCAR W. WILLARD, carriage and wagon maker, Oakfield; born in Canaan, Columbia Co., N. Y., in 1829; is the son of Harriet and Charles Willard, a blacksmith and farmer; Oscar, in 1833, moved with his people to Fairport, thence to Brockport, and thence to Rochester; in 1844, he came to Milwaukee, and, in the spring of 1845, came to Oakfield, and has made this his home ever since; he was educated in the common schools of New York State, and at an early age learned the trade of blacksmith, also of carriage and wagon maker, and has followed these trades during his residence here. He was married, in Oakfield, to Theodosia, daughter of Hannah and John Moore, a farmer and miller; they have had four children born to them—Florence, Frank, Eugene and Harry, deceased. In 1862, Mr. Willard joined Co. F., 21st W. V. I., under Capt. Conklin; was injured, and laid up in hospital four months, and was then discharged. He has held the office of Constable for a number of terms; is the owner of several pieces of village property, and a large stone blacksmith and carriage shop; his family attend the Episcopal Church, and he is a member of the I. O. O. F., Oakfield Lodge. Politically, he is a Republican.

EDGAR WILCOX, farmer, Secs. 1 and 12; P. O. Oakfield; born in Genesee Co., N. Y., in 1830; is the son of Sarah and Jeremiah Wilcox, a farmer of that county; in 1845, came to Wisconsin with his parents, and settled on a farm in Walworth Co.; in 1849, went back to New York State, and lived there until 1857, when he came West again, directly to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he has made his home ever since. He was married, in 1878, to Ellen A., daughter of Lydia M. and Rev. Samuel Darling, a Congregationalist clergyman of Oakfield; Mr. Wilcox is the owner of 200 acres of fine farming land in Secs. 1 and 12, town of Oakfield; probable value $50 per acre. He has held the offices of Town Clerk and Town School Superintendent, and, in 1864, was a member of the State Legislature from the Fifth District; is a member of the Masonic Order, Oakfield Lodge, and also of the Congregational Church; politically, he is a Republican.

JOHN WOOKEY, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Oakfield; born in Somersetshire, England, in 1832; son of Elizabeth and John Wookey, a farmer; John received a common-school education in the schools of his native place, and followed farming with his father until the age of 17, when he came to the United States and located in Kenosha, Wis., with his parents; in 1853, he went to Australia, and for six years was occupied in mining; in 1859, he returned to America, and, in 1860, he located on the place where he now resides, and has been occupied in farming ever since. He married, in Fond du Lac, November, 1859, Eliza, daughter of Benjamin and Mary Ann Stallard, the former a farmer of Rochester, N.

Y.; they have four children—Sydney, Edith, Lizzie and Effie; the family attend the Baptist Church; he is a member of the I. O. O. F., Oakfield Lodge, and is the present owner of 115 acres of land in Sec. 2, town of Oakfield; probable value, $50 per acre. He is a Republican.

EMPIRE TOWNSHIP.

WILLIAM S. ADAMS, farmer, Sec. 32; is a son of Abram and Louisa Adams, natives of Connecticut, but who, after their marriage, removed to Rutland Co., Vt., where William S. was born in 1818; he spent his life in his native county at farming, till 1847, whence he removed to the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he lived for about seventeen years; here he was at first surrounded on all sides by Indians, whose camps were not far from his pioneer house, and who often came to trade their venison for corn and other desired articles which he chanced to have; in July, 1865, he disposed of that farm, and bought his present one of 160 acres in the above-given section of the town of Empire. In 1849, he married Miss Martha E., daughter of Worcester E. and Sarah E. Peck, of Castletown, Rutland Co., Vt.; they have five children—Almira S., born 1850; Wilson M., born in 1852; Dayton, born in 1855; Wilber C., born in 1858; Ellsworth L., born in 1862. Mrs. Adams is a member of the Methodist Church of Empire; Mr. Adams has been Collector and Supervisor of the town of Empire.

JOHN BERRY, farmer, Secs. 28, 33 and 35; is of New England descent, though a native of Dutchess Co., N. Y., where he was born Dec. 27, 1794; he is the son of Samuel Berry and Neoma Greene, natives of Cape Cod, but immigrants to Dutchess Co., N. Y., nearly 100 years ago; his father was a tailor by trade, but lived on a small farm which he owned in that county till John was about 12 years of age, when they removed to Cayuga Co., N. Y.; at this time, John had a wealthy bachelor uncle living in Putnam Co., N. Y., who soon after married, but having no children, took him (John), his namesake—to live with him on the farm, and, to whom, at his death, he left most of his estate; after the death of his uncle, he lived on the farm for several years, whence, in 1830, he removed his family to Peakskill, N. Y., and for the next five years was engaged in steamingboating from that point to New York City; disposing of his interest in this business, he next engaged in stock-dealing, and was what might be termed a stock-drover, buying up large droves for the New York market; in 1848 he came to Wisconsin and purchased 220 acres of land in above-named sections, in the town of Empire, and has since devoted his time to farming. April 12, 1823, he was married to Miss Minerva, daughter of Nathaniel and Charlotte Hyatt, of Putnam Co., N. Y., by whom he has had seven children, five sons and two daughters—Green (deceased, killed in a railroad disaster in Iowa), Charlotte (now Mrs. M. Briggs, of the town of Eden), Laura J. (deceased), Eugene (deceased), John (now with Fairbanks, of Chicago), Oscar and Theron. Mr. and Mrs. Berry are members of the Methodist Church of Empire; Mr. B. has been a member of the County Board for a number of years. Such is a brief sketch of the life of one who has lived more than his fourscore years, and, though quite enfeebled by age, is to-day a worthy example of true Christian virtues.

GEORGE BINNING, farmer, Sec. 27; is a native of Somersetshire, England; born in 1827; son of Jeffrey and Johannah Binning, nee Wall; at the age of 19 he set sail from Bristol to seek a home in America's land; reaching New York in June, 1847, he went to Queens Co., where he remained till 1850, whence he removed to Wisconsin and bought a farm of eighty acres in the town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co., which he made his home for eighteen months; then to the town of Empire, where, in fall of 1854, he bought a farm of 70 acres in Sec. 27, to which he has continually added until he now has 360 acres in Secs. 21, 26 and 27. In 1853 he married Miss Ellen, daughter of William and Mary Ottery, of Empire; they have had eight children—William (of Fond du Lac), Henry, John (deceased), infant (deceased), Jeffrey, Charles, Mary J., and Ella. Mr. Binning has been a member of the Town Board for two terms, and is politically a Republican; the family are connected with the Presbyterian Church.

MRS. ORPHA BRIGGS, Secs. 14 and 15; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a daughter of Peleg and Hannah Briggs, of Dutchess Co., N. Y., but emigrated to Luzerne Co., Penn., in March, 1818, where Orpha was born Oct. 5, 1821; she was educated in the district schools of her native county, after which she followed teaching for two years. In the spring of 1854, she, with her husband, Mr. Taylor, removed to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm belonging to Mr. Isaac Tallmadge, in the town of Empire; two years after, they removed to Mr. John Meiklejohn's farm, and, in 1856, they bought 100 acres of land in Secs. 14 and 15, to which they removed in the following year; she has since bought twenty acres in the same section, which makes her a farm of seventy acres; they had two sons and one daughter—Peleg B. Taylor, deceased; Hannah E., now Mrs. Andrew Willard, of Plymouth Co., Iowa; Reuben H. Taylor.

THOMAS BROWSELL, farmer, Secs. 5 and 8; son of Benjamin and Elizabeth Brownsell, born in Buckinghamshire, England, in 1825; in 1845, he, with his parents, came to America, and settled in Racine, now Kenosha Co., Wis., whence, in 1850, to Walworth Co. for four years; thence, in 1854, to Fond du Lac Co., where he bought a farm of 135 acres, 80 of which is in Sec. 8, and 55 acres in Sec. 5, town of Empire; he also has 48 acres in Sec. 28, town of Forest. In 1850, he married Miss Mary A., daughter of Abram and Elizabeth Rhodus, natives of Yorkshire, England, but immigrants to Kenosha Co., Wis., in 1844; they have had four children, three daughters and one son—Sarah J., deceased; Fannie, widow of the late Henry Ottery, deceased, died Jan. 29, 1877; Mary E., Fredrick C.

JAMES BURNELL, farmer, Secs. 34 and 35; is a son of Patrick Burnell and Hannah Sullivan; born in County Clare, Ireland, in 1829; he spent his time there at farming till the spring of 1853, whence set sail for America, and, after a two-months sail, landed in New York Harbor May 27; he then removed to Litchfield Co., Conn., where, for three years, he was employed at farm labor and mining, whence, in 1856, he came to Wisconsin, and for two years following he was employed by the farmers; he saved his earnings, till, by careful management, he was, in 1858, able to buy a farm of eighty acres in Secs. 34 and 35, in the town of Empire, which is now worth about $60 per acre, and now enjoys the comforts of a pleasant home, as the fruits of his industry and economy. In September, 1857, he married Miss Mary, daughter of Thomas and Julia Roughan, of Fond du Lac, she being a native of County Clare, Ireland; they have four children—Honora, Mary Ann, Patrick H. and James. Mr. B. and family are members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

SILAS R. CHARLES, farmer, Sec. 34; a native of this town; born in 1851, and is the son of John and Mirinda Charles, now of the town of Taycheedah; Silas grew up on the farm, but learned the blacksmith's trade with his father, which he followed for seven years, much of the time in the employ of the Chicago & North-Western R. R. Co., after which he took up the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he continued in the interest of the company for about six years; in 1873, he gave up his trade, and removed to a farm of eighty acres, in Sec. 34, town of Empire, which his father had given him. In June, 1874, he married Miss Pheba, daughter of Edmund and Eliza A. Robinson, of Holland, Sheboygan Co. Mr. Charles is a member of the Methodist Church, and his wife of the United Brethren.

GUSTAVE DE NEVEU, farmer; the subject of the following sketch is believed to be the oldest resident of Fond du Lac County. He is the son of Francis Joseph De Neveu and Elizabeth T. Monnoir, of Savigny, France, born March 30, 1811; when a young man, 19 years of age, his father joined the expedition sent out by King Louis XVI. under Count d'Estang to aid the Americans in their struggle for independence, as an ensign on board the ship Scipio, a seventy-four-gun line-of-battle ship commanded by Capt. de Lamotte Piquet. The fleet was met by an English expedition commanded by Admiral Kempenfeld, and the battle that followed was indecisive, though the French were worsted by the encounter, and lost some sixteen transports loaded with troops and munitions of war for the Americans, out of about 200 such vessels. The opposing parties separated in the darkness, and the French put back to Brest, where his father was left in hospital with a leg broken by a British bullet. Before he had recovered, the French, having repaired damages, sailed again, and this time reached America. Thus having inherited a sympathetic feeling for America, Gustave, in December, 1834, four years after having finished his education in military school of La Fleche and the College of Vendome, set sail for a visit to America, and also to study the English language, which he pursued at Milford, Penn., for a short time, and then devoted his time to teaching French in Schuylersville, N. Y., for about five months; Sept. 1, 1835, he started on his return home, which he reached about nineteen days after, spending the shooting season at home; he went to Paris in the fall and there spent about five months in the study of art, whence in June, 1836, he set sail again for America in the ship "Syoie de Grasse," William Cullen Bryant being among its passengers, reaching New York July 17, thence to Batavia, that State, and then followed the teacher's profession for some time, whence in 1838 he immigrated to Wisconsin, stopping a while at Green Bay, then visiting Fond du Lac, where he purchased about five hundred acres of land in the town of Empire; he then returned to Batavia, N. Y. and there spent the winter in teaching, after which, in the spring of 1839, he came again to Fond du Lac and made his permanent settlement on his farm, where he has spent most of his time at agricultural pursuits, though he has devoted part of his time with his books. He was nominated for Senator on the Greenback ticket in 1877; was elected President of the Fond du Lac County Agricultural Society in 1879. Jan. 4, 1840, he married Miss Harriet P., daughter of John and Rosalie Dousman, of the Island Mackinaw; they have had eleven children, as follows: Matilda M., now Mrs. H.

W. Tusten, of Russell, Kan.; Julia M., Mrs. John Beeson, of Vancouver, Washington Territory; Edward, of Russell, Kan.; Emily; Gustave; Francis J.; Arthur E., deceased; Virginia R.; Hattie; George W. and Lucy R.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, farmer, Secs. 23 and 26; is a son of Richard and Martha Edwards, nee Willard, of Somersetshire, England; was born in June, 1816. His father owned a small farm in that country, but was more commonly known as a coachman; William's literary advantages were quite limited, though he lacked none of that resolution of will which, under adverse circumstances, is essential to success; on the 25th of March, 1850, he set sail for America, and landed in New York in the following May, stopping for about eighteen months in Cayuga Co., N. Y.; he then went to Sippervale, near Auburn, N. Y., for about the same length of time, whence, in 1854, he removed to Cook Co., Ill., and settled on a little place eighteen miles south of Chicago; here he spent another eighteen months at honest toil, and in 1856, he removed to the town of Empire, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he purchased a small farm of 40 acres in Sec. 26, which, by his industry and careful management, he has gradually improved and increased to one of 200 acres, besides buying another of 73 acres in Sec. 23, same town, for his son Albert. In 1853, he was married to Miss Mary, daughter of William and Sarah Phillips, nee Miller, of Somersetshire, England; they have three children, as follows: Albert, who married Miss Charlotte, daughter of James and Jane Fisher, of the town of Forest, in April, 1878; Richard and Sarah A. During the winter of 1878-79, Mr. Edwards made his first visit to his home since his departure in 1850, and spent some pleasant months with his sisters and relatives, who seemed to enjoy his visit fully as well he. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards are prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Empire, and are among its most devoted worshippers. It can truly be said that Mr. Edwards is one of the most straightforward and upright citizens of the town; honesty and integrity pervade all his dealing; all who know him, acknowledge his example for good in the community; devoted to his home and family, he finds his greatest pleasure around the fireside and family circle. Such is a brief life-sketch of one who has honestly toiled through his threescore years, and never lost sight of the true Christian manhood and life.

ALFRED T. GERMOND, farmer, Sec. 32; is a descendant of the first settlers of Dutchess Co., N. Y., his great-grandfather being one of the nine original partners of the county; he is the son of William Germond and Juliana Benton, born in Dutchess Co., Nov. 30, 1814; till 12 years of age, he spent his time with his father on the farm, and attending district school; he then began clerking in a dry-goods store in Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y., where he continued for about two years, going thence to New York City, he continued clerking for a number of years, and then he became interested in a dry-goods establishment as proprietor for a few years; about the year 1841, he removed to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where for the next five years he was engaged in the freighting and forwarding business; in the summer of 1846, he came to Fond du Lac and bought 240 acres of Government land in Sec. 32, town of Empire, on which he made a few improvements, and late in the fall returned to Poughkeepsie, where in 1848, he married Miss Mary A., daughter of William and Sarah E. Halsted, nee Barker, of White Plains, Westchester Co., immediately after which they started for their future home in Wisconsin, where he has since devoted his time principally to agricultural pursuits and stock-raising; though he has always taken an active part in all affairs of public interest in his town or county; it was he who suggested the name Empire for the town in which he now lives—a complete history of which is given in the body of this work. He was a member of the County Board for about fifteen years, and was Justice of the Peace for more than that length of time; was Superintendent of the County Poor from the Eastern District; has held several other minor offices; he is at present President of the Old Settlers' Society of Fond du Lac Co.; Mr. Germond owned the first thrashing machine brought to the town of Empire, it being the old open cylinder tread-power type. Mr. and Mrs. Germond have had four children, three sons and one daughter, as follows: William F., Albert H., (deceased), Sarah E. and George H. His wife is a member of the M. E. Church of Empire. Such is a brief sketch of the life-history of one who has been and is one of Empire's most active and respected citizens, and is a worthy example of that success which may be attained by constant and persevering effort.

DAVID GIDDINGS, farmer, Secs. 29 and 30; is a son of Joshua Giddings and Abigail Cogswell, of Ipswich, Essex Co., Mass; born in 1808; his father was a tanner by trade, but devoted much of his life to farming, with whom David pursued the same vocation till about 19 years of age, when he became proprietor of a variety store in Ipswich, which continued for seven years; in 1835, he came to Chicago, thence, with three comrades in a skiff to Milwaukee, where they found Mr. Juneau, the trader, as the only settler; after spending about a fortnight here, he went to Green Bay and spent much of his time in surveying Government lands in that and other counties; in June, 1836, he, in company with a number of surveyors—Colwert Pier, Mrs. Robins, her nephew and others, came down in a Durham boat from Green Bay to Fond du Lac; Mr. Pier and wife settled at Fond du Lac, and the surveyors passed on to the southern part of this and the northern part of Dodge Co., where they spent from June till September at their work, and saw only one white man aside from their company during that time; in 1837, he went to Sheboygan and purchased a half-interest in a lumber-mill at Sheboygan Falls, where he was engaged in the lumber trade till 1865; disposing of his lumber business at that time, he purchased a farm of 600 acres in Secs. 29 and 30, town of Empire, and removed thither; he now has 407 acres, having sold the rest to some of his neighbors. In June, 1842, he married Miss Dorothy, daughter of Deacon William and Dorothy Trowbridge, nee Chapin, of Worcester, Mass.; they have had three children, as follows: Howard, of Sheboygan Falls; Clara (deceased), George, of the firm of DeGroat & Giddings, of Fond du Lac. Mr. Giddings was one of the first settlers of Sheboygan Co., and took an active part in all affairs pertaining to the general welfare of that county while a resident there, and he has been none the less active in all such pertaining to this county, since his identification with its citizens.

D. P. GILTNER (deceased), was a son of Jacob and Mary Giltner, and a native of Ithaca, Tompkins Co., N. Y., born Jan. 14, 1814; being the son of a farmer, he spent most of his boyhood at that calling; at the age of 16, he removed to Tioga Co., N. Y., where he was engaged more or less in the lumber trade till 1846. In 1840, he married Miss Hester M., daughter of Hallack and Lydia Smith, of Chemung Co., that State. In 1846, they emigrated to the town of Empire, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., coming in via the lakes and Sheboygan, where they waited three days for a team to convey them to their destination, having only $5 in his pocket when he reached Wisconsin, and only $1 when he reached his brother's, and that he lost in a few days after, so it may be said that he reached his future home penniless; they lived with his brother for about one year, or until they got their house finished, in which they afterward kept tavern; it was here that the first railroad meeting was held in Fond du Lac Co., an account of which is given in the article on railroads, though it will not be out of place to state here that Mrs. Giltner cooked a barrel of eggs for dinner that day, and fed eighty guests; they kept hotel for seven years, after which he turned his attention to farming till his death, April 12, 1871. They have a son and daughter—George L. and Mary E., both of whom were born in New York. Their house was often used for church service in those days, and when they had no service there, they often walked three or four miles to church; Mrs. Giltner is a member of the Baptist Church; her daughter of the Episcopal Church.

NELSON E. HILLEBERT, farmer; is the second son of Eleazor and Laura Hilbert, nee Comstock, of Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., born Dec. 25, 1838; in 1848, he, with parents, removed to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the town of Waupun. Jan. 1, 1863, he married Miss Addie, daughter of William and Cynthia Johnson, nee Wheeler, of that town, though native of Herkimer Co., N. Y., who emigrated from there in 1849; they have had six children, four daughters and two sons—Mary E., Jennie, George E., Charles H. (deceased), Viola E. and an infant daughter not yet named. In 1865, he removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he was engaged in the saw-milling business most of the time till the spring of 1879, when he removed to Mr. Griffith's farm in the town of Empire. Mr. H. has been a member of the I. O. O. F. since 1868.

FRANCIS J. ISAAC, farmer, Sec. 17; son of Martin and Mary Isaac, of the Province of Rhine, Germany, born March 3, 1823. Francis was educated according to the school system of his native country, and at the age of 17 was apprenticed to the cabinet-maker's trade; in 1847, he came to America, landing in New York; thence direct to Milwaukee, where he continued his trade for one and a half years; he then bought a farm seven miles southwest of the city of Milwaukee, where he followed farming for three years; in 1851, he disposed of his farm and removed to the town of Marshfield, Fond du Lac Co., where he owned a farm of eighty acres; living there for twelve years, he purchased a farm of ninety acres in Sec. 17, forty of which he has given to his son. In 1847, he married Miss Jennie C., daughter of Peter and Katie Schreiner, of the Rhine Province; they have five children—Annie, Hobert, Joseph, Ingelbert and Katie. Members of the St. Mary's Catholic Church. Mr. I. is Justice of the Peace of the town of Empire; he held the same office in the town of Marshfield for nine years.

WILLET JOHNSON, farmer; Secs. 29 and 30; is a native of America, Dutchess Co., N. Y.; born about 1831; his parents both dying when he was quite young, he was placed under the care of a guardian, whose treatment of him was such that at the age of 11 he was forced to seek a new home; this he did by finding employment with some of the neighboring farmers of that county till about 17 years old; in July, 1849, with barely money enough (and that his own earnings) to pay his expenses, he started for Wisconsin; reaching Fond du Lac Co., he began working at farm labor for Mr. Briggs, with whom he continued for one year; for the next two years he was in the employ of Mr. A. T. Germond, at $10 per month; after this followed clearing up pieces of land for farmers in the neighborhood; by these contracts he gained money enough to purchase a yoke of oxen and a plow; in 1853 he purchased an eighty-acre tract of raw land, which he began to improve; he went up in the pineries with his ox team and worked for $1 per day for Mr. Meiklejohn, till he paid for enough lumber to build his first house; in 1863 he disposed of that farm and bought his present one of eighty acres of Mr. David Giddings. In 1852 he married Miss Sarah, daughter of Edward Davis, of Fond du Lac, she being a native of Canada West; they have three children, as follows: Louisa, now Mrs. Arthur Maxin, of Fond du Lac; Elizabeth and Albert E. Such is a short life-history of one who began the world almost friendless, but, by his perseverance and honest industry, stands a worthy example for all such unfortunate young men.

RICHARD KAYE, farmer; Secs. 23, 24 and 25; was born in Yorkshire, England, March 8, 1829; is the son of Abraham and Mary Kaye; his mother, a woman of rare Christian virtues, was not long spared him, having died in England when he was a mere boy, but his father lived to a good old age; in 1841, he, with his father, immigrated to Racine Co., Wis., and settled at Burlington, whence in the spring of 1848, they removed to the town of Empire, where Richard now owns a farm of 240 acres in the above-named sections; here his father died Jan. 29, 1875. Feb. 2, 1852, he was married to Miss Olive, daughter of Obadiah and Nancy Putney, nee Strader, a native of Canada, but her husband of New York State; Mrs. Kaye was born in Lisbon, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., and immigrated to Wisconsin in 1850, and they have four children—Mary L., now Mrs. Joseph F. Steen, of Fond du Lac; Edwin S., Frank W., Anna M.

ALANSON P. LYONS, farmer, Sec 9; is a son of the pioneers of this town, David and Sarah Lyons; A. P. was born in Tioga Co., N. Y., in 1834; came with his parents to the town of Empire and lived with them till about 26 years of age, when he bought a farm of 120 acres in Sec. 9. In 1862 he enlisted in Co. I, of the 5th W. V. I., but was discharged at Madison on account of sickness, after three month's service. Dec. 27, 1863, he married Miss Emerette T., daughter of William T. and Mary A. Banning, of the town of Empire, but a native of Connecticut; they have three children—Herbert E., Edward S. and Ula G.

DAVID LYONS, farmer, Sec. 29; was born in Tioga Co., N. Y., Dec. 21, 1809; he is the son of Justice and Annie Lyons, natives of Orange Co., N. Y., who immigrated to Tioga Co. soon after their marriage; David spent much of his time on his father's farm till 20 years of age, when, for his faithfulness, and as an expression of paternal affection his father give him a farm of fifty acres in that county, on which he spent a short time and then removed to a farm belonging to his wife; in 1843, he with his family emigrated to McHenry Co., Ill., remaining there over winter; in the summer of 1844 he came to Fond du Lac Co., and was the first man to settle on what is known as the Ledge in the town of Empire; not having means enough to pay the express on a chest of household goods and bureau from McHenry Co. to Milwaukee, they were compelled to do without many of the essentials to even a pioneer home, till he, with his whole family, could, by working for $1 per day, earn enough money to defray the expense on the goods; he rented the Conklin mill during the years of 1845-46, from which the neighbors for miles around were able to get flour for their daily bread, it being the first mill in that section of the country, though during the winter of 1846-47 the water failed and the people were compelled to resort to the faithful coffee-mill as the only means by which they could get their wheat ground. In 1830, he was married to Miss Harriet, daughter of William and Lydia Ellis, of Tioga Co., N. Y., who died in February, 1831, leaving one son—Ranson E., now of Monroe Co., Wis.; some months after (though during the same year), his first wife died, he married Miss Sarah, daughter of John and Deborah Hannah, of Tioga Co., N. Y.; they have four children—A. P. and George of Empire; Deborah A., Mrs. S. M. White, of Salem Co., Wis., and William T., of Crete, Neb.

THOMAS MAYHEW (deceased). He was a son of John and Sarah Mayhew (nee Church), of Amenia, Dutchess Co. N. Y.; born in 1815; he spent his early life on his father's farm in that county; was educated in the common schools; when about 15 years of age, he went to live with a widow lady in that county, with whom he made his home till 1839, when, Sept. 20 of that year, he married Miss Betsey A., daughter of David and Abby Collar (nee Kedney), of Dover, Dutchess Co., soon after which he began farming for himself, and continued till 1846, when he returned to the widow lady's farm and managed that for four years, whence, in 1850, they removed to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and purchased a farm of 120 acres in Secs. 33, 34 and 28, where he made his home till his death, May 24, 1872, leaving a widow, by whom he had four children—George N. (deceased in 1852), Eliza R. (now Mrs. Arthur Olmsted, of the town of Fond du Lac), Henrietta (now Mrs. William Benning, of the town of Fond du Lac), Ella (now Mrs. Sanford Pease, of the town of Fond du Lac). Mrs. Mayhew is a member of the M. E. Church.

JOHN MEIKLEJOHN, farmer, Secs. 22, 23, 14 and 15; a native of Putnam, Washington Co., N. Y., though of Scotch descent, his father, Andrew Meiklejohn, being a native of that country, but his mother, Elizabeth Easton, being a native of Putnam, Washington Co., N. Y.; John was born in 1823, and spent most of his boyhood attending district school, and at work on his father's farm; in September, 1846, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., to try the wilds of the then "Far West," learn what pioneer life was, and to secure for himself and family a Western home; he bought a farm of eighty acres, and was one among the first settlers of the town of Empire; time and labor have changed his rude pioneer house into a fine, commodious brick residence, his small farm of 80 acres to one of 265 acres, with all the conveniences of a first-class farm, and the writer learned from the neighbors that Mr. Meiklejohn is regarded by them as one of the exemplary men and farmers of the county. He has represented his town for four years in the County Board, and, in all other affairs of public enterprise and interest, he is one of the first of his town—liberal in his views and with his money, though practicing economy where needed, using his judgment when a thing is presented, as to its merits or demerits. In 1846, he married Miss Julia A., daughter of James and Betsey Nims, of Fort Ann, Washington Co., N. Y.; their children are Warren, Ruth (deceased), James W. (of Columbia Co., Wis.), Charles, Mary J., Albert and Julia. Mrs. M. is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

GEORGE OTTERY, farmer, Secs. 20 and 21; is a son of William and Elizabeth Ottery (nee Brooks), born in Draycott, Somersetshire, England, May 1, 1822; though unfortunate in literary advantages, having received a very limited education, he lacked none of that resolution and determination of purpose which, when joined with honest industry, is most sure of success; at the age of 13, he began farm laboring, which he steadily continued there till the spring of 1846, when he set sail for America, with the intention of making his home upon some of its broad acres; landing in New York May 14, he went to Cayuga Co., where he remained one and a half years; not yet having reached his goal or found the object of his search, he came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1847, and, with his brother William, purchased a farm of 180 acres in Secs. 20 and 24, town of Forest, Fond du Lac Co.; making his home at Neenah, Wis., till 1849, he returned to Cayuga Co., N. Y., where, in October, 1850, he married Miss Ann, daughter of William and Hannah Kelley, and came again to his farm in the town of Forest, which he made his home till 1876, when he sold that and bought his present one of 153 acres in Secs. 20 and 21, town of Empire. They have had five sons—Henry (deceased), Edwin L., Albert G. (deceased), Albert G., Jr. (deceased), Herbert G. Mrs. Ottery is a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Ottery is no politician, but takes quite an interest in educational affairs; he has served ten years as a member of the School Board as Clerk.

FREDRICK M. PHELPS, farmer, Secs. 28 and 29; a native of the Green Mountain State; born at Alburgh Springs, Grand Isle Co., Vt., Feb. 6, 1837, and, from his history, the writer judges him to have some of that enterprising spirit which is characteristic of the people of Vermont; he is the son of Benajah S. Phelps and Asenith Fletcher, who were natives of that State, but immigrants to Wisconsin in 1855; having a desire to work at machinery, at the age of 16 he entered upon an apprenticeship at the machinist trade in the shops of the Lake Shore R. R. Co.; remaining with the Company till 1856, he went to Mississippi and engaged as an engineer on a passenger train over the Mississippi Central for three years; he was next employed as master mechanic of the Northern Division of the Mobile R. R. for three years; during the battle of Pittsburg Landing, he was sent by Gen. Grant to run engines on that road out of the reach of the enemy; in the attempt, one of his engines broke down, and he was taken prisoner and held at Columbus, Miss., as such for six months; being released, he reported to Gen. Grant, and was appointed master mechanic of the military road at Wilmington, N. C., and early in the spring of 1866, he was sent to take charge of the military railroad on the border of the Rio Grande River, Texas; he resigned this position in June of that year and entered the Mexican Army; here he was soon commissioned Major of Engineers on the staff of Caravajal; was in the campaign that captured Maximilian; returned to Texas in the early part of 1867, and was appointed inspector of the port at Brazos, Santiago. Holding this position for three months, the yellow fever broke out there, and he resigned and returned to Fond du Lac, and has since devoted his time to farming and stock-raising, making a specialty of fine horses; he has a farm of 160 acres in Secs. 28 and 29, probable value $60 per acre. In 1863, he married Miss Christina, daughter of Benjamin Long, of Jacksonville, Ill.; they have one daughter—Mary. His wife is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

JOHN H. SHOEMAKER, farmer, Sec. 8; was born in Tioga Co., N. Y., April 12, 1840; is the son of George N. and Eveline Shoemaker; in 1849, he, with parents, came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in the town of Taycheedah, where they lived till 1864, at which time they sold that and bought this one in Sec. 8; in 1877, his parents removed to the city of Fond du Lac and gave up the farm to John H. In 1878, married Miss Belle, daughter of Peter and Ann Ferguson, of the town of Empire, but a native of Scotland; they have one daughter—Jessie May, born July 11, 1879. Mrs. Shoemaker is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Shoemaker enlisted in Co. A, of the 18th W. V. L., March 1, 1862; was with the Army of the Tennessee in the battle of Pittsburg Landing and Mission Ridge; was discharged by special order from War Department Dec. 13, 1863.

J. CLARK WELLS, farmer.

HENRY WESTERVELT, farmer, Sec. 32; is a son of Cornelius C. and Rebecca Westervelt, natives of Holland, but early immigrants to Poughkeepsie, Dutchess Co., N. Y., where Henry was born March 7, 1820; he received a common-school education in the schools of the city, and at the age of 10, preferring the life of a farmer to that of a blacksmith—his father's trade—he sought employ of the neighboring farmers; this he continued there till about 17 years of age, when his father died in Wayne Co., N. Y., one day after his removal to that county; his stepmother—his mother having died when he was only 2 years old—sent for him to come and help take care of the family. In 1843, he married Miss Sarah A., daughter of Robert and Marietta Patrick, of Wayne Co., N. Y., and in the spring of 1845, with his wife and son Cornelius C., immigrated to Wisconsin and settled in the town of Empire, on a quarter-section of land which his brother, John W., who had preceded him, entered from the Government, and hoped to have a house built by the time Henry arrived with his family, but having only the logs laid up, and it being impossible to get lumber to cover it, they got a few basswood boards and placed one end of them on the upper log of one side of the house and rested the other on a shelf on the opposite side, thus forming a roof which answered well enough in dry weather, and when it rained the father would take the son in his arms and hold the umbrella over him, while the mother would wrap up in a bed-quilt and keep dry as best she could; this house, 16 by 24 feet, was, for a short time in the spring of 1846, the home of four families—those of Messrs. Vale, Cogswell, Jewell and Platt. Mr. Westervelt has since been a prominent resident of the town of Empire, and at different times has held various offices in the town and county, among them Justice of the Peace and a member of the County Board; he now owns 100 acres in Sec. 32, town of Empire, and twenty acres in Sec. 4, town of Eden; they had only two children—the son as above named, and one daughter, Mrs. Alfred Jennings, of Empire.

BENJAMIN WHITE, farmer; is a son of Ethan and Meyra White, nee Northrop, of Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y.; born in 1833; his father being an extensive farmer in that county; Benjamin was early impressed with the idea that industry and attentiveness to business were essentials to success; his mother, a woman of rare Christian virtues, did not fail to impress upon his mind those lessons of honesty and integrity which have characterized all his business transactions through life; in the spring of 1852, he started for Wisconsin, and landed in the town of Empire April 13, where he purchased a farm of 160 acres, on which he made his home till 1874, whence he removed to another farm of 200 acres—160 of which is in the town of Eden and forty in the town of Empire—he, however, retains his first farm of 160 acres; here he makes a specialty of blooded stock, especially cattle, of which he sold four in 1876, which brought him just $700, and in the following year he sold a milch cow which weighed 1,700 pounds. Mr. White is regarded as one of the most successful farmers of his neighborhood; his motto has always been, "do well what you do do;" he has never been an office-seeker, and has never taken a very active part in political affairs, though his creed is Republican. In 1849, he married Miss Harriet, daughter of J. and Clarissa Briggs, of Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y.; they had two daughters—Hannah A., now Mrs. F. C. Carpenter, of Fond du Lac; Hattie E., now Mrs. J. W. Cooper, of Plymouth, Sheboygan Co. Mrs. White is a member of the M. E. Church of Empire.

ROBERT WILLIS, farmer, Sec. 26; is of the sturdy old England descent; is the son of Peter and Sarah Willis, nee Coombs, of Somersetshire, England; born June 10, 1818; his father's means being quite limited, Robert was early put to do what he could to earn something so that the burden of the family might fall lighter on his father; when he was about 10 or 11 years old he was employed to scare the crows from the farmers' corn-fields and to watch the cattle as they grazed upon the meadows; at the age of 15 he was employed at farm labor, for which he received about $15 per year; these earnings he carefully saved and by constant toil he gradually increased. April 2, 1844, he married Miss Louisa, daughter of John and Mary Amesbury, nee Parsons, of Somersetshire, England, and in just six years after, April 11, 1850, set sail for America, and landed in New York May 12 following; he followed laboring on a farm in that State for little more than three years; during his stay in York State he sent for his wife and two daughters, whom he left in England because he had not means enough to bring them at the time he came over; in October, 1853, they immigrated to Iroquois Co., Ill., where he remained eighteen months, thence to the town of Empire, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1855, and purchased eighty acres of land—the west half of the southwest quarter of Sec. 26—where he has since devoted his time to agricultural pursuits; they have had six children, as follows—Mary E., now Mrs. Peter Stage, of Carroll Co., Ill.; Sarah L., now Mrs. James H. Dyon, of Montgomery Co., Iowa; Thomas, who married Miss Josephina Meiklejohn, of the town of Empire; Robert J. and two infants (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Willis are members of the M. E. Church. Politically, he is a Republican. He also has twenty acres of land off the west side of the northeast quarter of Sec. 34.

GEORGE E. WRIGHT, farmer, Sec. 22; son of Robert Wright and Jane Cummings; his father was a native of England, and his mother of Washington Co., N. Y. His father immigrated to America about the year 1808, and settled in the town of Putnam, Washington Co., where he afterward married, and where his son George was born Nov. 30, 1821. The educational facilities being quite limited and George being the son of a farmer, he was compelled to get his education by attending a district school only three months in the year, and then had a certain amount of work to do every morning before walking a distance of three or four miles, to the schoolhouse. At the age of 22, he began running a canal-boat on the Lake Champlain & Hudson Canal, which he continued for a few years, then took charge of his father's farm in Washington Co., N. Y., which he managed until 1848; in that year he immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of 120 acres in Sec. 22, town of Empire. June 3, 1857, he married Miss Agnes B. Wager, daughter of William and Mary Ryan, nee McGrath. Her mother, after the death of Mr. Ryan married Mr. Wager, and Agnes, being young, went by the name of Wager instead of Ryan. They have had six children—Jennie E., Mary E., Georgia A., Nannie B., Robert W., Bessie (deceased). Mr. W. has been a member of the Town Board for a number of years; politically, he is a Republican.

BYRON TOWNSHIP.

WELLINGTON ABBY, Sec. 20, P. O. Byron; born in Canada West in 1840; son of Mary and Abner Abby, a carpenter and joiner and farmer; he was educated in the public schools; in the year 1850, went to Sheboygan Co., Wis., and, in 1852, came to Fond du Lac Co.; from that time he lived part of the time in Canada and part in this county, until 1861, when he joined Co. A, 14th W. V. I., and went to war and served through the entire war; was mustered out in 1865. Married in Byron, in the spring of 1866, to Estella L., daughter of Louisa and Russell Watrous, a carpenter and joiner living in Oakfield. He owns 120 acres of land, valued at $50 per acre. They have three children—George W., Burt and Edith M. Mr. A. is politically a Greenbacker.

PHILIPP F. BODAMER; born in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg Sept. 12, 1805; son of Cathrine and Philip J. Bodamer, a hotel-keeper and farmer of that place. The subject of this sketch was educated in the schools of Germany and learned the butcher's trade; he served in the army of his country from 1826 to 1832, when he got his discharge and came to the United States, landing at Baltimore; worked at his trade there until 1835; he then went to Portland, Me., and, after working there until 1837, moved to Ohio; in 1838, moved to Terre Haute, Ind., and continued working at his trade there until 1846, when he came to Byron, Wis., where he has made his home ever since, occupied in farming. He was married in Baltimore, May 4, 1834, to Johannah P., daughter of Johannah and John Markle, a shoemaker, and they have had nine children born to them—Charles (deceased), Sophia, Johannah (deceased), Matilda, Louisa, Henrietta, Paulina, Minnie and Caroline. Mr. Bodamer is the owner of 100 acres of land in Secs. 10 and 16, valued at $60 per acre. He is a member of the Lutheran Church, and is politically a Democrat.

PETER BRILL, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Prussia, on the river Rhine, April 12, 1811; son of Anna and Nicholas Brill, a farmer. The subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of his native country, and was brought up a farmer. He came to the United States in 1835, and worked at general work in the States of Ohio, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and New York, and returned to Prussia in 1842; in 1845, he again came to the United States, and located in Byron, buying Government land at $1.25 per acre. Mr. Brill, while a young man, served three years in the Prussian Army. He married in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1845, Mary, daughter of Gertrude and Peter Kisch, a farmer; they have three children—Bridget, Mary Ann and Michael; all are married. His wife died in 1852; he married again in 1854, in Calumet Co., Ann Kinal, and had four children by this wife—John, Mary, Margaret and Anna. Mr. Brill is a member of the Roman Catholic Church, and is, politically, a Democrat. He owns twenty acres of land, valued at $65 per acre.

HENRY BUSH, farmer, Secs. 7 and 8; P. O. Fond du Lac; son of Charlotte and Dr. Jonathan Bush; born in Lowville, Lewis Co., N. Y., March 22, 1821, his father being a physician and surgeon and a graduate of Yale College. Mr. Bush was educated in the common schools of his native place.

and also worked as a printer on the first paper ever published in Lowville, N. Y.; afterward worked on a farm, which occupation he has followed ever since; in the spring of 1844, he landed in Milwaukee, and, after stopping there a few weeks, he came through the woods on foot to Fond du Lac, it taking him three days to get through, there being no wagon-road at that time; he took up Government land in Byron, at $1.25 per acre; his was the first farm on what is called the prairie. He married in West Martinsburg, N. Y., Nov. 25, 1849, Mary Ann, daughter of Auna and Joel Phelps, an architect and builder; they have had three children—Sedate (now Mrs. Dr. Buser), Alice (now Mrs. Rollin Smith) and Henry. Mr. Bush is a member of the Masonic Order, and is a Republican; has held the office of Chairman of the Board of Supervisors for several terms; has also been Justice of the Peace in an early day. Owns 320 acres of land; probable value, $65 per acre.

CHRISTIAN GEIGER, farmer and quarryman; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Wurtemberg Feb. 20, 1816; came to America in March, 1869; spent a year in Milwaukee, then settled in Byron, and worked at his trade of mason and in the stone-quarry until the fall of 1873, when he bought the old Oliver quarry and thirty-two acres of land belonging. This is the largest quarry in the county, and one of the largest and best in the State. During 1879, Mr. Geiger burned and sold 16,000 bushels of lime, besides selling $1,200 worth of stone for building sidewalks, copings, etc. This is beautiful stone, and is sold throughout the country, also in Janesville and Menasha, Sheboygan and also in Minnesota; his lime commanded the highest price when Chicago was rebuilt. Married, April 16, 1871, Miss Augusta Schmelling, of Pomerania, Prussia, she coming to Milwaukee in 1868; they have four children—Christian, Lizzie, Auna and John. Mr. Geiger is liberal in politics, and a Lutheran with his wife.

JAMES CORNELL, farmer, Secs. 19 and 30; P. O. Oakfield; born in New Jersey in 1825; son of Ann and Jesse Cornell, a farmer; he was educated in the common schools of that time, and was brought up a farmer; in 1833, moved to Canada West, and lived there until 1848, when he came to Wisconsin, Fond du Lac Co.; in the spring of 1852, went overland to California, and was occupied in mining until 1854, when, after returning again overland, he located in Byron, where he has resided ever since. Married, in 1855, in Oakfield, Emeline B., daughter of Abby and Heman Warner, a farmer of Oakfield; they have had four children—Annie, Jesse, Ina and Fred. Mr. Cornell has held the office of Supervisor, and is now a member of the School Board. Is Republican in politics. Owns 195 acres, valued at $65 per acre.

ANDREW GIBSON, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Oakfield; born in London, England, May 5, 1798; is the son of Mary and Andrew Gibson, a silk weaver; Andrew was educated in London, and is by trade a blacksmith; he went aboard a British man-of-war as seaman, in 1811, and served until 1813; he then came to Canada, and commenced learning his trade in Montreal, living there until 1820, when he went to Plattsburg, N. Y., and remained there until 1822; from there he went to St. Lawrence Co., remaining until 1827; he then returned to Plattsburg, and lived there about six years, then to Rochester for eleven years, and to Ohio for eighteen months; then coming to Fond du Lac in 1844, and worked at his trade for seventeen years on First street, in that city; in 1861, he came to Byron, and located on twenty acres of farming land in Sec. 19, the probable value being $50 per acre; he has lived here ever since. He was married in Plattsburg, in 1821, to Sarah, daughter of David A. and Charlotte Curtis, her father being a blacksmith; they have had eleven children, born to them—Zilphia A., Charlotte, Marietta (now deceased), Andrew A., Polly C., Maria, Jerry H., Caroline (deceased), Emma (deceased), Wallace (deceased) and Bruce. Is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is politically a Republican.

DANIEL DENISON JONES, farmer, Secs. 5 and 18; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Albany Co., N. Y., in 1822; son of Denison and Hannah Jones, a farmer; the subject of this sketch was brought up on a farm, and educated in the common schools of his native place; in the spring of 1824, he moved to Harrisburg, Lewis Co., N. Y., and lived there until the spring of 1848, when he came to Wisconsin and settled in Byron; in 1855, he returned to Harrisburg, and, in the spring of 1859, again returned to Byron, where he has lived ever since; he has served as Chairman of the town, as Supervisor and Assessor. He married, in Lowville, Lewis Co., Nancy A., daughter of Laura and Simon Brown, a farmer of that county; they have had three children—Edwin Denison, born in 1861; Leta M., born in 1863, died in 1865; Evelyn A., born in 1865. Are all members of the Baptist Church, and politically Republican. Owner of 200 acres of land; probable value $65 per acre.

FRANKLIN NYE, farmer, Sec. 36; P. O. South Byron; born in Lake Co., Ohio, Oct. 22, 1817; spent his early life and was married in his native State; coming to Wisconsin in 1846, he bought 120 acres in Byron, and forty in Lomira, the latter for a sugar bush; in 1847, he settled on Section 35, in Byron, where they lived for some time in a poor, unfinished log shanty, seeing many hardships, as they began with little or nothing—Mr. Nye and a friend owning a pair of cheap cattle, and doing without a wagon; in 1849, he sold the first tract of land and settled on his present farm of 160 acres. Few men have equaled the life record of Franklin Nye, as he, seconded by his worthy wife, has brought the farm to a state of excellent cultivation, built a spacious farm residence, and all needed barns, etc., earning every dollar themselves; they removed to Fond du Lac in 1859, remaining for educational advantages until 1866. Mrs. Nye was Miss Liva Carrier, a native of Plainfield, Otsego Co., N. Y.; she came to Ohio in 1815, and was married in September of that year; they have three children—Sarah E., wife of Fernando Phelps, of Fort Dodge, Iowa; James D., who married Miss Angie Richardson, and is now studying medicine in Fond du Lac, and a second son, George W., who married Miss Adella Nightingale, and is on the homestead. Father and sons are Republicans, Mr. Nye being the second Assessor in Byron, and serving many years as Town Superintendent of Schools, besides being Chairman, Supervisor, Town Clerk, etc.

I. C. JONES, farmer, Secs. 4 and 5; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Harrisburg, Lewis Co., N. Y., June 20, 1824; son of Hannah C. and Denison Jones; the subject of this sketch was brought up on a farm and educated in the common schools of his native place; he came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled in Byron on his arrival in 1849; he has chiefly been engaged in farming and school-teaching. He married, in Harrisburg, N. Y., Oct. 7, 1849, Marietta, daughter of Elija and Bossie Carpenter, and two children were born to them—Baruch W. and Ginevra; both are now married; Sept. 1, 1856, he was married to his second wife—Mary E., daughter of Edward P. and Lucretia Crary, of Albany, Co., N. Y. Mr. Jones has served in the position of Town Treasurer and Supervisor, and he and his family are members of the Baptist Church. Owns 100 acres of land; probable value, $65 per acre.

PETER KAUFMANN, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Prussia; son of Nicholas and Mary Kaufmann, his father's occupation being that of a farmer in Prussia; he came to the United States in 1855, and settled in the State of Ohio for about one year; in 1856, came to Wisconsin and located in the town of Byron, where he has been engaged in farming ever since. Married in Byron, in 1866, to Bridget, daughter of Mary and Peter Brile, a farmer of Byron; have had six children—Peter, Matilda (deceased), Martha, Charles, Michael and John. Owns 120 acres of land; valued, $50 per acre.

ATON KETTLAR, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Emmerich, on the River Rhine, in Germany, Dec. 19, 1820; son of William and Diene Kettlar; his father was proprietor of a hotel in Emmerich; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of his native country; he learned the business of milling, and worked at that trade until 1847, when he entered the army of his country and served until 1850; in 1852, he came to the United States, and settled in Janesville, Wis., where he resided until 1855; then went to the city of New York, and took passage for, as he supposed, California, but, unfortunately, he embarked on one of the steamers of the Nicaragua Line, which landed him in Granada, just at the time of the filibustering war, and was compelled to serve in the army under Gen. Walker, holding the positions of Sergeant, First Lieutenant and Captain; met with many hardships while there, and for weeks lived on mule and horse flesh and a dish composed of boiled grasses and leaves, returned to New York in 1857, and to Janesville in 1859, where he kept saloon until war broke out in 1861; then was made recruiting officer at that point; in the fall of 1861, went to Fond du Lac, and, in 1862, raised a company of soldiers, and, as their Captain, started for the war; resigned in 1863, and returned to Fond du Lac, and then settled in Byron, where he has resided ever since. He was married, in 1862, to Maria T., daughter of John and Barbara Geartner, her father being a farmer. Their children are John F., Francis A., Louis A., William F., Emma, Mata and Maria L. Are members of Roman Catholic Church; Mr. Kaufmann is politically a Democrat. Owns 165 acres; probable value, $60 per acre.

GEORGE H. LLOYD, farmer, Secs. 24 and 25; P. O. Byron; born in Byron Feb. 3, 1851, son of George and Ann Lloyd, who came from Queen's Co., Ireland, to America, 1830, and settled in Byron 1848, Mr. Lloyd buying 80 acres, which is part of the present farm, living for a time in the shanty of Mr. Wilcox; he built a log house, and began chopping; cleared the first 80 and added 46 acres in Eden and 40 in Byron, building a tasteful farmhouse in place of the pioneer's log house. He died, April 14, 1871, leaving four children—Ann, Catherine, Mary and George H.; Mrs. Lloyd died June 14, 1876. The farm is now owned by George H. Lloyd, he having added 80 acres more in Eden, built a horse-barn, sheds, etc., and proved himself worthy of his heritage. Married Miss Mary Klotz, of Eden, Feb. 24, 1876, by whom he has two children—George I. and Mary J. Mr. Lloyd and wife are Catholics, and he, like his honored father, is a Democrat. Has a good stock of native cattle and sheep, grade Norman horses and other stock, with the usual crops.

PATRICK KELLEY, farmer; P. O. Fond du Lac; the first Irishman who came to Fond du Lac Co. to stay; was born in Queens Co., Ireland, in 1800, and came to Jefferson Co., N. Y., in 1817, where he worked for various parties until September, 1839, when he settled on Sec. 3, town of Byron; he owned originally over 400 acres of land, but has given most of it to his sons, and now lives in Sec. 2. Mr. K. was married, in Jefferson Co., N. Y., to Margaret Smith; they have had eleven children—Catherine (deceased), Mary (deceased), Margaret, Esther, Elizabeth, Emeline, Eliza, Anna (deceased), James, Peter and John; Mrs. Kelley is a member of the Roman Catholic Church; Mr. Kelley gave the land for the first schoolhouse in Byron.

GEORGE B. McLEAN, general store; P. O. South Byron; born near Toronto, Ont., in 1837; son of William and Mary McLean, the former a farmer; in 1838, Mr. McLean moved to New York State, near Lockport, buying a farm there; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of that place, and, at the age of 15, came West and located in Byron, his father working a farm on shares; in 1853, George was taken sick, and was an invalid for six years, not being able to do anything, and the effect of this sickness left him a cripple in one limb for life; his father then moved to Iowa, taking George with him; in 1860, George launched out for himself; buying a small tin trunk and stock of goods, he peddled his way back to Byron, and he has made his home in different parts of the town ever since, peddling part of the time on foot, and, after a while, purchasing a horse and wagon for his business; for one year, he entered into partnership with John Miles, in the grocery business, at Fond du Lac; finding that this venture did not prove a success, they closed out, and he went back to peddling; a year after this, he bought a house and small piece of land for a home in Sec. 32, Byron, and has lived here ever since; he is now running an elevator, in partnership with J. Simmons, and also keeping a general store, his wife—a woman of great ability—running the store; Mr. McLean has a man on the road constantly, he being occupied at the elevator. He married, in 1866, in Byron, Anna Eliza, daughter of Benjamin and Margaret Van Valkenburg, the former a farmer; they have five children—Fred B., John C., Viola A., George and Arthur. Mr. McL. has held the office of Town Treasurer for six different terms, and is now holding that office; he is a member of Oakfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., and, politically, is a Republican.

HENRY D. PARSONS, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Somersetshire England, April 2, 1832; son of John Parsons and Elizabeth Chappel; his father was a farmer and carrier in England, but after his arrival in America, he engaged in farming; the subject of this sketch came with his people to the United States in 1843, coming directly to Wisconsin and locating in the town of Byron, his father buying 120 acres of Government land in Sec. 4; Henry received his education in the common schools of England, and after living with his father on the farm one year, he went to work for Peter V. Sang, of Lamartine, doing general work, and looking after mails, etc.; in 1849, he returned home and lived with his parents until 1854, when he went west to Black River Falls, Jackson Co., and engaged in the general mercantile business, continuing there for about five years, when he again returned to Byron and commenced carrying on the farm for his father, and has continued to live there ever since. He married, in Black River Falls, in 1860, Cynthia, daughter of Daniel and Melinda Bramer, the former a farmer; the family are members of the M. E. Church; he has been a member of the Board of Supervisors for four years, and Treasurer of his school district for eighteen years; has also been a Delegate to the State Convention several times; he is the present owner of 200 acres of land in Sec. 9; probable value $60 per acre. Politically, he is a Republican.

NATHANIEL PHELPS, farmer; Secs. 20 and 29; P. O. Byron; owns 103½ acres; probable value, $65 per acre. Born in Goshen, Mass., in 1826; son of Nathaniel and Sarah Phelps; his father was by occupation a farmer; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of his native place, and was brought up on a farm; he came to Wisconsin in 1852, and located in Byron, where he has remained ever since. He was married, in July, 1854, to Isabel, daughter of Louisa and Russell Watrous, the latter a carpenter and joiner living in Oakfield; they have had six children—Ellen M. (now married), Juliet B., Elmer N., Cora L., Flora E. and Fred R. They are members of the Wesleyan Methodist Church; politically, Mr. Phelps is a Greenbacker.

ALANSON T. REYNOLDS, farmer, Secs. 32 and 33; P. O. South Byron; is the owner of 208 acres, probable value, $60 per acre. Born in Genesee Co., N. Y., Oct. 15, 1819, son of Ruby and Philip Reynolds, the latter a farmer; the subject of this biography was educated in the common schools of Ohio, and was brought up as a farmer; he was the eldest of a family of ten children; in the year 1825, they moved to Ohio, and, in 1840, went to Pennsylvania; in 1843, they returned to Ohio, and, in 1845, came to Wisconsin, and has made Byron his home ever since. He married, in Columbus, Warren Co., Penn., Sept. 19, 1842, Hannah S., daughter of Daniel and Jernsha Jackman, the former a carpenter and millwright; they have had eight children born to them—Chelsea (deceased), George W. (deceased), Ruby J., Newell D., Warren A., Darinus J., Melissa (deceased), and Willie M. George W. was a member of Co. F, 11th W. V. I., and died in Madison April 6, 1864. Mr. R. has held the office of Supervisor for a number of terms, and has also been Town Treasurer; politically, he is a Republican.

APOLLOS SEARL, farmer, Sec. 5; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Palmyra, Wayne Co., N. Y., in 1822; son of Mary and Eliphalet Searl, a teamster and farmer, who died in 1824. Mr. Searl went to Jefferson Co., in 1823, then to Lowville and Leyden, both in Lewis Co., N. Y., and, in 1827, returned with his mother to Wayne Co., where he attended the common schools of the place until the age of 14, when he returned to Lowville, living there on a farm until he was 21 years of age; in May, 1849, he came to Byron, and has been a resident of Fond du Lac Co. ever since. He married Philinda Lusher, of Lewis Co., N. Y., March, 1851; she died in Byron Sept. 14, 1862. He was married to his present wife March 28, 1864, in Byron; maiden name was Harriet E., daughter of Laura and Simon Brown, a farmer of Lowville, Lewis Co., N. Y. Mr. Searl has held the office of Town Treasurer; also been a member of the Town and School Boards. He has had four children by his present wife—Ida C., Emma L., Hattie L., Willie A., and are all members of the Baptist Church. Owns 160 acres of land; probable value, $65 per acre.

WILLIAM SHUTTLEWORTH, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Nottinghamshire, England, in 1811; son of Ellen and Samuel Shuttleworth, a farmer. Mr. S. was educated in the common schools of England; and also learned and followed the trade of stonemason while in England; he came to the United States, in 1844, and, located in Milwaukee and Prairieville. also lived in Oakfield about two years; came to Byron in 1849, and has made it his home ever since. He married in England, in 1831, Anne, daughter of Anne and John Stephenson, a farmer; have had seven children—Mary Ann, deceased; John, Sarah, Helen, Selina, Samuel and William, drowned. Politics, Republican. Owns 120 acres; probable value, $50 per acre.

URIAH STROUP, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Fond du Lac; born in Roxbury, Delaware Co., New York State, in 1831; son of Rumah Peckham and George Stroup, his father's occupation being that of carpenter and joiner; the subject of this sketch was educated in the common schools of his native State; his father died in 1843, and he came West with his mother in 1846, living in Milwaukee and Dane Cos. until 1849, when they located in Dodge Co., living there until 1864, when they came to Byron, where he has made his home ever since. He married, in 1874, Madora, daughter of Sarah and Joseph Trelevan, a farmer of Byron; they have had two children—Nellie Frances and George Trelevan. Owns 260 acres of land; probable value $65 per acre.

PETER WEBER, farmer, Sec. 21; P. O. Byron; born in Westphalia, Prussia, in 1839; son of Doretha and John R. Weber, an overseer of a mine. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; at the age of 15, he came with his people to the United States, coming directly West, and locating in Byron; Peter worked on a farm during the summer, and went to school in winter; in the fall of 1865, he bought his first farm of twenty acres in Section 32; he is now the owner of 140 acres in Secs. 21 and 28, where he now resides, and is now engaged in building a handsome new residence. He married, in Byron, in 1861, Harriet N., daughter of Jonas C. and Betsy Reynolds, farmers; have four children—Silas E., Elmer C., Myrtie, John J. Family are members of the M. E. Church; he is politically a Republican.

JOHN WINDECKER, Sec. 8; P. O. Oakfield; born in Fairfield, Herkimer Co., N. Y., March 22, 1802; son of Mary and Jacob Windecker, a farmer; the subject of this sketch was educated in the German and English branches in the schools of New York, and was brought up on a farm; in 1833, he embarked in the hotel and mercantile business in the town of Lowville, N. Y.; in 1851, he came to the State of Wisconsin, Fond du Lac Co., and was occupied at mason work, at which he was quite an adept; in 1854, he came to Byron, where he has made his home ever since. Married, March 27, 1821, in New York State, Caroline, daughter of Olive and John Ralsten, a shoemaker, and soldier of the Revolution and war of 1812; have had nine children born to them—William R., Mariette, Sandusky, Conrad, Simeon, Caroline A., and three at one date, all still living and married, Sylene, Sylvester, Sedate. He is a member of the Masonic Order—joined in the neighborhood of 1845; was Postmaster in New York for fifteen years; was also a Captain of a militia company in 1828; is a member of the Universalist Church, and politically a Republican. He resides with his two sons.

ELDORADO.

LEANDER ANDERSON, farmer, Sec. 31; P. O. Eldorado Mills; was born in Lewis Co., N. Y., Nov. 2, 1823. His father, Nicholas Anderson, was born in Connecticut; his mother, Sybil Buel, was a native of New York. Leander, the third son of a family of seven children, lived with his parents on a farm in his native county till about 15 years old; then, induced by some boys, he threw his budget of clothing from the chamber window, and stole away from his father's home at night, and sought employ on the Black River Canal, in Lewis Co.; not finding it, on his way homeward, he bargained himself to a man who put him to chopping, a few strokes with the ax convinced him that he had not yet found his expected easy job, so he left his ax sticking in the tree, and left without telling his employer good-by, and went to his brother-in-law's in Oswego Co., then he followed the painter's trade for two years, but it proving injurious to his health, he sought other employment for a while; he then began the ship carpenter's trade in Oswego, which he continued there for two years; in the summer of 1844, he came to Huron, Erie Co., Ohio, where he found employment at painting a vessel for a short time; thence to Cleveland, Ohio, where he continued the painter's trade three months; then in company with three others, he went to Cincinnati, where they found work for a short time; he next came with a comrade to St. Louis, but finding no employment, he came to Vandalia, Ill., with no better success; returning again to St. Louis, he found a few weeks' work; almost penniless, he went thence to New Orleans with better results, for a short time; in January, 1845, via the Ohio River, he returned to Cleveland, thence to his brother-in-law with only 13 cents in his pocket; after a short stay there, having received a letter from Capt. Dana, he went again to Huron, and in the spring of 1845, went to Detroit, Mich., for two months; he then returned to Huron; two months later, he went home for a short time; thence to Quebec, thence home again, thence via Cleveland to Adrian, Mich., where he continued painting till June, 1847; he next went to Jackson, Mich., and to Eaton Rapids, where he built a skiff, put his trunk in, and sailed down the river to Grand Haven, where he arrived without a cent; then, as best he could, made his way to Chicago; remaining there a short time, he took passage on the Luther Wright, a three-mast schooner bound for Bellville Bay, Canada; returned thence with Capt. Dana to Huron, where he continued the painter's trade for some time. March, 1848, he was married to Miss Susan, a daughter of John and Elizabeth (Dent) Nichols, and in March, 1850, he left his wife in Huron and went to California, where he was employed by the Virginia Mining Damming Company; in June, 1851, he returned to Huron, and there continued the ship-builder's trade till the fall of 1854; he next returned to his father's farm for a short season, and in June, 1855, went to Cape Vincent, Jefferson Co., N. Y., where they took passage for Wisconsin, and in September following, landed in Sheboygan; here he painted a boat and lived till January, 1856, and then went to Manitowoc, Wis., where he followed the ship-carpenter's trade till June, 1856; lastly, he came to the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., and settled on a farm of forty acres in Sec. 32, and in the spring of 1868 bought a farm of sixty acres, forty in Sec. 31, town of Eldorado, and twenty in Sec. 36, town of Rosendale; he has since been a farmer; their children are Blanche, Nicholas and Lillian M.

KENDRICK DILTS, farmer, Secs. 29 and 3; P. O. Eldorado Mills; born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., Aug. 29, 1818; son of William and Cyllinda Dilts, a farmer; at the age of 11 years, he went with his people to Ohio, and was educated in that State; he was brought up on a farm; at the age of 26, he moved to Racine, buying some land and engaged in farming there for three years; he then came to Fond du Lac, buying forty acres of land in Sec. 29, town of Eldorado; the following year he bought another forty; in 1863, he purchased another sixty, in Secs. 29 and 30, and sold his first farm; he has lived here ever since engaged in farming. He married in Liberty, Crawford Co., Ohio, in 1842, Matilda, daughter of Richard and Polly King, a farmer of that town, and one of the first settlers there; have had seven children—Sally A., Lyle K., William R. (deceased), Cyrus A., Wilson H., Amanda M., Ettie E. Family attend the Free-Will Baptist Church; Mr. Dilts has held the office of Supervisor of his town, and is the present owner of sixty acres of land in Secs. 29 and 3. Is politically, Independent.

MELVIN DUEL (deceased) was born in Hebron, Washington Co., N. Y., June 29, 1824; he came to Wisconsin in 1848, and settled in the town of Eldorado, where he married, on the 27th of March, 1850, Laura Wolcott, daughter of W. C. and Meroy Wolcott, pioneer settlers and still honored citizens of the town of Eldorado, she was born in Trenton, Oneida Co., N. Y., Oct. 8, 1813; their children are Dirg, now of Brown Co., Minn.; Delia, wife of William Carpenter, of the town of Eldorado, he was a soldier during the war of the rebellion; Dora, Delos, Strabo, Effie M., Lewis, Arthur, Lottie B.,

George (deceased); during the war of the rebellion, Mr. Duel served in Co. A. 2d W. V. C., was enrolled Oct. 2, 1861, and served until January 23, 1865, when he was honorably discharged; the records of his regiment show that he was a gallant and brave soldier; after his discharge, he returned to his home in Eldorado, where he died Jan. 8, 1880; himself and his wife were the first couple married in the town of Eldorado; she owns 156 acres of land, and cheese factory, which was the first factory in Eldorado, was established by her husband in 1878.

JOSIAH ROBERTS, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Nekama, Winnebago Co.; was born in Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., in 1849; son of David and Mary Roberts, formerly of Wales, Vale of Clwyd, a farmer, who came to America in 1847, buying 220 acres of land in Sec. 6, Eldorado; he returned to Wales for his health in 1869, and died there in 1870; he built the first frame house in the town in 1847. The subject of this sketch received an academic and common-school education in his native county, and was brought up on a farm; at the age of 22, he went to California and engaged in speculating in stocks for two years and a half; he then returned to Eldorado and settled on the homestead farm with his mother, taking charge of and running the farm, at which he has been occupied ever since, and, at the death of his mother, he will be the entire owner, having bought out his brother's interest in it. He married in Oshkosh, Dec. 17, 1879, Martha J., daughter of Samuel and Ann Williams, a farmer of Henry Co., Ill. They are members of the Calvin Welsh Methodist Church; he is politically a Republican.

JAMES K. SCRIBNER: P. O. Eldorado Mills; was born in Norwalk, Conn., in 1828; is the son of Joseph and Sarah Kellogg Scribner, a farmer. The subject of this sketch received a common-school and academic education in his native place; at the age of 21 he came West to Rosendale, Wis., and settled on land previously purchased by his father, of 160 acres; in 1853, he purchased an undivided half of this farm of his father; in 1858, he came to Eldorado and located on property he owned, having, in 1857, bought Barnett's saw-mill, water-power lands, and privileges connected with them. Mr. Hiram Wheeler was connected with him in running the mill, and they afterward built a small grist-mill; Mr. Wheeler died in the summer of 1859; Mr. Van Ostrand then bought Mr. Wheeler's interest; in 1867, Mr. Scribner bought out Mr. Van Ostrand, and, in 1868, he rebuilt the mills, enlarging the capacity, and has ever since been engaged in milling; his mill now has four run of stone; he is also proprietor of the only general store in the village of Eldorado Mills, and is the present owner of fifty acres of land in Sec. 31, 32 and 29, besides his mill property. He married, in Rosendale, in January, 1857, Laura M., daughter of Hiram Wheeler; have had eight children—Winthrop, Walter, Lizzie L., Abbie L., Joseph H., Kittie M., Harry C. and Mabel W. They are members of the Congregational Church. Mr. Scribner was a member of the State Legislature in 1876, and is now the Chairman of the Town Board; politically he is a Republican.

JOHN F. STEELE, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Eldorado Mills; born in the town of Remsen, Oneida Co., N. Y., June 23, 1814; son of Joseph and Betsy Steele, a clothier by trade, and afterward followed farming. The subject of this sketch, when he was about 9 years of age, moved, with his family, to the town of Trenton, same county, and received a common and select school education in this place, and, in 1845, after receiving a certificate, he commenced teaching in that county until June 5, 1848, when he started for Wisconsin, and came to Rosendale, Fond du Lac Co.; that fall he took Mr. C. H. Lyman's farm, and ran it for one year; he then accepted the position in the first school in the town of Eldorado; he followed the occupation of teaching for thirteen winters, and farming in the summers on a farm owned by him of forty acres, in Sec. 19, Eldorado; after giving up teaching, he applied himself directly to farming, and is the present owner of 296½ acres in this county; he is also extensively engaged in raising stock. He married June, 1857, Jennie, daughter of Theron Frisbee, a carpenter and farmer; had one child by this wife—Orpha J.; this wife died Feb. 15, 1859. He married a second time, July 25, 1863, in Lamartine, to Charlotte, daughter of Adam and Judith Holliday, a farmer; have had seven children—Ellsworth, deceased; John F., Carrie E., Arthur A., Lottie M., Anna J., Henry F. Mr. Steele has held the office of Town Clerk, Town Superintendent for several years. Family attend the Congregational Church; he is, politically, a Republican.

JOHN STELZER, manufacturer of furniture, and undertaker, P. O. Eldorado Mills; born in Hesse Darmstadt, Germany, in 1834; son of John and Margaret Stelzer, a farmer. The subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; in his 20th year, he came to America, and located in New York City; when he was 14 years old, he learned the cabinet-maker's trade; and, during his stay in New York, he followed his trade; in 1869, he came West to Fond du Lac, and, for two years, worked in the car-shops; he then worked for H. L. Bass & Co. until they closed business, when he went to work for Blankenberg; in 1876, he came to Eldorado and opened a cabinet store, and engaged in the manufacture of furniture, also undertaking; in 1877, he bought a piece of property, put up a two-story store and dwelling, where he has continued in business ever since. He married in New York, in 1857, Caroline, daughter of John and Christina Kog, a farmer; have had seven children—Henry (deceased), Rosa, Mary, Lizzie, George, Fred (deceased), John; are members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Stelzer is a member of the Order of Druids of Fond du Lac; he is, politically, Independent.

A. J. STEPHENS, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Eldorado; was born in Clarkstown, Rockland Co., N. Y., Nov. 25, 1814; was liberally educated in the town of his birth, and, in early life, followed teaching school for several years; had also learned the carriage-maker's trade and worked at it in various cities in the East. He married, in the city of New York, in 1844, Hannah Wallace, a native of Glasgow, Scotland; they came West in 1848 and settled in the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where they have since lived; their children are John A., now in Los Angeles Co., Cal., he married in Eldorado, prior to his going to California, Annie Cowham; Mary Agnes, now wife of David Richards, of Fond du Lac; Maggie E., wife of Frederick Paine, of the town of Oakfield; Abram A.; James W., and Douglas W. Mr. Stephens owns 300 acres of land in Wisconsin, and 324 acres in the vicinity of Russell, Russell Co., Neb.; he is extensively engaged in farming, fruit-growing and stock-raising, and has, in all those pursuits, been very successful. He is a Republican in politics.

JOSEPH STEPHENS, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Eldorado; was born in Rockland Co., N. Y., March 11, 18— . Sept. 24, 1857, he married, in Haverstraw, Rockland Co., N. Y., Miss Mary Lloyd, a native of Glamorganshire, Wales, and emigrated to America with her parents, John and Ann Lloyd, who settled in Rockland Co., N. Y.; Mr. Stephens and wife lived in Rockland Co., N. Y., until 1858, when they moved to Wisconsin and settled where they now reside, in Eldorado; they have four children—Annie E., John W., Albert J., and Joseph H. He owns eighty acres of well-improved land, and is an energetic and enterprising citizen, and a leading farmer of Eldorado. In politics, Mr. Stephens is Republican.

NATHANIEL S. THOMPSON, farmer, Sec. 31; P. O. Eldorado Mills; was born in Franklin Co., Mass., May, 1813; his parents, David and Fannie Thompson, had a family of seven children, four of whom came to Wisconsin; Nathaniel S., the subject of this sketch, was married in 1840, to Sarah, daughter of Samuel and Sarah Goodnow, of Vermont; in 1846, they immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled in Dodge Co., and in May, 1845, removed to the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., and settled on a farm of 104 acres in Sec. 31, which has since been his home; here his wife died in May, 1855, leaving two children as follows: Phebe E., now the wife of William Brunson, and lives in the town of Metomen, and David H., who now lives on Sec. 31, town of Eldorado. In 1856, he was married to Mrs. Nancy, widow of Samuel Randall, of the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., whose maiden name was Hall, a daughter of Wanton and Fannie Hall, of Washington Co., N. Y.; her first marriage was in 1837, to Lyman Matteson, who died in Wisconsin in 1850, leaving her with one son, George W., now of Eldorado Mills; her second marriage was in May, 1851, to Samuel Randall, a native of Pennsylvania, but an early emigrant to Wisconsin, who died the same year of their marriage, leaving her with one son, Samuel, who now lives in the village of Hartford, Washington Co., Wis. Mrs. Thompson came to Wisconsin with her parents in 1845. Mr. T. was Chairman of the Town Board for one term, Assessor one year, and Justice of the Peace several years.

DAVID R. WATSON, Sec. 26; P. O. Eldorado; was born in the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Nov. 5, 1849; is the son of James and Sarah Watson, who settled in the town of his birth in 1817; he was educated at the Normal School at Oshkosh, Wis., and has taught school several terms. In politics, Mr. Watson is a Republican. He is the present Assessor of the town of Eldorado, a position he has filled since 1875. April 5, 1877, Mr. Watson married, in Eldorado, Jessie B. Kirkwood, daughter of Alexander and Agnes Kirkwood, who settled in Eldorado in about 1853; they have one child—James A., born Aug. 12, 1878. Besides attending to his duties in teaching school, Mr. Watson owns and manages a farm of several acres of land; his farm is well improved, and desirably located.

JAMES WATSON (deceased), was a native of County Kent, England; was born Jan. 19, 1821; his father, James Watson, died in England, and his mother married again and emigrated to America, when the subject of this sketch was but 4 years of age; he was educated in Oneida Co., N. Y., and when 16 years old, engaged in seafaring life, which he followed for several years; Aug. 4, 1847, he married in Philadelphia, Penn., Sarah Edwards, a native of Monmouthshire, England, born May 3, 1819; immediately after their marriage, they came to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., where he lived and was prominently identified with its history until his death, Nov. 22, 1860; he was the third Treasurer of the town, an office he filled for over seven years; he was continually in office from 1850, and was Chairman of the Town Board of Supervisors when he died. He was a leading member of the M. E. Church, and took an active part in the promotion of the religious and educational interests of the county during his life. Their children are Edward L., who was a soldier in the 18th W. V. I. during the war of the rebellion, and died in the service; David R., Sarah J., now deceased; Frank P., Annie E., James and George W. Mrs. Watson married a second husband, Archibald McDonald; he was a soldier in active service during the war of the rebellion, and was elected to various local offices in the town of Eldorado, he died Oct. 25, 1877; she is still living, is an earnest and Christian woman, a member of M. E. Church; she owns 200 acres of land, well improved.

WILLIAM C. WOLCOTT, Sec. 14; P. O. Eldorado Mills; born in Trenton, Oneida Co., N. Y., 1810; son of Sylvester and Jane Wolcott, a farmer of that county, buying his land there in 1806; the subject of this sketch received a common-school education in the schools of his native place, and was brought up on a farm; at the age of 25 he went to the western part of New York State, to Wothersfield, Wyoming Co., buying a farm of 178 acres; he farmed it there for seven years, when he went back to Trenton and worked there for three years; then in 1846, he came West to Eldorado, taking 240 acres of Government land and 40 acres of Allen Lyman, also 20 acres of State land on the big marsh; he has lived on this farm ever since; Mr. Wolcott has, for over forty years, been extensively engaged in bee culture. He married, Feb. 23, 1832, in Trenton, N. Y., Mercy M., daughter of Silas and Mary Pierce, a farmer; they have had six children—Laura J., Edward T. (deceased), Ella A., Sarah A., Charles A., Nelson W. (all married). He is a member of the Masonic Order, Rosendale Lodge; has held the office of Supervisor and Treasurer; is the oldest settler now living in the town; is, politically, a Republican, and, with the exception of the first year of his life in Wisconsin, he has not missed an election or town meeting for forty-seven years; he is the present owner of 175 acres of land in Secs. 14, 17, 20 and 21.

CALUMET.

CHARLES BOCK, lumber merchant, Calumet Village; is a native of Holstein, Germany; was born Dec. 11, 1825; in 1848, he emigrated to America; settled in the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in July of the same year (1848). In October, 1851, he married in Calumet Miss Sophia Kratzsch; they have seven children—Amelia, Charles, William, Sophia, Emma, Louise and Tom. In early life, Mr. Bock learned the carpenter's trade, and followed the business of contracting and building several years; he has been engaged in the lumber business in Calumet Village for a number of years, and has a large trade; he has been District School Treasurer for over eighteen years, and was a member of the Town Board of Supervisors three years. Himself and wife are members of the Lutheran Church. In politics, he is a Democrat. His parents were Henry and Lena Bock; they died in Germany; they had twelve children, two of whom came to America—Charles, the subject of this sketch, and Christoph, who left this Fond du Lac county in 1851, went to the gold mines in California, and has not been heard from since.

THOMAS BOYD (deceased); was born near Dublin, Ireland, in 1785. He married, in his native country, Ann Boyd; they emigrated to New York in 1844; thence to Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he resided until his death, in 1862; their surviving children are John, ex-member of the Wisconsin Assembly, who now lives near Independence, Kan.; Thomas, also ex-member of the Wisconsin Assembly, resides in Calumet Harbor; Samuel, attorney at law, Appleton, Wis.; Adam, a leading farmer, Springvale, this county; Mary A., wife of M. D. Henry, Independence, Kan.; Letitia, wife of A. Huysen, Eau Claire, Wis.

HON. THOMAS BOYD, capitalist, Calumet Harbor; was born near Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 25, 1814; in 1845, emigrated with his parents, Thomas and Ann Boyd, to this (Fond du Lac) county, and located on Sec. 34, town of Calumet; he was educated at the Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis. He was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1864-65, a position he filled with credit to himself and constituents; he has also been elected to various town and school offices. In politics, he is a consistent and active Democrat; he is an honest, truthful, capable man, both in public and private life, ardently attached to what he believes to be true and just, and ever ready to rebuke meanness wherever it shows its head; he has throughout his life maintained a high reputation for strict honor and integrity.

LAMBERT BROST, farmer; P. O. Heinsburg; was born at Ulmen on the Rhine, Germany, on the 10th of October, 1835; in 1842, emigrated to Wisconsin with his parents (John and Anna Brost), they located in Calumet, Fond du Lac Co.; he was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1876-77;

he is Chairman of the Calumet Town Board of Supervisors, a position he has filled for several years; he is also Chairman of the County Board, which office he was elected to in the autumn of 1879; in educational interests, he has taken an active part, and has been District School Clerk for over nineteen years. July 11, 1859, he married at Calumet Miss Anna Mussburger; she was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1837; they have eleven children, viz., Mary (now the wife of N. Mullenbach, they live in Wood County Wis.), Peter, Antoine, Annie, Joseph, Theresa, Josephine, John, Barbara, Mathias and Michael. Mr. Brost owns ninety acres of land; in early life he learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, and followed it several years in the city of Fond du Lac and in Calumet. Politically, he acts with the Democratic party.

JOHN H. DITTMAR, farmer and stock-raiser, Sec. 35; P. O. Calumet Harbor; he was born in Bavaria, Germany, Jan. 13, 1821; in early life, he received a liberal education; he came to the United States in 1840, lived in the city of New York until 1852, in which year he moved to Philadelphia, Penn.; in New York and Philadelphia, he followed the business of cloth dyeing, a trade he had learned in his native country; in 1866, he removed to where he now lives. He has been twice married, first wife was Frances Kamp, she was born in 1817, died in 1848; by this marriage there were three children—Christine, now the wife of Philip Carr, Philadelphia, Penn.; Sophia, wife of George Campbell, they also live in Philadelphia; Henry, who was a soldier in the war of the rebellion, he served in the naval service over two years; he married Katie Johnson, they live in Fond du Lac City. Mr. Dittmar's second wife was Theresa Aisla; she was born July 25, 1823; they were married in 1849; she died April 4, 1878; their children are Louisa, now the wife of John Theurwachter, Jr.; Louis, who married Laura Peth, they live in Nebraska; Charles, also a resident of Nebraska, Theresa, Julia, William and Fredrick. Mr. Dittmar and family are members of the Lutheran Church. He owns 202 acres of land; he is an enterprising, public-spirited citizen; his farm is well improved and most desirably located.

HENRY F. KOENIG, proprietor of blacksmith and general repair shop, Calumet Village; was born in the city of Fond du Lac; his father, Martin Koenig, was born in Baden, Germany, in 1832; he learned the wagon-maker's trade in his native country, and emigrated to this country in 1849; lived in Milwaukee, Wis., until 1850, when he came to the city of Fond du Lac, where he married, in 1853, Wilhelmina Meyer; in 1856, they came to Calumet Village, where he has been engaged in the manufacturing of wagons, and general repairing, at that place since; their children are Henry F., Mary, Emma, Lisette, Caroline; the oldest of those children, Henry F., was born in the city of Fond du Lac, in 1855. He married, Nov. 19, 1877, Miss Dorothea Burg; they have one child—Laura. Henry F. Koenig has been engaged in carrying on a general blacksmith-shop at Calumet Village about five years, and has a large custom.

ALBERT NORTH, dealer in general merchandise, Calumet Village; was born in the town of Orsego, Orsego Co., N. Y., Feb. 5, 1823; his father, Albert North, was a native of Vermont, and a leading merchant in Orsego, N. Y., for a period of over forty years; his mother was Irene Taylor, a woman of rare Christian principles. She married Albert North, the father of the subject of this sketch, in New York; they had eight children, of whom our subject is the only survivor; he first came to Wisconsin in 1846, and looked over the ground to pick out a location. In 1848, he opened a general store in Calumet Village, and has been successfully engaged in that business since; therefore is the pioneer merchant of the town of Calumet. In the early history of Calumet Village, he was Postmaster several years. Politically, in early life, he acted with the Whig party, giving his first vote to Henry Clay; on the organization of the Republican party, he joined its ranks, and has remained a constant supporter of its principles; he is a man of strict integrity in all his dealings.

HENRY MANDERSCHIED, retired farmer; P. O. Calumet Harbor; was born in Basenheim, Germany, in 1811. He married, in his native country, Elizabeth Meisen, and emigrated to America in 1845, settling in the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., which has been their home since; Mr. Manderschied has been very successful in life, and has accumulated a large property. He has been, at various times, elected to offices of honor and trust, and was Assessor of the town of Calumet for more than twenty years.

LOUIS MANDERSCHIED. This gentleman, present Treasurer of Fond du Lac Co., and a leading grain merchant, Calumet Harbor, was born in Basenheim, Germany, Sept. 26, 1840; emigrated to Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., with his parents, Henry and Elizabeth Manderschied, in the autumn of 1845; the country then being comparatively new and almost a wilderness, most of Louis' early life was spent amidst the hardships and privations of pioneer life; he was educated in the schools at Calumet, and acquired a good education, and speaks and writes the German and English languages with great fluency. During the late war of the rebellion, he served in Co. G, 36th W. V. I.; was wounded, and participated in every battle, siege and skirmish his command was in, with but few exceptions, and was honorably discharged in Jeffersonville, Ind., at the close of the war. He has been frequently selected by his fellow-citizens to fill positions of trust and honor, upon which he has always reflected the highest credit; he was elected County Treasurer in the fall of 1878, a position he still holds; he is a public-spirited citizen and one whose fidelity to public and private trusts is unimpeachable; he has been elected to various town offices. He married, in Calumet, on the 26th of February, 1859, Miss Elsie Murdock, a native of Madison Co., N. Y.; she was the daughter of Wheeler and Lucy Murdock, who were natives of Providence, R. I., and emigrated to Wisconsin in 1815; she is deceased, and he lives at Brothertown, Calumet Co. Mr. Manderscheid and wife are members of the Lutheran Church; in politics, he is a consistent and active Democrat. He has been engaged in the grain business in Calumet Harbor several years, and has, by his strict integrity and fair dealing, secured the confidence of all with whom he has had to do. His father, Henry Manderscheid, was married in his native country (Germany) to Miss Elizabeth Measen; they are still residents of Calumet, where they have lived for over thirty-five years, old and respected citizens.

THEODORE MANDERSCHIED, Calumet Village; was born in the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., Feb. 22, 1849; his parents are Henry and Elizabeth Manderscheid, pioneer settlers, and still residents of Calumet. He has been twice married; first wife was Charlotte Peth; they were married in May, 1871; she died in October of the same year; his present wife was Susan Peth; they were married Nov. 25, 1872; they have one son—Henry. In politics, Mr. Manderscheid is a Democrat; he owns about 100 acres of land, and is an enterprising citizen, one who takes an active part in all that goes to advance the interests of his town.

HENRY M. MUSKAT, proprietor of blacksmith and general repair shop, Calumet Village; was born in Germany, Jan. 13, 1845; in 1854, he emigrated with his parents to this county; they settled in Dane Co., Wis. During the war of the rebellion he enlisted in Co. B, 4th W. V. C; served three years; was honorably discharged at Madison, Wis.; in 1866, he came to Fond du Lac Co. In 1868, he married Gertrude, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Manderscheid, of Calumet; they have three children—Freddie, Lisette and Marianne. Mr. Muskat has been engaged in general blacksmithing in Calumet Village since 1867. In politics, he is a Republican. A portion of the time he was in the service of the Union, he served as Corporal.

JOHN PETH, a leading farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Calumet Harbor; was born in Switzerland in 1818; he came to America in 1840; lived in Albany, N. Y., until 1843, in which year he came to Wisconsin. He married, in Racine Co., Wis., Mary Conrad; in about 1845, they came to Calumet, where they have since resided; their children are Mary, now the wife of Edward Stramer, Brothertown, Wis.; Susan, wife of Theodore Manderscheid, Calumet Village; Katie, wife of Andrew Meisen, and John P. Mr. Peth and family are members of the Lutheran Church; he is a Democrat in politics; owns 300 acres of land; is an enterprising and go-ahead citizen.

ADAM PFAFF, retired farmer, Calumet Harbor; was born in Bavaria, Germany, Jan. 19, 1811; he came to this country in 1836; lived in Canaan, Conn., until 1842, in which year he came to this (Fond du Lac) county, and settled in Calumet July 2, 1844. He married Susan Burg, a native of Rechtenbach, Bavaria; she was born in January, 1819; emigrated to Detroit, Mich., in 1838, thence to this town (Calumet) a short time prior to her marriage; their children are Daniel, who married Amelia Heipsman; they live in Brothertown, Calumet Co., Wis.; Susan, now Mrs. J. Shenborn, Minn.; Jacob, married Appie Jackni, they reside in Calumet Harbor; Maggie, wife of Theodore Miller, St. Cloud, Wis. Mr. Pfaff and wife are members of the Lutheran Church; they own 120 acres of land; he has been elected to various local offices. His father, Jacob Pfaff, was born in Bavaria, Germany; he married Susan Esseeth; they both died in their native country, Bavaria; they had six children, two of whom came to this country—Adam and Michael Pfaff. Adam Pfaff, the subject of this sketch, has resided continually in Calumet over thirty-eight years; himself and wife were among the first couples married in the town of Calumet; they have triumphantly passed through the hardships of pioneer life, and are now spending their old age in comfort in the town where they have resided so long.

GEORGE REICHAERT, general blacksmithing, Calumet Harbor; is a native of Germany; was born Jan. 2, 1843; in 1849, he emigrated with his parents to this country; they settled at Addison, Washington Co., Wis., where George was educated; he learned the blacksmithing trade at Hartford, Wis.; worked for the Government, during the war of the rebellion, as a blacksmith. In 1866, he married, in Fond du Lac City, Wis., Miss Fredrica Ehlers; they have three children—Rose, Anna and Henrietta. He engaged in business in Fond du Lac in 1868, and in 1875, moved to Calumet Harbor, where he has been successfully engaged in the business of blacksmithing since. Politically, he acts with the Democratic party.

JACOB REIMERS, dealer in general merchandise, Calumet Harbor; was born in the city of Marne, Holstein, Germany, December 31, 1833. He attended the schools in his native city and obtained a proficient education. In 1848, he emigrated to this country with his parents, and settled with them at New Holstein, Calumet Co., Wis., where they remained until the following spring, 1849, when they moved to this town (Calumet); in 1870, he engaged in the mercantile business, in Calumet Harbor, and now has a fine, prosperous and constantly increasing trade. He was appointed Postmaster in 1874, a position he still holds; has been Town Clerk since 1875, has also been elected to various school offices. Nov. 26, 1858, he married, in Calumet, Miss Elenor Funke, a native of Braunschweig, Prussia; they have seven children, viz., Mary, William, Matilda, Mena, Henry, Louise and Herman. Politically, Mr. Reimers acts with the Democratic party. His father, Nicholas Reimers, was born in Barelt, Holstein, Germany, Nov. 17, 1801; he was a soldier for over six years in his native country, serving in the 16th Battery; he married, Jan. 16, 1833, Miss Kathrine Peters; she was born June 24, 1806; they came to this country in 1848 and settled at New Holstein, Calumet Co., thus becoming pioneer settlers; they lived in New Holstein until the spring of 1849, when they came to Calumet, where she died June 9, 1876. She was a woman of rare Christian virtues, and one who will be long remembered for her many acts of kindness. He is still living in Calumet, an old and honored citizen; to him belongs the credit of blazing and cutting out the first road from Marytown to New Holstein, Calumet Co.; this he did in 1848 while he was emigrating to that place. That portion of the county was then heavily timbered, and it took him several days to make the trip and do the necessary clearing to make the way passable. The Reimers family are all members of the Lutheran Church.

CASPER THEURWACHTER, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Calumet Harbor; was born in Rechtenbach, Germany, March 11, 1818; in 1835 he emigrated to America; lived in Detroit, Mich., until 1840, when he came to what is now the town of Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., Wis. Jan. 22, 1846, he married in Calumet, Phillipa Burg, daughter of Martin and Margaret Burg, pioneers of 1840; she was born in Rechtenbach, Germany, Nov. 25, 1820; their children are John, Casper, Jr., Mary; the oldest of those children, John, married Kathrine Schafer; they reside in Calumet; the second oldest, Casper, married Hannah Bloom; they also reside in Calumet; the third, Mary, is now the wife of John Bruederle, of Fond du Lac. Mr. Theurwachter owns 300 acres of land; he was elected to various offices in the early history of Calumet. Mr. Theurwachter started in life poor, and well understands the value of self-acquired experience and property in the battle of life; he has never been without good friends and good health; his education was liberal, and though his life has been engrossed with the demands of active industry, he has found time to read and reflect; he is a man who is at all times ready to advance the interests of his fellow-beings; we find him to-day enjoying good health, and in that prosperity and contentment which those who have devoted a lifetime to industry and integrity have a right to expect.

JOHN THEURWACHTER, retired farmer, Pipe Village; P. O. Calumet Harbor; was born in the village of Rechtenbach, Bereabern, Bavaria, Feb. 4, 1817; he received a liberal education in his native country; in 1835 he emigrated to Detroit, Mich., thence to Green Bay, Wis., then a small village; he lived in Green Bay until 1839, with the exception of a few months when he had returned to Detroit in December, 1839; he came to Calumet, Fond du Lac Co., February, 1841. He married in Calumet, Miss Margaret Burg; she was also a native of Rechtenbach, Bereabern, Bavaria; born Feb. 1, 1817; she emigrated to Detroit, Mich., in 1835, thence to Green Bay, Wis., in 1839, where she remained but a short time prior to her marriage, when she came to Calumet; their children are Charlie, he married Louise Dittmore; Katie, now the wife of Henry Lisha; Margaret, wife of Patrick Reuben; John; they are all living in Calumet except Mr. Reuben and wife, who live in Fond du Lac City. Of the pioneer settlers of Calumet in 1839, and previous to that, Mr. Theurwachter is the only one remaining; of the others, some have been taken to their last, long home, others have moved away. Himself and wife were the first couple married in Calumet; the Rev. George White, the first settler of Calumet, performed the marriage ceremony; they have witnessed and endured the trials and suffering which the pioneer settlers of any country are subject to, and by their honest efforts and industry, succeeded in accumulating a competence, and are now passing their old age in happiness and comfort. They are members of the Lutheran Church; in the early history of the county, Mr. Theurwachter was elected to various local offices, the duties of which he discharged to the general satisfaction of all interested.

LAMARTINE.

WARREN ANDERSON. farmer; P. O. Eldorado Mills, Wis.; born in Lewis Co., N. Y., May 16, 1827; his parents, Harvey and Betsey Anderson, were also natives of York State; in the fall of 1845, he, with his father, in a wagon, started from the town of Clayton, Jefferson Co., N. Y., for Wisconsin, coming by the way of Erie, Penn., Cleveland, Ohio, and Chicago, Ill.; they arrived at the village of Fond du Lac in December of that year; they came at once to the residence of Mr. Sauburn in the town of Rosendale, where they made their home for a few days; his father entered a quarter-section of land in Sec. 36, town of Rosendale, and they at once began to build a pioneer shanty thereon; here, he with his father, kept back through the winter, and by the spring of 1846 they had twenty-five to thirty acres cleared up; his father then returned to Jefferson Co., N. Y., for the other members of the family, and with them reached their Western home late in June of that year; ten years later, his father sold that farm and removed to another on Sec. 32; here his mother died Feb. 23, 1859, and his father on March 28 following, leaving four sons, two of whom are now living—Warren, the subject of our sketch, and Charles, now of the town of Eldorado. June 11, 1851, he was married to Miss Marietta T., youngest daughter of Phineas and Ruth M. Randall, immigrants from Crawford Co., Penn., in 1848, to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where her father died in 1850; they have had nine children—Susie E.; Warren R., now of Eldorado Mills; Bertine H.; Nellie B., deceased; Emma B.; Josephine B., Ella and Eva (twins), and John G. They attend the Congregational Church. Mr. Anderson is a member of the Masonic Fraternity.

JOHN BRALEY. farmer, Secs. 25 and 36; P. O. Fond du Lac; son of Silas and Lydia Braley, born in Washington Co., Vt., in 1819; his father was a farmer (though he worked at the carpenter's trade in his younger days); John spent his early life on a farm in his native county; in 1849 he immigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm near Oshkosh, Winnebago Co., where he lived sixteen years; in the spring of 1865, he sold that farm and purchased another in Secs. 25 and 36, now consisting of ninety acres, where he has since continued farming, also carries on a small dairy. In 1849, he married Miss Abigail, daughter of Ephraim and Abigail Fuller, of Orange Co., Vt., who died in 1852, leaving three children, as follows—Betsey (now Mrs. Alvin Pierce, of Westboro, Wis.), Silas (now of Winona, Minn.), and Alvin, of Winona, Minn.; in April, 1855, he married Miss Lucinda, daughter of Jonathan and Luna McDonald, of Oshkosh, Wis., she being a native of Madison Co., Vt.; they have two children—J. Willie and Ulysses G.

FAYETTE S. BROWN. (deceased), was the son of Jonathan and Abigail Brown, born in Washington Co., N. Y., in 1819; he was educated in the common schools of his native county, and afterward followed farming there till 1845. May 11, 1844, he married Miss Chloe, daughter of James and Nancy Elbridge, of Washington Co., and in the following spring immigrated westward to make their home in the then promising Territory of Wisconsin; they stopped in the city of Milwaukee for one year, and, in 1846, removed to Fond du Lac Co., where he settled on a farm of 120 acres in Sec. 24, town of Lamartine; he continued farming here till 1859, then rented his farm and removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he was dealing in real estate for nearly two years. He died Oct. 12, 1864. His wife, who survived him nearly eighteen years, returned with the family of five children to the farm in Lamartine, where she died March 12, 1879; they had six children—Fayette (deceased); Byron K., of Wichita, Kan.; Henry F., of Lamartine; Mary E. (Mrs. H. Priest), of Fond du Lac; George F., of Lamartine; Nellie A.

REV. JABEZ B. COLE. Pastor of the Lamartine Methodist Episcopal Church, was born in Lincolnshire, England, Feb. 12, 1845; he is the son of Rev. Thomas Cole and Elizabeth Brown, and with them, May 4, 1845, set sail from Liverpool for America, and landed in New York City in June following; they came thence to Sheboygan, Wis., where they arrived the 1st day of July; his father purchased a farm in the town of Green Bush, Sheboygan Co., Wis., where he devoted much of his time to farming, and was local minister of the First M. E. Church of that town; the subject of this sketch spent the first nineteen years of his life on his father's farm and attending the district school; he united with the church at the age of 11, and when 19 he entered as a student of the classical course at Lawrence University of Appleton, Wis.; at the end of six years, on account of limited means and ill health, he was forced to leave off his studies at college; he soon joined the conference and was ordained local Deacon; in October, 1874, he joined the conference at Milwaukee, and was assigned to the Clinton Circuit; while there he pursued the course of study prescribed by the canon; in 1872, he was sent to the Wyocena Circuit in Columbia Co., Wis., for two years. Here, Oct. 13, 1873, he married Miss Cecelia E., daughter of A. A. and Ruth Cole, early settlers of Welsh Prairie, Columbia Co.; in October, 1874, he was assigned to Shawano, Shawano Co., Wis., where he remained in charge of the church for three years; in 1877, he took charge of the church at Markesan, Green Lake Co., and, in 1878, came to the Lamartine charge; they have three children, as follows—Jessie E., born in 1874; Mary R., born in 1876; Charles F., born in April, 1879.

LAWRENCE ENNIS, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Woodhull; is a native of County Wicklow, Ireland; born April 15, 1831, and is the son of James Ennis and Winford Doyle, with whom he made his home in his native country until 19 years of age. In May, 1850, he emigrated to America, and landed in Qu-bee, where he followed teaming for five years. April 18, 1855, he married Miss Letetia, daughter of Patrick and Mary Greening, nee Finland, of Canada West, but a native of County Monahan, Ireland; they then went to St. Louis, Mo., for a few months, thence to Jacksonville, Ill., for a short time, and lastly to Fond du Lac, where they lived fourteen years. In the fall of 1868, he bought a farm of eighty-five and one-half acres in Section 8, town of Lamartine, where he has since been a farmer. They had one son—James, deceased, and are members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Fond du Lac.

PHILIP FABER, farmer, Sec. 33; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of Rhine Province; born Sept. 7, 1832, and is the son of John and Mary E. Faber, nee Bard; he lived with his parents on a farm in his native country, and with them came to America in 1847; they settled first in Washington Co., Wis., and made that their home till 1874; he then bought a farm of eighty acres in Section 33, town of Lamartine, where he has since lived and followed farming. In January, 1859, he married Miss Sophia, daughter of Frank and Elizabeth Warner, nee Beck, of Wayne, Washington Co., Wis., but a native of Germany. They have six children—Caroline, Carl, Henry, Elizabeth, Sophia and Hermind. They are members of the Lutheran Church.

NATHANIEL W. FANCHER, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Lamartine; was born in Wyoming Co., N. Y., Oct. 16, 1830; his parents, Elias Fancher and Sally Worden, were natives of Dutchess Co., N. Y., but removed to Wyoming Co. shortly after their marriage. In May, 1847, he with his father and family came to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm of eighty acres in Section 22, town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., where his parents both died; his mother Nov. 1, 1859, and his father Oct. 12, 1875; ten years after their arrival in Lamartine, he bought a farm of eighty acres in the southwest quarter of Section 22, which he afterward traded for another one, and after trading three or four times, in 1858, he got his father's homestead, which he has since owned, and where he has since lived. March 12, 1866, he married Miss Mary, daughter of James and Catharine Hendry, nee Greig, early settlers of Lamartine.

JOSEPH FISCHER, farmer, Sec. 28; P. O. Lamartine; the subject of this sketch is a son of John and Barbara Fischer, and was born in Baden, Germany, Jan. 3, 1822; at the age of 14, he began to learn the clock maker's trade in his native place, and followed it there for eight years; in 1844, he went to Dublin, Ireland, and continued his trade for nearly six years; in the fall of 1849, he emigrated to America, and, in 1851, established a jewelry store on Fifth avenue, in New York City, of which he was proprietor till 1855; he then came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., bought 120 acres of land in Section 28, town of Lamartine, returned to New York for his family, disposed of his interest in jewelry stock there, and came again to Lamartine, where he has since been a farmer. In New York City, in 1852, he married Miss Mary, daughter of Nicholas and Elizabeth Endimiller, who emigrated to New York in 1846, they have six children—Joseph, Jr., a carpenter and joiner of Lamartine; Matilda, Mary E., John A.; Adolphe, Emma L. Mr. Fischer is a member of the Catholic Church, and his wife of the Lutheran.

ALBERT FOLTS, farmer, Sec. 34; P. O. Lamartine; born in Herkimer Co., N. Y., Feb. 22, 1841; when 4 years of age, he, with his parents, John and Emily Folts, immigrated to Wisconsin, and were among the first settlers of the town of Lomira, Dodge Co., which was their home for a number of years. Oct. 12, 1861, he married Miss Arvella F., daughter of Alexander and Mary A. Sager, nee Auburn, immigrants to the town of Williamstown, Dodge Co., in 1859, but natives of Oneida Co., N. Y.; soon after marriage, they removed to the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., which was their home for four years; in 1865, they removed to the town of Oakfield, and, in 1874, he disposed of his interest in Oakfield, and bought a farm of eighty acres on the west half of the northwest quarter of Sec. 34, which has since been their home; they have had four children—Clarence J., born June 15, 1868; Rollie L., March 18, 1864; two infants deceased, not named. Mrs. Folts is a member of the Baptist Church.

PHILIP GREENING, farmer, Sec. 21; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a native of Devonshire, England; born Feb. 29, 1824; he spent the first fourteen years of his life with his parents, Philip and Frances Greening, on a farm at his birthplace, and then entered upon a three years' apprenticeship at the machinist's trade, which he afterward followed in England for a number of years; in 1848, he sailed for America, and settled in Upper Canada, where he continued his trade for three years; he next came to Green Bay, Wis., and there followed the same calling for two years; in 1853, he removed to the town of Charlestown, Calumet Co., Wis., where he was one of the first settlers; here he purchased a farm, and began the life of a farmer again, which he has since followed; in 1863, he removed thence to Winneshiek Co., Iowa, and in five years afterward (1868), returned to Wisconsin and settled in the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co.; here he was known as a farmer until 1873; he then purchased a farm of 270 acres, in Secs. 21 and 28, town of Lamartine, where he has since lived. Mr. Greening's political career has been quite an eventful one; though not an office-seeker, his friends saw fit to elect him to the offices of Town Clerk and Town Treasurer for four terms each, in the town of Charlestown, Calumet Co., and Assessor one year, and Chairman of Town Board of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., for three years, and, in the fall of 1878, decided that he should represent the Third District in the Wisconsin Assembly at Madison; politically, he is a Democrat. At Ingersoll, Ont., Oct. 13, 1848, he was married to Miss Mary, daughter of Michael and Hannah Sage, natives of County Tipperary, Ireland, but immigrants to Canada in 1847; children have blessed their household, as follows: Helen (now Mrs. Dennis McKanna, of Byron), Philip (deceased), William H. Francis, and three infants, deceased. Mr. Greening is a member of the Episcopal Church, and his wife of the Catholic Church.

WILLIAM J. HALE, farmer, Sec. 25; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of Saratoga Co., N. Y.; born Oct. 1, 1801; when 12 years of age, he, with his parents, Daniel and Mary Hale, removed to Albany, N. Y., and, five years later, he went to Ohio, but returned to Albany in 1820, and worked at the cooper's trade for about two years; he then went to Montgomery Co., where he followed coopering and farming until 1844. Here, in 1821, he married Miss Betsy, daughter of Isham Eaton, with whom, in 1844, he removed to Saratoga Co., N. Y., and lived there on a farm until the fall of 1855, when they immigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., settling in the town of Springvale; they have since followed farming in the towns of Lamartine, Oakfield, Fond du Lac and Waupun, and now reside on Sec. 25, town of Lamartine; Mrs. Hale died Dec. 9, 1876, leaving five children—John (of Dakota), Cynthia A., Mrs. Kendall (of Fond du Lac), Elias A., who enlisted in Co. F, 21st W. V. I., under Col. Sweet, and was in the battles of Perryville, Stone River, and with Sherman in his campaigns—mustered out at Milwaukee in 1865, and in 1872, married Miss Laura J., daughter of Jason and Jerusha Monroe, of Lamartine—they had one son, Jesse, A. P., now of Jefferson Co., N. Y., and Sarah (now Mrs. Harvey Wolcott, of Dakota).

GEORGE W. JACKSON, farmer, Sec. 27; P. O. Lamartine; is a son of Joseph and Ann Jackson, whose biography appears in this work; George was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1838; when 10 years of age, he, with his parents, sailed from Liverpool for America, landing in New York Sept. 15, 1848; they at once came to Wisconsin, and stopped for the winter in Waukesha Co.; in the spring of 1849, they removed to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., which has since been his home, and where he now owns ninety acres of land in the southwest quarter of Sec. 27. He married Miss Lydia, second daughter of Eyre E. and Mary Crowe, immigrants to the town of Lamartine from St. Johns, New Brunswick, in 1847, and, ten years later, to Waushara Co., Wis., where her marriage to Mr. Jackson was solemnized Nov. 13, 1858; four daughters and one son have blessed their household, and their names are as follows: Florence A., Lydia A., Jennie M., Jessie D., and Theron J. Mr. Crowe, Mrs. Jackson's father, was doubtless the oldest man in the town of Lamartine at the time of his death, Feb. 18, 1872; nature having blessed him with a strong physical constitution, and possessing a great deal of will-power and tenacity of life, he lived to the good old age of 99 years 4 months and 19 days; he was born on Staten Island, Oct. 8, 1773, and married Miss Mary Morris, of Granville, Nova Scotia, April 24, 1834.

JOSEPH JACKSON, retired farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Lamartine; is a son of John Jackson and Hannah Noble; born in the eastern part of Yorkshire, England, Oct. 31, 1810; his father was a contractor for cutting timber, in which he assisted for some time; but for four years prior to his emigration to America, he was woodman and under game-keeper for a wealthy gentleman by the name of Joseph Sykes, of Roywell, Yorkshire. April 4, 1835, he married Miss Ann (daughter of George and Jane Galland, nee Lyon, of the parish of Newbald, Yorkshire, England, who was born March 8, 1811, and with whom, July 16, 1848, he sailed from Liverpool for America, and landed in New York September 15 following, after a nine-weeks' voyage. They came thence via the lakes and Milwaukee to Waukesha, Wis., where they arrived with only an English shilling Oct. 16, 1848; stopping at Waukesha for one month, then removed to the town of McAdams, Waukesha Co., where they spent the winter, and finally reached their Western home in the town of Lamartine, April 14, 1849; Mrs. Jackson lived with her brother, Mr. William Galland, till her husband built a log shanty, to which they, with Mr. Galland and family (the two having eleven children), removed, here they lived as best they could, under somewhat cramped circumstances, till September, when they removed to Mr. Dill's farm in Sec. 20, town of Lamartine, lived here four years. It was here in their house that the first day school in District 4 was taught; the teacher being Mary Story, now Mrs. Boyd, of Rock River, Wis.; the first Sunday school and preaching of that neighborhood was also held in their house, by a Methodist minister, in the summer of 1851, after which they had regular service there by different ministers for two years, and then they held it in the schoolhouse near by; in 1853, he bought a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 21, to which they removed and made their home till 1869, when he sold that and bought another of eighty acres in Sec. 20, and forty acres in Sec. 35, making the latter his home since. The children are as follows: Mary J., Mrs. Benjamin Brand, of Lamartine, now deceased; George W., of Lamartine; William, of Lamartine; Jonah G., of Humboldt Co., Cal.; Anna E., deceased; Hannah E., Mrs. Warren F. Cook, of Massachusetts, now deceased; Martha, deceased, born with three thumbs on right hand; Joshua, who died on the voyage from England; Joshua D., now of this town (Lamartine); Isabella M., Mrs. Dusenberry, of Empire. Mr. Jackson was Town Assessor for two years. In England, they were members of the Primitive Methodist Church for twenty years; here they are members of the M. E. Church.

WILLIAM JACKSON, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Lamartine; was born in Yorkshire, England, Nov. 4, 1839, and when 9 years of age, with parents, Joseph and Ann Jackson, nee Galland, emigrated to America; landing in New York, they came thence to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Lamartine in the spring of 1849; he made his home with parents till about 28 years of age, when he purchased of his father the farm of eighty-nine acres in Sec. 21, which was their first settlement in the town, and made that his home till 1873, when he sold that and brought his present one of 105 acres, in northwest quarter Sec. 22, in the same town, which has since been his home; he has also ten acres in Sec. 10. In February, 1868, he married Miss Lydia, daughter of Enoch and Lydia Palmer, early settlers of Lamartine; they have four children—Helen M., Leila D., Clarence, Ida L. They are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Jackson is a member of the Town Board; politically, he is a Republican.

ALBERT A. JOHNSON, farmer, Secs. 24, 13, 15, 16; P. O. Lamartine; is of New England descent, and a son of Jesse and Dorothy Johnson; born in Grafton Co., N. H., in 1825; he was educated in the public schools of his native county, after which he followed the teacher's profession in that county for four years, whence, in 1850, he removed to Deerfield, Lake Co., Ill., where he continued teaching during winter and farming in the summer season; in 1859, he came to Fond du Lac Co., and settled on his present farm of 100 acres; here he continued to teach during the winter terms, and devote the summer season to agricultural pursuits till 1876, when he gave up the profession after having devoted a good part of twenty years to it, and turned his whole attention to his farm. He was married to Miss Cordelia A., daughter of Guy and Lucinda Williams, of Deerfield, Lake Co., Ill., in 1851; they have eleven children—Emma, now Mrs. Thomas Huston, of Fond du Lac Township; Ella, Mrs. Henry Brown, of Lamartine; Addie, Eugene, Ettie, Minnie, Clara, Loin, Carl, Ida, Hattie. Mr. Johnson was Chairman of the Town Board of Lamartine for two years; member of County Board for same length of time, also Town Treasurer for two years. His wife is a member of the Methodist Church.

CHILTON F. JOHNSON, deceased; was a native of Bridgeport, Vt.; was born May 27, 1823; he made his home with parents on a farm in his native State, till his marriage, Sept. 22, 1846, to Miss Sarah, daughter of Solomon Jenner, of that State. In 1847, they immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled in the town of Taycheedah, Fond du Lac Co., where he followed farming for ten years; he then purchased a farm of 285 acres in Secs. 35 and 36, town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., where he continued farming and stock-raising till his death, July 23, 1879; he was the father of seven children, five of whom, with wife, survived him—Darwin, deceased; Anna E., now Mrs. B. F. Monroe, of Blair, Washington Co., Neb.; Darwin, Jr., now an M. D., of Fox Lake, Wis.; Mary A.; Frank C.; an infant daughter (deceased); Wallace L. The fitting words of the Rev. J. B. Cole, Pastor of the M. E. Church of Lamartine, in his funeral notice, may well be inserted in this biographical sketch: "In March, 1846, he was converted and joined the church, and was for many years an active office-bearer in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and remained until promoted to the church triumphant; he was a man of a warm heart, generous impulses and great sympathy; he was a devoted husband, a kind father and a worthy citizen, who is very much missed; his end was a decided victory; as the end drew nigh he exclaimed, morning, noon and night, 'I have no fear; I have tried to serve my God faithfully, and now I leave the rest.' His sufferings were great, but he bore them without a murmur; he awaited the approach of death with a perfect calmness; gladly did he close his eyes on earth to open them in Heaven."

JOHN KRAEMER, proprietor of blacksmith-shop, Lamartine, is a son of Philip and Margaret Kraemer; born in Washington Co., Wis., April 10, 1855; when about 14 years of age, he began his trade with Seamon & Goebel, of Waupun, and, after remaining with them two and a half years, has since continued it at Oakfield, Burnsville Junction, Fond du Lac, Brandon, Fair Water, and established the shop here in April, 1876, with a capital of $1,000, where he carries on all branches of the blacksmithing business, and makes a specialty of horseshoeing. In August, 1876, married Miss Minnie, daughter of Fred Kraemer, of Fond du Lac, but a native of Germany. They have two children—Edward and Elmer. Mr. and Mrs. Kraemer are members of the Lutheran Church; politically, he is a Democrat.

PETER W. LAING, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Eldorado Mills; was born in Brechin, Scotland, January 1, 1810, and is the son of William Laing and Jane Montgomery, natives of Montrose, Scotland. Our subject is the oldest living of seven children, five of whom were daughters; when 10 years of age, he was apprenticed to the flux-dresser's trade, in Montrose, which he continued there for nearly twenty-three years. May 28, 1843, he landed in New York, from Liverpool, and went thence direct to Andover, Mass., where he continued his trade in the shoe-thread factory for nine years; in May, 1852, he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he purchased 80 acres in Sec. 19; he has now 120 acres in Sec. 18, 52 in Sec. 19, and 17 acres in Sec. 4, town of Lamartine, where he has since followed farming. Dec. 22, 1832, he married Miss Ann, daughter of Duncan and Fannie (Smith) McIntosh, of Dundee, Scotland. In 1873, Mr. and Mrs. Laing paid a visit to their native land, after an absence of thirty years. They were members of the Church of Scotland.

GEORGE LANG, farmer, Sec. 31; P. O. Lamartine; is the son of Robert and Catharine Lang, natives of New York, but descendants of Scotland; George was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., April 7, 1833; his father died when he was 2 years old; but his devoted mother was long spared him. In the spring of 1856, he, with his mother, emigrated to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of 120 acres, in Sec. 31, town of Lamartine, which has since been his home, and where she died, in 1879; he now has a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 31, town of Lamartine, and 90 acres in Secs. 6 and 7, town of Oakfield. Sept. 25, 1867, he married Miss Leila, daughter of William D. and Almira Ash, of the town of Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., but a native of Montgomery Co., N. Y., from which, she, with her parents, emigrated in 1848. One daughter and two sons have blessed their marriage—Katie, George and William R. They attend the M. E. Church at Lamartine.

IRA McCHAIN, farmer, Secs. 32 and 33; P. O. Lamartine; was born in Westchester Co., N. Y., Oct. 16, 1833, and is the son of James and Sarah McChain, nee Hopkins; when 17 years of age, he entered upon a three-years apprenticeship at the molder's trade, after which he continued it as journeyman in New York for a short time, and then came to Chicago, Ill., about 1848, where he remained nearly one year; in fall of 1849 he came to Fond du Lac, and took a position as clerk in the post office under Charles Tompkins, for the winter, having made a visit to his relatives, Mr. Berry's family, of the town of Empire, the previous year; in the spring of 1850, he formed a copartnership with Levi Tompkins, of Fond du Lac, in the meat-market, which lasted nine years; he was, for the next four years, molder in the Union Iron Works; in August, 1867, he bought a farm of 136 acres in Secs. 32 and 33, town of Lamartine, where he has since followed farming. Oct. 7, 1858, he married Miss Lucinda P., daughter of Harvey and Mary Smith, who were among the first settlers on the Western Reserve of Ohio; three sons have blessed their household—Albert N., Harvey J., and Frank D. Mr. McChain has been a member of the Common Council of Fond du Lac, also School Treasurer of the district where he now resides, for several terms.

RICHARD MACOMBER (deceased), was the oldest son of Jonathan and Eunice Macomber, Quakers, of Keeville, N. Y., born Oct. 2, 1824; when about 20 years old, he began the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he followed more or less for a few years; his father being an extensive farmer, of Essex County, Richard spent much of his time in agricultural pursuits; in 1855, he came to Wisconsin, and soon after bought a farm of 160 acres, in Sec. 8, but did not settle on it for some time. In February, 1861, he married Miss Harriet, a daughter of Norridon and Waity Bennett, who immigrated from Oneida Co., N. Y., to Fond du Lac in 1845, with her father and family, her mother having died in New York in 1839; two years after their arrival in Fond du Lac she went to live with Reuben and Louisa Simmons, with whom she made her home till about two years before her marriage to Mr. Macomber; her father removed to Big Rapids, Mich., where he died March 17, 1879. Immediately after their marriage they removed to the farm in Lamartine, which now consists of 97 acres, and where Mr. Macomber died Dec. 2, 1871, leaving one son—Gerald, by a former marriage.

ASA P. MARSHALL, retired farmer, carpenter and joiner; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of Jefferson Co., N. Y.; he is the son of John and Sally Marshall; born in 1818; when 19 years of age he entered upon an apprenticeship at the molders' trade, in the machine-shops of Adams, Jefferson Co., N. Y.; continued there for ten years; his health not permitting him to continue that trade longer, he then took up the carpenter and joiner's trade, which he has followed most of the time since. In 1843, he married Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Nicholas and Abigail Marshall, of Jefferson Co.; in spring of 1846, they immigrated to Milwaukee, Wis.; remaining there a few months, they went thence to White River, Mich., where he followed the trade for three years; in 1849, he removed to a farm in the town of Lamartine.

Fond du Lac Co., Wis., which he had entered two years previous; one year after, they returned to Michigan for three years longer; in 1852, they came again to Lamartine, which has since been their abiding place. They have one daughter—Edna A., and are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

ADAM MENSCH, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Woodhull; is the son of Peter and Elizabeth Mensch, and brother to Peter, whose biography appears in this work. He was born in Prussia Nov. 17, 1822; came with his parents to Ohio, and in 1846 to Fond du Lac; he entered forty acres of land in Sec. 11, town of Lamartine, which has been his home most of the time since. Jan. 29, 1850, he married Miss Elizabeth, daughter of John and Anna M. Wagner, native of Nassau, Germany, but early settlers of this town (Lamartine); they have had three children—Elizabeth, Anna Caroline (deceased) and H. William; members of the Evangelical Church.

PETER MENSCH, farmer, P. O. Woodhull; Sec. 11; was born in Prussia Feb. 17, 1825, and, with his parents, Peter and Elizabeth Mensch, he emigrated to America in 1836, and settled in Stark Co., Ohio, where they followed farming for ten years; April 5, 1846, they reached Fond du Lac, and soon after settled on a farm southeast of the city for one year; they then removed to the town of Lamartine, which has since been their home, and where he has now eighty acres of land in southwest quarter of Sec. 11, which he entered in 1847. Dec. 26, 1851, he married Miss Fredricka, only daughter of Gotlieb and Fredricka Grosse, a native of Saxony; they have two children—Fredricka, now Mrs. Morris Lewis, of the town of Springvale, Fond du Lac Co., John. They are members of the Lutheran Church.

CHARLES MILLER, farmer, Secs. 4 and 9; P. O. Woodhull; is the son of Henry and Sophia Miller, born in Washington Co., Wis., Oct. 8, 1853; when 5 years of age, he, with parents, removed to the city of Fond du Lac, where he followed lumbering and teaming for a number of years. Dec. 20, 1879, he married Miss Minnie, daughter of William Smith, of Eldorado, and now resides on Sec. 9, where he has a farm of 125 acres in that and Sec. 4; they attend the Methodist Church.

CONRAD MILLER, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Lamartine; is a son of Henry and Martha Miller, born in Prussia in 1807; he emigrated to America in 1836; landed at New York and then came to Detroit, Mich., where, in 1838, he enlisted as a recruit of Co. D, of the Fifth Infantry, regular army, then stationed at Ft. Winnebago, Wis.; in 1841, the regiment was ordered from there to Ft. Gratiot, Mich., where they remained till 1845, and were then sent to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., but Mr. Miller being on a furlough at the time, was written by his Captain from the barracks to join his company at once; on receiving this notice, he started on foot for his regiment, but by the time he reached Jefferson Barracks, the regiment had started for Corpus Christi, Texas; Gen. Brooks being then at St. Louis, he detained Mr. Miller a week, and placed him in charge of a recruiting corps, with orders to take them to Gen. Vorse, then the commanding officer of his division of the army; he then returned to Newport, near Louisville, Ky., and from there took fifty more recruits to his regiment and rejoined his company at Corpus Christi; his term of enlistment expiring in 1846, he re-enlisted and served under Gen. Taylor till the battle of Monterey, where his regiment was so badly cut up that he was soon sent on another recruiting service to Mauch Chunk, Penn.; was under Gen. Scott, at Vera Cruz, and served till 1851; was in the battle of Chapultepec, where they lost four Captains and Maj. Scott; in 1848, they returned via New Orleans to Ft. Towson, in the Indian Territory; in 1849, they guarded the first emigrants to California, from Ft. Smith to Santa Fe; returning to Ft. Towson, they were sent in 1850 to Camp Arbuckle, in the northern part of the Indian Territory; while here during part of the years of 1850-51, he carried the United States mail from that point to Ft. Smith; he was discharged in February, 1851, when he came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of eighty acres on Sec. 26, town of Lamartine, and has since followed farming; he now has 195 acres in that section. Feb. 5, 1852, he married Miss Catharine, daughter of Joseph and Geneva Ruff, of Black Forest, Baden, Germany; they have seven children, whose names and births are as follows: Caroline, born Nov. 18, 1852; Annette and Louise (twins), April 26, 1854; Winfield S., May 20, 1856; Emily, Oct. 24, 1857; Adell R., April 6, 1860; Mary M., May 1, 1865. Caroline, Annette and Louise have been teachers in the public schools of Fond du Lac Co.; Miss Annette is now editress of the Lamartine Literary Journal; the family is connected with the Baptist Church.

JASON MONROE, farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Lamartine; was born in Jericho, Chittenden Co., Vt., May 12, 1801; is the son of Jesse Monroe (a farmer) and Susan Stone; he followed farming, the shoemaker's and cooper's trades, and various other kinds of business there till 1847; in June, 1847, came to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and settled on a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 35; he now has twenty acres in another section; Lamartine has been his home since he came to Wisconsin. Oct. 27, 1828, he married Miss Jerusha, daughter of Hiram and Rhoda Rublee, nee Moore, of Berkshire, Franklin Co., Vt.; they have had eight children—Orlando, deceased; Otis, deceased; Edgar, a druggist, of Blair, Neb.; Sidney H., of Lamartine; Almira (now Mrs. Silas Stone, of Glenbeulah, Sheboygan Co., Wis.), Laura J., Mrs. E. A. Hale, of Lamartine; Byron F., M. D., of Blair, Neb.; Otto H., of Lamartine. They are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. M. has held school and various other offices in the town.

SIDNEY H. MONROE, farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Eldorado Mills; is a son of Jason and Jeru-ha Monroe, immigrants to town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., in 1847; he lived with his parents on Sec. 35 of this town, till about 17 years old, when he entered upon an apprenticeship at the carpenter and joiner's trade, with Hill & Webster, which he continued till 1863. In November of that year, he enlisted in Co. A, 2d W. V. C., under Col. Stevens; was with the Army of the West in the battles of Oak Grove, Mo., Egypt Station, Mo., Yazoo City, Miss., and a number of other smaller battles; was mustered out of service at Austin, Tex., in November, 1865, and reached his home in December following; he continued the carpenter's trade for three years, and in October, 1868, bought a farm of fifty-eight acres in Secs. 19 and 20, town of Lamartine, where he has since followed farming. Nov. 15, 1863, he married Miss Maggie A., daughter of David Hendry and Janet Hall, natives of Brechin, Scotland, but immigrants to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., in 1848; her mother died in three months after their arrival. The children are Janet H., Jason D., David D., (deceased), Sedate A., Maude A., Sarah M. and William Berthold. Mr. Monroe has been a member of the Town Board for two years; politically, he is a Republican.

AUGUSTINE D. NASH, farmer, Sec. 31; P. O. Lamartine; was born in Summit Co., Ohio, in November, 1822, and is the son of Phineas and Fidelia Nash; his mother dying when he was about a month old, he was taken to live with his grandfather Nash, near Williamsburg, Mass., where he made his home till 6 years of age; his father, having married a second time, he then returned to his home in Ohio, and lived on the farm with his father till 24 years of age; he next followed various kinds of labor in Ohio and Kentucky for seven years. Dec. 19, 1850, he married Miss Nancy, daughter of William and Mary Meridith, of Summit Co., Ohio, and in the fall of 1851, they emigrated to Fond du Lac County, and settled on a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 2, town of Forest, which he bought in the fall of 1846, while on his first visit to this county; he soon bought another eighty joining the first in the same section, and afterward bought another farm of eighty acres in Sec. 14, to which he removed and made his home till 1867, when he disposed of his interest there and bought a farm of 121 acres in Sec. 34, town of Lamartine, for $50 per acre, where he has since followed farming and stock-raising; he carries on a small dairy, and has 100 head of sheep. In February, 1865, he enlisted in Co. H, 14th W. V. I., under Col. Ward, for one year; was sent to Mobile, where his regiment was mustered out in November, 1865; he held the office of School Clerk in district for several years, in the town of Forest, and for nine years in the town of Lamartine; in spring of 1879, he was elected Chairman of the Town Board. They have three children—Helen A., now Mrs. Thomas Orchard, of Lamartine; Mary E., now Mrs. John H. Quick, of Lamartine, and Charles S.

ENOCH PALMER, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of the Province of New Brunswick; he is the son of Enoch and Lydia Palmer, nee Burpee; was born in May, 1822; his father being a farmer and lumberman, Enoch spent most of his time at the same business; at the age of 17, he went to Canada West, where his father had purchased a farm, and there, with a brother, spent about three years at farming; he then returned to his home in New Brunswick, and, in the fall of 1846, with his brother, immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm on Sec. 16, town of Oakfield; in the following year (1847), he sold out his farm in Oakfield, and purchased another in Sec. 29, town of Lamartine, where he was one of the first settlers, and now has 289 acres, and 159 acres in Sec. 36, town of Springvale; in 1850, he went to California, and for two years was engaged principally in mining. He then returned to Lamartine, and, in August, 1853, he married Miss Sarah, daughter of William and Hannah Tripp, of Canada West, but a native of New Brunswick, her parents having immigrated to Canada, where they afterward died—her mother at the age of 75; twelve children have been born unto them, as follows—Elizabeth, now Mrs. Joseph Spafford, of Fond du Lac; Apphia, now Mrs. Charles Galloway, of Oakfield; Ella M., who, with her younger brother, Enoch, lives on the farm in Springvale; John M., Milford P., Clara A., Chester, Franklin, Fredrick, Annette A., Victor. They all attend the Baptist Church of Lamartine.

GEORGE GRAFTON PIKE, farmer, cooper and carpenter, Sec. 35; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of Mt. Vernon, Hillsboro, Co., N. H., and is the son of Ephraim and Nancy Pike; born Dec. 11, 1814; when 4 years of age, he, with his parents, removed to Burlington, Vt., where he made his home for twenty-five years, and worked at the cooper's trade most of the time; in May, 1847, he immigrated to New Buffalo, Berrien Co., Mich., where he continued his trade for two years; in the spring of 1849, he removed to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., settled on a farm of eighty acres, in Sec. 33; followed farming for four years; in 1853, he sold that, and bought a place of sixteen acres in Sec. 35, where he has since lived, and devoted his attention to the carpenter and joiner's trade, and also farming. Dec. 17, 1837, he married Miss Clara H., daughter of Charles and Nancy Grannis (nee Bean), of Burlington, Vt., but a native of Onondaga Co., N. Y.; they have adopted one daughter—Julia M. Mrs. Pike is a member of the Baptist Church; politically, Mr. Pike is a Democrat.

ALONZO F. QUICK, farmer; P. O. Lamartine; born in Schenectady Co., N. Y., in 1828; son of Mary and John Quick, a shoemaker of that county; the subject of this sketch received his education in the common schools of his native place; at the age of 15, he left home and hired out to work at farming during the summer months, and was at home winters; in 1854, he bought a small farm of fifty acres, and lived in that place until 1863, when he sold out and came West to Lamartine, buying the farm on which he now resides of 147½ acres, known as the Meekin place. Mr. Quick married, in Schenectady Co., N. Y., in 1854, Jeannette, daughter of Eliza and Ephraim Ladd, a farmer; they have three children—John H., Elwood E., Willie W.; family attend the Baptist Church, and he is, politically, a Republican.

ALEXANDER A. RAMSEY is a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and is the son of Alexander and Ann Ramsay; born in July, 1838. In 1841, with parents, he came to America and settled in Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; in 1843, they removed to Andover, Mass., where his father continued the flax-dresser's trade, which he had learned when a boy, in Scotland; two years later they immigrated to Dodge Co., Wis., and settled in the town of Clyman, where he lived most of the time till November, 1875; in 1863, he went to California, where he followed scroll-sawing part of the time, and spent the rest in traveling over various parts of the State; he returned to Dodge Co. in the fall of 1866, and made it his home till 1875, as above stated; in November of that year, he bought a farm of 158½ acres in Sec. 20, town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where he has since lived. March 3, 1860, he married Mrs. Jeanette, widow of William M. Kellie, and daughter of Peter and Isabelle Gardner, nee Ferguson, and natives of Scotland, but immigrants to Wisconsin in 1854, she having at time of second marriage three children—William M., now of Minneapolis, Minn.; James G., of same place; Agnes, Mrs. James Collins, also of Minneapolis; they have five children—Alexander G., Jeannette, Margaret A., John A., and Walter D. Mr. R. has been Justice of the Peace of this town for four years. Politically, is a Republican; they are members of the Baptist Church.

JOSEPH SCHIAEFFER, farmer, carpenter and joiner; was born in Prussia May 26, 1824, and is the son of Joseph and Christina Schaefer, both of whom died in Germany. April 26, 1846, he married Mary Handshumaker, of Prussia, and, April 27, 1849, sailed for America and landed in New York, and May 17 following, reached Fond du Lac, where he followed the carpenter and joiner's trade for a number of years; in 1850, he bought a farm of forty acres in Sec. 11, town of Lamartine, to which he removed his family, and which has since been their home; he still continues his trade much of the time; he now has fifteen acres of land in Sec. 15. They have had eleven children—Mary A., now Mrs. John Schnnar, of Eldorado; Daniel; Catharine, now Mrs. Casper Hoffmann, of Fond du Lac City; Joseph; Elizabeth, now Mrs. Casper Jagdfeld, of Fond du Lac; John, Michael, Fredricka, Mathias, Frank Annie. Members of the Catholic Church.

JACOB SCHMIDT, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. Woodhull; was born in Prussia July 10, 1833, and is the fourth son of Mathias and Mary Schmidt, with whom he came to Wisconsin in 1847, and settled on a farm in the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., where he now has a farm of 140 acres in Secs. 2 and 11. March 31, 1856, he married Miss Christina, daughter of Mathias and Genoeffa Reidmeier, a native of Wurtemberg, Germany; they have had nine children, five of whom died of diphtheria, within two weeks' time, in the year 1878; their names and births, and deaths of the deceased, are as follows—Helena, born April 29, 1859, died Nov. 9, 1860; Mary, born July 4, 1861, died Aug. 4, 1878; Helena, Jr., born Nov. 29, 1863, died July 19, 1878; John N., born Jan. 17, 1866, died July 20, 1878; Michael F., born July 23, 1868, died July 25, 1878; Joseph G., born July 26, 1874, died July 28, 1878; Catharine, born Dec. 19, 1870; Maggie, born Aug. 8, 1872; Dena K., born July 15, 1877. They are members of St. John's Catholic Church.

PETER SERESSE, cooper and farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Fond du Lac; is a son of Peter and Jennie Seresse; born in Prussia in 1842; when 15 years of age, he began the cooper's trade with his father, and with him and family came to America in 1865, and settled on a farm in the town of Eldorado, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., where his father followed farming, though he worked in a brewery for J. & C. Frey, in the city of Fond du Lac; in 1874, he purchased a farm of seventy acres in Sec. 13, town of Lamartine, where he followed farming in the summer, and the cooper's trade during the winter.

In 1874, he married Miss Augusta, daughter of Fredrick and Mena Henry, who came with parents from Germany to Fond du Lac Co., Wis., when 2 years and 6 months old; they have three children—Anna M., Mena and Peter F. They are members of the Evangelical Church of Fond du Lac.

STEPHEN W. SMITH, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of Dutchess Co., N. Y., and is the son of Phillip and Cynthia Smith, nee Smith; born Dec. 1, 1816; when quite young he, with parents, removed to Ulster Co., N. Y., and settled in the village of Woodstock, where his father followed teaching for a number of years; in 1849, he, with wife and family, immigrated to Wisconsin and settled on a farm of eighty acres in Sec. 20—the east half of the southwest quarter—town of Lamartine, which has since been their home. April 23, 1842, he married Miss Huldah A., daughter of John and Sophia Tompkins, nee Maise, of Greene Co., N. Y.; their children are as follows—Aletta, Emily M. (now Mrs. Thomas Mason, of Fond du Lac), Cynthia S., Melissa (now Mrs. Jerald Maccumber, of Lamartine), Barnum E., of Harlan Co., Neb.; John W., of Harlan Co., Neb., and Charles Fremont. They are members of the M. E. Church; Mr. Smith is a Republican, politically.

ORVILLE J. SOPER, farmer, Sec. 23; P. O. Fond du Lac; was born in Bristol, Addison Co., Vt., Feb. 26, 1807, and is the son of Enos Soper and Desire Drake, natives of Massachusetts; when 14 years of age, he began the trade of a millwright with his father, and afterward continued it in his native State till 1836; he then immigrated to Wisconsin, and settled at Green Bay; he built the first saw and grist mill at De Pere, Wis., and continued his trade in Green Bay and vicinity for nine years; in 1845, he came to Fond du Lac and built the well-known "Soper's Mill," two miles south of the city, of which he was proprietor for twenty-five years; in 1870, he bought a farm of 120 acres in Secs. 23 and 26, town of Lamartine, where he has since followed farming, and now has a farm of eighty acres. At Monkton, Addison Co., Vt., June 8, 1836, he married Miss Helena S., daughter of Captain and Sally Kendrick, nee Eastman; they have four children—Charles K. (deceased), William E. (deceased), Rodney W. H., who married Miss Lola E. Mitchell, of Lamartine; Delia A., Mrs. Christian Block, of McLennan Co., Tex. Mr. Soper has been a member of the Masonic Fraternity for more than fifty years.

MARTIN STRATZ, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Woodhull; was born in Baden, Germany, Nov. 17, 1829, and is the son of Sabastin and Magdaline Stratz; at the age of 16, he entered upon an apprenticeship at the clockmaker's trade in his native city, which continued for four years, and then returned to his father's farm for two years; in October, 1852, with his wife Maria, a daughter of Joseph and Maria Lehman, sailed for America, and landed in New York in the following December; they came thence to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., and bought a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 9, where he has since lived, and is now a member of the Town Board. Politically, he is a Democrat. The children are Joseph, John, Martin, Louis, Wilhelmena (now Mrs. Stephen Lisowi, of this town, Lamartine), Mary and Emma. They are members of the Catholic Church.

JOHN UERLING (deceased) was a native of Prussia, and son of John and Catharine Uerling; born April 6, 1794, and, in 1820, married Miss Anna M., daughter of Michael and Anna Catharine Poetz, of the Rhine Province, Germany. He followed farming in his native country till 1850, when, in May, of that year, he, with wife and family of six children, immigrated to America, and settled on a farm on Sec. 11, town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; here he died January 10, 1868, leaving a wife and five children to survive him; their children were as follows: Michael (who married Clementina Koch, of this town—Lamartine—in May, 1854, and is the father of eight children), Mary (now Mrs. Urland Landre), Catharine (deceased), Josephine (deceased), John, of Lake Superior; Christina Margaret (deceased), Francis and William (deceased); he has twenty acres in Sec. 11, town of Lamartine, and is proprietor of a saloon; the second daughter is Catharine (now Mrs. John Pass, of the town of Fond du Lac). William, who died in 1852; Margaret (now Mrs. Daniel Schaefer, of Fond du Lac); John, of California; Frank, who married Miss Margaret, daughter of Mathias and Catharine Schaefer, of this town, May 4, 1878, by whom he has had eight children, as follows: Mathias J., John (deceased), Catharine, Agnes, Christina, Clementina, Josephine and John. He has forty acres of land on Sec. 11, town of Lamartine. They are all members of the Catholic Church.

WILLIAM S. WARNER, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Lamartine; is a native of Jefferson Co., N. Y., and is the son of Seth Warner and Ether Drake; born Aug. 5, 1820; in April, 1821, his parents removed to the town of Le Roy, Genesee Co., N. Y., where his father died June 30, 1840; in December, 1843, he left his home in York State for Charlestown, Portage Co., Ohio, where he followed farm laboring for nearly a year; in September, 1844, he returned to Genesee Co., taking passage on board the steamer "Julia Palmer" at Cleveland for Buffalo; and, April 13, 1845, he started westward to try his fortune in the wilds of Wisconsin; coming via Milwaukee, he reached the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., April 26, just thirteen days after leaving his home in New York; he at once pre-empted eighty acres of land in Sec. 30, of that town, which was his home till April 1, 1858, and where his mother and the rest of the family joined him in six months after his arrival; his older brother having immigrated to Wisconsin about six months before him; here his mother died April 29, 1852. Dec. 9, 1846, he married Miss Martha E., daughter of Abner and Damarius Beebe nee Wicks, of the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., but immigrated from the town of Byron, Genesee Co., N. Y., at the same time Mr. Warner came; she died Dec. 14, 1850, leaving one son, Charles F., now of Lamartine. Oct. 22, 1851, he married Miss Hannah, daughter of James and Hannah Craig, of the town of Byron, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., but immigrants from the Mohawk Valley, N. Y.; she died April 27, 1857, leaving three children—William H., of Lamartine; Esther A. (deceased) and Alice E. Nov. 23, 1857, he was married to Mrs. Adaline C., widow of the late William Jones, deceased, of Lamartine, and daughter of Elias and Sally Faucher, immigrant from Wyoming Co., N. Y.; they have one son—Clark E. In April, 1858, he removed to a farm on Sec. 22, town of Lamartine, where he has since lived, and now has ninety-seven acres of land—the north half of the southwest quarter, and seventeen acres of the east half of the south quarter of the southwest quarter. Mr. Warner was Chairman of the Town Board for a number of years, was also elected a member of the Wisconsin Assembly from the Third Assembly District in 1877. Mr. and Mrs. Warner are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and have always taken an active part in all its interests.

JACOB WEDEMAN (deceased). The subject of this sketch was one of the first settlers in the town of Lamartine, having come in 1844; he was the son of Jacob and Sophia Wedeman, and was born near Albany, Albany Co., N. Y., Dec. 25, 1812; his father was a native of York State, his mother of Holland. When 16 years of age, with parents, he removed to the town of Cicero, N. Y., where, in March, 1836, he married Miss Ann, daughter of Matthias and Sally Morris (nee Lathrop), and, in the following spring (1837), they immigrated to Wisconsin; landing in New York, they came, via the lakes, to Milwaukee, where they stopped for three weeks, thence to Oconomowoc for a short time; they removed thence to Watertown, Wis., and there kept the first boarding-house of that place. About four months later, they removed to a farm near Watertown, where he followed farming for two years; then returned to Oconomowoc and there followed the cooper's trade, which he learned in the State of New York, when about 18 years of age; in 1844, they removed to the town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., where he followed farming for three years; he next went to Fox River, Winnebago Co., Wis., for another three years; in 1852, he went to California, where a little more than three years he was engaged in mining, lumbering, etc. During his absence, in 1854, his wife bought a farm of 160 acres in Sec. 29, town of Lamartine, Fond du Lac Co., which has since been the home of the family. Jan. 20, 1862, he enlisted in Co. A, 14th W. V. I., under Col. Wood, of Fond du Lac; he was in the battle of Shiloh and siege of Vicksburg, where he was killed May 19, 1863, in the first movement; they had five children, as follows—Orilla, now Mrs. Peter Stark, of Hortonville, Outagamie Co., Wis.; Emily, was Mrs. Orrin Baden, of Kansas, now deceased; Chauncey, who served three years in the late war with the 32d W. V. I.; Sarah Jane, now Mrs. George Temple of Eldorado; William W., who enlisted in the same company and regiment as Chauncey, but discharged by President Lincoln, after the death of his father. Mrs. Wedeman is a member of the M. E. Church.

METOMEN TOWNSHIP.

JOHN ABERCROMBIE, lumber merchant, Brandon; born April 19, 1830, in Kingsley, Canada East; his father was a farmer and drover, and John was early inured to the labors of the farm and accustomed to the care of stock, and this will account for his well-known admiration for fine stock, especially horses; from the fall of 1851 to the spring of 1855, he was in Boston, Mass., engaged in the express business as delivery agent for Baker & Eaton. He was married, in November, 1854, to Miss Harriet Earl, of Maine; they came to Wisconsin in January, 1856, and that same season he bought the lots and built a small house on the same land where, in 1877, he erected his present residence; they have five children—Louis R., John A., Guita, Caroline and Charles H. For ten years he engaged in farming and grain-buying; since 1867, he has been in the lumber trade, he was for some time foreman for a firm, afterward partner, and for several years has been proprietor. He was a member of the first Village Board of Brandon; he is not at present connected with any secret society; his wife is a Methodist. Mr. Abercrombie is familiar with all the changes and improvements which this village has undergone since the jolly times when "Bunggo" was its name down to the dignified days of Brandon. He is an active Republican.

WILLIAM D. ASH, dealer in grain, produce and agricultural implements, Brandon; was born in Saratoga Co., N. Y., April 23, 1818; his parents were farmers, and he worked on a farm till he was of age, after which he served an apprenticeship as carpenter and joiner, and he continued to work at his trade until his marriage. He married, Feb. 21, 1844, Miss Elmira Putnam, of Onondaga Co., N. Y. In 1846, he came West and settled in the township of Oakfield, Fond du Lac Co., Wis., on 160 acres, which he still owns; he now owns 1,059 acres of land in this county, besides many village lots and one business block; also has 365 acres in Iowa. They have had six children, of whom five are married and living in Fond du Lac Co., and the other one is dead; their names are Helen M., Leila, William H., David (dead), Adelbert and Eddie. He moved to Brandon in 1868 and built his present residence, and also, in partnership with F. M. Hillman, bought eighty acres adjoining the village, and platted as an addition to Brandon; the next year he purchased a farm near the village, which claimed his attention; in the spring of 1870, he bought a store and stock of dry goods from F. M. Hillman, and sold the same, in the fall of 1872, to R. C. Kelly; for two years he attended to his farms, and also sold considerable wood and timber; since 1874, he has been engaged in buying grain, produce and live stock, and in the sale of agricultural implements; he was School Superintendent in the township of Amsterdam, N. Y., in 1844; in the township of Oakfield he was Assessor and Supervisor; also Justice of the Peace for fifteen years; he is a member of the Brandon Board of Trustees, and has been Chairman two years from Brandon; he is not a member of any secret society. Himself and wife affiliate with the Congregational Church; he is a consistent, reliable Democrat. Although a large producer, he is nevertheless most efficient and useful as a "middleman;" anybody with anything to sell is assured of an offer by calling on W. D. Ash; he ships both to the Milwaukee and Chicago markets.

DEACON JOSIAH BATSON, farmer; P. O. Fairwater; born in Otsego Co., N. Y., in July, 1829; he is of English parentage; he worked on his father's farm till he removed to the West in 1852; he bought land immediately on his arrival in the county, which he kept till 1862. He was married July 10, 1853, to Miss Arabell Wells, of Green Lake; they have had six children—M. Josephine, Warren A., Fayette J., Lora Belle; the other two children died in infancy. Has lived since 1862 on his present farm, Sec. 29, Metomen Township; has 300 acres on this homestead; has also an improved farm of 160 acres in Minnesota; he began life poor, has now a competency; he is well known as the leading sheep-raiser of that region; he now has 550 grade Merino sheep; fleece averaged about seven pounds each last season; his barns are commodious, and nearly new, having been, not long ago, entirely destroyed by fire, with all their contents; loss fully $4,000. His wife has been in delicate health for several years; her mother, Mary Wells, aged 82, lives with them, and is still active, and claims the privilege of caring for the milk of five cows. For several years, Mr. Batson has been a Deacon in the Baptist Church; he is a conservative Republican.

JOHN H. BERNING, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Brandon; born April 12, 1815, in Westphalia, Prussia; came to America in 1847, and pre-empted forty acres of his present farm; afterward, he bought fifty acres more, and his homestead now contains ninety acres, of which fully fifty are cultivated; he has also a house and two lots in Brandon. He was married, in 1849, to Miss Eva Dina Liesveld, of Arnheim, Holland; have had nine children—Henry, born in 1850, married Lena Freze in 1876; Garret, born in 1851, died in 1864; James, born in 1853, married Adella Videto in 1875; John, born in 1855, died in 1859; Eva Dina, born in 1857, married D. A. Duitman in 1879; Anna, born in 1859, died in 1862; Mary, born in 1861; John, born in 1864, and Anna, born in 1869. He raises extra wheat; his son, Johnnie, raises blooded poultry. Mr. Berning is a Republican; he has good improvements, and is a thrifty farmer and a good citizen.

ADELBERT M. BLY, farmer, Sec. 14; P. O. Brandon; born in Madison Co., N. Y., Dec. 19, 1837; came West with his parents in 1851, and from that time to the present his home has been in this township. He enlisted Aug. 5, 1862, in the United States Service, and was honorably discharged on the 12th of June, 1865; he was in the Western army, and went with Sherman to the sea; he came home as First Lieutenant of Co. B, 32d W. V. I.; in the spring of 1865, he endured peculiar hardships and exposure while wading the swamps of South Carolina; those experiences have told upon his health. He was married, June 6, 1867, to Miss Anna Burdick, of Green Lake; they have three children—Mabel, Myrtie A. and George S. He has eighty acres, nearly all tillable. He is Superintendent of Schools under the township system. Himself and wife are Methodists; he is a consistent Republican and an honorable citizen.

DEACON GEORGE BLY, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Brandon; was born May 25, 1813, in Eaton, Madison Co., N. Y. He has been a farmer all his life. He was married on the 8th of March, 1837, to Miss Catharine M. Pearce. In the fall of 1839, he moved to Chautauqua Co., N. Y., where he lived nearly fifteen years; they came West in the spring of 1854, and located on the present homestead of 160 acres; they had seven children—Adelbert M., born Dec. 19, 1837, married in 1866; Asa F., born in 1841, married in 1871; Lydia J., born in 1843, married in 1861; Eliza A., born in 1845, died in 1874; Sarah P., born in 1847, married in 1871; Izora E., born in 1850, married in 1875; C. Myrtilla, born in 1851. Deacon Bly has held but one local office, and the results of that are seen in the straightened and improved highways. His son, Adelbert M., served as a soldier in the rebellion from 1862 to 1865; his health was impaired while in the army; he came home First Lieutenant of Co. B, 32d W. V. I. Mrs. Bly died Dec. 26, 1879, aged near 67 years; the last years of her life were passed in great suffering, but with Christian fortitude. Her youngest daughter is now housekeeper for her father. He has been Deacon of the Congregational Church at Brandon for nearly twenty-five years; he is not a member of any secret society; is a Republican; never had a lawsuit; is benevolent and beloved.

AMOS BOND, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Brandon; born July 4, 1803, in Eden, Orleans Co., Vt.; has always been a farmer. Married, Dec. 5, 1827, Anna Duntley, of New Hampshire. They came to Wisconsin in 1837, and settled in Geneva, Walworth Co.; when he reached the place, he had a wife, four children and 50 cents, and was in debt $5 for drawing his household goods from Racine; that season he bought a house, costing, with land, $500, and paid for it in full by making oak shingles by hand, and also supported his family, paying $30 per barrel for flour and $10 for pork; his labor netted him $5 per day; he bought a farm and carried it on about six years in that county; in the spring of 1847, he came to Fond du Lac Co. and settled on Sec. 24, in Metomen Township; after exchanging farms twice, he located on his present homestead in 1864; there is now 220 acres in the farm. They have had nine children—Sarah J., Pamela M., Cephas H., Robert R. (dead), Amanda E., George W., Charles M., Albert A. and Frank A.; they have twenty-six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. In 1871, they sold the farm to their son George, with whom they make their home. Has been Assessor. Himself and wife are Methodists; he is a stalwart Democrat.

J. H. BROWN, merchant and Postmaster, Fairwater; was born in Sutton, Vt., in 1834; is a painter by trade; he came West in 1857. He enlisted in the 32d W. V. I., and served three years, and was honorably discharged. He is unmarried. Keeps a grocery and notion store, and is Postmaster. Is a Good Templar and a Republican. Is genial and popular.

HARRIS BROWN, firm of H. & J. H. Brown, groceries, stationery and confectioneries, Fairwater, was born in Rhode Island in 1804; came West in 1857; settled in Fairwater in 1860; is by trade a wagon-maker. In 1831, he married Miss Roxana Sleeper, in Vermont; had two children—Mary A. and John H.; his wife died in 1853. He is a Republican and a Methodist.

JOHN CARTER, farmer, Sec. 20; P. O. Fairwater; born June 2, 1813, in Lunenburg, Warester Co., Mass.; his earliest recollections are of the old farm and Massachusetts homestead, but years of his later youth were passed in New Hampshire; at the age of 18, he moved to Erie Co., Penn., where he resided fifteen years. He was married July 17, 1833, to Miss Elizabeth Wasson, of Wayne, Erie Co., Penn.; for a dozen seasons, they carried on farming in Pennsylvania; in 1844, they followed the "star of empire," and found a new home in the Territory of Wisconsin; they stopped the first winter in Manchester, Green Lake Co., and on the 30th of June, 1845, they entered their roofless cabin, and slept sweetly for the first time on the farm and near their present hospitable home; Mr. Carter had "rolled up" the logs for this cabin in the month preceding, with aid brought from fifteen miles (Manchester); the first birth in the township was in that cabin that season—Franklin French—whose parents' thatched cabin was burned soon after its erection; the first family in the township preceded one week only the advent of Mr. Carter's family; sickness, accidents and delays were the lot of this family the season before coming West, while on the journey and during the first season as pioneers; the first money earned by Mr. Carter in the West, was through helping to run his brother's old open-cylinder thrashing machine; in August, 1845, they began a tour of thrashing, which continued until February of the following year, and to find grain, they made a circuit of three counties—Green Lake, Dodge and Fond du Lac; some of the now well-known farmers for whom he thrashed, are John Bamister, Colwert Pier and his two brothers; Colwert Pier's grain was stacked and thrashed a few blocks north of the present site of the American House in Fond du Lac City; he also thrashed for Gov. Tallmadge, and Messrs. Conklin, Clark, Simmons and Wilcox, of Waupun. In 1849, on his own farm, he thrashed wheat one morning, but the machine broke down before 9 o'clock; he took a grist to Fairwater to mill, when he went for blacksmithing repairs; the flour was returned, and the hot baked biscuits made therefrom by Mrs. Carter were eaten at the 11:30

A. M. dinner. In 1848, Mr. Carter built what was called for years the best dwelling in the township. By 1850, Fairwater was quite a little village, schoolhouses and churches were being erected, and the new country had many of the essentials of New England civilization; Mr. Carter now has five improved farms, aggregating 460 acres, of which fully 400 are now under the plow. Mr. and Mrs. Carter have added to the census eight sons and four daughters, of whom five sons and one daughter are living—Mary A. (deceased), Sarah E. (deceased); George W. (the present Warden of the Wisconsin State Prison at Waupun), James W., Harrison D. (deceased), Charles S., Alvin H. (deceased), Eliza B., Edward B., Henrietta L. (deceased), Louis E., and Herbert E. (deceased); three of the sons served through the rebellion, as soldiers in Wisconsin regiments, and a fourth one was four years in the army as clerk in the Commissary and Paymaster's departments; Mr. Carter's family were the second settlers in Metomen Township. Mrs. Carter is a motherly matron, whom many in that region regard as indispensable in sickness. Mr. Carter was the first Postmaster in Metomen Township; has been Assessor and Town Chairman, and held other local offices; he is a "true-blue" Republican, and is actively interested in local and general politics. Himself and wife are not connected with any church, but they are in sympathy with all institutions designed to benefit mankind, and their faith looks to the ultimate happiness of all humanity; they are a genial, hospitable and highly respected family.

F. COLLINS, farmer, Sec. 32; P. O. Fairwater; born in Warsaw, Wyoming Co., N. Y., on the 9th of May, 1822; has always been a farmer. Was married, Oct. 16, 1842, to Miss Louisa A. Norman, of Wyoming Co., N. Y.; removed to Michigan in 1844, and remained four years; his father, in 1845, pre-empted eighty acres, which constitutes a part of the farm now owned by himself; he came to this township in 1848, and has not moved from the old homestead; has 105 acres, of which sixty have been plowed; twenty-five is timber, and twenty is pasture and meadow. Have had seven children—Amy L., born in 1843, married in 1865; Calvin D., born in 1846; Anna L., born in 1849, married in 1877; Alva N., born in 1853, married in 1878; Joseph T., born in 1857; William H., born in 1860; A. De Esten, born in 1866. Himself and wife are Methodists; has been a Republican since the formation of the party. Mr. Collins has declined all office, but his neighbors speak of him as a very reliable and useful citizen.

THOMAS R. DARROW, farmer, Sec. 33; P. O. Brandon; was born in Erie Co., N. Y., on the 13th of September, 1827; he farmed till 1849, and, in the spring of 1850, went to California "across the Plains;" returned to Wisconsin in the fall of 1851; spent the winter of 1851-52 in Oconomowoc, Wis. He was married May 6, 1852, to Miss Dolly A. Clough, of Bennington, Wyoming Co., N. Y.; they came to Oconomowoc, Wis., and lived till the spring of 1854, when he settled in Metomen, where he has since resided; he bought his present farm in 1858; they had two children—Norris B. and Lyman R. Mrs. Darrow died Oct. 22, 1872; himself and brother, Albert H., farmed in partnership for fully a dozen years; he has now 200 acres of his own, and his sons, Norris and Lyman, have an additional eighty, which they carry on, and live at home; he has good farm conveniences and improvements; carries on general farming and stock-raising. He was married Dec. 25, 1873, to Miss Mary E. Cook, of Waupun; he is a member of Grange No. 52, and of the Protective Association, and a Temple of Honor man; has been Side Supervisor several years. Himself and wife are members of the M. E. Church at Brandon; he is a Republican; is affable and reliable.

S. S. DENNIS, farmer, Sec. 22; P. O. Brandon; was born Aug. 10, 1812, in Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; after living in Ontario Co., N. Y., eight years, he came West in November, 1844, and stopped in Green Lake till May, 1845, when he took up eighty acres of land, included in his present farm; he built a cabin that season, dug a well, and broke up some land. He took in a houseless family that season, and, often none of them had any food in the cabin, they raised some potatoes, and also a little corn which, when "pounded" into meal and cooked with a little "boughten" pork, made a "feast for a king." After "backing" for several years, he was married to his present wife on the 23d of March, 1859; her name was Mary C. Helmer. He carries on general farming; has comfortable improvements now. Is a Quaker, and a Republican.

W. H. DUNBAR, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Ripon; he was born on the 31st of January, 1831, in Onondaga Co., N. Y.; farming has been his life-work; he came to Metomen Township in 1855. He was married in 1856, to Miss Charlotte A. Somers; they had one child—Rollo C., born in 1859. Mrs. Dunbar died in 1864. He settled on his present farm in 1866. He was married in December, 1865, to Miss Caroline A. Abercrombie, formerly of Canada; they have two children—Mary B. and Charles H. He has been Township Treasurer, and has held other local offices. He is a Republican; his wife is connected with the Congregational Church at Reed's Corners. She was for several years a leading teacher in Metomen Township. Mr. Dunbar began life by working out by the month, and has earned his farm by hard work and economy; he has sixty acres, all under cultivation.

DANIEL EGGLESTON, farmer and first settler in Metomen Township; P. O. Brandon; was born March 21, 1812, in Greenwich, Washington Co., N. Y.; lived with his parents on the farm till 22 years of age, then moved to Onondaga Co., N. Y., where he kept hotel four years at Clintonville. He was married, on the 19th of May, 1836, at Clintonville, to Miss Sarah A. Robinson; they have had five children, three of whom still live—Julian A., born in 1840, and married in 1868; Eugene B., born in 1844, and married in 1880; Alice A., born in 1849, and married in 1871; the other two died in infancy. After leaving New York State, he located in Russell Township, Gauga Co., Ohio, where he remained five years; the "Western fever" was then taking off many of the sturdy yeomanry of the East, and Daniel Eggleston followed the "star of empire;" in May, 1845, he came with his family to Metomen Township, Wisconsin Ter., and bought the farm which he now owns, and by that act became the first settler in this township; he now owns 400 acres, 280 of which are under cultivation, the remainder being timber land; a branch of Grand River crosses his farm; he had an "ocean of land" from which to select, and he chose a combination of prairie and timber, with flowing water; he has been prominent as a stock-raiser and dealer, particularly of horses; he was elected one of the Supervisors when the town was organized in 1846, and has held several local offices. His wife died in April, 1869; she was a member of the Disciples Church. Mr. Eggleston is a moral citizen and a friend of churches; politically, is a Republican; financially, solid, and, historically, the standard-bearer of the Pioneer Corps in the township of Metomen.

EDWARD ENSIGN, proprietor of Ensign Hotel, Brandon; was born in Salesburg, Litchfield Co., Conn., on the 22d of July, 1822; his parents were hotel-keepers for many years, and he was born in his father's hotel; his education was in the public schools of his native town; he remained at home until 25 years of age, then spent one year in the hotel of his brother, at Canaan, Conn., and afterward one year in Cleveland, Ohio. He was married in Norfolk, Conn., Oct. 1, 1849, to Miss Maria S. Wolcott; they have had no issue. The first season after marriage was spent in charge of a hotel at Winsted, Conn.; they then rented for a year the old homestead hotel; in 1851, they removed to Orleans Co., N. Y., and, in October, 1852, came West, and settled in Springvale on a farm, which he owned and worked for fifteen years; came to Brandon in November, 1867, and purchased the hotel previously known as the Ferguson House, which, with subsequent additions and improvements, is now the well-known Ensign hotel; this is a fine two-story building, containing 22 guest-rooms, and is provided with all the appointments of a first-class country hotel. Mr. Ensign's life-long experience as a hotel boy and man, fit him to be the traveling public's acceptable servant. He was Supervisor one term in Springvale, and Town Clerk fourteen years; has also been Town Clerk eight years since his removal to Metomen; is Secretary of the Masonic Lodge, and Clerk of the village of Brandon. Is a member of the Congregational Church and is its Treasurer; politically, is a Republican; socially, is genial and benevolent, and, by general verdict, is a useful and honored citizen. His wife also is a worker in the church, and a worthy helpmeet in well doing.

JAMES FENELON, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Metomen; he was born Nov. 5, 1846, in County Carlow, Ireland; he came to America, with his parents, in May, 1850, and settled in Springvale Township, where the father died in 1862, owning 1,360 acres, all in Springvale Township; the mother died in 1877. The subject of this sketch is unmarried, and owns 240 acres of land, of which 150 are under the plow; he has good farm improvements; he has some thoroughbred Durham stock and some fine blooded horses. Mr. Fenelon has lived in this county from early childhood; he is a strong man physically, and has a good education. He is a "Union Democrat every time," and is an adherent of the Roman Catholic Church; he is a man of strong convictions, thinks for himself, and acts on his own judgment in both political and religious matters.

C. W. FERGUSON & BRO., merchants, Brandon; the brothers are natives of New York, and came West in 1855; C. W. began mercantile life clerking for J. H. Foster in his general store, which was established during the early history of Brandon; in 1860, he started in business with his father, under the firm name of C. W. Ferguson & Co; in 1876, his brother Leander purchased the father's interest, and the firm became "C. W. Ferguson & Bro." In 1866, Leander was married to Miss Hattie Foster, of Brandon. C. W. Ferguson, in 1871, married Miss Eliza Thayer, also of Brandon. Leander is Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School; he was fully three years in the army, and at the close of the war was a Lieutenant in Co. B. of the 46th W. V. I. The senior member of the firm conducts an insurance agency, and, in Waukesha Co., held several local offices before removal to Fond du Lac Co. The firm carry stock in all departments of a first-class country store; they are enterprising young men, and enjoy the confidence of the public.

JOHN B. FOSTER, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Metomen; was born Jan. 20, 1831, in Onondaga Co., N. Y.; he lived in Steuben and Yates Cos. till he was of age. In September, 1851, he was married to Miss Hannah E. Fisher, of Barrington, N. Y.; in 1856, they removed to Chickasaw Co., Iowa; he ran a saw-mill and carried on a cabinet-shop in the town of Bradford, near the confluence of the Big and Little Cedar Rivers. On the 16th of July, 1858, his wife and only child were drowned in the Cedar River, Iowa, by the accidental overturning of a boat containing the family and a hired man; Mr. Foster himself became unconscious, but was rescued several hours before the bodies of his wife and child were recovered. He came to Metomen Township, on his present farm, in May, 1866; he has 100 acres, of which eighty are under the plow. He was united to his present wife on the 26th of August, 1863; her name was Amelia J. Balsley, of this county; they have four children—Cora E., Mabel C., Bertha A. and Nellie E. He is not a member of any society, except the Brandon Grange, No. 52; is a Republican. The family are social, hospitable and highly respected.

JOSEPH J. GAMBLE, farmer, Sec. 25; P. O. Brandon; he was born on the 12th of March, 1823, in Canada. His early life was spent in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., where he was married on the 16th of June, to Miss Candace R. Wells. He is, by trade, a carpenter and joiner, and that has been his occupation most of his life, although he owned a farm in York State, which he carried on by hired labor; he has worked at his trade a portion of the time since coming West; he came to Wisconsin in 1864, and bought his present farm, near Brandon; has ninety acres, most of which is tillable; he lived in Wyoming, Canada, three years, near the oil regions, and carried on a cooper-shop; he is a good mechanic, and enjoys his trade more than farming; has seven children—William W., Joseph J., Jr., Henry, George, Jonathan, Mary and Clara, all of whom live in Wisconsin; Clara, the youngest, is still living with her parents in their pleasant home. He is a Republican; himself and family are Methodists. Although they have a good farm, desirably located, yet the health and tastes of Mr. Gamble and his worthy wife are such as to make them willing to relinquish farm life.

HENRY C. GLEASON, farmer and grain-buyer, Brandon; born Sept. 7, 1828, in Claremont, Sullivan Co., N. H.; his father was a physician, but died when Henry was 14 years of age, leaving the family with a limited income; from the age of 15 to 19 he clerked in a dry-goods store, in his native town; in 1847, he came West, and landed in Wisconsin, the month he was 19; he made his home in the township of Alto, till 1863; he arrived out of debt, but without an extra dollar; began working out by the month for the pioneer farmers; everybody was poor then—prosperity came slowly; after laboring a few years he earned money enough to buy a yoke of oxen, and in the fall of 1853 he purchased his first forty acres on Union Prairie, in Alto; this, with additions, he carried on for ten years, when he rented the farm and moved to Brandon; he clerked in the hardware store of Z. Scott, in Brandon, for sixteen years. He was married in April, 1854, to Miss Lucy J. Hackett, niece of A. F. Bush, Esq.; the wedding tour consisted of a trip from the home of Esquire Bush to their prospective cabin home, about three miles distant; the bride was comfortably seated in the wagon, while the happy bridegroom trudged proudly by her side, driving his own ox team; such was pioneer life—times of republican simplicity and democratic equality; but few horses were in the country at that date, and ox teams were the fashionable conveyances to church, to spelling schools, and to the country dance; this farm he sold in 1876; he now owns a residence and about forty acres of land within the limits of the village corporation; he has one daughter, Arian; three children have died in infancy; for the past season he has been engaged buying and shipping grain, in company with T. Watson, who does the street work, outside buying, etc. His family are Congregationalists; he belongs to no society or church; is a Republican; is of a quiet, retiring disposition, and is a highly respected citizen.

LEVI J. HALL, druggist and grocer, dealer in coal, salt, and J. I. Case & Co's. thrashers, Brandon; born March, 1833, in Canada; when 10 years of age, he, with his parents, settled in Wyoming Co., N. Y.; he has had much experience as a farmer, but his tastes led him to mercantile life. He was married, on the 1st of Jan., 1857, to Miss Laura E. Sheldon, of Litchfield, Conn; they have had five children, Frederick, born Nov. 16, 1857, died 1863; Clara A., born 1860; Warren A., born 1868; George W., born 1870; and Harlan E., born 1878; they came to Fond du Lac Co., in autumn of 1855, and have resided in Metomen since 1856; was some years in the dry-goods business; is Justice of the Peace, Police Magistrate and Notary Public; is a member of the Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F. He is an official member of the M. E. Church, with which his wife is also connected; was until recently a Democrat, but for some years has voted with Republicans; is a radical temperance man; is a respected and useful citizen.

WILLIAM HERRICK, retired farmer, Sec. 19; P. O. Fairwater; he was born May 23, 1815, in Henrietta, Monroe Co., N. Y.; his parents were farmers, and they removed to Orleans Co., N. Y., when the subject of this sketch was at the age of 13; that was their home until their death in 1844. He was married, Dec. 25, 1843, to Miss Harriett Swift, of Orleans Co., N. Y.; he bought a farm in that county, and carried it on till 1847, when he sold out. In the spring of 1848, he came to Wisconsin, and located on the line of Fond du Lac and Green Lake Cos., on the western border of Metomen Township; he took up land in both counties. They had five children, of whom three are now living—Helen H., married, in 1870, to G. B. Skewes; Mortier B., married, in 1874, to Miss Pauline Cole; Permelia J., dead; Moses L., married, in 1877, to Miss Rosa Lindsey; the other child died in infancy. Mrs. Herrick died May 16, 1866. Mr. Herrick had 395 acres, and carried on general farming and stock-raising; nearly all the land is tillable; most of his land he has divided between his children; he makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. G. B. Skewes, who has two children—Dwayne W. and Boulden J. Mr. Herrick is a Republican, but has never been an office-holder. Surrounded by relatives and friends, relieved of care and blessed with a competency, he, with cheerful independence, is passing on to ripe old age.

C. D. HIGLEY, farmer, Sec. 3; P. O. Metomen; was born Jan. 1, 1817, in the town of Mentz, Cayuga Co., N. Y.; when he was but 10 years old, his father died; he then went to live with his uncle, Peter Husted, a Quaker, in Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y.; this was his home till he came West, when 27 years of age. The sedate influences of this good old Quaker no doubt affected greatly the future of this nervous, active youth. In May, 1844, he came West, and took up 160 acres of Government land in this township; this was the first land entered in Metomen Township, and is still well known as the Higley homestead; the farm has prairie, timber and water, and Mr. Higley has it well improved. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railr. ad clips a corner of his farm; his residence is half a mile west of Reed's Corners. Was married in Oneida Co., N. Y., in April, 1846, to Miss Sarah C. Buell; they have had three sons—Oliver S., born Aug. 24, 1847, died May 4, 1865; Melvin C., born Dec. 21, 1850, died Dec. 16, 1862; Irwin B., born Feb. 14, 1853. Irwin, his only surviving child, is a clerk in a music store in New Orleans. Mrs. Higley died June 23, 1869. He spent that season in New York; a relative then kept house one year for him. His first wife was a cousin to the present Mrs. Higley, nee Jane Buell, to whom he was united in marriage Dec. 27, 1870, in Oneida Co., N. Y. He has been Justice of the Peace one term, Assessor two years, Chairman two years, and Side Supervisor six years. His wife is a Methodist; he is a good brother-in-law of the church; he is a radical Republican, and is universally respected.

N. C. HURLBERT, miller and farmer; P. O. Fairwater; was born in the town of Eaton, Madison Co., N. Y.; came to Wisconsin in 1848, having in the mean time learned his trade, which he carried on two years in Janesville; from 1850 to 1866, he was in the milling business in Jefferson, Wis. Was married in 1853, to Miss Harriet Wadsworth, of Jefferson, Wis.; have had two children—Harry, married Mary Hall; Hattie, married Eugene B. Eggleston. In 1866, he built a steam flouring-mill on the corner of Michigan and Market streets, Chicago, which, in 1870, he exchanged for his property at Fairwater. His mill, known as the "Besley Mill," is located on the West Branch of Grand River; it has three run of stones; it was the first mill built in that region, but is now in excellent repair, and supplied with all modern machinery needed for the business; has ninety-three acres of land, upon which his residence and mill are located; he is a practical miller, and attends to his own mill. Is a Republican, and a quiet, sound, reliable man.

GEORGE JENKINSON, hardware, tinware and stoves, Brandon; he is also manufacturer of all kinds of tinware; cheese-factory work is a prominent feature of the manufacturing department; born in 1840, in Michigan; came to Metomen with his parents in 1845; his father settled on Sec. 17, in this township; he was afterward Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co., and at expiration of term of office, he was elected County Treasurer, and died while in the treasurership. Mr. Jenkinson has been connected with establishments of this kind since 1855, and has been proprietor since 1865. Was married, February, 1863, to Miss Frances A. Rivenburgh, of Ripon; had five children—G. Bertine, Fred (deceased), Maud L., David L. and Arthur L. Mr. Jenkinson's parents were among the earliest settlers in Metomen Township. He is a Republican and a temperance man; is social, candid and popular.

ROBERT JENKINSON, Jr., Brandon, Wis.; native of Montreal, Canada; he came to Wisconsin with his parents in July, 1845; they settled upon 160 acres on Sec. 17, township of Metomen; the senior, Robert J., was elected Sheriff of Fond du Lac Co. in 1852; in 1854, he was elected County Treasurer, but died in January, 1855, shortly after entering upon the duties of the office; the family sold the homestead in 1864, and the members are scattered; the subject of this sketch has been several years traveling salesman. He was married, in 1856, to Miss Lucy O'Conner, of Brandon; children are Ida, Clarence, Mattie, Nettie, and Josephine, who died at the age of 6 years; he has been a resident of Metomen Township since age of 12, and he came same year as the first permanent settler, viz., 1845; his remembrances as a boy include weary tramps after stray cattle ranging over the unclaimed prairie, and his meals exclusively of boiled wheat; he has been the Town Collector; owns his home in Brandon. Himself and family are Congregationalists. Is Republican.

H. KATH, merchant, Fairwater; was born in Germany in 1843; came to America in 1858, and settled in Manitowoc Co. seven years; located in Fairwater in 1865. Was married in Ripon, to Miss Ernestine Krueger; they have five children—Otilge, Bertie, Josephine, Hattie and Hugo; since 1872, he has been in mercantile business, selling all kinds of goods usually kept in a well-assorted general country store; was Postmaster eight years. Is a Democrat, and a prominent official member of the first Evangelical Lutheran Church, of East Fairwater; he enjoys the respect and confidence of all classes of the community.

R. C. KELLY, merchant and farmer, Brandon; born May 16, 1833, in Danby, Vt.; came West in 1854; was for a season an itinerant salesman—a successful peddler; was a clerk about six months in a store at Fairwater during 1856; he pitched his tent in Brandon as soon as the village started, and he was in one of the stores which was built in 1856; in 1858, he opened a grocery store for himself in Brandon, but sold out in 1861; during that autumn he bought a warehouse and dealt in grain and produce; in the spring of 1862, he opened a dry-goods store which he carried on about eighteen months, when he again sold out; in 1864, he built a store, which he immediately exchanged for a farm; that season he bought 100,000 bushels of wheat for shipment; he bought seventy village lots and 140 acres adjoining Brandon, which he sold off in small parcels; he exchanged some Iowa lands for a stock of dry goods in 1872, and after remaining in the trade two years, he again disposed of the entire stock; during these years he bought, sold and exchanged several farms, and nearly every season he bought wool. On the 3d of August, 1857, he was married to Mrs. Alzina M. Chapman, of Metomen. He is now manager of the co-operative store established in 1877, which, under his popular management, is a decided success. He is connected with temperance organizations; has been Master of Brandon Lodge, No. 144, of A., F. & A. M. Was Town Clerk for several years, and Chairman two terms; has been President of the Village Board; was a member of the General Assembly in 1868, and Sergeant-at-Arms in 1869. Himself and wife affiliate with the Congregational Church; he is a Republican. His honesty and business capacity are unquestioned by his fellow-citizens. He has a pleasant home in Brandon, and considerable real estate, mainly in Green Lake Co.; his commercial ability and personal characteristics mark him as a Westernized representative of the New England Yankee.

O. B. KNAPP, farmer, Sec. 28; P. O. Brandon; was born in Vermont in November, 1828; he early exhibited a taste for travel, and showed mechanical ability; at the age of 19 he took a fishing cruise of a year on the Atlantic; in 1849, he went to California via the Panama route, and spent two years mainly in mining; soon after returning to Vermont, he made a second trip, via the Nicaragua route, in 1851, and again remained two years engaged in mining, building and other enterprises; returned to Vermont, and, on the 14th of June, 1851, he was married to Miss Ellen A. Worth, of Vermont; they soon came West and located on the beautiful "Round Prairie," about two miles west of Brandon, on Sec. 28, township of Metomen; this farm of 200 acres is charmingly located on elevated, rich prairie; they have an attractive residence, commodious barns and a well-improved farm; he carries on general farming, but has 200 sheep, many of which are registered full-blooded merinos, and they are his especial pets; they have had three children—William O. Walter (deceased), and Gertrude F. He is a natural mechanic—some call him an inventive genius; his mill for pumping water and grinding grain is of his own patent and construction; he delights to "play with machinery." Is not a member of any church; is a Republican and temperance on principle; is a thinking man of conceded influence.

CHARLES P. KNAPP, manufacturer of sashes, doors, blinds, etc., also jobber and builder, Brandon; is a native of Vermont; was born in 1830; came in 1850 to Metomen with his parents. His father, Alva Knapp, was a successful farmer, an enterprising man, a prominent Methodist and a good citizen. The subject of this sketch was educated in the public schools of the county; he is a natural mechanic, and has worked as carpenter and joiner more or less for thirty-three years; but, until 1869, his main business was farming; in the fall of 1869, he became a silent partner in the firm of James, Yorty & Co., in the same business he now carries on; the firm has undergone various changes, till now Mr. Knapp is sole proprietor. He has a comfortable residence in Brandon, and an improved farm of 160 acres in Iowa. Was married, in 1853, to Miss Lucy A. Gallop, of Metomen; they have six children—Eva C., Flora A. (who married H. L. Brown in 1879), Edwin D., Neil C. and the twins, Frank and Fannie. He has for years been one of the prominent business men of Brandon. Is a supporter of the M. E. Church, and a reliable Republican.

JOHN LOCKIN, early pioneer in Metomen; was born in Fiskerton, Lincolnshire, England, on the 24th of June, 1822; came to Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y., in 1842, where he remained three years, when he removed to Watertown, Jefferson Co., Wis., and took up a quarter-section of Government land; in 1849, he located in Metomen, Wis.; has continued a resident of this township to present date; his home, for the last ten years, has been in Brandon. He owns several town lots, and a farm of 141 acres adjoining corporation limits; he has held several local offices. On the 30th of June, 1845, he was married to Miss Mary Jane Gragg, of Cherry Valley, N. Y.; they have had eight children —William H., born 1816, died in 1875; Mary Ann, born 1819; Charles H., 1851; Joseph C., 1853; Emily J., 1856; Hattie E., 1859, died 1862; Ella R., born 1861; Angie, 1865. Two married sons are living in Iowa; two married daughters are living in this county, and the two youngest daughters are at home; he and his wife are prominent Methodists. He was one of the sturdy pioneers whose lives have aided in giving Wisconsin an honored name. His family are all consistent members of the church, with their parents; he is a radical Republican. Blessed with a competency and surrounded with friends, he and his worthy wife are enjoying the fruits of a well-spent life.

JONATHAN McASSEY, farmer, Sec. 6; P. O. Ripon, Box 346; he was born in County Carlow, Ireland, in the year 1824; he came to America in spring of 1846, and came to Metomen in fall of same year. He was married, in 1849, to Miss Elizabeth Smith, of his native place; they have had eight children—Mary A., Robert, dead; Deborah, dead; Sarah, George, Louise A., Albert, and Rachel Alice, dead. After living several years in Princeton, Green Lake Co., he bought his present farm in 1869; he carries on general farming and stock-raising; he has seventy-eight acres, nearly all tillable. Five children have attended school at Ripon, and all of them have taught school. Himself and family are Protestants, and were raised as Episcopalians; the two oldest are Congregationalists, the others are not connected with any church. They have a pleasant, hospitable home, and an abundance of farm buildings. Mr. McAssey is a man of considerable quiet originality; he has several brothers and a widowed sister in the neighborhood. He calls himself an Independent in politics, votes according to his best judgment, but is inclined to Democracy. He is a thrifty farmer and a good moral citizen.

LYMAN MARSH, retired farmer, Brandon; was born April 26, 1809, in Clinton Co., N. Y.; his early life was spent on a farm in that county. He was married, in 1832, to Miss Polly Comstock, of his native town; has had six children—Julia, James M., Emily, William C., Ann F. and Susanah. He came to Fond du Lac Co. in 1849, but settled on Sec. 16, Metomen Township, in 1851; took up a farm of eighty acres, and carried it on until 1875, when he sold the homestead and bought his present residence in Brandon. He owns two houses in the village; was a successful farmer, and is a good mechanic. Is a Democrat, but, in local elections, votes for the best man, regardless of politics; has been a Methodist more than half a century, and a Class-Leader about twenty-five years; is not now engaged in any occupation. Surrounded by children and friends, he is cheerfully bearing the burdens of threescore and ten, and is still quite vigorous and happy.

H. G. MATHEWS, miller and farmer; Brandon; born in 1825 in New York, came with his parents in 1845 to township of Alto, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; in 1860, he bought the farm which he now owns, situated on Sec. 21 in Metomen, it contains 220 acres of first-class land; he also owns the Brandon Flouring Mills, has five run of stone, and all the latest improved machinery, does custom work and also has a good shipping trade. He was married in 1850 to Miss Olive Avery, of Wyoming Co., N. Y.; their children are Amos G., born 1852; Linus G., born 1856; Carrie, born 1862, died in 1864; his son, Amos Gates, is foreman in the Flouring Mill, and Linus G. is on the home farm. Mr. Mathews is a Republican, and a member of the Brandon Grange, No. 52; is not a church member, but contributes to all institutions designed to improve society; he is social and liberal minded; is a successful farmer and an enterprising business man.

JOHN L. MOORE, general hardware merchant, Brandon; was born Sept. 18, 1829, in Monroe Co., N. Y.; his father was a Methodist preacher; after his school days were past, he learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, which he worked at, more or less, till 1868. He was married, the 5th of March, 1851, to Miss Mary A. Randall, of Erie Co., Penn.; they had one son—Mark E., born 1853, and was married in 1878. Mrs. Moore died June 7, 1853. He came West in 1856, and located in the township of Metomen; for several years he worked mainly at his trade; some seasons he engaged in the sale of stone pumps, and about two years was in hotel life at Waupua; from 1869 to 1872, he was in a restaurant in Brandon; then for seven years he sold groceries and provisions; in January, 1879, he started his present business as "Dealer in Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, Farm Tools, etc.;" his is the leading establishment of the kind in Brandon. He was married April 3, 1873, to Miss Sephronia Stiekney, of Monroe Co., N. Y.; she died April 26, 1878; the cause of her death was an organic stricture of the œsophagus. Mr. Moore owns a pleasant residence in Brandon, and also forty acres of tillable land in Pennsylvania; he has been a Justice of the Peace; is a member of Metomen Lodge, No. 107, and the Encampment, No. 25; he is a supporter of the churches, but a member of none; is benevolent and liberal. He was a Democrat till 1864, but then he voted for Abraham Lincoln; he is a Conservative Independent, with Republican proclivities.

F. NEWLAND, farmer; near Fairwater; was born in Ontario Co., N. Y., August, 1824; lived in Erie Co., ten years, and at 19 came West and lived three years in Milwaukee Co.; in March, 1846, he settled on Sec. 30 in Metomen Township, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; P. O. Fairwater; has 200 acres in the original farm, which is still the homestead; fully 150 acres are under cultivation, and about fifty are in timber lands. Was married, in July, 1854, to Miss E. Davitt, of Rensselaer Co., N. Y.; they have three children—Diana, born 1855; Alice M., born 1858, and the son named True, born 1868; each of the daughters have attended several terms at Ripon College, at the present writing, February, 1880, they are at home. Mr. Newland is a Trustee of the Free-Will Baptist Church at Fairwater, his wife is also a member; due credit is given to Mrs. Newhall as a rare worker, not only in the house but on the farm, and as an efficient business woman. Mr. Newland is one of the earliest settlers in this township; is a prominent sheep-raiser; is a successful, hard-working farmer; is a temperance Republican, and a reliable citizen.

CHARLES NORRIS (deceased) died Feb. 16, 1879, aged 46 years; he had been resident of Metomen Township thirty-five years; he was a successful farmer and prominent stock-raiser, especially of Norman horses; for last years preceding his death, he had carried on a cheese factory, which was located on his farm. He was married in 1860 to Miss Clara Hazen, of Brandon; they had three children, two of whom are living—David C., born in 1861, and Emily Irene, in 1872; the other died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Norris were charter members of Brandon Grange, No. 52. He was a Republican. Mrs. Norris and her son David carry on the farm; she has been a resident of this county thirty-six years. The farm is on Sec. 26 and contains 130 acres; is in the suburbs of Brandon.

THOMAS JEFFERSON NORRIS, a pioneer farmer, Sec. 35; P. O. Brandon; he was born in September, 1808, in the town of Pembroke, Rockingham Co., N. H.; when 12 years of age, he, with his relatives, removed to Genesee Co., N. Y.; his main business has been farming, but, during several years, he also carried on blacksmithing. Was married, in September, 1830, to Miss Eunice Andrews, who was born in 1810 in Erie Co., N. Y.; they have had eight children, of whom six are living—David, born in 1831, died in 1846; Charles, born in 1834, married in 1860, died in 1879; Thomas J., born in 1836, married in 1861; Adeline J., born in 1840, married in 1871; George, born in 1843, married in 1866; Lydia A., born in 1845, married in 1866; H. G., born in 1848, married in 1871; Mary, born in 1851, married in 1877. In 1846, he, with his wife and six children, came West and took up 470 acres of land in Metomen Township, which he improved, and on which he has continued to reside to present date. Their son David was killed by falling and being run over by the wagon when drawing their household goods from Milwaukee to the farm. Mr. Norris has been Supervisor and has held other local offices; is a Republican; has belonged to no secret society; is connected with the Methodist Church, but, because of the infirmities of age, is not a regular attendant. This couple are good specimens of the sturdy New England yeomanry, and are enjoying the fruits of honest industry. They will celebrate their golden wedding on the 12th of September, 1880.

JOHN O'HARA, farmer, Sec. 24; P. O. Brandon; he was born June 7, 1824, in the city of Quebec, Canada; his brother Charles was born in Canada June 1, 1828, and his brother Henry was born in Canada Nov. 18, 1831; John came to Illinois in 1845, and to Wisconsin in 1848, and took up 80 acres that year and built a log cabin; then his parents and brothers, Charles, Henry and William, came on, and together improved the land and bought additions thereto, making now a farm of 156 acres under good cultivation. The mother died in 1861, and the father in 1879; Charles is a carpenter and joiner, but makes his home with the other brothers; John is still unmarried, and so also is Charles; Henry was married, Dec. 26, 1862, to Miss Eliza Gallop, formerly of Canada; they have four children—John A., Mary A., Lydia E. and Ellen E.; John and Henry carry on the farm. Henry has been Side Supervisor. Each of the brothers is a Conservative Independent, with decided Democratic proclivities; all are contributors to churches, but none of them are church members; their parents were Catholics, but the sons are Free Thinkers or Liberalists. They are respected citizens.

ALMON OSBORN, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Ripon; born at Rival, Hancock Co., Me., June 24, 1813, son of Joseph and Mary Osborn; went with his parents to Ashtabula Co., Ohio, in 1815; to Geauga Co., a year later; to Seneca, Ohio, when 10 years of age; to La Porte, Ind., at the age of 18; removed to Waukesha Co., Wis., in March, 1835, where they lived several years; removed to Mineral Point for a year and then removed to Rock Co.; Mr. Osborn kept the Ball Tavern for two years, and carried on a farm for some time; came to Metomen, Sec. 2, in June, 1845, settling on land he still owns, and where he now resides; came to Ripon in November, 1872, and in March, 1879, began the sale of agricultural implements. He was the first Supervisor of the town of Metomen. He was married in Fulton, April, 1843, to Augusta Smith, who was born in New York State in April, 1820; she died Jan. 30, 1880; they have three children—Charles Henry, a farmer in Metomen; Frances, now Mrs. C. W. Foster, of Sauk Co., and Porter M. Mr. Osborn is a member of the Lodge of A. F. & A. M. Mr. Osborn's father, Joseph Osborn, was born at Cape Ann, Mass., July 15, 1784, and died at Belleville, Dane Co., Wis. Feb. 5, 1859; Mary Moore Osborn, his mother, was born at Bangor, Me., Dec. 12, 1789, and died at Kingsbury, La Porte Co., Ind., September, 1869.

PHILANDER K. PICKARD, farmer, Sec. 14; P. O. Brandon; was born in Livingstone Co., N. Y., on May 24, 1841; in the fall of 1854, he, with his parents, came to Wisconsin and located on the farm which he now owns. It was previously known as the "Marsh farm." He and his father own adjoining farms. On the 4th of July, 1860, he was married to Miss Clementine R. Munn, of Metomen; they have two children—Jennie and Frank; the daughter is a student in Ripon College, while Frank still attends the "People's College," in his home district. Mr. Pickard himself was a student at Ripon College. His farm of 140 acres is nearly all under cultivation, and he also carries on his father's farm of 180 acres; they have commodious barns and good farm improvements; carries on general farming, in connection with stock-raising, particularly of sheep. He was Side Supervisor two years, and in 1876, 1878 and 1879 was elected Chairman with regularly increasing majorities; he was one of the charter members of Brandon Lodge No. 144, of A. F. & A. M.; his wife is a member of the Congregational Church at Reed's Corners; she is credited as a worthy helpmeet, with bearing her share of life's burdens, and winning her proportion of life's successes. Mr. Pickard is a Republican "every time," and is actively interested in local and general politics. The disinterested historian records the verdict of Mr. Pickard's fellow-citizens, "Genial, capable and popular."

WILLIAM PICKARD, farmer, Sec. 15; P. O. Metomen; was born on the 15th of May, 1816, in Otsego Co., N. Y.; he has been a farmer all his life. He was married, on the 27th of May, 1840, to Miss Emily Chamberlain; they came West in 1854 and settled on their present farm; they have two children—Philander K. and a daughter, now married. He is a Republican and a Methodist; his wife is a Baptist. Relieved of care and blessed with a competency, they are enjoying the calm pleasures of ripe and honored age.

CAPT. WILLIAM PLOCKER. See biography on page 477.

WARREN REED (deceased) was a native of Ohio. Was married in Ohio, June 14, 1848, to Miss Augusta Day, of Ohio. He came to Wisconsin in 1854 and located 160 acres, where Mrs. Reed now resides; he died in August, 1874. They had four children, all living in this county. The railroad company secured a gift of the right of way through his farm on consideration of a written guarantee of the permanent location of a depot thereon; for some cause, the station was removed half a mile south and established at Metomen in 1873, and the post office was also transferred from Reed's Corners to the residence of E. Reynolds, near the new depot; the above transfer is viewed very differently by the different interested parties and their respective partisans. Reed's Station was named in honor of Mr. Reed. Mr. Reed and family were Methodists; he was a good citizen.

EDWIN REYNOLDS, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Metomen; was born June 3, 1815, in Chesterfield, Essex Co., N. Y.; in 1821, he, with parents, moved to Addison Co., Vt., where he remained nineteen years. He was married, on the 24th of March, 1840, to Miss Dorcas H. Dame, of Vermont; they lived ten years in Chittenden Co., Vt. In 1850, he came to Wisconsin and located on his present farm in Metomen; has 160 acres, of which 150 are tillable; he is a mechanic, and built his own house; is engaged in general farming and stock-raising, particularly of sheep, and he also pays attention to fruit-raising; he has a commodious, nearly new barn, and his house is a few rods from the Metomen depot, and his wife is Postmistress. He is President of the Protective Association; has been Assessor twice, and Justice of the Peace thirteen years, and held other local offices; is a member of Brandon Grange, No. 52, and is also connected with the I. O. O. F. Himself and wife are members of the Congregational Church. They have five children—Lucy B. (married), Zilpha G., De Witt C. (married), Mary E. (married) and Washington I. Mr. Reynolds is an active Republican; he has been promised appointment as census enumerator for this township. He asserted that he has never been confined to the house by sickness, and his wife, who was present, promptly threw in the remark, "But you have done piles of grunting." Mrs. Reynolds is an energetic and capable woman; Mr. Reynolds is a well-known citizen.

GEORGE A. RUSSELL, retired farmer, P. O. Brandon; born in Cavendish, Windsor Co., Vt., Nov. 6, 1824; the year he attained his majority (1842), he came West; during the two following winters he taught school in Waukesha Co., Wis.; in 1844, he bought eighty acres of land, and partly improved it, but sold it in a year at an advance. He was married Nov. 1, 1844, in Milwaukee, to Miss Miranda Weatherbee, of Brant, Erie Co., N. Y.; they have had no issue; his parents were New England farmers in moderate circumstances, and the subject of this sketch, when he landed in Milwaukee in 1842, inventoried his cash assets at exactly $50; by teaching and farming, he soon added to his resources, and Providence has continued to favor him to the present time, as, according to his fellow-citizens, he is reported to the writer as a man surpassed in wealth by few, if any, in the township; for his success in life, he gives due credit to his worthy life-companion: he first met her, by a happy combination of circumstances, very soon after she landed in Milwaukee with her brother from New York, in 1844; they began wedded life as pioneers on a Waukesha farm; in September, 1845, having disposed of his first real estate, and converted most of his personal property into cash, he entered and paid for 400 acres of prairie and timber land in the township of Alto; he expended all his money in the original purchase of the Alto farm, but fortune favored his efforts, and he was soon enabled to improve, build upon and stock the farm; he retained this old homestead until 1867, when he sold the land (which cost him $500), with its improvements, for $17,000; in 1868, he bought his present home in Brandon, and retired from active labor as a farmer; he owns several houses and lots within the corporation limits of Brandon, and also 325 acres outside the village; he has secured investments in different parts of the county. He has held several local offices. He became a Christian at the age of 18, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has continued an active member to the present date; he is an earnest advocate of the doctrine of sanctification, and, for several years, meetings for the promotion of holiness have been regularly held at his residence; he is a person of strong convictions, which find ready expression whenever occasion demands; he is in no sense a negative character, but is an enterprising, positive man. He is a Republican.

SILVESTER W. SARGEANT, farmer, Sec. 13; P. O. Brandon; was born June 26, 1823, in Washington Co., Vt.; he remained in Vermont until 1839, when he removed to Washington Co., N. Y.; in spring of 1845, he came to Metomen Township; he was without any money, but was "full of days, works;" that season he worked for and "bached" with E. P. Mansfield, who, in 1844, built the first cabin within the limits of Metomen Township; Mr. Sargeant pre-empted 160 acres in township of Alto, which he sold with his improvements in 1846, and the same year entered the farm which he now owns; he had 12 shillings, all told, when he landed in this township, and that he expended for an ax; he now has 160 acres—100 under cultivation; has commodious barns and good residence, with first class farm conveniences; dairying is his leading interest. He was married, on the 13th of February, 1849, to Miss, Isabella Graves, formerly of England; they have had ten children—Zelia A. (dead), Emma (dead), Byron, W., Sarah (dead), Jacob, Julia, Elma, Katie, Willard P. and Matilda; the two oldest sons, Byron and Jacob, have followed the "Star of Empire," and, since 1878, have been founding new homes in Oakwood, Brookings Co., Dak. He is a member of Brandon Grange, No. 52; is a Republican. Mr. Sargeant's father died when S. W. was but 9 years of age, and since that time he has provided for himself; his early life was spent working out by the month, but his present comfortable surroundings betoken the success that comes from industry and economy, united with the aid of a capable and worthy helpmeet.

ZENAS SCOTT, hardware merchant, Brandon; born on the 17th of June, 1818, in Berks Co., Penn.; when he was quite young his parents removed to Canada, where they remained till the father died, in 1860. The subject of this sketch came to Wisconsin in 1856, and spent the winter in Brandon; it was the season that the railroad was completed; for the next four years he was absent most of the time, but since 1860, he has been a continuous resident of Brandon; he has been in mercantile business from that date; at first he ran a general store, but gradually developed into his present exclusive hardware trade. He was married, April 11, 1870, to Miss Sarah Sherman, of Canada West; he has been two terms member of Village Board; also was a member of I. O. O. F., and is a member of Brandon Lodge, 144, of A. F. & A. M.; owns his store and another business block besides his residence. He is a Republican; himself and wife affiliate with the Congregational Church; he is a reliable citizen.

MARTIN C. SHORT, Postmaster, Brandon, and editor of the Brandon Times; was born in Winnisink, Orange Co., N. Y., on the 4th of November, 1836; came West with his parents in 1851, and settled on a farm near Dartford, Green Lake Co., Wis.; he attended the district school afterward at Ripon, and was a freshman at Beloit College at the commencement of the rebellion. On the 10th of November, 1862, he enlisted as a private in the 31st W. V. I.; by honorable promotions he became Captain of the company in which he enlisted; he served until the close of the war; participated in the siege of Atlanta, and was with Sherman in his march to the sea. On returning from the army in 1865, he purchased the Green Lake Spectator at Dartford; the following year, he removed the paper to Waupun, and, in connection with J. W. Oliver, started the Waupun Leader; he came to Brandon in 1871, and, since that date, has been editor and proprietor of the Brandon Times. He was married at Dartford, in 1865, to Miss Sarah H. Churchill, by whom he had one daughter—Hattie. The mother died Jan. 18, 1872. His present wife was Miss Clara A. Hogle, to whom he was wedded June 25, 1876; they have two children—Mary and Martin. For twenty-five years Mr. Short has been an active member of the Congregational Church; is Superintendent of the Sunday School; is Clerk of the School Board; is a public-spirited citizen and a radical hard-money Republican.

W. O. SLEEPER, farmer, Sec. 32; P. O. Fairwater; born in Merrimack Co., N. H., in 1817; was brought up as a farmer; came West in 1842; he took up a farm, which he now owns, in 1846. He was married, in 1842, to Miss Lavina Pierce, of Kenosha Co., Wis.; they have had no issue. Their farm consists of 200 acres, fully half of which is now under cultivation. They have brought up two nieces, one of whom is married to George Lyon, of this town. Himself and wife are members of the Congregational Church at Fairwater; he is a Republican. Mr. Sleeper's health has not been uniformly good, but he is a hard-working and highly respected man.

N. A. STEVENS, jeweler, Brandon; born in 1847 in Ohio; came to Waushara Co., Wis., with his parents, in 1852, where they remained seven years, and then, for four years, took charge of the Temperance House in Berlin, Green Lake Co., Wis.; the family located in Brandon in 1863; the subject of this sketch passed the next ten years at Brandon, mainly as salesman in some of the stores of the village; was also, for a year, an apprentice to the "art preservative of all arts," in the office of the Brandon Times. Mr. Stevens was married at Brandon, in August, 1875, to Miss Vina Councilman, of Columbus, Wis.; she died in May, 1876. He served full apprenticeship as jeweler in the establishment of J. H. Elkins, at Waupun; about four years ago, he started a small jewelry store at Brandon; this is more congenial to his tastes; the business has enlarged, and he now has a full assortment of well-selected jewelry; his repairing department has an extended patronage. Is a Good Templar, a member of I. O. O. F., a Republican and a Methodist.

DEACON LONSON STILWELL, farmer, Secs. 9 and 4; P. O. Ripon; was born Aug. 18, 1819, in Madison Co., N. Y.; he removed to Onondaga Co., N. Y., when 18 years of age, where he remained nearly eight years, engaged in farming. He was married, Sept. 29, 1842, to Miss Mary K. White, of Geneva, Ontario Co., N. Y.; they came West in May, 1846, and took up 280 acres, on which his present home is located; the next year after settling, he donated forty acres of land to the Rev. Marcellus Barnum, as an inducement for him to organize a church and preach to same. Elder Barnum was the first resident minister in the township of Metomen. The Deacon now owns 170 acres, of which five-sixths are under cultivation. He tells of going to Whitewater, eighty miles, to mill with an ox team. He smiles in remembrance of visiting one cabin on a cold day, when blankets were hung around the stove and the "women folks" gathered within the warm circle, while the Deacon and other "men folks" shivered in the cold outer circle. He does not speak of those events as the sufferings and privations of pioneer life; in fact, he enjoyed these rare experiences, which all took part in with hearty good will. He did not complain when, with a company in an unfinished cabin during a driving storm, the women folks gathered under umbrellas upon the bed, and the men folks braved the elements as best they could. He has, from the first, been interested in sheep-raising; has now 218 grade merinos. Have had eight children—Lucian W. (married), Celia B. (married), Annette E. (married), Kate E. (dead), Hannah R. (married), Warren, Mary E. and Edith M.; all, except the youngest, have been students at Ripon College, but Edith is still attending the People's College, in her father's home district. Himself and wife are Congregationalists, and he has been Deacon about ten years; he has held several local offices, and is a Republican. His home is the stranger's home, and the favorite resort of the many friends of the Deacon and his worthy wife.

ALEXANDER TURNER, manufacturer of wagons and sleighs, also general blacksmithing, Brandon; born in Edinburgh, Scotland, Dec. 25, 1847; his parents came to America in 1849, and settled in Dodge Co., Wis., where his father died in 1850; young Alexander spent most of his time in Waukesha Co., until he was 23 years of age, and during that time learned his present trade of wagon-maker; he is called a natural machinist; he has carried on business for himself ever since his apprenticeship; was in business two years in Denver, Colo. Was married in Waukesha Co., Wis., Oct. 17, 1872, to Miss Agnes S. Rogers; their three children are George A., born 1873; James, born 1876; Alexander, Jr., born 1878; he had a shop two years in Merton, Waukesha Co.; in 1874, he bought a shop and home in Brandon; his business occupies seven men, and is enlarging annually; in the wagon department, about forty firm wagons are made yearly, besides sleighs, etc., etc.; he has a large patronage in the repairing shop; horseshoeing is also a prominent feature; he is an ingenious, hard-working "boss" machinist. Himself and wife are members of the Congregational Church, of which he is a Deacon. He is a Republican, and a Temple of Honor man.

DR. JAMES TURNER, Brandon; is a native of Scotland. His parents came to America and settled in Dodge Co., Wis., where his father died while the subject of this sketch was quite young; his home for twenty years after the death of his father, was Waukesha Co.; he attended the public schools, and afterward the State University, from which he graduated in 1866; after graduation, he served the M. E. Church as Pastor one year at Stoughton, his health failed, and he afterward prepared for the medical profession; spent one year in the Detroit Medical College, and his last course was taken at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, from which he received his medical diploma in 1871; while attending the Wisconsin State University, he served as a soldier in the 40th W. V. I. for 100 days. He was married in Lisbon, Waukesha Co., Wis., on the 27th of September, 1869, to Miss Susie S. Sims; they have three children—Nellie, Willie and Grace; he practiced his profession seven years in Oshkosh, and located in Brandon; he is in general partnership in a drug store and medical practice with J. E. Gee, M. D., at Brandon; they have an extensive practice in their profession, and a liberal patronage as druggists. Dr. Turner is President of the School Board; is identified with the order of Odd Fellows; is an active member of the M. E. Church; is a conservative Republican, and a thorough temperance man.

NELSON VAN CAMP, farmer, Sec. 2; P. O. Metomen; was born in New Jersey Aug. 9, 1823; removed with parents, in 1825, to Wayne Co., Penn.; Mr. Van Camp spent twenty-one years of his life in railroading in Pennsylvania. He was married, Dec. 31, 1848, to Miss Hannah Colburn, of Pennsylvania; they have four children—Gilbert A., born in 1850; Aurelia A., born in 1855; Carrie B., born in 1860, and Alice M., born in 1864; the three oldest are married. Mr. Van Camp came to Fond du Lac Co. in 1859, and, after living six years in the township of Ripon, he bought the present farm of 200 acres on Secs. 2, 12 and 15, in the township of Metomen; he rents about one-half his land; has good farm improvements. He belongs to the Protective Association, the Temple of Honor, and was formerly an Odd Fellow. He is a temperance Democrat, and a Methodist.

J. WARNER, harness-maker and farmer; P. O. Brandon; was born June 28, 1832, in Wittenburg, Germany; came to America in 1849; he worked at his trade one year in Coshocton Co., Ohio, and afterward lived five years in Lorain Co., Ohio, where he took out his naturalization papers; in 1855, he came West and started a harness-shop in Fairwater, and during the palmy days of that village, the shop gave employment to five workmen; he has been two years in business in Brandon, and is the leading shop in the village. He was married in May, 1856, to Miss M. B. Siegle, of his native place, Germany; have had three children—Francis H., born in 1857; Bertha, born in 1866, died in 1870; George L., born in 1872. Has a farm of 124 acres on Secs. 29 and 30, in the township of Metomen, near Fairwater; he is Side Supervisor, and has held other local offices; his oldest son carries on the farm; is interested in stock-raising, particularly of Norman horses. Is Republican.

SAMUEL WEINSTOCK, merchant, Brandon; born on the 30th of May, 1825, in Bavaria, Germany; came to America in 1845, and settled in New York City, where he remained till 1852, when he came to Milwaukee and spent seven years in the mercantile business; he then went to Rubicon and was engaged seven years in the business of buying and shipping cattle. He was married in New York, on the 22d of November, 1863, to Miss Fannie Bamberger, of Bavaria; have had four children—Millus (deceased), Gilbert, Selma and Theresa. In the autumn of 1866, he came to Brandon, Wis., and established a general merchandise store, under the firm name of Weinstock & Bro; in 1870, he sold out to the brother, and in the fall of the same year he started a store for himself, which he has continued to the present date—keeps everything except hardware. Is a member of the Village Board; is a Master Mason and a member of the I. O. O. F. Is of Democratic proclivities, but votes according to his best judgment at the time of election. He has been continuously in mercantile life in Brandon longer than any other merchant; has a good trade from both foreigners and Americans.

HON. DAVID WHITTON, Brandon; born in Dundee, Scotland, Aug. 4, 1836. His father was the youngest child in a family of twenty-five children; he is still strong, and for several years has resided in the city of Waupun; he landed in Boston, Mass., on the 4th day of July, 1842, with his family, consisting of his wife, his son Charles, and the subject of this sketch; the father was by trade a stonemason and mason, and was employed four years as foreman in the construction of the new locks on the Welland Canal; in the fall of 1846, the family came to Wisconsin, and located in Ashippun, Dodge Co., where they remained ten years, engaged in farming; in 1856, the family moved to Waupun, Wis. Young David, now of age, spent three years as an apprentice to the carpenter and joiner's trade; this not proving congenial, he, in 1860, engaged in buying and shipping farm produce. On the 1st of January, 1862, he was married to Miss Mary B. Turner, of Waukesha Co., Wis.; they have seven children—Mary E., born in Waupun May 1, 1863; Charles B., born in Waupun March 23, 1865; David, Jr., born in Waupun Feb. 21, 1867; Gracie Bell, born in Brandon March 29, 1869; Nellie A., born in Brandon April 16, 1873; Alexander T., born in Brandon Sept. 13, 1875; Susie E., born in Brandon July 22, 1878. Mr. Whitton was admitted to the practice of law in April, 1877, and is established at Brandon, and practices in Fond du Lac and surrounding counties. He occupies his own residence in Brandon, and also owns a grain warehouse. He held the offices of Assessor and Supervisor while residing in Waupun. Since his removal to Brandon in 1866, he has several times been elected Justice of the Peace, but he qualified only once; in 1873, he was elected to the Legislature from the First Assembly District in Fond du Lac Co. Esquire Whitton, from boyhood, has been known as an active Democrat. Since 1863, he has been an efficient member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and has represented the Grand Encampment of Wisconsin, in the Supreme Grand Lodge of the United States; he is also a Royal Arch Mason.

FREDERICK G. WILKE, farmer, Sec. 11; P. O. Metomen; born in Stettien, Prussia, on the 31st of December, 1831; from early boyhood he has "paddled his own canoe." After becoming of age, he served three years in the Prussian Army, and was stationed most of the time in Metz. In 1856, he came to America, under contract to his wealthy patron, to serve him two years for the passage money and board and clothing; the faithful service was performed in the Wolf River country. In 1858, he began working for himself, having $60, a stout hand and a brave heart. He served Almon Osborn two years, then worked the farm on shares for four years; he then bought a farm, which he worked till 1876, when he purchased the well-known "William Brunson Farm" of eighty acres, on Sec. 11. He was married, on the 7th of September, 1861, to Miss Mary Gonyo, of Wausara Co.; they have six children—Henry F., Emma, Jennie, Sarah, John and Flora. During the rebellion he was drafted, but paid the commutation; he also sent money for parents and brother and sister to come to Wisconsin from Prussia; his aged father now lives with him. He is a grain raiser, but is fond of good live stock. Himself and family are Methodists; he is a cautious, hard-working man; is a Conservative Republican.

STEPHEN T. WILSIE, farmer, Sec. 15; P. O. Brandon; he was born Oct. 5, 1815, in Scholastic Co., N. Y.; from age of 5 to 20, he lived in Ohio; in 1835, he moved to Rochester, Monroe Co., N. Y., and that remained his home till 1856. He was married, May 18, 1843, to Miss Mary Banker, of Rochester, by whom he had five children, all now living—Edward, Hiram, Emma, John W., Ophelia C. Mrs. Wilsie died May 18, 1873, on the thirtieth anniversary of her wedding day. Mr. Wilsie worked several years at his trade of carpenter and joiner; he came to Wisconsin in 1856, and settled on his present farm; he has 110 acres under good cultivation; carries on "mixed" farming. Mr. Wilsie's father came to this State in 1844, and to this township in 1846, and the family endured the privations and experiences incident to the life of early pioneers; he died in 1877; the mother is now aged 87, and her home is with Mr. Wilsie; he has been Township Treasurer once and Side Supervisor four terms; is a member of Grange 52. Was married, Oct. 18, 1877, to Mrs. Lavina Butler, of Metomen, by whom he has one child, named Luella. Himself and wife are Methodists; his parents were Quakers. He has been Class-Leader more than a quarter of a century, and a member of M. E. Church nearly half a century; he is social, benevolent and respected.

JOHN WORMWOOD, farmer, Sec. 23; P. O. Brandon; born in Caledonia Co., Vt., on the 3d of July, 1819; his parents were farmers, and his early life was spent on a farm in the Green Mountain State; at the age of 19, he, with his parents, removed to New Hampshire, where he remained until 1849; from the autumn of 1849, to the spring of 1855, he was in the furniture business in Boston, Mass. He was married in Boston, on the 13th of August, 1851, to Miss Sarah Sargeant, formerly of Waitsfield, Vt.; they have two children—Mary Ella and John. In the spring of 1855, they came West, and located on the farm they now occupy; they have 140 acres, of which all except about twenty acres is under cultivation. He was the first Master of Brandon Grange, No. 52; has been Chairmen of Metomen six times, and has held other local offices; has been Master of Brandon Lodge, No. 144, of A. F. & A. M., and is a Royal Arch Mason. Politically, he is a Republican, and defends his principles by argument and ballot. Himself and wife are consistent believers in the doctrine that the infinite love of God will ultimately gather all mankind to Himself in a realm of happiness.

ANDREW J. YORTY, P. O. Brandon; member of firm of Hillman & Yorty, wholesale lumber dealers and manufacturers, located at Winneconne, Winnebago Co., Wis.; he was born in Meadville, Penn., on the 4th of January, 1832; his father was a blacksmith, and in 1844 he came to Wisconsin with his family and located on Jefferson Prairie, Rock Co., where he started a shop and also took some land, which the sons carried on; in the spring of 1846, A. J., with his father, came to Round Prairie, Metomen Township, and took up 160 acres of land, and broke up a portion of the same; the family removed to the farm in 1847; the father died in 1874; young Andrew worked on the farm, and during the winters availed himself of the best educational advantages afforded by the county; at the age of 19, he began teaching winter schools; he taught one season in Ripon; in November, 1855, he went to California, and for five and a half years he was subject to the "ups and downs" incident to the life of a miner; he returned to Brandon in May, 1861, and for four years was a farmer in this township. He was married March 12, 1863, to Miss Maggie Patterson of Alto; they have three children: Lizzie, born June 4, 1864; Edith, born July 15, 1867; Andrew J., Jr., born Dec. 2, 1871; since 1866 he has been in the lumber trade; he commenced the retail business in Brandon, but since 1875 he has been engaged in manufacturing and wholesaling lumber, with headquarters at Winneconne, Wisconsin; Mr. Yorty was Superintendent of schools under the township system in 1855; he was Town Clerk two years, also Treasurer one year, when he collected the largest tax ever raised in this township, as it included the bounty tax; he has been Chairman twice, and in 1871 was elected a Member of the Legislature from the First Assembly District of Fond du Lac Co.; has held other local offices; has been a member of the I. O. O. F., and also of the various temperance organizations; he is a Royal Arch Mason. Is a reliable Republican; himself and wife affiliate with the Methodist Church. Mr. Yorty and his partner are both residents of Brandon.

ALTO TOWNSHIP.

ANDREW BRUINS, farmer, Sec. 9; P. O. Brandon; was born in Gelderland, Holland, on the 3d of December, 1827. He was drafted before the age of 19, and receiving a year's furlough, he emigrated to America, in which he has acquired citizenship. On the 27th of May, 1847, he arrived in Alto, and bought a pre-emption in the same section where he now lives; his parents and remainder of family came in the fall of the same year, and have lived in Alto ever since. He was married in October, 1851, to Miss Ellen Gleiven, formerly of Gelderland, Holland. He has 330 acres of land in Alto, and 80 acres in Metomen, the greater part of which is tillable; they have had nine children, three of whom died young; the six living are Henrietta, Henry, Anna, Mina, Ella and Andrew. He prefers to tend his farm rather than hold office. The family are connected with the Ebenezer Reformed Church of Alto. His father erected their church edifice mainly at his own expense. He is a Republican. The father and three brothers live in Alto Township, and are all thrifty farmers and good citizens.

DERK BRUINS, farmer, Sec. 8; P. O. Brandon; was born in Gelderland, Holland, on the 20th of March, 1839; he came to America, with his parents, in 1847, and has lived in Alto to present date; he is the youngest son, and has always lived with his parents; his mother is dead, but the father still lives with Derk, and part of the property is still held by the father; he, the father, H. Bruins, is 81 years of age, has thirty-three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, and is in good health, except the necessary infirmities of age. Derk has 300 acres of land, all tillable except thirty acres of marsh, but forty acres are still wooded; has 350 graded Merino sheep; raises other live stock, and also grain. He was married Jan. 11, 1865, to Miss Cynthia B. Heusinkveld, formerly of Holland; they have six children—William H., Hannah, Edward, Henry M., Mina H. and Derk Jr. He has been Side Supervisor three years. Himself and family, and father, belong to the Ebenezer Reformed Church of Alto. He is Republican. Like most of his nationality, he is a moral, law-abiding citizen.

JOHN BRUINS, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Brandon; was born in Gelderland, Holland, on the 27th of January, 1833; came to America in the fall of 1847, and settled in Alto, and worked on the farm with his parents for fourteen years. In April, 1859, he was married to Miss Christina Gleiven, formerly of Gelderland, Holland. He bought his present farm in January, 1861; he has 240 acres, about 200 of which are tillable; he raises some wheat to sell, but pays more attention to live stock, sheep and cattle; he has two large barns with basement, and a comfortable house. Have had ten children; two died in childhood; the living are Hattie, Cornelius, Henry J., Johanna H., Dina L., Mary, Jennie C. and Henrietta J.; all the children are at home. He is now Side Supervisor. Himself and wife are members of the Ebenezer Reformed Church of Alto; he is a Republican, and has the characteristics of the Hollanders; is an industrious and moral citizen.

JAN W. BRUINS, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Brandon; he was born in Wilp, Gelderland, Holland, on the 12th of February, 1835; his parents came to Alto in 1847, and he lived at home till 1863, when he settled on the farm which he now owns. He was married, Sept. 27, 1862, to Miss Gertrude Vanderbeck, by whom he had three children, of whom two are living—Hendrikes and Dina. The mother died Dec. 25, 1867. He has 187 acres, fully 150 of which is tillable; he raises grain and stock. In May, 1868, he married Miss Elizabeth Garritsen, by whom he had three children; the two living are named Gertrude A. and John. Mrs. Bruins died Aug. 10, 1873. He has been Side Supervisor two terms and Town Treasurer once. He was married to his present wife on the 27th of October, 1873; her maiden name was Aaltje Rens; they have had three children, of whom two are living—Betsey and Aaldert Van Wechel. Himself and family are connected with the Ebenezer Reformed Church of Alto. Has good farm buildings and an excellent brick residence. Is Republican; is Trustee of the church; is a reliable and respected citizen.

MATHIAS DUVEN, farmer, Sec. 14; P. O. Waupun; born July 1, 1816, in Holland, Province of Gelderland. Was married in Holland, in 1840, to Alida Straks, who was born Dec. 19, 1818; daughter of Hendrekes Straks. Mr. Duven came to America in 1846, and lived ten months in Jefferson Co., Wis.; then came to Alto, and has resided there since. Has held office in the Reformed Church (of which he is a member) over twenty-five years. Mrs. Duven died June 21, 1877, of paralysis; was taken in church at 2 o'clock P. M. and died at 11 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Duven has nine children—William, Henry, Charles, Henrietta (now Mrs. John Gysbers), Dora (now Mrs. Derk Rens), Mary (Mrs. Jacob Meenk), Jane (Mrs. John Redaker), John and Hannah, all living in Alto except Charles, who lives in the city of Waupun, and Jane, who lives in Trenton, Dodge Co. Has 160 acres of land, worth $40 per acre. Republican.

ELISHA GREEN, retired farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Waupun; was born in the town of Weare, N. H., on the 27th of December, 1792, and is doubtless the oldest citizen of Alto; he is able to take care of himself—is, in fact, a vigorous, hearty old man; he spent his early life in Addison Co., Vt.; came to Alto in 1854 and located on the farm where he now lives with his son George. He was married, Jan. 29, 1822, to Miss Silvia Chase, of Vermont; they had eight children, three of whom are dead; the living are Abigail, Silvia A., Mary A., George G. and Hattie E. The mother died Oct. 27, 1876. He came to Alto and bought land, but carried it on mainly by hired help; he is a natural mechanic and delights still to work in wood or iron. Is of Quaker parentage; was never an active politician, but has been a reliable Republican; is an honest man and a good citizen.

GEORGE G. GREEN, farmer, Sec. 29; P. O. Waupun; was born in Ferrisburg, Addison Co., Vt., on the 16th of November, 1834; came to Wisconsin in 1854 and settled on his present farm. He was married, in September, 1872, to Miss Lusella Fowler, by whom he had one child—Lusella M.; the mother died April 7, 1874. He owns 240 acres of land, of which fully two hundred are tillable; carries on mixed farming, but makes somewhat of a specialty of stock-raising, particularly of sheep; he has 200 thoroughbred and graded Merinos; is called a successful farmer and stock-raiser. Is a Royal Arch Mason and a Republican. Is a man of strong likes and dislikes.

WILLIAM GLENDINNING (deceased); was born July 9, 1805, in the parish of Ashkirk, Scotland; served five years to learn the carpenter's trade. Married, March 22, 1827, Catharine Graham, who was born in February, 1805, in the parish of Howick, Scotland, daughter of Thomas Graham; her mother's maiden name was Margaret Rutherford. Mr. Glendinning came to America in the spring of 1832 with his family; remained in Montreal a few months, then went to the State of New York and followed farming in Delaware Co. till June, 1845; then sold out and came to Wisconsin; he settled in the town of Alto on Sec. 36, where he followed farming till his death, which occurred Sept. 5, 1872. He left a widow and eight children—William Thomas (living in California), Margaret (now Mrs. John Chapman, of Dickinson Co., Iowa), Effie (now Mrs. Hugh Meikle, of Alto), Isabell (now Mrs. Merritt Vader, of Alto), Elliot (living near Wausau, Wis.), and James and Helen, living with their mother on the homestead, which consists of 130 acres, and worth about $40 per acre; one son, Walter, was accidentally killed Dec. 2, 1878, while engaged in unloading a car of logs at the saw-mill belonging to himself and brother Elliot, near Wausau, Wis.; left a wife and two children; lost two children in New York, who died in infancy. P. O. Waupun.

ROBERT GRAHAM, farmer, Sec. 1; P. O. Brandon; he was born in Eskdalemuir, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, on the 24th of May, 1829; he is descended from one of the oldest families of Scotland, his ancestry dating back nearly four centuries. "Sir John the Graham," a prominent member of the clan, is known in history as the friend Sir William Wallace, and his exploits as a Scottish Chief, Marquis of Montrose, are immortalized by Sir Walter Scott. The subject of this sketch was married in Scotland, on the 18th of February, 1853, to Miss Jane Inglis, of Roxboroughshire, Scotland; three years after marriage, they came to America, attracted by the glowing reports given by friends who had found homes in Wisconsin; on the 12th of August, 1856, he and his "bonnie bride" took dinner in one of the rooms of his present fine residence, which was at that time the entire dwelling; he has lived in Alto continuously to present date; he was a shepherd in Scotland, and had saved but little more than $100 with which to commence farming in this town; he first worked out by the month, but soon bought land and enjoyed the high prices of "war times;" he paid $9,500 for his present farm of 190 acres; he has a few acres of marsh, but nearly all his farm is high, beautiful prairie, unsurpassed by any in the township; he has spacious grounds inclosed with his residence, which stands upon the corner of two well-traveled roads; he raises live stock and grain; his barns indicate the thrifty farmer. They have had five children, one, a son, died in 1871, aged 24 years; the living are William, John, Elizabeth and George. William is married and lives in Brandon; this son and a partner, named Clark, run a steam feed-mill on Mr. Graham's farm; the engine is used a portion of the time in connection with a steam thrasher; the mill has a daily capacity of six tons. Mr. G. has been District Clerk for a dozen years, and Side Supervisor two years. He is one of the Deacons of the Brandon Congregational Church; and his family are also Congregationalists; he is a reliable Republican. He has many of the characteristics of the representative Scotchman—is moral, industrious, attached to his countrymen and to "Bonnie Scotland."

JOHN H. HAGENS, merchant, south line of Sec. 14; P. O. Waupun; born Aug. 26, 1841, in Holland, in the Province of Gelderland; son of Aaron and Henrietta Hagens, who took passage for America when he was about 5 years old, and both died before reaching New York; John H. was taken to the New York Orphan Asylum, where he remained till 1858, then came to the town of Holland, Ottawa Co., Mich., and from there to Wisconsin, remaining in the town of Alto till 1860, when he went to Milwaukee and engaged as clerk in a dry-goods store; continued in that business in Milwaukee till 1866, then returned to Alto and commenced trade for himself, where he still continues. Was married Dec. 8, 1871, to Theodora Kastein, who was born Feb. 8, 1849, in the same place as her husband; daughter of Rudolph and Elizabeth (Terheest) Kustein, who came to America in 1866; Mr. Hagens has three children—Aaron, Elizabeth and Theodora. Mrs. Hagens is a member of the Reformed Church. He is a Republican.

ROBERT HOBKIRK, farmer, Sec. 33; P. O. Waupun; born April 13, 1817, in Roxburghshire, Scotland; son of Robert and Margaret (Blakie) Hobkirk; came to America in the spring of 1842 and settled in Delaware Co., N. Y., where he was married, July 26, 1844, to Jessie Riddoch, who was born Sept. 25, 1826, in Scotland, daughter of John Riddoch; has seven children—Robert and John (living in Trenton, Dodge Co.), William, Mary, Frank, Anna and Jessie; Elizabeth died Sept. 29, 1877, in her 25th year, and Alexander died in infancy. Members of Congregational Church; Democrat. Owns 200 acres land.

JOHN KASTEIN, farmer, Sec. 23; P. O. Waupun; born March 10, 1835, in Gelderland, Holland; son of John William Kastein; his mother's maiden name was Theodora Terhurst; came to America with his parents in 1847, and settled in the town of Metomen, Fond du Lac Co., Wis.; lived there six or seven years, then came to Alto and located on Sec. 23; his mother died Feb. 14, 1867; father still living. Was married, Nov. 30, 1858, to Ellen Giabenstein, who was born Aug. 12, 1836, in Gelderland, Holland; daughter of Henry and Johanna (Sleister) Giabenstein; has ten children living—Johanna (now Mrs. William Loymans, of Alto); Theodore, John, William, Elizabeth, Rudolph, Antoinette, Maria, John, Angeline and Robertus; all living with parents except Johanna; has lost one—John William, died in July, 1864, aged 4 years and 9 months. Mr. Kastein has held the office of Assessor for the last four years; Supervisor several years; also Clerk of the School District, and has been one of the Directors of the Waupun Farmer's Insurance Co. for the last five years; in politics, Democrat. Has 160 acres land, worth $40 per acre. Both members of the Reformed Church.

JOHN KLOOSTERBOER, farmer, Sec. 23; P. O. Waupun; born Dec. 14, 1817, in Holland, Province of Gelderland; came to America in 1849, and settled in the town of Alto on Sec. 23; came to Sec. 23 in 1861; has followed farming ever since he came to this country; had no English education in Holland, but took an English-print newspaper (the New York Tribune), when he first came to this country, and soon learned to read and speak English. In March, 1841, he was married, in Holland, to Fannie Groothedde, who was born April 27, 1804, in Holland; her first husband's name was Derk Van Wechel, who died in 1838, leaving four children—Ella (who died in January, 1875), Johanna (now Mrs. John Straks, of Alto), Arend (who lives in Iowa), and Anna (now Mrs. William Klumpers, of Alto). He has 374 acres of land in Alto, divided into three farms, worth about $15,000. He is a member of the Reformed Church, and a Republican.

WILLIAM KLUMPERS, farmer, Sec. 23; P. O. Waupun; born March 28, 1827, in Holland, Province of Gelderland; came to America in 1847, and lived in the town of Sullivan, Jefferson Co., Wis., till the spring of 1857, then sold out, and bought the farm he now owns, where he has since resided. He was married, March 11, 1857, to Anna Van Wechel, who was born May 29, 1838, also in Gelderland, Holland, daughter of Derk Van Wechel, and stepdaughter of John Kloosterboer. Have five children—Johanna, Derk, Garret, Frances and Willie; have lost two—Garret died March 20, 1863, aged 17 months, and Frankie, April 27, 1868, aged 10 months. Johanna is now the wife of John Nechel, of Alto. Has eighty acres of land, worth $60 per acre. Both members of the Reformed Church, and he is a Republican.

JOHN LANDAAL, farmer, Sec. 26; P. O. Waupun; born Jan. 15, 1824, in Gelderland, Holland; son of Cornelius Landaal, who came to America in 1848, settled in Alto, and died Sept. 20, 1874; John came to America in 1847, and worked at carpenter and joiner work (which trade he had learned in Holland) one year in Milwaukee, Wis.; in the spring of 1848, went to Ottawa Co., Mich.; lived there till the fall of 1849, then came back to Wisconsin and settled in the town of Alto; first bought a farm of thirty acres on Sec. 21, subsequently added to it, and sold out in the spring of 1856; the next fall, he bought the farm he now owns, on Sec. 26; has 180 acres in his home farm, and 160 acres on the county line in Secs. 34 and 35; both farms are worth about $20,000. He has been Justice of the Peace, Supervisor and Assessor; was one of the originators of the Waupun Farmers' Insurance Co., and is now agent for the town of Alto. He was married, Nov. 14, 1850, to Berendiena Mensink, who was born Nov. 28, 1832, in the same place as her husband; her parents came to America in 1816; lived three years in Saratoga Co., N. Y., then came to Wisconsin and lived in Alto till 1864, then removed to Fillmore Co., Minn., and died there; Mr. and Mrs. Landaal have ten children—Mary C., now Mrs. Henry De Groat, of Alto; Johanna H., now Mrs. John Duitman; Henry B., married Mary De Groat, and lives in Alto; Mina C., now Mrs. Anthony Loomans, of Alto; John L., Bernard J., Garret A., Emma L., Cornelius H. and Louisa A.; have lost four—Mina C., Cornelius H., Louisa A. and Benjamin. Mr. Landaal is a Democrat, and an Elder in the Reformed Church, to which they both belong.

DAVID T. McCLAUGHEY, Sec. 30; P. O. Waupun; was born Dec. 20, 1824, in Washington Co., N. Y.; he lived five years in Oswego Co. before coming West in 1839; his father, Daniel, and all the family, came to Wisconsin, and settled on Pleasant Prairie, Kenosha Co., on the 7th of November, 1839; David T. remained there until the summer of 1846, when he took up land in Alto; he has been twenty-four years on the farm which he now owns. He was married, March 13, 1849, to Miss Susan E. Knight, of Alto; her parents were among the very earliest settlers in this township; he has 500 acres, all of which he regards as tillable, but about one-fifth is marsh, which yields an abundance of good hay; he makes a specialty of stock-raising; has 125 thoroughbred and graded merino sheep; keeps grade Durham cattle; has several horses of the Swigart breed. They have six children—Angeline B., Martha, David W., Maria, Jessie F., and Nellie V.; the two oldest daughters are married and live in Iowa; the other four are on the home farm; he was a partner with William Knight in keeping the first hotel in Alto; it was on Sec. 31, and for a dozen years had a large patronage; he has been Side Supervisor, and also Treasurer several times; he never had a lawsuit in his life. He is a Republican, and is a member of Waupun Lodge, No. 48, of A., E. & A. M.; his father, Daniel, was born Dec. 21, 1802; came to Alto in 1863, and makes his home with his son, David T.; his wife died in 1869; he had a family of nine of whom six are living; the youngest died in the army. All have been successful farmers and good citizens.

JOHN ALBERT MEENK, farmer, Sec. 25; P. O. Waupun; born Oct. 12, 1820, in Gelderland, Holland; came to America in 1844, arriving in New York City in August; lived in Westfield, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., till 1845, when he was joined by his parents, two sisters and five brothers; the whole family came to Wisconsin and settled in Alto, except Henry, who went to Texas. Mr. Meenk was married, Feb. 2, 1850, to Henrietta Veenhuis, who was born in October, 1821, in Gelderland, Holland, and died July 24, 1857, of consumption, leaving two children—Jacob and Garret William, both living in Alto; Garret William with his father. Was married the second time, Nov. 17, 1858, to Anna Cornelia Wubbels, who died April 12, 1868, aged about 52, leaving one child by Mr. Meenk (her second husband), Gertrude. Was married the third time, Jan. 27, 1870, to Mrs. Alida Veenhuis, whose maiden name was Proppers; has 180 acres of land, $40 per acre. Member of Reformed Church, and a Republican.

JOHN D. MEENK (deceased) was born in Gelderland, Holland; came to America, with his parents, in 1815, and settled in the town of Alto, being among the first settlers of the town; lived first in the north part of the town, but sold out in 1865, and removed to Sec. 23, where he resided till his death, which occurred in the fall of 1873, of consumption, after an illness of several years; he was but a child when his father, Garrett Meenk, came to America. He married Cynthia Loomans, daughter of John Wm. Loomans, who came to America from Holland in 1814, and to Alto in 1817, where he is still living. Mr. Meenk left ten children—Garrett (lives in Waupun), William, Jane (now Mrs. Garret Gysbers, of Alto), Mina, Della, Hattie, Anna, Caroline, Hannah and Albert; all living on the homestead, except Garrett and Jane. Mrs. Meenk was married the second time, Feb. 10, 1880, to Derk J. Nizel, of Minnesota. The homestead consists of eighty acres of land on Sec. 23, with good buildings; P. O. Waupun.

GERHARDES GEORGE NEEVEL, farmer, Sec. 22 (formerly painter); P. O. Waupun, born Sept. 16, 1827, in Gelderland, Holland; came to America in 1853, and settled in the city of Waupun, where he followed painting till 1875, then went on his farm in Alto, and has followed farming since. Was married, Dec. 26, 1859, to Alida Elizabeth Denck, who was born in his native place in 1838, and died July 29, 1874, leaving five children—John George, Edward, Mina Johanna, Gerret Christian (dead) and Frank Albert. Was married the second time Dec. 31, 1874, to Magdalena Anna De Mersseman, who was born July 2, 1840, in Zealand, Holland; she came with her parents to Wisconsin in 1848. They have had three children—Januëke Elizabeth, Theodorus Isaac and Isaac Gerhardes; lost one child of the first wife—Gerret Christian, aged 1 year and 4 months. Owns 160 acres of land.

J. RENSINK, farmer, Sec. 10; P. O. Brandon; was born in the Province of Gelderland, Holland, on the 3d of January, 1833; at the age of 13, he, with his parents, came to America; they settled on the present homestead in Alto, in the spring of 1846; the aged parents still live with their son, and half the land is still in their name, but he is the only heir; together, they have a farm of 320 acres, two-thirds of which is tillable. He was married to Miss Julia Shalenski on the 28th of December, 1878. Both his parents and himself and wife are members of the Dutch Reformed Church. He has raised grain mainly, but intends to keep sheep; he has good farm improvements. He has always been a Republican, but takes little interest in politics. J. W. Rensink is the father's name. All are moral, law-abiding citizens.

ROELOF SLEYSER, farmer and painter, Sec. 15; P. O. Waupun; was born Dec. 25, 1815, in Zutphen, Holland; his father was a painter and grainer, and Roelof learned the trade and worked with his father till 1846, when he came to America and settled on the present homestead. He was married in Milwaukee, June 26, 1847, to Miss Johanna H. Liesveld, who was born April 6, 1822, in Arnheim, Holland; since that date, they have lived on the home farm, the carrying-on of which he has superintended and also worked at painting a portion of the time; he has been twenty-one years Clerk of his school district, fourteen years Supervisor, and, in 1870, was a member of the General Assembly from the First District of Fond du Lac Co. They have had ten children, one of whom died in infancy, and nine are now living—Mary E., J. William, Johanna H., Liesveld A., Roelof H., Coba R., Henry J., Eva M. and Benjamin U.; four children are still at home in the spring of 1880. He has 140 acres of land; raises grain and good grade live stock. His son, Henry, is raising blooded poultry. Mr. Sleyser was one of the first settlers of Alto; he has never been in a law-suit, either as plaintiff or defendant. He is a stalwart Republican, and so, also, is each son who has become of age. He gives due honor to his worthy wife for her counsels and co-operation in earning life's successes.

WILLIAM H. SMITHERS, farmer, Sec. 17; P. O. Waupun; was born April 14, 1822, in Yorkshire, England; came with his parents to America in 1837, and settled in St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., where he remained eight years. He was married in September, 1844, to Miss Lois A. Knight, of York State. They came to Wisconsin in the spring of 1845, and remained one year in Bristol, Kenosha Co.; then, in the summer of 1846, they settled in the township of Alto; bought his present farm in 1848; he has 222 acres of land, all tillable, except about fifty acres of marsh; he sells no grain, but raises live stock—sheep, hogs, horses and cattle; has a large, well-planned barn, with basement, and good farm conveniences; has a comfortable and hospitable home. They have had nine children—one daughter, Anna K., died in 1870; the living are Sarah E., Edna M., Ella M., Maggie D., Carrie Z., Willie F., Saba U. and Lois A.; four daughters are married. He has been many years Clerk of Elections, eleven years Town Clerk, two years Assessor, two years Treasurer and one year Side Supervisor; he is a member of a temperance society and the Grange; he passed through the privations and varied experiences of pioneer life. He and several other old settlers related this story of the abundance of fish, especially "bullheads," in the Rock River below Waupun: When ice covered the river, people chopped airholes at some desirable point in the river, to which the fish would come in vast quantities, and from which they could be dipped up by the bushel. Several pioneers state a wagon-body full (twenty-five or thirty bushels) could be had for 25 cents—about 1 cent a bushel; fifty wagon loads per day have been dipped out; tens of thousands of bushels taken during the winter. Other kinds of fish at some seasons were nearly as abundant. They were obtained mainly to feed hogs. Many of the fish died of suffocation because of the immense masses and the want of aerated water. Wild fowls and deer were plenty. Mr. Smithers was one of the first to move out on the prairie away from the "openings;" his first house was built without nails, boards or glass—simply poles covered with hay, making a comfortable summer residence; cooking, of course, was done "outside." Mr. Smithers has been a member of the Methodist Church for twenty years. He is a thrifty farmer, a capable man and a good citizen.

HENRY STRAKS, merchant and teacher, Sec. 23; P. O. Waupun; born Feb. 13, 1853, in Alto; son of John Straks, who came to Wisconsin in 1846 from Holland, and settled in Alto in 1848, where he now resides. Henry lived with his father till he was 24 years of age, except when at school; is a graduate of the State Normal School at Oshkosh, and has followed teaching about four years. Was married, April 1, 1877, to Priscilla Neevel, who was born March 1, 1855, also in Alto; daughter of J. H. Neevel, a native of Holland, who came from Pittsburgh, Penn., to the town of Alto in 1848, where he still resides. Mr. Straks has a general store on the corners at the north line of Sec. 23 and employs a clerk to attend to that part of his business, while he is engaged in teaching in District No. 1, half a mile south of his store and dwelling. Has two children—John Hubert, born Aug. 22, 1878, and Nellie, Dec. 13, 1879. He is a Republican, and is now a Justice of the Peace; both members of the Dutch Reformed Church of America.

JOHN STRAKS, farmer, Sec. 23; P. O. Waupun; born May 31, 1826, in Province of Gelderland, Holland; son of H. D. Straks; mother's maiden name Catharine Weenink; came to America in 1846, arriving in New York July 6; came direct to Wisconsin, and lived in Waterville, Jefferson Co., till February, 1848; then came to Alto, and settled on Sec. 26; lived there till 1865, and then sold out and removed to his present location on Sec. 23; has 125 acres of land valued at about $40 per acre. Was married, June 2, 1851, to Johanna Van Wechel, who was born April 6, 1830, also in Gelderland, Holland; daughter of Derk Van Wechel, and step-daughter of John Kloosterboer; has six children living—Henry, Derk Van Wechel, John, Catharine, Wilhelmina and Johanna—the last four living with their parents; have lost five children—Henry, died in infancy; Catharine, at the age of 5 months and 10 days; Frederick, 5 months; Anna, in infancy, and Frank, Feb. 26, 1878, in his 16th year; he was of kind, obliging disposition, learned music readily, and was a natural artist, leaving a number of sketches showing considerable ability in that direction. Mr. and Mrs. Straks are both members of the Reformed Church, and he has been an Elder in the church since 1865. Republican. Had seventy-five guests at their silver wedding, which occurred June 2, 1876.

BEENERD TER BEEST, retired farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Waupun; born in Gelderland, Holland, June 6, 1806; came to America in 1856, and settled on a farm in Alto; lives with his son, Derk, on the farm which he bought in 1859. He was married, Dec. 9, 1829, to Miss Katharina Louisa Bosch; they have had seven children; one died in Holland, and one died in the United States Army; the living are Evert, Henry, Derk, Alida and Diena. He is a Republican; both himself and his venerable wife are members of the Reformed Church of Alto, and are in good health and a happy old age.

DERK A. G. TER BEEST, farmer, Sec. 16; P. O. Waupun; he was born in Gelderland, Holland, on the 8th of June, 1811; his parents came to America in 1847, and settled in Alto, where the entire family have since lived. He was married, March 13, 1879, to Miss Grada Johanna Heusinkfeld. He has lived on their present farm since 1859, but did not buy it till 1878; he has 80 acres, fully 45 of which are under good cultivation; he raises all kinds of grain and live stock. He is a Republican; himself and wife are members of the First Reformed Church of Alto.

JACOB WELLHOUSE, merchant and farmer, Brandon; he was born in Gelderland, Holland, Dec. 31, 1833; came to America with his parents in 1847, and settled in Alto; has lived in that township ever since; resides on Sec. 1; he lived at home until the spring after he was of age. He was married, May 12, 1855 to Miss Johanna B. Terlurst, of Milwaukee. He has been a farmer from boyhood; he has bought and sold several farms, and now owns three farms; the one he lives on is located about one and a half miles south of Brandon; he has 300 acres of land, more than nine-tenths of which is under cultivation; he carries on all the land himself, raises both live stock and grain. He has five children, all living, named John, Henry, Eliza, Gerrit and Jacob, Jr. He has been five years Clerk of the School Board, and Township Treasurer twice; he is a liberal Democrat, but takes no active part in politics; himself and wife are members of the Congregational Church of Alto. During the present year he has bought a stock of goods in Brandon, and now has a full stock of all kinds of goods kept in a general village store; he has a liberal patronage, both from his countrymen and Americans.

GRIFFITH R. WILLIAMS, farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Brandon; was born Dec. 25, 1833, in Caermarthenshire, South Wales; he landed in Milwaukee Sept. 9, 1850; his parents settled in Wau-shara Co., in February, 1851, where they continued to reside until their death in 1878; subject of this sketch worked by the month four years as a farm laborer in Wisconsin, his parents belonging to that class so largely represented in new countries, "poor, but respectable and industrious." He was married, May 14, 1854, to Miss Susan O'Connor, of Jefferson Co., N. Y.; in fall of same year they removed to her native county, where he bought land, and carried on farming eleven years; on the 13th of April, 1866, he came to Alto, and settled on the farm which he now owns; they have had three children, one of whom died in infancy in 1866; the two sons are Edgar R., who was married Feb. 25, 1880, and Winfield S.; has 120 acres, nearly all of which is tillable; is a member of Brandon Grange, No. 52; is a Republican; is a moral, law-abiding citizen.

HARRY C. WILLIAMS, farmer, Sec. 31; P. O. Waupun; he was born June 19, 1809, in Lewis Co., N. Y.; his grandfather was a Revolutionary soldier, and his father was in the war of 1812; his early life was spent on his father's farm; he worked several years in clearing up a farm in the wooded section of York State. He was married, May 1, 1833, to Miss Rebecca Wilcox, with whom he has happily journeyed nearly to the fiftieth mile-post; after marriage, he continued farming in the same county till 1847, when he came to Kenosha, Wis., then Southport; his parents and relatives, to the number of twenty-two, came about the same time, some by water, others by land, but all met at Kenosha. The subject of this sketch, and his parents, located on Spring Prairie, Walworth Co., where the parents died in 1865. Mr. Williams remained on Spring Prairie four years. In 1851, he settled in Alto, on some land which he had previously "entered," and which is a part of his present farm of 520 acres, three-fifths of which is tillable, the remainder is marsh, which is sometimes as valuable as the uplands. He raises cattle—has, at present time, one hundred head of graded Durhams; keeps about fifty cows. For the last nine years he has also had a cheese factory, which uses the milk from 100 cows, and which is superintended by his wife; they have commodious barns; within their fine residence are found evidences of refinement and wealth; they have two daughters—Sarah E. and Mary R.; the eldest is married to G. W. Adams, a prominent business man of Chicago; Mary R. is an amateur artist of ability and culture; some of her paintings are worthy of a professional. He has been Chairman and also Side Supervisor; he was never a member of any secret society. He is a Republican, and himself and wife are Congregationalists. He has passed through the "hard times" of pioneer life; he remembers that, in 1853, he drew wheat to Markesan, and was unable to dispose of it, except for cotton bags, which he did, giving a bushel of good wheat for each bag. Now, blest with competency and friends, they are cheerfully passing on to ripened age.

URIAH WOOD. farmer, Sec. 4; P. O. Brandon; was born Dec. 25, 1830, in Schoharie Co., N. Y.; his parents removed to Wyoming Co., N. Y., 1832, where he resided until 1844, when they came to Wisconsin, and settled in Kenosha Co., but remained only one year; in the fall of 1845, they located on the farm which they now own in Alto. When migrating to the West, young Uriah, then 12 years of age, drove one of the teams from New York to Wisconsin. The next year, after becoming of age, he went across the Plains and spent two years in California. Was married on the 17th of June, 1855, to Miss L. Agnes Mares, formerly of Canada. In December of that year, they settled upon their present farm, which is finely improved; they have spacious barns, excellent farm conveniences and a fine residence; the farm consists of 230 acres, mostly of choice prairie land, and 200 are under good cultivation. This land is conceded to be unsurpassed for beauty and fertility, and the owner is known for his energy, thrift and thorough farming; raises both grain and live stock; is somewhat of a specialist in sheep-raising; thirty-three of his fine flock of merinos are registered in the Vermont Merino Sheep-Breeder's Association. Has seven children—Henry C., Charlotte M., E. Addie, Agnes A., Dora C., Uriah D. and Maud M. He has always declined official honors, but, notwithstanding his protest, he was sent to the General Assembly in 1878, from the First District of Fond du Lac Co.; is a member of Brandon Lodge of A., F. & A. M. Himself and wife affiliate with the Methodist Church, and so also do the parents of both; he is a Republican. His fellow-citizens pronounce him a successful farmer and a capable man.

TOO LATE FOR INSERTION IN PROPER PLACE.

Oakfield Fire Insurance Company.—This insurance company is for the towns of Oakfield, Lamartine and Byron, in Fond du Lac County, and Le Roy, in Dodge County. It was organized in August, 1873, with H. Barnes, President, and H. D. Hitt, Secretary and Treasurer, who have ever since held the same offices. In 1880, the company had 533 policies in force, covering $948,332 of property. The losses have been: 1873, $1,500; 1874, $67; 1875, $1,870; 1876, $7,500; 1877, $757.32; 1878, $3,314; 1879, $1,815.71; total, $7,981.51. The Directors are: for Oakfield, H. D. Hitt, F. R. Shepard; Lamartine, D. R. Williams, W. S. Warner; Byron, D. D. Jones, Delos Allen; Le Roy, H. Barnes, E. G. Stoddard.

PASSENGERS BOUND FOR CALIFORNIA, COLORADO, NEBRASKA,
 DAKOTA, MINNESOTA,
 WISCONSIN, MONTANA,
 AND THE TERRITORIES.

Should, if they would consult their interest, buy their tickets via the

Chicago & North-Western Railway

This is the LEADING RAILWAY of the WEST AND NORTHWEST.

This important system of Railway Lines is one of the Largest Corporations in the World, owning and operating, under one management,

2,390 MILES OF ROAD.

Its Lines run from Chicago in so many directions that it is necessary to designate its Lines by certain specific names, which will give a correct idea to the passenger of the part of country each Line traverses. These Lines, numbering nine, are as follows:

- | | | |
|---|--|---|
| Chicago, Council Bluffs & California Line.
Chicago, Sioux City & Yankton Line.
Chicago, Clinton, Dubuque & La Crosse Line.
Chicago, Freeport & Dubuque Line. | | Chicago, La Crosse & Winona Line.
Chicago, Minnesota & Dakota Line.
Chicago, St. Paul & Minneapolis Line.
Chicago, Milwaukee & Lake Superior Line.
Chicago, Green Bay & Marquette Line. |
|---|--|---|

These Lines enable the "CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN" to reach all principal points in the WEST, NORTHWEST, and, through its connections, the FAR WEST.

It offers every facility for Quick, Safe and Comfortable Transit to the traveler who selects this as his route.

It stands second to no road in the West, and offers inducements and advantages that are not and cannot be offered by any of its competitors.

Its management adopts every improvement known to the modern Railway System, and is determined that the CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY shall remain the LEADING Railway of the GREAT WEST.

Passengers should ask for and be certain their Tickets have a Coupon which reads, over the

"CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RY."

All Ticket Agents will be glad to sell them via this Line.

REMEMBER!—PULLMAN HOTEL CARS Are now running regularly between CHICAGO and COUNCIL BLUFFS on the California Express Trains of the CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY. BE BLAZ IN MIND, no other road runs Pullman Hotel Cars, or any form of Hotel Cars, THROUGH between Chicago and the Missouri River. This is the only Line that has THROUGH EATING CARS of any sort.

NO TRANSFER at ST. PAUL via the CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RY.

Passengers procuring tickets to points beyond ST. PAUL should use GREAT CARE to see that they read over the

Chicago & North-Western Railway,
 —OR TH—
Chicago, St. Paul & Minneapolis Line.

And not over a route having a SIMILAR NAME, as this is

→ THE ONLY ROUTE YOU CAN TAKE TO AVOID A CHANGE OF DEPOT AT ST. PAUL. ←

NEW YORK OFFICE—No. 45 Broadway.

BOSTON OFFICE—No. 5 State Street.

MILWAUKEE CITY TICKET OFFICE—102 Wisconsin Street.

ST. PAUL TICKET OFFICE—Cor. Third and Jackson Streets.

MINNEAPOLIS TICKET OFFICES—13 Nicollet House, and St. Paul & Pacific Depot.

CHICAGO TICKET OFFICES—62 Clark Street, under Sherman House; 75 Canal Street; Kinzie Street Depot, corner West Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

COUNCIL BLUFFS TICKET OFFICES—Corner Broadway and Pearl Street, Union Pacific Depot; and Chicago & North-Western Railway Depot.

OMAHA TICKET OFFICES—Union Pacific Depot, and 1321 Farnham Street, corner 14th.

SAN FRANCISCO OFFICE—2 New Montgomery Street.

LONDON, ENGLAND, OFFICES—49 Strand, and 3 Adelaide Street.

DEC 6 - 1949

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 014 754 889 8